

Chat Archive

[Return to Details Page \(/campaigns/details/5029554/Strahd \(Universe A\)\)](/campaigns/details/5029554/Strahd (Universe A)) Display as Pages ?

Hide Whispers ?

Hide GM Rolls ?

GM (GM): 20Caesar: 6

GM (GM): To a party of seasoned adventurers such as yourselves, what you see is but another dull tavern in another dull town in some nameless province. It is but another span of time between the challenges of true adventuring.

Outside the tavern, a fog lies over the town this evening. The damp, cobbled pavement glistens as the lights of street lanterns dance across the slick stones. The fog chills the bones and shivers the soul of anyone outside.

Yet inside these tavern walls the food is hearty, and the ale is warm and frothy. A fire blazes in the hearth, and the tavern is alive with the tumbling voices of country folk.

GM (GM): Suddenly, the tavern door swings open, and a hush falls over the room. Framed by the lamp-lit fog, a form strides through the doorway. His heavy, booted footfalls and the jingle of his coins shatter the silence. His brightly colored clothes are draped in loose folds about him, and his hat hangs askew, hiding his eyes in shadows. Without hesitation, he walks up to your table and stands proudly in a wide stance with folded arms.

In an accented voice he says, "I have been sent to you to deliver this message. If you be creatures of honor, you will come to my master's aid at first light. It is not advisable to travel the Svalich Woods at night!" He pulls from his tunic a sealed letter, addressed to all of you in beautiful flowing script. He drops the letter on the table. "Take the west road from here some five hours march down through the Svalich Woods. There you will find my master in Barovia."

Amid the silent stares of the patronage, the gypsy strides to the bar and says to the wary barkeep, "Fill the glasses, one and all. Their throats are obviously parched." He drops a purse heavy with gold on the bar. With that, he leaves.

GM (GM): The babble of tavern voices resumes, although somewhat subdued. The letter is lying before you. The seal is in the shape of a crest you don't recognize.

Caesar: 10 17 13 12 11 11Serious W.:

3

STRENGTH (0)
Sebastian

20

Dagger (+1)
Sebastian

-1

GM (GM): The crest depicts a wide-winged raven before a narrow, spiked shield. Through a circular window in the top of the shield, you can see the ever-so-tiny detail of a small castle. The sealing stamp must have been very expensive.

Serious W.:

7

60

(+4)

Sebastian

5

Piercing

Dawi: 17 16 9 16 8 15

Serious W.:

13

Sebastian

8

Sebastian

Fire BOlt

Abjuration Cantrip

Components: V, S, M

gavin j.: 15 14 17 14 14 10

Serious W.: 15 16 11 14 12 8

Wary Barkeep: What a strange fellow! Look at how old this coin is!

Serious W.:

Magic Missile

Abjuration 1

Components: V, S, M

The coin is thicker and wider than Empire coinage, and bears the visage not of the Emperor, but of a hook-nosed nobleman with long hair.

Wary Bartender pours fresh ale, topping up all your mugs.

gavin j.: r4d4x10

rolling 4d4

(4 + 3 + 3 + 4)

= 14

GM (GM): Can you all see the letter?

Shundak the Lucky: yep mikeawmids: Monroe struggles to decypher the author's looping script before nodding thoughtfully and pretending that he actually understood any of it.

"Hmmm. Very interesting"

Sebastian: Sebastian looks at the letter. He may be a wanderer, but in his veins still flows noble blood. He is trying to remember his multiple lessons and if he has heard anything of Barovia during any of them.

Caesar: After looking through the letter Tai'r stares up at the rest of his comrads

"What do ya boys think?"

"Im not one to turn a cry for help down"

GM (GM): Sebastian recalls an ancient king Barov who was known as something of a conquerer. Perhaps Barovia is a piece of his legacy?

Sebastian: Judging by the coins, this cry for help really is one which should not be ignored.

Monrose: "Coins you say?"

Shundak the Lucky: Shundak plays with his mug, staring into the fireplace, deep in thought.

"Five hours he said."

Caesar: Tai'rs face lights up as he re-reads the letter

"Aye! Not to be ignored indeed!"

Shundak the Lucky: "A short march if there are lives at the stake."

Monrose: "Yes. Lives. Lives are more important than coins." Monroe adds, with little conviction.

Caesar: "Oh, but of course! The coin is just a little motivation!"

Shundak the Lucky: "If the task proves to be too difficult or out of our reach we will just have wasted a day. I see no harm in checking."

Caesar: Tai'r nods as Shundak speaks

Sebastian: The soles of my shoes are itching and they are not getting scratched by standing on my butt

Shundak the Lucky: "I am ready to leave by tomorrow. At dawn."

Caesar: Tai'r kills the rest of his ale and lets out a meek burp

Monrose: "No! If there is coin - I mean, lives at stake we should leave immediately!"

Caesar: "She is on a shorten time frame!"

"Im not gonna let her waste while we sleep my friend"

Monrose: "Plus, we must think of Ceaser's itchy butt."

*sEBASTIAN'S

Sebastian: The dawn is wiser than the night. Also, no princess was ever saved by drunk insomniacs.

Tai'r Brightwell: Lets out a quiet chuckle

"Aye, fair enough but we leave early!"

Shundak the Lucky: "The woods are dangerous at night, if we leave early we might not even arrive."

Tai'r Brightwell: "Since when are you a scared one?!"

Monrose: "Scared of the dark, Shundak?"

Shundak the Lucky: "Scared of what lies in the dark."

GM (GM): Outside, somewhere in the forest which presses against the tavern, resenting the encroaching force of civilization, a wolf howls at the moon.

Tai'r Brightwell: Looks back over his shoulder

Stares back to Shundak

"Scared of puppies now are ya?"

Monrose: Monrose throws back his head and imitates the wolfs cry.

Tai'r Brightwell: "Ahahaha!"

Gives a pat on the back to Monrose

Monrose: "Ahahahaha."

Tai'r Brightwell: Tai'r finishes chuckling and stares back to Shundak

Shundak the Lucky: "Yes, and and you can't tell me you aren't as well"

Tai'r Brightwell: Tai'r chuckles

"Dak my boy.."

Tai'r plays with his mug a little

"Im always scared, truly. We can die at any minute. But I have the balls to know that making yourself act regardless of fear. Thats the hard part!"

Shundak the Lucky: "Indeed."

"But bravery does not mean charging ahead against all odds."

Tai'r Brightwell: Tai'r sighs

Shundak the Lucky: "If they had time to write that fancy letter they will have time to wait for the night."

Sebastian: I am with Shundak on this one. As eager as I am to go, I still know we must not be foolish.

Monrose: Monrose stands unsteadily and places his tankard on the counter top. "I am going for a piss." he announces grandly, "If I see any wolves, I shall frighten them off with my enormous balls."

Tai'r Brightwell: Tai'r lets out another chuckle

Monrose: Monrose heads outside and relieves himself into a bush.

Tai'r Brightwell: Stares back over to Shundak and Sebastian.

"Aye, if you both say so. Who am I to argue otherwise?"

Sebastian: If it is decided, I am gonna go get some sleep.

Caesar: "Aye, Barkeep!"

Wary Tavernkeep: Yes?

Monrose: His bladder drained, Monrose totters back inside and leans against the bar.

Caesar: Sets down an extra two silver pieces

"The mead was divine, thank ya!"

Wary Tavernkeep: "Why, thank you!" says the Tavernkeep. He smiles delightedly. "I've made up the rooms you paid for, they're waiting upstairs."

Caesar: points to the stairs "Any bunk beds?"

Wary Tavernkeep: The Tavernkeeper looks confused. "Bunk... beds? What are those?"

Tai'r Brightwell: "Its a st-"

Wary Tavernkeep: "At any rate, your rooms are already paid for."

Tai'r Brightwell: "Never mind, im off to bed!"

"Thank ya!" Turns to the group "Night ya filthy bastards!"

Monrose: "Goodnight, you... bearded child."

Tai'r Brightwell: lets out a drunk yet hearty laugh

Shundak the Lucky: Shundak nods "Good night, may your rest be plenty and your night free of nightmares."

Monrose: "Ahahahaha!"

Monrose also heads upstairs to bed.

Tai'r Brightwell: Stumbles off to the stairs

Shundak the Lucky: Grabs his axe and heads to his room, saying a quick prayer to Illmater before sleep.

The following day, after a quick breakfast, dawn finds the party ready to set out on foot along the western road.

Monrose: "Good morning!"

Sebastian: Mornin'

Tai'r Brightwell: "Morning lads!"

"I dont hear any more pups Daky boy!"

Shundak the Lucky: "Probably your old ears playing tricks again"

Tai'r Brightwell: "Oi! Im a young stallion! Im barely pushin 70!"

Shundak the Lucky: "Almost sounds like a kennel from up here."

Shundak smiles and quickly consumes his breakfast.

Tai'r Brightwell: Scarfs down his plate

Shundak the Lucky: "I am ready when you are."

It is a bitterly cold morning, and a thick fog cloaks the landscape. The road stretches on into the west, but visibility is practically zero. You see no other travellers. The time is 6:00 AM, as indicated by the clock on the Tavern mantelpiece.

Monrose: "I was ready 8 hours ago!"

Sebastian: Who of you ate the last egg?!

Well, guess I am done with breakfast too.

Tai'r Brightwell: stares around, his crime unnoticed

Shundak the Lucky: Stands up and and drapes the bear pelt over his shoulders.

Tai'r Brightwell: wiggles from his seat to the floor

Shundak the Lucky: Then grabs his axe and heads out, ready to follow the road once everyone is outside.

Tai'r Brightwell: shuffles after him "Oi, wait for me Daky boy!"

Shundak the Lucky: "What? Are your legs already tired?"

"I know you have to take 3 steps for each of mine, but this is surely the fault of your age!"

Tai'r Brightwell: "You tall half breed! We gnomes arent as frail as you! We live 3 of your life times!"

Shundak the Lucky: "Or is it one of those gnomish tricks to hitch a ride on my back?"

Tai'r Brightwell: ".....Please"

Shundak the Lucky: "... just don't mess up the pelt"

Tai'r Brightwell: "Oi!" leaps up grabbing onto Dak's shoulders, pulling himself up to a comfortable seat

The party comes across a weatherbeaten wooden sign. The sign reads: "Old Svalich Road."

GM (GM):

Black pools of water stand like dark mirrors in and around the muddy roadway. Giant trees loom on both sides of the road, their branches clawing at the mist.

Shundak the Lucky: "Spot anything from the crows nest?"

Monrose: "We are on the right road at least."

Tai'r Brightwell: stares around to see if he can make anything through the fog

The road stretches on into the west, utterly obscured by dense fog.

Tai'r Brightwell: "Nothin from up here Daky boy... by the way you have a NICE set of hair"

GM (GM): 14

Shundak the Lucky: "The old monks told me the same thing"

"You see... I don't think that green cap is healthy for your hair"

Tai'r Brightwell: "....Lad..."

Shundak the Lucky: "Not enough sun, makes them fall"

Tai'r Brightwell: Removes his green cap revealing a spectacularly shiny scalp

"A bit too late for that Ahaha!"

Monrose: "It will make your scalp sweat and encourage premature baldness." Monrose adds sagely.

"See?"

Sebastian: I have no hair and my head is still on my shoulders.

Shundak the Lucky: "That at least one positive thing"

Tai'r Brightwell: stares over to Monrose "Its genetic!" stares over to Sebastian* "I always new you were a man of class Sea Bass!"

Seasoned adventurers such as yourselves can maintain a steady stream of banter on the road. The time passes quickly and amiably enough. By eleven in the morning, the fog still has not burned off.

The fog spills out of the forest to swallow up the road behind you. Ahead, jutting from the impenetrable woods on both sides of the road, are high stone buttresses looming gray in the fog. Huge iron gates hang on the stonework. Dew clings with cold tenacity to the rusted bars. Two headless statues of armed guardians flank the gate, their heads now lying among the weeds at their feet. They greet you only with silence.

Tai'r Brightwell: Stares forward at the statues

"Ay... lads keep focused! I dont want you to.... LOSE your heads!"

Monrose: "Those are impressive gates. But were they built to keeping something out, or something in?"

Shundak the Lucky: "As with most gates, the former."

Monrose: "Well, they shan't keep us out!"

Tai'r Brightwell: "Aye!"

Monrose: Monrose says, striding forward.

Tai'r Brightwell: Tries to analyse further past the gate

As Monrose approaches the gates, they swing open with a screech of rusty hinges.

Shundak the Lucky: "If this is Barovia gettin-"
"Oh"

The road continues on past the gate, moving through thicker forest.

Monrose: "Aha! These gates know who's boss!"

Tai'r Brightwell: Jumps slightly and reaches for his war pick
Lets out a quiet sigh
Lowers his hand back to Shundaks shoulders

Sebastian: Be careful, for this gates truly know who their master is. Keep your eyes open.

Shundak the Lucky: Grips his axe and enters the gates.

Monrose: Scoffing at Sebastian's words, Monrose steps through the gates.

Caesar: Listens closely to the sounds of the woods

Tai'r: "Lads."

Shundak the Lucky: "Huh?"

Sebastian hears nothing -- not the call of a bird, not the shifting of a single leaf. The woods are utterly silent.

Tai'r: "On a serious note, let me or Daky boy here up front first"
"Nothin against any of you but we're a thicker bunch"

Sebastian: I will be standing behind you... to keep your backs safe, of course

Tai'r: "Plus I know how you guys can hit harder than me" looks to Sebastian "Appreciated Sea Bass"

Shundak the Lucky: Taps the gnome sitting on his shoulders. "It may be time to end the ride."

Monrose: "Yes, it is my turn now."

Tai'r: nods in agreement "Aye"
Lets out a uneasy laugh at Monrose's comment

Shundak the Lucky: "Something odd about this woods."

The moment the last member of the party steps through the gates, they swing shut with a resounding clash of steel!

Tai'r: squirms backwards with his hands on Dak's shoulders, sliding down gently from his back

Monrose: Monrose spins around, rapier raised.

Tai'r: Pulls out his pick

Beyond the gates, back the way you came, the fog suddenly thickens and fills the road. You can see nothing but a solid white wall of mist beyond those gates, now.

Shundak the Lucky: Walks back to the gate and tries to open it

The rest of the world might as well no longer exist...

 Tai'r: Equips his shield

The gates are firmly locked, although no chain or padlock binds them. They seem to be held shut with magic.

 Shundak the Lucky: "Cursed magic!"

 Tai'r: "We need to keep moving boys, no time for voodoo"

 Shundak the Lucky: "Some.. enchanter's trick locked us in."

 Sebastian: "Whatever it is, it wants us to move forward and there is no way back, so..."

 Shundak the Lucky: Angrily shakes the gate one more time and heads back to the party, axe in hand and walking in front.

 Tai'r: Walks parallel to Dak
Be ready for anything.

 Shundak the Lucky: "It's like that story about the crab fishers."

 Tai'r: Raises an eyebrow up Crab fishers?"

 Shundak the Lucky: "Or pearl fishers?"
"Fishing in a cave, under water. Almost running out of breath."

Monrose: "How is our situation anything like that?"

 Shundak the Lucky: "The surface is too far, the would suffocate."
they*
"So they push on, further into the cave."

 Tai'r: Smirks

 Shundak the Lucky: "Hoping to find at least a pocket of air."
"We are deep inside the cave, it seems."

The forest is thicker, on this side of the gate. Towering trees, whose tops are lost in heavy gray mist, block out all but a death-gray light. The tree trunks are unnaturally close to one another, and the woods have the silence of a forgotten grave, yet exude the feeling of an unvoiced scream.

 Tai'r: "....."
"Any good jokes?"

 (To Shundak the Lucky): You catch the scent of death on the air.

 Tai'r: "I dont like this deathly quiet"

 Shundak the Lucky: "I smell death in the air."

Tai'r: Raises an eyebrow

Shundak the Lucky: "A wicked scent."

Monrose: Monrose begins a bawdy sea shanty, but trails off after a few verses as the oppressive silence draws in.

Tai'r: "Erm I got one!"

(To Shundak the Lucky): You could follow your nose, if you wanted to.

(To Shundak the Lucky): Otherwise, you can continue along the road

Shundak the Lucky: Stops in his tracks

"The trail of death seems to come from off road. I could track it."

"But I would follow the road."

Tai'r: Stares to Dak

Id rather save this poor lass first Daky boy.

"Thats our priority right now"

Shundak the Lucky: "Yes, nothing good could come from getting lost in these woods."

Tai'r: "Agreed, let's keep moving"

Shundak the Lucky: Continues along the road.

((I need to brb for 5-10 minutes, sorry))

Tai'r: "Oi, Rose!"

Is glancing over at Monrose

GM (GM): (forgot to show you what the gate looked like -- you should be able to see it now)

Tai'r: "Ros-"

Sighs

"Alright then"

Lets out a happily themed hum

A raven alights on a nearby treetop and watches the party impassively as they continue along the road.

Tai'r: Stares back at the bird

"Sky rodents.."

The Raven caws angrily and flaps away. In the oppressive silence, the sudden explosion of sound is somehow more alarming than usual.

Tai'r: "....."

"How come no one travels this road?"

Serious W.: "The gates are sealed shut behind us"

"I suppose there is not much traffic in such conditions"

Tai'r: "But there was no one in front of us.. just seems odd"

"Know anything about this place?"

GM (GM): 9

Tai'r: reaches into his pouch and pulls out his old rank insignia

Seemingly gets lost staring into it, as the group keeps marching forward

"Sea bass, Rose"

Quite suddenly, you step out of the mist. The sky is overcast and grey, and the light from the sun is feeble and sickly. Ahead, the road passes out of the forest and runs down through an open valley. A river flows as clear as a blue winter sky through the valley. To the west, you can see a small village huddled close to a forest. Above the village looms a massive, thickly-forested cliff, and high on its peak you can see a gigantic castle with several huge black spires, stretching skyward.

Tai'r: Stares in the direction of the town

"Aye, is that it?"

Serious W.: "Either this, or a pack of other lost adventurers decided to settle"

Tai'r: Snickers

"Looks like a good place to start, what do you boys say?"

Serious W.: "I am all for it"

Tai'r: Rose, you?

Stares at the silent half orc

"Well, we're all in agreement then!"

"To the town of lost adventurers it is!"

Starts heading towards the humble town

Caesar: Observes his surroundings as he approaches

GM (GM): 11

Tai'r: "Seems like a normal foresting village"

"What do you guys think?"

Stares at his silent party members

Serious W.: "This place is full of trees, yet no bird chirping"

Tai'r: looks around again

listens to the sounds of the woods

10

The woods are silent. Tai'r hears nothing but the breathing of his companions.

Tai'r: "Aye, this is odd... Are any of you tree types?"

Shundak the Lucky: "Tree type?"

Tai'r: "Ya'know, the ones who kiss animals and hug wood."

Sebastian: "Apart from they grow up and they fall down, I do not know much about trees"

Tai'r: "Aye, I can only say the same"

Shundak the Lucky: "I have lived for a long part of my life in the woods."

"This seems... strange."

Tai'r: "Do furry critters like to sleep through the mornings?"

Shundak the Lucky: "But I'm sure the people at the village will know more about it."

Tai'r: nods

(From Shundak the Lucky): does shundak know what could cause this silence?

Sebastian: "Lets go ask some of them"

(To Shundak the Lucky): He has never encountered anything like this before.

Sebastian: "We could also do with some lunch. walking makes me hungry"

Shundak the Lucky: "But one thing is sure."

(To Shundak the Lucky): His passive perception is the highest in the party, incidentally.

Shundak the Lucky: "I have woken up many times in a forest."

"Never seen anything like this."

Tai'r: "Well lets pick up the pace then laddies!"

Shundak the Lucky: Nods and hurries to the village.

You enter the village from the Eastern approach. (We will use Shundak's token to represent the party as a whole, for simplicity.)

Tai'r: Stares around as they enter the village

8

Shundak the Lucky: Looks around at the houses and at the villagers.

Tall shapes loom out of the wood-smoke. The muddy ground underfoot gives way to slick, wet cobblestones. The tall shapes become recognizable as village dwellings. The windows of each house stare out from pools of blackness. No sound cuts the silence except for mournful sobbing that echoes through the streets from a distance.

Tai'r: "This is..."

"Awful"

You hear the sound of small, wooden wheels rolling across damp cobbles. You trace the lonely sound to a hunched figure bundled in rags, pushing a rickety wooden cart through the fog.

Shundak the Lucky: "As silent as the woods."

Tai'r: "Did he the letter say where to meet him?"
pulls out his letter

Shundak the Lucky: "I do not think so, but I assume we could try the biggest building the village."

Tai'r: "Aye, whoever wrote this might be a liar. I see NO wealth in this community"

Shundak the Lucky: Approaches the figure, but still keeps a safe distance.

Tai'r: Follows behind Dak

Shundak the Lucky: Speaks with a clear and deep voice. "Hello?"

Tai'r: stares at the ragged figure and echoes Dak "Hello?!"

Shundak the Lucky: Takes another step. "Have you gone deaf?"

Morgantha: The hunched figure startles. "Who are you?"
"I've never seen you here before."

Shundak the Lucky: "We have received a letter from the burgomaster."

Morgantha: She is a spectacularly ancient woman draped entirely in rags. Her peddler's cart is full of small sacks.

Shundak the Lucky: "We are here to help."

Morgantha: "The Burgomaster?" She laughs. "You've got a surprise in store for you, then."
"His manor is at the end of the south street. Can't miss it."

Tai'r: nods "Thank you"

Shundak the Lucky: "Can you spoil the surprise?"

Morgantha: She chuckles. "A spoiled surprise is worse than a spoiled child!"

Tai'r: covers his eyes with his hand and glances at the sun

Morgantha: "Now, if you'll excuse me, I have business to attend to."

Tai'r: Mumbles to himself

Sebastian: "I bet you would not mind helping out friends. That is why we are here after all, to help."

11

PERSUASION (5)
Sebastian

Shundak the Lucky: "To the manor then."

The sun is practically nonexistent here. The thick clouds turn its light into something so thin and feeble that it cannot even cast a shadow.

Tai'r: *Nudges Dak, this way lad, should be down here"

Morgantha: "I am no friend of yours, stranger. You will find that the people of Barovia do not take kindly to newcomers."

Tai'r: glares at the woman

Morgantha: She carries on, pushing her little rattling cart down the street.

Tai'r: Points to the upcoming street

That should lead south

Sebastian: "Lets hope the Burgomaster is more talkative than the commoners"

Shundak the Lucky: "I do not like this."

Tai'r: "Lets just save the lass and leave"" stares at the manor as they approach

As you approach the main intersection of the tiny village, you pass a Tavern. A single shaft of light thrusts illumination into the main square, its brightness looking like a solid pillar in the heavy fog. Above the gaping doorway, a sign hangs precariously askew, proclaiming this to be the Blood on the Vine tavern. Rounding the corner and heading south, you pass a dark, two-story townhouse. Moaning sobs float through the still, gray streets, coloring your thoughts with sadness. The sounds seem to flow from this townhouse. At the end of the southern street, a weary-looking mansion squats behind a rusting iron fence. The iron gates are twisted and torn. The right gate lies cast aside, while the left swings lazily in the wind. The stuttering squeal and clang of the gate repeats with mindless precision. Weeds choke the grounds and press with menace upon the house itself. Yet, against the walls, the growth has been tramped down to create a path all about the domain. Heavy claw markings have stripped the once-beautiful finish of the walls. Great black marks tell of the fires that have assailed the mansion. Not a pane nor a shard of glass stands in any window. All the windows are barred with planks, each one marked with stains of evil omen.

GM (GM): (Tai'r, perception please)

Tai'r: 17

(To Tai'r): You discern trampled weeds all around the mansion, as well as scores of wolf paw prints and human footprints.

Shundak the Lucky: Passes the gate, heading for the entrance.

Tai'r: I guess that house doesn't just attract humans...

Shundak the Lucky: "Claw marks..."

The doors of the house are heavily barricaded.

Sebastian: "Is something kept in, or out of the house??!"

Tai'r: "Lets knock and find out"

Shundak the Lucky: Walks to the door, grabs his axe and knocks heavily using the blunt end.

After a minute or two, someone comes to the door.

Ireena Kolyana: "Hello?"

 Tai'r: "Aye! We got your letter miss."

 Shundak the Lucky: "As my friends says, the letter brought us here."

 Ireena Kolyana: "I sent no letter," she says.

 Tai'r: raises an eyebrow and pulls out the letter

 Ireena Kolyana: "If you read my father's letter, then what on earth are you doing here?"

 Tai'r: Kolyan Indirovich?

 Ireena Kolyana: "That is my father -- my adopted father, I mean -- that's his name."

 Tai'r: "You know where we can find him?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Yes," she says, quite bitterly.

 Tai'r: nods and stares at the woman, observing her as she speaks

 Ireena Kolyana: "He's here. His heart could not stand the attacks, and he passed three days ago."

 Shundak the Lucky: "Attacks?"

 Ireena Kolyana: The woman is visible only through the small gap of the door, which is held shut by a chain.

She is a pale, auburn-haired woman of great beauty. She has dark circles under her eyes -- it looks like she hasn't slept in a while.

"Night after night, for weeks, this house has borne the assault of Strahd's vicious creatures."

"Since my father died, the attacks have ceased."

 Tai'r: "Strahd?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "No one from the village has been brave enough to help Ismark -- my brother -- take my father to the cemetery for a proper burial."

"I don't know why I'm telling you all of this -- you're obviously working for him."

 Tai'r: rereads the letter

 Shundak the Lucky: "Your father called us here. He wanted us to help someone."

 Ireena Kolyana: "If only I could have some peace..."

 Shundak the Lucky: "Someone sick."

 Tai'r: "That someone is her Dak"

Ireena?

 Ireena Kolyana: She hesitates.

"Yes," she says. "I am Ireena Kolyana."

 Tai'r: "In the letter he said you were under some evil."

Ireena Kolyana: (BRB lunch)

Shundak the Lucky: "You don't look... afflicted. Not any more than anyone in this village."

Sebastian: Sebastian notices that besides the black circles under her eyes, she looks physically fine. He sums up his knowledge of the arcane arts in order to check for some hidden influence

15

ARCANA (3)
Sebastian

Tai'r: rolling 1d100

(37)

= 37

Clark C.: Did I miss the session?

GM (GM): Sebastian senses a dark aura around Ireena. Something evil has been near her -- recently.

Shundak the Lucky: Takes a few steps back and stows his axe, looking around.

"Did you know why your father called for help?"

Tai'r: Stands to the side of Shundak, trying to shoot an intimidating glare from the side of his knee caps

At the woman

GM (GM): Ireena responds to Shundak. "I know why he wrote his letter," she says, "But I was under the impression that he was writing to warn people away -- not to ask for help."

She catches Tai'r's glare and seems confused by it.

Nonplussed, she continues.

"Do you have his letter with you?"

Shundak the Lucky: Nudges Tai'r lightly with the pommel of his axe. "We should show her the letter, maybe she can make sense of this mess."

Tai'r: Aye

GM (GM): @Kyla <https://discord.gg/bWRm5g> (<https://discord.gg/bWRm5g>) (For ooc chat)

Tai'r: Withdraws the letter from his pocket and passes it up to Shundak

Mind passing that to her *he says under his voice

Shundak: "Sure" As he extends his hand and passes the letter.

Rachel Fibe: (is it too late to join, hoping to make a character)

(To Rachel Fibe): You're just in time! Just click the discord link <https://discord.gg/bWRm5g> (<https://discord.gg/bWRm5g>)

Tai'r: We already started a week ago, youre fine. Just roll up a char! :)

(To venomrage88): <https://discord.gg/bWRm5g> (<https://discord.gg/bWRm5g>) for OOC chat

(From Rachel Fibe): Could I have a character sheet in game and can you remind me what level we're starting at?

GM (GM): Ireena reaches through the crack in the door and takes the letter. She pulls it back through and reads it quickly. As she reads, her brow begins to furrow with anxiety. Turning the letter over at last, and glancing at the wax seal, she gives a cold, mirthless laugh.

Shundak: "Didn't seem that funny to us."

"Except the part about the wealth..." shakes his head. "Actually no, that wasn't funny as well."

(To Rachel Fibe): Level 1, and you should be able to see the character sheet now.

Tai'r: "Aye..."

Ireena Kolyana: "This is a forgery. My father did not write this."

"In fact, this seal is the mark of Strahd."

She laughs again, but bittlerly.

Tai'r: Raises an eyebrow

"Strahd?"

Shundak: "So this is the surprise the old woman was talking about."

Tai'r: "Well where can we find the lad?"

"If he's the one who called us here n all"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at Tai'r for a long time. "Strahd is the devil overlord of this accursed place. He lives in the castle. Surely you couldn't have missed it?"

Dawi: "If the letter is forgery we have been tricked, do you really want to meet him Tai'r?"

Tai'r: Looking up to Ireena "Theres no such thing as devils lassie"

Ireena Kolyana: "We'll see if you still feel brave enough to say that to his face."

Tai'r: Look up to Shundak "Daky boy, I need the money. Im not leaving without gettin paid"

Shundak: "Yes, the castle is hard to miss."

Turns to Ireena "So the letter was lying? you are not afflicted by evil?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at you all shrewdly, as though weighing your souls in her mind.

"He has come to me twice. Or so I am told, my memory is a little fuzzy on that point."

(From Elvrida Flintdelver): May I introduce my character or do you want me to wait to play until next session?

Tai'r: Turns back to Ireen "What did he want from ya?"

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): We'll just pretend you've been there all along. Can you introduce your character in the discord chat?

Shundak: "And what could he want from us!"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena holds herself and shudders visibly.

Looking at you, she sighs.

"No," she says. "This is too perfect. A troop of adventurers, just when I need aid? I'd be a fool to fall for this. Good day to you all."

She begins to shut the door.

Tai'r: "Aye lassie!"

"Wait just a moment now!"

Puts his hand on the door

Elvrida Flintdelver: You see a new comer, a dwarven woman with her hair completely shaved off and with runes tattooed on her head, she carries a wooden staff. "Name's Elvrida, need any help?"

(To Catkid): <https://discord.gg/bWRm5g> (<https://discord.gg/bWRm5g>) Please introduce your character here -- you'll be able to join as a level 1 character, and we'll just pretend you've been with the group the whole time.

Shundak: "One last thing." As he puts his hand on the door as well.

Ireena Kolyana: "See, now there's even more of you!"

Tai'r: "Ireena, we came here to help you, whether it was you who asked us or not, you have me hammer."

Looks back to Shundak and Elvrida*

Elvrida Flintdelver: "If the door locked, I could bless you to make it easier for you to pick it open or shove it open."

Shundak: "I know we may not seem trust worthy, but did you mention something about your father and a burial?"

Ireena Kolyana: (Persuasion roll, please)

Tai'r:

16

PERSUASION (0)

Tai'r

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena hesitates, clearly torn.

She glances over her shoulder, into one of the inner rooms.

She looks back at the group.

Shundak: "No man should be left unburied, no matter their sins."

"At least let me help in that regard."

Ireena Kolyana: "Tell you what," she says. "I'm clearly no judge of character. Go and find my brother Ismark. He's usually at the Blood of the Vine. If he thinks you're safe, he'll bring you back here."

"If not, well. You won't be the first servants of Strahd to fall to his blade."

Elvrída Flintdelver: Elvidra pulls out a prayer wheel. "I could help if we're going to burry him."

Shundak: "Sounds good to me."

Tai'r: "Well where can we find your brother?"

*Tair ment The Blood of the Vine"

Shundak: "I assume that's the name of the inn"

"The one we passed before"

Tai'r: "Ah, your a sharp one Daky boy."

Ireena Kolyana: "It's an inn. Head north along this road. It's perched on the northeast corner of the main crossroads. You can't miss it."

Shundak: "It's just that there's isn't much going on in this town."

Ireena Kolyana: She chuckles mirthlessly once more. "Observant one, aren't you?"

Elvrída Flintdelver: "That's strange."

Tai'r: Turns back to Ireena "We'll be on our way." Turns to Dak and Elvrída You two ready?

Shundak: "Ready to get this over with and leave, yes."

Elvrída Flintdelver: She nods. "I have sharp eyes, like a hawk, I'll keep an eye out as we travel." She produces a flame in her hands.

14

Self

Produce Flame (+5)
Elvrída Flintdelver

1

Fire

Tai'r: Smirks We're in good hands

Elvrída Flintdelver:

Produce Flame

Conjuration Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self

Target: Self or a creature within 30 feet of you

Components: V, S

Duration: 10 minutes

A flickering flame appears in your hand. The flame remains there for the duration and harms neither you nor your equipment. The flame sheds bright light in a 10-foot radius and dim light for an additional 10 feet. The spell ends if you dismiss it as an action or if you cast it again. You can also attack with the flame, although doing so ends the spell. When you cast this spell, or as an action on a later turn, you can hurl the flame at a creature within 30 feet of you. Make a ranged spell attack. On a hit, the target takes 1d8 fire damage.

Tai'r: "Let's go" *Tai'r begins to walk down the road"

Shundak: Follows, playing with his axe.

Ireena Kolyana: As you walk up the north street, you hear the sound of relentless, heart-breaking sobs.

The sobbing sound comes from the townhouse directly to your left.

To your right, I mean.

Tai'r: "Aye, this town is cursed.."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Yes. Do you know if this could go to fighting if we say the wrong words?"

You can now see the main crossroads of the village. On the northeast corner, a single shaft of light thrusts illumination into the main square, its brightness looking like a solid pillar in the heavy fog. Above the gaping doorway, a sign hangs precariously askew, proclaiming this to be the Blood on the Vine tavern.

Shundak: "Yes, let's be quick before we become cursed ourselves."

Tai'r: "We're not fightin what we don't need too lassie"

Nods to Shundak

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Great. I we need to persuade anyone, I can bless someone to make them wiser with their words."

"Lead the way Shundak."

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): You notice that the sign used to read "Blood OF the Vine." Someone has scratched out the F and replaced it with an N.

Tai'r: Nods That will come in handy, especially with these folk"

Follows behind Shundak with his stubby legs

Shundak: "The doors are open, guess we don't need to knock."

Elvrida Flintdelver: Quickly casts Guidance on Shundak

Guidance

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: One willing creature

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You touch one willing creature. Once before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to one ability check of its choice. It can roll the die before or after making the ability check. The spell then ends.

Tai'r: rolling 1d4

(2)

= 2

Shundak: Steps inside the tavern, looking around while fidgeting with the pendant on his wrist.

The tavern is small and cramped. The decor seems to indicate that this was once a refined place, but it has grown shoddy with disuse and age. A blazing fire in the hearth gives warmth to the few huddled souls within.

A barkeep behind the counter is relentlessly polishing a row of glasses.

Tai'r: Walks in behind Dak

Three Vistani in multicolored clothing sit at a table together, watching you with keen dark eyes.

Tai'r: "Aye barkeep!"

Elvrida Flintdelver: Do the Vistani seem to be armed?

Tai'r: Waddles over to the bar and climbs on a stool

A young man is seated by himself in a corner booth, next to three empty beersteins. He has one half-empty stein before him. He's holding his head in his hands.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Walks over to the bar and sits calmly

Arik: The barkeep looks at you all somberly.

Shundak: Steps closer to the counter and raises his deep voice. "Ireena sent us, we are here to help Ismark."

Arik: In a dull, hollow voice, he says: "What would you like to order?"

He does not seem to hear Shundak, somehow.

Tai'r: "A round for my compatriots here!"

"And my new friends over there.."

Gestures to the Vistani

Ismark Kolyanovich: The young man looks up, but says nothing. Instead he eyes your little group for a while.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra slides gold across the table. "I can pay, we'll take some ale and we could also have you answer some questions, sir barkeep."

Shundak: "Tai'r, it is best if you repeat the question, I don't like being ignored twice in a row."

Tai'r: Nods

"And like my orc friend said, some information about a "Ismark" would be nice. My lass over here is making it worth your while."

Arik: The barkeep fills a gallon-sized pitcher with ale from a rusty tap. It's about three-quarters foam. He places it before you, nudging it towards you with two fingers. "Two silver pieces for the ale," he says.

The barkeep does not seem to notice the gold, or the question.

Tai'r: slaps two coins down

Arik: He has a vague, distracted look on his face.

Tai'r: "Barkeep..."

Arik: The Barkeep takes the two silver pieces, then turns back to polishing his glasses. The glasses seem to be clean and polished already...

Elvrida Flintdelver: Can I make an arcana check to see if magic's the reason why he's so out of sorts?

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): Yes, you may! :)

Shundak: "This place reminds me of the forest." Whispering.

Elvrida Flintdelver:

13

ARCANA (1)
Elvrida Flintdelver

Tai'r: Knocks the beer stein over "WHAT YOU'RE NOT ABOUT TO DO IS IGNORE ME AND MY COMPATRIOTS HERE, SIR!" he exclaims as he slams his fist against the counter

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): He is under no enchantment.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Calm, calm. You'll attract more flies with honey than vinegar Tai'r."

Shundak: Perks up at the shouts and puts a hand on Tai'r shoulder.

Tai'r: Huffs a little bit as Elvrida and Dak bring him down

The three Vistani tense suddenly at the violence, watching you all with hawklike stares.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Sir, we just want to help and understand. Please excuse my friend for shouting."

Shundak: "Like the missing birds in the forest something is missing here little friend."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'm Ismark Kolyanovich. Heard y'were lookin' fer me?"

The young man leans against the bar. He came up behind you so quietly!
He seems a little drunk.

Tai'r: Looks over his shoulder

Shundak: "It may be manners, or something worse."

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra flinches. "Hello."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Looking at Tai'r in a blurry, unfocused way, he says: "Haven't seen one of you before."

"You just short, or did a Vistani curse your mother?"

He laughs at his own joke.

"It's something worse, by the way," he says casually.

"My good man Arik here has no soul."

Tai'r: Tries to prevent himself from cackling

20

PERFORMANCE (0)

Tai'r

Holds stern, not even a smirk breaking his composure

Elvrida Flintdelver: "No soul...?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods solemnly, then takes one of your empty steins, pours some ale out of your gallon, seats himself beside Elvrida, drinks half the stein in one go, smacks his lips, sets the stein down with a thunk, and says: "Aye. Happens to a lot of folk here."

Shundak: Clears his throat. "I have many questions."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You see, you may not have realized this, but you've wandered into a cursed land. You'll not leave alive."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "But how do we get out?"

Tai'r: Glares over at the three Vistani

Ismark Kolyanovich: "And when you die here, your soul won't leave either. You'll just linger, like all the rest."

Tai'r: "And I don't like being looked at by strangers..."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "There's no getting out. Not unless you're one of them." He points at the Vistani. He doesn't seem to like them very much.

Tai'r: Stops mid sentence

Ismark Kolyanovich: The Vistani are pretending to ignore you all.

Shundak: "Has anyone tried to leave?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods solemnly.

"I've tried myself. Many times. When the wolves don't come for you, the mist does."

"It turns you back, or turns you mad."

Tai'r: "Mist? Wolves"

"Lad, what the hell is wrong with this town?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It's not the town," He says. "It's the whole kingdom."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "And who runs this kingdom? Maybe it's the ruler's fault."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "The devil Strahd brought a curse upon this place. No one knows quite how -- it's been forgotten, or was never known."

Shundak: "It would be better to ask if there is anything right in this kingdom."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "So maybe we take down Straud. That sounds like a quick and stupid way to die."

Ismark Kolyanovich: He chuckles mirthlessly, much like his sister. "You're an insightful one," he says to Elvrida. "A cursed king, and a cursed kingdom. Hail Barovia!" He raises his stein, drinks the rest of it, and pours another.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "But maybe it's one of our few options, a goal we could try to achieve later.."

Tai'r: "Well before we go knocking down Tyrants lad, you can help us with your sister."

"She told us to come find ya"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Ah, you've seen my sister, then? Tell me, does she look well to you?"

Tai'r: Cringes

Shundak: "She thought we were servants of your king Strahd."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "She and I had a conversation this morning. You are witnessing the aftermath." He points at his stein. "She thinks everyone and everything is his servant. Even the rats, she says!"

"Who the hell knows. She may be right."

He looks at you all a little blurrily.

Shundak: "And what about your father then? Why does no one want to bury him?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Nah, you don't have the glint of his cruelty in your eyes. You strike me as good folk with bad fates."

He chuckles. "They're too afraid to go near the church."

Shundak: "Is the curse stronger there?"

Tai'r: "Is there any way we could help?"

"We fear no church, or made up devils"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "The curse is the same strength everywhere. But Strahd has made his feelings toward my father abundantly clear, and the people are afraid to show their allegiance to him."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "I want to go to the church, sounds interesting.."

Tai'r: Tai'r speaks in a loud voice "Ah to hell with this "Strahd"

At the sound of the name, everyone in the tavern flinches.

Including Ismark.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You'll want to keep your voice down," he says. "He is still the king."

Shundak: "As I said to your sister, no one should be left unburied. It is an insult to the gods."

Tai'r: Sighs

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark tears up. He wipes his eye angrily.

Shundak: "Let us help at lest with that."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Clapping his hand on the half-orc's shoulder, he says: "Mate, you've earned a friend."

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra nods. "He should get a proper burial."

Tai'r: "Forgive me, but my boy Dak here has a point. Let us help you lad. Your father deserved better."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark looks into the empty bottom of his stein. He tosses it casually behind the bar, where it shatters.

"Let's go, then!"

He claps his hands together, rubs them briskly, and starts walking toward the exit.

Tai'r: "By my hammer! We go!" "Dak!"

"Shoulders please!"

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra follows

Tai'r: Looks to Shundak

Shundak: lifts up Tai'r on his shoulder.

And follows Ismark.

Tai'r: Points his hammer forward Onwards brothers.... and Elvrida!"

Passing through the street to get to Ireena's house, you once again heart he relentless sobbing.

A grotesquely ancient woman is pushing a cart through the street. She stops at one of the houses and knocks firmly.

Someone opens the door. She talks to them for a little while.

They give her coins.

She gives them a small sack.

The door closes, and on she goes, whistling tunelessly.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra shudders as she doesn't like the sound of sobbing. She also keeps a wide berth from the ancient lady.

Tai'r: "The customs in this hold are.... strange"

Shundak: Catches up with Ismark and whispers. "What was that?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Aye."

"You'll want to avoid her, by the by. And whatever you do, don't buy her pastries."

Tai'r: Tai'rs head snaps

"Pastries?!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: As you near the house, Ismark puts his hands to his mouth and bellows:
"SISTER!"

 Tai'r: Licks his lips

 Shundak: "Tai'r.."

 Tai'r: Daydreams visibly

 Ireena Kolyana: The door opens. Ireena stands in the doorway with her arms crossed, looking grimly at her brother.

"Got some friends, have you?" She shouts back.

 Shundak: "I know it sounds tempting, but I'd rather learn to cook pastries myself before letting you eat something made in this cursed land."

 Tai'r: "A little sweets never killed anybody Daky boy."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Adventurers from Foreign lands, dear lady!" He half runs, half dances up the walkway. He does a drunken pirouette. "Come to save you from the devil Strahd."

"But first, to bury dear father."

"Now, my darling, cease this barring of the way!"

 Shundak: "I wouldn't be so sure looking at how people are behaving around here."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena rolls her eyes and steps out of the doorway, retreating into an inner room.

 Tai'r: Shrugs "Dont blame the sweets!"

 Elvrida Flintdelver: waves "We'd like to burry your father miss. We'd like to help."

 Tai'r: "Aye!" He shouts in accordance with Elvrida

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at you all darkly. Her eyes fall on Elvrida last, and her face softens slightly.

She turns, and retreats up a staircase, running her hand lightly along the handrail.

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark dismisses her with a hand-wave and a "Bah!"

"She wouldn't be much of a pallbearer anyway. Come on, lads and lassie!"

 Tai'r: Nods

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "We're going to the church..?"

The interior of the mansion is well furnished, yet the fixtures show signs of great wear. Noticeable oddities are the boarded-up windows and the presence of holy symbols in every room. The burgomaster is in a side drawing room on the floor—lying in a simple wooden coffin surrounded by wilting flowers and a faint odor of decay.

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Made the coffin myself!"

 Tai'r: I admire the handy work

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "That's beautiful." She says a prayer. "May I try to lift it?"

Tai'r: "It is some craftsmanship."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark positions himself at the top-right corner of the coffin, where one of four rope handles has been attached.

He grips his handle. There are three others.

Tai'r: *Slides off Dak

Shundak: "I can take the two on the back."

Tai'r: Positions himself under the coffin and puts his hammer against the middle of the coffin

Aye, ill push from down here!

Under the center

Shundak: Walks to the back of the coffin and grabs both ropes

Elvrida Flintdelver: Walks over to help Tai'r and then casts guidance on him

Guidance

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: One willing creature

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You touch one willing creature. Once before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to one ability check of its choice. It can roll the die before or after making the ability check. The spell then ends.

"So we carry them off?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "And off we go! Somebody sing a dirge!"

Tai'r: Clears his throat

Ismark Kolyanovich: He starts walking, leading the pallbearers out onto the street.

Tai'r: *Begins to sing Chop suey by the gnomish group "System from the down"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "My, what a lovely, catchy tune! You and I shall become fast friends, short one!"

Tai'r: "Aye human! If you can hold your liquor!"

Lets out his high pitched hard laugh

The pallbearers proceed down the empty streets of the village, headed north towards the church.

Atop a slight rise, against the roots of the pillar stone that supports Castle Ravenloft, there stands a gray, sagging edifice of stone and wood. This church has obviously weathered the assaults of evil for centuries on end and is worn and weary. A bell tower rises from the back, and flickering light shines through holes in the shingled roof. The rafters strain feebly against their load.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra places down the coffin and tries to open the door

The heavy wooden doors of the church are covered with claw marks and scarred by fire.

Tai'r: "It's a damn shame"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Aye."

Tai'r: "Probably was a beautiful building once.."

Shundak: "Suits the atmosphere now."

The doors open at Elvidra's touch. The doors open to reveal a ten-foot-wide, twenty-foot-long hall leading to a brightly lit chapel. The hall is unlit and reeks of mildew. Four doors, two on each side of the hall, lead to adjacent chambers.

You can see that the chapel is strewn with debris, and you hear a soft voice from within reciting a prayer. Suddenly, the prayer is blotted out by an inhuman scream that rises up from beneath the wooden floor.

Tai'r: Covers his ears

"What in the holy hell!?"

Shundak: Slowly lowers the coffin. "Was that normal too?"

Tai'r: Pulls out his weapons

"Ismark?"

Elvrida Flintdelver: "I think they're wounded let's see if we can find them." She walks over to the farthest door on the right.

The chapel is a shambles, with overturned and broken pews littering the dusty floor. Dozens of candles mounted in candlesticks and candelabras light every dusty corner in a fervent attempt to rid the chapel of shadows. At the far end of the church sits a claw-scarred altar, behind which kneels a priest in soiled vestments. Next to him hangs a long, thick rope that stretches up into the bell tower.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Hello?"

Shundak: Turns to the priest. "Everything all right?"

Tai'r: Approaches the front

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): An old desk and chair stand against the south wall, a wooden holy symbol mounted above them—a sunburst. A ten-foot-long iron rod attached to the north wall stands bare, suggesting a tapestry once hung there. Against the far wall stands a wooden cabinet with four tall doors.

(To Elvrida Flintdelver): This is what you can see in the top-right room. You should be able to see it on the map too.

Tai'r: "Aye, preacher!"

From beneath the chapel floor, you hear a young man's voice cry out, "Father! I'm starving!"

Tai'r: Grumbles and glares at the preacher

"Care to explain?"

Donavich: The priest gapes at you wordlessly. He's never seen such a strange collection of characters.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra nods and tries to pull off some of the floor boards. "There's nothing to explain, I think we need to save people."

Tai'r: "Lassie calm down..."

"We don't know why he's down there. Think first."

Ismark: "What ho, Donavich!"

Shundak: "He is right."

Donavich: "I-Ismark? What are you doing here?"

Elvrida Flintdelver: Her entire body shakes but she stops trying to pull of the floor boards.

Donavich: "Who are these strangers?"

"Why have you brought these poor souls here!"

Shundak: "Ismark, priest. What are this cries?"

Donavich: The priest seems to have been praying all night. He has dark purple circles beneath his eyes. His voice is hoarse and weak.

Tai'r: Keeps his eyes locked on the priest

Donavich: The priest gets to his feet, remembering his manners only with difficulty. He brushes off some sawdust and approaches you all, putting his wide sleeves together.

"Those cries are... My son." He says, with difficulty.

"His name is -- was -- Doru."

Tai'r: Raises an eyebrow

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Is he undead now?"

Ismark: "It's alright Donavich. These are friends."

Donavich: Donavich nods wordlessly to Elvrida.

Tai'r: Lowers his head and exhales

"Im so sorry preacher."

Donavich: "I can see by your tattoos that you are familiar with the deities."

"I should warn you -- their reach here is weak."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Yes ir."

"I assumed so."

"Let's let Doru die in peace." She kneels and brings fire to her hands. "Can I remove some of these floor boards?"

Tai'r: "Elvrida?!"

Shundak: Eyes the priest up and down, trying to discern if he's telling the truth.

Donavich: "Please, no!" Screams the old man, rushing towards Elvrida. He clutches at her wrists.

Tai'r: "We don't just walk into this man's house and offer to murder his son"

Donavich: Tears in his eyes, he says: "Please, please don't kill him. He's all I have left."

Elvrida Flintdelver: She stops the flames. "But he's undead.. Ok, I won't."

"I've always been told by my church that undead should be murdered, I'm sorry."

Shundak:

5

INSIGHT (2)
Shundak

Tai'r: "Aye preacher, I understand."

Donavich: "A little more than a year ago, a wizard in black robes came to Barovia from a faraway land. He gave the people hope -- a foolish endeavor. My son was among those led astray by his foolishness, and together with a group of villagers, they attempted to storm Castle Ravenloft."

"If he had only spoken to me about his plans, I could have warned him... I could have shown him the March of the Dead. I could have made him understand."

"The wizard was never seen again, but Doru returned to me."

"I was... I was able to trap him, in the undercroft."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Would it be ok with you, if we just talked to your son? Maybe we could find this mage."

Donavich: "He... Hungers."

Tai'r: Glares at Elvrida

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Has he been a danger to you or others?"

Donavich: The priest fidgets nervously. "He's harmless! My boy wouldn't hurt a fly."

Doru: "Father, I'm starving!"

Tai'r: "You're not exactly svelte are you"

Donavich: As if to change the subject, Donavich latches onto Ismark.

"You've brought your father to be buried, yes?"

"Perhaps we'd better get started -- right away."

Ismark: . "No, I thought we'd wait until dawn," says Ismark, with a bitter note of sarcasm.

Donavich: "I -- er -- well, that would be the proper thing, I suppose."

Tai'r: "Aye Ismark! Take pity..."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "I'm making this whole situation worse." She whispers. She pulls out a prayer wheel. "I'd like to help."

Tai'r: "Preacher, let us bury this man's dead."

(To Shundak): You can tell that he's definitely hiding something.

Tai'r: "And please deliver his last rites"

Shundak: "Indeed, let us bury his father,"

Donavich: Relieved, Donavich hurries to the northern door of the church, which leads out into the cemetery yard. (not shown on the map.)

A fence of wrought iron with a rusty gate encloses a rectangular plot of land behind the dilapidated church. Tightly packed gravestones shrouded by fog bear the names of souls long passed. All seems quiet.

Tai'r: Follows

A single white flower grows from one of the graves, its luminant beauty giving a stark contrast to the bleak surroundings.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra gets on her hands and knees and starts pulling out dirt to make a grave, all the while praying slowly

Shundak: "Priest; your son... Do you think he could be brought back?"

Donavich: Standing over an open grave (there are several waiting) Donavich says: "It's a shame Ireena could not be here."

Donavich looks nervously at Shundak.

"He's here already," he says, feigning ignorance.

Tai'r: "Aye, lets lower the casket lads"

Donavich: "I think, with time, perhaps the Dawnlord could free him from the curse."

Elvrida Flintdelver: Walks over to the open grave and starts praying.

Ismark: Ismark helps lower the coffin into the grave.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "So you think it would only take the magic of a god to cure him? I know you don't trust me and for good reason priest, but I have some magic, and I might be able to heal your son."

Donavich: The priest's eyes widen.

Tai'r: "Easy easy..."

Donavich: He looks nervously at Elvrida.
He licks his dry lips.

Tai'r: Struggles to lower the coffin slowly
"A little help would be nice lads..."

Donavich: "I... Suppose... I could allow you to see him," says the Priest to Elvrida.

Tai'r: "Dak, Elvrída!"

Elvrída Flintdelver: "Thank you. I don't promise anything, I'm only a weak mage, but I'd like to try and help."

Tai'r: "The bloody coffin!"

Shundak: Help lowering the coffin.

Elvrída Flintdelver: She walks over and helps finish lower the coffin

Tai'r: Lets out a deep exhale

"Thank you!"

Wipes some sweat from his forehead

Donavich: Once the coffin rests at the bottom of the grave, Donavich shakes out his hands and spreads them over the coffin.

He begins a chant to some deity called the Dawnlord -- unfamiliar even to Elvrída. Perhaps a local god.

Tai'r: Bows his head in respect

Donavich: "...And may Kolyan Indirovich not reincarnate here, within this cursed realm, but may his spirit speed on, straight on to Elysium!"

The priest wraps up the prayer a little anticlimactically.

"Well," he says. "That's done."

Tai'r: Nods

Shundak: Mumbles a little prayer with his eyes closed.

Donavich: "It's a shame Ireena could not be here. I know she was not his natural daughter, but I think he loved her all the same."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods, not trusting himself to speak.

Tai'r: "Aye preacher"

Elvrída Flintdelver: "I just wish we could do more to make this place better."

Tai'r: "About your son. My friend may be able to help him as we said earlier."

Donavich: "I think your aid should be reserved for the living. Ismark will need your aid far more than I."

"Ismark, you must heed me. Take Ireena. Take her as far away from the castle as possible."

"You should take her to the Abbey of Saint Markovia in Krezk. She will be safe there, with the protection of the Saint. If that is impossible, you should take her at least as far as Vallaki -- the town is fortified, and she will be safer there."

"Strahd has fixed his sights upon her, you understand this, yes? He will not rest until he has made her his slave."

"I hope that these good people will help you. I... I must see to my son."

"Good day to you all. Good day. Do not stay out after the sun sets!"

Tai'r: Preacher!

Donavich: He begins retreating to the church, but flinches when Tai'r shouts at him.

Tai'r: Approaches him

Shundak: "Why does Strahd want her in particular?"

Tai'r: "A word in private?"

Donavich: The preacher looks at Shundak nervously. "One can only guess at the motivations of that devil."

"He has a weakness for beauty, and Ireena is beautiful."

Looking down at the gnome, he says: "Aye. Come with me, then. We'll go to the office."

He leads the way into the church once more.

Tai'r: Follows

Nods and takes his hat off

"Preacher..."

"Family is important"

"Do you agree?"

Donavich: The priest nods.

Tai'r: "The only reason im in this damned town, is for my family"

"I know what its like to have nothing left but your blood, I really truly do."

"But from what I hear, your child is suffering."

Donavich: Donavich looks away uncomfortably.

Doru: "Father, please!"

Tai'r: cringes at the sound of the yelling

Donavich: He shuts his eyes tightly against the madness-inducing, desperate cry.

"Please, continue," he says.

Tai'r: "You love your son, do you not?"

Donavich: "Of course I do!" The priest nearly shouts.

"I love him more -- more than any man could bear."

Tai'r: nods

"Then why do you allow him to continue like this."

Donavich: The priest sits down.

He puts his head in his hands, and begins to sob.

Tai'r: crosses his arms

"Preacher, your a kind man. You worship a kind god. I feel you know the right move here."

Donavich: Once loosed, the tears cannot be contained. Soon he is weeping openly.

After a solid minute or two, he hiccups, wipes his eyes, and nods solemnly.

Seeming to regain his composure, he gets abruptly to his feet and moves out into the hallway.

Tai'r: follows

Donavich: He opens the southeast door.

Tai'r: gestures to his friends

Time and neglect have punched holes in the ceiling of this moldy room, which contains a few broken roof shingles amid puddles of water. In one corner, set into the floor, is a heavy wooden trapdoor held shut with a chain and a padlock. A young man's screams of anguish can be heard through the door.

Shundak: Smiles at the gnome and follows

Donavich: Donavich points wordlessly at the locked trapdoor.

"I lost... Lost the key," He says.

Tai'r: reaches up to pat the preacher's lower back

Donavich: "It was a lucky thing. I cannot count how many times I was tempted to free him."

Tai'r: *Where did you lose it?

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Do we try to bust it open? I could try to burn down the door too?"

Tai'r: "Well, id rather not start a fire in a wooden building lassie."

The wood of the trapdoor is damp and swollen. Fire would not work well.

Shundak: "Not burning inside of a church."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Aah. Thinking. Not good at that."

The chain, however, is very rusty.

Tai'r: Looks to Dak

"You know how to put those muscles to good use?"

Shundak: Tries to get a good grip on the trapdoor and to forcefully open it.

Tai'r: Grabs the door and tries to aid him

Elvrida Flintdelver: Casts guidance as he readies to force it open

Guidance

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: One willing creature

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You touch one willing creature. Once before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to one ability check of its choice. It can roll the die before or after making the ability check. The spell then ends.

Tai'r: "On 3..."

Elvrida Flintdelver: Then joins to help pull it open

Tai'r: 1

2

tightens his grip

3!

Donavich: The chain bursts!

The chain bursts!

Tai'r: Flies back a little

Oof!

The trapdoor creaks upward on rusty hinges.

Shundak: Sighs and grabs his axe.

And slowly descends.

Tai'r: "Daky boy, you and me up front."

"Eldy, behind us"

Shundak: "Mhm"

The church's undercroft has rough-hewn walls and a floor made of damp clay and earth. Rotting wooden pillars strain under the weight of the wooden ceiling. Candlelight from the chapel above slips though the cracks, allowing you to glimpse a gaunt shape in the far corner.

Tai'r: Grabs his pick and shield

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Hello, we'd just like to talk. Maybe we could even heal you son."

Tai'r: "Hello!?" You down here laddie?!"

"Anyone down here!?"

Shundak: "He's here."

"In the corner."

Tai'r: walks towards Dak

Doru: "I can smell your blood!"

Tai'r: is visibly distraught

"Aye lad, how did this happen to ya?"

Doru: The vampire spawn dances and flits between the pillars, trying to slip past you.

"Don't come any closer!" He hisses.

"I'll kill you all!"

Tai'r: Looks to Dak

Nods

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Please can I try to heal you!" She shouts, even though she knows it's hopeless

20

PERSUASION (0)
Elvrida Flintdelver

Shundak: "Some things cannot be healed."

Doru: He cackles for a minute or two, but stops abruptly.

"Could you... Could you really?" He asks, peering around a pillar.

Tai'r: Slips off to the side

Doru: "You smell of gods!"

Tai'r: slowly edges closer while Elvrida speaks to him

Doru: 1

Doru takes no notice.

His eyes are fixed on Elvrida.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "I-I don't know, let me try." She holds up her holy symbol, slowly reaches out her hand as she prays. She tries to cast cure wounds on him, even though she thinks it probably won't work

4

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Elvrida Flintdelver

"I'm sorry. I don't think I can help you. I'm trying.."

Tai'r: Raises his hammer and charges at him with a swing of his war pick

Caesar:

12

Warpick (+3)
Tai'r

9

Doru: "AAARGH!" Screams the vampire spawn, as Elvrida's holy symbol flares with brilliant light!

Doru twists to one side, neatly dodging the war-pick.

Tai'r: Blasted!

Doru:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 7 | 12

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

Tai'r: *Tai'r's armor stops his claws deadElvrida Flintdelver: She steps back and readies a ball of flame in her hands. She's on the verge of tears. "I guess we have to end his life."Tai'r: "Dak now!"Elvrida Flintdelver: Do we roll initiative now?Shundak: *Grips hiss axe, ready to strike.Elvrida Flintdelver:*17.14

INITIATIVE (2.14)
Elvrida Flintdelver

Doru:

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 12

Shundak:*9.16

INITIATIVE (3.16)
Shundak

Caesar:*21.12

INITIATIVE (1.12)
Tai'r

Tai'r will go first.Tai'r: "May the pantheon take your soul lad!" *Tair swings his pick axe downCaesar:*18

Warpick (+3)
Tai'r

2

Doru: "AARGH!"

Tai'r: "Let us end it boy!"

Doru: "I'll get you back for that you hairy little runt!"

Elvrída's turn.

Elvrída Flintdelver: "I'm sorry." She steps back and lobbs a ball of flames at his head

22

Self

Produce Flame (+5)
Elvrída Flintdelver

3

Fire

19

Self

Produce Flame (+5)
Elvrída Flintdelver

1

Fire

EOT

Ignore second one

misclicked

Doru: "HOT HOT HOT!" The vampire spawn screams and paws at his face, trying to douse the unnatural flames!

They seem highly effective.

Tai'r: Raises his shield

Doru: "RRRAAAAGH!" Roars the vampire spawn, sprinting towards Shundak!

Tai'r: "Dak look out!"

Doru:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 22

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 11 slashing

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 10

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.
--

Damage: 6 slashing

(Multiattack)Shundak: (first hits)Tai'r: "You little bastard!"

(Dak your turn)

Shundak: (i was waiting for the dm to switch in the initiative order or say eot)Doru: The vampire spawn latches onto Shundak with his claws!*(EOT)Shundak: (did he deal damage or grapple?)Doru: *(No damage -- just grapple)Shundak: Grabs his axe with both hands and swings, aiming for Doru's head, letting out a deep but short scream.

(Rage)

20Greataxe (+6)
Shundak2
*Rage8
Slashing

eot

Doru: A spray of black, congealed blood spurts from Doru at the blow."YOU BIG GREEN BASTARD!"*Shundak: "Get him while he's distracted!"Doru: Doru is forced to let go, he staggers back *(AoO from both Shundak and Elvrida.)Tai'r: "Back to hell with ya!" *Tai'r charges forward swing his pick to the back of the vampireElvrida Flintdelver:*15*Scimitar (+4)
Elvrida Flintdelver6
Slashing

AoO

Shundak:

16

Greataxe (+6)
Shundak

2
Rage

5
Slashing

Swings again, this time aiming for the chest.

(To Tai'r): Still need yer rolls, son!

Caesar:

20

Warpick (+3)
Tai'r

4

Tai'r: Pierces at his lower back!

Doru: Doru screams at each of the blows. Muffled weeping can be heard from upstairs.

His black, semi-congealed blood is falling in clumps now.

Sobbing in pain, he says: "I'll... Get... You... All!"

Elvrida Flintdelver: She aims another blast of flames at his head and then ducks behind a column, tears coming to her eyes

24

Self

Produce Flame (+5)
Elvrida Flintdelver

1
Fire

eot

Doru: This time it's a glancing blow, the splash of flames washes over his shoulder but does not catch as effectively.

CLAWS*Vampire SpawnAttack: 12

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashingBITEVampire SpawnAttack: 19

The target's hit point maximum is reduced by an amount equal to the necrotic damage taken, and the vampire regains hit points equal to that amount. The reduction lasts until the target finishes a long rest. The target dies if this effect reduces its hit point maximum to 0.

Damage: 4 piercing + 9 necroticTai'r: (To whom?)Doru: Doru turns on Tai'r, slashing wildly and attempting to bite him!

His claws and teeth scrape against steel armor.

Tai'r: Catches his blows and blocks his teeth with his shield

"Stop fighting us laddy!"

Doru: EOT

"Nooooo!"

Shundak: *Takes a few steps forward, raising his axe with both hands and striking at the boy one more time13*Greataxe (+6)
Shundak2
*Rage16
Slashing

Doru: The massive blow nearly severs Doru's right arm at the collarbone. It seems to put him into shock! He makes no sound, but staggers back, leaning against the wall. Black blood dripples in oatmeal-thick chunks, splattering noisily on the dirt floor.

Shundak: eot

Doru: Technically that shouldn't have hit, but he's already significantly weakened and cornered.

Tai'r: Brings his pick forward and swings it towards Doru's chest "Back to hell you demon!"

Caesar:

5

Warpick (+3)
Tai'r

9

Doru: Doru twists aside as the pick swings at him, and it misses by inches.

Shundak: "I hoped this would be less messy, it is not a good way to go."

Tai'r: EOT

Elvrida Flintdelver: Steps behind a column and lets loose another bolt of flames

16

Self

Produce Flame (+5)
Elvrida Flintdelver

5

Fire

eot

Doru: Doru covers his face in his hands, screaming as the flames singe away his hair.

Then he leaps onto the wall and scrambles away on all fours, scuttling like a spider!

(AoOs from Shundak and Tai'r)

Caesar:

22

Warpick (+3)
Tai'r

9

Shundak:

20

Greataxe (+6)
Shundak

2

Rage

5
Slashing

Caesar: "Oh no you don't!"

Doru: The two blows at the fleeing vampire both hit, but he keeps crawling at top speed, skirting around you all!

Shundak: "Do not let him escape!"

Doru: He passes close enough by Elvrida for her to strike him as he flees! (AoO please)

Elvrida Flintdelver:

15

Scimitar (+4)
Elvrida Flintdelver

6
Slashing

Doru: Elvrida's scimitar lops off his head.

The dead vampire spawn falls to the floor.

He curls up like a spider, his headless corpse stiffening quite suddenly.

Elvrida Flintdelver: Elvidra pants as she nearly drops the scimitar. "We just murdered a vampire boy. I feel like a good person and a bad person at the same time."

Doru: He seems to be around 20 years old.

Tai'r: "That boy lost his humanity a long time ago lassie."

Doru: His body begins to crumble, turning slowly into ashes.

Tai'r: Approaches its corpse

Shundak: "Let's hope this brings some peace to his father."

"And let's hope his soul will leave this place."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Yes." She prays and then starts walking toward the stair case

Tai'r: Follows out

Elvrida Flintdelver: "At least we know that we tried to help him."

"Priest, we tried to save your son with magic, but my healing magic only hurt him. I'm sorry."

Donavich: The priest is prostrate before the altar, weeping inconsolably.

He does not even look up.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark seems uncomfortably sober.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "I think we should leave.." She whispers.

Tai'r: approaches and puts his hand on his shoulder

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Come on," He says. "We should leave."

Tai'r: "Your child is with the Dawnlord now."

"You did the right thing"

The priest wails.

Tai'r: puts his head down and returns to the group

Ismark Kolyanovich: In a forced cheery tone, Ismark says: "Homeward?"

Tai'r: "Aye"

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Ok." She nods.

Ismark Kolyanovich: 600 XP to each of you.

Ismark shakes himself and leaves the church at a brisk walk.

Tai'r: is still distraught from the earlier encounter

Shundak: Walks with his head down. "Suddenly I realize why everyone is so somber around here."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It's a lot to deal with, isn't it?"

Tai'r: "Aye..."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Keep your chin up and your liver working, that's what I always say."

"I could do with a bloody big drink."

Tai'r: "No..."

Ismark Kolyanovich: He glances skyward.

"Actually, it's getting dark."

"We must get indoors."

Tai'r: "Ismark"

walks along side him as they continue

Shundak: "What happens when it gets dark? Wolves?"

Tai'r: (Btw we're level 2)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Wolves, ghosts, zombies, ghouls, ghasts, werewolves... All manner of foul creatures walk these streets at night."

"I don't think we're due for a full moon, so at least we don't have to worry about werewolves tonight."

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Indoors then."

Tai'r: Aye

Shundak: "To the inn?"

Tai'r: rolling 1d10

(3)

= 3

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Yes. Ismark, are there any markets where you can buy medicinal stuff? Like herbalism kits?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark thinks for a little bit.

"Bildrath's Mercantile might have something. It's the only shop still open."

"Conveniently, we're actually passing it now." He points to his left, towards a large building. Sparse light spills out from behind drawn heavy curtains. A sign over the door, creaking on its hinges, reads "Bildrath's Mercantile."

Elvrida Flintdelver: She enters. "Hello, I'm looking for a herbalism kit."

She holds out five gold pieces.

Bildrath: The shopkeeper, a bald, greasy-looking man with drooping jowels and greedy, beady eyes, stares at her gold and smiles wickedly.

Baba Lysaga: "I do carry those," He says, reaching for a leather satchel on one of the shelves behind him.

GM (GM): Ignore Baba up there -- clicked the wrong character

Bildrath: "Unfortunately, they're 50 gold pieces. It doesn't look like you have enough!"

GM (GM): He smiles sadistically.

Elvrida Flintdelver: "Oh ok. To the inn we go!"

Tai'r: "Aye"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Back in the street, Ismark watches you emerge from the shop. "Did you find what you were looking for?"

Shundak: Before entering Shundak stops Tai'r.

Tai'r: "Hm?"

Raises his trusty eyebrow

Shundak: "What you did back there with the priest was good."

"He will be grateful in time, even if this was the hardest choice."

Tai'r: sighs "Dak, I felt his pain. I know what its like caring after a sick family member.

"Difference is that that wasnt his family anymore but he still saw it as his duty to protect his son."

"I couldnt leave him to suffer."

"I sword id fight to make this world better. No matter how small the victories"

"Swore"

Shundak: "You did the right thing, I hope this has not brought back old wounds."

 Tai'r: Shakes his head

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "I shouldn't have jumped the gun, Tai'r you really did do the right thing."

 Tai'r: No, but I only fear what I would have done if the rolls were flipped and that was my mother in the basement.

Nods to Elvrida "As long as you understand lassie. You ment well."

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "I say we drink and then sleep a long while."

 Tai'r: "Aye"

"Im with ya on that one."

 Shundak: Nods. "Not much else we can do around here."

 Rachel Fibe: "And then we take Ismark and his sister to the abbey."

 Tai'r: "Lets just call it a night"

Follows Ismark

 Rachel Fibe: "Sounds better."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "We may as well part ways here. Tomorrow, at dawn, I will set out with my sister. We will head to Krezk. I hope you will join me."

 Tai'r: "Ill be by your side."

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "I'd love to join."

 Shundak: "You two seem one of the few things that is not ruined or desolate around here."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark chuckles. "Whatever gave you that idea?"

"We're worse off than the rest -- we still have our souls. Anyway. Goodnight, all. I'll see you at dawn!"

"Assuming you're still alive, that is."

Ismark walks down the southward street, heading home.

 Shundak: "I have no intentions to die, tomorrow it is."

 Elvrida Flintdelver: For part of the night can I keep watch at the window, trying to make sure nothing is coming close to hurt us?

 GM (GM): Yes. I recommend taking turns at the watch.

 Elvrida Flintdelver: "I'll take the first one, who would be willing to take second watch?"

 Shundak: "I will do it."

 GM (GM): 16 2

 Tai'r: "Then wake me up when you finish Dak"

 Elvrida Flintdelver:

16

PERCEPTION (5)
Elvrida Flintdelver

 Shundak: (I need to brb, mind if we take a 10 minute break?)

 GM (GM): 10 minute break sounds good.

 Shundak: (or you can go on without me)

 Tai'r: (I thought we were about to rap up?)

 GM (GM): We're on till 12:00 at least.
Still an hour to go! If you're all up for it, that is.

 Shundak: (yea i just need a short break)

 GM (GM): I'd like to get to daylight at least, just to shake off the bleakness of that last scene.

 Elvrida Flintdelver: (I'm up for it, but I'm flexible with whatever the group is. Just need a short break)

 GM (GM): Let's take a break now. We'll return at 11:20.

 Elvrida Flintdelver: (Sure!)

 Tai'r: (I have to head out at 1130 I got the time conversion wrong)

 GM (GM): Ah. Well, then perhaps we'd better end it a little early today.

 Tai'r: (Yeah im sorry about that. Ill make myself available for the whole time next weekend)
My fault

 GM (GM): Not a problem! I'm just glad you could all be here. :)

The night passes peacefully. All three watches pass without incident.

The next morning, dawn rises cold and pale. The sky is still overcast.

The sky is painted a glorious shade of coral pink, and as the dawn light rises your spirits lift as well.
Last night feels like it was a thousand years ago.

 Elvrida Flintdelver: I stand up with a small smile, feeling stronger and refreshed and ready for the next quest.

 Shundak: "At least the dawn is nice."
(Do we roll hp at level up or can we take the average?)

 GM (GM): (Roll first. If it's lower than average, take average instead.)

 Elvrida Flintdelver: rolling 1d8

(4)

= 4

Shundak: 11

Tops K.: Do you got a macro for stats rolls, or should I do it manually?

GM (GM): You can do 27-point buy, if you want

Tops K.: Is rolling an option?

Chancing it is always fun

GM (GM): Rolling is an option :)

Unfortunately I haven't made a macro for it

Tops K.: rolling 4d6d1

(3 + 1 + 5 + 5)

= 13

rolling 4d6d1

(5 + 3 + 1 + 2)

= 10

rolling 4d6d1

(6 + 3 + 5 + 6)

= 17

rolling 4d6d1

(4 + 3 + 4 + 5)

= 13

rolling 4d6d1

(1 + 1 + 6 + 3)

= 10

rolling 4d6d1

(6 + 3 + 5 + 1)

= 14

Tops K.:

LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY

rolling 2d8+2d4 height/weight

(4 + 5)+(4 + 3)

= 16

Liliet .:

25

Drum (3+0+2)
Suldae Catherine Westwind

23

Flute (3+0+2)
Suldae Catherine Westwind

16

Lute (3+0+2)
Suldae Catherine Westwind

oops

sorry

32

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep
Suldae Catherine Westwind

Tops K.: rolling 1d10 Level 2 hitpoints

(9)

= 9

Liliet (Suldae):

Roll for HP

Roll 1: 5

Roll for HP

Roll 1: 5

Hideous Laughter

*Enchantment 1Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A creature of your choice that you can see within rangeComponents: V, S, M (Tiny tarts and a feather that is waved in the air)Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A creature of your choice that you can see within range perceives everything as hilariously funny and falls into fits of laughter if this spell affects it. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or fall prone, becoming incapacitated and unable to stand up for the duration. A creature with an Intelligence score of 4 or less isn't affected. At the end of each of its turns, and each time it takes damage, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. The target has advantage on the saving throw if it's triggered by damage. On a success, the spell ends.

GOAT4444: HerroTops K.: Hi

Think we may be an hour early. I'm gunna grab brekfast

GM (GM): <https://app.roll20.net/campaigns/chatarchive/4317586> (<https://app.roll20.net/campaigns/chatarchive/4317586>)

Here is the chat archive, if any of you need to play catchup

RECAP

Our heroes have agreed to take one IRINA KOLYANA and her brother ISMARK THE LESSER to safety, away from Castle Ravenloft and the evil king of Barovia, a certain mysterious STRAHD.

The party now has a difficult choice to make. According to the priest who advised them, there are two places which might be safe from Strahd. One is the Abbey of Saint Markovia in Krezk, the other is the fortified town of Vallaki.

GM (GM):*CHOOSE WISELY...

(game will not really start till 8:00 -- to allow everyone time to join)

(until then please keep ooc chat to the discord server)

The party finds Ismark leaning on the gates of the manor house.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Greetings!"

He looks sober today.

"I see you all made it through the night. Come on in. We've made breakfast."

(From Liliet (Suldae)): I would rather have my character join the party than already be there ^^; though both ways works, as you decree

Shundak: "Morning Ismark."

(To Lilieth (Sulda)): I'm fine with it. You'll be popping out of the forest when they hit the road, how does that sound?

(To Lilieth (Sulda)): are you on any particular quest?

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Morning, Shundak!"

(From Lilieth (Sulda)): excellent ^^

Shundak: Looks around at the morning sun. "Seems like a good day to start our travels."

"Less gloomy than yesterday, that's for sure."

(From Lilieth (Sulda)): I've never played this before so I'm going with "saw gates, got curious, went in, that was a bad idea"

Shundak: Steps inside. "Is your sister ok? Happy to leave this town?"

(To Lilieth (Sulda)): I imagine you'd probably be thrilled to see capable-looking adventurers after wandering around in Barovia for so long.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "My sister is well enough... She had some nightmares, so she didn't sleep very well. She's a bit cranky."

"Breakfast will help, though!"

He leads the way into a spacious dining room with a long table and several chairs. It is heavily burdened with breakfast fare.

(From Lilieth (Sulda)): I was figuring 'ive been her for like two days' bc again I only know what i read in the chat archive and I'd rather go with completely ignorant char, but yes she sure will ;u;

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ireena emerges from the kitchen and slams down another tray of tea and snacks. Ismark stiffens but laughs it off.

Shundak: "I have to admit something-"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Since the servant's left, we've had to make do," he says, rather callously.

"Oh? What's that?"

Shundak: "I forgot to buy rations and provisions for our trip."

"I usually travel alone and I sustain myself with what I find in the forest."

"I don't know if I can forage enough for our group, especially in these cursed woods."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods thoughtfully.

"I think we have enough here in the larder to stock ourselves for at least three days. We'll be borrowing a cart and horse from one of the neighbors. They didn't make it through the last attack, so the cart and horse weren't doing them any good."

"Now, we have something of a tough decision to make. Father Donavich suggested two places of safety: the Abbey of Saint Markovia, in Krezk, and the fortified town of Vallaki. Here, let me grab a map..."

Shundak: "What is closer?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: He unrolls a scrolled map on part of the table.

"As you can see, we are here," he says, pointing to a small village on the eastern edge of the map.

"Castle Ravenloft is here..."

He points at a spot just above the village.

Shundak: "Closer than I would like."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "And Vallaki is here. The town is fortified, but it's small and it's still within sight of the castle."

Shundak: "What about the abbey?"

Shundak looks carefully at the map, memorizing rivers, forests and roads.

WANDERER

Background: Outlander

You have an excellent memory for maps and geography, and you can always recall the general layout of terrain, settlements, and other features around you. In addition, you can find food and fresh water for yourself and up to five other people each day, provided that the land offers berries, small game, water, and so forth.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "The Abbey of Saint Markovia is here -- at the western edge of Barovia. It's far, but I think Ireena is likely to be safest here."

Shundak: Shundak nods. "Donavich said the same."

"We could pass by Vallaki, maybe rest there if it is safe. But I think we should head to the Abbey if possible."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'm inclined to agree, but I would not ask such a thing lightly. What do your companions think?"

Shundak: Traces an imaginary path along the map with his finger. "This could be our path, we should stick to the roads if possible."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Yes, the roads are far safer."

Ismark unscrews a small hip flask and takes a swig.

His face brightens noticeably.

Shundak: "Tai'r is still at the inn, he seemed to need rest after what happened yesterday with Doru."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "We could head back for him. That was pretty... jarring."

Shundak: "We should go there and pick him up, I'll grab some of the breakfast for him."

Finishes eating and puts some food in a cloth.

"Anything else you want to do in town before we leave?"

"Other than passing by the tavern."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "When we hit the tavern for Tai'r we should see if the Vistani have lured any other travellers here. A larger party might be wise."

"I'm sure we could hire a few people."

Shundak: "You seem to have an eye for people, let's just make sure they are not servants of Strahd."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark chuckles.

"Ireena!"

He shouts.

Ireena emerges from the kitchen, arms crossed. She seems very angry.

"We're headed to the tavern. Be a good sister and wait here, alright?"

Ireena rolls her eyes.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Shall we?"

He leads the way out of the tavern again

Shundak: "Yes."

Ismark Kolyanovich: (manor, not tavern)

Shundak: Shundak smiles to Ireena, grabs his axe and pelts and follows Ismark.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Humming, he leads the way up the north-south street, headed towards the tavern. Though the morning dawned relatively clear, grey clouds are already mounting up. It will be another dreary, overcast day.

He enters the tavern with bravado and swagger, stamping his boots heavily across the floorboards to draw the attention of any tense adventurers.

Shundak: Follows behind, his heavy steps echo through the tavern.

Marcus Veranius turns from his mug of ale as Ismark stomps, giving him a strange look Suldae Westwind: A young half-elven woman sitting in the corner perks up. She gave up on talking with the bartender and preferred not to try again, too unnerved by the experience to risk it. But this looks like an alive person!

Two alive people!

Marcus Veranius: "I'd be careful about stomping on ANY wood in these parts. The rot must set in thick if the mist is as bad as it seems."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Aha! This one has a soul. And he's clearly not from these parts. See? What did I tell you, Shundak?"

Ismark is making no effort to keep his voice down.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks in the direction the comment came from. The man was already here when she came in, as quiet as the rest, and it's nice to add one more person to the 'alive' tally.

"I have a soul too! I think!" Suldae adds, getting up from her seat and coming closer Marcus Veranius: "And you seem to have enough enthusiasm to make up for the entire village's slack. Nice to meet you, good fellow."

Sulda Westwind: "Is that what's going on? Something about souls?"

Shundak: "We seem to have gotten lucky then."

"Almost too lucky."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda smiles at everyone, barely holding her gaze a moment longer on Marcus's face

"My name is Sulda Westwind. I'm a bard, and I'm curious about local stories. What's going on, and can I help?"

Shundak: Turns to the half-elf with a frown on his face. "How long have you been here?"

Sulda Westwind: "Like, five minutes?" Sulda wrinkles her nose at the barely started mug of watered-down ale on the table she left. "If you mean the land, since two days ago. I got a little lost, barely found my way out of the woods... There doesn't seem to be a way to go back out once you come in, does there?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark chuckles.

"Yes, the fog can turn even the best navigators around."

"It's said that even souls can't leave this accursed land."

Shundak: Shundak looks down and his expression changes from curious to somewhat saddened. "As he said."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda blinks. "Well that's just lovely," she says in a lower voice. Sure, her assignment from her mentor was basically "get in trouble", but she -was- supposed to come back afterwards. Apparently she was likely going to fail that part...

Shundak: "Apparently there is no clear way out."

Sulda Westwind: No clear way out, but might still be a way. Sulda files that away for future reference, then turns her attention back to situation at hand. "What about you? Are you local?"
She doesn't really think the half-orc is, but it never pays to assume.

Shundak: "Just like you I'm from... outside."

Marcus Veranius blinks, considering the circumstances. He hadn't yet tried to leave; this was not the best of news.

Shundak: "Got tricked into coming here, not really sure why."

Marcus Veranius: "...well, I didn't have plans of leaving soon anyways."

Shundak: "Heard about the devil in the castle?"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda bites her lip. Well the 'get in trouble' part is certainly looking good at least.
"No, not yet. There's a devil?"
She looks in the direction she remembers the castle being Ismark Kolyanovich: "Aye, the devil Strahd! Also, incidentally, the king of this land."

Shundak: "A king apparently."

Three Vistani women seated in the corner before the fire glance up, looking at the party.

 Sulda Westwind: "...alright. So, uh, you were looking for alive people? Can I ask why?"

 Shundak: "Most of the time they offer a better company than dead people-"
"That's a start."

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda smiles

 Shundak: "And we were trying to put some distance between us and that castle, some places ought to be safer."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "My sister has become the favored prey of the devil Strahd. I wish to protect her, and this fine lad -- along with a few others -- has offered to help me take her to Vallaki, or if possible, as far as Krezk."

 Shundak: "Name's Shundak. He's Ismark."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "You seem the traveling sorts, any interest in coming along? The more distance you can put between yourself and that castle, the better you'll feel."

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda frowns. "Well that just sounds like the first thing I'm being asked to do upon coming here is rebel against the king of the land..."

 Shundak: Whispers to Ismark. "Do you really have to say his name? It's the only thing that gets a reaction out of those people."

 Sulda Westwind: She barely pauses before continuing "I'm in."

 Shundak: "No one asked you to rebel."

 Marcus Veranius: "I doubt the castle will have any sway on my mood, but I'll offer a hand if your straights are that dire."

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda shrugs. "You're trying to get something - someone - he wants out of his reach. I predict trouble. But sure, be optimistic."
"So where's your sister?"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Back at the house."
"We have to collect this fine strapping lad's gnomish companion, and the dwarf woman who helped us yesterday."
"They are probably sleeping upstairs."

 Sulda Westwind: "Alright," Sulda says and looks towards the door. "So, if you're going around talking about your plans like you don't care who listens, how sure are you that the house is safe?"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "I--"
"Well, it's boarded up, you know."
"And the doors are locked."

 Sulda Westwind: "And she's armed?"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Always."

Suldae Westwind: "Mm. I'm a bit of a worrier about those things"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark shrugs.

Shundak: Shundak nods. "Better to worry than to regret later."

Marcus Veranius gets up from the bar, leaving a mostly-full tankard behind. "If locked doors could stop a devil then I doubt you'd need to move. Should I watch the gate?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark looks at Shundak.

Shundak: "There isn't only the king to worry about, his servants too."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I've just realized... If he knows we're planning to leave, he may try to stop us."

Ismark takes another swig from his silver hip flask.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. This is exactly what she said, but of course this guy is only just realizing now. What fine company she's already decided to attach herself to.

Shundak: "Does he have many spies Ismark?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "The land is full of them, according to my sister. Even the rats, she says."

Suldae Westwind: "If he has any at all, I bet at least one would be listening around here," Suldae points out and looks around Ismark Kolyanovich: "I don't believe it, myself, but one should never trust a Vistani from these parts. They're the only ones who can come and go as they please."

He's eyeing the three Vistani women as he says this. O

Shundak: "Then we should leave as-"

One of the Vistani women gets up and quietly heads behind the bar, into the back-room.

Shundak: "Wait." Shundak raises his eyebrows. "They can leave?"

Suldae Westwind: "...yes, okay, great. How about we split up and some of us go to the house while the others collect the missing companions?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Sounds wise," Ismark says, with a shrug.

"The manor's the big house at the end of the southern street. You can't miss it."

Suldae Westwind: "And your sister will know us for friends because?..."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You look like the persuasive sort. She's always babbling on about elves anyway."

Shundak: "I'll vouch for you."

"Ismark see if you can wake up the gnome."

Suldae Westwind: "So Ismark's staying here and you're coming with me?" Suldae doesn't question the logic of the arrangement, trusting them to know their business, just looks the orc up and down.
"Alright"

"Marcus?"

 Marcus Veranius: "I'll join the lass" Marcus nods, retrieving his bag of belongings. "Unless you've got an advance on pay, I doubt there's much I could buy for the trip."

 Shundak: "Pay?"

 Suldae Westwind: (wait he hasn't introduced himself yet)

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark laughs. "There's only one shop in town still open, and he charges ten times the price of any sane shopkeep. He's always saying 'If you need it that badly, you'll pay for it.'"

 Suldae Westwind: amended to: "You, stranger? By the way, what's your name?"

 Marcus Veranius: Scalpers. Always one in every district.

 Shundak: "Ismark, you said that the Vestani are the only ones that are allowed to come and go as they please."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "I did say that, yes."

 Marcus Veranius: "Name's Marcus Veranius. But people tend to call me less pleasant things."

 Shundak: "You meant leave the fogs?"

 Marcus Veranius: "I'll trust your preference."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Yes, they seem to be able to make it through the fog without getting turned back or choking to death."

"I've always wondered about that, but their caravans come and go as they please."

 Suldae Westwind: "...Is Marcus okay?" Suldae says after a moment of digesting that. She's reluctant to ask the stranger about the nature or his scarring, and grows more reluctant by the minute. He sounds like a trustworthy sort to her, though.

 Shundak: "Do they let anyone join the caravans?"

 Suldae Westwind: "I'm guessing the answer is no," Suldae remarks

 Marcus Veranius gives a nod to Suldae

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark laughs. "The Vistani are notoriously racist. Only their people count as human."

 Suldae Westwind: "So the working plan is getting your sister to safety, then trying to hitch a ride with a caravan. Sounds good to me!" Suldae smiles, wilfully ignoring the fact that after defying the king of the land so openly, their chances of 'hitching a ride' would probably go way way down. No good deed goes unpunished, and all that.

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Or even humanoid."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae lets that pass without comment

 Shundak: "At least we know that it is possible to leave."

"Maybe we will find more exceptions."

 Marcus Veranius: "You just have to sell your soul to the devil to do it. A fine exchange that is."

Suldae Westwind: "So, we should be going. Seriously, we can talk about this later," Suldae grabs the sleeves of both the people coming with her and tugs them towards the door

(ooc: wait, does Shundak have sleeves?)

Shundak: (No sleeves, just a bear pelt on his shoulder)

Suldae Westwind: (elbows, then)

Caesar: stretches and yawns

Tai'r: Aye.. what time is it?

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark glances at the clock above the mantelpiece. "It's nearly 8:30," he says.

Shundak: Turns around, almost out of the door.

Tai'r: Wheres the rest of'em?

Shundak: "It's late little friend. Later than usual."

Tai'r: stares at Dak and smiles

Ay greenskin, it is

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Where's the dwarven woman who was with you yesterday? Is she still sleeping?"

Shundak: "I saved you some breakfast, we are getting the girl and moving out."

Tai'r: To where?

looks to Ismark and shrugs

Couldnt tell ya

Shundak: "I'll tell you when we are on the road. Apparently even the rats are listening."

Tai'r: Rats?

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs and stands in the doorway, waiting for the two to catch up on their conversation

Tai'r: Who is she?

Shundak: "Rats. Never seen one?"

Tai'r: Yes... but who is SHE?

Points to Suldae

Shundak: Shundak sighs. "She is someone who raises our numbers."

"He as well." pointing to Marcus.

Tai'r: Well based on yesterday we'll need i-

Marcus Veranius waves to Tai'r

Tai'r: Looks to Marcus

(What do I see?)

Shundak: Sundak glares at Tai'r, trying to dissuade a comment.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae waves. "I'm a bard. Name's Suldae, Suldae Westwind. Nice to meet you. He's Marcus Vi-ve-something"

Marcus Veranius: (A man in torn clothes with skin resembling a ghoul, but without the rot)

Tai'r: (So youre a zombie?)

Marcus Veranius: (Horribly disfigured!)

Suldae Westwind: "And we're helping you people, so be nice," she adds pointedly, already feeling protective of her quieter companion.

Tai'r: Lass, if youre worried about a few jokes hurtin ya feelings we got bigger problems.

Shundak: "They have offered to help"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stares at the gnome, trying to discern what part of "don't be rude" is unclear to him, but generally fine with taking the heat herself instead

Tai'r: Shrugs

If you trust'em Dak.

Shundak: "Somewhat."

Tai'r: (The parenthesis means ooc)

Marcus Veranius: "That's good enough for me. Name's Marcus. You must be the sleepy one."

Tai'r: "Ay, im the goblin bruising, name takin, wench stealin, slumber havin mountain gnome. Names Tai'r.

Marcus Veranius nods. "You can have my share of the wenches then. They don't go for looks like mine."

Tai'r: Lets out a hardy laugh

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes. "Weren't we going somewhere?"

Tai'r: Lad, havent seen me after a night out!

Suldae Westwind: "Nice to meet you, Ta'ir."

Tai'r: Looks to Suldae

Shundak: Shundak looks outside and crosses his arms. "Indeed, we do not have the privilege to waste time."

Tai'r: And you as well lassie.

Shundak: "To the manor." As he starts to walk out in the streets.

Tai'r: Right behind ya Dak my boy!

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles, and her somewhat chilly demeanor melts, leaving just a cheerful girl really happy to see everyone. It seems almost incongruous with the situation.

She follows.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well," says Ismark, "I suppose your dwarven friend can meet us at the manor, if she intends to sleep in this late."

Tai'r: Ay, those medium small bastards sleep too much!

Ismark Kolyanovich: He follows Shundak and Tai'r and Suldae and Marcus out into the streets.

Shundak: "Are you really in a position to judge who sleeps too much?"

Tai'r: Aye, I killed a whole vampire!

The streets of the Village of Barovia are thick with swirling tendrils of pale mist. There is no one in the streets. The houses are mostly boarded up and seem abandoned. The sound of heart-wrenching sobs still rings from a town-house you have to pass on your way to the manor, which looms at the end of the main southern road like the final tombstone of a particularly ghastly graveyard.

Tai'r: "Why is there always cryin comin from that damned house Ismark?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sharply glances there. She assumed something happened, but if it's an 'always' thing...

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark shrugs. "I've never thought to ask. It started last week and hasn't stopped since."

"Night and day..."

Suldae Westwind: "...I can see why you want to leave," Suldae offers weakly

Tai'r: Well..

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark laughs heartily.

Tai'r: Mind if we go ask?

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You're more than welcome to, I suppose."

Tai'r: Dak, Sully, Marcy boy.

What do you say we go give it a look?

Marcus Veranius glances between the town house and Ismark's manor. "I hate to be the burden of reason, but do we have the time?"

Shundak: "I say it would be foolish to take all the pain of this town on our shoulders."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hesitates. On one hand, her intuition is screaming that's an awful idea. On the other hand, she's already decided that her life motto is going to be not shying away from those.

"Alright," she agrees.

Tai'r: Glares up to Marcus

We're going to help these folks as much as we can lad.

I came for money, but im not leavin no one to suffer.

Suldae Westwind: (what'd Marcus do?)

Tai'r: (He tried to suggest we not)

Suldae Westwind: "Wait, there's money in this?" Suldae asks with a hint of humor. She remembers the 'tricked' part

Marcus Veranius flinches. "Alright, fair enough."

Suldae Westwind: (oh yeah sorry missed that)

Tai'r: Tai'r approaches the townhouse door

(What do I see)

Shundak: "You can go and ask, I'll pass by the manor and alert Ireena."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands behind him, ready to both duck in case there's danger (as much good as ducking behind a gnome will do her) and take over the conversation if there's a civil one

Tai'r: "Alright Daky boy"

Shundak: "If there is any trouble just shout and I'll come running."

Tai'r: Bangs on the door

"Oi!"

Shundak: Proceeds along the door to the manor.

road*

The two-story townhouse looms over the street crookedly. The door swings open at the first blow, as though whoever is inside cares nothing for security.

The sobbing appears to be coming from upstairs.

Suldae Westwind: "Hey there!" Suldae calls out hesantly, as she steps inside

Tai'r: grasps his war pick

There is a hitch in the sobbing. After a moment, it continues.

Tai'r: Steps in cautiously

"Hello?!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae fingers the ocarina at her belt and the component pouch next to it

"Are you alright up there?" she calls out again

Tai'r: Slowly begins to go up the stairs.*

Suldae Westwind: Follows

Marcus Veranius guards the rear

Tai'r: "Hello?! Lass are you alright?"

Approaches the source of sobbing

The sobbing is coming from a room on the second floor. The door is partially open.

Tai'r: Approaches the door, again cautiously

A woman is seated on the floor with her back to the door. She is sobbing uncontrollably.

Tai'r: Looks back and whispers

"Be ready..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae ignores the gnome and pushes forward

"Hey there," she says gently, touching her shoulder but ready to jump back

Tai'r: "Aye you stupid elf! Have some patience!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flips him off without looking back

(XD)

Marcus Veranius smirks

Tai'r: Stands back with his hand on his war pick

He watches Suldae initiate contact with the sobbing woman

Mad Mary: "Oh!"

The woman startles. She is seated on the ground, her face red from crying. In her hands is clutched a small, malformed doll.

The doll has a strange leer and wears a sackcloth dress.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kneels next to the woman. "I'm Suldae. We're from outside, got here, heard the crying, looked to see what's going on. Are you alright?"

Mad Mary: "N-No..."

"Gertruda... Gertruda!"

"My daughter, she..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the doll

Mad Mary: "I kept her here... All her life. She was safe. She was safe."

"And now she's gone..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods slowly and looks at the woman again, keepign the comforting hand on her shoulder. "What happened?"

Mad Mary: "She broke out... A week ago..."

"She hasn't come back..."

"She knows it isn't safe out there..."

The doll has a frayed tag which reads: "Is No Fun, Is No Blinsky!"

Suldae Westwind: "Broke out?"

Suldae's voice is still full of patience and understanding, but now it's a bit of effort on her part

Mad Mary: "This was hers..." Mad Mary holds up the doll. "It was mine, and then it was hers..."

"I tried to give her a happy life..."

"Why did she run away!?"

She dissolves into heart-wrenching sobs once more.

Suldae Westwind: "...So how old is your daughter?" Suldae says hesitantly, ready for pretty much any figure between the woman's own apparent age and toddler Mad Mary: "She turned sixteen last month... She never used to be so -- so headstrong!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands up and looks at Ta'ir. The situation seems clear enough to her - and with the mention of "Strahd's favorite prey" she can guess at the woman's reasons, too.

"Staying here won't help," she says gently and offers her a hand to stand up

Mad Mary: Mad Mary shakes her head and becomes lost, once more, in tears.

Marcus Veranius: "...ma'am, if I may." Marcus speaks, his sarcasm having melted away in a more solemn expression."

Mad Mary: She emerges from the madness for one final moment of lucidity. Clutching Suldae's hand, she begs: "If you see her -- if you see her! Please, keep her safe!"

Marcus Veranius: "Children may be rash, but they aren't stupid."

Tai'r: "This hag's lost her mind."

Marcus Veranius: "If she's left, she's left on the road. Likely to the town along the way."

Suldae Westwind: "We will," Suldae promises and squeezes her hand gently.

Marcus Veranius: "We are heading in that direction. If we see her, she'll be safe."

"I'll keep my eye out."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll look for her and after her, and bring her home if we find her and if she'll come"

"Now what kind of home will she come back to?" Suldae gives a sharp glance to the delapidated surroundings

Mad Mary: "Oh, thank you, thank you!"

Mad Mary wipes her nose with the back of a hand and looks around, seeming to notice her surroundings for the first time.

She struggles to her feet, leaning on Suldae.

"You're right. You're right! I'll have to get cleaning."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll take care of her and you take care of the house," Suldae says gently, helping her up

Mad Mary: She starts cleaning with manic energy.

Suldae Westwind: "She'll be back when she's back, you just make sure to wait," Suldae says and beckons her companions out of the door. Even if the girl doesn't come back, at least her mother might be able to take care of herself now.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark, waiting in the street, says: "Right, well. How did that go?"

Marcus Veranius turns to leave, taking off his hat and holding it to his heart.

Tai'r: Nods and walks out

Suldae Westwind: "Well, she's started moving, so that's good..." Suldae pauses. "Huh. We didn't get her name"

"Her daughter's Gerthrude? Do you know them?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark shakes his head. "Never knew she had a daughter."

"Let's get back to Ireena though, the time's a-wasting."

Suldae Westwind: "Might have kept her hidden away..." Suldae murmurs. She doesn't approve of this kind of parenting, but that's a bridge she'll cross when - and if - she ever comes to it, that is, finds the girl

"Yeah, let's go," she agrees

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena is standing at the door of the manor, waiting for you.

A rather dismal-looking horse and cart are already waiting outside the fence.

Suldae Westwind: (its so weird to see Ismark Kolyanovich but not Irina Kolyanovna)

Ireena Kolyana: "You've brought more, I see?" Ireena calls out to Ismark.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her hand in greeting

Shundak: Shundak approaches.

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Shundak: "Everything ready? Need help with anything?"

Ireena Kolyana: "There's a barrel I couldn't lift, actually, now that you mention it."

She points to a large barrel of water, which she has managed to roll out next to the cart.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Greetings, sister!"

Shundak: Shundak nods and goes to lift the barrel.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena ignores Ismark.

Marcus Veranius gives a wave to Ireena, trying not to make eye contact. His mood is still sour from the townhouse

Suldae Westwind: "I'm Suldae" Suldae says and holds out a hand to shake

Shundak: "Ireena we have made a decision but we haven't really consulted you."

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm shocked," she says, her voice dripping with sarcasm.

Shundak: "That's why I'm doing it now."

Ireena Kolyana: She's somewhat taken by surprise.

 Shundak: "And it was not a final decision."

 Ireena Kolyana: She looks at Shundak with a little more respect now, realizing that he is not an extension of her brother.

 Shundak: "The priest suggested that the abbey could be a safe place for you."
"That or the village of... Vallaki? Vellaki?"

 Ireena Kolyana Ireena shakes Suldae's hand while looking at Shundak.

 Shundak: "What do you think would be better?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Vallaki is closer. We can head there first."
"If it doesn't work out, the abbey is still an option."

 Shundak: Shundak nods. "That was my idea as well."

 Ireena Kolyana eyes the disfigured Marcus Veranius with some suspicion.

 Ismark Kolyanovich: With forced cheerfulness, Ismark says: "Well, shall we get on with this?"

 Suldae Westwind: "This is Marcus," Suldae adds with a nod towards the man

 Shundak: Shundak looks at Ismark. "Your brother seems like a good judge of character."
"But..."

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus returns his hat to its place, tilted down to cover his eyes. "Don't mind me. Just a bit hurt at the moment. I'll be fine in an hour or so."

 Shundak: "He is very talkative, maybe too much. Our departure may be not so secret now."

 Suldae Westwind: "Everyone at the tavern knows who we all are and where we're going," Suldae adds with perhaps a bit more cheer than the situation warrants

 Ireena Kolyana: A faint spot of color appears on Ireena's cheeks.

 Suldae Westwind: "Marcus and I are joining, but there were people there who seemed... less than allied"

 Ireena Kolyana: This is the only outward sign of her mounting rage.
"Strahd will know every move we make," she says, angrily.

 Shundak: "They do not know where we are going."
"We haven't mentioned Vallaki, just that we are moving out."

 Suldae Westwind: "Unless we do something stupid we have not discussed doing," Suldae suggests, still cheerfully

 Marcus Veranius: "The map only has one road. Perhaps Strahd thinks we'll be going through the woods by cart?"

Ireena Kolyana looks at Shundak and Marcus thoughtfully.

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, taking the road by cart was the plan..."

Suldae Westwind: "That's the stupid option that we can take to try to fool him," Suldae adds.
"Because it costs him much less to ambush us on the one single road than all over the woods"

"At the same time, it's kind of stupid, if my experience wandering the woods for two days is any testament"

Ireena Kolyana: "If we travel through the woods, there are other dangers."

"But you are right... It may throw him off the scent."

Shundak: "If he has spies in rats the woods will do us no good."

Suldae Westwind: "Do rats live in woods?" Suldae questions

Shundak: "Better keep on the road and travel fast."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You can't really believe the rats are his spies, can you?" Ismark asks.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus pauses for a second. "I have to reiterate, that comment about the woods was sarcastic. We're not actually considering it, are we?"

Ireena Kolyana glowers at Ismark.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe if our horse didn't look a few steps away from mummified."

Shundak: "I am not sure, but I'd rather not risk it." To Ismark.

Ireena Kolyana: "I will defer to your judgement, as the experts," Ireena says, with resignation.

Suldae Westwind: "How navigable is the wood by cart, anyway?"

Ireena Kolyana: She pulls her collar a little higher self-consciously.

"The woods are thick and ill-travelled. We have not had a decent burn in many decades, so the undergrowth is quite thick, especially at this time of year."

"It would be slow going."

Shundak: "And dangerous."

Suldae Westwind: "..and we'll leave a trail, won't we?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena nods.

"Yes. We'd have to clear the way."

Suldae Westwind: "I vote road. At least that way we won't break the cart by our own stupidity, only by enemy action"

(From Shundak): i think tai'r left

(From Shundak): even on roll20

Marcus Veranius: "I doubt Strahd would make a move until we're closer to the castle. Why waste resources on the early stretch if we're getting closer to his homestead?"

(To Shundak): Yes, he told me he wasn't feeling the group composition for some reason.

Suldae Westwind: "Are we?" Suldae questions and looks at the castle. The thought makes her uneasy. "Say, who's got the map here?"

(To Shundak): I'm sad to see him go, but I hope you and the rest will stick it out

(From Shundak): i have to agree with him in some way tbh

(To Shundak): what is it about the group that isn't clicking?

(From Shundak): i like parties that are not completely strangers with each other

(From Shundak): and the fact that we basically had a different group every week

(To Shundak): Yes, that's been somewhat frustrating for me too

(To Shundak): I was hoping we'd have the same group this time around but Rachel hasn't shown up

Marcus Veranius: "I remember there being a fork in the road where left goes to our destination, right to his castle? That seems like an ideal point of ambush."

Ismark Kolyanovich hands a map to Suldae

Shundak gm i think that opening the invitation on roll20 the same day of the game without selecting applications may be part of that

(From Shundak): my bad

Shundak: (my bad)

(To Shundak): lmao

(To Shundak): It's hard to get a committed group going if people don't show up

Marcus Veranius looks over Suldae's shoulder at the map. "This settlement here as well. If he has a means of crossing the river, that's a straight shot to the castle."

(To Shundak): I figured the first few sessions would kind of shake off the noncommittal ones

Marcus Veranius: "We ought to keep on full alert when passing these areas in particular."

(To Shundak): the invitations will be closed next week -- we'll stick with the players we have

(To Shundak): I'm sorry that I messed things up

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I agree," says Ismark.

He hiccups.

(From Shundak): it's ok, i like how you dm

(From Shundak): but i'd rather get a strong group before continuing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae eyes the map thoughtfully. "If we go off the road next to the second bridge and then follow the landscape along it until the hills, and then go between them and the wood... is that navigable?"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark scratches his stubbly neck thoughtfully. "I'm not sure. It looks navigable on the map."

"It's a shortcut, so even if it's slow going it might get us through faster."

"And it would keep us out of sight of the castle."

 (To Shundak): I'm optimistic about these two, they seem like dedicated roleplayers

 (From Shundak): the dwarf seemed the same

 Suldae Westwind: "It's not on the road, so it'll definitely be slower," Suldae assures him. "But we shouldn't get lost, and it'll keep us away from the most obvious ambush spot at least"

 (To Shundak): I'm pretty disappointed she didn't show up :/

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods.

"It seems like our route is planned, at least. Are we ready to set out?"

 Marcus Veranius: "That looks like a gate on the second ambush point. I agree with Suldae; less complications following the river."

Ireena gets into the driver's seat of the cart.

 Marcus Veranius: "I'm ready to go."

Suldae Westwind: "Mm," Suldae agrees, still a little skeptical of her own ability to plan a good route and not feeling good about no-one else feeling more like an expert than her, but willing to roll with it.

 (To Shundak): With internet strangers I'm not sure how easy it will be to cement a strong group unless people show up every week.

 (To Shundak): That's why I'm trying to be consistent about the schedule

 (From Shundak): i'd start with opening applications and selection ones that seem to have experience

 Ismark Kolyanovich hops up into the cargo area of the cart, leaving two spots on the driver's bench. He sits behind a barrel, getting cozy on some piled furs.

 (To Shundak): I initially sent invitations only to the applicants that seemed like a good fit. None of them have joined -_-

 Shundak: "I'll get on the bench."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers the situation for a moment, then joins him in the cargo area. She hops on top of the barrel and slings her guitar over to her lap

 (To Shundak): That's why I decided to open things up so at least we'd have a bare-minimum group, but it seems to have backfired

 Marcus Veranius: "I'll walk today, take bench the next day."

 Shundak: "Keep an eye out for danger."

Ireena cracks the whip and the horse starts to move.

(From Shundak): i'd wait for like 4-5 of applications too, maybe a week

With a creak of wooden wheels, the cart rattles along the cobblestone streets and out the southern end of town.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae tunes the guitar without hurry, then starts fingering simple melodies

Ismark Kolyanovich: 13

The cart descends the southern road, moving through rolling grasslands. The sky above is overcast and grey.

The cart soon reaches a stone bridge which spans the river. Ireena says: "This is the River Ilvis."

Sulda Westwind: "Ilvis," Suldae sings, weaving it into the melody flowing from her hands

The cart rattles its way across the bridge. The river flows as clear as a blue winter sky through the valley.

Marcus Veranius looks into the waters in contemplation as they pass by

Marcus Veranius: "So is the water safe to drink, or does it have evil cursed parasites or something?"

For an hour or more, the cart rolls along a dusty road which winds lazily through forested lowlands.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks to the sides with interest, impressing the images into her memory

Ireena Kolyana: "The water is safe."

"Well, as safe as any water."

Marcus Veranius: "That is remarkably comforting."

Sulda Westwind: "That's not very reassuriing," Suldae sings

She nods to Marcus

The cart emerges from the forest and comes to a crossroads. An old wooden gallows creaks in a chill wind that blows down from the high ground to the west. A frayed length of rope dances from its beam. The well-worn road splits here, and a signpost opposite the gallows points off in three directions: BAROVIA VILLAGE to the east, TSER POOL to the northwest, and RAVENLOFT/VALLAKI to the southwest. The northwest fork slants down and disappears into the trees, while the southwest fork clings to an upward slope. Across from the gallows, a low wall, crumbling in places, partially encloses a small plot of graves shrouded in fog.

GM (GM): 16

Shundak: "Seems we are going in the right direction."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae halts her fingering and frowns.

"Is it just me, or does this road not match the map very well?.."

"Or at least what I remember of the map. Who has it?"

Marcus Veranius: "You did."

Shundak: (Does shundak notice something?)

Suldae Westwind: "Did I?" Suldae pulls out the map.

"...All right, so I say we go south"

Shundak:

WANDERER

Background: Outlander

You have an excellent memory for maps and geography, and you can always recall the general layout of terrain, settlements, and other features around you. In addition, you can find food and fresh water for yourself and up to five other people each day, provided that the land offers berries, small game, water, and so forth.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae traces the map with her finger

"This looks like a better route. I didn't realize this was a road"

(To Shundak): Shundak recalls a road on the map (marked in brown) which is longer than the alternative, but avoids the pond.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena sighs.

"Well, it seems we have another choice to make."

Marcus Veranius: "We ought to give the ambushers a bite. If we take the long road now, they'll be suspicious when we come to the bridge."

Shundak: "The shorter the travel the better."

Suldae Westwind: "We don't need the pool. At the same time..." Suldae frowns at the signpost.
"Ravenloft?"

"I guess you have a point too, Marcus"

Marcus Veranius nods

Suldae Westwind: "What's Ravenloft?"

Marcus Veranius: "Best to look the fool then laugh when they notice the punchline."

Ireena Kolyana: "Ravenloft is the name of Strahd's castle," says Ireena.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up at her, then back at the map. "And the signpost says it's down there because?..."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena shrugs.

"It's an old sign."

Suldae Westwind: "You know what, I agree. Let's keep going as we went, through the lake. I don't like this"

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe the road leads there eventually?"

She holds the reins, ready to steer.

"So... north?"

Shundak nods

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow. "Full alert then. Eyes keen."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks thoughtfully down the southern road, then nods. She turns to face backwards on the barrel, keeping a lookout over their rear.

Ireena Kolyana: "H'yah," says Ireena, flicking the reins. The cart begins to move, taking the northern path.

The road gradually disappears and is replaced by a twisted, muddy path through the trees. Deep ruts in the earth are evidence of the comings and goings of wagons.

Ireena Kolyana:

The canopy of mist and branches suddenly gives way to black clouds boiling far above. There is a clearing here, next to a river that widens to form a small lake several hundred feet across. Five colorful round tents, each ten feet in diameter, are pitched outside a ring of four barrel-topped wagons. A much larger tent stands near the shore of the lake, its sagging form lit from within. Near this tent, eight unbridled horses drink from the river.

The mournful strains of an accordion clash with the singing of several brightly clad figures around bonfire. A footpath continues beyond this encampment, meandering north between the river and the forest's edge.

Suldae Westwind: (Is the footpath wide enough for a cart?)

Shundak: (what time of the day is it?)

It is now 10:00 AM.

The footpath is just barely wide enough for the cart.

Suldae Westwind: (Is there a way around the camp to the footpath, or is it right on the way?)

Twelve Vistani are standing and sitting around the fire, telling stories and guzzling wine. They look intoxicated. The encampment is right on the path, there is no way to easily pass through without moving near the camp.

A male Vistani stumbles towards the road and greets you with a wave. He is dressed in brightly-colored silks and jangling with gaudy jewelry.

Suldae Westwind: "Hey there!" Suldae cheerfully calls out from the barrel. "Mind if we go by?"

Vistana: "It was fated that you would visit our humble camp! Madame Eva foretold your coming. She awaits you." He points towards the largest tent.

Shundak: "Fate huh?" Shundak sighs.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus steps forward, putting away his crossbow

Vistana: He grins, somewhat alarmingly, at Suldae's question. "You are, of course, welcome to proceed!"

Sulda Westwind: "...Really?" Suldae asks, skepticism audibly warring with curiosity in her voice

Vistana: "But then you will never know what Madame Eva has to tell you..."

Sulda Westwind: (that's at hte first statement)

Marcus Veranius: "OK, I'll bite. What exactly was she looking for?"

Vistana: "She told me to watch for a cart driven by a raven-haired lady of noble birth, and bearing a scarred heart, a pure heart, a stout heart, and one drunken brother."

Shundak turns to Ireena and whispers "Do you know who they are?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae maintains the look of innocent curiosity, while inwardly considering the options. She remembers the warning about Vistani not considering anyone else people, but at the same time, /someone/ says those things about everyone...

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena shakes her head nervously.

She looks at Shundak, as though hoping to take courage from him.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Shundak: "Do you think they are trustworthy?" Still whispering

Sulda Westwind: "I say I go! And you lot look after the cart," Suldae says brightly and hops down from the barrel and the cart.

Marcus Veranius puts a hand to his chest deep in contemplation for a few moments.

Sulda Westwind: She hooks her arm around the Vistani man's and grins at him. "Lead the way!"

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm not sure," Ireena whispers back to Shundak.

"They don't look armed."

"And some of them are clearly drunk."

Marcus Veranius: "Of all the scars I bear, the ones on my heart are the most hidden, and the deepest."

"It's worth a visit. Worst case, I put my neck out."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae side-eyes Marcus. That was HER plan

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena shakes Ismark awake angrily.

Sulda Westwind: "You lot stay with the cart," Suldae repeats, a little louder
She doesn't like the idea of Ireena going there

Shundak: "People are too curious."

Marcus Veranius smirks at that comment

Ireena Kolyana: "I think it's more dangerous if we split up," Ireena says.

"If we're together, at least we know we have each other's backs."

"...And I must admit, my heart burns with curiosity. I have heard of Madame Eva and her card-reading."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae sighs, acquiescing to the logic. It's not like it's her cart, anyway.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'll stay here," says Ismark, and he pulls his hat over his eyes.

He continues to snooze, but more lightly than before.

Ireena Kolyana: Fearfully, Ireena looks at Shundak. "Will you come with me?"

Shundak: "I think we should just move on."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena bites her lip. She looks at the road. She looks at the tent.

She sits back down, taking the reins again.

GM (GM): The large tent opens wide.

The light of magical flames emerges from the gloom of the tent, revealing a low table covered in a black velvet cloth. Glints of light seem to flash from a crystal ball on the table as a hunched figure peers into its depths. As the crone speaks, her voice crackles like dry weeds. "At last you have arrived!" Cackling laughter bursts like mad lightning from her withered lips. Even from the road, you can hear her.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae lets go of the Vistani man's arm - he was not leading her anywhere, anyway, - and steps closer to the cart's driver seat

"Hello, ma'am!" she calls out

Madam Eva: "Hello, Suldae Westwind! How goes the knowledge-hunting?"

"Have you learned many interesting tales?"

"Would you like to learn more about your tale?"

"Madam Eva could tell you many things..."

Sulda Westwind: ...Well that was creepy.

"Learning one right now!" she calls back. At least the woman didn't call out her actual full name; maybe she just knows what's been said inside the land and guessed at her quest?

"I'd come, but we're in a bit of a hurry," she continues.

"Mind if we swing by some other time?"

She actually would, if they are allowed through here without trouble, she thinks.

Madam Eva: Madam Eva chuckles darkly. She draws a card and lays it face up, glancing at it briefly.

"There will come another time," she says.

Ireena Kolyana: "Shall we?"

"Move on, I mean?"

"They don't seem to be blocking the road."

Shundak: "It would be best."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Suldae; how accurate was she?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae hesitates. This seems like an opportunity they might not be able to afford missing to her, but at the same time... she's not sure where that intuition is coming from.

"Accurate enough to hear out", she murmurs loudly enough for him to hear.

 Marcus Veranius: "We're fighting against an unknowable opponent, walking straight into any number of potential ambushes."

"This is a stop worth making."

 Sulda Westwind: "And I don't like how she said 'another time'," she adds
"Mhm"

"So, you move on with the cart, and we'll catch up?" she suggests

 Shundak: "She may just be telling you what she wants you to hear."

 Sulda Westwind: "No duh," Sulda raises her eyebrows

 Marcus Veranius: "Well, I could use some cheering up."

 Sulda Westwind: "But she knows things she shouldn't, and she wants to tell us something - there's no harm in listening"

"You take care of the siblings, and we'll go check it out?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "I'm sticking with Shundak," Ireena says.

 Shundak: "There is harm in listening, but do as you please."

 Ireena Kolyana: "We could move the cart a little farther along, maybe, to stay out of trouble? Then those who want to listen can catch up?"

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods. Ireena not going in there sounds like a solid plan to her. And she strongly doubts Shundak's point - that's certainly not what she's been taught

"Yeah, we'll catch up"

 Ireena Kolyana: "At least that way we'
Ireena splutters -- a fly has flown into her face. "Excuse me -- at least that way we won't be inviting an attack."

 Shundak: Shundak nods. "Let's move a bit."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena cracks the reins and the cart rattles on, past the encampment, leaving those who wish to listen behind... for now.

 Madam Eva: Madam Eva cackles.

 Marcus Veranius watches the cart off

 Madam Eva: "Enter, enter! Do not be shy."

"Your friends will be fine, Madam Eva swears it. Well, fine for now at least."

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda grabs Marcus's arm for courage and goes in.
She's already feeling better after that last statement.

 Marcus Veranius is dragged, stumbling a bit

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you for having us," she says, looking around the tent curiously

Madam Eva: Madam Eva gestures to two collapsible chairs on the other side of the table. There are only two chairs for guests.

The tent is brightly colored and gaudily decorated. A golden candelabra sits behind Madam Eva, the candle-flames flickering through the tangled mess of her silver hair creates an illusory halo around her. Incense smoke rises from a dragon-shaped incense holder on a table nearby, and its swirling fumes provide an ethereal atmosphere.

"Please, seat yourselves. Marcus, Suldae. It's good to finally meet you."

"Marcus, I am deeply sorry for your loss. Your enemy is near at hand."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae half-bows and seats herself. In for a penny, in for a pound

She quirks her eyebrow and glances at Marcus curiously

Marcus Veranius 's cheery face suddenly turns to a frown. He sits down.

Suldae Westwind: More enemies, just what they needed

Marcus Veranius: "What do you mean, near at hand?"

Madam Eva: "The winged beast lives near a temple of darkness, here in Barovia. Our king brought it from far away, to guard the place."

Suldae Westwind: "Dragon?" Suldae guesses, looking at Marcus's burns

To say she's feeling uneasy is to say nothing, but she's still projecting a cheery facade

Marcus Veranius: Marcus's eyes widen. He reaches for his back, fidgeting as he instinctively pulls out a thick scale.

"...I thought I had more time to get stronger."

"Ismark was right. This Strahd DOES seem to be quite a devil."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grasps for his hand and squeezes his fingers reassuringly

Finding trouble to get into seems to be going swimmingly, she repeats to herself with grim humor

Madam Eva: "Tell me, travellers... Would you like to hear your fortunes? Madam Eva can tell them to you."

She is shuffling a peculiar-looking deck of cards as she asks this.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She does not have much money, but whatever insight this woman has to offer is probably going to be worth it. Besides, she seems like someone to make nice with.

(To Shundak): An old Vistani man approaches the cart. He is unarmed, wearing simple clothes. His arms are outstretched, as though in a gesture of peace.

Suldae Westwind: Someone you'd rather have an ally than an enemy.

Marcus Veranius: "If I had to use my own intuition, I'd say my fortune's already going poorly."

"But why not? Let's see how bad things can get for curiosity's sake."

(To Shundak): Without preamble, the old Vistani man begins to tell a story. As soon as he is finished, he turns and walks away. The story is this: "A mighty wizard came to this land over a year ago. I remember him like it was yesterday. He stood exactly where you're standing. A very charismatic man, he was. He thought he could rally the people of Barovia against the devil Strahd. He stirred them with thoughts of revolt and bore them to the castle en masse.

GM (GM):

"When the vampire appeared, the wizard's peasant army fled in terror. A few stood their ground and were never seen again.

"The wizard and the vampire cast spells at each other. Their battle flew from the courtyards of Ravenloft to a precipice overlooking the falls. I saw the battle with my own eyes. Thunder shook the mountainside, and great rocks tumbled down upon the wizard, yet by his magic he survived. Lightning from the heavens struck the wizard, and again he stood his ground. But when the devil Strahd fell upon him, the wizard's magic couldn't save him. I saw him thrown a thousand feet to his death. I climbed down to the river to search for the wizard's body, to see if, you know, he had anything of value, but the River Ivlis had already spirited him away."

GRR

Ignore that

Suldae Westwind: ignoring yessir

Madam Eva: Madame Eva lays out a spread of cards.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae squeezes his fingers again. She can tell he's nervous, and she wants him to understand that being there for people is the entire point of her calling, in her eyes. Well, that and telling the tale afterwards, but that comes second.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus closes his finger's tight, his mind a maelstrom of different feelings. The best and worst of days at once; how fortunate.

"So how does this work? I ask a question then pick up a card?"

Suldae Westwind: "I think nobody cares about what you /want/ to know," Suldae murmurs, watching the cards move

Madam Eva: Madame Eva chuckles.

Suldae Westwind: "You're going to be told what you're going to be told, and that's that"

Madam Eva: "No. I will read the meaning of the cards."

She flips over the first card.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She's uneasy, but it's familiar, comforting uneasiness of knowledge to come

Madam Eva: "This card tells of history. Knowledge of the ancient will help you better understand your enemy."

"This is the Myrmidon, the 5 of swords. Look for a den of wolves in the hills overlooking a mountain lake. The treasure belongs to Mother Night."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in and out. Getting distracted by treasure is the last thing they seem to need right now, but she's pretty sure there's a reason Madam Eva is saying this.

Madam Eva: "She taps the second card. "This card tells of a powerful force for good and protection, a holy symbol of great hope."

She flips it over. "This card is the Anarchist, the 6 of Glyphs. I see walls of bones, a chandelier of bones, and a table of bones -- all that remains of enemies long forgotten."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae fingers the holy symbol of Corellon hanging on her belt. He's not exactly a force of /protection/, but it's where her mind goes

Madam Eva: She taps the third card. "This is a card of power and strength. It tells of a weapon of vengeance: a sword of sunlight."

She flips the card over.

"This is the 5 of Stars -- the Elementalist. The treasure is hidden in a small castle beneath a mountain, guarded by amber giants... And a dragon."

She taps the fourth card, the one at the bottom of the spread. "This card sheds light on one who will help you greatly in the battle against darkness."

"This card is the Artifact," she says, before even turning the card over. "Look for an entertaining man with a monkey. This man is more than he seems."

Sulda Westwind: "All people are more than they seem," Suldae murmurs, not managing to keep quiet

Madam Eva: She taps the central card of the spread. "Your enemy is a creature of darkness, whose powers are beyond mortality. This card will lead you to him!"

She flips the card over.

"I see a secret place -- a vault of temptation hidden behind a woman of great beauty. The evil waits atop his tower of treasure."

She sits back in her chair, letting the cards rest where they are.

Sulda Westwind: "This for both of us?" Suldae asks, not concealing unease in her voice.

Marcus Veranius: "That is... a lot to take in."

Marcus Veranius smirks, and looks just behind Madam Eva.

Marcus Veranius: "No vault. It was worth a check."

Madam Eva: Madam Eva smirks.

"You flatter me, young man."

"Now. That is all the cards have for you, I'm afraid."

"But I hope it will help."

"You had best catch up to your friends."

Sulda Westwind: "Thank you," Suldae says quietly and takes five gold out of her purse. They weren't asked for money (yet, at least) but she feels wrong about leaving without paying.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus stands, giving a short bow to the fortune teller. "I think you for your time."
*thank

Madam Eva: Madam Eva bows.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae leaves the money on the table, bows as well, and follows Marcus out

Marcus Veranius: "Well, that was enlightening." Marcus comments, heading towards the woods path where the cart is. "I don't suppose at the wagon uses swords?"

"A sword of sunlight; that ought to piss a vampire off."

Suldae Westwind: "I think I saw Ireena have a sword," Suldae murmurs, uncertain. "Probably not of sunlight though"

11.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

11.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Vistana Bandit

Initiative: 4

INITIATIVE
Vistana Bandit

Initiative: 16

INITIATIVE
Vistana Bandit

Initiative: 13

INITIATIVE
Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE
Ismark Kolyanovich

Initiative: 20

Ismark, ironically, will go first

GM (GM): He's a bit drunk

But he's awake now

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What the devil!?"

Leaping to his feet and vaulting over the side of the cart, he lands beside Marcus.

He draws a heavy crossbow from under one of the piled furs and rests it on the cart to fire.

HEAVY CROSSBOW
Ismark Kolyanovich

Attack: 13 | 6

Damage: 3 piercing

Bandit: "OW!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: (EOT)

Sulda Westwind: (do bandits have cover? do we?)

Those in or behind the cart have half cover. One of the bandits is in cover right now but the other two are exposed.

Sulda Westwind: (ty)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena dives into the cart and pulls out a breastplate. She straps it on hastily, then draws a long, steel rapier.

She ducks behind the cart with Ismark and Marcus.

(EOT)

GM (GM): The bandit struck by Ismark's crossbow bolt yanks it out and dives for cover, hiding himself next to the other bandit on the eastern side of the bridge.

LIGHT CROSSBOW
Vistana Bandit

Attack: 23 | 13

Damage: 5 + 1 piercing

(not supposed to be advantage, sorry)

LIGHT CROSSBOW
Vistana Bandit

Attack: 8

Damage: 8 piercing

He fires his crossbow at Sulda but it strikes the railing of the cart and goes spinning away!

(EOT)

GM (GM):

LIGHT CROSSBOW
Vistana Bandit

Attack: 17

Damage: 6 piercing

The other bandit in cover takes a pot-shot at the horse, which screams as the crossbow bolt sticks in its side!

Marcus Veranius: "Shit; we need that!"

The horse panics and bolts forward! (Dex save, Sulda)

Sulda Westwind: (a question: is it to leave or to stay)

(bc Sulda will dive for the guitar she put next to her first)

(To Sulda Westwind): To dismount safely or keep her balance, whichever you prefer

(From Sulda Westwind): can i do that /and/ grab the guitar in the same roll?

(To Suldae Westwind): Yes

(From Suldae Westwind): ty

Suldae Westwind:

19

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae rolls off the back of the cart, guitar lovingly pressed against herself and kept safe

As the cart surges forward, it leaves Marcus, Ismark, and Ireena without cover! Suldae lands gracefully beside them.

GM (GM): (Marcus's turn)

Marcus Veranius: (Can Marcus attempt to jump onto the cart as part of his move?)

GM (GM): (yes)

(Acrobatics)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus makes a beeline for the cart, not intending to let the bandits make off with their supplies.

15

ACROBATICS (6)
Marcus Veranius

GM (GM): (You just barely make it)

Marcus Veranius: He lands hard, but sturdy enough. Drawing his light crossbow, Marcus attempts to fire two 'warning shots' at the closest bandit.

(Attack Action, and Crossbow Expert bonus action)

19

24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

10

21

25

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

7

*hand crossbow, not light

Suldae Westwind: (not to be That Guy but given the cart is moving you probably should have disadvantage on that...)

Marcus Veranius: (I already do from making shots in long range)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

GM (GM): (Either way, both shots hit)

Suldae Westwind: n i c e

ah, i see it now

(not used to the structure)

Marcus Veranius: (This is a new sheet layout for me. I like the advantage toggles)

Suldae Westwind: (yea I only played 4e on here before and this is cool af)

The two bandits in cover each take a nearly-fatal shot!

One bandit passes out instantly, the other turns to flee.

GM (GM): (EOT?)

Marcus Veranius: (EOT)

GM (GM): (Suldae, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae slings the guitar over to her back and draws her own light crossbow from the bag at her side. At the same time she starts whistling a tune of a common song about dragon slayers loudly enough for Marcus to hopefully hear

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost.

A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

21

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

7

Piercing

a shit wait

cover = disadvantage?

Marcus Veranius: (Half Cover is +2 AC, 3/4ths cover is +5 AC)

GM (GM): (A target with half cover has a +2 bonus to AC and Dexterity Saving Throws.)

Suldae Westwind: aha ty

this is normal range for light crossbow so yea Suldae shoots the bandit that's still standing

The bandit in the middle of the bridge takes the crossbow bolt in the shoulder and staggers back, swearing.

GM (GM): (EOT?)

Suldae Westwind: (ya sorry)
(EOT)

GM (GM): (NP)

Seeing that this is clearly a lost cause, the bandit still standing turns and flees!

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Ha!" Ismark laughs. "That's right, turn and run, you cowards!"

Suldae Westwind: (didnt he lose his crossbow)
(wasnt it on the cart)

Ismark Kolyanovich: (He rested it on the cart to aim -- it's still in his hands)

HEAVY CROSSBOW
Ismark Kolyanovich

Attack: 4 | 16

Damage: 5 piercing

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

Ismark Kolyanovich fires his crossbow but the bolt shatters on impact with the bridge's railing, missing the crouching bandit.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Damn!"

Ireena Kolyana runs after the cart, reaching out. "MARCUS!" She shouts, leaping towards the cart with her hand outstretched for aid.

Ireena Kolyana:

DEXTERITY
Ireena Kolyana
Ability: 4

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks after her, eyes wide in amazement

*at her

Ireena Kolyana: In the breastplate, she can't quite make the jump, but she continues trying to run after the cart, reaching out for Marcus's hand.

(She's sprinting towards the cart, so that's EOT)

The still-conscious Bandit presses himself to the side of the bridge as the cart horse charges across the wooden planks. He clutches at his unconscious companion, trying to pull him back so he won't be crushed by the wheels.

Ireena Kolyana: 7

The unconscious Bandit remains unconscious, in spite of his friend's attempts to wake him

Ireena Kolyana: (Marcus is up)

Suldae Westwind: (shooting the horse was SUCH a great idea its amazing)

(congats guys)

(@ the bandits)

Ireena Kolyana: (lol no one said they were smart)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus attempts to pull Ireena up with his action.

(Dex or another Acrobatics?)

Ireena Kolyana: (Let's call this Athletics -- she's wearing a heavy breastplate)

Marcus Veranius:

15 | 17
ATHLETICS (0)
Marcus Veranius

Ireena Kolyana: (That's enough to succeed)

Suldae Westwind: dont forget you have bardic inspiration btw

Marcus Veranius: Marcus grabs her arm, struggling to hoist Ireena onto the wagon, but managing to get her on just fine.

Ireena Kolyana: "We've got to calm the horse!"

"It'll ruin the cart!"

Marcus Veranius: "Grab the reins; I'll finish this."

The cart is just now coming level with the two bandits on the bridge.

Marcus Veranius: He then turns to the bandits, inspired by Suldae's song, and shouts them down.

"I'VE FACED DRAGON'S WHO'S BREATH WAS WORSE THAN YOU LOT! BUGGER OFF, AND NEVER BOTHER US AGAIN!"

Action Surge to Intimidate with an action.

18

INTIMIDATION (3)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (oh nice)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d6 Inspiration

(6)

= 6

Suldae Westwind: (esp effective on the unconscious one I expect)

The last remaining conscious bandit pisses himself at the sight of the shouting, disfigured man.

Suldae Westwind: (i unironically love this tho)

(i really should have written what i was going to about him pissing himself i just want it known that i called it)

Marcus Veranius: (EOT)

Ireena Kolyana: (switch to free movement)

WISDOM
Ireena Kolyana
Ability: 12

Suldae Westwind: Suldae runs after the cart, preparing her spell

Ireena Kolyana manages to grab the reins and hauls back on them, trying to calm the horse with some reassuring sounds. The horse is in a frothing panic, however.

The horse slows down slightly and the cart wheels just barely miss the unconscious bandit as the cart hurtles past.

Ireena Kolyana: "I need help!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to catch up to the horse and touch it

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You always need help!"

Suldae Westwind: Acrobatics?

"Shut up!" Suldae yells without turning back

(To Suldae Westwind): Acrobatics or Athletics, whichever is better

Suldae Westwind:

18

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "I'm no good with animals!" Marcus panics, attempting to aid by grabbing the reins.

Putting on a burst of speed, Suldae manages to run along the railing of the bridge and get in front of the horse, near enough to touch it.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae attempts to grab the arrow and pull it out and then immediately cast the spell

Dex?

*the bolt

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus can grant Advantage to a check to control the horse by helping)

Suldae Westwind: maybe you two controlling the horse gives me advantage on my Dex check to pull out the arrow and then immediately cast without getting trampled?

@GM ?

Ismark Kolyanovich: (Yes!)

Suldae Westwind:

7

19

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Suldae Westwind

shit that was a save sorry

Ismark Kolyanovich: (It's fine)

Suldae Westwind:

4

21

DEXTERITY (2+1)
Suldae Westwind

Ismark Kolyanovich: (That's better though)

Suldae Westwind: (welp works this way too lmao)

4

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

Suldae Westwind

Suldae pulls out the bolt, drops it and grabs onto the horse, trying to not get trampled and cast a spell at the same time. She manages to hang on to its side, while the healing light from her fingers spreads over the wound, healing it and dissolving the animal's pain

As the pain fades away, and as Ireena and Marcus pull on the reins, the horse begins to calm down. It slows from a gallop to a trot, then down to a walk.

Reaching the other side of the bridge, it approaches the nearest patch of grass and begins to eat with some serious energy.

Suldae Westwind: While the horse slows down, Suldae, still high on adrenaline, walks up to Ismark, and without giving herself time to think, slugs him in the face

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Ow!"

"What was that for!?"

Suldae Westwind: "I didn't see YOU on the cart, calming the horse. Your sister needed help because she was DOING something. Keep your mouth shut next time" Suldae fires off Ireena Kolyana: Ireena can't help but grin from ear to ear.

Humming quietly to herself, she drops down from the cart and comes over to the horse, petting it soothingly.

Suldae Westwind: Breathing heavily, Suldae goes back to the horse and starts stroking its side, humming a melody to calm both it and herself

(omg sync)

(we're both doing it now)

Marcus Veranius hides behind the cart, just to be safe. This elf means business.

The Bandit lifts his friend by the armpits and starts dragging him south across the bridge, staring fearfully at you all as he retreats.

Ireena Kolyana: "He's a good horse," says Ireena. "He's had a hard life."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh yeah," Suldae perks up, "Marcus, do we want anything from that guy?"

"Well, those guys"

She is pointedly ignoring Ismark

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark rubes his cheek ruefully.

Marcus Veranius: "We got all we need." Marcus pokes his head up, after being sure ire isn't being swung in his direction.

Ismark Kolyanovich: He takes another drink from his hip flask.

He hisses in pain.

He spits out some bloody whiskey.

"Fuck," he mutters.

He closes the hip flask ruefully and slips it away.

Marcus Veranius: "As a shopkeeper, one of the most important things you can earn is Reputation."

Sulda Westwind: "Mhm," Suldae says, uncertain, watching them limp away. She almost wants to offer help, or should they be interrogated? Her studies did not prepare her for this

"Shopkeeper?" she asks, glancing at Marcus curiously

Marcus Veranius: "For instance, if the local bandits know not to screw in your business, that saves in potential losses."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena chuckles.

"The analogy is apt."

Sulda Westwind: "Ah," Suldae says with a look of great enlightenment. He was most definitely a shopkeeper at some point, she files away mentally.

Marcus Veranius: "I used to be a shoemaker. Had a good reputation in my hometown for intricate detail. Bought me a lot of business with elves who would ask to stitch meaningful phrases into their orders."

Sulda Westwind: She smiles at Ireena, the high barely receding. The people she got into an adventure with are _awesome_

Suldae nods, and can't help asking "Meaningful phrases?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus shrugs. "You ever get a chance to look at Elvish shrines? Their lettering is like an art, words like poetry. Some kind of symbolism or something?"

"I learned their language so I could emblazon my shoes with fortune-cookie nonsense in those letters. [The Sun Shines Brightest In The Dawn]. That kind of stuff."

"It was good business. Until a dragon destroyed everything I had anyways."

"But that's besides the point. I'd rather have living bandits warning others we're not to be mucked with than the few coins of profit we'd get looting them."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae laughs quietly, then sobers up and nods.

"I meant more like interrogating them. We don't know if Strahd sent them or if they were just opportunists, do we?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks warily up at the castle. "We know."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus frowns. They weren't retreating towards the castle; price of failure must be steep.

Ireena Kolyana: "There is no higher price," Ireena says.

Her mind seems to have gone to a dark place.

She shakes herself.

"Well."

"We'd better get a move on."

GM (GM): You each gain 37.5 XP.

We'll round it to 40 for simplicity's sake, and because you made it through without having to kill two of them.

Sulda Westwind: ^^

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena points. "And look. One of them is retreating to the castle."

Sure enough, the bandit who fled first can still be seen, racing up one of the steep hills between you and Castle Ravenloft.

Suldae Westwind: (can Ireena read minds, is this a plot clue? :D)

Suldae frowns after the bandit.

"Well then. So, do you think we can go along the river from this side?"

She looks at the bank.

GM (GM): (tune in next week to find out!)

Liliet (Suldae): (am here!)

GM (GM): (Howdy!)

(Do we need a recap, or are you guys good to go?)

Tops K.: (I'm good)

GM (GM): (It doesn't look like anyone else will be joining us this session)

(I'll try not to massacre you)

Liliet (Suldae): (also good))

^^

Ireena Kolyana: Beneath the overcast sky, Ireena looks west along the river bank. There is no road there, and the grass is tall, but the journey looks physically doable.

"I think we can make it, following the riverbank. What do you think?"

The road north is easier, winding up between rolling grassy hills on a clearly-marked road.

Marcus Veranius: "I think we nearly lost our horse following a single distraction on flat road. If it gets out of control in the brush, would we be able to catch up again?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'm worried about the cart too," Ismark says, and spits out a little more blood. "If the grass fouls the axles we could end up with no wagon."

"But this road does keep us out of sight of Castle Strahd."

Liliet (Suldae): (gimme a minute techincal difficulties

)

Marcus Veranius: "You said he owns the rats. Gypsy said he was able to pull a dragon from out of Barovia to guard his money pits."

"I don't think anything is out of sight of Castle Strahd."

"It's just a matter of whether we want him to strike with cover or in the open."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at her brother and at Marcus. "That's a fair point."

She looks over the forest, which is a bleak expanse of tall black trees, blocking all vision. The gloom beneath those branches is ominous and overgrown.

"The forest is dangerous, for a number of reasons. This path along the river would put us very close to it. The road would keep us a little farther away."

"But then again, the road seems the obvious place to stage an ambush."

Marcus Veranius ponders a moment, eyeing the fork between forest and road.

Marcus Veranius: "Well if we're bound for trouble on either path, I'd rather trouble that doesn't involve a bunch of trees to hide behind."

"Suldae; what's your take?"

(Missed the message about rebooting the laptop. RIP)

A raven lands on a nearby branch to your right. It caws loudly, looking down at you.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks up at the sound. She smiles.

"They say Ravens are sacred," she says. "They say they carry the souls of the departed."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark frowns.

Marcus Veranius turns his attention to the raven. He pulls out a ration and crumbles some of the bread inside.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not one to believe in superstition, but Ravens are clever birds."

"Gulls are a toss, but these are the good ones."

Marcus Veranius holds out a handful of breadcrumbs for the raven

The Raven cocks its head, eyeing him thoughtfully.

It says, quite loudly: "Caw!"

Marcus Veranius: "...I'm not actually sure if ravens eat bread."

20

NATURE (0)
Marcus Veranius

Ismark Kolyanovich: "They eat everything," says Ismark. "Bloody pests."

The Raven flaps down and alights on Marcus's arm quite suddenly. It eats from his hand while giving him a calm, golden-eyed stare.

It seems to have no fear of him.

Marcus Veranius smiles. "Well this one's seems rather fine."

Marcus Veranius: "Tell you what. If Ravens are as sacred as Ireena says, we ought to go in whichever direction the bird flies off to."

"Worst case scenario, we don't have to go far for a spirit guide if we die."

"I'd rather that to a coin-toss."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the bird, lost in thought.

"Here's a fun method I've heard of: let it fly, then if we really don't like where it flies, let's not do that. Otherwise, we do that."

"At the very least, lets us figure out what we actually want"

The Raven, finished eating, gives a final satisfied "Caw!" before alighting. It soars up into the air, flapping for altitude, then flies north and west, following the general direction of the road.

 Sulda Westwind: "Thank you!" Suldae calls out after it

 Marcus Veranius: "...well, there's our lucky path."

 Sulda Westwind: "So, I don't mind doing that"
"yeah"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark rolls his eyes.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well," says Ireena. "Let's get a move on."

 Ireena Kolyana cracks the reins, and the cart horse (having eaten its fill) continues on down the track.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae sits on the barrel, plucking the guitar strings and keeping lookout

 Marcus Veranius returns to his position of on the cart bench, keeping his eye on the castle as they go. Bow drawn until it stops being so ominous.

 Liliet (Sulda): (brb)

Even here, in the mountains, the forest and the fog are inescapable. Ahead, the dirt road splits in two, widening toward the east. There you see patches of cobblestone, suggesting that the eastern branch was once an important thoroughfare. At the far end of that eastern road, you see the looming towers of a massive black castle.

 Liliet (Sulda): (back)

To the northwest, you see high stone buttresses looming gray in the fog. Huge iron gates hang on the stonework. Dew clings with cold tenacity to the rusted bars. Two headless statues of armed guardians flank the gate, their heads now lying among the weeds at their feet. They greet you only with silence.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae strums the guitar dramatically, looking at it
"Dun dun DUNN!" she calls out loud in time with it
(are the gates open?)

The gates are currently closed.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well," says Ireena, hugging herself slightly. The air has gotten colder, as the cart has slowly climbed in altitude. "This is a warm welcome."

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus stares at Suldae. He was thinking it. He didn't expect to hear the cords being played, but he was surely thinking of them.

 Ismark Kolyanovich takes a small swig from his hip flask.

A soft whimpering draws your eye toward a pair of children hiding near the base of one of the gate statues.

 Marcus Veranius: "Well, I'm going to take a closer look at the gate. Has to be a way to..."
Marcus squints.

He leans into Suldae, whispering in a low voice. "What in bollocks are children doing in the middle of nowhere? Does this seem suspicious to you?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and hops off the barrel. "Wait for me," she murmurs and gets off the cart

"Hey," she calls out softly as she approaches the statue

Marcus Veranius follows behind, crossbow put-away but still within reach should something go amiss.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at him for a second over her shoulder but has to admit that his presence makes her feel safer Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: The older of the two children, a young, dark-eyed girl, pushes her brother further back into hiding. She peers around the statue, small fingers clinging to the stone as though it could provide some kind of safety.

"Please... Can you help us?"

"There's a monster in our house. Please, we had to run. We've been hiding all day. Please help us!"

The girl points into the forest, up a narrow, hardly-used track. At the top of a hill, nestled among the trees, there is a tall brick house that has seen better days. Its windows are dark. It has a gated portico on the ground floor, and the rusty gate is slightly ajar.

Ismark Kolyanovich takes a bigger swig.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stops in front of the children, looks at the house, then at her companion questioningly

Ismark Kolyanovich shakes the empty flask, grunts in disappointment, and puts the flask back into an inner pocket after a couple of tries.

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: "Will you help us?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus considers for a moment. Assuming this WASN'T a trap, it was likely the monster came as part of Ireena's ambush, making them partially responsible.

"Do you kids happen to know how the gate opens?"

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: The girl shakes her head. Her brother stares, wide-eyed, giving no answer.

"The gate has always been closed," says the girl.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae peers at the gate more closely. (Is there a visible lock?)

Marcus Veranius: That was incredibly inconvenient news.

There is no visible lock on the gate.

Suldae Westwind: "Can we just... push it open?" Suldae suggests

Marcus Veranius: "It was worth a shot. Ireena; do you care for a small detour? I'd like to check on the house but don't want to leave you in the open."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks nervously to the east. Looking up at the house on the hill, she says: "We'll go together. At least that way, if something happens, we can watch each others' backs."

Marcus Veranius nods

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark chuckles drunkenly.

Suldae Westwind: She smiles at Marcus, glad to hear that he, too, wants to help the children. Suldae is aware that anything in this land could be a trap, but on her own she would most certainly head into everything.

"Ismark, will you watch the cart?" Suldae suggests

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Absotulety. Abso... Absolutely."

Suldae Westwind: "...should we leave him alone like this?" Suldae questions and looks at Ireena

Ismark gives a drunken thumbs-up.

Marcus Veranius: "Good enough for me."

Ireena Kolyana looks at him, disappointment visible on her face.

Marcus Veranius starts walking towards the house

Ireena Kolyana: "He'd only be a liability if we brought him along."

"We should move the cart off the road at least."

Suldae Westwind: "...yeah," Suldae agrees and moves to help her.

"Wait a minute," she tells the children. "Don't go too far ahead!" she calls out to Marcus

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena dismounts the cart and walks ahead, leading the horse into the shadow of the trees. She ties the reins to a branch, slips a feedbag over the horse's head, and approaches her brother. "Try to stay alive, alright?"

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: "Can we wait here?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'll watch over them."

Suldae Westwind: "Alright, but first... tell us what happened," Suldae says. "What, and who's at the house?"

She sounds serious, but soft, trying to not scare the children but show that she is taking them seriously.

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: "It's a monster. It lives in the basement, and it howls all the time! Our parents don't care, they just keep the basement locked. This morning our parents were gone! The monster started howling and making all these awful noises, so we ran away."

The girl seems to be hiding something. She seems ashamed, somehow.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hesitates.

"Is it just the two of you and your parents?" she probes

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: "N...No... We have a baby brother. His name is Walter. I... I was too scared to go upstairs and get him."

She flushes with shame.

She looks at her feet, as though afraid of punishment.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches out and fluffs her hair a bit. "You must have been very scared," she says seriously. "Don't worry, we'll look for him. Keep your brother – and Ireena's brother – safe here, will you?"

(To Marcus Veranius): You see that the old house looks as though it has been neglected for many years. There are no lights in any windows, and the front garden is full of dead plants and dry soil.

Rosavalda "Rose" Durst: She nods and even manages a weak smile.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles back and heads up the path after Marcus.

Marcus Veranius doesn't like any of this. It almost feels like he's acting more on instinct than on logic.

Marcus Veranius: Nothing about this house bodes well.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae catches up to him and looks at the house ahead. (Is there anything else that stands out up close?)

The house looks very old.

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae; this place looks abandoned."

It must have stood here for at least a century.

A wrought-iron gate with hinges on one side and a lock on the other fills the archway of a stone portico.

Beyond the gate, you see a set of wooden doors. They are slightly open.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head. "It might have just been very ill-maintained. I've seen people fall into that.." She hesitates. "The girl said there's another small child upstairs. I don't think it's conscionable not to check"

Marcus Veranius: "...bollocks."

It is possible to circle around the house on the ground floor, but this gate seems to be the main entrance to the house.

Marcus Veranius moves for the door

Suldae Westwind: "Mhm"

The rusty hinges of the gate shriek as Marcus opens it. Oil lamps hang from the portico ceiling by chains, flanking the oaken doors of the house. The doors are slightly ajar, indicating that they are not locked. The oil lamps are antique and somewhat rusted and dusty.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks from behind Marcus, allowing him to take point

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow and proceeds for the door, attempting to move quietly

The relentless ticking of a large clock can be heard from within the house. A strong wind picks up suddenly, whipping at the trees around the house.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows behind him, looking around nervously

Marcus Veranius: (Do I move the token upwards?)

Ireena follows.

Suldae Westwind: (do we need a token for Ireena?)

(What's inside?)

As Marcus peers through the door, he sees into a grand foyer. Hanging on the south wall of the Foyer is a shield emblazoned with a coat-of-arms, flanked by portraits of stony-faced aristocrats. Mahogany-framed double doors lead north, into the main body of the house. The doors are set with windows of stained glass.

Suldae Westwind: (What does the coat-of-arms look like? Does anyone recognize i?)

*it

The front doors slam shut after you move into the Foyer.

The coat-of-arms depicts a stylized golden windmill on a red field.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries the door

Marcus Veranius chuckles at the shield. "A real Don-Quixote this is."

Suldae Westwind: "The girl said nothing about servants," Suldae remarks. "Yet this looks like a house that should have some"

The wind seems to have slammed the water-bloated door firmly shut. It is jammed in place. That explains why it was partially open before.

Suldae Westwind: "We will probably be able to force it open on our way back..." Suldae murmurs. "Just in case, why don't we do that right now? Marcus, can you?"

Ireena: "I don't like this..."

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not as strong as I look. But I do carry a crowbar."

Suldae Westwind: "Or, wait a second," Suldae adds

Mending*Transmutation CantripCasting Time: 1 minuteRange: TouchTarget: A single break or tear in an object you touchComponents: V, S, M (Two lodestones)Duration: Instantaneous

This spell repairs a single break or tear in an object you touch, such as a broken chain link, two halves of a broken key, a torn cloak, or a leaking wineskin. As long as the break or tear is no larger than 1 foot in any dimension, you mend it, leaving no trace of the former damage. This spell can physically repair a magic item or construct, but the spell can't restore magic to such an object.

Suldae attempts to use Mending to fix the water bloating
(and the jam)

It's an unorthodox use of the spell, and it takes nearly a minute of solid concentration, but the door does seem to respond. The bloated fibers of the wooden door squeeze and dry, and trickles of blackish water bleed out of the wood. The door is still firmly shut, but the water damage seems to have been at least partially reversed.

Marcus Veranius: "Only a few more hours of that and the house might be worth something on market."

Ireena 's eyes bug at the use of magic.

Marcus Veranius: "30 minute walk to the cursed horror castle. Property value must be booming."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles, proud of her handiwork. She puts away the ocarina, which she used to produce a simple melody that guided the effect

"Let's try to open it again," she suggests. "I'd rather we not go somewhere there's a purported monster without an open route for retreat"

Ireena: "I've never seen music do that before. Is that an elven thing?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head. "A bard thing," she explains, pride audible in her voice. "Correllon's teachings"

Ireena nods thoughtfully.

Ireena: "I've heard of Correllon."

Suldae Westwind: "The god of knowledge," Suldae adds. "If you know what you do well enough, the very weave of reality dances to your will."

The intonation flow sounds recited, like something she's heard and said hundreds of times.

Marcus Veranius takes a crowbar and attempts to pry open the doors while Suldae giver her lecture.

Ireena suddenly gets Marcus's joke and laughs nervously.

Marcus Veranius:

19

7

STRENGTH (0)
Marcus Veranius

The hinges squeal as Marcus levers the doors apart with his crowbar. The wind outside has picked up, and he has to press against it to get the door open. It fights him all the way. 4

He overcomes it with a mighty heave, and swings one of the doors outward until it flaps back against the stone. The wind will hold it open, now.

Suldae Westwind: "Looks good," Suldae says, voice betraying uncertainty. The outside doesn't look particularly safe from here, either.

"Good job," she adds.

Ireena: "Well," Ireena says, her voice shaking slightly. "Shall we proceed?"

Marcus Veranius smiles. "Upstairs for the child, then downstairs for the monster."

Marcus Veranius: He puts his crowbar away and begins moving forwards through the north door.

Suldae Westwind: "Or maybe upstairs for the child, then down to the cart, then to the monster," Suldae suggests, following him

The north doors open easily, leading into a wide hall which runs the width of the house. A black marble fireplace sits at the western end, and a sweeping red marble staircase fills the other. Mounted on the wall above the fireplace is a longsword with a windmill cameo worked into the hilt. The wood-paneled walls are ornately sculpted with images of vines, flowers, nymphs, and satyrs. The decorative paneling follows the staircase as it circles upward to the second floor. There are several doors on the north wall of the chamber. One looks like a closet door, the others probably lead into other areas of the house.

There are two doors on the northern wall, and a short hallway holds two more. On the southern wall, there is a large, ornate-looking door that probably leads to a sitting area.

Suldae Westwind: "There should definitely have been servants," Suldae murmurs. She does not disbelieve the girl, per se - it's easy to believe a household would fall into poverty here. But it's alarming, still.

Marcus Veranius: "You know, suddenly I understand the windmill theme. Winds here are worse than a scorned mistress."

Suldae Westwind: "You ever thought of being a bard?" Suldae wonders, and steps to the middle of the room to get a better look around
(Is Ireena with us?)

Marcus Veranius: "I don't have enough soul left in me. But sarcasm gets better the more dead inside you are."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena follows cautiously, rapier drawn.

Suldae Westwind: "You have a talent for words," Suldae finishes, and holds back the remark about his appearance, being dead, and the uses in entertainment industry thereof

Ireena Kolyana: "Did you notice the dust?" Ireena asks.

A thick layer of dust coats everything. The only footprints are your own.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae holds her ocarina, guitar left carefully covered in the cart

Marcus Veranius: "I noticed the garden was rather pitiful. This screams trap."

Suldae Westwind: "Well, okay, this does not look good," Suldae says, looking at the floor. "Still, upstairs?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Should we check any of the other rooms first? Just to make sure it's not hiding down here?"

"If this is a trap, we should be mindful of our route of egress."

Marcus Veranius: "I'd sleep easier seeing the rooms with my own eyes."

Marcus Veranius starts to head upstairs

Suldae Westwind: "If it's hiding and lets us pass, I say let it", Suldae argues. "The house is not that tall; worst case, we can get out of a window"

(gimme a minute)

(back)

Unlit oil lamps are mounted on the walls of the elegant hall which comes into view as you crest the top of the staircase. Hanging above the mantelpiece is a wood-framed portrait of a small family. A tall nobleman and his wife stand behind two smiling children -- the two you have already met. Cradled in the father's arms is a swaddled baby. The painter was gifted. The wife's eyes are on the baby, and there is a hint of scorn on her face.

Suldae Westwind: "Oh," Suldae murmurs, looking at the picture. Judging by the layer of dust, it can't be recent, can it?

Standing suits of armor flank wooden doors on the north and south walls. Each suit of armor clutches a spear and has a visored helm shaped like a wolf's head. The doors are carved with dancing youths. The red marble staircase that brought you up from the first floor continues upwards. A cold draft can be felt coming down the steps.

Marcus Veranius: "...she seems pleasant."

Suldae Westwind: "They seem young," Suldae says out loud, looking at the children. (Do they look the exact same age)

Marcus Veranius: "Did the kiddos happen to say which 'upstairs' their youngest was on?"

The children look only slightly younger in the portrait.

Ireena Kolyana walks to the painting and extends a finger. She sweeps it across the canvas, clearing a line of dust.

Ireena Kolyana rubs her fingers together, brushing the dust off.

Suldae Westwind: "No, just 'upstairs'," Suldae says. She doesn't say she didn't question them in detail because of hurrying to catch up with Marcus

Ireena Kolyana looks around warily, blade upraised. She prods one of the suits of armor with her rapier, thrusting it quickly through the slits of the visor.

Ireena Kolyana methodically she applies this test to each suit of armor.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns after her, watching tensely

This does not seem like an unnecessary precaution, to her.

"Looks okay so far," she says, voice carefully even

The suits of armor do not respond.

Suldae Westwind: "Let's go south first," Suldae says. Somehow, the path closer to where they came from seems safer.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus eyes the spears. "You know, we ought to ask if we can keep some of these. I could use a shield if the kids don't need it."

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm sure no one would mind if we borrowed one..."

Marcus Veranius: "I prefer asking before rather than after."

Suldae Westwind: "Mhm," Suldae agrees, rather disinterested herself. She barely knows how to handle these.

"Maybe we should disarm them right now, just in case," she adds.

"The children asked our help, I'm sure they won't mind"

Marcus Veranius: "That... I don't have as much of a problem with."

Marcus Veranius starts removing the spears, intending to take them upstairs for more secure storage.

Suldae Westwind: we're upstairs already

Marcus Veranius: (The next upstairs)

Suldae Westwind: (oh)

"I also think that if you could use a shield right now, borrowing one here wouldn't be wrong," Suldae adds, watching him.

"We can always put it back later, if there's no danger"

"Ireena, what about you?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus shrugs. "I need a free hand to load my crossbow. Wouldn't mind a spare in case I ever use a...Sword of Sunlight was it?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Taking the spears is a wise and necessary precaution. I hesitate to go further into the house with so many unchecked rooms, however."

Marcus Veranius: "That's also fair."

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe there's somewhere on this floor we could stash them?"

"Or we could just take them with us."

Marcus Veranius: "Or we could throw them over the balcony."

Ireena Kolyana: "The safest hands would be our own, I think."

"Balcony works too."

Marcus Veranius does so

Suldae Westwind: Suldae purses her lips. "We could carry them downstairs where we've already been. I don't want to go anywhere we don't absolutely have to, in this house"

"Oh, the balcony sounds good"

There is no balcony nearby, but the windows of this room are easily opened and soon the spears are landing in the grass below.

Suldae Westwind: (well whatever the point stands XD)

Marcus Veranius: "This is a better idea. I'm glad I thought of it."

"Well then! Let's pick a room!"

Suldae Westwind: "Mm," Suldae agrees. "And we're letting them keep their shields out of respect. I say we go south"

Marcus Veranius: "South it is!"

(To Marcus Veranius): Perception check please

Gossamer drapes cover the windows of this elegantly appointed hall, which has a brass-plated chandelier hanging from the ceiling. Upholstered chairs line the walls, and stained-glass wall hangings depict beautiful men, women, and children singing and playing instruments. A harpsichord with a bench rests in the northwest corner. Near the fireplace is a large standing harp. Alabaster figurines of well-dressed dancers adorn the mantelpiece.

Marcus Veranius:

11

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

(Well here's where the piano ambiance has been coming from)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around, her attention enraptured. This place is beautiful; she wishes the entire house wasn't so ominous. She studies the instruments

15

9

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

oops

5

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

They are definitely instruments.

Suldae Westwind: ..she is too distracted by the very fact of them being here to notice anything useful

The harpsichord is badly out of tune.

 Suldae Westwind: "Well, the baby certainly isn't here," she says out loud. "North, now?"

The standing harp retains only three strings -- the rest of snapped, one by one, over the years.

 Ireena Kolyana: (have snapped)

 Suldae Westwind: This keeps looking more ominous, but Suldae doesn't want to give up on the mission

 GM (GM): (I hate that it won't let you edit posts.)

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena paces the room methodically, probing behind the curtains with her rapier and opening the harpsichord to examine its inner workings. When she reaches the fireplace and the harp, she gasps.

"Look at this!"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae approaches

 Marcus Veranius walks over; place seems clear enough from his side

 Ireena Kolyana: With a trembling hand, Ireena points closely at the figurines on the mantelpiece. Several of the statues appear to be well-dressed skeletons.

 Liliet (Suldae): (I hear you)

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns, studying the statues. She blows a few notes on the ocarina, trying to discern any traces of magic on them

15

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

The figurines are bound by a very weak illusion spell. At a first glance, most people will not see their skeletal form.

 Ireena Kolyana: "What kind of people have statues like this?"

"And what kind of people put these in a spot where any number of guests might be likely to see them?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae is struck by a thought: maybe they should not have left Ismark with the kids.

 Marcus Veranius chuckles. "How tacky. Not my taste, but I won't complain of someone else decorating with these."

 Suldae Westwind: "The guests would not notice this easily," she answers Ireena's question

 Ireena Kolyana: "Oh?"

"I mean, I suppose with drinking and dancing going on, it would be hard to spot."

 Suldae Westwind: "There's illusion magic on those," Suldae explains.

 Ireena Kolyana: "They're enchanted?"

 Suldae Westwind: "You only see what they're like because you're looking closely"
"Yes, and I'm not sure why anyone would do this"

 Marcus Veranius: "Novelty?"

 Suldae Westwind: "Maybe in deference to the master of these lands?"

 Marcus Veranius: "My gran used to collect figurines of musicians she liked. They weren't skeletons, but still frightening as hell."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena pulls her neck ruff a little higher, self-consciously.

 Suldae Westwind: "Let's... move on," Suldae suggests, uneasy, and moves back to the hall

 Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe we should keep moving, yes."

 Suldae Westwind: "North, now"

Red velvet drapes cover the windows of this room. An exquisite mahogany desk and a matching high-back chair face the entrance and the fireplace, above which hangs a framed picture of a windmill perched atop a rocky crag. Situated in corners of the room are two overstuffed chairs. Floor-to-ceiling bookshelves line the south wall. A rolling wooden ladder allows one to more easily reach the high shelves.

There are several items on the desk.

 Suldae Westwind: "Well this isn't a nursery either," Suldae states the obvious
(What's on the desk?)

8

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

 Marcus Veranius: "Bedrooms are usually the top floor."

 Suldae Westwind: (Welp, Suldae isn't looking lmao)

Sitting on the desk are an oil lamp, a jar of ink, a quill pen, a tinderbox, and a letter kit containing a red wax candle, four blank sheets of parchment, and a wooden seal with a windmill insignia.

 Marcus Veranius: "Is this the bloody windmill this house is obsessed with?"

The desk has several small drawers.

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus eyes the painting

 Ireena Kolyana: "One supposes," says Ireena, looking at the painting as well.

The painting is well done and must have cost a fortune. It is coated in a layer of old dust.

 Suldae Westwind: "Ireena, you don't happen to know if this is nearby, do you?" Suldae wonders

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena shakes her head. "I've never seen it before."

"I haven't traveled very far from the village, I'm afraid."

Sulda Westwind: "The terrain looks like the hills around here, doesn't it?"

It does, yes.

Ireena Kolyana: "It does, yes."

(Askfjgaslkdfalkj sorry sorry)

Marcus Veranius makes a mental note of it

Ireena Kolyana: "Do we need any of this junk?"

Ireena waves at the desk.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks at the table, finally noticing what's on it. She definitely no longer cares about stealing.

Marcus Veranius: "Any books on killing dragons by chance?" Marcus comments, as he looks over the bookcases

Sulda Westwind: "I could use this, I think," she says, taking the writing implements, making sure the ink bottle is closed tight.

The bookshelves hold hundreds of tomes covering a range of topics including history, warfare, and alchemy. There are also several shelves which contain nothing but first-edition collected works of poetry and fiction.

Sulda Westwind: She hesitates, and pockets the seal and the candle, too.

At the very least, the children might have use for it.

(perception check, Marcus)

Marcus Veranius:

14

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus spots an odd-looking book. It is red, and its spine is blank, bearing no title.

Marcus Veranius: "...what's this then?" Marcus pulls the book out to inspect it.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae checks the drawers, too, emboldened by Ireena's suggestion

The book does not leave the shelf, instead it swings like a lever, pulling a rope. With a click, one of the bookshelves unlocks and swings inward.

Marcus Veranius: "Well how about that. A secret passage."

"Place really IS that tacky."

Ireena Kolyana: "Where does it lead?"

Sulda Westwind: (What's in the drawers?)

(To Sulda Westwind): Only one drawer contains anything -- a small iron key.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes the key and comes up to Marcus

The secret room is small. Bookshelves line both walls, packed with ancient-looking tomes. A heavy wooden chest with clawed iron feet stands against the south wall, its lid half-closed. Sticking out of the chest is a skeleton in leather armor.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Clutched in the skeleton's left hand is a piece of parchment.

Suldae Westwind: "Well that's lovely," Suldae murmurs, hesitates, and blows a trill checking for magic again

10

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae detects no magic, but her music seems to make Ireena feel slightly better.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae moves to grab the parchment

Marcus Veranius: "Now I regret throwing all the spears out the window. Could really use a long stick about now."

Suldae Westwind: He's not wrong, but she's already doing it.

The parchment appears to be a sealed letter. The wax seal bears a crest with a raven's outstretched wings.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae eyes it, then gives it over to Ireena, turning so as to keep her eye on the skeleton at the same time and her back to the wall

"This look familiar to you?"

Ireena Kolyana: "This is the crest of Strahd," says Ireena. Her voice is shaking.

Marcus Veranius: "Looks like a raven."

"Maybe it wasn't so wise to trust the bird..."

Ireena Kolyana: "It could be an eagle, I suppose..."

"It's hard to tell."

Suldae Westwind: "Unexpected," Suldae says dryly. She's had little reason to disbelieve Ireena's paranoia so far, and this is not helping.

Marcus Veranius: "That's optimistic."

"What does the letter read?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena breaks the seal and opens the letter.

She reads it silently while you look over her shoulders.

(You should see the handout.)

Suldae Westwind: "Stillborn," Suldae says out loud

"I'm guessing that's the third kid."

Her voice sounds even, her bardic training taking over

Marcus Veranius: "...got to give it to Strahd. He's got a good way with words."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, agreeing.

Marcus Veranius: "He's probably more dead inside than I am though."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena's hands start shaking.

Suldae Westwind: "Very funny," Suldae says blandly. "I say we go back to the cart"
"At the very least, we need to ask the kids more questions"

Ireena Kolyana: "What about the chest? The books?"
"Who were these people?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus takes a peek inside the chest on Ireena's mention

Suldae Westwind: "Does the chest look like a good idea to handle to you?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Why did they think that Strahd, of all people, would help them?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae backs out of the room, leaving the passage free for anyone else who wants to come inside

Marcus Veranius: "From the sounds of it, perhaps this house is merely a death trap for cheap sacrifices?"

Suldae Westwind: "Well, Strahd wonders this as much as you do," Suldae answers. "People believe odd things in search for hope"

"So what you're saying is we won't leave that easily?"

"Let's try anyway"

Marcus Veranius: "What I'm saying is... I don't know what to make of anything here."
"But I've faced worse things than the house of a long-dead master."

(To Marcus Veranius): Perception check please

Marcus Veranius:

12

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: "Long-dead might not mean much, or at least, not much good," Suldae informs him, thinking of the skeletons on the fireplace.

Marcus Veranius: "Anything good in the secret library?"

Suldae Westwind: "Also, the children. We need go talk to them. Ismark is there." And her guitar, but she doesn't say that.

Marcus sees that the skeleton belonged to a human, who triggered some kind of poisoned dart trap. Three darts are stuck in the dead adventurer's armor and ribcage. The dart-firing mechanism, inside the chest, is clearly empty -- he can see the little dart-launcher is no longer loaded.

Suldae Westwind: "I didn't look"

The lid of the chest is easily opened. Inside, Marcus sees three blank books with black leather covers, three scrolls bound with red silk, and a large parchment envelope, thick with papers.

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus collects the things in the chest for later viewing. He's a bit less burdened about taking things knowing what the house's owner has been up to.

He then takes a look at the hidden bookshelves.

The bookshelves are packed with ancient-looking tomes.

(To Marcus Veranius): Would you care to inspect the books more closely? Investigation, Arcana, or History if so

Marcus Veranius:

12

INVESTIGATION (0)
Marcus Veranius

By leafing through a few books, Marcus is able to determine that these books describe fiend-summoning rituals and the necromantic rituals of a cult called the Priests of Osybus.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae idly browses the regular library, paging through songs and poetry, but not eager to take anything unless something particularly special catches her attention.

Marcus knows that the rituals are bogus because all the incantations are written in Common, not Primordial or Abyssal (the traditional languages for such incantations.)

Marcus Veranius: "Right. This is all necromatic hogwash."

"I've seen enough. Let's go."

Suldae Westwind: "Hogwash?" Suldae asks

Marcus Veranius: "I can't claim to have a serious knowledge in magic, but common doesn't seem ancient enough to chant ritual in."

Suldae Westwind: "Ancient enough?" Suldae asks, and consults her own knowledge of such matters

17

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "If I'd make an estimate, I'd say the owner of this house tried to beg for power to whatever higher entities he could think of."

"Essentially a fanatic fanboy."

Suldae recalls that certain summoning rituals require incantations in specific ancient languages. She catches a glance at one of the symbols described as a "summoning circle" in the book. The symbol is actually a glyph of warding, which wouldn't even have worked without the proper spellcasting experience and materials.

Marcus Veranius: "...I'm a bit worried though. If those children weren't lying about monsters in the house, he may have succeeded in doing something..."

Marcus Veranius makes for the hallway

Suldae Westwind: "I'm worried about the children themselves," Suldae replies.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena follows.

"Where to now?" she asks. "Do we just... leave?"

"Or should we keep searching?"

Suldae Westwind: "The girl talked as if the last kid was alive, too. Maybe they're just confused victims in this, or maybe they're confused victims and also dangerous."

"Let's go talk to them, and then decide what to do"

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe the most neighborly thing would be to burn this place down so no one else falls to it."

As Marcus says this, you hear the ominous slamming of a door, somewhere below you.

The clicking of the lock is audible even from upstairs.

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bother."

The sound of a baby giggling echoes through the house, coming from further upstairs.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs.

"...or we can continue with what we came here for and look for the third kid"

Marcus Veranius points to the corner room

Marcus Veranius: "Do we want to peek in there?"

Suldae Westwind: "Better do it than not," Suldae suggests, remembering Ireena's worries

The small door leads to an undecorated bedroom containing a pair of beds with straw-stuffed mattresses. At the end of each bed is a footlocker. A door on the left side of the room suggests a closet.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks the closet

Marcus Veranius: "Be careful of the skeletons."

The closet contains several moth-eaten servants' uniforms, hanging from hooks.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae opens her eyes dramatically wide, raises her hands as if in fear and steps away from him, slowly enough to be obviously for show

There is a small wooden door on the southeastern side of the room. It looks like the kind of door a dumbwaiter would have.

There is a silver button on the wall next to this sliding door.

Marcus Veranius presses the button out of curiosity

The sound of a small bell ringing somewhere downstairs is the immediate response to the press of the button.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae abandons her ignored performance and leans under him to check out the door

The small sliding door is not locked, although it has a hook-and-eyed lock on this side.

Sulda Westwind: Just for prudence's sake, Suldae opens it

The door opens to a dumbwaiter with a rope-and-pulley mechanism.

The wooden platform of the small elevator must be on another floor at the moment, but the rope is within reach. It appears to be hand-operated.

Sulda Westwind: "Nice," Suldae murmurs, and moves to check the footlockers
It's clear there are no servants here; if nothing else, the girl didn't mention any

The unlocked footlockers are all empty, except for a few small rat turds.

Sulda Westwind: Any belongings left behind would be abandoned

Marcus Veranius pulls up the rope

By pulling on the rope he soon brings the dumbwaiter's wooden platform into view. The little elevator box looks too small for anyone but Suldae to squeeze into, but the rope seems sturdy despite its age.

The platform is empty.

Sulda Westwind: "Wow, it actually works," Suldae comments sardonically. "Might come in useful, but probably not right now."

"Let's go.. upstairs?"

Marcus Veranius: "Good plan."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks around. "I think we've searched this whole floor. We could move on, I think."

Ireena moves up the stairs slowly, rapier drawn, running her hand along the brass hand-rail.

She waits at the top for you.

Marcus Veranius climbs up to follow

You come to a dusty balcony with a suit of black plate armor standing against one wall, draped in cobwebs. Oil lamps are mounted on the oak-paneled walls, which are carved with woodland scenes of trees, falling leaves, and tiny critters.

Sulda Westwind: (Balcony?)

There is a set of double doors to the north, around a corner. There are also two doors on the southwest corner.

Sulda Westwind: (Overlooking the stairs?)

The balcony overlooks the spiral staircase.

From here you can see right down to the ground floor.

 Ireena Kolyana: "This suit of armor looks different from the others," Ireena says, cautiously.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks it over and toots out a melody, again

6

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

 Marcus Veranius: "How is it his family can be broke and afford all this armor?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe they had money once."

 Suldae Westwind: It does not sound well in the dusty walls of this house.

Suldae detects nothing particularly unusual about the armor.

 Marcus Veranius: "They couldn't pawn this off? It's worth a fortune."

 Suldae Westwind: "Who would buy it here?" Suldae points out

 Marcus Veranius: "...yeah, good point."

 Ireena Kolyana: "I hate to alarm you, but from what I've seen so far, I don't think anyone has lived here for years."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae snorts at the first turn of her phrase
"Would you be so kind as to poke this one too?" she suggests. retreating towards the staircase

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena thrusts her rapier into the eye slits of the armor.

RAPIER
Ireena Kolyana

Attack: 8

Damage: 3 piercing

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 13 | 16

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

 Suldae Westwind: (Initiative?)

 Ireena Kolyana: (initiative)

 Suldae Westwind:

20.14

INITIATIVE (3,14)
Suldae Westwind

GM (GM):INITIATIVEIreena KolyanaInitiative: 13INITIATIVEAnimated ArmorInitiative: 12Marcus Veranius:*23.18*INITIATIVE (4.18)

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (Well, clearly Suldae was prepared for this)

(..as was Marcus)

The armor retaliates, swinging its metal fist! Ireena parries the blow effortlessly and darts back, letting Marcus take point.

The armor screams and groans as it slowly turns, lifting one heavy foot away from its cobwebbed plinth. It steps heavily onto the creaking floorboards, turning its sightless, empty helm first to Marcus, then to Suldae.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus raises his crossbow and aims for the armor's joints. Looks like this decoration needs to be pinned to the wall.(To Suldae Westwind): Still need your initiativeSuldae Westwind: (oh, it didn't record that, gotcha)6.14*INITIATIVE (3.14)

Suldae Westwind

(alright apparently Suldae was blindsided lmao)

(To Suldae Westwind): I didn't see your first roll, I'll adjust itMarcus Veranius:*27

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

724

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

7

GM (GM): 19

Marcus's two shots impact the Armor, punching through its metal breastplate. The armor's head snaps around to look at him.

GM (GM): (EOT?)Marcus Veranius: [EoT](To Suldae Westwind): You're up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae retrieves her own crossbow, stored as it always was atop all her other things in her bag, and shoots

10

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

9

Piercing

The bolt glances off, and Suldae purses her lips in distaste for her failure
[EoT]

GM (GM):

RAPIER
Ireena Kolyana

Attack: 10

Damage: 2 piercing

Ireena darts in, rapier flashing, but the tip glances off the armor's metal carapace, screeching as it scrapes the steel.

Ireena jumps back, hiding behind Marcus again.

GM (GM): (EOT)

MULTIATTACK
Animated Armor

The armor makes two melee attacks.

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 20

Damage: 6 bludgeoning

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 14

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

The armor advances on Marcus and Ireena, swinging its huge fists!

Marcus Veranius: Marcus takes the first blow, but manages to duck out of the second.

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

GM (GM): (EOT)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus takes a breath, trying to regain his composure. He aims two more shots, this time at the head.

24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

7

21

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8

GM (GM): 15

Suldae Westwind: (back)

The two bolts both strike the helmet, punching through the visor. The armor roars -- a hollow, horrible sound.

GM (GM): (EOT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

(To Suldae Westwind): You're up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shoots again

18

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

8

Piercing

Suldae's crossbow bolt punches into the armor's helmet and carries it right off the rest of the armor. The crossbow bolt pins the helmet to the wall, and the rest of the armor collapses into separate pieces, which roll and rattle and make a general ruckus before settling down.

GM (GM): You each gain 100 XP.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and straightens out, packing away her crossbow. She looks at Marcus. "Are you okay?"

(sweet)

Marcus has a slowly-developing bruise on his forehead, but appears otherwise unharmed.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hesitates.

"I can heal that," she suggests, "but it'll leave me more tired for anything else we might encounter. At the same time, you might want to be at your best, too"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus calms himself. "I'll be fine, it's only a bump."

(Gunna use my second wind to heal the damage)

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Marcus Veranius: He takes a moment to retrieve some of his bolts from the armor. Ten times the price for ammunition is terrible and he'd hate to need them.

"The tacky statues don't seem as bad anymore, yeah? Least they don't move."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena nods sharply, her mind elsewhere. Her heart is still racing.

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

5
Healing

Second Wind
Marcus Veranius

Well then, shall we continue?"

Marcus says, as he peeks through the south door.

Suldae Westwind: (back)

"Good thing we've got you," Suldae says offhandedly to Ireena.

"That would not have been nice to have behind our backs."

The south door opens into a large bedroom suite. Dust and cobwebs shroud the room. There is a set of double doors in the southwest corner of the room, set with panes of stained glass. On the western wall, just to the right-hand side when you first enter the room, there is a door. The bedroom contains a large bed, two end tables, and a wardrobe. Mounted on the wall next to the wardrobe is a full-length mirror with an ornate wooden frame carved to look like ivy and berries.

The moment you open the door, a shape appears amid the cobwebs. Something vaguely humanoid rushes towards you like a sudden wind, blowing dust from the ground and causing the cobwebs to flutter. A scream echoes through the room as the ghostly figure manifests! In spectral hues of blue and silver, like dust-motes in moonlight, a skeletally thin young woman with wild hair and staring eyes suddenly appears! The specter hurtles towards you as you stand in the doorway!

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae steps back

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus slams the door and also steps back
"...that probably wasn't the kid."

 Ireena Kolyana: The specter does not pursue you.

The specter does not pursue you.

 Ireena Kolyana: "What the hell was that!?"

 Sulda Westwind: "The mother?" Suldae suggests, and tries to recall the painting

 Marcus Veranius: "I have no idea, and I don't want to find out." Marcus re-iterates, slowly sliding the collapsed armor up as to jam the door

 Sulda Westwind: (Did the spectre look like the painting?)

The specter did not look like any of the people in the paintings you have seen so far.

 Marcus Veranius: With the south properly secured, Marcus peeks into the left door. A bit more cautiously this time; he's rather spooked by the turn of events.

 Sulda Westwind: "Or maybe a servant," Suldae murmurs.

"Maybe the baby's mother?"

She's left guessing as she takes position in front of the door

 Marcus Veranius: "Maybe a less than willing sacrifice to the hidden altar, wherever that is."

The left-hand door opens into a storage room. Dusty shelves line the walls. A few of the shelves have folded sheets, blankets, and old bars of soap on them. A broom leans against the far wall.

 Sulda Westwind: "Looks safe enough," Suldae murmurs, but does not move yet.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Anything we need?"

 Marcus Veranius points to the broom

 Ireena Kolyana: "I'd say at this point there should be no shame in looting this place. It's clear no one -- or no one decent -- has lived here in many years."

 Marcus Veranius: "It's no spear, but that seems like a good poking stick."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae snatches it up and holds it like a spear playfully

The broom jerks in her hand. (make a strength check.)

 Sulda Westwind:

11

STRENGTH SAVE (-1)
Sulda Westwind

oops sorry

Ireena Kolyana:

DEXTERITY
Broom of Animated Attack

Ability: 22 | 21

Suldae Westwind:

6

STRENGTH (-1+1)
Suldae Westwind

w e l p

Ireena Kolyana:

BROOMSTICK
Broom of Animated Attack

Attack: 25 | 24

Damage: 7 + 2
bludgeoning

Suldae Westwind: initiative?

The broom shoots out of Suldae's hand and whaps her soundly across the face.

(Initiative)

Marcus Veranius:

16.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

19.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE
Broom of Animated Attack

Initiative: 21

Suldae Westwind: (this is a lot of damage for a whap across the face)

The broomstick's twiggy brush leaves several serious scratches!

Suldae Westwind: (makes sense lmao)

The broomstick swoops wildly out the door, whirling like a dervish.

Ireena Kolyana:

MULTIATTACK
Broom of Animated Attack

The broom makes two melee attacks.

BROOMSTICK
Broom of Animated Attack

Attack: 6

Damage: 7 bludgeoning

BROOMSTICK
Broom of Animated Attack

Attack: 24

Damage: 5 bludgeoning

The first swing misses Marcus badly and knocks several towels off the shelf. One of the towels gets tangled around the broomstick's brush end, and when it spins around to swat again at Marcus, the blow is muffled by the towel.

GM (GM): (EOT)

(To Suldae Westwind): You're up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae backs up and raises her ocarina to her lips, unsure what to do.
(gimme a sec)

Suldae tries to light the broom on fire!

Prestidigitation
Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 10 feet

Target: See text

Components: V, S

Duration: Up to 1 hour

This spell is a minor magical trick that novice spellcasters use for practice. You create one of the following magical effects within range: You create an instantaneous, harmless sensory effect, such as a shower of sparks, a puff of wind, faint musical notes, or an odd odor. You instantaneously light or snuff out a candle, a torch, or a small campfire. You instantaneously clean or soil an object no larger than 1 cubic foot. You chill, warm, or flavor up to 1 cubic foot of nonliving material for 1 hour. You make a color, a small mark, or a symbol appear on an object or a surface for 1 hour. You create a nonmagical trinket or an illusory image that can fit in your hand and that lasts until the end of your next turn. If you cast this spell multiple times, you can have up to three of its non-instantaneous effects active at a time, and you can dismiss such an effect as an action.

The brush end of the broomstick bursts into flames like a campfire, but this only seems to make it more aggressive. The dusty towel makes it difficult for the flames to thrive.

GM (GM): 2

(EOT?)

Suldae Westwind: [EoT]

(To Marcus Veranius): You're up

Suldae Westwind: (I love this house)

(Suldae was not made for this, but also she very much was)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus frowns at the face full of towel. He attempts to shoot at the broom's fastenings; see if it stills once torn apart.

26

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8

21

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

6

The two shots both zip past the broomstick, ripping apart the fastenings. The brush end falls off in a shower of singed and smoking twigs, and the broomstick itself tumbles to the ground, little more than a walking stick now.

GM (GM): (EOT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

GM (GM):

BROOMSTICK
Broom of Animated Attack

Attack: 21

Damage: 5 bludgeoning

BROOMSTICK
Broom of Animated Attack

Attack: 20

Damage: 5 bludgeoning

As if in a final act of defiance, the neutered broomstick spins wildly around, whacking at Marcus's shins.

Suldae Westwind: (that's a lot of damage for shin whacking... isn't it)

Marcus sustains some mind-alteringly-painful blows and knows that he will have some real bruises in a few hours.

GM (GM): (EOT)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to light it on fire again, harder this time

GM (GM): 5

WHOOSH. The broomstick is suddenly engulfed in flames.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and wipes at her face. Her hand comes away bloodied, and she stares at it, as her face flares in pain, even as she cannot hold back a nervous laugh

It burns quickly, the dry wood splitting and popping. The fire dies down within a few seconds. The broomstick is dead.

Suldae Westwind: "I will never call anything in this house safe again," she informs her companions, as she focuses for a healing spell

GM (GM): You each gain 25 XP

Suldae Westwind:

7
Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: Marcus falls to the ground, gripping his legs in pain.

This is not a nice house

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kneels over him and does not ask this time.

8
Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

"We need to leave," she states the obvious.

Marcus Veranius: "Seconded."

GM (GM): (I think we'll end the session there. We'll pick up next Sunday at 8:00 AM from where we left off. Thank you for playing! That was a very fun session :D)

Marcus Veranius: (Same time?)

GM (GM): (Same time)

(Good morning!)

Tops K.: (Mornin!)

GM (GM): (I'm going to make coffee while we wait to see who else shows up)

(How was your week?)

Tops K.: (Eh. Been looking for a new job since my Tax job ends at the end of tax season)

(Both my current apps got a 'No' response back within a half hour of each other)

(So back to square one)

(Least I got DnD)

GM (GM): (Aww, that sucks! I'm sure you'll find something eventually, you seem like a smart guy :)

(Hi Liliet!)

(How was your week?)

Liliet (Suldae): (hi ^^ i fixed my laptop! not that i think i told yall it was broken and my screen was fritzing out...)

(oh i remember what happened last time... i was an idiot and spent my spell slots instead of going for a short rest...)

(you're not going to let me retcon that are you...)

GM (GM): (Fraid not -- character building moment)

(You can do it! I have faith in you.)

The house creaks and groans in the wind, which is still building outside the house.

On the third floor, you've explored two of the five side rooms.

Liliet (Suldae): (i can do it!!!)

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. Leaving, right?"

Suldae Westwind: "Let's go downstairs and check if we can't just... do that?"

GM (GM): (You can see a picture of the animated armor you defeated)

Marcus Veranius: (Spikey!)

(And the ghost I slammed the door on!)

Suldae Westwind: (N I C E)

(love how the armor looks)

Marcus Veranius loads his crossbow and starts inching for the stairs

Suldae Westwind: "Ireena, are you coming?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena's eyes are on the set of double doors at the southern end of the hall.

"She sounded so... trapped."

She snaps out of it.

"I'm coming."

Marcus Veranius: "Hopefully we won't be joining her then."

"Although that'd be ONE way to keep Strahd off your back."

Ireena Kolyana chuckles nervously

Suldae Westwind: "Dying generally works great for escaping captivity," Suldae comments dryly
"Same principle here, though I think it's more in reverse"

Marcus Veranius: "Nah, sounds like a bum deal. Let's discuss it outside."

Marcus Veranius starts climbing down to the first floor

Ireena Kolyana follows quietly.

The suits of armor on the second floor hall are gone.

Suldae Westwind: "..."

Marcus Veranius looks out the window

The weapons lie where you left them.

Suldae Westwind: (wait, is this the first or second floor?

Marcus Veranius: "Well at least they aren't armed..."

Ireena Kolyana: (Second Floor)

Marcus Veranius: "...SHIT! THE FIRST FLOOR ARMORY!"

Suldae Westwind: "What?"

Marcus Veranius: "The weapons and shield we didn't take coming up!

Suldae Westwind: "...I forgot about that already. Shit"

Marcus Veranius keeps heading downwards, eyes wary towards their retreat path

Ireena Kolyana follows.

Suldae Westwind follows

Suldae hears a heavy tread from behind the study door, as she is descending the staircase.

You reach the ground floor hall.

Ireena Kolyana: The longsword with the windmill cameo is gone from above the marble fireplace.

*The longsword with the windmill cameo is gone from above the marble fireplace

Marcus Veranius: "...well then. We're in trouble."

"I MIGHT have a plan, however."

Suldae Westwind: "Hm?"

Marcus Veranius checks the entrance hall

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes position under the stairs, hoping that nothing's going to jump on her head from above

Standing in the entrance hall is a suit of armor, both hands resting on the pommel of a longsword. It fills most of the entry hall. The door beyond it is open, flapping in the breeze. You can see thick stormclouds in the darkening sky, and the road leading down through the forest to the wagon. Thunder rumbles in the distance.

Suldae Westwind: "What's there?"

Marcus Veranius: "One missing friend and a missing longsword."

Suldae Westwind: "..."

"What's your plan"

*?

Marcus Veranius: "It WAS for us to gather into the entrance hall, then bar it for some measure of sanctuary."

"But I don't think our friend would care for that."

Suldae Westwind: (Is there a window in this room?)

There are no windows in this room.

Suldae Westwind: "So... we don't know what's in the other rooms for certain, we know what's in this one. Known or unknown?"

Marcus Veranius: "Honestly, with our armored friends moving about we don't really know what's in any of the rooms."

Suldae Westwind: "I mean we can see into this one"

"Which is exactly my point"

"So, any other ideas than attacking the armor there?"

Marcus Veranius: "...jump out the spear window?"

Suldae Westwind: "...I guess that's an idea, sure. Ireena?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I... I don't know."

"What if there are more of them upstairs?"

"The more we move around, the more easily they can surround us."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes up to Marcus

Marcus Veranius: "That's a good point."

Suldae Westwind: "I vote we attack this one"

Marcus Veranius: "It's not a bad plan."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm not a melee fighter though, can't take point on this one unless I want to die"
"Which, just to make sure to clarify, I don't"
"So it's kind of up to you two what we do here."

Marcus Veranius looks down at his leather armor then back to Suldae

Marcus Veranius: "I ain't exactly wearing iron."

Suldae Westwind: "My only melee weapon is this toothpick" Suldae holds up her dagger

Ireena Kolyana: "What brought them back to life, though?" Ireena asks abruptly.

"We tested them, remember?"

"Something must have activated them."

Suldae Westwind: "Wasn't it when we found the letter?"

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe it's because we pissed off the house."

Suldae Westwind: "In the library?"

"I don't think we did anything wrong though. I think it was just a trap lying dormant"

Marcus Veranius: "...wait, no. You have a point."

Suldae Westwind: "They were inactive when you tested them, but once there was no longer a point in pretending it's safe here, well..."

Ireena Kolyana: "Yes, I see that..."

"So what does the house want from us?"

Suldae Westwind: "The house, or its master..."

Marcus Veranius: "Not to kill us I think, else our friend would have made a move when we suggested killing it."

Ireena Kolyana: "Or its master..." Ireena echoes.

Suldae Westwind: "Maybe it's not so smart," Suldae suggests.

Ireena Kolyana: "What if it's just trying to keep us here... For a certain amount of time?"

Suldae Westwind: "So, about your brother outside with those children..."

Ireena Kolyana: "He'll be fine or he won't, there's not much we can do about it now." Ireena says this with more coldness than she really feels.

Suldae Westwind: "We can if we go outside," Suldae points out
"That's my point"

Marcus Veranius: "I've got maybe half a fight left in me. Best we use it wisely; at least to secure a place of rest."

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh." Ireena blushes. "That's a good point."

Marcus Veranius: "If that means leaving, I'm for it."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe we should just hide for now."

 Marcus Veranius: "If that means securing one of the larger rooms upstairs, also good."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at her oddly. The outside is right there; is she that terrified of being within Strahd's line of sight? It's not like this house is outside his domain, either.

 Ireena Kolyana: "There might be things in this house we can use, too."

 Suldae Westwind: "You two decide; doesn't seem right for me to insist when I'm going to be standing in the back"

 Marcus Veranius leans in towards the armored guardian

 Marcus Veranius: "Hey, my iron friend. I don't suppose you'd care to pass me that shield?"

 Marcus Veranius points to the shield hanging on the wall, curious if the armor would respond

The armor stands, impassive and unresponsive.

 Marcus Veranius: "...well it was worth a shot."

 Suldae Westwind: "I'm not saying it's a good idea, but we COULD just try to go by it. Maybe it's just here to scare us?"

Suldae doesn't really believe it herself, but it needed to be said

 Marcus Veranius: "It'd be less scary with a few arrows in it."

"Right, line up. If it doesn't want to move, we can get in a good firing line for when it does."

 Ireena Kolyana: "We handled the last one easily enough. As long as we don't encounter another broom, I think we can take anything this house throws at us."

"I... I hope."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae giggles weakly

"Watch out for saucepans," she then advises in as serious a voice as she can manage

 Marcus Veranius looks between the armor and his companions

 Marcus Veranius: "Well, if we're going to stay, we may as well keep scouting."

 Marcus Veranius opens the north door

The centerpiece of this wood-paneled dining room is a carved mahogany table surrounded by eight high-backed chairs with sculpted armrests and cushioned seats. A crystal chandelier hangs above the table, which is covered with resplendent silverware and crystalware polished to a dazzling shine. Mounted above the marble fireplace is a mahogany-framed painting of an alpine vale.

 Marcus Veranius: "Well would you look at that."

"Something that isn't a windmill."

 Suldae Westwind: "Check the background," Suldae advises and goes in past Marcus

Marcus Veranius squints at the painting

Suldae Westwind: (oh i like this version of fog of war better ty

Suldae checks under the table and in all other potential hiding places she can see / think of

There are three gold pieces under the table. The wall paneling is carved with elegant images of deer among the trees. Suldae realizes, after looking at it closely, that there are twisted faces carved into the tree trunks, and wolves lurking amid the carved foliage.

Red silk drapes cover the windows, and a tapestry depicting hunting dogs and horse-mounted aristocrats chasing after a wolf hangs from an iron rod bolted to the east wall.

In the background of the alpine vale, there is a tiny windmill.

Marcus Veranius: "Son of a..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae picks up the money and wordlessly distributes it to her companions, one to each

"What, there's a windmill after all?" She squints at the painting as well, then gives a weak laugh

Marcus Veranius: "Well, you can't fight poor taste."

Marcus Veranius moves towards the other door in the room

Marcus Veranius: ...but then stops.

"There's SUPPOSED to be a hidden altar somewhere, right?"

Ireena Kolyana: (BRB)

Suldae Westwind: (did you note the gold piece you just got)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee)

Suldae Westwind: "Apparently so, yes," Suldae says, double checking the letter

Marcus Veranius looks behind the tapestry. Got to start somewhere

Behind the tapestry is a bare wall.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae leans out into the hall and beckons Ireena in, uncomfortable with splitting up

(wait, did we check the small room?)

Ireena Kolyana joins you in the dining room.

Suldae Westwind: (did Ireena check the small room?)

Ireena Kolyana: "Just a closet, I'm afraid. Lots of cloaks and a top hat."

Suldae Westwind: "I kind of want a top hat," Suldae says thoughtfully

What better time to joke than when in complete and utter tension?

"Are you going to open that door?"

Marcus Veranius: "Yeah."

Marcus Veranius does so

Marcus Veranius: "Oh."

Suldae Westwind: "Well that was anticlimactic"

"This other door?"

Marcus Veranius: "...Do you want to grab that tophat before we go?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs the tophat and puts it on

(brb)

Marcus Veranius smirks, then opens the right door

Marcus Veranius: "Dress for your best; your ghost will look all the better for it."

The kitchen is tidy, with dishware, cookware, and utensils neatly placed on shelves. A worktable has a cutting board and a rolling pin atop it. A stone, dome-shaped oven stands near the east wall, its bent iron stovepipe connecting to a hole in the ceiling. Behind the stove and to the left is a thin door.

Suldae Westwind: (back)

Suldae searches the kitchen carefully

Marcus Veranius: "Well here's that dumbwaiter again."

"Not a laundry chute; how about that."

Hanging on the wall next to the dumbwaiter is a tiny brass bell.

Suldae discovers a well-stocked pantry. All the food in the pantry appears fresh.

Suldae Westwind: "Anyone want a sandwich? Ireena?"

Suldae touches the food skeptically despite the lighthearted tone

The food appears to be real.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes her ocarina to her lips

16

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius shakes his head

Marcus Veranius: "Everything else in this house has been covered in an inch of dust, but the FOOD is fresh?"

"I don't buy it."

The food is most likely composed of ectoplasm.

Sulda Westwind: "You're right not to," Sulda confirms. "No sandwich."

She pushes the thin door in the back open, herself this time

Ireena Kolyana: (the thin door is the pantry door -- sorry)

Sulda Westwind: (ah, gotcha)

Sulda walks back out into the hall and pauses in front of the last door on this floor

Marcus Veranius looks over to Sulda

Marcus Veranius: "Flip a coin to see who opens it?"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda opens the door

This oak-paneled room looks like a hunter's den. Mounted above the fireplace is a stag's head, and positioned around the outskirts of the room are three stuffed wolves.

Two padded chairs draped in animal furs face the hearth, with an oak table between them supporting a cask of wine, two carved wooden goblets, a pipe rack, and a candelabrum. A chandelier hangs above a cloth-covered table surrounded by four chairs.

Two cabinets stand against the walls. The north cabinet sports a lock. The west cabinet does not look locked.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda examines the closest wolf

She gives a sharp ocarina trill, just in case

11

ARCANA (4)
Sulda Westwind

Ireena Kolyana: The wolves are old and dusty, definitely stuffed a long time ago.

The wolves are old and dusty, definitely stuffed a long time ago.

Marcus Veranius takes a peek in the unlocked cabinet

Sulda Westwind: Sulda reaches out to slightly prod the closest wolf with a dagger, still not entirely convinced

Marcus Veranius: "Check the one in the corner." Marcus mentions casually.

"If this house is playing a game of spooks and giggled, it would be the wolf next to a distraction, such as a cabinet lock."

Sulda Westwind: "I figure it's none of them or all of them, but good point"

Sulda walks over to that wolf and prods it too

Neither wolf responds to the prod of the dagger.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda turns her attention to the cabinet. What kind of lock is it?

It is an ordinary padlock.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda considers the hinges and whether they can be unscrewed / removed in some other simple way

With the appropriate tools, yes, it could probably be dismantled.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has a dagger and a sense of adventure

Marcus Veranius: Marcus has a crowbar

Suldae Westwind: Suldae and Marcus have a crowbar, a dagger and a sense of adventure between the two of them! What can Suldae do with this vs the lock?

Marcus Veranius: (Break the door, thus bypassing the lock. :U)

Suldae Westwind: (thats basically what I'm thinking but minimally destructive XD)

GM (GM): Give me a DEX check with proficiency.

Marcus Veranius: (Also, anything good in the unlocked cabinet?)

Suldae Westwind: (how do i add proficiency?)

(...or I could just roll Dex and add +2 manually)

17

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Suldae Westwind

ouch, wait, no

18

DEXTERITY (2+1)
Suldae Westwind

I keep accidentally rolling the save, sorry :x

The unlocked cabinet contains a small silver box and an assortment of wine glasses.

The locked cabinet, after ten minutes of fiddling gets the doors off, contains more interesting things: A heavy crossbow, a light crossbow, a hand crossbow, and twenty bolts for each weapon.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes the hand crossbow with the ammunition for it and calls Marcus and Ireena over to behold the loot Ireena whistles softly.

Marcus Veranius takes the silvered box and moves over

Marcus Veranius: "You're right about loot.." Marcus comments, as he eyes the extra bolts
You can never have enough ammunition

Ireena Kolyana: "Which one do you want, Marcus?"

"I think I could do just fine with either one."

Marcus Veranius: "Quite frankly I much prefer my own hand crossbow. Take your pick and I'll grab the remaining bolts of the third."

Ireena Kolyana Ireena takes the heavy crossbow.

Marcus Veranius grabs the bolts, then presents the silver box to Suldae

Marcus Veranius: "A trade then? Bolts for this."

Suldae Westwind: "...I want light crossbow bolts, actually, so we can trade... half the bolts for half the bolts?" she suggests

Marcus Veranius: (I don't think there's a difference?)

(Are bolts unique to their weapons?)

Suldae Westwind: (Isn't there? I understand they'd be different size for different crossbow sizes)

Marcus Veranius: (PHP just mentions "Bolts" and "Arrows")

Suldae Westwind: (also I just want it officially known that I have not been tracking ammunition...)

GM (GM): (The description says "20 bolts for each weapon" but I assume that just means 60 bolts total, for ease of tracking)

(I'll add an API script to track the ammo for next time, but for now please track it manually)

Suldae Westwind: (In that case I just straight up want the bolts for my own crossbow since that's what I mostly use in combat)

"I have need for bolts myself," Suldae points out.

(I'm going to assume I had 10 bolts left and now got 20 more then)

Marcus Veranius passes Ireena and Suldae the bolts from their sets.

Marcus Veranius: "Back to the top floor then? Got to be an altar somewhere."

Suldae Westwind: "Wait, wait, wait. That box"

"Have you actually opened it?"

Ireena Kolyana Ireena straps on the little bolt case. She seems more comfortable with the quiver of ammunition at her side and the heavy crossbow in both hands.

Marcus Veranius: "Nope."

"It'll be really awkward if I passed you a box with a ring inside by mistake."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae snorts and takes the ocarina to her lips to check the box just in case

14

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

The box is non-magical.

Suldae Westwind: "Well, if it's not going to explode in our faces, feel free to keep it, though I do suggest you open it and look. Maybe there's another letter or something in there"

Marcus Veranius opens the box

Inside is a set of playing cards.

They seem very old, but are in surprisingly good condition.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Back upstairs?"

Marcus Veranius nods

Sulda Westwind: "Might as well," Suldae says skeptically. It did not escape her attention that the other suits of armor are nowhere to be found

Ireena Kolyana Walks boldly up the stairs, pacing quietly, with her crossbow at the ready.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae checks the servants' room

Empty.

Sulda Westwind: "Nothing here," she informs her compaions

"Well, nothing that wasn't here before" (I assume lmao)

Marcus Veranius peeks into the other two chambers

Both are empty, but huge footprints mark the dust, heading into and out of the northern chamber.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae checks the hidden room

A suit of armor stands in the doorway of the secret room, facing the treasure chest.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae backs away

"Found one"

(brb)

Marcus Veranius: "That makes two."

Marcus Veranius stares at a section of the wall

Marcus Veranius: "Strange. There's a space here, in line with one on the bottom floor."

"We've already confirmed the builders of this house like hidden rooms. Maybe there's an entrance on the upper floors?"

Sulda Westwind: "Hmmm"

Ireena Kolyana: "That would make sense... I wonder where it goes?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae walks back into the hall and checks the space where the suit of armor had been

Marcus Veranius: "Basement? There wasn't a way to the foundations on ground floor."

Ireena Kolyana: "Do we just keep going up?"

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe."

Marcus Veranius heads upstairs

Sulda Westwind: Suldae still thinks that confronting the suit of armor in the hall is the way to go, but decides not to argue. The crossbows were a good find, already.

At the top of the stairs, you see a suit of armor standing in the ruined pieces of the previous suit of armor.

This one has no weapon.

Sulda Westwind: "Three," Sulda whispers behind the others' backs.

Ireena Kolyana: "Move quietly..."

"Perhaps it hasn't realized we're intruders yet."

(make a perception roll)

Sulda Westwind:

15

PERCEPTION (2)
Sulda Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

19

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Both Sulda and Marcus see a strange indentation in the wallpaper on the southern side of the balcony, as though part of the wall has sagged inward beneath it.

Sulda Westwind: (there?)

Marcus Veranius takes out a dagger and attempts to cut away the wallpaper

Marcus Veranius: (Wait, no he doesn't)

Sulda Westwind: "So what, you propose to have this at our backs?" Sulda murmurs to Ireena skeptically

Marcus Veranius: (I don't have one. o-o)

Sulda Westwind: (Sulda passes him one, but more interestingly, do you go by the suit of armor to get there?)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee)

Sulda Westwind: Sulda stands on the stairs, watching skeptically

The armor creaks.

Marcus Veranius: "Alright, what's behind this then?"

It does not move.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Sulda Westwind: (what's under the wallpaper?)

Marcus Veranius: "You stay put! I'm busy!"

The paper slices easily, revealing a secret door.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae sighs softly. She wishes he wouldn't make loud noises

It swings inward on silent hinges to reveal a cobweb-filled wooden staircase leading up to the attic.

Sulda Westwind: "Oh. It was a productive terrible idea. I like those"

Marcus Veranius: "Well, we have three doors now."

"Do we clear this floor then go up?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Can we check if there's an entrance to that space you noticed, on this level?"

Marcus Veranius: "We ought to, yeah."

Liliet (Sulda): Suldae wordlessly moves north and checks the door leading south

Ireena Kolyana: "I don't really want to sneak past this thing more than once, though," Ireena whispers.

GM: (Perception Roll)

Marcus Veranius:

11

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Liliet (Sulda): Suldae nods, acknowledging her logic, but she's already doing the stupid thing

11

PERCEPTION (2)
Sulda Westwind

(nice sync lmao)

It seems like a solid wall.

Ireena Kolyana: "What did you find out?" Ireena Whispers.

Liliet (Sulda): "Nothing here," Suldae murmurs and checks the north door while she's there

The dusty, cobwe-filled master bedroom has burgundy drapes covering the windows. Furnishings include a four-poster bed with embroidered curtains and tattered gossamer veils, a matching pair of wardrobes, a vanity with a wood-framed mirror and a jewelry box, and a padded chair. A rotting tiger-skin rug lies on the floor in front of the fireplace, which has a dust-covered portrait of a man and a woman hanging above it. A web-filled parlor in the southeast corner contains a table and two chairs. Resting on the dusty tablecloth is an empty porcelain bowl and a matching mug. The door facing the foot of the bed has a full-length mirror mounted on it. There is a door in the parlor.

Liliet (Sulda): Suldae looks at the portrait. Does it look similar to the family one below?

The portrait contains the two adults from the family portrait below.

Liliet (Sulda): "So this is the master bedroom," Suldae confirms the obvious conclusion

GM: Roll an Insight check, Marcus

Marcus Veranius:

19

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Ireena Kolyana: Marcus recalls taking a large parchment envelope from the chest in the secret room. He also recalls the three scrolls, and the three blank books.

Liliet (Suldaae): Meanwhile, Suldaae checks the vanity and the box on it

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm..."

Marcus Veranius checks the scrolls he found; maybe the armor suit was looking for them. Could be important; like floor plans.

The jewelry box on the vanity is made of silver with gold filigree (worth about 75 gp). It contains three gold rings (worth 25 gp each) and a thin platinum necklace with a topaz pendant (worth 750 gp).

The envelope crackles as Marcus opens it. The envelope contains the deed to the house, the deed to a windmill, and a signed will.

Liliet (Suldaae): Suldaae stares at it, mind occupied by the amount of wealth in front of her, while Marcus is checking the scrolls

Marcus Veranius: A windmill. Of course."

Liliet (Suldaae): "Hm?" Suldaae shakes herself out of the stupor and turns around to him. Her hand hovers over the box

16

WISDOM SAVE (1)
Suldaae Westwind

She does not yet take it.

Marcus Veranius: "Chest had the deed to a windmill in it."

Suldaae detects no aura of magic from the box.

Marcus Veranius: "And a last will. Maybe the house will let us go if we distribute the estate where its old masters willed it."

Liliet (Suldaae): "Ah," Suldaae says. She lifts the box. "Check this out"

"Well, where is it?" Suldaae asks, still holding the box in the air

Marcus Veranius draws out the last will and begins reading it, trying to see if the impressive jewelry box Suldaae mentioned is on there somewhere.

Liliet (Suldaae): (that was the wisdom save to see if Suldaae resists the temptation to just put the box in her bag and sort it out later btw)

(she just did, I'm proud of her)

Skimming the will reveals that a Gustav and an Elisabeth Durst are bequeathing the house, the windmill in the mountains east of Vallaki, and all other family property to Rosavalda and Thornboldt

Durst, in the event of their parents' deaths.

 Marcus Veranius: "Well, bad news and good news."

It was signed fifty years ago.

 Marcus Veranius: "Bad news is the children are the house's heirs."
"Good news is they may be ghosts."

 Liliet (Suldae): "Is that bad news?" Suldae asks skeptically. She's rather a fan of the idea that giving the papers to the kids will solve the problem.

 Marcus Veranius: "Well, relatively speaking. Might be squatters rights in play if the kiddos aren't really there."
"Otherwise I'm happy giving them every haunted inch of this estate."

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae sighs. She is not sure what he's talking about, but agrees with the conclusion anyway.
"Hey, house," she says out loud experimentally, putting the box back on the vanity. "We'll just go outside and give them this, okay?"

The house creaks and groans, as though the very floorboards are protesting. A ghostly scream seems to rattle through the pipes. The storm has arrived, and high winds now whip the house. Outside the thunder falls like a bombardment, cracking the sky.

Rain begins to fall.

 Marcus Veranius: "I'll take that as a no."

 Liliet (Suldae): "Alright. Before we do anything else, do look at this, or I swear I'll just put it in my bag and you'll never hear of it again," Suldae points at the box

 Marcus Veranius looks at the box

 Marcus Veranius: This looks incredibly expensive.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Hello? Are you two alive in there?" Ireena hisses.

 Liliet (Suldae): "We are," Suldae calls out to her. "Come here and look at this"

 Ireena Kolyana creeps across the hall and into the room, crossbow ready.

 Ireena Kolyana: "What am I looking at?"
"The painting?"
"What are those papers?"

 Marcus Veranius: "Contents of the chest. I thought to look at them to see if there was a floor plan inside.

 Liliet (Suldae): "The documents to the estate. Look here first," Suldae lifts the box to show it to her

 Ireena Kolyana: "Holy cow."
"These people were wealthy."
"I'm amazed this place has never been looted before..."

Marcus Veranius: "And yet bankrupt?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena cocks an eyebrow. "That doesn't make sense."

Marcus Veranius: "There's a lot of things that don't add up."

Liliet (Suldae): (brb)

Marcus Veranius: "One thing's certain; our skeletal friend with the dart in his chest is proof we're not the first one's to enter this house."

Ireena Kolyana: "That's true."

Marcus Veranius looks through the scrolls, trying to find a hint towards where this hidden altar may be

The scrolls, it turns out, are spell-scrolls, marked with intricate arcane sigils.

They pulse briefly with light when Marcus unrolls them.

Liliet (Suldae): (back)

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm... yes. Magic stuff."

"I have no idea what any of these do."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. "Alright, so let's each take a ring, and I'll keep the necklace. Will give it to the little girl if she turns out to want it"

Apparently no-one else is interested in money as much as she is. She'd feel bad about it, but a little too busy feeling overwhelmed with the money.

(brb)

Marcus Veranius passes the scrolls to Suldae

Marcus Veranius: "I'm going to check the closet. See if any of these scrolls can calm down a haunted house."

The closet is empty and choked with dust.

The door in the Parlor opens to an outdoor balcony.

You hear a flapping of wings.

A bat lands on the railing of the balcony.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes the scrolls and puts them in her bag along with the box with the necklace, and one of the rings

It is a huge, vicious-looking thing, far larger than any bat has any right to be.

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, your perch then."

Suldae Westwind: "Ireena, you might not want to come here," Suldae murmurs, eyeing the bat and remembering what she'd heard about vampires

Marcus Veranius tries to close the door on his problems; a tried and true tactic

Suldae Westwind: Actually, what HAS she heard of vampires?

12

RELIGION (4)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae knows that vampires hunger for the life they have lost and sate that hunger by drinking the blood of the living. She knows that vampires abhor sunlight, for its touch burns them. They never cast shadows or reflections. They can regenerate from injuries, and walk on walls and ceilings. They have flaws: they cannot enter a residence without an invitation from one of the occupants. They are harmed by running water. They can be paralyzed if they are incapacitated in their resting place with a wooden stake through the heart. They are weak to sunlight. They can also transform.

The door closes slowly and quietly. The bat never stops giving eye contact to Marcus.

It was still staring at him when the door blocked it off from view.

Suldae Westwind: (Does Suldae know anything about an association with bats specifically, or is that just from fairy tales she doesn't credit?)

She has heart of bats as a symbol of vampires.

heard dammit*

Marcus Veranius: "Right, so there's an angry bat outside this door."

"If we can take it out, I've got us a rope we could use to jump the balcony with."

Ireena Kolyana: "Keep it closed."

"Don't talk to it."

Suldae Westwind: "Good plan," Suldae agrees, inching back.

Marcus Veranius: "Fair enough."

Marcus Veranius heads back to the main room

Ireena Kolyana: "Secret staircase?"

"Or haunted bedroom?"

Suldae Westwind: wait, did we ever check that other door?

ah right closet

sorry

Marcus Veranius: "I'd say attic. Check if that wall space extends to the top."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm all out of juice for big magic," Suldae admits nervously, "so I have nothing to say to the ghost..."

"So, agreed. Attic."

Ireena Kolyana: "Attic it is, then..."

The stairs creak as you climb to the closed door.

It's stuck.

Ireena Kolyana: "What's wrong?"

Marcus Veranius: "Seems a bit jammed."

"Don't worry; I got an idea."

Suldae Westwind: "You still got that crowbar?" Suldae maintains the ability to sound cheerful under any circumstance

Marcus Veranius: "...that's better than my idea."

Marcus Veranius attempts to pry the door open, rather than kicking it down

Marcus Veranius:

2

16

STRENGTH (0)
Marcus Veranius

The door squeaks open.

Suldae Westwind: "Glad to help!"

The bare attic hall is choked with dust and cobwebs.

There is a door on the northern wall, a door at the end of the long attic room, and a side hallway, narrow and dark. It has two doors at the end, one on each wall.

Marcus Veranius: (Is there something north of Marcus? there's no wall there, but it's not revealed.)

Lightning pops and flares outside the window, revealing the silhouette figure of a huge winged creature sitting right outside the window.

Marcus Veranius: "Well, three doors now."

Marcus Veranius points between them in a game of eenie, meenie, miney...

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d3

(1)

= 1

"Let's check this one."

The northern door is locked.

It is held shut with a padlock.

Suldae Westwind: "...Crowbar?"

Marcus Veranius: "We need to invest in lockpicks."

Sulda Westwind: "But the crowbar works so well!"

Marcus Veranius attempts to pry off the padlock

Marcus Veranius:

20

STRENGTH (0)
Marcus Veranius

The crowbar bends.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

The lock does not give.

Ireena Kolyana: "It must be enchanted to need a specific key."

Sulda Westwind: "Oh wow."

Ireena Kolyana: "Can you unbend the crowbar?"

Sulda Westwind: (wait, didn't I find a key earlier?)

Marcus Veranius: "I hope so. This thing was expensive."

Marcus Veranius attempts to bend it back

The crowbar is pretty stiff, but Marcus is able to bend it back into its proper shape.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae tries the south door

This dusty chamber is packed with old furniture, all draped in dusty white sheets.

Ireena Kolyana: (We can save your nat 20, Marcus)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae checks the room thoroughly, under the covers and under the furniture

Marcus Veranius: (o3o)

Ireena Kolyana: (I don't know what that means lol)

Sulda Westwind: (cat face?)

Suldae finds chairs, coat racks, standing mirrors, dress mannequins, an iron stove, and near the stove, a wooden trunk.

Marcus Veranius follows Suldae into the room

Sulda Westwind: Suldae coquettishly fixes her top hat in the mirror and checks in the trunk

The trunk contains a bundle wrapped in a tattered bedsheet stained with dry blood.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae pauses. She remembers about the stillborn baby.
She takes out the bundle, places it on the most respectful-seeming flat surface, and carefully unbuncles it

*unbundles

The bundle contains the emaciated, semi-skeletal remains of a young adult woman in a nursemaid's outfit.

Her clothing is stained with blood.

You hear a faint clicking sound from the northern corner of the room.

Marcus Veranius turns his crossbow towards the sound

Suldae Westwind: "Oh."

Suldae turns too, while also carefully wrapping the woman back in the bedsheet

Marcus sees a secret door. It is partially open. It leads onto a staircase.

Marcus Veranius: "Well then, looks like I was right about the floor plan."

Suldae Westwind: "There was another door we haven't checked"

Marcus Veranius: "Several. Do we want to investigate, or see where the stairs go?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm alright either way. I want to get away from that bat, though."

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm..."

Marcus Veranius attempts to take one of the sheets from the furniture room to cover the window with

The sheet covers the window.

Marcus Veranius: "There we go! Problem solved!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae opens the south door

This dust-choked room contains a slender bed, a nightstand, a small iron stove, a writing desk with a stool, a wardrobe, and a rocking chair. A smiling doll in a lacy yellow dress sits in the northern window box, cobwebs draping it like a wedding veil.

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Marcus Veranius: "Nurse's room maybe?"

Ireena Kolyana: "It doesn't look lived in."

"Looks almost like a showroom."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae examines the doll

The doll appears to be ordinary, if horrifying.

Another blast of lightning reveals the swarm of bats which has landed on the roof outside the window of this story.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays a simple melody, double-checking

14

ARCANA (4)
Suldae Westwind

The doll gives off no magical auras.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae thoroughly searches the room, abandoning all potential reverence towards other people's belongings (though still not trashing the place and being careful to put everything back and not break anything)

Marcus Veranius leaves to check the other unlocked door

The writing desk and the wardrobe are both completely empty.

It makes one think of a hotel room, waiting to be inhabited.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands at the door, considering the room. Then, seized by an idea, she goes back to the storage room, carefully takes the corpse and carries it into the bedroom

The web-filled room contains a slender bed, a nightstand, a rocking chair, a wardrobe, and a small iron stove.

Suldae Westwind: Then lays it out on the bed and crosses the hands on the chest

*on its chest

Then covers it in the bedsheet so its outline is clearly visible through it, making it clear what's going on.

Then goes to join Marcus

Marcus Veranius counts out on his fingers

Marcus Veranius: "Two parents, two children. One child, one nurse..."

"Maybe the show bedroom was meant for a child that never came."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks the small room.

The wardrobe is empty, as is the nightstand.

Ireena Kolyana: "This one also... It makes me think of a hotel..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head to Marcus. "Nothing here, either"

Marcus Veranius: "...Or they could be guest rooms. Yes."

Suldae Westwind: Nods to Ireena

Ireena Kolyana: "Or a bed and breakfast?"

Marcus Veranius: "Well that doesn't make as good a bardic tale."

Ireena Kolyana: "Fair."

Marcus Veranius looks back at the locked door

Marcus Veranius: "Well what's that then, if this is a hotel?"

GM: Make a WIS save, Suldae

Suldae Westwind:

12

WISDOM SAVE (1)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae recalls a key."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae digs in her bag. "I know, I know there was a key..." she murmurs.

She finds the small iron key she'd found earlier.

"Let's see if this is the match for that door"

Marcus Veranius nods. "After you then."

This room contains a bricked-up window flanked by two dusty, wood-framed beds sized for children. Closer to the door is a toy chest with windmills painted on its sides and a dollhouse that's a perfect replica of the dreary edifice in which you stand. These furnishings are draped in cobwebs. Lying in the middle of the floor are two small skeletons wearing tattered but familiar clothing. The smaller of the two cradles a stuffed doll that you also recognize.

Suldae Westwind: "Aaand four," Suldae murmurs, nodding to Marcus to see above her head

A suit of armor stands between the two beds, facing the doorway.

Suldae Westwind: "Also, I think, ghosts confirmed," she adds, looking at the small skeletons.

It seems to have trodden on the skeletons.

Suldae Westwind: She sighs sadly.

"So, what do we do?" she asks quietly.

"We still haven't checked the secret staircase"

Marcus Veranius: "Check the basement. See if there's something generating all this spooky buisness."

"..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and softly leaves towards the basement.

Marcus Veranius: "Spooky buisness we now have proof of, given that armor can now walk through locked doors."

Suldae Westwind: She has steel nerves, really, and as a bard she'd been fully prepared to deal with all kinds of awful things

This is starting to get to her, though.

The wooden spiral staircase from the attic descends through all the floors of the house. You can practically hear the wood rotting around you as you creep down the steps into the earth, into the basement.

You reach the bottom. A narrow tunnel stretches southward before branching east and west.

From the moment you arrive, you can hear an eary, incessant chant echoing throughout. It's impossible to gauge where the sound is coming from, or to discern the words.

Suldae Westwind: "...Let's turn left first," Suldae suggests and goes up the north tunnel

"Oh, that's a room there"

(brb)

Marcus Veranius: "That's standard cavern tactics, right? Keep left and circle around?"

(We're back to default fog of war)

Suldae Westwind: (back)

"Either left or right, I think, and I like left"

The staircase heading west at the end of the north-south tunnel leads into a small chamber with a table and four chairs. To the southern side of this room, there are four alcoves containing moldy straw pallets.

While walking past the right-hand tunnel, it was possible to glimpse into two narrow spaces which looked like empty crypts.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae walks around the room, checking out the pallets but not searching them - her nerves are starting to fray too much for that - then goes into the branch to the west

The branch to the west leads down to a staircase. She can see from the landing the edge of a small well.

In the gloom, it looks like a very large room.

Ireena Kolyana: "The darkness here is so thick... It's not natural."

"Do we dare to light a torch?"

Marcus Veranius: "I wouldn't mind the extra light."

Ireena Kolyana: "I've got the breastplate, so I feel comfortable wielding the torch if you both watch my back."

Suldae Westwind: "I just have candles," Suldae informs her companions after checking her bag.

Ireena Kolyana lights a torch from her own pack.

The bright glow illuminates the entrances to five rooms, ringing a 4-foot diameter well shaft with a 3-foot-high lip. A wooden bucket hangs from a rope and pulley mechanism bolted to the crossbeams above the well.

The five side rooms are nicer than the others. Each contains a wood-framed bed with a moldy straw mattress and a wooden chest with a padlock.

Marcus Veranius: "Oh no, not more locks."

"This is starting to make me miss the windmills."

Suldae Westwind: "Locks are utterly natural when one goes where one's not invited," Suldae informs him. Well, technically the children - probably ghosts, which makes her worry a little less about Ismark's safety - did invite them. But not down here

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe one of the chests has lockpicks inside," Ireena laughs.

Sulda Westwind: "I mean I don't either have a crowbar or the strength to use one. So, either you do it or we don't check those."

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe we could pick the locks with something?"

Sulda Westwind: At this point Sulda feels like maybe she wouldn't even mind. She maybe doesn't really want to know all that badly, which is an odd state of mind for an acolyte of Corellon.

Marcus Veranius grumbles, bringing the crowbar to the north chest

Marcus Veranius:

16

12

STRENGTH SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

Sulda Westwind: that's a save lmao

The chest bursts open. The chest contains a pouch made of strange leather.

Marcus Veranius: "Let's tag-team this. I break the locks, you identify what's in the chests."

Ireena Kolyana: "What is it?"

Sulda Westwind: "Sure." Sulda checks the pouch

The pouch jingles as she picks it up. The leather feels very... odd. It's strangely smooth, and pale, and mismatched.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda doesn't feel good about this and might or might not have a guess about the leather, but looks inside the pouch anyway. Duty before feelings - duty of curiosity, in this case.

Marcus Veranius moves on to the next chest as Sulda works. Out of sight; not the wisest thing but work calls

The second chest contains three strange lumps inside a folded piece of black cloth.

The pouch contains eleven large gold coins marked with the visage of a hook-nosed king, and sixty silver coins marked with the seal of Strahd.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda shows the pouch to Ireena. "Looks useful?"

Marcus Veranius drags the second chest for Sulda. "Got some cloth and lumps over here."

Ireena Kolyana: "Looks human."

Marcus Veranius takes a second look at the pouch

Marcus Veranius: "...don't"

Sulda Westwind: "Yep," Sulda sighs. "Coin's coin, though, I think."

Marcus Veranius: "Don't suppose there's any spare noses lying around? Or were they all sewn into wallets?"

Ireena Kolyana shudders.

Suldae Westwind: "You joke it, you keep it," Suldae informs him, shoves the pouch into his hands and proceeds to examine the lumps

The lumps are three moss agates, worth about ten gold apiece.

Marcus Veranius looks into the pouch and carefully dumps the contents into his bag. he tosses the pouch itself into the well

The pouch plummets thirty feet and lands with a soft splash.

Marcus Veranius: "Well then, back to chest-breaking!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae distributes the precious stones among her companions

The next chest contains a black leather eyepatch with a carnelian (worth 50 gp.)

The chest after that contains an ivory hairbrush with silver bristles (worth 25 gp).

The final chest contains a silvered shortsword. (worth 110 gp.)

Marcus Veranius: "Jackpot."

"Now I don't need to worry about not having a dagger."

Ireena Kolyana: "They say silver helps you wound many evil creatures," says Ireena.

"That is a beautiful sword."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae collects the treasure for the moment

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks around.

"Should we rest here, for the moment? We do not seem to be pursued."

"Or should we proceed?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus takes a closer look. Sarcasm aside, this would look wonderful on a mantelpiece. Bit of a shame it was stuck down here.

"It'd be easy enough to keep watch."

Suldae Westwind: "Good idea," Suldae agrees. Treasure has made her feel a little better. "I kind of feel safer here than upstairs, however silly that is"

Ireena Kolyana: "I don't really know why, but I agree."

Suldae Westwind: "There was a table with chairs over there"

Marcus Veranius: "Fewer windmills."

Suldae Westwind: (Do we take a short rest?)

Marcus Veranius: (I'd like to. Recharges my self-heal and extra action)

(And lets me heal off some of the damage I still have)

Suldae Westwind: doesn't recharge my anything alas but yea healing

Suldae regrets not having her guitar, but makes do with an elaborate soft melody on the ocarina and tapping her foot

SONG OF REST

Class: Bard

Beginning at 2nd level, you can use soothing music or oration to help revitalize your wounded allies during a short rest. If you or any friendly creatures who can hear your performance regain hit points at the end of the short rest by spending one or more Hit Dice, each of those creatures regains an extra 1d6 hit points.

Marcus Veranius:

9

HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 1d6

(5)

= 5

Suldae Westwind:

7

HIT DICE (D8+1)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius spends his rest flipping through his new deck of cards. Hard to find a set that

Marcus Veranius: s both beautiful and easy to shuffle

GM: (I am more than willing to continue if you are)

Marcus Veranius: (I'm game.)

(You writing down the loot, Lillet? Or should I make mention of what Marcus takes?)

Suldae Westwind: i'm writing down what I say Suldae takes you write down what Marcus takes

it's half past 9 for me

i'm willing to continue but not for very long maybe you took the sword, right?

Marcus Veranius: Yee

Suldae Westwind: i should have written down that key too but i didnt bc im a dumbass

Marcus Veranius: At the end of the rest, Marcus does a short stretch as warm up for the inevitable horrors they were about to face

"Well then. Shall we continue where we left off, or take the other route?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae hops off the table. She feels better now.

"I'm game for either"

Marcus Veranius: Let's take the other path then. Think I might have seen a mask on the floor."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae follows Marcus

Marcus Veranius takes a slight detour to investigate the side tunnel

Marcus Veranius: (Were these the crypts?)

The two crypts are open, stone slabs waiting to seal them. The slab on the northern crypt is utterly blank. The slab on the southern crypt is the name "Walter Durst." The crypt is empty.

Marcus Veranius: "Walter Durst... is that name familiar to anyone?"

Liliet (Sulda): "Check the will"

Sulda Westwind: "Check the will"

Marcus Veranius checks the will

The will is signed by Gustva and Elisabeth Durst and bequeathes the house, the windmill, and all other family property to Rosavalda and Thornboldt Durst.

Marcus Veranius: "No Walter..."

Marcus Veranius moves on to the next chamber

Sulda Westwind: "Durst, though," Suldae echoes the obvious

Marcus Veranius: "An ancestor maybe?"

Sulda Westwind: "Probably, yeah"

The two crypts on both sides are sealed.

Marcus Veranius: "I don't have a penchant for grave-robbing. Let's not disturb anyone's eternal rest."

Sulda Westwind: "How about we don't," Suldae suggests, shivering. She knows they're dealing with necromantic bullshit, she remembers the duty or curiosity

But there's lines.

*duty of curiosity

desc The stone slab on the northeast crypt is etched with the name Gustav Durst. The stone slab on the southeast crypt is etched with the name Elisabeth Durst. The crypts on the left hand sides are marked with Rosavalda Durst and Thornboldt Durst.

Sulda Westwind: (that was ninja'd)

"Oh..."

Marcus Veranius: "Mhm, yep. So the will is bollocks."

"Depending on the local laws, abandoned property with no rightful heir either goes to the local lord, or to finders."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh my god."

"Why do you care."

"The will matters because it mattered to the people it belonged to"

Marcus Veranius: "Because I don't care for thievery."

Suldae Westwind: "The local lord is Strahd. What laws?"

The southern hall contains a plain wooden table flanked by long benches. In the light of the torch, you see scattered wreckage in the dust.

Suldae Westwind: "Oh, you mean the stuff we've been taking? Yeah, no, that's rightful payback for the fucking broom"

Marcus Veranius: "Fair."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae examines the wreckage

They are moldy humanoid remains.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: (What kind of remains? Is there anything like clothes and stuff?)

Marcus Veranius: "Should we put an arrow into it, just to make sure it's not the restless kind of dead?"

In the middle of the eastern wall there is a darkened alcove with a strangely out-of-place looking stalagmite.

The bodyparts are too scattered to be dangerous.

It looks like whoever these poor souls were, they were butchered and feasted upon.

There are clean cuts in the bones.

Suldae Westwind: "Well this is horrifying," Suldae says as casually as she manages. Which isn't very.

She takes out the ocarina, plants her butt on the table - sitting in inappropriate places always makes her feel better - and launches into a mournful melody

The flute cries for everyone who died here, both masters and servants, and their victims, and the unfortunate earlier looters.

This takes her a while.

Marcus Veranius mucks with the stalagmite while Suldae performs

GM: What's your passive perception, Marcus?

Marcus Veranius: 14

(I dont like where this handout is going)

The stalagmite transforms, whiplike tentacles slowly unfurling, claws slinking away from a hideous stone beak, opening slowly, mucus-slick, the grick slowly rears to its full height.

Ireena Kolyana: "GET BACK!"

Marcus Veranius: "Throw one more dead onto the performance list!"

Suldae Westwind: wait, where is everyone?

Suldae's on the table

Marcus Veranius: Marcus is on the right side of that table, and back-walking quickly

Suldae Westwind: Ireena?

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE Grick <hr/> Initiative: 14
--

Marcus Veranius:

10.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Ireena Kolyana takes up a position in the corner farthest from the Grick and from any exits.

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE Ireena Kolyana <hr/> Initiative: 12

Suldae Westwind: Suldae regrefully puts away the ocarina, since she's mostly out of magic, and pulls out the light crossbow

14.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

oops

didnt send to the tracker

GM: I gotchu fam

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE <hr/> Initiative: 12.14

Suldae Westwind: it was 14.14 for me

Suldae goes first

Suldae Westwind:

11

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind9
Piercing

Suldae is currently standing on the table and shooting over Marcus's head was that a miss?

Ireena Kolyana: ./as GM You should be able to see the AC and HP now

GM: That was a miss
(EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Marcus Veranius: (We can't see the monster's AC or HP)

Suldae Westwind: how could I see them?

wait a sec

not EoT

or nm

ill do it next turn

Marcus Veranius: (I can only see them for Marcus)

Suldae Westwind: ya same

EoT re-confirmed

GM: What about now?

Suldae Westwind: I can see the HP now!

not AC

Marcus Veranius: (MASKED BY THE FOG OF WAR!)

Suldae Westwind: and btw not Marcus's and Ireena's HP either

Marcus Veranius: (I see a HP bar but no numbers)
(Maybe just stick the AC in its name and call it a day)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah same)

GM: it has 14 AC

Marcus Veranius: (Rad)

Suldae Westwind: ty

The Grick slithers furiously towards Marcus! It slings its slimy tentacles! 15

A tentacle catches in Marcus's side, and the Grick goes in for the bite, its mucus-slicked beak slathering and chopping! 22

Suldae Westwind: um

Marcus Veranius: >23 hitpoints

Tentacle: 4 slashing, Beak 3 piercing. (First rolls were attack rolls)

Suldae Westwind: ah thank you 0.0

Marcus Veranius: (Oh OK, gave me a heart attack XD)

GM: lol

Marcus Veranius: (...7 is minimum damage for this monster. Don't get hit guys opo)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae's on the table)

Ireena Kolyana:

9

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

2

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (safely&strategically behind Marcus)

this thing is just flinging crossbow bolts away with its tentacles isnt it

Ireena Kolyana fires the two-handed crossbow, but misses the Grick, which is still struggling with Marcus!

GM: EoT

Marcus Veranius: Marcus is NOT going to be tentacle-food! He hurls a net at the monster to buy some space.

26

11

5 (15)

Net (+8)

Marcus Veranius

A Large or smaller creature hit by a net is Restrained until it is freed. A net has no effect on creatures that are formless, or creatures that are Huge or larger. A creature can use its action to make a DC 10 Strength check, freeing itself or another creature within its reach on a success. Dealing 5 slashing damage to the net (AC 10) also frees the creature without harming it, ending the effect and destroying the net. When you use an action, Bonus Action, or Reaction to Attack with a net, you can make only one Attack regardless of the number of attacks you can normally make.

>A restrained creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>Attack rolls against the creature have advantage, and the creature's Attack rolls have disadvantage.

>The creature has disadvantage on Dexterity Saving Throws.

(That shouldnt have had advantage but the first die hits)

Suldae Westwind: oh damn nice

Marcus Veranius: As a bonus action, Marcus uses his crossbow to shoot an arrow at the beast.

22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

6

The net tangles the Grick, restraining it. Marcus's crossbow twangs and the Grick takes the bolt in its slug-like body.

Marcus Veranius: With his opponent sufficiently distracted, Marcus grins wide. There's only one way to take down a monster this vicious."

"RUN FOR THE HALLS! SHOOT IT FROM AFAR!"

(AoO provoked)

EoT

Ireena Kolyana:

TENTACLES
Grick

Attack: 20 | 8

Damage: 7 slashing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae screams in frustration, suddenly left without her meatshield right next to the monster. She likes her position on the table too much to change it though

The Grick takes a swipe at the fleeing Marcus, but misses due to the net's entangling weave.

Suldae Westwind: The scream is very artistic and should inspire Ireena

BARDIC INSPIRATION
Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost. A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time. You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

Then she shoots.

24 | 8

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

4 + 6
Piercing

oh BOOM

WHAP! Her bolt strikes the creature right between two tentacles, hitting something which seems to cause a great deal of pain.

GM: EoT?

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Ireena Kolyana:

STRENGTH
Grick

Ability: 21 | 5

The Grick bursts the net!

The Grick slithers rapidly towards Suldae!

Marcus Veranius: (Isn't it DC 10?)

Suldae Westwind: (there shouldnt be a disadvantage there)

Not: supposed to be disadvantage, my bad

Marcus Veranius: (Oh NVM)

GM Sorry

GM: Sorry Sorry

One of these days I'll get through a session without flubbing things

EoT

Marcus Veranius: (One of these days I'll get through without a typo)

Ireena follows Marcus.

On her way out, she tries to grab Suldae by the arm.

Ireena Kolyana:

3

STRENGTH SAVE (0)

She jerks to a stop when she grabs Suldae's arm. "Come on!"

She attempts to shoot the advancing Grick point blank.

Ireena Kolyana:

15

16

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

7

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: dont forget the inspiration die~

Even point blank her hand does not shake, and her bolt punches into the Grick!

The Grick screams!

GM: EoT

Ireena Kolyana: 1

Suldae Westwind: aw

what was that to, anyway?

Marcus Veranius turns around in horror. They were supposed to run! Oh bollocks!

Marcus Veranius: "In case the net wasn't implied enough, STAY STILL!"

Marcus charges into the room with a swarm of bolts announcing his return
(Action, Bonus Action, and Action Surge)

19

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

7

24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

6

27

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

5

Suldae Westwind: oh NICE

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

(Also this is piercing damage. I fixed the sheet)

The three shots rip into the Grick as Marcus comes charging back in. Two of the shots punch right through its fleshy body, spattering goo out the other side. The Grick squeals as it falls, skidding and rolling to a halt at Suldae's feet, reduced to a bloody mess.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still on the table

The Grick stops its roll beneath the table.

Suldae Westwind: unless she fell prone to Ireena jerking her XD

3D space :3

You each gain 150 XP.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and looks around guiltily.

Marcus Veranius: (Thats a level up isnt it? :O)

Suldae Westwind: "I'm... sorry. I got scared"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus pats Suldae on the back.

Suldae Westwind: (It does appear so!)

Marcus Veranius: "Better it tear a net apart than your face."

Suldae Westwind: She gets down from the table and hugs Ireena.

"I'm sorry"

Ireena Kolyana: "It's ok," Says Ireena.

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you"

Marcus Veranius: "I aint hurt. You don't need to apologise."

Ireena Kolyana: "We handled that creature well, I think."

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe play a tune for my net. I've only got one more till I need to negotiate with the price-gouger."

Ireena Kolyana: "I feel better about our chances, knowing you can shoot like that."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae obediently takes out the ocarina.

The melody is not as heartfelt as the previous one but she gives it her best

Marcus Veranius sits down to take a breather, finding his second wind

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

10

Healing

Second Wind

Marcus Veranius

(To Suldae Westwind): You can describe how your magic mends the net.

Suldae Westwind: Imao leveling up

"The loyalty of these bards lies in the pursuit of beauty and truth, not in fealty to a monarch or following the tenets of a deity."

but what if those ARE the deity's tenets? XD

(From Suldae Westwind): huh?

(From Suldae Westwind): OH

(From Suldae Westwind): I'll finish leveling up first Imao

Suldae Westwind: (also sorry I'm slow on the uptake when its 10:30 pm)

Marcus Veranius: "We really do need to find the source of this madness though." Marcus comments, as he picks through the Gish for unbroken bolts. "I don't know how much longer I can keep this up."

Ireena Kolyana: "Agreed."

"Maybe we should take a longer rest. By now I'm sure my brother has found some kind of shelter, due to the storm. Even if we got out now, we'd never find him in the dark. Either he's safe, or he isn't, but it seems like the vampires can't get in here -- at least not yet."

"We need to start thinking about how we're going to survive this."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae doesn't answer, slowly weaving her magic melody to knot the net back together piece by piece

Marcus Veranius: "Well, we could start by breaking that accursed altar."
"See if revenge sates their souls."

GM: give me perception checks, please

Marcus Veranius:

18

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (i cant im leveling up. sorry, gimme two minutes)

Marcus hears a faint growling sound from around the corner to the south.

GM: No worries

Marcus Veranius raises a hand, attempting to alert the others. He moves southwards towards the source of the noise

Suldae Westwind:

10

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

Peering cautiously around the corner, he sees several hulking, humanoid figures, standing hunched in the shadows at the end of the long hall.

Suldae sees only Marcus's raised hand, and does not notice the sound of the growling over the sound of her quiet song.

Suldae Westwind: (How do spell slots work upon leveling up? My total amount on the new level - 3?)

Marcus Veranius: "Here's maybe not the best place to take a rest."

Suldae Westwind: "We should go back to the place with the beds," Suldae suggests, finishing her song.

Marcus Veranius: "Block the doors with tables. If we hear carpentry flying, we fly with it."

(To Suldae Westwind): What level are you now?

(To Suldae Westwind): Level 3, right?

(From Suldae Westwind): yea

(From Suldae Westwind): College of Lore

(To Suldae Westwind): If so, you should have 2 known cantrips, 6 known spells, 4 1st level spell slots, and 2 second-level spell slots.

(From Suldae Westwind): yeah, my question is, Suldae had previously expended the 3 spell slots she previously had Marcus Veranius: "I see several figures down south that might not care for us sleeping."

(From Suldae Westwind): does she now have 1 first level and 2 second level?

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks where he's looking.

(To Suldae Westwind): 4 first-level spell slots, 2 second-level spell slots.

Suldae Westwind: "You do have a point. Though I have to admit, I'm exhausted enough I barely care. That chamber only has two entry points, one person can cover them while the other two sleep, I would say"

(From Suldae Westwind): no I mean like available right now

(To Suldae Westwind): Oh. Yes, I believe so

(From Suldae Westwind): I like this level-up, my magic more than doubled lmao

Marcus Veranius: "Sounds good."

(Break here?)

GM: Works for me

We can pick up here next time after the long rest

Anything you want to do with your downtime?

Suldae Westwind: I'll figure it out by next session, right now I've got a bad headache (have had it for a while actually oops) :x

Marcus Veranius: (RIP)

GM: Aw, that sucks! I hope you get some sleep :)

Marcus Veranius: (Thanks for running!)

GM: Thank you both for playing, I had a lot of fun! It's getting kind of challenging, but I think you'll both pull through

Suldae Westwind: Yeah, this was great

Liliet (Suldae): I love this very much

Tops K.: Mark me as both enjoying this and incredibly intimidated

Liliet (Suldae): I just got my spell slots _doubled_

Tops K.: rolling 1d10 Hitpoints

(3)

= 3

(taken average)

rolling 1d2

(2)

= 2

You wake in the small, cramped room. The hours of your watch pass without much activity.

Ireena sits up abruptly with a scream, clutching at her throat.

Sulda Westwind: "Good morning everybody! Rise and shine!"

Ireena looks around, taking in her surroundings.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda, whose watch was last sits on the table grinning

Marcus Veranius rises up, crossbow in hand. He looks towards Ireena

Sulda Westwind: she's worried about Ireena, but hopes being annoying will distract her from her own nightmares

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh. Good morning," says Ireena.
She mashes her palms into her eyes.

Marcus Veranius: "..."
"Well IM awake now."

Ireena Kolyana: "Sorry if I alarmed anyone..."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods, serious for a moment.
"Don't worry about it too much. Happens to anyone"

Marcus Veranius: "I see we're still trapped in a nightmare house. Didn't just dream that part."

Ireena Kolyana: "No," says Ireena. "That part was no dream."

Marcus Veranius: "Well damn."

Ireena Kolyana: "I guess we have options, now. We can head down that tunnel to the west, or take the south passage. Or we can head back up through all those crypts we passed earlier. Did we get a good look at those?"

Marcus Veranius: "We didn't get a look inside them, nor do I really care to."

"Not much a graverobber on a good day. And that's not factoring in the chance of our sleeping dead waking up."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda shivers and hops off the table

"I like anywhere that's not graverobbing, personally"

"Kind of agree there"

Marcus Veranius: "If we're lucky, those chanting figures from yesterday are still in the south passage."

"Lets take West, see if we can sneak up on them."

Suldae Westwind: "Lucky" Suldae says blandly. "Sure, yes, if we're lucky. Though I wouldn't give any passage a better chance on sneaking up on them than any other, after a night's sleep"

"Or whatever time of day it is"

Ireena Kolyana: "West it is, then..."

Ireena draws her blade and leads the way.

Descending musty steps, you find a passage on the left leading south

Suldae Westwind: (this is where we've been)

(where I am rn)

Ireena Kolyana: "We've been here before, I think..."

"Have we gone down that way?"

Marcus Veranius: "Not down this hall."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena points down the southern passage.

"Care to do the honors?"

Suldae Westwind: "No," Suldae agrees.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena steps out of the way.

Marcus Veranius tries to move quietly, taking lead

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows behind him

Marcus Veranius:

9

STEALTH (6)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: periodically glancing back to keep Ireena within her line of sight

The ghostly chanting is louder in this tunnel...

Suldae Westwind:

4

STEALTH (3)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae stumbles and barely manages not to curse, but the sound of her nearly falling and catching herself is still loud

Ireena Kolyana:

14STEALTH (1)*12*PERCEPTION (2)

Ireena Kolyana scans the ground as she is walking, following the other two.

Ireena Kolyana moves as silently as a cat.

As Marcus is walking down the hallway, he suddenly realizes there are no footprints in the dust.

The dust conceals a difference in the floor: several rotting wooden floorboards, bridging a gap in the stone floor. He realizes this as he is standing in the middle of this rotten bridge.

The floorboards creak ominously.

Ireena Kolyana: "What was that? Marcus?"

Marcus Veranius: "Questionable carpentry."

Marcus sees through a crack between two of the rotten boards. Steel glints at the bottom of the pit.

Ireena Kolyana: "A trap?"

Marcus Veranius: "...maybe."

Marcus realizes that any shift in his weight might make the boards collapse.

Marcus Veranius: "We need to go around. This passage is going to fall over."

Ireena Kolyana: "Trick floor? Devious bastards..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes out the ocarina and, discarding stealth, is trying to doot the boards stronger

Mending

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Touch

Target: A single break or tear in an object you touch

Components: V, S, M (Two lodestones)

Duration: Instantaneous

This spell repairs a single break or tear in an object you touch, such as a broken chain link, two halves of a broken key, a torn cloak, or a leaking wineskin. As long as the break or tear is no larger than 1 foot in any dimension, you mend it, leaving no trace of the former damage. This spell can physically repair a magic item or construct, but the spell can't restore magic to such an object.

Ireena Kolyana: (LMAO)

Sulda Westwind: (you're welcome for the phrasing, I am a WRITER)

(XD)

The little ditty echoes down the halls. The boards creak as the wood becomes slightly firmer. Even so, the loose boards might easily slip, causing someone to fall through. It is a rickety bridge.

You hear the shambling sound of feet on dusty floors.

Sulda Westwind: How long is this bridge?

The bridge covers a gap in the floor which is about 15 feet long.

Marcus sees a shadow figure lurking just around the corner on the other side of the bridge. A glinting eye watches from the shadows.

Ireena's torch still blazes.

Sulda Westwind: (just Marcus?)

Ireena Kolyana: (just Marcus)

Marcus Veranius: "We have company..."

Sulda Westwind: "Get back!" Suldae hisses and steps aside to leave room for him

Ireena Kolyana steps up to the east, halfway up a flight of steps, making room.

Ireena Kolyana: "Is it coming?"

The creature continues to lurk. It seems to know that with a little patience, the trap will feed it.

Ireena Kolyana: (brb)

Marcus Veranius: (Can you mark which tiles are trapped?)

Sulda Westwind: "We could... go through a different passage," Suldae suggests

Ireena Kolyana: (back)

"I think we can take whatever these things are."

Marcus Veranius: "...how much do you trust in your spellcraft?"

"About as much as I trust in my aim?"

Sulda Westwind: "I don't think these boards are safe to walk on even with it, if it was meant to be a trap"

"It's not that I don't want to encounter whatever's there, it's just that I'd prefer to do so elsewhere"

"I do NOT know Feather Fall"

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe we can lure them into that larger room we were in before, with the well."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae glares at the floor like it has personally offended her

"That's one idea"

Ireena Kolyana: "We can use the doorway as a choke point."

"Before we do that, though, I think we need to know what we're dealing with."

Suldae Westwind: "We could also go south from the room with the table," Suldae suggests. "We might circle on the thing from a direction that is safe to walk on"

Marcus Veranius: "I know how we could get a better look."

Marcus Veranius goes to fetch the Grick corpse

Marcus Veranius: "...oh balls."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae watches the passage in his absence

A Ghoul crouches on the table, sniffing the corpse of the fallen Grick.

Suldae Westwind: "What is it?" she hisses worriedly as Marcus shifts back without any visible gains

A second Ghoul emerges from the southern passage, approaching the corpse as well. It sniffs the place where Ireena was laying, slithers its tongue around its ragged lips, and turns a dusty, cobwebbed head around, searching the room.

Suldae Westwind: "Oh" she spots a creature

Marcus Veranius: "It's worse than I thought. Copycats."

Suldae Westwind:

8

RELIGION (6)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae is trying to recognize what these rae

*are

Apparently she hasn't heard a lot about them?

Suldae knows that these creatures are undead, but their specific type is not known to her.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hisses between her teeth.

"So remember when we were worried about graverobbing?"

"We were probably right"

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. Let's see if they like arrows."

Marcus Veranius attempts to fire from the cover of the wall.

Suldae Westwind: (this is probably easier with a crossbow than with a bow)

Marcus Veranius: (Should I roll initiative or make a surprise attack?)

GM: make a surprise attack please

Marcus Veranius:

24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius9Piercing22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius7Piercing*

Marcus' Crossbow Bolts fly true! THUNK! THUNK! Two bolts punch into the undead creatures, who turn and snarl in the direction the bolts came from.

Ireena Kolyana:WISDOM
Ghoul

Ability: 20 | 15

Marcus Veranius: "Looks like they don't."Suldae Westwind: whatever this is it looks bad ImaoIreena Kolyana: (Should not be at advantage)Suldae Westwind: (still Imao)Ghoul: "GRHGHAH"WISDOM
Ghoul

Ability: 12

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 21

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 13

Suldae Westwind: "I am sympathetic to their plight" Suldae murmurs and wonders if she could move closer without knocking elbows with IreenaMarcus Veranius:*14.18*INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Ghoul:

INITIATIVE Ireena Kolyana
--

Initiative: 20

Sulda Westwind: "We should probably lure them back down there," Suldae suggests and illustrates, stepping back

Ireena slips back, giving Suldae room.

Sulda Westwind:

22.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Ghoul: (Suldae, you're up)

Ireena: "Marcus, I hope there was a plan here!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae readies an action to shoot at a ghoul as soon as she sees one in the corridor

Marcus Veranius: "Outrun and outflank!"

Sulda Westwind: "Get back here!" Suldae suggests

Marcus Veranius: "They don't have crossbows!"

Ireena: "Fair enough!"

Sulda Westwind: (EoT, sort of)

Ghoul:

CLAWS Ghoul

Attack: 13

If the target is a creature other than an elf or undead, it must succeed on a DC 10 Constitution saving throw or be paralyzed for 1 minute. The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success.

Damage: 7 slashing

The Ghoul on the table leaps off and races across the room, scrambling on all fours. It surges to its feet and swings its claws at Marcus, who keeps it at bay with the body of his crossbow!

Ghoul: (EoT)

Ireena runs down the stairs and into the room with Suldae and the well. She ducks just behind the doorway, crouching with her blade at the ready.

Ghoul: (EoT -- readied action, to stab any hostiles coming through the door)

(Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: "Don't scratch that! It's expensive!"

Marcus Veranius fires more bolts into the ghoul

Marcus Veranius:

24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

6

Piercing

11

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

Marcus adds a Maneuvering Attack to the first hit as to cover his retreat

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to maneuver one of your comrades into a more advantageous position. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and you choose a friendly creature who can see or hear you. That creature can use its reaction to move up to half its speed without provoking opportunity attacks from the target of your attack.

6

Bonus Damage

[Maneuvering Attack]
Marcus Veranius

He then uses his movement to run into the room

Marcus's first shot with the crossbow punches into the Ghoul's left eye, half-blinding it and distracting it long enough for him to make good on his escape. The Ghoul screams in pain!

You hear the whoops and cries of at least three Ghouls in response!

Marcus Veranius: "Oh good; there's more of them."

Ghoul:

INITIATIVE

Ghoul

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE

Ghoul

Initiative: 5

Sulda Westwind: "At least we're not on the trapped floor" Suldae points out

Another ghoul squeezes past the first one and comes barreling down the hallway towards Suldae! It runs on all fours, bounding like a dog. On of Marcus's crossbow bolts sticks out of its chest.

Ghoul: (Suldae, you're up)Sulda Westwind: (When the ghoul moved into her sight Suldae would have shot, expending her readied action from last time!)15

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)

Sulda Westwind

6

Piercing

Suldae's instinctively-fired shot sticks in the meat between the creature's collarbone and shoulder!

Ghoul: (You may fire again, since that was your readied action)Sulda Westwind: Suldae squeezes the trigger as the ghoul appears, then steps back to leave Marcus line of sight too and shoots again, quickly reloading as she steps15

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)

Sulda Westwind

6

Piercing

The second shot catches the creature in the other shoulder and it falls awkwardly to its face. It stumbles back to all fours, snarling and drooling black blood over its chin. It stares with glinting, dead-white eyes. Suldae realizes it is wearing tattered black robes.

The Ghoul Marcus shot point-blank comes to its senses and charges after its companion!

Sulda Westwind: "That was human, wasn't it," Suldae murmurs

It charges right down the long hallway, leap-frogging over its companion! The moment it comes through the doorway, Ireena swings her blade!

Ghoul:

20Rapier (+3)5Piercing*

Her rapier pierces through the creature's head. She kicks it off her blade and flicks the blood away.

Ireena gets ready to attack the next creature which comes down the hallway.

Ghoul: (Marcus, you're up)Sulda Westwind: "Nice!" Sulda calls out at Ireena's success

Marcus Veranius moves forward to use the fallen ghoul as cover. A convenient pile of them would make a nice barricade

Marcus Veranius: More shots are fired towards the survivor11

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius5Piercing19

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius10Piercing*

The first shot whizzes over the crouching Ghoul in the hallway but the second blows a neat round hole in its head as it whizzes through. The Ghoul slumps, dead.

Another Ghoul comes sprinting down the hallway on two legs, leaping easily over its dead companion. It lands on the first flight of steps, still running towards the group!

A fourth and final Ghoul is crawling swiftly along behind him!

Ghoul: (Sulda, you're up)Sulda Westwind: Sulda shoots!21

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Sulda Westwind6Piercing*

(EoT)

Suldae's Crossbow bolt sticks in the flesh of the lead Ghoul, jerking his shoulder back as he runs!Ireena Kolyana:*7*Rapier (+3)8Piercing*Ireena lunges around the corner, stabbing with her rapier! She misses the skinny creature, piercing only robe!Ireena Kolyana: (Marcus, you're up)Marcus Veranius fires a shot at the 4th ghoul, hoping to slim the numbers heading their wayMarcus Veranius:*13

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

7*Piercing*

(Will that hit?)

The bolt hits home, punching into the rearmost Ghoul.Marcus Veranius: "BUGGER OFF! OR I'LL SET YOU UP LIKE THE REST!"

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

5*Bonus Damage[Menacing Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Ghoul:

 WISDOM

Ghoul

Ability: 3

Marcus Veranius uses his Action Surge and Bonus Action to lay two more shots into the nearer ghoul

Marcus Veranius:

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

6

Piercing

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: ouch

Marcus Veranius: (OH NO)

Suldae Westwind: (;u;)

Marcus Veranius:

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(Superiority dice fix everything)

Sulda Westwind: (nice!)

The Ghoul at the rear crouches down, hissing with fear! Marcus's followup attacks at first look like they're going to miss, but last-minute adjustments bring them into perfect alignment and both bolts stick in the creature before him!

Ireena: "Nice shooting, Marcus!"

Marcus Veranius: "Thank me when they stop moving closer!"

[EoT]

Ghoul:

CLAWS Ghoul <hr/> Attack: 24 If the target is a creature other than an elf or undead, it must succeed on a DC 10 Constitution saving throw or be paralyzed for 1 minute. The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success.
Damage: 6 + 5 slashing

(CON save, Marcus)

Marcus Veranius:

8

CONSTITUTION (2)
Marcus Veranius

(OH NO)

Ghoul: (OH NO)

Sulda Westwind: (OUCH)

(can paralyzed creatures see/hear?)

The lead Ghoul rears up to its full height and swings its claws viciously into Marcus, raking him with dagger-sharp tips! He feels a strange curse sink into his flesh, and his muscles become hard as stone!

Ireena: "MARCUS!"

Marcus Veranius probably has a quip for this, but his jaw has frozen shut

Sulda Westwind: (im holding off on Suldae's reaction until her turn to make it into bardic inspiration lmao)

Ghoul: (He can still see and hear, yes)

Sulda Westwind: (ty ^^)

The second Ghoul is still too frightened to approach! It crawls warily back and forth in the hallway, glaring with hate!

Ghoul: (Sulda, you're up!)

Sulda Westwind: "MARCUS YOU CAN DO THIS!!!" Sulda yells as she shoots at the creature that DARED hurt him

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you. That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6. Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost. A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time. You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

18

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Sulda Westwind

5

Piercing

Bardic Inspiration @ Marcus

I need to set up a better macros for this

Suldae's bolt thunks through the Ghoul's head, spraying the wall with its brains! It collapses atop the corpse of its companion, making a half-cover pile in the tunnel mouth.

Ghoul:

16

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

8

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (the GHOUL has a crossbow?)

Ireena peers around the corner and fires the heavy crossbow, ripping into the frightened Ghoul in the hallway!

Suldae Westwind: (ah)

Ghoul: (LMAO sorry)

Suldae Westwind: (I was Very Scared there for a moment lmao)

GM: (Marcus, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: (brb, hopefully I'm back by my turn)

Marcus Veranius: (what die is bard inspiration? D4?)

GM: a d6 I believe

Marcus Veranius:

8

CONSTITUTION (2)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 1d6 Inspiration

(2)

= 2

(WEW)

GM: That's *exact*ly enough to make it.

Marcus shakes off the paralytic power of the fallen Ghoul's curse!

GM: Unfortunately, I believe that takes your whole turn (since you can only make the save at the end of your turn)

The fear effect also ends now (since it ends at the end of your next turn)

Brace yourselves

Sulda Westwind: (YAY I HELPED)

Ghoul:

BITE
Ghoul

Attack: 6

Damage: 10 piercing

The final Ghoul shakes off its fear of Marcus as it realizes he is affected by the curse. It charges forward, loping along the ground like an animal, and it lunges forwards for a bite, thinking Marcus will be easy prey! He shakes off the paralysis just in time to twist out of the way!

Ghoul: (Sulda, you're up)

Sulda Westwind: "Go Marcus go!" Sulda cheers and shoots again

Bardic Inspiration @ Marcus again

23

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Sulda Westwind

9

Piercing

After cheering Marcus on, Sulda drops the final Ghoul with a well-placed bolt between the eyes.

It collapses on top of its fellows, adding to the pile.

You each gain 266.6666666666667 XP

Sulda Westwind: (10 minutes until the inspiration die expires)

*Let's call that 267

Sulda Westwind: ^^

915+267=1100+70+12

=1182

got it

Marcus Veranius groggily stands, using the small pile of ghoul corpses as leverage

Marcus Veranius: "That.... could have gone worse."

Ireena Kolyana: (417 XP total on Ireena

Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods, catching her breath, and shaking off dizziness starts digging through the dead to recover bolts and also check if there's anything else of immediate interest

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

10
Healing

Second Wind
Marcus Veranius

 Sulda Westwind: do I round half the bolts up or down

 Marcus Veranius takes a moment to regain his senses, get some wind back in him, then joins Suldae in the bolt hunting.

 Marcus Veranius: (Round down probably?)

 Sulda Westwind: (probably...)

 Marcus Veranius: "Well then! Shall we see what treasures those ghouls may have been lurking around?"

 Marcus Veranius walks over the ghoul piles in an attempt to reach the table room

 Sulda Westwind: "Probably more corpses," Suldae offers, following him (maybe mark that you've got the inspiration die somehow on your token)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Wouldn't be surprised," says Ireena

 Marcus Veranius: (I used it on the save)

 Sulda Westwind: (you got a second one right after)

 Marcus Veranius: (o3o)

 Sulda Westwind: (Suldae cheered for you)

The sound of chanting seems to be coming from the southern tunnel of the crossroads.

 Sulda Westwind: (you're feeling very invigorated and proud of yourself)

The eastern tunnel seems to lead into a large room, after a switchback or two.

The western tunnel leads to some stairs, which seem to descend.

 Marcus Veranius: "...still at it at this hour?"
"Same chanting."

 Sulda Westwind: "...Probably more undead," Suldae voices the obvious

 Marcus Veranius: "Let's see if we can go around."

 Marcus Veranius points to the east hall

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods

This room is festooned with moldy skeletons that hang from rusty shackles against the walls. A wide alcove in the east wall contains a painted wooden statue carved in the likeness of a gaunt, pale-faced man wearing a voluminous black cloak, his pale left hand resting on the head of a wolf that stands next to him. In his right hand, he holds a smoky-gray crystal orb.

The chanting seems to echo up from a doorway on the far side of the room.

On a lectern, standing before this strange altar, there is a large, leather-bound tome.

It seems to be hand-bound.

Marcus Veranius: "Oh look. We found the guest quarters."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae approaches the altar

Ireena Kolyana: "Indeed,"

Suldae Westwind: and blows into her instrument, trying to detect the presence of magic Ireena Kolyana: "That statue," says Ireena, her voice strange and distant. "That's Strahd."

Suldae Westwind:

14

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae determines that the book is magical, bearing traces of all schools of magic. She also determines that the crystal orb on the statue is a real spellcasting focus.

Suldae Westwind: "Well now we know what he looks like," Suldae murmurs, lifting the ocarina from her lips.

"We should probably swipe that thing," she suggests, looking at the orb.

Marcus Veranius: "...would you feel better if we knocked the statue over?"

Suldae Westwind: "Not sure about the book to be quite honest..."

Suldae carefully touches the book with the tips of one hand's fingers

Suldae can feel the magic inside the book, but senses that it is currently inert.

It feels like a spellbook.

Ireena Kolyana looks up at the statue, a strange expression on her face. (Insight)

Ireena Kolyana: "I don't know," she says. "I'd rather not disturb the statue, for some reason..."

Ireena Kolyana moves to examine the book.

Suldae Westwind: "It's a spellbook, I think," Suldae says and opens it

Ireena Kolyana: "My father always said I should have learned the family trade. He was a bit of a wizard, himself."

Ireena Kolyana smooths the cover of the book.

Ireena Kolyana opens the book to the first page.

Ireena Kolyana: "Look, there's an index of spells. This isn't some dark ritual book, these are just basic wizard spells."

"My father could cast all of these."

Suldae Westwind: "You have it, then," Suldae offers and reaches for the orb. She touches it carefully

As Suldae touches the orb, there is a sudden change in the lighting of the chamber. Odd... A moment ago, only your three shadows darkened the walls. Now there seem to be... Eight shadows.

Ireena Kolyana looks around, alarmed.

Ireena Kolyana:

21

PERCEPTION (2)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's hand jerks back as if burned, as she looks around worried

13

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana: "Hey, doesn't that patch of wall look a little strange?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae approaches it, blowing into her ocarina to verify anything she can feel

As Suldae withdraws her hand, the shadows fade.

Suldae Westwind:

13

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae feels nothing magical about the patch of wall.

Suldae Westwind: "Nothing here, I think..." she murmurs. "At least not anymore. Who's in favor of not touching the statue?" She raises the hand with the ocarina in it

Marcus Veranius: "Agreed."

Ireena Kolyana: "Agreed."

Suldae Westwind: "The book seems safe to take, though" Suldae nods to Ireena

Marcus Veranius takes a look at the patch of wall Ireena pointed out

Under close examination, it becomes apparent that someone has smeared a fine layer of clay on top of an ordinary wooden door, in an attempt to conceal it. Up close, even in the torchlight, it is fairly obvious. The clay has started to crack.

Marcus Veranius gives the door a stern kick to try and crumble the clay off.

Marcus Veranius: "How many secret doors does this guy have?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I always feel like one can never have too many," Ireena quips.

Suldae Westwind: "As many as it takes," Suldae suggests dryly, feeling a bit embarrassed for not realizing the non-magical secret

The door opens onto a stone staircase that climbs upwards.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up

At the top of the staircase, which only climbs for ten feet, there is a ladder leading up to a trapdoor.

 Suldae Westwind: "Well we're technically not done down here yet..."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well," says Ireena. "This probably leads back up into the house."

 Suldae Westwind: "Want to go back up there?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Not yet," says Ireena.

 Marcus Veranius: "If only to see where it was hiding."

 Marcus Veranius takes a small peek out of the trap door

Marcus sees a large sitting room with several stuffed wolves... It's the room on the ground floor.

 Marcus Veranius: "Damnit! I knew there was something about the tacky wolf room!"

 Suldae Westwind: "Anything interesting?"
"Ooh"

 Marcus Veranius slams the trap door and returns to the Husbando Worship Room with a scowl

 Suldae Westwind: (omg)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well, at least now we know what it is/"
"Shall we continue?"

 Suldae Westwind: "Are you taking the book?"

 Marcus Veranius: "Do we want to poke these skeletons to make sure they're the staying-dead kind?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "I for one am in total favor of that idea," says Ireena, drawing her rapier.
She stows the spellbook in her backpack.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays the ocarina, checking the skeletons one by one as she walks along the wall

12

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

 Marcus Veranius joins the poking with his new Silvered poking tool

Suldae detects no aura of magic from the skeletons. Marcus's poking stirs up some dust and a few small spiders, but none of the skeletons rouse themselves.

 Suldae Westwind: "Looks like they're just bones, thank gods," Suldae sighs and then immediately nervously looks around, lifting the ocarina to her lips

Marcus Veranius: "Well that's a pleasant surprise."

Ireena Kolyana: "There's another door here," Ireena says, indicating the door to the southwest.

Marcus Veranius: "To the chanting room..."

The sound of chanting seems strangely louder on the other side of this door.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae knocks

Marcus Veranius: "Should we see where that other staircase went? The western one?"

Suldae's hand sticks instantly to the door. (DC 13 athletics or acrobatics -- with disadvantage -- to escape.)

Around the frame of the door, the wood grain splits open as beady orange eyes open.

Marcus Veranius: "We gotta watch the fucking doors now!?!?"

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow

The door opens a jagged, toothy mouth, and unfurls a long purple tongue, which flickers towards Suldae/

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE

Mimic

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE

Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 18

Suldae Westwind:

8.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)

Suldae Westwind

"Huhbwuh?"

Even a bard can at times be reduced to incoherence

Marcus Veranius:

20.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)

Marcus Veranius

(Didnt have the token selected. RIP)

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 11.18

(I gotchu fam)

GM: The Mimic will make one surprise attack before initiative starts

Ireena Kolyana:

PSEUDOPOD

Mimic

Attack: 13 | 22

If the mimic is in object form, the target is subjected to its Adhesive trait.

Damage: 5 bludgeoning

GM: The Mimic has advantage on attack rolls against any creature it currently has grappled

The Mimic extends a tendril and slaps Suldae with it, latching onto her shoulder! The creature's sticky, glue-like excretions bind her firmly!

The Mimic licks its teeth and all of its beady orange eyes fix on her.

Mimic: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius rushes down the halls and looks at the mimic

Marcus Veranius: "The tackiness of this house never ceases to amaze me."

22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

6

Piercing

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

[EoT]

The Crossbow bolt sticks in the Mimic, which seems not to notice...

Mimic:

7

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

9

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: was that Ireena

GM: Yes, will re-do as Ireena

Ireena Kolyana:

18

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

3

Piercing

GM: and will pay attention next time lmao

Ireena pumps another crossbow bolt into the door. It splits some wood, but does little real damage.

Ireena Kolyana:

BITE
Mimic

Attack: 15 | 7

Damage: 9 piercing + 1
acid

Suldae Westwind: oh my god

GM: (Omfg)

Mimic:

BITE
Mimic

Attack: 22 | 17

Damage: 7 piercing + 5
acid

Suldae Westwind: Ireena proceeds to bite the door
ouch

GM: We'll use the first damage

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Marcus Veranius: (Remember to bite your mimics to assert dominance)

Suldae Westwind: (I'm going to draw this)

The Mimic's pseudopod starts drawing Suldae in towards its mouth, and it chomps down on her arm!

Mimic: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae screams shrilly and tries to rip her way out of the grip

21

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

She twists the tongue so it releases her and rolls back

Mimic: (At disadvantage)

Suldae Westwind:

23

21

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

(OH NICE LMAO)

Mimic: (Yay!)

Suldae Westwind: (and sorry)

Suldae lies under Ireena's feet, panting terrified

(EoT)

Mimic: (Marcus, you
(You're up)

Marcus Veranius tries shooting out the door's eyes; sees if it notices that

Marcus Veranius:

18

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

(Lots of 1s today)

Marcus's crossbows twang, and two bolts stick in the door! One punches into an eyeball. The Mimic screams!

Ireena Kolyana:

21

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

8
Piercing

Ireena puts another crossbow bolt into the creature.

The door becomes translucent, then melts down into a strange, slurry-like blob of amorphous, shifting ooze. For a moment doorknobws and hinges and timber are visible, then the creature becomes a mere blob, free from the wall.

It slimes its way forwards, slinging a pseudopod at Ireena!

Mimic:

PSEUDOPOD

Mimic

Attack: 15 | 22

If the mimic is in object form, the target is subjected to its Adhesive trait.

Damage: 7 bludgeoning

Sulda Westwind: (Is where it was just wall or a door or a passage?)

Mimic: (No longer supposed to be at advantage)

PSEUDOPOD

Mimic

Attack: 13

If the mimic is in object form, the target is subjected to its Adhesive trait.

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

Where the creature was, you can now see through the arch into a small square room with a table and chairs.

Ireena easily dodges the creature's whiplike little tendril.

Mimic: (Sulda, you're up)

Sulda Westwind: Sulda rolls out from under Ireena's feet and gets up to her feet awkwardly

She shoots

14

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)

Sulda Westwind

3
Piercing

Sulda's crossbow bolt sticks in the ooze!

Mimic: (EoT)?

Sulda Westwind: (EoT)

Mimic: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius frowns as he starts to realize this door-monster is probably melting his bolts.

Marcus Veranius:

25

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

10

Piercing

22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

5

Piercing

Sulda Westwind: (b r b)

Marcus fires two crossbow bolts at the orange eyes floating freely through the creature's semi-liquid body, and hits both targets! The Mimic opens an amorphous depression similar to a mouth, grows a few hundred teeth inside, and screams in pain with it.

Ireena Kolyana: Getting slightly freaked out by this creature, Ireena loads and fires another shot without hesitation.

4

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

9

Piercing

The bolt skips off the stones, missing the creature by an inch.

Ireena Kolyana: "Dammit!"

BITE
Mimic
<hr/>
Attack:	9
<hr/>
Damage:	11 piercing + 6
acid

GM: OmFg

Mimic:BITE
*Mimic*Attack: 8Damage: 8 piercing + 5
acidMarcus Veranius: (SHE HUNGERS)*The Mimic yawns wide and attempts to bite Suldae, but its teeth clash shut on empty air.Mimic: (Suldae, you're up)Suldae Westwind: (back)

Suldae backs off a little more

And shoots!

11

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind3

Piercing

Suldae's crossbow bolt scrapes sparks off the wall as it ricochet's over the creature's head!Mimic: (Marcus, you're up)Marcus Veranius: "Stop melting my bolts and die already! They're expensive!" Marcus shouts down the horror-blob. He's burned through a whole quiver now and he's not happy about it.13

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius9

Piercing

22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius10

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae laughs weakly in a trembling voice

Her legs are barely holding her up

Marcus's final two shots crack something critical inside the creature.

All at once, it collapses into a puddle of liquid ooze.

Slowly, several objects take shape as the life leaves the enchantment which created the Mimic originally.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae collapses on her knees herself and watches what is happening dumbly, her crossbow lying in front of her, her hands barely touching it

Some of the objects the Mimic has ingested more recently start to reconstitute themselves amid the ooze.

All the crossbow bolts which hit it emerge.

Two white daggers appear, along with a white longbow.

 Marcus Veranius: "..."
"Miracles DO exist in this land!"

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae smiles weakly.
"Give me mine?"

A quiver of white-feathered arrows appears.

A small leather satchel appears.

 Sulda Westwind: "Oh, huh."
She has no strength to get up yet.

A small drawstring pouch appears.

Finally, last to emerge are the ingredients of the Mimic itself: a small brass key, two sapphires, an emerald, a hand-mirror, a bowl of salt, and a complicated sigil of bent silver wire.

 Marcus Veranius attempts to lift Suldae to the chairs and table in the room beyond, giving each a firm kick out of caution before setting her down

GM: You each gain 1501 XP, rounded up.

Woah, no

 Marcus Veranius: (Mother of door...)

150 XP

 Sulda Westwind: I WISH
Suldae scrambles to her feet and helps Marcus move her there
"Thank you," she murmurs as she leans onto the table

 Marcus Veranius: "Pretty damn convenient that there's furniture in the murder dungeon."

 Sulda Westwind: "I mean why wouldnt they have furniture down here?" Suldae chuckles weakly

 Marcus Veranius starts moving items to the table for Suldae to identify at her convenience

 Sulda Westwind: "If I had a murder dungeon I'd have furniture in it too"

A chandelier is suspended above a table in the middle of the room. Two high-backed chairs flank the table, which has an empty clay jug and two clay flagons atop it. Iron candlesticks stand in two corners, their candles long since melted away.

The furniture in this room is nicer than the furniture in the rest of the dungeon has been.

Marcus Veranius: "Doesn't seem like the place where you'd want to stick around for a relaxing cup of tea."

"...although judging by the setup, I'd be mistaken."

Ireena Kolyana: "I wonder what's down the western tunnel there?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks out the leather satchel

She feels better already from being presented with loot

(can tokens be unstuck from the grid? this just feels WRONG X)

(XD)

GM: Items: 2 White Daggers, a White Longbow, a Quiver of White-Feathered Arrows (15 arrows) A Small Leather Satchel, a Small Drawstring Pouch, A Small Brass Key, 2 Sapphires, an Emerald, a Hand-Mirror, a Bowl of Salt, and some Bent Silver Wire.

Marcus Veranius: (Hold ALT while moving a token to move it out of grid)

Suldae Westwind: (TY)

Inside the leather satchel Suldae finds several glass bottles containing a red liquid which glimmers and flashes with ruby light when it is agitated.

There are three small bottles and one large bottle.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae uncorks one bottle and sniffs the liquid uncertainly, trying to identify it

Suldae determines that it is a potion of healing.

Suldae Westwind: "Well damn," she whistles.

"These are potions of healing"

"We should each take one and... someone take the large one. Who's the most likely to get hit next time?" Her voice trembles a little as she tries for more levity than she can really manage at the moment

Marcus Veranius: "Well, my face is the most punchable."

"I'll take it."

Suldae Westwind: "Sold!" Suldae pushes two bottles towards him and one towards Ireena, and takes one herself

She then checks the drawstring pouch

GM: The Large Potion does 6d4+6 HP, the small potions do 2d4+2 HP.

Suldae Westwind: (nice)

"We probably want to save these, for now..."

The drawstring pouch contains 159 Gold coins, 62 Silver coins, 83 Copper coins, and 1

Platinum coins.

 Sulda Westwind: Everyone takes a short rest as Sulda sits there counting XD

 Ireena Kolyana whistles softly under her breath.

 Sulda Westwind: "We could count and divide this, or we could call it common funds and just give someone for safekeeping?" Sulda suggests, giving up almost immediately after starting to count

"I call dibs on the mirror, meanwhile"

She grabs it and puts it into her bag

 Marcus Veranius: "I don't have a ledger for it, but I can keep track of the funds."

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda gives him the pouch, and puts the gems there with the coins for good measure

 Marcus Veranius sits on the ground and starts laying out the coins in stacks of 10, grinning as he passes by the platinum.

 Sulda Westwind: Sulda fiddles with the key

"I wonder if this opens something around here..."

 Ireena Kolyana Takes the opportunity to examine the spellbook again.

 Marcus Veranius: "Maybe it opens a set of five chests in another part of the dungeon."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena snorts.

"With our luck? Probably."

 Sulda Westwind: "We wish," Sulda sighs wistfully and packs away the key and the empty satchel. That leaves the salt, the wire, 2 White Daggers, a White Longbow, a Quiver of White-Feathered Arrows (15 arrows)

 Ireena Kolyana picks up the longbow and examines it.

 Sulda Westwind: "Anyone here can use a longbow? Because I can't," Sulda admits, feeling like she's betraying her elf heritage just by saying that.

 Ireena Kolyana: "I think this is magical," says Ireena.

Sulda realizes that it is elven in make.

 Marcus Veranius: "I use a longbow for things out of range."

 Sulda Westwind: "Nice. Do you know how to shoot a longbow?"
Sulda really, really wishes she did. But she doesn't.

 Marcus Veranius: "Not nearly as nice as this though."

 Sulda Westwind: "Oh hey you can take it. It's elven, I think"
"I wonder if some poor elf was here..."

 Ireena Kolyana: "It seems we're not the first to come through here," Ireena says.

"I wonder how long the house has been sitting here, luring people in..."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods. She's been thinking this for a while.

Marcus Veranius takes the bow and arrows, looking over the fine craftsmanship. He looks along its side for any lettering indicating a craftsman or origin.

The bow bears no maker's mark, but as Marcus holds it, he gets the sense that it is much more than it seems...

Sulda Westwind: Suldae takes one dagger and examines it.

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm..." Marcus takes out one of the arrows and fires it at the far wall out of curiosity.

Bow: In Elvish: "Swift defeat to my enemies."

The arrow sticks in a crack between stones.

Marcus Veranius looks at the bow

Marcus Veranius: "Did you hear that, Suldae?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks up sharply.

"Swift defeat to my enemies," she repeats in Elvish. "Swift defeat to my enemies," she then translates into Common

Marcus Veranius: "I got that part the first time."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena, who does not speak Elvish, looks at the both of you. "Was that Elvish?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods

Marcus Veranius: "That wouldn't make too bad an idiom to engrave onto a pair of boots."

"I should write it down."

Sulda Westwind: "Did the bow talk?" Suldae attempts to draw his attention to the more immediately important part of the situation

Marcus Veranius: "Yes, it did. Not very stealthy for an archer's weapon."

Ireena Kolyana: "I'd say it was more like a whisper..."

"I barely heard it at all."

Marcus Veranius: "Kindof gloaty actually, which makes perfect sense for an Elvish weapon."

Sulda Westwind: "You know more about Elvish weapons than I do, then," Suldae allows easily. She's not an expert on weapons at all, and rests easy with that.

She still thinks it's odd for a weapon to talk, but Marcus seems entirely unbothered by it

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe there's more to it," Ireena says. "It's clearly magical. Maybe after spending some time with it you'll learn more."

Marcus Veranius nods, and resumes his counting of the coin.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae examines the dagger she's taken, slides a finger along the flat side of its blade.

Suldae finds that the two white daggers are identical. Each has a set of holes along the center of the blade. There is also a strange addition to the grip of both daggers: a sort of ring which seems to be connected to a concealed lever. It could be pulled with a finger.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pulls the ring

Thick black liquid bleeds from the holes along the dagger's edge, instantly coating the blade in something that looks almost like ink.

The "ink" does not drip from the blade, it clings to the metal.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae touches it with the tip of one finger

The black liquid does not burn.

Suldae has a feeling it would be bad to get it inside of you, however.

GM: (The daggers are both "Daggers of Venom" -- already added to your sheet)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes one dagger and offers another to Ireena, figuring Marcus has already got his portion.

Ireena Kolyana: "I don't know, I'm not good with daggers. I'd probably just poison myself."

"Maybe you'd better keep it."

Ireena Kolyana is in the middle of the spellbook, examining one complicated incantation.

Suldae Westwind: "Alright," Suldae agrees and takes both without further argumet. She sees Ireena has chosen hers, too.

Ireena Kolyana Says a word, practicing the pronunciation, and makes a complex arcane gesture.

Marcus Veranius: "Not a bad idea. Daggers are better in pairs."

Suldae Westwind: This leaves the wire and the salt. Suldae stares at them for a minute, then shrugs and takes up the ocarina.

SONG OF REST

Class: Bard

Beginning at 2nd level, you can use soothing music or oration to help revitalize your wounded allies during a short rest. If you or any friendly creatures who can hear your performance regain hit points at the end of the short rest by spending one or more Hit Dice, each of those creatures regains an extra 1d6 hit points.

:3

8HIT DICE (D8+1)
Suldae WestwindMarcus Veranius:*7*HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus VeraniusSuldae Westwind: rolling 1d6

(5)

= 5

A silvery mist appears before her, and in the mist, shapes begin to form. After a moment or two, the mist has taken on the shape of a shimmering spectral hand. The hand is somewhat skeletal in appearance.

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d6

(6)

= 6Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses her playing for a moment to give an appreciative whistle, then resumes*Ireena Kolyana smiles.Marcus Veranius gives a thumbs upIreena Kolyana:

Mage Hand

*Conjuration CantripCasting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A point you choose within rangeComponents: V, SDuration: 1 minute

A spectral, floating hand appears at a point you choose within range. The hand lasts for the duration or until you dismiss it as an action. The hand vanishes if it is ever more than 30 feet away from you or if you cast this spell again. You can use your action to control the hand. You can use the hand to manipulate an object, open an unlocked door or container, stow or retrieve an item from an open container, or pour the contents out of a vial. You can move the hand up to 30 feet each time you use it. The hand can't attack, activate magic items, or carry more than 10 pounds.

GM: Without a spellcasting focus or component pouch, she is limited to spells which require only verbal and somatic components. She has taken one level in Wizard.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae offers her the salt and the mirror, vaguely remembering that they are material components for some spells maybe Ireena Kolyana: Ireena accepts them gratefully, although she isn't sure what they'll be used for just yet.

"Thank you."

"Should we move on? My brother is still waiting for us, after all. If we take too long he may try to come in after us."

"If he hasn't drunk himself into a coma, that is."

Marcus Veranius: "Incidentally, we have the materials to summon a mimic if you want to try."

Marcus Veranius smirks, and draws his crossbow. Best to experiment with new weapons when not in a scenario of danger

Sulda Westwind: (brb)

Ireena Kolyana: "So," Ireena says.

"If this is the parlor, I wonder what the next room is?"

Marcus Veranius takes the lead

Marcus Veranius: "Bedroom?"

"Oh hey, I was right."

This room contains a large wood-framed bed with a rotted feather mattress, a wardrobe, and an open crate. At the foot of the bed is a wooden footlocker.

Marcus Veranius: "Just think. Our host was likely sleeping in this bed with his prisoners crying in the dungeon next door."

"I suddenly find myself without a father's sympathy for his loss."

Sulda Westwind: (Is there any more chanting?)

The chanting seems to be coming from the northeast, now.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae inspects the containers, no longer feeling anything remotely like respect for personal property in here anymore.

The wardrobe contains several old black robes and a pair of black iron candlesticks. The crate contains thirty torches and a leather sack with fifteen candles inside. The footlocker is unlocked, and contains many things: a folded cloak, a small wooden coffer, a chain shirt, a mess kit, a flask of something labeled "Alchemist's Fire," a bullseye lantern, a set of thieves' tools, and another beaten-up spellbook.

The spellbook is stained with blood.

Sulda Westwind: "Hey, Ireena, something for you here!" Suldae takes out the spellbook and puts it on a nearby surface.

"Anyone can use this?" She takes out the thieves' tools

Marcus Veranius: "I know a few things about picking locks. Not much a burglar, but it's a nice life skill."

There is a thumping sound behind the walls.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hands him the set of tools, and the lantern for good measure.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

The walls on the west and north sides of the chamber suddenly lose large clumps of dirt.

Marcus Veranius quickly stows it and aims his crossbow towards the wall

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up, bites her lip, then quickly checks the coffer while she's at it

The coffer contains four more of the small red potions.

The walls shed thick clumps of dirt! Two undead figures in tattered black robes stand in concealed alcoves, where they were buried behind the walls!

The one in the western alcove is smaller and appears to have been female.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stuffs the potions in her bag and backs up to the room entrance.

Marcus Veranius: "IT'S ALWAYS SECRET DOORS!"

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE

Ghast

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE

Ghast

Initiative: 22

Suldae Westwind: "Are you really surprised anymore?"

Marcus Veranius:

19.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

22.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)

Suldae Westwind

(shit)

Ghast:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 18.14

INITIATIVE Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 20

(Suldae is up!)

Suldae Westwind: (Wait, weren't there two of them?)

(ah nm got it)

Suldae shoots at the one at the far side of the room that she can see clearly

15

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

7

Piercing

Suldae's shot strikes! The female Ghast snarls, taking the arrow in the thigh.

An ungodly stench soon fills the air... These smell far fouler than any undead you have encountered.

The large male Ghast drops out of his alcove and turns toward Suldae and Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose as she reloads the crossbow

Ghast:

BITE Ghast

Attack: 15 21

Damage: 10 piercing

GM: (Not supposed to be with advantage, sorry)

Marcus Veranius takes the hit on the nose, metaphorically speaking

Ireena Kolyana:

19

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

3

Piercing

Ireena launches a crossbow bolt past Suldae and Marcus, catching the larger Ghast in the shoulder.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius postures himself to be more intimidating than the ghast in front of him. "Both of you! Back in your holes! I've not the patience for you today!"

Marcus Veranius:24

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

6*Piercing17

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)

Marcus Veranius

10*Piercing*

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

3*Bonus Damage[Menacing Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

7

Bonus Damage

[Menacing Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius attempts to scare the ghosts off with a show of force

Ghost:

WISDOM

Ghost

Ability: 4

Marcus Veranius: And bolts

Ghost:

WISDOM

Ghost

Ability: 3

GM: Both Ghosts are now Frightened

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is incredibly impressed by her teammate's ability to scare the UNDEAD. She didn't know it was possible, and now she does. Nice.

Both of Marcus's shots land well, frightening both Ghosts, who shrink back, snarling!

Unwilling to move any closer to Marcus, the female Ghost remains in her alcove, hissing!

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Marcus Veranius looks like a scarier undead. They know their place

Suldae Westwind: Suldae backs up further and shoots at the one in front of Marcus

5

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)

Suldae Westwind

6

Piercing

Badly.

Her crossbow bolt yanks Ireena's hair as it whistles past, but misses the Ghost.

Ireena Kolyana: "Ow!"

Ghost:

CLAWS

Ghost

Attack: 20 | 11

If the target is a creature other than an undead, it must succeed on a DC 10 Constitution saving throw or be paralyzed for 1 minute. The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success.

Damage: 8 slashing

The Ghast in front of Marcus takes a swipe at him before shambling away. Marcus easily dodges the poorly-aimed blow.

Ireena Kolyana:

18

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

11

Piercing

Ireena lobbs a crossbow bolt into the Ghast as it is retreating away from Marcus. Both Ghasts cower in the corner now.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius smirks, and pelts additional shots into the larger ghast. Best to finish them off before they regain their senses.

Marcus Veranius:

18

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

26

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

The bolts rip into the first Ghast and the second bolt punches through and sticks in the female Ghast behind.

Marcus Veranius: [Eot]

The female Ghast screams as the larger male Ghast collapses into the slowly-growing pool of its own black blood.

No longer afraid, the female Ghast leaps over her husband, scrambles over the bed, and hurls herself at Marcus, claws outstretched!

Ghast:

CLAWS

Ghast

Attack: 14

If the target is a creature other than an undead, it must succeed on a DC 10 Constitution saving throw or be paralyzed for 1 minute. The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success.

Damage: 11 slashing

Marcus fights it off!

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae backs up further, climbing onto the table for a better (and more defensible!) vantage point

She shoots over her teammates' heads

24

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

10 + 6
Piercing

(oh hot damn)

Suldae's crossbow bolt neatly skims Marcus's hat as it flies over his head and rips through the female Ghast. It carries her head right off the rest of her corpse, pinning it to the far wall.

You each receive 133.3333333333334 XP.

Marcus Veranius drops his bow and frantically checks his hat for damage.

GM: That's 134 XP.

His hat, it seems, is unscathed.

Marcus Veranius: "Thank goodness. Without this hat I'd truly have nothing."

(And even worse; ID NEED TO FIND NEW CHARACTER ART!)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs. "Nice shooting, both of you!"

"Now, if I'm not much mistaken, we were distracted in the middle of looting this place."

Marcus Veranius: "A bit, yes."

The wardrobe contains several old black robes and a pair of black iron candlesticks. The crate contains thirty torches and a leather sack with fifteen candles inside. The footlocker is unlocked, and contains many things: a folded cloak, a small wooden coffer, a chain shirt, a mess kit, a flask of something labeled "Alchemist's Fire," a bullseye lantern, a set of thieves' tools, and another beaten-up spellbook.

Ireena Kolyana: The spellbook is stained with blood.

Suldae Westwind: "Right. More healing potions here!" Suldae gives the extra one to Ireena this time (1 to each of 'em)
(well 2 to Ireena and 1 to Marcus)

Marcus Veranius checks the Wooden Coffre; seems he's found a proper party fund box!

Ireena Kolyana examines the blood-stained spellbook more closely.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the Alchemist's Fire flask thoroughly, then snatches it up omg thats what english gets for being Like That *thoughtfully
She considers the chain shirt next.
"Marcus, what've you got for armor?"

Marcus Veranius: "I've got leather under my surcoat. It's light and quiet, which I prefer."

Ireena Kolyana examines the cloak.

Ireena Kolyana: "This is magical, I think."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out a melody on her instrument

25

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

The cloak is a Cloak of Protection.

It is quite beautiful.

It also appears to be Elven-made.

Marcus Veranius: "How many elves died in this house?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Honestly, it may have just been the one well-equipped elf," says Ireena.

Marcus Veranius: "That's a good point."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stares at the cloak, enchanted.

Ireena Kolyana: "Or one well-equipped adventurer with a fetish for Elven-made artifacts.

Suldae Westwind: "You can... have it... if you want?" She says hesitantly

Ireena Kolyana: "Who, me?"

Sulda Westwind: "If you want it," Suldae repeats, trying very hard to sound nonchalant

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks down at her breastplate, and the rather fashionable look she has assembled.

"I think I'll be alright," she says. "It's probably better if you have it."

Marcus Veranius nods. "Blue ain't my color."

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe we can sell the chain, it might be too noisy for any of us to wear."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae dons the cloak stowing away the one she previously wore in the bag

Ireena Kolyana: "It will probably take some time to figure out the exact enchantment on the cloak," Ireena says.

"Shall we move on?"

Sulda Westwind: "Hold on a second"

Suldae takes the mess kit and two candles, too.

Marcus Veranius: "Let me just stow this coffer away real quick"

Marcus Veranius props it open, checking if there's anything of value inside before he stuffs the party fund in it.

Ireena Kolyana: "Having the lantern might be a good idea, too," Ireena suggests.

The coffer is empty of other valuables.

It will make a perfect place for the party funds.

Sulda Westwind: (Suldae already gave the lantern and the tools to Marcus XD)

Marcus Veranius shuffles the coin inside with a smile. He almost feels like a real merchant again

Ireena Kolyana: "I think I can manage the lantern," Ireena says.

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. Let's see if we can get the floor will kill us next."

"Wait... it tried to already."

Marcus Veranius mumbles to himself as he tries to figure out what hasn't tried to kill him today.

Sulda Westwind: "The ceiling," Suldae proposes

She then immediately steps aside from where she was standing and looks up

"Ah, here's the other passage from where we've been"

Ireena Kolyana: "Uh... Guys? There's a staircase here."

Marcus Veranius: "Onwards and..."

Ireena Kolyana: "What do you think?"

"Downwards?"

Marcus Veranius squints at the stairs. Stairs haven't tried to kill him today.

Marcus Veranius:

20

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus can tell that the ghostly chanting is coming from down these stairs.

Marcus Veranius proceeds downwards with caution and skepticism

Ireena Kolyana follows.

The stairs descend for quite some time, moving deeper and deeper beneath the earth.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows

The chanting gets louder, and soon becomes clear as distinct voices.

It sounds like a dozen voices saying, over and over: "He is the Ancient. He is the Land."

Marcus Veranius takes a deep breath before going further

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

8

Healing

Second Wind
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gets an urge to drown out the voices with her own playing, but doesn't give in just yet.

Marcus Veranius:

8

STEALTH (6)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

5

STEALTH (3)
Suldae Westwind

(wow)

(brb)

The passage turns sharply to the right, opening onto a large chamber with many pillars. There are niches along the walls of this chamber, each containing a small relic.

You see: A small, mummified hand. A knife carved from a human bone. A dagger with a rat's skull set into the pommel. An 8-inch-diameter varnished orb. An aspergillum carved from bone. A folded cloak made of stitched skin. A desiccated frog lashed to a stick. A bag of something. A finger. A 6-inch-tall wooden figurine of a mummy, its arms crossed over its chest. An iron pendant adorned with a devil's face. A shrunken, shriveled head of a halfling. A small wooden coffer.

Marcus Veranius: (I can't actually see what's in the marked spaces. It's just normal wall there)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae walks along the walls, whistling softly to try to detect any magic

8

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

(and same)

Marcus Veranius: "On second thought, I rather miss the windmills."

Suldae Westwind: "The windmills are just useful and largely harmless in themselves," Suldae agrees.

Ireena Kolyana: "Yeah, these are creepy..."

"I think this is a goblin's hand," Ireena says.

"And this, I'm pretty sure, is a Nothic's eye."

Suldae Westwind: (what does or doesn't Suldae detect?)

Suldae detects no magic, except for a lingering aura of divination magic around the varnished orb.

GM: The way they set up the lighting for this room is a little wack, sorry

Suldae Westwind: "What's that?"

Marcus Veranius: (Oh shit, does the campaign come with its own lighting pre-set up? Thats nice)

GM: the alcoves probably won't show up correctly

Yes, it's all pre set-up, which is lovely and convenient except when it's wrong

Tops K.: :U

Suldae Westwind: well rn I can see the dagger and the thing Ireena is in front of

Marcus Veranius pokes at the museum macarbe with his sword, checking if any of the items have hidden switches underneath

None of the items have hidden switches underneath. While poking around, Marcus notes some tunnels leading out of the room. The southern tunnel slopes down at a 20 degree angle, into murky water. It ends at a rusty portcullis.

The other southern tunnel turns sharply to the west after just ten feet.

Suldae Westwind: "What's a Nothic's eye?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Nothics are what happens when a wizard delves too deeply into secrets guarded by Vecna."

"Vecna, god of secrets, turns them into a monster with a single glowing eye."

"It doesn't really have any special features, once you take it out of the Nothic, though."

 Sulda Westwind: "Ah," Suldae says sagely, and backs off. "How about we don't touch anything in this room?"

(What about the chanting?)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Yes, I agree... Perhaps we should avoid touching anything in this room."

GM: (Good morning y'all!)

 Tops K.: (Mornin!)

 Marcus Veranius: "Shame. I was looking forward to taking a giant eyeball home with me."

"In more serious matters; I'd rather not be trapped behind that gate in the hallway. Shall we see if there's a way around?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Yes, I think that might be a good idea."

 Liliet (Suldae): (Good evening everyone!)

 Ireena Kolyana: "What about that tunnel?"

Marcus finds that the tunnel curves out of sight almost instantly.

 Sulda Westwind: "Are you going to check or shall I?"

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae shudders a little, remembering her previous experience going first, with the door and everything, but stands willing to go

 Marcus Veranius spot-checks for traps

 Marcus Veranius:

23

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

 Ireena Kolyana lights up her torch and gives Suldae's hand a squeeze. "I'll go first," she says.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae smiles gratefully and follows last, her ocarina at the ready

 Ireena Kolyana: "These are... cells!"

Rusty shackles hang from the walls.

 Sulda Westwind: "Anyone there?"

 Marcus Veranius: "Better question; why is there need for a second set of them?"

 Sulda Westwind: "Can never have too many?" Suldae suggests cheerfully

 Ireena Kolyana: "There seem to be an awful lot of strange things in this house..."
"Oh!"

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe there's another statue of Strahd he needs guests to observe."

There is a skeleton shackled to the wall of this final cell.

The skeleton is wrapped in ragged black robes.

Suldae Westwind: "Well this seems to be a dead end," Suldae concludes, glancing around warily
"Oh!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Well."

"That's odd though. Aren't these the same robes we found earlier?"

The robes do look suspiciously similar to the robes of a cultist.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae doesn't need to think to check - she gives a shrill note of the instrument, checking for any magic

11

ARCANA (6)
Suldae Westwind

(To Marcus Veranius): While Suldae and Ireena are looking at the corpse, you spot a section of wall that looks a little strange...

(To Suldae Westwind): You detect no magic, but you do see a glint of something gold on one of the skeleton's fingers.

Marcus Veranius s' eyes turn suspiciously towards one of the cells.

Marcus Veranius: "Give the skeleton a poke for me; think I might have found something."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks the gold glimpse

The skeleton is wearing a small gold ring.

Marcus Veranius starts investigating what is probably yet another hidden door.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers the situation for the moment, then shrugs and takes the ring.
Pauses to wait for any reaction

Having spotted the door, finding the switch is relatively easy -- one of the shackles on the wall is hanging from a bracket that seems to be hinged on the bottom.

There is no reaction from the skeleton.

Ireena Kolyana: "Never thought I'd be relieved to find a genuine dead body," Ireena mutters.

Marcus Veranius: "Well, I was right about the cells."

Ireena Kolyana: "What did you find, Marcus?"

Suldae Westwind: "Good point," Suldae agrees and goes to catch up to Marcus and give the gold ring over into the group funds

Marcus Veranius: "Not a sitting room I'm afraid. Looks more like an altar."

GM: (The gold ring is worth 25 gp.)

Sulda Westwind: "Oh, of course it does" Sulda sighs

By pulling the chain, you activate the mechanism of the secret door.

A section of the wall slides open.

The chanting stops as you peer into this forty-foot-square room. The smooth masonry walls provide excellent acoustics. Featureless stone pillars support the ceiling, and a breach in the west wall leads to a dark cave heaped with refuse. Murky water covers most of the floor. Stairs lead up to dry stone ledges that hug the walls. In the middle of the room, more stairs rise to form an octagonal dais that also rises above the water. Rusty chains with shackles dangle from the ceiling directly above a stone altar mounted on the dais. The altar is carved with hideous depictions of grasping ghouls and is stained with dry blood.

GM: (Should be breach in the "SOUTH" wall, not west.)

Sulda Westwind: Sulda gulps. She notes the stopped chanting and is not expecting anything good out of it *chanting

Ireena Kolyana crouches down and draws her rapier. She pokes into the murky water, feeling for the bottom. She pulls the blade back up and glances at it.

Marcus Veranius: "Looks like we found the subject of Strahd's letter."

Ireena Kolyana: "Looks about two feet deep," she says. "At least, near the edge."

Marcus Veranius: "Going to be honest. I wasn't quite expecting this level of effort."

Sulda Westwind: "Maybe it was pre-existing?"

Marcus Veranius: "If not, I could see where the family fortune went."

Sulda Westwind: "We've got a bit of that fortune," Sulda nods towards his baggage.

Marcus Veranius moves back a bit, then makes a running jump towards the center island.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda peers into the far corner of the room

DARKVISION

Racial: Half-Elf

Thanks to your elf blood, you have superior vision in dark and dim conditions. You can see in dim light within 60 feet of you as if it were bright light, and in darkness as if it were dim light. You can't discern color in darkness, only shades of gray.

Marcus lands lightly on the steps leading up to the altar.

(To Sulda Westwind): You see a large mound of refuse in the alcove.

 Suldae Westwind: (I can't see that corner on the map)

 Ireena Kolyana: Better?

 Suldae Westwind: (yes, ty!)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Are you alright there, Suldae? Are your eyes bothering you?"

 Marcus Veranius: "Maybe this will help a bit." Marcus mentions, lighting a torch from his bag and placing it on the center of the island.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers pushing her into the water, but just lightly elbows her instead

The chanting rises once more as thirteen dark apparitions appear on the ledges overlooking the room. Each one resembles a black-robed figure holding a torch, but the torch's fire is black and seems to draw light into it. Where you'd expect to see faces are voids.

 Ireena Kolyana:

"One must die!" they chant, over and over. "One must die! One must die!"

"One must die!" they chant, over and over. "One must die! One must die!"

 Marcus Veranius: "Oh hell no."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes a running jump after Marcus
"Catch me!" she yells

 Ireena Kolyana: "MARCUS? WHAT DID YOU DO?"

Ireena leaps the gap.

 Marcus Veranius: "I LIT A TORCH!" Marcus shouts, holding a hand out for the other two

 Suldae Westwind: "Clearly that was a bad idea!" Suldae shares

 Ireena Kolyana goes back to back with the other two, crossbow ready.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes a deep breath and starts playing

36

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

A slow, pulling melody waves around the room

It cannot drown out the persistent chanting.

 Marcus Veranius 's eyes frantically glance around the figures, then towards the altar

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers the situation, then pulls the torch out

 Marcus Veranius: "...I have an idea!"

 Ireena Kolyana: "What do you think it means? 'One Must Die?'"

Suldae Westwind: "Probably that one of us must die, but I respectfully disagree!"

Marcus Veranius: "It means we push this altar over so dying isn't an option."
"Give me a hand."

Overhead, the chains rattle and shift. Ireena cannot help but look up at the sound. Corpses have appeared, hanging upside-down from the chains.

Their faces are grimaces of horror, and their bodies have been slashed hundreds of times.

Suldae Westwind: (Where are the chains and corpses? Above the central dais, or?)

The corpses swing back and forth over the altar, which is stained black with ancient blood.

Ireena Kolyana lets out a short scream before clapping a hand over her mouth.

Ireena Kolyana: "I think we know how they did their sacrifices," Ireena says.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs for her hand and gives it a reassuring squeeze

Ireena Kolyana: "I'll help you, Marcus!"

Suldae Westwind: (Does pulling out the torch have any effect?)

Ireena Kolyana: "Come on, Suldae! Together, we can do it!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins the effort

GM: Pulling the torch out gives you back your torch, still lit.

Ireena pauses.

Ireena Kolyana: "Marcus, look at these carvings!"

"It doesn't have to be human!"

Marcus Veranius is too shaken up for witty banter. He takes a closer look towards where Ireena mentions.

Suldae Westwind: "I propose we don't do what they want anyway!"

Suldae pushes the altar first

The carvings depict many animals being sacrificed on the altar, and the blood of even small creatures satisfying the thirst of Strahd.

Suldae Westwind:

15

ATHLETICS (0)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

4

ATHLETICS (0)
Marcus Veranius

Ireena Kolyana looks around at the chanting figures on the walls.

Ireena Kolyana: "Do we really want to defy the cult?"

"Fuck it!"

15

STRENGTH SAVE (0)

Marcus Veranius: "I aint here to continue the cycle of this death house!"

Suldae Westwind: "I say that's exactly what we want to do!"

Ireena joins the effort. Between the three of you, the altar is easily toppled. It crashes onto its side and rolls clumsily down the steps, landing with a splash of muddy water.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around

Marcus Veranius stumbles as the altar gives way, breathing heavily out of exhaustion and fear. He eyes the room out of panic, hoping something's changed.

The cultists stop chanting.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae experimentally flips them off

Their voices rise once more: "LORGHOTH THE DECAYER, WE AWAKEN THEE!"

There is a sound of something massive slipping into the water...

Suldae Westwind: "Oh fuck you!" Suldae exclaims

Marcus Veranius: "Oh fuck that!"

Marcus Veranius exclaims louder

Ireena Kolyana: "RUN!"

Marcus Veranius: "The secret corridor!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pulls out the ocarina again, and puts her back into it this time

The sounds of ancient cries of pain fills the air.

Suldae Westwind:

11

Higher Level Cast

21

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

(wow)

Suldae knows that she has produced the strongest sleep spell of her short career.

The creature slides through the water sluggishly, separating liquidly to move around a pillar.

It seems completely unaffected.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to jump across the gap towards the stairs, judging it more climbable

21

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

(What's the corridor to the north there?)

Suldae lands lightly in shallow water, next to the sealed portcullis. She can see safety! A wooden wheel emerges from the wall to her right.

Suldae Westwind: (ah ty)

Through the Portcullis, Suldae can see the room with the trinkets in alcoves.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers the situation. She takes out the crossbow and aims at the trinket she can see.

12

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

8

Piercing

Ireena Kolyana screams! Something explodes out of the water, nearer than the main body of the mound!

Ireena Kolyana:

SLAM
Shambling Mound

Attack: 19 | 14

Damage: 12 bludgeoning

SLAM
Shambling Mound

Attack: 26 | 24

Damage: 11 bludgeoning

Suldae Westwind: (should we have rolled initiative at some point?)

Marcus Veranius: (Probably)

Suldae Westwind:

10.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Shambling Mound:

INITIATIVE
Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 20

Marcus Veranius:

13.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Shambling Mound:

INITIATIVE
Shambling Mound

Initiative: 13

Ireena just barely skips back, out of reach of the creature's sudden tendrils!

Ireena makes a running jump to land in the water near Suldae.

Shambling Mound:

10

DEXTERITY SAVE (1)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches out to catch Ireena!

GM: That was Ireena's dex save, should have been a dex check

Ireena Kolyana fumbles the landing but Suldae snatches her hand before she can fall.

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Suldae's crossbow shot hits the trinket. There is no reaction.

Suldae Westwind: (Is it pushed out of position / knocked over?)

The trinket, overbalanced by the crossbow bolt, rolls off its pedestal and across the ground.

It's the Nothic's eye.

Marcus Veranius pulls out his crossbow, arms shaking. "The.... the garden is... somehow not as bad as you!"

Suldae Westwind: "Well that didn't work! Run! Marcus!"

Marcus Veranius fires bolts into the creature to cover his escape

Suldae Westwind: (bardic inspiration that you still have, don't forget it! it expires soon)

Marcus Veranius: (Action, bonus action, action surge)

17

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius9Piercing20

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius9Piercing17

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius5Piercing*

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

8*Bonus Damage[Menacing Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (n i c e)Marcus Veranius: (I'll throw another menacing attack on if it passes the save)Ireena Kolyana:
WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 2

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 15

"Oh, Marcus! That's a terribly menacing attack! I think it's afraid of you!"

Marcus Veranius: "Hopefully more than I am of it!"

Marcus Veranius moves for the door

Shambling Mound pauses as the crossbow bolts rip into it. It seems afraid!

The secret door has sealed itself.

Marcus Veranius: "...other exit!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae points at the portcullis

The Shambling Mound circles around the dais, keeping itself exactly the same distance from Marcus. Half of its body slides up the ledge, out of the water.

Ireena Kolyana: "Can we lift it!?"

Suldae and Marcus both see the large wooden winch-wheel sticking out of the wall.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae decides to try something else. She presses against the wall and raises the ocarina to her lips again.

A silly, jolting melody sounds, matching its rhythm to the movement of tendrils

Hideous Laughter

Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature of your choice that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (Tiny tarts and a feather that is waved in the air)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A creature of your choice that you can see within range perceives everything as hilariously funny and falls into fits of laughter if this spell affects it. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or fall prone, becoming incapacitated and unable to stand up for the duration. A creature with an Intelligence score of 4 or less isn't affected. At the end of each of its turns, and each time it takes damage, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. The target has advantage on the saving throw if it's triggered by damage. On a success, the spell ends.

Marcus Veranius: "You two turn the wheel! I'll keep the monster at bay!"

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 14

The Shambling Mound, it seems, is just barely smart enough to find the tune amusing.

A strange, fluting, huffing sound seems to emerge from the now-vibrating trash-monster.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to the other two towards the wheel, frantically playing

Ireena Kolyana:

1

ATHLETICS (0)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT, to be clear)

Ireena Kolyana runs to the wheel and throws herself against one of the handles, putting her whole body into the effort. It seems the chain is stuck with rust! Her feet slip and, unable to arrest her momentum, the handle hits her in the gut and knocks the wind out of her.

Ireena Kolyana: "Oof!"

Marcus Veranius makes a go for the wheel with Suldae distracting the beast

Marcus Veranius:

10

STRENGTH SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

+ Inspiration

(what do I roll again? D4?)

Suldae Westwind: d6, but that's a save you rolled

Marcus Veranius: Feck

Suldae Westwind: not ability or athletics

Marcus Veranius:

17

STRENGTH (0)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 1d4

(2)

= 2

(...im bad at this)

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION*Class: Bard*

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost.

A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

it was a 1d6

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d6 Marcus's shook extends to his dice rolls

(5)

= 5

Suldae Westwind: (you'll figure it out with time I believe in you)

GM: We're all suffering through the UI lmao

Suldae Westwind: yeah XD

Marcus, joining Ireena, manages to turn the wheel, break up the rust, and raise the Portcullis. Ireena loosened it for him.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods towards the tunnel, still playing

(talking's a free action, so's nodding)

Ireena Kolyana: "Quick! Let's go!"

Marcus Veranius: "You don't have to tell me twice!"

Marcus feels as though the Portcullis will drop the moment the handle is released. Even now, its weight is pulling against him.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Goodbye, my old friend."

Marcus Veranius shoves the crowbar into the wheel in hopes of jamming it

Ireena Kolyana ducks up the hallway, unaware of Marcus's plight.

The crowbar jams the wheel!

The Portcullis is held -- momentarily.

Ireena Kolyana: "COME ON!"

Suldae Westwind: (so we're ignoring initiative again?)

Marcus Veranius: (That was my move/item interaction)

[EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM Shambling Mound <hr/> Ability: 5

Suldae Westwind: :D

GM: Mound boy is incapacitated for now

Suldae Westwind: Suldae ducks past Marcus and backs up the tunnel, still playing

[EoT]

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius fires some parting shots into the mound, then backs into the museum corridor

Marcus Veranius:

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

22

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8
Piercing

[EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound
Ability: 11

(To Suldae Westwind): You're up

Shambling Mound: (EoT)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae keeps playing, following the others

GM: (These are 5-foot squares -- we have to get through the whole house in initiative order since y'all defied the cult -- I'm proud of you, by the way. My IRL Strahd group made a sacrifice lol)

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound
Ability: 6 | 3

Suldae Westwind: [EoT]

Ireena books it up the stairs.

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius sprints up the stairs. Best not to let Green and Creepy catch up

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound
Ability: 8

The Shambling Mound can still be heard, chuffing and puffing.

It still seems to find the music funny.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows her friends, really grateful for this place's acoustics
The chanting could be heard up to fuck knows where, hopefully it'll work in reverse too

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae! I have a plan!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to him, still playing.

Marcus Veranius: "This entire basement is supported by wooden beams, yeah?"

"And there's a box full of torches in a flammable bedroom, yeah?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pushes her bag with an elbow towards him, remembering there was a flask of alchemist's fire in there.

Marcus Veranius reaches for the pocket she mentions, picking up the bottle

Suldae Westwind: ('mentions' lmao)

(ocarina is a flute)

Marcus Veranius: "...yer a doll. Make for the Statue room; I'll be right there."

(Can Marcus's token be moved to the next floor?)

[EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM Shambling Mound <hr/> Ability: 17
--

Marcus Veranius: (OH NO)

You no longer hear the beast's chuffing laughter.

Suldae Westwind: (eot?)

Shambling Mound: (EoT)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gasps for air, yells "Do that! I'll keep it down as long as I can!" and starts up a somewhat different ditty.

Hideous Laughter*Enchantment 1Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A creature of your choice that you can see within rangeComponents: V, S, M (Tiny tarts and a feather that is waved in the air)Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A creature of your choice that you can see within range perceives everything as hilariously funny and falls into fits of laughter if this spell affects it. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or fall prone, becoming incapacitated and unable to stand up for the duration. A creature with an Intelligence score of 4 or less isn't affected. At the end of each of its turns, and each time it takes damage, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. The target has advantage on the saving throw if it's triggered by damage. On a success, the spell ends.

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 20Suldae Westwind: (AUGH)*She hears no reaction from the creature.Suldae Westwind: (o well)Marcus Veranius: (The time for laughter is over)Suldae Westwind: (that's what you think)

Suldae stands above the stairs and catches her breath to try again.

(EoT)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena runs down the eastern hallway and rounds the corner, headed to the altar room.

"Let's go this way, remember! There's a shortcut!"

(EoT)

*Marcus Veranius takes the Dash Action, moving at double-pace towards the bedroomMarcus Veranius climbs the table, Suldae-style. He can't afford to miss.Marcus Veranius: [EoT]Unseen, dark appendages squeeze easily through a portcullis...

Shambling Mound: (EoT)Sulda Westwind:*Hideous LaughterEnchantment 1Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A creature of your choice that you can see within rangeComponents: V, S, M (Tiny tarts and a feather that is waved in the air)Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A creature of your choice that you can see within range perceives everything as hilariously funny and falls into fits of laughter if this spell affects it. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or fall prone, becoming incapacitated and unable to stand up for the duration. A creature with an Intelligence score of 4 or less isn't affected. At the end of each of its turns, and each time it takes damage, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. The target has advantage on the saving throw if it's triggered by damage. On a success, the spell ends.

Shambling Mound:*WISDOM
*Shambling MoundAbility: 9Sulda hears the chuffing sound of the creature's laughter from the staircase.Sulda Westwind: Not allowing herself a breath of relief for fear of spoiling the melody, Sulda starts backing away again

(EoT)

Ireena makes it to the secret door. She gets one hand on the ladder.Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)Marcus Veranius raises the bottle, eyes aimed for the chest of torches and discarded clothing.*Marcus Veranius: "Gustav Durst; you are a shame to every father that has ever raised a family. May your ghost burn in the ashes of your wicked house."2820 ftAlchemist's Fire (+8)
Marcus VeraniusSulda Westwind: D A N G

The alchemist's fire flies true. Marcus lobs it perfectly so that it slips right past one of the wooden pillars. The bottle is spinning wildly as it flies, and the neck of the bottle catches against the doorpost and shatters, uncorking the bottle and accelerating its spin. As the spinning bottle falls, it spews a spiral of liquid around itself, drenching everything in the room. There is a rushing sound as flames ignite on every surface! All flammable objects, including the wooden posts holding up the roof, are soon roaring with flame!

Marcus sees a shape amid the flames! A ghostly figure, writhing in pain!

Marcus Veranius smirks, then speeds towards the exit

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM Shambling Mound <hr/> Ability: 13

Shambling Mound: (What's your spellcasting DC, Suldae?)
(Is it really 13?)

Suldae Westwind: it's 13 I think, plus 1 for spell level
let me check

Marcus Veranius: (13 sounds about right. Marcus's maneuver save is 14 under similar calculations)

Suldae Westwind: 8 + proficiency bonus (2) + charisma mod (3) + spell level which is 1 in this case but i have one second level spell slot which is getting blown next
IF it's needed
hopefully not

GM: Per 5e RAW, I don't think the level of the spell counts to the DC

Suldae Westwind: let me check

Marcus Veranius: (I don't mean to be That Guy, but isn't the range 30 ft, and requiring sight of the target?)

GM: "The DC to resist one of your spells equals 8 + your spellcasting modifier + your Proficiency Bonus + any Special modifiers"

Suldae Westwind: hmm

Marcus Veranius: (It wouldnt have mattered since the other uses out of range/sight missed anyways)

Suldae Westwind: where did i see the spell level thing

GM: Maybe a class feature somewhere?

We can handwave the line-of-sight for the dedicated RP musical casting, we'll call it line-of-hearing. She's had to focus solely on the sound. RAW the spell doesn't require you to do anything after you cast it -- it's a concentration spell, but that doesn't mean you have to devote your turn to continuing to cast it.

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Marcus Veranius: (Oh nice)

Suldae Westwind: anyway 13 means nothing changes, right?
equal means nothing changes

GM: At or above DC means success

Suldae Westwind: dammit

Suldae no longer hears the creature's laughter... Could be the acoustics? She does hear the roar of flames down the hall to her right, though.

Unseen, a dark creature begins to climb stairs...

Suldae Westwind: eot?

Shambling Mound: (EoT)

Suldae feels that her spell is no longer working.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in and out. She dashes for the exit, then at the ladder starts playing again - her last attempt

Hideous Laughter

Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature of your choice that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (Tiny tarts and a feather that is waved in the air)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A creature of your choice that you can see within range perceives everything as hilariously funny and falls into fits of laughter if this spell affects it. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or fall prone, becoming incapacitated and unable to stand up for the duration. A creature with an Intelligence score of 4 or less isn't affected. At the end of each of its turns, and each time it takes damage, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. The target has advantage on the saving throw if it's triggered by damage. On a success, the spell ends.

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 11

She cannot hear the creature, but she feels that her magic is working upon it.

Ireena Kolyana:

5

CONSTITUTION SAVE (0)

Suldae Westwind: (uM)

Ireena Kolyana pushes up the trapdoor. Thick black smoke billows down the ladder, and she coughs as she enters it. 8

Ireena slams the trapdoor back down and descends the ladder, hacking and wheezing so hard she can barely cling.

Ireena Kolyana: Voice hoarse, she gasps: "It's full of smoke! The whole living room!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes in horror, but continues to play as she hopes her friends will come up with a solution.

Suldae sees that her eyes have gone bloodshot and dry, and there is a greyish, sickly tint to her face now.

It seems the smoke is poisonous...

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius: "I don't mean to put pressure on you, but the Dursts don't fuck around when it comes to Alchemist's fire. We can't stay here!"

"Head for the roof! I have a rope; we'll climb down."

Suldae Westwind: (it was a spiral staircase, right? not a ladder?)

GM: The ladder leads up to the living room, the spiral staircase leads to the third floor.

Suldae Westwind: (thank god)

(Suldae can go up that)

Marcus Veranius sprints for the staircase, hoping to get the rope ready for the others

Suldae Westwind: (hmm)

Marcus Veranius: [Dash Action for double movement speed, EoT]

Suldae Westwind: (can one character help another move faster, like splitting the difference from dash)

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 17

Suldae Westwind: OH FUCKDAMMIT

NEVER MIND THEN

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 11

GM: For flubbing the NPC "As" line

We will go with the 11

Sulda Westwind: ilu

GM: Since Ireena doesn't know the Shambling Mound is making saves, let alone what the results would be in answer to your question, no, there's not really any way to do a three-legged race

Sulda Westwind: it feels intuitively like pulling someone along with an action should be a thing hm

Marcus Veranius: (Use one of the potions; see if that helps?)

Sulda Westwind: maybe with an Athletics or Acrobatics roll? I just want Ireena to have an option to help Suldae rather than just leave her to cover the retreat on her own 0.0

it feels off rp-wise for there to not be an option

Marcus ran off for a reason

Ireena probably needs a potion now

but after that like it's not that Suldae minds, in-character, she's a bit too busy trying to make an eldritch horror laugh

GM: We will say that a character can keep you with them. Think of it as her sort of "carrying" you. Per round you will only be able to go the full distance of one of you dashing, so long as that person spends their entire turn dashing. So you can run (not dash), then Ireena can run past you and bring you with her to the spot where her dash action ends.

Sulda Westwind: yessss ^^

Strange laughter continues to echo in the basement.

Shambling Mound: (EoT)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae keeps her composure as best he can, moving after Marcus and playing (EoT)

Ireena, coughing, sprints down the stairs and chases after Suldae, snagging her by the elbow as they run. "Come on, Suldae!"

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius continues his dash up the stairwell, looking back to make sure Ireena and Suldae are still following. Exhaustion hurts, but he can save time for pain later.

Marcus Veranius: (30 movement to the stairs, 30 to climb them?)

GM: Sure

Marcus Veranius: Marcus makes it to the roof.

[EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM Shambling Mound <hr/> Ability: 6
--

GM: I do'd it again

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM Shambling Mound <hr/> Ability: 6
--

(EoT)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still playing, as she moves to keep up with Ireena
(just EoT, assume shes moving lmao)

By the end of their climb, Ireena and Suldae are just 10 feet behind Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: (i mean realistically as im picturing the scene suldae and ireena arent moving in jerks turn by turn, they're running together once Ireena has caught up to her)

^^

GM: agreed

You emerge from the spiral staircase in the top floor of the building, the attic.

The windows are sealed -- they appear to be brick walls.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands on the top of the staircase and plays as her music echoes down it

The house is different -- the walls are shifting, almost melting. They seem almost like liquid.

Marcus Veranius: "What the..."

Suldae Westwind: She is afraid to move away until she's certain they'll get away

You hear the sound of burning...

The stove next to Ireena suddenly bursts with inner fire! There is a blast of ashes and swirling embers, then black smoke billows out through the stove's grate.

Marcus Veranius: "God damn house!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Don't breathe it!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels tears flow down her cheeks. She's terrified, but she's more terrified of not playing, so she continues

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius runs into the hallway, fetching the house's deed from his pocket. He half-hopes presenting it might wrangle the structure still

Marcus Veranius: (Is this window bricked as well?)

All the windows are bricked.

Marcus Veranius: "Window's not happening! Make for the balcony!"

Marcus Veranius dashes down the stairs

Suldae Westwind: Suldae remembers the bats, but understands that it's the least worst option right now

GM: make a DEX save

Marcus Veranius:

18

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Marcus Veranius

As Marcus books it through the doorway, he feels a woosh of something almost taking his hat off. A nearly-invisible steel blade swept out of the doorframe, missing him by inches.

All of the doors melt.

Marcus Veranius: "WAA!"

Suldae Westwind: (holy shit)

Instead, steel blades swing on a timer.

Ireena Kolyana: "WHAT THE FUCK!?"

Marcus Veranius: "I CHANGE MY MIND! YOU'RE WORSE THAN THE WINDMILL!"

Suldae Westwind: the initiative is over?

Ireena Kolyana: (Initiative still ongoing)
(Until you escape)

Suldae Westwind: why can't I see it

Marcus Veranius: (Can Marcus continue his move to downstairs?)

GM: Yes

Can you see it now?

Marcus Veranius: (Is the doorway we cut through bladed as well, or is it fine?)

At the bottom of the stairs, Marcus sees that every door in the house, including the secret ones, have installed blade traps.

GM: You can attempt to time the blades with an intelligence or investigation check
OR you can attempt a DEX save.

Marcus Veranius:

5

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: o u c h

Marcus Veranius: (I chose poorly)

Marcus leaps from the secret staircase, but the floorboard gives out.

GM: 10 Slashing damage.

Marcus yanks his foot free just in time, but the blade slashes him in the arm as it passes.

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Ireena Kolyana:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound
Ability: 6

GM: Goddammit I keep doing that as Ireena

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound
Ability: 19

Suldae Westwind: could you keep the first one pls

0.-

GM: We'll keep the first one for me flubbing it

Suldae Westwind: ilu

GM: As long as I keep making mistakes it's gonna be disadvantage all the time lmao

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Suldae's stuck at the top of the staircase playing

GM: Ok, from now on the roll is the roll, regardless of the NPC it says its for

Suldae Westwind: can that thing die of fire alright that's fair

Shambling Mound: [EoT]

Suldae Westwind: EoT, stuck

Marcus Veranius: (Can we get the init order re-done? I cant see it cause all the tokens on init are on another map)

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 21.14

INITIATIVE

Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 21.18

INITIATIVE

Animated Armor

Initiative: 2

INITIATIVE

Animated Armor

Initiative: 5

INITIATIVE

Animated Armor

Initiative: 16

Ireena Kolyana:

INITIATIVE

Animated Armor

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE

Shambling Mound

Initiative: 16

GM: Initiative corrected
Can you see it correctly now?

Suldae Westwind: aye aye cap'n

Marcus Veranius: Yee, although it isnt the same numbers as in the basement
Are we using the new set?

GM: We'll use the new set but consider it a new combat

The Armor standing on the landing turns its helmet abruptly to look at Marcus!

The spike of adrenaline gives him the speed to act first!

Marcus Veranius: "Oh hell no, not this again!"

Suldae Westwind: wait, it was ireena's turn wasn't it it should be before it's the slime's turn again!

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow, throwing everything he's got into the armor

Marcus Veranius:

9

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

5

Piercing

10

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

(Well, Marcus is dead)

[EoT]

Ping! Ping! The crossbow bolts glance off the armor!

GM: Take a full turn including movement, Marcus

Those were two attacks on this new turn

Marcus Veranius: Marcus moves around the armor, giving room for the others to dodge that bladed doorway

(now EoT?)

GM: (Do you have that rogue thing where you can bonus action disengage?)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus is a Fighter)

GM: (Damn)

Marcus Veranius: (And he used his bonus for the second crossbow shot)

Suldae Westwind: (you offered giving us goodies from other classes - cleric for Suldae, rogue for Marcus)

(to make up for small party

)

(that never went anywhere other than the spell scrolls afaik)

Marcus Veranius: (It's fine. We can talk about that later. Ima cross fingers that Marcus can hold out till the others get here)

(He's still got the mega potion)

(Suldae's up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is playing :)

i delay until after Ireena?

Suldae can feel that her magic is still working on the creature, even so far below her.

GM: Delaying action till after Ireena

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Marcus hears heavy stomping from the ground floor.

Animated Armor: (EoT)

Ireena, coughing and hacking as the black smoke starts to fill the room, grabs Suldae and drags her backwards towards the exit.

Ireena Kolyana: "Come on! We can't stay here! You can't play if you can't breathe!"

8

DEXTERITY SAVE (1)

"Agh!" Ireena takes 11 slashing damage as she jumps through the trapped door.

Her left arm still clings to Suldae.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae goes into a coughing fit herself and reluctantly abandons playing. She goes up to the door with Ireena Ireena screams in pain, clutching at the stump of her left arm.

Suldae Westwind:

15

INVESTIGATION (3)
Suldae Westwind

WHAT THE FUCK

Suldae times the blade perfectly.

Suldae Westwind: ALRIGHT

Suldae grabs the potion out of the bag, moves the arm to the stump and forcibly makes Ireena drink

She isn't sure it will work

but she feels that she cannot manage another spell today

Ireena Kolyana chugs the potion greedily.

Ireena Kolyana cries out in pain. The arm has reconnected, but is still injured and painful.

Ireena Kolyana regains 8 HP.

Suldae Westwind: nice!

it's now Suldae's turn to pull her along

Ireena leans on Suldae for support.

Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

Shambling Mound:

WISDOM
Shambling Mound

Ability: 4

Suldae Westwind: (same)

Suldae's no longer playing

she's stopped when she moved away from the staircase and definitely stopped when she healed Ireena

)=

the monster is free

Unseen, a creature begins to move. Strange... Everything is burning...

Time to find another path...

In the floor below him, Marcus hears heavy footsteps, as though something is moving out of the secret room and towards the main landing.

What's taking Ireena and Suldae so long to catch up?

He doesn't have long to think about it as the armor before him raises its steel fists.

Animated Armor:

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 5

Damage: 7 bludgeoning

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 6

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

MULTIATTACK
Animated Armor

The armor makes two melee attacks.

Marcus dodges and deflects the creature's blows!

Animated Armor:

STRENGTH
Animated Armor

Ability: 7

Ireena Kolyana: "GAHHH!" Ireena jerks her hair out of a steel grasp!

Animated Armor is reaching through the doorway of the child's bedroom, and a blade slices through its arm!

The arm lands on the floor at Ireena's feet, still moving!

Animated Armor: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. Let's play a game."

Marcus Veranius disengages and attempts to look into the Master Bedroom

Marcus Veranius: (Is the Balcony exit still fine?)

The Balcony exit appears to be fine.

Marcus Veranius readies the large potion, ready to try something particularly stupid... next round

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Sulda Westwind: Suldae tries to time the door again, for herself and Ireena both 21

INVESTIGATION (3)
Sulda Westwind

Suldae gets the timing perfectly, and she and Ireena are able to hustle through.

Sulda Westwind: Can she do 2 investigation checks and dash?
or at least the other investigation check on the same turn?

The investigation check counts as an action, it takes a little bit of time.

Sulda Westwind: well, that's that then

At the bottom of the stairs, Suldae sees a suit of armor turning towards Marcus, who is standing on the far side of the landing near the Master Bedroom door.

Marcus Veranius spots Suldae

She hears heavy steps on the stairs, climbing from the ground floor.

Sulda Westwind: "YOU CAN DO THIS!" she yells non-specifyingly

BARDIC INSPIRATION*Class: Bard*

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost.

A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

Ireena Kolyana:

16

INVESTIGATION (1)

Marcus Veranius: "This is the worst Deja-Vu I've ever had!"

Ireena times the slicing blade. "Stay here, Suldae!" She turns on the armor, raising her rapier.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to her back

Ireena Kolyana: "I'll tell you when to jump!" (She has timed it, so she can signal you to jump without needing to make the save individually.)

Suldae Westwind: (nice, gotcha)

Ireena Kolyana: "Hey, soldier boy! Tin man! Come on and face me, you hollow abomination! If your master were not a coward, he would face me himself!"

Animated Armor: The Animated Armor ignores her, remaining focused on Marcus.

Unseen, a creature searches for an escape from the flames.

Shambling Mound:

INTELLIGENCE
Shambling Mound

Ability: 13

Dark water does not burn, and time is as good an escape as distance. The Shambling Mound decides to return to its damp den.

Sulda Westwind: (THANK GOD THAT WORKED)

Suldae hears armor walking on the landing of the floor below.

Animated Armor:

MULTIATTACK
Animated Armor

The armor makes two melee attacks.

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 9

Damage: 3 bludgeoning

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 18

Damage: 4 bludgeoning

The Armor on this landing stomps after Marcus, swinging its huge fists! He dodges the first blow but the second cracks him on the side of the head.

Animated Armor:

DEXTERITY
Animated Armor

Ability: 18

Unseen, in the attic, a suit of animated armor walks seamlessly through a slicing blade, and picks up its fallen arm.

It is a small matter to reattach it...

Animated Armor: (EoT) -- Marcus

Marcus Veranius spits blood at the Animated Armor, then drinks a large healing potion

Marcus Veranius: rolling 6d4+6

(3 + 2 + 2 + 2 + 4 + 2)+6

= 21

Marcus feels new life enter his body.

Marcus Veranius: "Aww, did I piss you off by lighting your house on fire? Well what are you going to DO about it?"

Marcus Veranius goads the Animated Armor into following him through some doorways

Marcus Veranius:

13

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Marcus Veranius

9

DEXTERITY SAVE (4)
Marcus Veranius

(And one AoO)

(Opportunity Attack. Whatever its called in 5e)

Marcus takes 20 slashing damage as he runs through the blades.

Suldae Westwind: holy fuck

Marcus Veranius: Sorry, EoT]

Marcus Veranius braces through the sharp cuts, running high on adrenaline and healing magic.

The blades spray the master bedroom with his blood, painting walls and floor, but Marcus somehow makes it onto the balcony, only to come face-to-face with a tall, aquiline, middle-aged man, with dark hair and fine features. The man is dressed incredibly well, in fine red velvets and embroidered gold.

Suldae Westwind: holy fuck

um

okay then

(this is all ooc sorry)

Strahd von Zarovich:

CHARM
Strahd von Zarovich

Strahd targets one humanoid he can see within 30 feet of him. If the target can see Strahd, the target must succeed on a DC 17 Wisdom saving throw against this magic or be charmed. The charmed target regards Strahd as a trusted friend to be heeded and protected. The target isn't under Strahd's control, but it takes Strahd's requests and actions in the most favorable way and lets Strahd bite it.

Each time Strahd or his companions do anything harmful to the target, it can repeat the saving throw, ending the effect on itself on a success. Otherwise, the effect lasts 24 hours or until Strahd is destroyed, is on a different plane of existence than the target, or takes a bonus action to end the effect.

Suldae Westwind: FUCK

Marcus Veranius: Using Inspiration

As Marcus looks upon the man, he says, in a calm, refined voice: "Good evening, Marcus."

Marcus Veranius:

19

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

Nevermind

Suldae Westwind: thank god

"Is Ireena with you?"

Marcus Veranius looks at Strahd's boots first, as he always does when meeting a new fellow. Then upwards at the man's face.

Marcus sees his eyes blazing with inner ruby light.

He is reminded of a beast he once faced... One that took everything.

He knows that this is Strahd.

Marcus Veranius: "Count Strahd, I presume. Impeccable taste I see. Your statues do you a disservice."

Strahd von Zarovich: "Thank you," he says.

A bat lands on his shoulder, wrapping a wing around his head.

Marcus Veranius: "Alas, Ireena WAS with us."

Strahd von Zarovich: "I smell her blood, Marcus."

He says this with an utterly flat, almost disappointed tone of voice.

Marcus Veranius: "Unfortunately yes."

"She's with Gustav's pet now."

Strahd von Zarovich: Strahd chuckles.

"Gustav. Such a fool."

"It was a pleasure to wither his soul."

Marcus Veranius: "I must admit that his suffering brings some comfort."

"If you hurry to the basement, you may still be able to recover some part of Ireena's body. A resurrection, if you can afford it."

Strahd von Zarovich: The bat flies away, dropping something which Strahd catches. It's a hip flask.

Strahd holds it up.

"She has touched this before... Taken it away."

"Let me just see, here..."

His eyes blaze briefly with golden light.

Scrying

Divination 5

Casting Time: 10 minutes

Range: Self

Components: V, S, M (A focus worth at least 1,000 gp, such as a crystal ball, a silver mirror, or a font filled with holy water)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

You can see and hear a particular creature you choose that is on the same plane of existence as you. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw, which is modified by how well you know the target and the sort of physical connection you have to it. If a target knows you're casting this spell, it can fail the saving throw voluntarily if it wants to be observed.

Knowledge - Save Modifier

Secondhand (you have heard of the target) - +5

Firsthand (you have met the target) +0

Familiar (you know the target well) - -5

Connection - Save Modifier

Likeness or picture - -2

Possession or garment - -4

Body part, lock of hair, bit of nail, or the like -
-10

On a successful save, the target isn't affected, and you can't use this spell against it again for 24 hours.

On a failed save, the spell creates an invisible sensor within 10 feet of the target. You can see and hear through the sensor as if you were there. The sensor moves with the target, remaining within 10 feet of it for the duration. A creature that can see invisible objects sees the sensor as a luminous orb about the size of your fist.

Instead of targeting a creature, you can choose a location you have seen before as the target of this spell. When you do, the sensor appears at that location and doesn't move.

Strahd von Zarovich:

4

WISDOM SAVE (2)

GM: (It says Strahd but it's actually Ireena's wisdom save)

Marcus realizes that Strahd is apparently standing on midair.

Strahd smiles.

Strahd crushes the hip flask with one hand and drops it. "Get her. Bring her to me."

Marcus Veranius: "You've met my rival. I'm sure you know how thorough he is in destroying a man's life."

"There is nothing you can take from me beyond my life, and that no longer holds any value to anyone."

"If you want the girl, go save her yourself. "

Strahd waits patiently for Marcus to finish. Then, turning casually away and starting to walk on moonlight, he says: "I wasn't talking to you."

He vanishes without a sound.

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks."

Inside the house, the armor which planned to pursue Marcus jerks to a stop.

It turns slowly around, swiveling its head first to look at Ireena.

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh, bollocks..."

Suldae Westwind: (so im guessing this is EoT for Marcus?)

Marcus Veranius: (Yes)

Suldae saw Marcus duck through the first door and into the Master Bedroom, and saw the blade slice him as he made it through.

The armor which he hoped to convince into following him doesn't seem smart enough to suddenly turn around like that, full of intention.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gets through the door on Ireena's cue and takes position next to her, not seeing anything else productive she can do. She takes out the crossbow.

"Let's dance, then"

14

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

4

Piercing

PTANG! The bolt skips off.

The armor completely ignores her.

Suldae Westwind: "Saw that coming," she murmurs and calmly reloads. There's nothing left but calm, now. They're either already dead, or not.

(EoT)

Suldae hears armor on the first floor reaching the second floor landing.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena points in the general direction of Marcus. She mutters: "Marcus, what's happening out there?" Marcus hears it only in his ear.

Message

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A creature within range

Components: V, S, M (A short piece of copper wire)

Duration: 1 round

You point your finger toward a creature within range and whisper a message. The target (and only the target) hears the message and can reply in a whisper that only you can hear. You can cast this spell through solid objects if you are familiar with the target and know it is beyond the barrier. Magical silence, 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood blocks the spell. The spell doesn't have to follow a straight line and can travel freely around corners or through openings.

She's using a piece of silver wire, so the message is fuzzy, but Marcus hears it all the same.

Sulda Westwind: (NICE)

Marcus Veranius eyes the blade traps, the blood draping off his body, and the ringing and stomping of armors. he slumps against the wall, cuts aching.

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd's found us. He's here. And he's won. There's nothing I can do to save you."

Marcus Veranius ducks his head down in shame

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena processes this.

She points skyward, muttering something.

Sulda Westwind: (shouldnt you have more healing potions than the one you used)

Ireena Kolyana: She waits, resolutely, watching the armor.

The armor nods.

Her lip starts to shake.

She looks at Sulda, eyes brimming with tears. "It was the only way, please don't be sorry for me..."

She steps towards the armor.

Sulda Westwind: "NO!"

Sulda grabs her sleeve and pulls her back

Ireena Kolyana: "Let go of me!"

"LET GO!"

"I HAVE TO DO THIS, DON'T YOU UNDERSTAND!?"

Sulda Westwind:

8

STRENGTH (-1+1)
Sulda Westwind

"NO, I DON'T!" Sulda screams in her ear

Ireena Kolyana:

14

ATHLETICS (0)

Sulda Westwind: "STAY!!!"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena jerks her arm out of Sulda's grip.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda puts all hte desperation she as in her voice

6

PERSUASION (5)
Sulda Westwind

22

PERSUASION (5)
Suldae Westwind

 Ireena Kolyana: She wipes her eye furiously with her palm.

 Suldae Westwind: oops sorry
didnt react the first time :x

 Ireena Kolyana: She bites her lip.
Ireena can't look at Suldae. "I'm sorry. I don't see any other option."

 Suldae Westwind: "Don't leave me alone here..."
"Please..."
Suldae looks around at the shaking walls
"Please, don't..."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at the walls.
"The walls!"
"The fire!"

 Suldae Westwind: "Please, let's try!"

 Ireena Kolyana: "We just have to hold on a little bit longer!"
"COME ON, SULDAE!" Ireena shouts, and races for the stairs.

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 15

Damage: 6 bludgeoning

The suit of armor swings at her as she slips past, but it glances off her armor.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows (on her next turn Imao)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Oh BOLLOCKS! They're on the fucking stairs!"
"USE YOUR ROPE, SULDAE!"

STRENGTH
Animated Armor

Ability: 7

Even cornered between two suits, Ireena manages to dodge the armor which lurches down the staircase towards her.

A suit of armor barges down the secret stair, arriving at the bottom.

Marcus, on the balcony, has a moment to breathe. Nothing is chasing him right now. He begins to feel a little more clear-headed.

 Marcus Veranius takes a breather, then starts considering how he'll apologize to Ismark.

Marcus Veranius: He ties the rope to the balcony as planned, then slides down off of the house
[EoT, 15 feet of movement to get off the house, 15 feet towards the entrance]

Suldae Westwind: (gimme a sec i'm checking the scrolls)

"YOU'VE GOT THE FUCKING ROPE!!!" Suldae yells as she fumbles in her bag for something that could help - a scroll, she remembers a scroll

Ireena Kolyana: "I do? I DO!"

Suldae Westwind: A floating hammer manifests between Ireena and the armor, and slams into the armor, pushing it away from her back up the stairs

Meanwhile, Suldae leaps over the balcony railing down onto the stairs below Ireena yeet

12

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana:

6

DEXTERITY (1)

"Ow!"

Suldae Westwind: melee spell attack, that's...

Ireena Kolyana: "Could you have aimed that better!?"

GM: (That's where the other suit of armor was, technically -- on the floor below you)

Suldae Westwind: rolling 1d20+5

(4)+5

= 9

a u g h

hmm

if I land on it from above

do I knock it over or saddle its shoulders

Suldae Westwind: can I roll for that

GM: Not with the 12, unfortunately

Suldae Westwind: so what does happen?

Animated Armor:

STRENGTH
Animated Armor

Ability: 15

Suldae vaults over the balcony, aiming to land on the creature's shoulders or in its spot, if the spiritual hammer strikes it. Unfortunately, the spiritual hammer clangs against the armor, slightly staggering it, which causes it to move just enough that Suldae slides past its helmet and lands right next to Ireena, accidentally stepping on one of her feet

The armor is hardly moved at all.

GM: You still have movement left

Suldae Westwind: i meant to move the other one, yeah

doesnt matter tho

hmm

I'm guessing excess movement can't be spent on item interaction of grabbing Ireena's rope?

because if not I'm where I want to be and EoT

"You've still got potions!" Suldae cries out, reminding Ireena that they're not out of options yet

GM: You get one freebie Environment interaction (we'll call it grabbing/using the rope) if you want a second interaction you have to use an action, but I was assuming you'd already used the action to vault over the stairs and attempt to land on the guy's head. So yes, you can still use the rope.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs the rope, swings most of it down, winds it around the railing and nods for Ireena to go down it. She figures the armors aren't interested in /her/ anyway

(She is holding the rope)

Suldae sees two suits of armor climbing the staircase towards them and one coming down from the floor above.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena leaps, grabbing the rope, and slides right down it to the ground floor.

She looks up at Suldae. "Come on!"

MULTIATTACK
Animated Armor

The armor makes two melee attacks.

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 12

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

SLAM
Animated Armor

Attack: 20

Damage: 8 bludgeoning

Sulda Westwind: ("Yes, just gimme a sec while I get murdered by the armors!") (not actually happens but)

Animated Armor: The nearest ascending armor swings its fists brutally, missing with the first blow but almost dislocating her jaw with the second.

Sulda sees that the last of the ascending suits of armor is the one from the ground floor -- the one with the sword.

She doesn't have much time to think about that before the suit of armor approaching from above tries to grab her.

STRENGTH Animated Armor <hr/> Ability: 4

In the struggle, she pulls away with its gauntlets still gripping her shoulders.

Sulda Westwind: (wow these armors arent having any luck with grabbing at all lmao)

The armor from upstairs paces out of the secret stairwell and reaches the top of the stairs.

Sulda is between four suits of armor.

Animated Armor: (EoT)

Marcus, on the ground floor, sees that there are no windows on the east and west sides of the house, and that the windows in the front portion of the house are entirely bricked over.

He sees smoke fountaining from the chimneys.

Marcus Veranius walks under the former window they threw spears out of. He grabs two of them as he makes his way towards the entrance.

Marcus Veranius: They may have lost Ireena, but the fire shall take everything that aided her capture.

All he needs is a few spears to board the doors.

(would grabbing the spears be an action, or free for object interaction?)

Animated Armor: (Free object interaction)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus double-moves, intent on keeping the armors inside.

UM

(yo, is that guy there so he can be on the initiative, or is he actually there?)

Marcus sees a grate -- formerly unnoticed in the dead grass near the base of the front of the house. Coming through the grate, along with a great quantity of smoke, there is a strange, slimy-looking substance.

It seems to be moving under its own power...

It takes no notice of him.

Marcus Veranius retreats back behind the house, breathing heavily

Marcus Veranius mutters to himself, eyes turning towards the longbow. Three couldn't take that beast on in close quarters, but maybe one could in long range.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has a very specific plan she is now calmly following.

She unwinds the one roll she made, grabs the end of the rope in one hand and slides down the other.

19

ACROBATICS (4)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae lands beside Ireena lightly.

Ireena Kolyana sniffs the air. "Do you smell smoke?"

There is a sound like the roaring of flames, coming from the living room.

Suldae Westwind: (move my token?)

GM: Moved

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sniffs the air as well

20

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

(niCE lmao)

Suldae determines that the living room is probably on fire.

Ireena Kolyana: "It's working!"

Suldae Westwind: "We're getting the fuck out of here," Suldae says forcefully and tugs Ireena towards the entrance

(I probably dont have movement left but even if I do let Ireena use it lmao)

(shared movement for tugging each other along?)

(EoT)

A suit of armor begins to descend the stairs.

Ireena Kolyana: "A double blade trap! Look!"

Before you, where the double doors of the house once were, there is now a gauntlet of differently timed blade traps -- one in each doorway.

Ireena Kolyana: "We'll have to time this very carefully.."

19

INVESTIGATION (1)

Suldae Westwind: "Mhm. We can get through these," Suldae says calmly. "Be careful"

Ireena Kolyana: "Now!"

You make it through blade trap number 1 successfully.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae moves on cue. This is hard, but not nearly as terrifying as it was above.

The suits of armor can be heard heavily descending the staircase, single-file.

(To Marcus Veranius): You're up

(To Marcus Veranius): Your companions have not seen the shambling mound, and do not realize they may be walking into danger.

Animated Armor: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius draws the longbow, then walks east

Marcus Veranius: He aims an arrow towards the Shambling Mound, intent on playing Hit and Run as he draws it away from the house.

14

150/600

Oathbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

(Diagram in Discord since there's not enough map for Macrus to move around)

His arrow flies true, sticking in the creature, which still seems very intent on escaping from its burning lair. It is squeezing through small pipes to accomplish this retreat.

The creature ignores the injury.

Animated Armor: (EoT?)

(Or bonus action?)

Marcus Veranius: (Bonus Action Attack only works on hand crossbows.)

[EoT]

Suldae Westwind: Suldae halts before the next blade trap and remembers the last potion she has. She takes it out.

"Do you have more?" she asks Ireena and drinks it the Oathbow whispers in Elvish "Swift defeat to my enemies."

 Sulda Westwind: rolling 2d4+2

(3 + 3)+2

= 8

She feels magic coursing through her veins as she studies the blade trap ahead of her.

Marcus feels the strangest urge to whisper an answering phrase: "Swift death to you who have wronged me."

 Sulda Westwind:

7

INVESTIGATION (3)
Sulda Westwind

(well FUCK)

(can I just waste this turn failing to time it without trying to go through badly)

(seeing as how it's not the dex save option)

 Ireena Kolyana: "Wait, Sulda, no!"

Ireena grabs Sulda, preventing her from jumping. The third blade sweeps out of the doorframe on its delayed timing, missing her by inches.

15

INVESTIGATION (1)

"Now!"

You leap through the blades with perfect timing, landing in the small porch between the Portcullis and the main doors.

 Sulda Westwind: (We really need more map don't we)

The Portcullis is clashing up and down like the teeth of a gnashing demon.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well. Fuck."

 Sulda Westwind: "Mhm," Sulda agrees, still enveloped by calm of being very very high on adrenaline.

Sulda smells an all-too-familiar smell -- the Shambling Mound! With her darkvision she barely sees it, emerging from the grate.

 Ireena Kolyana: (EoT)

 Sulda Westwind: "Oh god, it's that thing out there, too," she says very comprehensibly

 Marcus Veranius murmurs. Plenty of people have wronged him today. Many injustices he'd shrug off out of a lack of willpower.

Marcus Veranius: Perhaps now was the time to change that.

"Swift death to you who have wronged me."

9

150/600

Oathbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

5

Piercing

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

1

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: don't you still have that inspiration

Marcus Veranius: (Sometimes the dice work with you. Sometimes they don't)

rolling 1d6

(4)

= 4

Roll with Advantage.

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d20+1+4

(20)+1+4

= 25

The Oathbow bucks in Marcus's hand, adjusting his aim.

Marcus Veranius: And sometimes they do. Again.

Suldae Westwind: (hot damn nice)

The Shambling Mind takes an additional 16 Piercing damage.

Suldae Westwind: the shambling mind

imagine the same thing but its actually also a giant brain

Marcus Veranius: (That was a crit)

GM: : OATHBOW: Requires Attunement

Ireena Kolyana:

When you nock an arrow on this bow, it whispers in Elvish, "Swift defeat to my enemies." When you use this weapon to make a ranged Attack, you can, as a Command phrase, say, "Swift death to you who have wronged me." The target of your Attack becomes your Sworn Enemy until it dies or until dawn seven days later. You can have only one such Sworn Enemy at a time. When your Sworn Enemy dies, you can choose a new one after the next dawn.

When you make a ranged Attack roll with this weapon against your Sworn Enemy, you have advantage on the roll. In addition, your target gains no benefit from cover, other than total cover, and you suffer no disadvantage due to long range. If the Attack hits, your Sworn Enemy takes an extra 3d6 piercing damage.

While your Sworn Enemy lives, you have disadvantage on Attack rolls with all other Weapons.

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d8+3d6

(1) + (2 + 3 + 1)

= 7

Crit damage

Suldae Westwind: (omfg nice)

Marcus Veranius retreats eastwards, beckoning the mound to follow, or die.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

GM: 28

Suldae Westwind: (my s t e r i o u s)

The Shambling Mound screams horribly in pain as the arrow skewers some vital, internal fragment of the mass.

It begins to surge out of the pipe more quickly now, determined to free itself and pursue Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae watches the slamming portcullis calmly, determined to get its timing exactly right before stepping through in sync with Ireena.

16

INVESTIGATION (3)
Suldae Westwind

You make it through. Miraculously.

Suldae Westwind: Can we see Marcus? What time of day is it?

The Shambling Mound has not seen Suldae yet.

It's just before dawn. Marcus can be seen to the east of the house, among the trees, bow drawn.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out. She knows it's still too early to relax, and of course the thing is here - but she still feels like the worst is over, and the adrenaline is starting to come down. She looks around for any cover from above / afar / from the house to bring Ireena to.

(We really need a different map at this point I think)

Marcus Veranius: (We're gunna need more horizontal squares)

Suldae Westwind: (What about the other directions next to where Suldae and Ireena are right now)

Marcus Veranius: (Beast is heading East)

Suldae Westwind: (I'm anxious not knowing what's there)

Marcus Veranius: (INFINITE MAP)

Suldae Westwind: (YAAAS)

Marcus Veranius: (Gimme a shout when it's Marcus's go. The initiative didnt follow us)

Shambling Mound:

INITIATIVE
Shambling Mound

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 23.14

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 22.18

Suldae Westwind: (see the thing is that I'm getting the urge to grab Ireena and drag her away from the thing, but what IS THERE)

Shambling Mound:

INITIATIVE
Shambling Mound

Initiative: 10

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 23.14

INITIATIVE
Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 9.18

GM: : You each advance by one level for surviving the Death House.

Effective Immediately.

Sulda Westwind: NICE :D

Marcus Veranius: OH BOY, ITS A FEAT LEVEL FOR MARCUS

As you leave the house, the flames begin to consume it from the inside. You feel a ghostly wailing, as of many spirits crying out in desperation. Smoke gushes from the windows and chimneys. The brick walls which covered the windows begin to collapse and crumble.

The house it seems, is doomed...

Sulda Westwind: It's an 18 Cha level for Suldae!

GM: Unfortunately, we will have to finish this combat next time

Sulda Westwind: Suldae tugs Ireena away from the walls as she watches in horrifying fascination *horrified

GM: but please level yourselves up and take a short rest.

Sulda Westwind: +1 level = up to next level's minimum exp, however much that is?

11

Spell Scroll (+1)
Sulda Westwind

-1

(nm)

17

ARCANA (7)
Sulda Westwind

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d10

(2)

= 2

(Taking average for HP)

28 + -5

30 (120)

Hand Crossbow (+8)
Marcus Veranius

8 + 1
Piercing

Global modifiers are clunky as heck

9

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+3)

Marcus Veranius

16

Piercing

10

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

GM (GM): The shambling mound burbles and froths, eager for food!

Liliet (Suldae): I'm here~ and still asking to expand the map westward somewhat ^^ is that a slope?

GM (GM): It is

Liliet (Suldae): a slope leading down, and further down there is where Ismark is, right?

The Shambling Mound finally emerges completely from the pipe, and turns East, towards the pain.

GM (GM): The gravel path is the little dirt road leading back to where the cart is, but there is also a steep slope leading down into a forested area.

Liliet (Suldae): (ty)

Marcus Veranius: (Can you sort the initiative order? It's listed as 10 / 23 / 17 / 9 on my side)

It creeps away, into the darkness.

GM (GM): EoT

Suldae Westwind: is it Marcus's turn now or Suldae's?

GM (GM): (Suldae)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes the night air in and out, feeling strangely invigorated now that they're outside. She'd not realized how stifling the air in the house was. She might as well have gotten a good night's rest for how good she's feeling now that the house is gone.

That said, she has a suspicion of where Marcus is, based on the creature's behavior. She looks around.

"Ireena, what do you think is safer: this plain or that wood?"

(talking is a free action that you can do on other people's turn, right?)

Ireena Kolyana: (yes)

"I think we should keep to the road and get back to the cart. AFTER we kill that thing."

Ireena Kolyana points at the creature slinking away towards the trees where Marcus is waiting.

Suldae Westwind: "I... I don't want to put you in harm's way again" Suldae confesses. "I'd rather you ran away or hid, but I'm not seeing anywhere to hide..."

"And I'm not sure there's anywhere to run that's safer"

"Not without me anyway, and I think that thing might have gone after Marcus... I don't want to leave him either."

Ireena Kolyana: "We don't have time to discuss this, come on! It's getting away!"

"I'll be fine! I'm not some damsel who needs saving. But I do need you to fight with me."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm not sure we don't want it to..." Suldae murmurs, but raises her crossbow anyway

11

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

4

Piercing

"I'm trusting you, Ireena," she says seriously.

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost.

A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

(EoT)

Ireena Kolyana:

True Strike

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A target in range

Components: S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 round

You extend your hand and point a finger at a target in range. Your magic grants you a brief insight into the target's defenses. On your next turn, you gain advantage on your first attack roll against the target, provided that this spell hasn't ended.

Ireena Kolyana points her finger at the retreating creature, mentally twisting the Weave. She seems to study the creature as it escapes.

Ireena Kolyana: "I know where to hit it. Marcus hit something, his arrow's still sticking in it."

(EoT)

GM (GM): (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius prepares another arrow, aiming for what little of the creature he can see. He trusts the bow to correct his eyes' judgement.

Marcus Veranius:

7 | 14
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+3)
Marcus Veranius

21
Piercing

(Is that a hit?)

GM (GM): I think that might have calculated wrong

The formula shows (11)+4+-3+2

It looks like it's subtracting the 3?

Marcus Veranius: (Sharpshooter. -5 to hit, +10 to damage)

GM (GM): Ah

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus normally shoots at +8)

(But Roll20 won't let me add +8 -5, so its +3)

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(Just in case_

GM (GM): That hits now

Suldae Westwind: wait is it +3 or -3

GM (GM): It looks like it's acting as a -3

Marcus Veranius:

5

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: i have a question

how is the lighting being right now

Suldae has darkvision

Marcus Veranius knocks another arrow, surging with action.

Marcus Veranius:

17

18

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+3)

Marcus Veranius

22

Piercing

11

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: if Marcus has +8-5 that adds up to +3 not to -3

what am i seeing wrong

Marcus Veranius: (It IS a +3)

GM (GM): But it subtracted, in that calculation

(11)+4+3+2 should be 20, not 14)

(15)+4+3+2 should be 24, not 18

If you mouse over the roll result, it will show you the formula that was applied

Marcus Veranius: +4(Dex) +2 (Proficiency) -3 (Sharpshooter)

What it SHOULD look like is +4 (Dex) +2 (Proficiency) -5 (Sharpshooter) +2 (Fighting Style Archery)

But it won't let me add a +2 and a -5

GM (GM): Ohhhh

Suldae Westwind: ah

gotcha

GM (GM): Ok then

Marcus Veranius: Roll20 is butt

GM (GM): LMAO

Suldae Westwind: does Ireena have a light source?

Marcus Veranius: (We now return to our regularly-scheduled Shambling Pincushion)

Marcus Veranius retreats after sending off his arrows, delving deeper into the bushes

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

With two shots, Marcus strikes the creature twice more in hidden vital bits, the bow bucking in his hands to guide each shot. Each shot is the next step in the swiftest possible death for this creature -- the series of wounds which will cripple and end it. It even screams, a little, when the second shot lands.

GM (GM): (Suldae, you're up)

(Ireena has a bullseye lantern)

Ireena Kolyana: "Fuck, I forgot I had this..." Ireena hooks the bullseye lantern up one arm and slides up the shutter, allowing the golden light to wash over the creature's gleaming back. Three arrows stick in the creature, each deep in some vital part.

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Suldae steps forward, putting herself even more firmly between the creature and Ireena

She shoots again.

18

80/320

Light Crossbow (+4)
Suldae Westwind

6
Piercing

(Suldae does NOT have a light source going btw)

Suldae's bolt strikes the creature, plunging deep into its shambling bulk.

The creature roars!

GM (GM): (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: oh ya sorry

EoT

Ireena Kolyana:

16

19

100/400

Heavy Crossbow (+3)

5
Piercing

Ireena Kolyana aims carefully at the retreating beast, with her lantern hooked over her forearm and both hands on her crossbow. She lets the spell guide her, taking careful aim...

Suldae Westwind:

and our damage is still shit compared to Marcus's

Her bolt flies true, and strikes deep into the creature..

Suldae Westwind: \

The creature roars.

Suldae Westwind: (nm)

the creature surges ahead, putting on a burst of speed as it bounds away, crashing through the underbrush in Marcus's general direction.

GM (GM): (EoT)

Marcus Veranius takes note as the creature disappears from the Bullseye Lantern's Light. He shoots blind towards where the creature was traveling, hoping his arrow finds its way.

Marcus Veranius: (Shooting blind, Disadvantage countered by Oathbow's Advantage)

GM (GM): (Flat roll)

(Good luck!)

Marcus Veranius: (Roll20 doesnt like me drawing lines)

Suldae Westwind: (are you using the right tool)

Marcus Veranius:

19

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+3)

Marcus Veranius

16*Piercing14Piercing[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

2*Bonus Damage[Menacing Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius attempts to strike fear, showing that even darkness will not save the beast.

Marcus Veranius: He retreats further into the underbrush

There is a faint splut followed by a sound of many things wetly collapsing.

Suldae Westwind: (wait werent you trying to like. lure it after u)

(anway does marcus have a light source)

He can no longer hear the creature crashing through the underbrush.

Marcus Veranius: (...)

(Shit, I dont think he does.)

Marcus Veranius hides behind a tree, unsure if the lack of sound is good or bad

GM (GM): (You nailed it)

Marcus Veranius: (HOT DOG!)

Suldae Westwind: wait is it glowing now or what im so confused wrt what we can see and what we cant

The corpse of the creature bursts into flames as it falls apart. It seems to burn with the last fire of the house.

 Suldae Westwind: aha

As it collapses, the light dims.

 Suldae Westwind: is it EoT for Marcus?

 GM (GM): (Combat over)

 Suldae Westwind: aha

Suldae runs towards the creature, hoping she'll find Marcus there
"Marcus! Are you there?" she calls out, deciding to go for broke

 Ireena Kolyana: "It's dead!"

"Look! Burned to ashes -- just like the house."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae points at the arrows

 Ireena Kolyana spits on the corpse.

 Suldae Westwind: "Those aren't ours!"

"Marcus!"

 Marcus Veranius spots his fellows next to the creature, breathing a sigh of relief. He emerges from behind his hidey-tree

 Ireena Kolyana: "We must not have hit it..."

"These are all Marcus's!"

 Marcus Veranius: "I. Am. Tired."

 Suldae Westwind: "I think I hit it once..." Suldae says uncertainly.

"Tired, huh," she says, remembering an earlier question she had.

"So what happened there?"

You all feel strangely wiser for your experience with this creature. 600 XP apiece.

 Suldae Westwind: "You went towards the balcony, then Ireena decided to surrender out of nowhere. You two, what the fuck?"

Suldae looks back and forth between both of them

 Ireena Kolyana:

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	2

Roll for HP*Roll 1:* 3*Roll for HPRoll 1:* 2*Average for HPAverage:* 4*Sulda Westwind: niceMarcus Veranius: "That's a story for when we check on Ismark. I am concerned for his safety."Sulda Westwind: Suldae hesitates, then nods.

"The children," she says.

Marcus Veranius kicks gently at the creature, then moves back towards the wagon.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks at the creature, hoping for intact arrows

She doubts she'll see any given the fire, but hope springs eternal?

The arrows are, miraculously, still intact.

Suldae finds three, which are definitely Marcus's.

Sulda Westwind: "Hey," she calls him and hands them over.

"That was pretty damn awesome, by the way," she adds in a softer tone than her first address of him.

Marcus Veranius nods

Marcus Veranius: "This bow is very clearly some kind of sacred elven relic. I've got no right bearing it's possession."

"But before I return it to where it belongs, I'm going to shoot down a dragon."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks thoughtfully at the bow.

"Does the bow think that?"

"I think you've got a right, if my opinion is worth anything here."

Marcus Veranius: "That makes me feel better. Thank you."

The sky is slowly getting brighter. Soon by the pale dawn light you can see the grass and the ashes of the creature. The road winds away to the southeast, heading back towards the main road and the gate. The cart still sits where you saw it last. The horse appears to be hobbled to a tree with a feedbag over its head. Ismark and the children are nowhere to be seen.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae breathes sharply in and out, worried.

"Ismark!" she calls out, not caring who hears her.

Marcus Veranius runs for the wagon, concern growing in intensity. Perhaps he's sleeping inside...

Marcus Veranius: (Dear god... the broom has Ismark)

Ireena Kolyana screams.

Ismark is swinging gently in the branches of a large pine tree, just at the end of the road.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs Ireena's hand and squeezes it

She runs towards him.

4

MEDICINE (2)
Suldae Westwind

.....

Marcus Veranius: "..."

He hangs from one of the highest branches.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sharply whistles and the rope bursts into flames

Prestidigitation

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 10 feet

Target: See text

Components: V, S

Duration: Up to 1 hour

This spell is a minor magical trick that novice spellcasters use for practice. You create one of the following magical effects within range: You create an instantaneous, harmless sensory effect, such as a shower of sparks, a puff of wind, faint musical notes, or an odd odor. You instantaneously light or snuff out a candle, a torch, or a small campfire. You instantaneously clean or soil an object no larger than 1 cubic foot. You chill, warm, or flavor up to 1 cubic foot of nonliving material for 1 hour. You make a color, a small mark, or a symbol appear on an object or a surface for 1 hour. You create a nonmagical trinket or an illusory image that can fit in your hand and that lasts until the end of your next turn. If you cast this spell multiple times, you can have up to three of its non-instantaneous effects active at a time, and you can dismiss such an effect as an action.

Marcus Veranius holds his hat to his heart

The rope burns briefly, and Ismark falls heavily out of the tree -- the noose still around his neck.

He lands like a sack of potatoes.

He moans.

Marcus Veranius perks up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae cuts the rope with her dagger

Marcus Veranius: "ISMARK!"

Suldae Westwind: she murmurs a melody

11

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oh... That feels better. Thank you, Suldae."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and sits back, too relieved to muster a response.

Ismark Kolyanovich blinks and opens his eyes. A strange inner fire burns in his pupils.

Ismark Kolyanovich: He drapes a hand over his face, blotting out the sun.

"I think I drank too much."

Marcus Veranius: "I think you need to drink a bit less, or keep better hold of your flasks."

Suldae Westwind: "What happened?"

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd happened. He was waiting by the balcony."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark nods.

"Snuck up on me."

"While I was sleeping."

"Bastard."

Suldae Westwind: "How do you know it was him then?"

Marcus Veranius: "Took his flask, used it to track down Ireena."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "He took my flask!?"

"Bastard!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lightly smacks him on the head

"I'm glad he did!"

Marcus Veranius: "It's gone. Crushed under-foot. I'm sorry for your loss."

Ismark Kolyanovich: He laughs. "Glad you haven't changed."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm not"

(she says this after Marcus)

"Ireena, what did you know of any of this?" Suldae turns to her, still kneeling next to Ismark.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark goes to sit up. He coughs a little.

He gags.

He heaves forward, retching into the grass.

For a while, he's just dry-heaving on all fours.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches to hold him up, still looking at Ireena.

Marcus Veranius moves to sit down next to Ismark, patting him on the back. This was a hard night for all.

Ireena Kolyana: "I knew Strahd was here. He... Spoke to me. In my head."

"I think when I... When I sent that message to Marcus, somehow he heard it."

"They say he is a powerful wizard."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Then, quite suddenly, Ismark pukes up a huge centipede.

"Eeurggh!"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Ismark Kolyanovich: He scrambles to his feet.

(Perception Check)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae surges up next to him, still holding on to him with her hands

Marcus Veranius:

12

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

14

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus notices that Ismark is looking awfully pale. Suldae notices that he has a severe rope-mark around his neck, and that in any reasonable universe he should have died in the noose.

Suldae Westwind: (not necessarily, death of strangulation is not instant)

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae starts singing a lullaby

34

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep
Suldae Westwind

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It's strange... I thought it was a dream, but... While I was up there, I saw a silver dragon, who told me that it was not my time to go..." Ismark's head slumps as he falls unconscious.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae gently lowers him down.

 Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks."

 Ireena Kolyana: "How is this possible?" Ireena asks. "He must have been up there for hours!"

 Suldae Westwind: She sits next to him, stroking his back and looking up at others in quietly distraught confusion.

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Look at the bruise around his neck..."

 Marcus Veranius: "Ireena."

 Ireena Kolyana: "What should we do? What should we do next?"

 Suldae Westwind: (can Suldae use a Religion or Arcana check to try to find out if he's undead)

 Marcus Veranius: "I want to ask you a question. A serious question."

 (To Suldae Westwind): Yes

 Ireena Kolyana: "Ask away."

 Suldae Westwind:

18

RELIGION (7)
Suldae Westwind

 Marcus Veranius: "Do you love your brother? Accept him for what he is, no matter what that may be?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae sings a prayer next, shifting into it from the lullaby.

 Ireena Kolyana: "I.... Sometimes."

 Marcus Veranius: "..."
"I don't think he's alive."

 Ireena Kolyana: "What?"

 Marcus Veranius: "I don't think he's dead either."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae's voice rises, drowning out their conversation for a second

 Marcus Veranius: "He still seems like your brother."

Suldae feels a whisper of something from beyond the darkness of the demiplane. Somehow, deep in her soul, the song of herself changes. The trance will be different, tonight... She knows she has reached something vital. The information she needs comes to her as a certainty in the pit of her stomach. Ismark has become a Revenant.

 Ireena Kolyana: "You think he's a zombie?"

"A vampire thrall?"

"It's plausible. We have to look for bite marks."

Sulda Westwind: "Neither," Sulda speaks up as her prayer reaches its end.

Ireena Kolyana: "He seems so conscious, though!"

Marcus Veranius: "That's the important part."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena says this with total emotional clarity. She is acting as though none of this is real, somehow.

Sulda Westwind: "He's not Strahd's thrall," Sulda says firmly.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not sure this isn't some kind of elaborate trap played by Strahd's hand. He seems the tricky type."

"But... I think we've had enough death today."

"Let's take this blessing for what it is and worry about repercussions over a pint of ale."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda shakes her head.

"I don't think this is something Strahd could have done..."

"Or would have."

"Making him a vampire would be easier."

"This... is different."

Ireena Kolyana: "But what is it, Sulda? What does it mean? How could he come back, if not through Strahd?"

Sulda Westwind: "You still have your brother, Ireena," she says, looking up to her. "He's here for you, I think."

Marcus Veranius: "We could turn around and ask the fortune teller. But I'd rather not pass by the castle twice."

Sulda Westwind: "I don't know that I can say how, exactly..."

Sulda hesitates, reaching for more of the insight she had.

22

RELIGION (7)
Sulda Westwind

Sulda recalls an epic poem from a distant land, which recounted the story of a man returned from death by the power of his need for vengeance, a soul bound to one purpose -- not bound by any body. The man had a year to fulfil his purpose, and when it was done his soul departed to sanity and peace. Until his goal was accomplished, the rage which had driven him back from death became a steady creep of madness, and his soul slowly decayed.

Ireena Kolyana: "Then we should keep moving. We need to get somewhere safer -- we're still within sight of the castle."

Ireena holds herself as she gazes east, through the mists which wrap the sloping hills, towards the looming shadow of the castle beyond the fog.

"We're less than a day from Vallaki, now."

Marcus Veranius looks west, towards the (still locked) gate

Suldae Westwind: "I think he came back for you, Ireena," Suldae says softly.

She then looks at Marcus.

"Let's get him on the cart."

Marcus Veranius: "I don't see a wall. Do you think we could just... drive around this thing?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I don't see why not," Ireena says. "It would add some time, though. Do you think you can pick the lock, now?"

Suldae Westwind: "I think we should check very carefully around the gate before trying to drive there," Suldae says skeptically

"Also, let's get Ismark on the cart."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: "I'll sit with him."

Marcus Veranius: "That might also work. Didn't notice a lock the first time around."

Marcus Veranius helps Suldae hoist Ismark, refraining from making a comment about Dead Weight given the current mood

The gate does have a small stone keyhole on one side of the frame.

It went unnoticed before due to poor lighting and other distractions.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gets Ismark comfortable in the cart as best she can, then sits next to him so she can observe him and so he'll see her first thing when he wakes up. She takes up the guitar and starts plucking, her eyes closed in half-trance.

Marcus Veranius: With Ismark taken care of, Marcus goes to check if stone locks play nice with metal lockpicks

12

Thieves Tools (6)
Marcus Veranius

The inner mechanism is ancient, iron, and somewhat rusty, but very crude. Marcus easily gets all three pins into position and turns the pick. The gates unlock with a "click!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Yay Marcus!"

Marcus Veranius: "Thank goodness. We don't have a crowbar to solve our lock problems anymore."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena unties the horse and removes its feedbag and gets it tethered to the cart. Then she climbs into the driver's seat.

Ireena Kolyana mutters something. A skeletal blue hand of astral energy manifests on the gate, and pushes it gently open.

Ireena Kolyana: "Come on up, Marcus! I could use a co-pilot."

"Keep an arrow on the string..."

14

As the cart moves through the gates, you catch a brief, dawn-lit glimpse of the valley.

The Old Svalich Road transitions here from being a winding path through the Balinok Mountains to a lazy trail that hugs the mountainside as it descends into a fog-filled valley. In the heart of the valley you see a walled town near the shores of a great mountain lake, its waters dark and still. A branch in the road leads west to a promontory, atop which is perched a dilapidated stone windmill, its warped wooden vanes stripped bare.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Marcus Veranius looks through his documents, then back up at the horizon

Marcus Veranius: "Well I'll be damned."

"The house is a loss, but we're still owners of its blasted windmill."

Suldae Westwind: "I would advise against acting on that," Suldae sings, weaving it into the melody she's playing.

"That does not sound like a good posse-s-sion to ha-a-ve"

Ireena Kolyana laughs.

Marcus Veranius: "I disagree. That's the perfect location for an inn."

"Just need to clear out the local vampires."

Ireena Kolyana: "Right where travellers have to pass by, just off the beaten path, sort of rustic... I'd say it's the perfect spot for a bed and breakfast."

Marcus Veranius smirks. "You've got the picture!"

Ireena Kolyana: "I bet there are squatters, though."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles to the conversation, as she keeps plucking the strings.

Although the wings of the windmill no longer turn, you can hear a faint grinding sound from the windmill.

Marcus Veranius: "We'll worry about that when the time comes. I don't think we're in a position to make renovations at the moment."

GM (GM): "I trust your judgement."

Ireena Kolyana: "I trust your judgement."

"Do we want to check it out, or keep going?"

"I'll admit I'm a little curious."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses her playing for a moment.

It sounds like a bad idea, but she's curious.

"As long as you realize there's probably going to be more undead there, I think I'm in actually," she admits.

"As long as you don't try to give yourself up to any animated armor again?"

She smiles at Ireena, hoping that she takes it as a joke and responds in kind.

Ireena Kolyana: She laughs. "I'm hoping that was a one-time thing."

Suldae Westwind: "Deal," Suldae smiles in relief.

Ireena Kolyana: She reaches a hand into her bag and rests it on the recovered spellbooks.

"I feel... Better. Knowing that I remember my father's teachings."

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "I'd rather pass on to town and a warm bed, but if you want to check it a bit sooner."

Ireena Kolyana: "I could go either way," says Ireena. "Just curious, that's all. It's probably a bad idea."

Marcus Veranius: "Everything's a bad idea in this county."

Ireena Kolyana: She laughs.

Suldae Westwind: "I think I'll honestly feel safer sleeping in an abandoned building than in a town, in this country," Suldae admits. "Assuming it's actually abandoned."

She did not get the best impression from the village she's seen so far, and she's not sure how much to trust Ismark's judgment about Vallaki possibly being safe.

Marcus Veranius: "Screw it, Windmill it is!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Alright," Ireena says.

Ireena Kolyana whips the reins and the horse pulls the cart on down the track, winding around and between hills towards the fork.

The onion-domed edifice leans forward and to one side, as though trying to turn away from the stormy gray sky. You see gray brick walls and dirt-covered windows on the upper floors. A decrepit wooden platform encircles the windmill above a flimsy doorway leading to the building's interior. Perched on a wooden beam above the door is a raven. It hops about and squawks at you, seemingly agitated.

Suldae Westwind: "Hey there," Suldae says and waves to it.

Animal Friendship*Enchantment 1Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A beast that you can see within rangeComponents: V, S, M (A morsel of food)Duration: 24 hours

This spell lets you convince a beast that you mean it no harm. Choose a beast that you can see within range. It must see and hear you. If the beast's Intelligence is 4 or higher, the spell fails. Otherwise, the beast must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or be charmed by you for the spell's duration. If you or one of your companions harms the target, the spells ends.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can affect one additional beast for each slot level above 1st.

She whistles a gentle melody as she holds out a crumb of bread from her rations.

The cart rolls up the track towards the windmill and onto the hill where the windmill is standing. From up here, you can see further to the west, into the forest. A ring of four squat megaliths rests at the forest's edge. Ravens circle high in the air above the stones.

Marcus Veranius: "Do you suppose this is where that raven was headed earlier? Maybe it didn't mean to guide us into a death trap building."

Suldae's spell seems to have no immediate effect upon the creature. She can feel it fail to take hold, somehow...

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the raven thoughtfully.

The raven seems like it is desperately trying to say something.

Suldae Westwind: "Should we not go there?" she asks.

"Please, point the way"

The raven flies away.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks after it.

"I think."

"I think we've been given good advice."

Ireena Kolyana: "I wonder what it wanted?"

"Maybe food?"

Suldae Westwind: "It wasn't just an animal," Suldae says seriously.

"My spell would have worked on one."

Ireena Kolyana: "What?"

Sulda Westwind: "That raven is more than just a bird."

"I think it's trying to help, and I think we should not go into that windmill. I don't like the look of it anyway," she adds, looking skeptically at the dilapidated structure.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Sulda Westwind: "I know, we came all the way here, and now let's go back. Please. That warm bed and town idea?" she adds pleadingly.

She really wants to not have to deal with any more horrors today.

Marcus Veranius looks down at the deed, then back at Sulda.

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe just a peek through a window?"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda shakes her head.

"I could not stop you. But I don't think we should so much as come close."

Marcus Veranius: "Alright. We can stop by another time."

"Let's head to town and see if Ismark can still taste ale as a Relevant."

Sulda Westwind: "Revenant," Sulda corrects automatically, glad to hear Marcus knows what she talked about.

Marcus Veranius makes for the wagon, taking note of the repairs he'd need to make on the building. Perhaps he'd need a vampire's horde of wealth to make it servicable

Sulda Westwind: "Also, I don't think we want him to drink much," she adds acidically.

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe just a glass then. He's had a hard day."

"Dealing with Strahd is a pain in the neck."

Sulda Westwind: "Hmm," Sulda says, taking up her guitar again. "Ireena, your opinion?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Let's move on to town."

Marcus Veranius sits down in the wagon's front, ready for Ireena to take lead

Sulda Westwind: "I meant on Ismark drinking."

"Though I'm glad you agree!"

Ireena Kolyana: "I think we should probably prevent him from buying another hip flask, at least."

Marcus Veranius: "Agreed."

Sulda Westwind: "Agreed," Sulda says in sync with Marcus, then laughs.

The Old Svalich Road meanders into a valley watched over by dark, brooding mountains to the north and south. The woods recede, revealing a sullen mountain burg surrounded by a wooden palisade. Thick fog presses up against this wall, as though looking for a way inside, hoping to catch the town aslumber.

The dirt road ends at a set of sturdy iron gates with a pair of shadowy figures standing behind them. Planted in the ground and flanking the road outside the gates are a half-dozen pikes with wolves' heads impaled on them.

A 15-foot-high wall encloses the town, its vertical logs held together with thick ropes and mortar. The top of each log has been sharpened to a point. Wooden scaffolding hugs the inside of the palisade twelve feet off the ground, enabling guards to peer over the wall there.

Suldae Westwind: "Hey there!" Suldae calls out, stands up on the cart and waves.

The guitar is laid down carefully so as to not be accidentally damaged.

Guard: "Halt! Who goes there!?"

Ireena Kolyana pulls the reins, slowing the cart.

Marcus Veranius: "Refugees fleeing a disrespectful vampire."

Suldae Westwind: "Ireena and Ismark Kolyanovich, Suldae Westwind and Marcus... what's your last name again?"

Suldae looks at him questioningly, having forgotten it entirely.

Marcus Veranius: "Veranius. Marcus Veranius, the Dragon Scarred."

Suldae Westwind: "Yeah, that," Suldae adds brightly, looking up at the guards.

Marcus Veranius boasts his title, hoping for his fame to have reached out this far

Marcus Veranius:

DRAGONSCARRED

Background: Dragon Casualty

Over a period of several months you were subject to magical and mundane torture at the claws of Vorgansharax and his minions. These experiments have left you horribly disfigured but mark you as a survivor of the Maimed Virulence.

This affords you a measure of fame and notoriety, for those who know of your harrowing ordeal are keen to hear the tale personally but makes it difficult to disguise your appearance and hide from prying eyes. You can parley this attention into access to people and places you might not otherwise have, for you and your companions. Nobles, scholars, mages, and those who seek to ferret out the secrets of the Maimed Virulence would all be keen to hear your tale of survival, and learn what secrets (if any) you might possess, and/or study your affliction with great interest.

However, you fear that your afflictions are not completely mundane and that the Maimed Virulence may as yet have some nefarious reason for allowing your escape, as your scars burn with acidic fury and seem to writhe beneath your skin at times.

Sulda Westwind: (nice)

Suldae does not have much to add, not expecting anyone outside of her home town to have heard of her yet.

Gate Guard: There is some muttering at the gate.

"Dragonscarred?"

"the Dragonscarred?"

Sulda Westwind: "Wouldn't there have been more than one?" Suldae whispers, glancing at Marcus, but doesn't speak up.

Marcus Veranius: "Well I ain't the dragon's lover. My party is tired, and I seek information on where my target resides. May you open the gate?"

Gate Guard: "Alright, we'll let you in."

"But mind your own business and don't get into trouble."

"We don't tolerate that sort of thing around here."

Marcus Veranius nods

Sulda Westwind: "Thank you! We will!" Suldae waves, sounding and looking as innocent and cheerful as a person in her position can.

Marcus Veranius whispers to the others as they pass out of hearing from the guards

Marcus Veranius: "I don't like the questions that come with bragging, but these fellows look no-nonsense. Keep their eyes on me and NOT on Ismark."

Sulda Westwind: "They let us in despite you alluding to Strahd," Suldae murmurs. "That can be a very good sign, or not."

She nods to Marcus and adjusts Ismark's collar to cover the rope burn

The cart moves through the gates and onto the cobbled streets of the town.

The guards take no notice of Ismark's condition.

Marcus Veranius: "Besides. It's a hit to my self-esteem that the quality people most celebrate is that I'm not dead."

Sulda Westwind: "I mean would you rather they celebrate you being dead?" Suldae asks skeptically. "If you ask me, not being dead is a pretty damn good achievement to boast"

*boast

You seem to have entered from a more industrial side of town. Soon you are passing a large stockyard.

Sulda Westwind: "No offense to any undead present," she adds under her breath so that no-one outside the cart could overhear.

This large stockyard has several locked sheds along its periphery and lies adjacent to a roomy warehouse. A wooden sign above the front gate reads "Arasek Stockyard."

Parked at the south end of the stockyard is a sturdy carnival wagon, its colorful paint peeling off. Faded lettering on its sides spells out the words "Rictavio's Carnival of Wonders." A heavy padlock secures the back door.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae smiles at the wagon, reminded of the fortune teller.

The stockyard appears to double as a general store, and a renter of storage sheds.

Sulda Westwind: That was a friendly place to be.

Marcus Veranius looks at the carnival wagon. Doesn't seem to be as fun as advertised.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae hesitates, then shakes Ismark's shoulder. Magical sleep should have long worn off, and he had time to rest.

"We're in Vallaki," she murmurs to him.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Eh? Wha?"

Ismark sits up groggily.

He's peeling slightly. The sunlight seems not to have done him any favors.

Sulda Westwind: "We're in Vallaki," Suldae repeats gently and pulls him into the shadow of the barrel.

Marcus Veranius: "We have good news and bad news. Which do you want to hear first?"

Sulda Westwind: "You're not looking very good," she adds. "Best keep out of sight for the moment"

Ireena Kolyana: "We should look for a tavern or something, right?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What do you mean, I'm not looking well?"

I coughs.

He*

Sulda Westwind: "Well, you're undead," Suldae says brightly, seeing no good in peeling off the bandaid slowly.

"The good kind, though. You're fine, really"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark clutches his throat nervously.

"You mean..."

"I really..."

"That really..."

He swallows drily.

-  Suldae Westwind: "Apparently so," Suldae says gently.
-  Marcus Veranius: "From what I've been told, you got so fucking drunk that Death couldn't budge your soul."
-  Suldae Westwind: "Didn't work on you, is all," she adds sardonically
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "I need a drink."
"And a smoke."
-  Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at him.
"No hip flask"
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "And maybe some cake."
-  Ireena Kolyana: "What you need is some good foundation."
"You're peeling. You're starting to look less alive."
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "Thanks."
-  Marcus Veranius: "The good news is that you still have a nose. That's always the worst to lose."
-  Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him thoughtfully. She remembers that revenants' looks tend to depend on their mental equilibrium.
"We're in a town and seem to be safe. Ireena's alright, and we'll keep her that way," she reminds him.
"That's what matters, isn't it?"
-  Marcus Veranius: "Perk up Ismark! We lucked out, and that deadly house took nothing from us."
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "That's the last time I 'watch the cart.'"
"From now on the cart can watch itself."
-  Suldae Westwind: "Agreed strongly," Suldae sighs.
-  Marcus Veranius looks at the horse, then back at Ismark
-  Suldae Westwind: "What happened to the ghost children, anyway?"
-  Marcus Veranius: "Horse can watch the cart. I trust it."
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "I dunno. I can't remember."
-  Suldae Westwind: "Because you were drunk?" Suldae guesses.
-  Ireena Kolyana: "Probably."
-  Suldae Westwind: "Anyway, what was your plan for Vallaki?"
-  Ismark Kolyanovich: "Probably."
-  Marcus Veranius: "What was our other option for safe lodgings? This or a monastery?"
-  Ireena Kolyana: "I think the plan was to see if there was someone here who could help us. My father said an old friend of his lived in this town."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "The Abbey would be safer, but it's a long ride from here."

"This place is out of sight of the castle, at least."

"Not to mention walled."

Ireena Kolyana: "And guarded."

Marcus Veranius: "Wood walls."

Suldae Westwind: "Let's look for your father's friend first?" Suldae proposes.

Marcus Veranius: "Wolf heads are scary but fire doesn't care."

Suldae Westwind: "They might have advice if nothing else"

"Water beats fire," she replies seriously to Marcus.

"That's a lake over there, isn't it? Doubt they lack for buckets in case of attack"

Marcus Veranius considers.

Marcus Veranius: "So who's this friend you mentioned?"

Ireena Kolyana: "My father's friend was named Van Richten. But he often went by other names."

Suldae Westwind: "Interesting," Suldae says, raising her eyebrows.

Ireena Kolyana: "He had a monkey, and he was a hunter from the outside world."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh," Suldae says, remembering the card reading.

"Oh, I think we do need to speak to him... if the fortune teller was right, which I doubt she wasn't"

"Hmm, monkey..." she muses and looks at the carnival wagon. "Richten and Rictavio sound a bit alike. Shall we check?"

Marcus Veranius: "Rather an abandoned cart to an abandoned windmill."

Marcus Veranius hops off the wagon and approaches the carnival cart

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays with the cart, ready to distract anyone who comes close from Ismark's oddities.

The wagon suddenly lurches, as though something big has thrown itself against the inside wall. You hear the cracking of wood, the scraping of metal, and the snarl of something inhuman. Upon closer inspection, you see that the sides of the wagon are spattered with dry blood. You also see an inscription on the wagon's door frame that reads, "I bring you from Shadow into Light!"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena moves around the cart to the front seat.

Marcus Veranius hesitantly raises a hand to knock on the door

There is no response.

Marcus hears the chuffing sound of some huge beast on the other side.

Ismark Kolyanovich looks around cautiously before nodding at the cart. "Think you can climb

it?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Looks like there's a hatch."

Marcus Veranius: "It's not a matter of can, but if I want to."

"Oh bother."

Marcus Veranius gets a grip on the roof tiles and attempts to lift himself atop the wagon for hatch access

Marcus Veranius:

23

ACROBATICS (6)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius murmurs to himself. At the very least, it doesn't sound like a clown inside. Can't be the worst case scenario.

From the top of the wagon, Marcus sees an obvious hatch, one foot square.

The hatch is currently closed.

Marcus Veranius sneaks a peek inside, moving silently so as to not be heard

Suldae Westwind: (omfg)

In the gloom he sees something pacing. He catches a glimpse of orange fur and black stripes, and the gleam of metal.

Marcus Veranius lowers the hatch and gets off the cart, returning to the others

Marcus Veranius: "Well, good news I suppose. I think the monkey's inside that wagon."

"Means Richten, Richtavio, Ricardo. Has to still be in town feeding it, yeah?"

Suldae Westwind: "What kind of monkey is that?" Suldae asks skeptically. She'd never heard of a monkey that large, or had she?

Marcus Veranius: "Orange and stripey."

Suldae Westwind:

8

NATURE (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Actually, it might have been a tiger."

"I didn't feel like letting it notice me for a better look."

Ireena Kolyana: "A tiger?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I've heard of those!" Ismark says, brightening slightly.

Marcus Veranius: "Are tiger-monkeys a thing? I've heard of Owlbears."

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm not sure," says Ireena.'

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "Now that, I haven't heard of."

 Marcus Veranius: "Either way, it doesn't seem like Ricardo's at home."
"Maybe Suldae could ask it where Ricardo went?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Should we... Search his cart? If he's got some beast in there, that's suspicious, right?"

 Suldae Westwind: "I can't talk to animals," Suldae says regretfully.

 Marcus Veranius: "It's a circus. What circus goes around without exotic animals?"

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "It's a small circus," Ismark says.
"Just one cart?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe the rest of it is scattered around? This place does look like it likes its festivals."

There are many flyers glued to walls, fences, and lamp-posts.

 Suldae Westwind: "Maybe we can hang around and someone will eventually come and we'll ask them," Suldae suggests uncertainly and looks around.
She spots the flyers and comes up to one.

 Marcus Veranius squints at the flyer

 Suldae Westwind: "Well that sounds..." she pauses... "safe and trustworthy?"
She brings one to the cart

 Marcus Veranius: "Well shit. Maybe Ricardo's at this Wolf Head."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Attendance and children required?"
"That's ominous."

 Marcus Veranius: "Hell of a marketing strategy. Bold. I like it."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'm sure he gets re-elected every year."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Whether they vote for him or not..."

The cart rattles.

 Ireena Kolyana: "So what do we do?"

"Where is someone like Rictavio likely to be?"

"I don't really see anyone to ask. This place seems deserted. That store looks open, maybe we could try there?"

GM: (Pausing Session Here)

Morning!

Liliet (Suldae): ^^

Tops K.: (Hello!)

Suldae Westwind: "Sounds like a good idea," Suldae agreed.

Marcus Veranius: "My wallet pains the idea, but let's check the store out."

Suldae Westwind: "Wonder if the store would be interested in the stuff we found in the mansion..."
Suldae murmurs thoughtfully.

Marcus Veranius: "One could hope. I certainly don't have nearly enough coin for arrows."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs and pats him on the shoulder. "I'll share with you. Your arrows strike me as something we definitely want to be well-stocked on."

"I mean, how expensive could they really be?"

As you enter the little general store, you catch a whiff of tobacco smoke and the pungent odor of recently spilled acid. Piles of dusty crates line the walls and form small islands in the middle of this medium-sized warehouse. On the crates, amid the dust, someone has painstakingly arranged representative items with hand-written price tags. You see an old, gap-toothed man behind the counter, and in a rocking chair near at hand, reading a small book with great interest, a similarly gap-toothed old woman. She has a small orange tabby on her lap, purring contentedly.

Marcus finds arrows in bundles of 20. They look old, and each bundle is priced for 5 gold pieces.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks for crossbow bolts.

Marcus Veranius: "...on consideration, this isn't nearly as bad as I thought."

Suldae finds crossbow bolts at the same price point.

Marcus Veranius grabs two bundles of the arrows, then begins tracking down a (pre-planned) shopping list of items

Suldae Westwind: (Is haggling in stores rude in this setting or normal and expected?)

Arabelle: (In the wider world, beyond Barovia, it's fairly normal. Barovian culture is isolated and superstitious, that much you know. Neither of your characters has any way to know how haggling would be responded to in this country.)

Marcus Veranius: (Should I assume 5x book price for items?)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Ireena Kolyana: (Yes, 5x book pricing. And they only sell items worth 25 gp or less.)

Marcus Veranius: (25GP Before or after the 5x multiplier?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gently attempts to haggle with the shopkeeper, trying to bring the price down to a more reasonable level without offending

26

PERSUASION (6)
Suldae Westwind

(omg)

Ireena Kolyana: (Before, @Marcus)

The shopkeeper hems and haws, but for the pretty half-elf he is willing to bend the rules a little -- and he earns a disapproving glare from his wife for it. (Prices decreased by 25%)

GM: Let's call it 20 percent for ease of math

Suldae Westwind: (i was just thinking that lmao)

GM: items are now only 4X normal

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks for a mirror and a hairbrush, still remembering being slightly stung by the question about the expensive one.

Marcus Veranius scouts around the warehouse, tracking down a variety of replacement gear and a small comfort. He brings to the counter...

Marcus Veranius: >6 Bundles of Bolts

>2 Bundles of Arrows

>2 Nets

>1 Rope

>1 Crowbar

>And a set of Cobbler's tools

Marcus Veranius: Total price 90 Gold.

Suldae Westwind: (actualy nm weve got a mirror i forgot it)

(just a hairbrush)

Marcus Veranius: "Do you accept gemstones of equivalent value?"

The old, toothless man nods eagerly.

Suldae finds a hairbrush. The price tag reads: 15 GP.

Marcus Veranius drops down two gold rings (50 GP) a Moss Agate (10 GP), 5 gold coins,

Marcus Veranius: "...would you also accept a Longbow for trade-in? Properly maintained; part with it for half its value."

The toothless man examines the longbow and finds it to be in good condition. He nods.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae quietly adds her hairbrush to Marcus's pile of items. He's the one with the party funds, anyway.

Marcus Veranius puts his former longbow on the table (25 GP). This Elven bow will serve him well.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena approaches the shopkeeper. "Do you know where we can stable a horse and cart for the evening?"

Strangely, it is the old woman who responds: "Best place for that is the Blue Water."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae picks up two bundles of bolts and a rope, too.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena picks up a jug of lantern oil and a crystal sphere. She hefts the sphere a few times, looking excited.

Marcus Veranius: 1 rope, two bundles of bolts, and a hairbrush (30 GP)

Marcus places down the Ivory/Silver hairbrush (25 GP)

"This should cover it after the lady's discount? I'm sure your lady would love it."

The poor fellow seems to be struggling with the mouth. He counts on his fingers a few times. He slips out of his shoes and visibly counts on his toes as well. Finally, he nods, takes the treasures and gold, and sweeps them into a drawer with his arm.

He smiles, seeming satisfied with the transaction.

Marcus Veranius tips his hat. "A pleasure doing business with you sir!"

Ireena Kolyana comes to the counter with a bottle of oil and a crystal sphere. She reaches into a small purse and withdraws the necessary coin.

Ireena counts out 100 GP and 5 SP.

Suldae Westwind: "Say," Suldae brings up after taking the hairbrush, the bolts and the rope, "do you know anything about this Rictavio fellow?"

The shopkeeper shrugs expansively. (Insight)

Marcus Veranius:

9

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

9

INSIGHT (3)
Suldae Westwind

(dang)

It's impossible to say if he's telling the truth or not. He may know something, he may not.

The old woman's rocking in her chair gets a little faster.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes the woman's reaction. "Ah well, nevermind then," she says brightly. "Thought I'd seen the wagon before, is all"

Marcus Veranius takes note of the faster rocking

Marcus Veranius: "Well, do let me know if you learn anything. Information is worth its weight in treasure."

The old man nods with a knowing smile.

It is almost possible to see the gears clicking away in the old woman's head.

Marcus Veranius casually looks over a gem-encrusted eyepatch in his bag, holding it to be visible to the shopkeepers. Glinting with value.

Marcus Veranius:

20

PERSUASION (1)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives Marcus a respectful glance. It is clear to her that she's dealing with an expert here.

The old man looks at the old woman. The old woman stops rocking. She looks up at Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: Her own idea was to not make their interest in him too conspicuous, not until they know what the locals think of him, but this way is certainly faster.

Yelena Arasek says "Aye... We've been watchin' 'im. 'E pays us to mind 'is cart, but 'he ain't never around. Says he's a carnival performer. What carnival! I'd like to know. Comes at all odd hours, feedin' wha'ever is in 'is li'l cart."

Gunther Arasek, emboldened by his wife's openness, says, "Aye, 'e paid us to watch 'is cart no questions asked."

Yelena Arasek says "Well we ain't askin' any questions. We's just talkin' to curious folk what have a right to know."

Suldae Westwind: "What a weird fellow," Suldae notes, hoping to prompt them for more.

Marcus Veranius perks up a bit. "You don't say. What kind of feed does he buy? Hay for horses, or meats for something more vicious?"

Yelena Arasek says, "'E don't buy it from us, gets it from the Blue Water, where 'e's renting."

Gunther Arasek says, "Wha'ever i' is, 'e gives it to 'is critter through a trap-door in the roof."

Marcus Veranius: "I see. Thank you for letting me know. Tell you what; why don't you keep this eyepatch as a gift? I'm sure you can find a buyer easy."

Marcus Veranius slides over a Black Leather Eyepatch with a Carnelian

Gunther snatches it up eagerly.

Ireena Kolyana: "Shall we?" Ireena asks.

Marcus Veranius: "Yes indeed."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and gives the shopkeepers a warm smile and a goodbye wave as she exits the shop.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena leads the way back out into the little stockyard.

"Where to next?" She asks.

Marcus Veranius: "Our friend isn't at his cart, and he's not in the shops."

Sulda Westwind: "Blue Water?" Suldae suggests. "Maybe we should have asked for directions there..."

Ireena Kolyana: "It's a small town, I'm sure we'll find it."

Marcus Veranius: "I'd place my bets either at Blue Water picking up feed, or following the Flyers."

Sulda Westwind: "Isn't that also where we can stable the cart?" Suldae remembers.

Marcus Veranius: "Indeed, wouldn't be a bad plan."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oh, you're finally back."

Ismark Kolyanovich hops lightly off the cart seat and lands awkwardly beside it.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Damn. Guess I'm clumsy now."

Marcus Veranius: "No different than a night after the tavern then?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark laughs. "I will have you know I am as graceful as a cat after a pint or two."

Marcus Veranius smirks

Ireena Kolyana: "Cat's aren't very graceful after that many drinks, Ismark."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What?"

Marcus Veranius: "We've got two leads, and one of them involves where the cart needs to be parked."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae giggles into her palm

Marcus Veranius: "Care to check one for us while we go for the other?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Sure... Where am I going?"

"Also, don't you think we should do something about..." He gestures at the visible bruises on his neck and the peeling skin on his face.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"We were supposed to buy armor."

Marcus Veranius puts his hands to his face in frustration

Ireena Kolyana: "I didn't see any armor in there..."

Sulda Westwind: "We should probably look for more shops around the town... maybe some of them will be cheaper, too, especially if we go off the main road..."

Marcus Veranius: "I imagine a country closed off from the world by vampire magic isn't likely to have good prices. Got to factor in local monopolies."

"It disgusts me a bit, but price-gouging is economically sound in this situation."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae gives him an odd-look, intimidated a little by the terminology, but decides to take his word for it.

Marcus Veranius mumbles about paying too much for the hairbrush

Sulda Westwind: "I just figured this place might be made for gouging travelers, is all"

"Locals might shop elsewhere, with better prices"

Marcus Veranius: "We can keep our hopes up."

Ireena Kolyana: "This is far less expensive than in Barovia village," says Ireena, playing with her new crystal orb.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae shudders.

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae; think you could lend Ismark your cloak? It'd cover his marks well enough for us to split up."

"We'll pick him up a new one on the way back."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae gives over the old cloak which she switched for the Cloak of Protection

Marcus Veranius: "That works."

Sulda Westwind: "Actually you can keep this, I like the new one better"

The cloak is deep dark blue, suitable for a performer but not standing out too much on a regular person either

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Thank you, Suldae!"

Ismark Kolyanovich wraps the cloak around himself and pulls up the hood.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What do you think? Dashing? Roguish?"

"Now, what's my mission?"

Sulda Westwind: It's a short cloak, reaching to his waist

"You look great," Suldae assures him.

"And you need to find a place called... Blue Water? It's probably some kind of tavern. Settle in there, and also ask around for this Richtavio of ours"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Fair enough. I'll be off, then."

Ismark heads west down the long, gently-curving main street of the village.

Marcus Veranius: "...do you think we should pick up a Disguise kit on the way back?"

"Or a good set of makeup?"

"My wife would have been able to make his face work."

Sulda Westwind: "It might be a good idea," Suldae agrees and eyes Ismark's shadowed face worriedly. "Not sure if it'll hold well..."

"Disguise is better, it should have heavier stuff"

Marcus Veranius nods

Marcus Veranius: "Well then, to the Wolf's Head."

"Attendance is required, you know!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae vaguely smiles and shivers. She does not like the sound of whatever that is.

As you move through the village, you eventually find yourself in a small village square.

The shops and homes that enclose the town square are decorated with limp, tattered garlands and painted wooden boxes filled with tiny, dead flowers. At the north end of the square stands a row of stocks, locked in which are several men, women, and children wearing crude, plaster donkey heads.

In the center of the square, peasants in patchwork clothes eye you suspiciously as they use cups and vases to draw water from a crumbling stone fountain. Standing tall at the center of the fountain is a gray statue of an impressive man facing west.

All around the square are posted proclamations: Come one, come all,

Ireena Kolyana:

to the greatest celebration of the year:

THE WOLF'S HEAD JAMBOREE!

Attendance and children required.

Ireena Kolyana:

Pikes will be provided.

ALL WILL BE WELL!

— The Baron —

Ireena Kolyana: "It just sounds so positive, even though it's so creepy," says Ireena, after reading the flyer out loud.

Marcus Veranius: "What kind of party requires pikes..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks worriedly towards the stocks.

She doesn't get the impression she's going to like whatever this is.

Izek Strazni: "Come on, take 'em down. Gotta get these new ones up by nightfall." A pale, hook-nosed man with greying sideburns and a greasy, twisted appearance is pacing down the road, flanked by two guards. At his direction one begins to take down the old proclamations, while another one comes behind to post up the new one.

Suldae Westwind: "Blazing sun," Suldae says out loud.

"I'm not sure I like that either..."

Marcus Veranius: "Well, guess that's one question that won't see an answer."

Suldae Westwind: She says the latter quietly enough that the guards and the man won't hear

"Here's hoping," she replies to Marcus's remark.

This whole situation is making her very uneasy.

Marcus Veranius approaches the poster man, putting on his best face.

Marcus Veranius: "Beg your pardon m'lord, I'm from out of town. To where should I report for this festival, and for what time?"

Izek Strazni: The man sneers at you. "Not from around here? Well, you're in for a treat. The Festival of the Blazing Sun is one of our best ones. You won't miss it. Three days from now these streets will be alive with crowds for the parade. And we'll do the burning right here, in the town square.

Sulda Westwind: "The burning?" Suldae pipes in Izek Strazni: "You'll see! It's a real treat. You've been to a bonfire at Harvest, right little miss?"

Izek looks at Suldae with lecherous kindness.

His eyes flicker to her ears.

"You've got some elf blood, don't you?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods with an entirely sincere-looking smile.

"I do, but I grew up with humans"

Izek Strazni: "You'll want to watch out for the dusk elves, then. They camp outside town with the Vistani."

Sulda Westwind: "Local customs are different everywhere, though!"

"Dusk elves?" Suldae asks, injecting all the curiosity she feels into her voice which is a lot

Marcus Veranius: "Are they known for being trouble? I thank you for the warning."

Izek Strazni: "The Devil Strahd killed all their women centuries ago, as punishment for what they did to him."

"They're known to be a bit... Clingy."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae winces

"I thank you for the warning," she echoes.

"What did he do to them?"

Izek Strazni: "Nobody remembers," says Izek. "And the dusk elves don't like to speak of it."

Sulda Westwind: "Aw," Suldae says with disappointment.

Izek Strazni: "Now, if you please, I've entertained you tourists enough for one day. All will be well. Good day."

Marcus Veranius takes off his hat and bows. "Good day, m'lord."

Izek Strazni: Izek brushes past you, to keep up with the guards.

Ireena Kolyana: "Well," says Ireena. "That was interesting."

Marcus Veranius whispers to Suldae once the man is out of earshot. "Unless you know anyone else worth a retinue, I'd place marks on that being the Baron."

Marcus Veranius: "Same tagline and all."

Sulda Westwind: "Makes sense," Suldae murmurs.

Something else is bothering her.

She comes closer to the stocks and studies what she sees.

Marcus Veranius: "...it's a shame about the elves. Losing one's family makes monsters out of men."

Marcus Veranius holds his hat to his heart for a moment, then follows Suldae

Ireena Kolyana: "I've never seen a Baron walk around with a sword strapped to his hip," Ireena says, wondering.

Marcus Veranius: "Seems my kind of fellow. I'd rather a bureaucrat with a sword than one with a pen."

Three men, two women, and two boys are trapped in the stocks -- all of them tired and wet. They wear plaster donkey heads, along with signs displaying their crime: "Malicious Unhappiness."

Marcus Veranius: "Pens hold far more reaching power in the right hands."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sharply breathes in, then out.

She pokes at one of the passerby, asks who these people are.

Commoner: A young woman with a basket over her arm stops to answer you. "They're the McMurrows Family. They were spreading negative rumors about the festival."

"We've had 'em in there since the Wolf's head festival. Serves 'em right, the bastards."

Suldae Westwind: "Negative rumors?" Suldae asks, putting all her artistic talent into sounding curious rather than horrified.

Commoner: "I never listened to the rumors," scoffs the young lady.

Suldae Westwind: "Makes sense," Suldae assures her. "Are they going to be there long?"

Commoner: "Baron Vallakovich says that they're part of the reason we're trapped by the mist. The only way to free ourselves from Strahd is for everyone to be happy, so until they change, they'll stay there. Don't worry, they'll be laughing soon."

Marcus Veranius: "...word for the curious, is excessive sarcasm grounds for punishment under the same crime?"

Commoner: "Sar....Casm? What is that?"

Marcus Veranius: "Never you mind; have a lovely day!"

Commoner: "All will be well."

Marcus Veranius glances at Suldae with a nervous look

The young lady moves on, continuing her shopping.

Suldae Westwind: "All will be well," Suldae assures her with a smile and drags Marcus into the first nook she can see where nobody's likely to overhear them.

Then she just grabs him, pulls herself close and starts hyperventilating into his shirt.

Marcus Veranius gives Suldae a pat on the back

Suldae Westwind: Hyperventilating changes into crying.

Suldae sobs quietly, standing so she's sure Marcus's back is shielding her from passerby

Marcus Veranius: "Couldn't put it into better words."

Suldae Westwind: It takes several minutes for Suldae to cry herself dry. She wipes her eyes with a sleeve and says "We'd better go talk to Ismark and Ireena. And not forget to smile in public places, I suppose"

Marcus Veranius: "We're agreed then? Find our friend of the family, then jump town."

Suldae Westwind: "..."

"Let's go talk to them"

Marcus Veranius: "I'd normally suggest packing up immediately, but a seer's fortune is worth the risk."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena, keeping watch, gives a slight nod. She hands Suldae a silk handkerchief. "Let's go find Ismark."

Suldae Westwind: (Imao I thought she was with Ismark whoops)

(pretend i said it right)

Marcus Veranius: (Bright side; Ismark cant die twice in defense of Ireena)

Suldae Westwind: (i wouldnt be so optimistic)

(or pessimistic)

(close minded)

On the west end of the village square there is a long road which runs north/south. Looking south, the road curves slowly out of sight, looping through what looks like a residential area. The houses are small and quaint-looking, many look as though they have been there for centuries. A few are abandoned and boarded up, but most look lively. Looking north, the road seems to meet up with the Old Svalich Pass, the main road running East/West through the town.

Ireena Kolyana: "Which way should we go?" Ireena asks.

Marcus Veranius: "To the tavern then. We ought to get some booze into Ismark before he shows a frown."

Suldae Westwind: "Blue Water," Suldae agrees.

"And let's not"

"We need to be careful here. Booze isn't how you do careful"

Marcus Veranius: "It's life or death now! We must!" Marcus chuckles in a cheery manner.

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm with Marcus, I could use a stiff drink."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs.

"Your funeral. Possibly literally"

She's got her usual cheery attitude back, but a shadow still crosses her face at this.

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, when you put it that way... Do you think Strahd would still want to bite me if I had alcohol in my veins?"

"Maybe I should start drinking holy water and eating more garlic..."

"But I understand where you are coming from, Suldae."

Suldae Westwind: "Oooh, that sounds like a good idea," Suldae perks up. "I do love garlic dishes myself..."

Marcus Veranius: "Pair it with grapes grown on sanctified soil, might make a wine that would burn undead in a single glass."

"Alas, I am but a shoemaker. Perhaps if I took up brewing instead..."

Suldae Westwind: "You could do anything you put your mind to," Suldae assures him.

Ireena Kolyana: "We should try this. All we need is some land, some priests, some brewing equipment..."

Marcus Veranius: "Several years for it to age properly."

"Damned if I'm killing a vampire with wine too young."

Suldae Westwind: (I have a question)

(can Suldae make holy water)

(apparently clerics and paladins can do that, i just googled)

You move past a cramped shop with a dark entrance portico, above which hangs a wooden sign shaped like a rocking horse, with a "B" engraved on both sides. Flanking the entrance are two arched, lead-framed windows. Through the dirty glass, you see jumbled displays of toys and hanging placards bearing the slogan "Is No Fun, Is No Blinsky!"

GM: (We'll get there, but there might have to be story justification for it -- Suldae has to get a little closer to Corellon first)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae makes a skeptical face at the sign. There's nothing wrong with a toy shop, but the wording reminds her too heavily of "al will be well"

(gotcha ty)

"I kind of know how to make holy water. Though I've never actually succeeded at that..."

Marcus Veranius: "Huh. That's a name that keeps popping up."

Suldae Westwind: "Blinsky?"

"Wait, isn't that the guy in the village too?"

Marcus Veranius: "The mourning lady had one of his toys."

Suldae Westwind: "Oooh, huh"

Suldae gives the shop a more wary glance, remembering how uncertain she was of the lady's sanity

Marcus Veranius: "And the ghost children."

Suldae Westwind: "..."

"Let's take note of this place and move on..."

Marcus Veranius: "I'll pick up a souvenir on the way out."

Ireena Kolyana: (Perception checks)

Marcus Veranius:

23

PERCEPTION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

14

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana:

8

10

PERCEPTION (2)

Marcus hears the giggling of an adult man and briefly sees a flash of something small, furry, and vaguely humanoid. It has an exceptionally long tail. It appears to be wearing a pink tutu. The little monkey silently grabs something from the display case with two little hands, pauses for a moment to scratch itself, and leaps away.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Just at that moment, the horse rears and panics!

Suldae Westwind: (wait what horse)

(didnt ismark have the cart)

Ireena Kolyana: (Fahk)

GM: (Disregard)

Marcus Veranius holds his hand up, motioning the group to stop

Marcus Veranius: "Look for an entertaining man with a monkey..."

"Toy shop. Monkey mascot."

Suldae Westwind: "Hmm."

Marcus Veranius: "On second thought, I'm suddenly up to a bit more shopping."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose but nods agreement.

"I always liked toys"

Marcus Veranius: "I used to. Don't really have anyone to buy them for anymore."

Marcus Veranius checks if the shop is open, then proceeds inside

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows.

Gadof Blinsky: "'Wyelcome, friends, to the House of Blinsky, where hyappiness and smiles can be bought at bargain prices. Perhaps you know a leetle child in need of joy? A leetle toy for a girl or boy?"

Marcus Veranius: (...)

On display are a few of the toymaker's creations: 1) A headless doll that comes with a sack of attachable heads, including one with its eyes and mouth stitched shut (9 cp). 2) A miniature gallows, complete with trapdoor and a weighted "hanged man" (9 cp). 3) A set of wooden nesting dolls; the smaller each one gets, the older it gets, until the innermost doll is a mummified corpse (9 cp). 4) A wood-and-string mobile of hanging bats with flapping wings (9 cp). 5) A wind-up musical merry-go-round with figures of snarling wolves chasing children in place of prancing horses (9 cp). 6) A ventriloquist's dummy which looks exactly like Strahd von Zarovich (9 sp). 7) A doll that looks remarkably like Ireena Kolyana (NOT FOR SALE).

Gadof Blinsky gestures and makes a cheeping sound. A small monkey in a pink tutu ambles across the room and jumps up to climb him, then sits on his shoulder observing you.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles brightly and stays one step behind Marcus, not saying anything. She is thoroughly unnerved.

GM (GM): (Good morning!)

(Sorry I'm late!)

Liliet (Suldae): (good evening! i was late too lmao)

Tops K.: (I've had scheduling issues past two nights. Lost my right to complain. :U)

Liliet (Suldae): (so where were we... ah right. Suldae was hiding behind Marcus :D)

Gadof Blinsky: "Is everything alright?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus looks over the toymaker's stock, at first caught off guard by the disturbing selection. Those feelings fade in the face of amusement after second thought.

"You wouldn't happen to have supplied mantelpiece figurines to the Durst family at some point, have you? I think I recognize your work."

Gadof Blinsky: "Durst family?" He says. "It doesn't ring a bell. I don't get many customers." (Insight)

Marcus Veranius:

11

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Gadof Blinsky: He seems to be telling the truth, but understating things slightly.

He tries to glide past the awkward moment. "Is it my little friend Piccolo which frightens you?" the little monkey is now perched on his shoulder, and he offers it a crumb of stale biscuit.

The monkey takes the large crumb in both hands and gnaws on it, looking around the room curiously while it eats.

Ireena Kolyana: "He's actually sort of cute."

"If he's a he, why'd you put him in the tutu?"

Gadof Blinsky: "What? He likes the tutu!"

"I fitted it to him myself!"

Marcus Veranius nods. "We must stand by the choices of our family."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae smiles weakly, as best she can.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus looks over the products on display, stopping eventually at the ventriloquist dummy and accompanying doll.

"I like this one. The resemblance to the real thing is unlike some statues I've seen."

Gadof Blinsky: Gadof giggles. "Yes, I'm very proud of my leetle Strahd."

"Many of the people here in town do not approve, but Lady Fiona commissioned it personally from me."

Marcus Veranius: "Well, devils are easier to face when they've been carved in adorable fashion. I might have to walk home with this one; for a good price of course."

Suldae Westwind: "Lady Fiona?" Suldae asks curiously.

Gadof Blinsky: "This one is for sale. Lady Fiona was going to give it to her daughter as a wedding gift, but the vicious girl took a dislike to her mother's chosen man. Imagine! Saying no to marrying the son of the Burgomaster!"

Suldae Westwind: "Truly horrible," Suldae says, not bothering to mask the skepticism in her voice.

Gadof Blinsky: "Indeed!" says Gadof, not catching the sarcasm.

"The Wachter family is one of the oldest families in town, and Lady Fiona Wachter is their matriarch, since her husband died."

"I take it you are not from Vallaki?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head, and, feeling slightly more relaxed, looks the toys over more openly.

Marcus Veranius: "Phlan, actually. Or, from what's left of it."

"Dragons, shoddy business for everyone involved."

Gadof Blinsky: "Y-you mean -- you come from outside Barovia?"

His eyes go wide as saucers.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up, curious at his reaction.

"Is that so rare here?"

Marcus Veranius blinks. "Is that a taboo in these parts? I apologize."

Gadof Blinsky: "There is no way to leave Barovia," says Gadof. "Unless you are a Vistani."

"I have never seen anyone who was not born here."

Suldae Westwind: "So we're super unlucky then," Suldae says philosophically, leaving aside her conviction that there must be SOME way for the moment.

Marcus Veranius: "Sorry to dissappoint; I would have put on a better face if I knew I'd be representing the lands outside." Marcus smirks, turning his attention to the Ireena-Doll

Gadof Blinsky: "Wait! There was one other, I forgot."

"Six months ago, he came -- the last paying customer in six months. He gave me Piccolo!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae perks up in curiosity. "Bought something?" she asks first.

Marcus Veranius: "PAID for something." Marcus nods solemnly. This might be the most charitable, or most burglarized shop in all of Barovia if his toys are so far-reaching and undersold at the same time.

Gadof Blinsky: Gadof nods eagerly. "Yes, he bought a small stuffed Vistana! One of my best works. I hope it is having a good life, out there in the world..." He pauses and stares through the wall for nearly a minute, stroking the monkey mindlessly. He snaps back to himself -- and to the conversation -- with a tired, put-upon, but very generous smile. He laughs. "He's stuck here too. Living in town. A one-man carnival o

*A one-man carnival of entertainment!"

"He reminds me, sometimes, of my master -- the great toymaker, Fritz von Weerg."

"If you are from the outside, does that mean you are hyere to..." -- He leans in to whisper, eyes wide and serious -- "...kill Strahd?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows curiously. That sure was a conclusion to jump to.

"Not saying yes or no, but is that... common?" she asks, eyeing the Ireena toy.

Gadof Blinsky: "Rumors pop up, you know. Sometimes my dolls hyear things..."

"It's alright if you don't want to answer."

He moves to Marcus. "You like the Ireena doll, yes? It is very pretty?"

Ireena Kolyana: "The What doll!?"

Marcus Veranius: "Yes, it's rather uncanny."

"I was thinking though; she hasn't been in this direction before if I'm not mistaken. How did you get the likeness so accurate?"

Gadof Blinsky: "It is called the Ireena doll! It is a commission, the twelfth version of the same order. It is not ready yet. Unfortunately, I cannot sell it. I think this one will finally satisfy my patron." He seems to be badly suppressing some genuine anger.

"The description they have given me is very detailed, and they have insisted on perfection."

"Every month, for a year, I have made this stupid doll..."

Sulda Westwind: "The patron doesn't happen to be Strahd?" Suldae asks, raising her eyebrows.

Marcus Veranius: "If it is, I've bad news. He may be trying to shrug you off in favor of the original."

Gadof Blinsky: "He cannot enter Vallaki, nor can his servants. Not while the bones of the Saint Andral lie in the church. No, it is not Strahd. It is Izek Strazni. Every month he comes, and he threatens me, he says 'I will burn down your shop if you do not produce another doll' and I say, 'the same order, again?' and he only nods. And each time I think to myself 'this is madness' but here I am and here you are, my little Ireena doll, the twelfth of your sisters! I send you off who knows where -- to ashes no doubt, to the ash-heap, to an ignominious end, and all I can hope is that you will be the last of my dear creations to be so harshly treated by this empty wasteland of a world..."

He touches the doll as though wiping away an imaginary tear.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena smears an eye with the back of her hand. She moves into the light.

Sulda Westwind: "Huh," Suldae says curiously. "Who's that guy?"

Gadof Blinsky: Gadof looks at her, but seems incapable of seeing the resemblance.

"Izek is the aide to the Burgomaster. The dextra -- the right hand."

"But all that to say -- I cannot sell you this doll."

Marcus Veranius: "That is fair. My best wishes that it be the one."

Marcus Veranius picks up the Leetle Strahd and brings it to the counter

Suldae Westwind: "Who was Saint Andral?" Suldae asks meanwhile, hoping for another heap of gossip from this pleasant man. She's mostly relaxed from her previous nervousness already. So this place is creepy, what else is new?

Gadof Blinsky: Gadof comes around to the counter. "You -- you wish to purchase!?" He seems either horrified or overjoyed.

Marcus Veranius nods. "Well, I wouldn't be having fun if it wasn't a Blinsky."

Gadof Blinsky: "You will treat it well, yes? It is not Strahd, it is one of my creations that jjust happens to look like him."

Suldae Westwind: "I will make sure he does," Suldae solemnly says

Gadof Blinsky: "Then it is just nine silver pieces for you."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus holds out a gold piece for Blinksy, pretending he's not paying a silver over the tag price.

"Incidentally, if we WERE going after the original. Would you have any advice for us?"

Gadof Blinsky: "Bring all the help you can gather."

He takes the gold piece, eyes gleaming.

He bows deeply. "Thank you."

Ireena Kolyana: "Sorry, my friend asked a question a while back, and I'd like to know the answer as well. Who is Saint Andral?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to Ireena gratefully.

Gadof Blinsky: "No one really remembers what Saint Andral did. There are many legends, but I do not believe them. He was alive when Strahd fell from grace, and with his dying breath he blessed this village. As long as his bones lie in the crypt, Strahd cannot enter the city, nor can any of his creatures."

"That story, at least, is worth a sainthood."

Ireena Kolyana: "Thank you."

"You ready to go, Marcus? Leaving Ismark alone in a bar for any longer seems like a bad idea."

Suldae Westwind: "It does sound like it," Suldae says thoughtfully. "Say, as long as we're gossiping, got anything to say about the Baron?"

Marcus Veranius: "I agree."

Marcus bows to Blinsky. "I've been told you may be helpful in the grand scheme of things. Vistani prophecy. Whether it's true or not, it's been nice to meet an artisan like yourself."

Sulda Westwind: "So is it a good or a bad idea for him to drink?" Suldae asks her companions sardonically

Gadof Blinsky: "The Baron is an ass. But he is a vicious, remorseless ass. Do your best to avoid crossing his path. I have seen him turn the whole village on those who displease him."

"I've been in those stocks a few times myself..."

He smiles again.

"It was a pleasure to meet outsiders! I hope you weel come again."

Marcus Veranius smiles, then makes for the exit

Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods gratefully and follows Marcus.

Marcus Veranius: "Quite honestly, I don't know how well undead take their liquor. It'd be best to check regardless."

Sulda Westwind: Remembering something, she stops.

And comes back into the shop.

"One last question... two last questions."

Gadof Blinsky: "Oh, hello again!"

"With what can I help you?"

Sulda Westwind: "First, I'd like the gallows toy..." Suldae counts out 10 cp, copying Marcus in pretending this was the correct price.

"And second, you don't happen to know what's going to happen to people who're in the stocks now?"

Gadof Blinsky: "Thank you!"

"Oh, they will be released once their punishment is done."

Sulda Westwind: "And that's just stocks, is it?" Suldae asks, taking the gallows toy and bopping the hanging man with her finger.

Gadof Blinsky: "The Baron doesn't usually hang anyone unless they try to run for Burgomaster."

"But it sometimes does happen!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae blinks, surprised with a new piece of news, even though she really shouldn't be. "So the Baron likes to decide who the Burgomaster is?"

Gadof Blinsky: "They say that long ago, when the Baron and the Burgomaster were not the same man, one of the Barons ran for Burgomaster and was voted in. Since then, it's been a hereditary position of the Baron. He is technically both."

Sulda Westwind: "Ah," Suldae says, as a lot of things become clear. "That sounds... cozy for him, huh. Well, see you, master!" and with that compliment she catches up to her companions

At the end of the road you see an Inn. Gray smoke issues from the chimney of this large, two-story wooden building with a stone foundation and sagging tile roof, upon which several ravens have perched. A painted wooden sign hanging above the main entrance depicts a blue waterfall.

Sulda Westwind: "Well at least it's not a windmill," Suldae murmurs to Marcus and gives a friendly wave to the birds.

Marcus Veranius: "And then he said..." "Excuse me, I wasn't talking to YOU! Good day to you sir!"

Marcus squeaks, pretending to talk out of the Strahd puppet

"Oh, Suldae! I was telling Ireena of my encounter with Strahd at the house. It helps to have visual aid."

"It does make the tale more pleasant."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs.

"He's pretty good with that thing! You can barely see his lips moving."

Marcus Veranius: "It helps that I barely have lips to move."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena pinches the doll's wooden cheeks. "You're much cuter than the real Strahd, that's for sure."

She opens the door to the Inn.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae laughs along with them and curiously looks inside

Damp cloaks hang from pegs in the entrance portico. The tavern is packed with tables and chairs, with narrow paths meandering between them. A bar stretches along one wall, under a balcony that can be reached by a wooden staircase that hugs the north wall. Another balcony overhangs an entrance to the east. All the windows are fitted with thick shutters and crossbars. Lanterns hanging above the bar and resting on the tables bathe the room in dull orange light and cast shadows upon the walls, most of which are adorned with wolf heads mounted on wooden plaques.

Suldae Westwind: this is some harsh lighting lmao

Ismark is seated at the bar, beside a colorfully-dressed, slender man. His scarlet velvet jacket is covered in golden embroidery and dangling with tassels. Ismark is currently laughing uproariously, drawing the attention of some of the other patrons of the bar. The slender man seems to be concentrating on his drink, but also looks like a man who has just told a very clever joke.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Ok, ok, so what did you say after that?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes closer, also curious about what the guy said after... whatever that was.

Rictavio: In a soft but magnetic and faintly-accented voice, the slender man says: "Well, naturally I said 'Well, it's solved all my problems so far.'"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark roars with laughter.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles, getting the impression of a good joke even without knowing anything except the punchline.

"Hey there," she calls out just loudly enough to be heard over the noise in the tavern when right next to them.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oh! Suldae! Nice to see you!"

"This is Rictavio, we were just getting acquainted."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh nice to meet you," Suldae lowers her head for a second in a polite greeting, then claims a chair behind them

Rictavio: Rictavio gives a mock-salute. Suldae realizes he is half-elvish.

Suldae Westwind: (>scarlet velvet jacket)

(really)

Rictavio: He has a cane and a small leather satchel.

(The picture is a loose reference -- he has a scarlet velvet jacket that's not depicted in the picture)

Suldae Westwind: (makes sense, just funny)

Marcus Veranius quickly stows the Strahd puppet away before approaching the bar, taking a seat beside Rictavio as to not draw more attention to Ismark.

Suldae Westwind: "Suldae Catherine Westwind," the bard introduces herself by full name, thrown slightly off balance in a good way by the company of another half-elf. "Just Suldae for everyone who's not a lawyer"

Rictavio: "Understood!" says Rictavio.

"I am Rictavio, Grandmaster of the Carnival of Wonders!"

Suldae Westwind: "That's the one cart with one person who is you?" Suldae teases

Rictavio: "The very same! It is a privilege to make my acquaintance, I'm sure -- though not half as much as it is my pleasure to make yours."

"It is a rare thing, to see a fellow member of our hybrid condition here in Barovia. You are a sight for sore eyes!"

Rictavio takes notice of Marcus for the first time. He gives Marcus a small card.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles widely and nods. She likes the man a lot already, and she's glad he's the person they'd been looking for.

Rictavio: (To Marcus) "You must join my show of freaks and wonders, your features are undeniably gruesome! What is your name, my good deformed sir?"

As soon as Marcus touches the card, it disappears in a glimmer of light.

Ireena Kolyana: "Hey!" says Ireena. "You can't just ask people to join freakshows."

Marcus Veranius smiles, trying to suppress an eye-twitch. He's not said a word and has already been thoroughly japed.

Marcus Veranius: "A showman of talent. You know where to strike best."

Marcus Veranius motions for the Bartender. "A pint please; I'll need something to cushion these words."

Suldae Westwind: "I mean if you joined the carnival I'd join too, being a bard and everything," Suldae remarks, incapable of resisting the mental image - not of Marcus in a freakshow, but of all of them working together in a small carnival

Rictavio: Rictavio twists in his barstool and lowers his dark glasses. His eyes are a piercing blue, and they have a stare that seems far more knowing and insightful than his demeanor so far would suggest. "And who might you be, miss standing-up-for-manners?"

Distracted slightly, he looks at Suldae. "You're a bard? What a small world!"

Ireena Kolyana: "I am Ireena Kolyana, daughter of the Burgomaster of the Village of Barovia."

Suldae Westwind: (where is Ireena? still behind the door?)

(^^)

Rictavio: Rictavio stiffens. He puts his dark glasses back on and faces the bar.

Leaning over his ale, he mutters: "It isn't safe to talk here." Only Suldae and Marcus can hear him, his whisper seems to cut through the noise of the tavern without carrying farther than you two.

Suldae Westwind: "Small world indeed! Hey, would you like to show us your carnival?" Suldae suggests in a tone as bright as previously

Danika: The bartender places a pint of ale before Marcus. "Will you be wanting rooms for the night?"

Marcus Veranius: "Yes please. The last place I stayed the night was warm only as I was leaving."

Suldae Westwind: It takes Suldae a moment to comprehend the joke, then she laughs.

Danika: "It's just one electrum piece for each bed for the night. Comes with hot beet soup and fresh bread. We also have wolf steaks for a second electrum piece. We've got two wines: Purple Grapemash No. 3, for 3 copper pieces, or a pint of the superior Red Dragon Crush for 1 silver piece."

Marcus Veranius raises an eyebrow. "Are denominations of Electrum common in these parts?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flashes thumbs up at the wine names

She appreciates "purple grapemash", though she'd prefer something non-alcoholic.

Rictavio: (Electrum is like a 50 cent piece -- 10 silver is 1 GP, 5 silver is 1 EP.)

Suldae Westwind: "So one gold piece for a night and a meal," Suldae says thoughtfully.

Danika: "Yes, that's the deal," says Danika.

Suldae Westwind: "I'm hungry enough to eat a wolf indeed," Suldae decides and gives a gold piece over.

Marcus Veranius draws some coins from the coffer box, pulling out four gold five silver

Marcus Veranius: "Room and Steaks for the four of us; we had a rough time getting here. Pair it with the fine wine, and a glass for our friend Rictavio here."

Danika: "Thank you. Now, we have options for the rooms. I have two double bedrooms, each with two beds, or I have a single barracks-style bedroom with four beds and a small sitting table. Which would you like?"

Rictavio: "They'll take the barracks-style room. And we'll take dinner up there, please." Rictavio places a platinum piece on the counter with a satisfying thunk. He keeps his finger on it. "And total privacy."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae withdraws her coin gladly. She doesn't actually have a lot of money, and isn't seeing many prospects of earning any with this group.

She raises her eyebrows at the platinum coin. That's a damn lot of money, as far as she's concerned. She mentally adjusts her assessment of how successful Rictavio's carnival is.

Marcus Veranius looks to Rictavio and nods. Trumped again. Twice now.

Danika: Danika's eyes bug at the sight of the Platinum piece. It's enough to make her forget the rules of the inn, for tonight.

She takes the gold and silver, then takes the platinum piece which bought privacy.

Danika: "Give me just a moment."

Danika takes four keys from a hook on the wall behind the bar, and gives one to each of you. "These open the guest room door. I'll bring your dinner up shortly."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gladly plops herself down on one of the beds. She's retrieved her guitar already, and is quietly plucking at the strings at a volume that doesn't disturb conversation.

Four plain beds with straw mattresses line the north wall of this well-lit room. Each bed comes with a matching footlocker to store clothing and other belongings. A table and four chairs occupy the corner across from the door. An oil lamp resting on the table casts a bright yellow flame.

The seating area is small and cramped, and there are only enough chairs for four of you.

Rictavio: Rictavio waits patiently for the dinner to arrive, saying that he does not want to be interrupted.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena is looking at Rictavio curiously.

Marcus Veranius pulls a chair to the wall and sits down, making more space at the table. His eyes don't leave Rictavio's direction.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays louder in the meanwhile, going through several songs she likes Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark is bouncing his knee and looking impatient.

Suldae Westwind: She, too, occasionally glances at Ricardo, but mostly her eyes wander as she's consumed by her music

Finally the door bursts open and in come two young boys in dark purple capes, bearing silver-plated trays of food. The wolf steaks are delicately presented, with garnishes of parsley and a peppered dollop of horseradish sauce. They are pink in the middle and beautifully seared, and the aroma is strange but pleasant. It smells very gamey. The wine is served in tall silver-plated goblets. It has a heady aroma with notes of blackberry and something floral but musky.

The two boys leave after setting the table, and shut the door behind themselves.

Rictavio: "Would you be so kind as to bar the door please, Marcus?"

"You may use this." He holds out his walking stick.

The cane is black, with a silver handle shaped like a horse's head.

The cane is surprisingly heavy.

GM (GM): 9

Marcus Veranius nods, gently placing the cane through the door handle to keep it from opening. He drags one of the bedside chests against the door for good measure

Rictavio: "Thank you, Marcus."

"Now."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae leaves the guitar on the bed and comes to the table. She's listening, really - she's just also eating.

Rictavio: Rictavio spears his steak with a fork and saws off a chunk. He pops it in his mouth and chews.

He swallows.

"You must have many questions."

Ireena Kolyana: "You're the man my father was writing to," says Ireena.

Rictavio: Rictavio nods. "Your father was a good man. I'm sorry I couldn't be of more service to him."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae casts a discreet glance at Ismark, trying to estimate how likely it is that Rictavio hasn't noticed his 'skin condition' yet

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark casually scratches his neck. Several flakes of skin flutter to the floor, drifting like feathers.

Marcus Veranius: "An OLD friend of her family. Funny how six months is considered old, if the locals have the time scale correct."

Marcus Veranius is a bit more on-edge than usual

Rictavio: "I have been in this land for many years," says Rictavio. "Under many guises. Events in Vallaki have drawn my eye to a peculiar phenomenon which might represent hope or despair."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up from the plate and waits patiently for him to continue, silent mostly because all the questions are having a free for all tug of war in her head.

Rictavio: He reaches up to his bald head and removes an invisible hat. As he places the hat on the table it becomes visible -- it is a scruffy, torn, well-traveled plaid beret, with a small green gemstone set in silver on its hem. The moment the hat leaves his head, he is gone, and someone else is sitting there. A human with piercing blue eyes and a long grey goatee, and with far more years. He is not nearly as slender in this guise, and his clothing is revealed to be a suit of red leather armor.

He smiles. "Hat of disguise."

"Most useful item I've ever acquired!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blinks, impressed but also somewhat disappointed.

Rictavio: "I am Rudolph Van Richten, legendary hunter of vampires."

"If I do say so myself, that is."

Suldae Westwind: The disappointment still persists - why couldn't the legendary hunter of vampires also be a half-elf? - but Suldae is much more eager to listen now.

Rictavio: "You may not have heard of me, but most vampires have." He winks. "That's why I'm here incognito."

"I apologize for the deception, but it's been necessary for many years now. Sometimes I... forget what I really look like."

Marcus Veranius smirks. "A hunter in the open doesn't have a long career."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at the hat and nods. As a bard, she's well aware of how disguises mess with people... both those fooled by them and those wearing them.

Rictavio: "Indeed! I see you have some familiarity with the trade?"

"You look like a vampire hunter, that's for sure."

Marcus Veranius: "Not Vampire. Although maybe I might consider it once my target is in the ground."

Rictavio: "I'm intrigued. What's your target?"

"Vistani?"

"Werewolves?"

Marcus Veranius: "His pet Dragon, and the killer of my family."

Rictavio: Van Richten nods solemnly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces at the mention of Vistani, as she remembers the fortune teller who helped them.

Rictavio: "I had a family once. I know the pain."

Marcus Veranius: "Thankfully my list of hunts is smaller, so I need not be subtle. Just the one, and I can rest easy."

Rictavio: "Ah! I wish I could do the same. When I was a young man, the endless hunt kept me alive and drove me on. Now, I feel my road is coming to an end, but my work still remains undone."

Suldae Westwind: "And if you hear about some other dragon killing people elsewhere, you're going to just ignore that?" Suldae curiously interjects. As a bard, she has a feeling for stories, and she's curious which of the two options Marcus's is.

Marcus Veranius turns to Suldae, expression grim.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not a knight in shining armor. I am an injured man, treating a wounded heart by cutting out the knife that stabbed it."

"I'll consider the future once I know I'll be there for it."

Rictavio: "Hear hear," says Van Richten, and raises his glass.

Marcus Veranius taps it in toast, and takes a sip of wine.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. Undecided yet it is, then. Well, she'll be there for whatever happens.

Rictavio: Van Richten sips and smacks his lips. "Delightful."

Marcus Veranius: He grimaces, placing the glass back down.

"One day I'll find liquor strong enough to cut through a burned tongue."

"Not today it seems."

Suldae Westwind: "So... what events?" Suldae eventually brings the topic around, as she finishes chewing the next meat piece.

Rictavio: "I have discovered that there is a secret society of wereravens, headquartered here in Vallaki. They are called the Keepers of the Feather. We and they seem to be opposed to Strahd, and I am trying to learn more about them without exposing them to our mutual enemy. I think they might prove helpful when the time comes."

"I have also found a large tribe of Vistani here, and I am currently investigating their alignment. If they are spies of Strahd, I will take them out, and blind him in this region."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae pauses, then whistles. Were-ravens, huh.

"Were-ravens, huh," she says out loud.

Marcus Veranius raises an eyebrow. "Were...birds?"

Sulda Westwind: "We might have met them"

Marcus Veranius: "They come in bird shape?"

"I thought it was just mutts."

Sulda Westwind: "The raven that pointed us away from the windmill," Suldae tells Marcus. "I told you it wasn't just an animal, didn't I?"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Rictavio: "The Lycanthropic disorder can fuse many different kinds of animal souls to a human one."

Sulda Westwind: "And there's lots of were... anything, I think", Suldae adds brightly.

Wererats particularly come to her mind.

Marcus Veranius: "THE RAVEN THAT GUIDED US TO THAT BLOODY HOUSE."

Rictavio: "In my time, I've seen wererats, wereboars, werebears, werewolves, werecats, wereswans..."

"What bloody house?"

Sulda Westwind: "The Durst manor," Suldae says, and it's her turn to get distracted. "Wereswans?"

Marcus Veranius cuts a piece of steak and forces it in his mouth with a frown, talking between chews. "I don't want to talk about the house."

Rictavio: "Wereswans. By day, beautiful maidens. By the light of the full moon, huge swans."

"Let's not talk about the house, then."

Van Richten looks at Ireena. "Your father told me that you had already been bitten," he says.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena nods.

Rictavio: Rictavio's expression grows grim.

Sulda Westwind: "Ah," Suldae nods. That story she'd vaguely heard, just didn't connect with lycanthropy.

Rictavio: "That is bad news. It will be harder to protect you now. While you are in Vallaki, at least, you should be safe."

"For now. It is only a matter of time before Strahd's creatures attempt another incursion."

Sulda Westwind: "Vallaki hasn't sounded like much of a safe place to me so far," Suldae says cautiously, watching for his reaction

Rictavio: "There are threats here, certainly. Agents of power, and factions vying for control."

"Revolutions of the mind are simmering here, and who knows? In a decade or two, perhaps they will boil over, and the town will set itself right. But I do not have high hopes. The people here are defeated in spirit, through no act of Strahd."

"Now, before we go any further, I must know: what are your plans?"

"What are your goals?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I -- I just want to be safe."

Rictavio: "That's not an option. Not while Strahd lives."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "She's been fine so far."

Marcus Veranius: "Fine isn't a lasting condition."

Rictavio: Van Richten points at Marcus. "This man. I like him."

"You've got to think long term here."

"At the end of the day, we are trapped in a demiplane with what amounts to a demon."

"There is no escape from Barovia, which means there is no escape from Strahd."

"So what you should be thinking about is what you're going to do, next time he crosses your path."

Suldae Westwind: "Kick his ass?" Suldae suggests. It doesn't really sound like a plan to her, but it sure is a direction to look in

"Also, demiplane?"

"Is that why nobody can leave?"

She frowns.

Marcus Veranius grins. "You'd need a stronger boot. There's strong magic in that vampire."

Suldae Westwind: "Well, that's the last step of the plan. Evidently we need to get a stronger boot first," Suldae gives him a charming smile.

Marcus Veranius: "I don't know magic that well, but I think he had four spells going in the single minute we were talking."

Suldae Westwind: "So, demiplane?"

She looks to Ric... Rich... R.

She decides she's just goin to mentally call him R.

Rictavio: Van Richten puts down his wineglass and swallows. "Yes. Demiplane. When Strahd bound himself to the dark powers, the land was bound with him. It exists in no earthly place. It clings to the universe through a tenuous connection. It is like a small bubble stuck to a larger bubble -- and in places, the wall between the worlds is thin, and men and women stumble in. But there is no way back through the mists -- everyone who tries goes mad or dies. This is truly Strahd's domain, and his powers hold sway over much of the land. I have studied Strahd for years, and I know that no mortal can hope to best the vampire in a straight-up confrontation. One must wait for the right moment to strike. Now, I have good evidence to suggest that Strahd periodically hibernates in his coffin -- sometimes for years, when all is quiet in the realm. When new stimulations arise, he emerges from his slumber."

"So of course, he will be alive and very much aware, since you have entered his domain."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs and closes her eyes. "Wonderful," she sas.

*says

Rictavio: "Seeing that he is hunting you with such singular focus suggests to me that he will not retreat until he has captured and turned you, and slain any remaining threats."

Suldae Westwind: "And if we kill him?... Does the bubble go pop and kill everyone insidee?"

Rictavio: "No," says Van Richten. "His death should lift the curse, and free Barovia."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses. "Is that a very certain kind of 'should', or the 'if the universe is just and kind' kind of should?"

Marcus Veranius: "Sounds like a 'better than status quo' should to me."

Rictavio: Van Richten nods. "Even if the demiplane were destroyed with everyone inside, it would be a better fate than this."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose in doubt. She is fairly certain about preferring shitty life to death, herself, but doesn't argue the point for the moment. "Surrendering to Strahd" does not strike her as a better plan anyway.

Rictavio: "I came to Barovia to kill Strahd von Zarovich. It will be the capstone and masterpiece of my life's career. Slayer of the world's Greatest Vampire! But even I am not so brash as to think I could do it alone."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose again. That, in her eyes, makes his claims about the 'should's much less reliable. Wishful thinking is a very familiar story to her ears.

Rictavio: "But if you are willing to commit to this cause with me, well... We would be one step closer to our goal."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm willing to examine the evidence in favor of this being a good idea," Suldae says after a moment.

Rictavio: "We will need more help, however. Last year a wizard came to Barovia and attempted to take the castle with an army of peasants. It... didn't end well. The wizard was powerful, but not enough."

Suldae Westwind: "There's all kinds of ways this could go wrong, and I'm referring to the scenario in which we succeed, here."

"Oh! Ireena is a wizard, right?" Suldae leans back and looks over at her.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs. "Just barely!"

"Now, if we could get our hands on some useful spells, and if I had time to practice, maybe that could make a difference."

Suldae Westwind: "We need to gather you a component pouch, too," Suldae notes. "Hope you've been collecting trash already"

"No offense"

Ireena Kolyana: "No need," says Ireena, and pulls the crystal orb from her pocket.

Suldae Westwind: "Oh!" Suldae brightens up. "Forgot about that thing"

Ireena Kolyana: She holds it in one hand and reaches toward the table with her other hand. In the depths of the crystal sphere, a faint glimmer of light sparks like a star. A ghostly, spectral hand of mist shoots from Ireena's hand, rushes toward the table, and grasps a wineglass. It brings it weightlessly through the air to her, and the spirit hand vanishes back into her flesh-and-blood one. She takes a drink of the wine.

She grins from ear to ear.

Rictavio: Van Richten seems somewhat impressed.

Marcus Veranius considers everything before speaking. "Do you have any leads for allies outside the ravens? We've been chasing Vistani prophecies with little luck."

Marcus Veranius: "Thought one of them pointed to you, but it actually led us to a toyshop."

Suldae Westwind: "Speaking of," Suldae adds, "the Vistani at the river, at least, were friendly to us"

Rictavio: Van Richten laughs.

"Blinsky? How did he seem when you saw him? Was he happy with Piccolo?"

"Vistani come in all varieties. In Barovia, most of them are allied with Strahd."

Marcus Veranius: "He seemed content. Frustrated with business, but that's the life of a merchant."

"His shop seems to have the only reasonable prices I've seen in this country, so I'll call that aid if nothing else."

Suldae Westwind: "Piccolo seemed happy," Suldae adds.

Rictavio: "I'm glad to hear that. He never seemed to like me very much. Must have been the smell of the tiger."

Marcus Veranius raises an eyebrow. "Oh yeah, you gave him the monkey. Didn't you."

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe that prophecy wasn't too far off after all."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She was already wondering if the prophecy might not have meant both of them.

Marcus Veranius: "So... a Tiger you said. I meant to ask about what was in the cart."

Rictavio: "It's a tiger. I've trained it to hunt Vistani."

Van Richten seems proud of this.

"Once he's ready, and once I'm certain that the Vistani outside town are villains, I plan to loose him on them."

Suldae Westwind: "Why?" Suldae asks blankly

Rictavio: Van Richten drinks some of the wine.

Suldae Westwind: "Why would you train a tiger to attack a certain... ethnicity?"

"Also, what if they aren't?"

Rictavio: "I wasn't always this... person. I was a scholar. A doctor. I lived in a land called Darkon. I married my childhood sweetheart, Ingrid. Together, we had a son, Erasmus. When he was fourteen, the Vistani stole my son from me and sold him to a vampire named Baron Metus. By the time I found my son, it was too late: Baron Metus had already turned him."

"I put him out of his misery -- at his own request -- and Baron Metus, taking this affront personally, killed my wife."

"Something inside me... snapped. I studied the darkness. I learned about the disease of vampirism, and the many possible 'cures.'"

Sulda Westwind: "Humans killed my pet cat when I was six," Suldae asys blankly.

Rictavio: "I cured Baron Metus with a stake through the heart."

Taken aback, Van Richten says, "I'm so sorry to hear that."

Sulda Westwind: "I would always have phrased it as "drunk assholes from the docks", really," Sudlae says. "But it's also correct that they were humans." She gives Richten a smile that's just a bit too wide. "Should I have trained up a critter to attack humans? Or is that a little bit of a wrong kind of logic?"

Rictavio: Van Richten chews his cheek irritably.

Marcus Veranius: "...Suldae; I don't mean to be impolite. I think a pet cat is a different situation."

Rictavio: "You like to think of yourself as a clever little thing, don't you."

Sulda Westwind: "And what, it's the only atrocity humans ever committed?" Suldae raises her eyebrows at Marcus.

Rictavio: "I have killed thousands of vampires. And many hundreds of Vistani. They are not all evil. But when they are evil, they are savage brutes who deserve nothing but slaughter."

Sulda Westwind: "Should I go down the list?..."

"So... that 'they are not all evil' point," Suldae says calmly. "How exactly are you planning to ascertain whether or not the local Vistani are or aren't?"

Marcus Veranius: "That Rictavio has the restraint to investigate rather than release the Tiger as-is and let beast decide is enough for me."

Sulda Westwind: She places a slight emphasis on the 'or aren't' part.

She ignores Marcus.

Her gaze is focused on R.

Rictavio: Van Richten raises a woolly eyebrow. "I have no need of your permission, Suldae. You cannot stop me. I have been watching them for weeks now, gathering information and studying their connections. I have reason to believe these Vistani are closely allied with Strahd."

"If you think a second pair of eyes is required, you are welcome to go and investigate them yourselves."

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae. Before you say anything more, I would like to make a point of correction."

Sulda Westwind: "I would hear the results of your investigation first," Suldae shrugs. "I have no reason to assume you incompetent, just biased. I don't want to do the same work twice."

She's still ignoring Marcus.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Fine. Hold your mistrust."

"I watched through the pain of my skin melting as a dragon turned my wife and daughter into a puddle of NOTHING."

"And if you were to compare that pain to the loss of a cat, then use it to justify Dragons not being potentially evil, I would be particularly hurt."

"We have no reason to distrust Ricten's intuition."

"Now if you'll excuse me, I'm taking a walk."

Marcus Veranius moves for the door, unbarring it and walking down the hallway

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives him a weird glance, then turns back to R. "I am not making that comparison," she says more softly. "I simply want to hear what you've learned about the Vistani. Like I said, we've met some friendly ones on our way here; they knew more than they should, but they shared the knowledge freely, too. What's your intel?"

Rictavio: "I have learned that they sell a potion which they pretend will get you through the mists, but which in reality has no effect. I have learned that the tribe is without elders, they died recently, most likely of poison. Two young men -- a Luvash and an Arrigal -- have taken control of the tribe. I have seen them receive visits from the wolves and the bats. Arrigal, at least, has ridden his horse personally to the castle on at least one occasion."

"I have also seen them with the spoils of banditry -- there are things in their possession which could only be stolen goods."

"Now, perhaps you will say that these Vistani are only parlaying with Strahd, attempting to ensure his protection for their people. As I said, I have not determined definitively that the tribe is evil."

"But the evidence so far does not lean in their favor."

Suldae Westwind: "I see," Suldae says calmly. "So you're saying that two men have taken over the tribe and are likely in league with Strahd?"

She raises a hand with a "V" gesture, meaning "two"

Rictavio: "Two men cannot be a bandit troop," says Van Richten. "And the spoils of banditry require banditry to acquire. Two days ago, a pair of them returned from a party of four. They were both injured by crossbow bolts. One brought a leather bag full of coins, as though he had just been paid. They spoke of an ambush on a bridge not going according to plan."

He raises his eyebrows suggestively.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. "So those were them, huh."

"Let me ask you this. You mentioned that the tribe doesn't have elders anymore. Does it have children?"

(To Marcus Veranius): On the balcony overlooking the tavern area, you see several doors. No one is up here. As you watch, two men loudly enter the tavern, already slurring their words and shouting drunkenly.

(To Marcus Veranius): Roll Perception please

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+4 Perception

(6)+4

= 10

Rictavio: "There was a child with them recently, but she went missing yesterday afternoon and has not been seen since."

"I fear the worst."

(To Marcus Veranius): You catch two names. Nikolai and Karl. A last name appears in the chatter.

Wachter. They seem to be very disruptive.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows. "No children of their own?"

"Just one?"

Rictavio: "She was the child of one of the elders. Heir to the throne, so to speak."

"Bad luck for her, if you catch my drift."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae exhales. "I do. So how many people is this tribe?"

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus decides to move downstairs to observe, try to get his mind off things. It's that or be the sad kind of man practicing ventriloquy all alone in a corner somewhere.

(From Marcus Veranius): He sits down at the bar, putting silver forward for another glass of wine.

Rictavio: "There are about thirty young men," says Rictavio, punctuating himself with a sip of wine. "Hence the tiger."

(To Marcus Veranius): The bartender, Danika, is flushed in the face and preoccupied with the two young men who are trying to order drinks. They don't seem to be taking no for an answer.

(To Marcus Veranius): Danika says: "I've told you. I can't run your tab any higher. If you want more wine, you'll have to settle up first."

(To Marcus Veranius): The two brothers jeer. "Our da's good for it! He'll settle up when it's time to renew your lease."

(To Marcus Veranius): Nikolai says: "Yeah! We'll make him give you a credit! A discount!"

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus considers a moment, then pulls out a deck of cards. He makes a show of shuffling them as he speaks up. "Tell you what, boys, you the gambling type? I'll cover your tabs if you can beat me in a game."

(To Marcus Veranius): The two young men seem intrigued. "You're not from around here, are you," they say.

(To Marcus Veranius): "What's your game?"

(From Marcus Veranius): "You've got good eyes! Name's Marcus; I like smart guys like you." Marcus puts on a warm smile, hoping to divert their aggression away from the bartender. Easy enough to entertain drunks when their minds are already half-off.

(From Marcus Veranius): "What's the local game? Gwent? Pazaak? Dragon Cards?"

(To Marcus Veranius): "Shoot, we don't know any of those. Could you teach us?"

(From Marcus Veranius): "I'd be glad to! Why don't we take a seat at the table over there."

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus sneaks a wink to the bartender and proceeds to start his lesson. He hopes the pair might forget their intent to buy by the end and be off on their merry way.

(To Marcus Veranius): (Please roll Performance or Persuasion)

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+1 (It turns out Bards are better at diplomacy)

(18)+1 = 19

(From Marcus Veranius): (Marcus has +1 to Perform or Persuasion; have that role be either one)

(To Marcus Veranius): The lesson goes well. The brothers learn the rules easily, and by the end of it they have forgotten about the original bargain. They seem fascinated by Marcus and his outsider's perspective. At the bar, Danika pours another wine and puts it to one side for Marcus surreptitiously.

(To Marcus Veranius): 19

(To Marcus Veranius): After four games, it's still a tie.

(To Marcus Veranius): (Roll again please -- tiebreaker)

(To Marcus Veranius): (Roll with your proficiency too please)

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+1+2 Deception. Marcus flops his last hand on purpose, "admitting defeat" to generate a false sense of accomplishment.

(7)+1+2

= 10

Marcus Veranius: "You boys are naturals at this! Well done!"

(To Marcus Veranius): 6

(To Marcus Veranius): "Yeah! We showed you! Ha!"

(From Marcus Veranius): "You know, there's this lovely shop in the warehouse district with just about everything. If you make it there before closing, they might have a set of cards you can buy."

(To Marcus Veranius): Nikolai turns to his brother. "Come on, douchebag. Let's go break into dad's cellar and drink at home."

(To Marcus Veranius): The two brothers get up and leave.

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus waves goodbye as they leave, casually sliding up to the glass of wine poured for him earlier.

(From Marcus Veranius): "One of those customers, yeah? Glad they ain't my regulars."

(To Marcus Veranius): Danika comes over. She's brought a small plate with a dessert roll on it. The roll is hot. "Thank you for dealing with that little problem. They won't be back tonight, I think."

(To Marcus Veranius): "Compliments of the house."

(From Marcus Veranius): "My pleasure."

(From Marcus Veranius): (This is probably a good spot for Suldae to find Marcus post-conversation)

(To Marcus Veranius): (This is a good spot to end the session, yeah -- This was fun, It's kind of neat to be able to split the party and compartmentalize player knowledge)

(From Marcus Veranius): (Thanks for running! Have a nice afternoon!)

(To Marcus Veranius): (You too!)

GM (GM): (Good morning!)

Tops K.: (Mornin!)

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm sorry to interrput," Ireena says, "But I don't think we should let anyone wander off. We don't know this place yet. I'm going to go find Marcus."

"And for the record: I'm against genocide but not particularly opposed to a holy massacre, if the victims are truly evil, or in league with Strahd."

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark raises an eyebrow, looking at his sister a little strangely.

Marcus Veranius creaks open the door gently, steps inside, and re-bars the door

Marcus Veranius: "...my apologies. I was a bit rash."

Ireena Kolyana: "Marcus!" Ireena's face genuinely lights up.

"I was just about to come looking for you! I don't think it's a good idea for us to be wandering off."

Marcus Veranius: "Entirely fair, but it was a trip well worth the time. I have a plan."

"It's a stupid plan, but it's a plan."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Let's hear it, my man!" Ismark says. He seems... jovial.

Marcus Veranius returns to his seat at the table, and takes another sip of wine.

Marcus Veranius: "Right, so Richten believes there's a society of were-ravens that could help us defeat Strahd."

"And as a secret society, they aren't likely to blow their cover for an ordinary bunch of commoners."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I wouldn't. That's for sure."

Marcus Veranius: "But what if we weren't ordinary?"

"Or at least, one of us wasn't."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I don't know about you, but I'm pretty sure I'm destined for greatness," says Ismark, looking at his nails.

Ireena Kolyana rolls her eyes.

Ireena Kolyana: "Go on..."

Marcus Veranius: "Point stands. We've got a handful of prophecies we know to be true, if incredibly vague and misleading."

"One of which is a supposed den of wolves overlooking a mountain lake."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena's eyes widen.

Marcus Veranius: "This is where the stupid part comes in; what if we assumed these were Lycanthropes as part of prophecy vagueness."

"...and then got bit by one as to have something in common with this society."

"A forced invitation, if you would."

"It's not the most pleasant idea, but I feel safer about it with Richten here as possible damage control."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs.

"That could work."

Rictavio: Van Richten leans slightly forward, looking at Marcus over his glasses. "You do not understand the curse of Lycanthropy, my boy, or you would not suggest such a thing. To become a Lycanthrope is to be changed -- Body and Soul -- fused with the primal, pre-material essence of another creature. The fusion is so powerful that even on the astral plane, your soul and the soul of your animal form are bound together on the silver thread. Even saints have been changed by the transformation. Most forms of Lycanthropy are curses, and they twist a man to evil, and to the worship of evil gods."

"But what's this about prophecies? Where did you hear these?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark takes a lazy swig of wine.

Marcus Veranius frowns. "Promise not to be too upset, it was Madame Eva the Vistani. Her third prophecy led us to you, with high recommendation."

Rictavio: He does not react for a moment or two.

You can almost hear gears clicking and wheels whizzing as he processes this.

"Madame Eva, I believe, is an ally."

"The evil Vistani fear her, and give her caravan a wide berth."

"She has said things to me which cause me to believe her power is genuine."

"If she has given you prophecies, I think we should make them our top priority."

Marcus Veranius: "At the very least, she believes you to be an ally in cutting the darkness. Which, by the way, is why I trust your intuition with the tigers."

Rictavio: Van Richten raises an eyebrow and looks at Marcus like a long-lost brother.

Marcus Veranius: "Now, you mentioned MOST forms of lycanthropy being a curse of evil. Does that mean there are exceptions?"

(To Suldae Westwind): Are you able to see the messages?

Rictavio: "There are always exceptions, with magic."

"Some are the blessings of benevolent druids."

"Some are the lasting mark of an ancient favor done to one of the animal gods."

Marcus Veranius: "Then I think my plan still has some worth. In a worst case scenario, the cave holds some ancient knowledge to give a better picture of our enemy."

"In the best case, there's not much left of my soul to twist. If it means gaining allies in these were-ravens, I'll take the hit."

Rictavio: "How do you propose to get bitten?" Van Richten asks.

Marcus Veranius: "Shoot arrows in their faces until they take offense."

"The cave lycanthropes anyways, if they exist. For all we know, could just be really big wolves in that cave."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Why not just take one to bed and get nippy?" Asks Ismark, tossing an apple up and down.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena slaps Ismark on the shoulder.

Marcus Veranius looks at Ismark, then at himself

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What, I'm just saying!"

Marcus Veranius: "I'll let you know that if you had some way of restoring my face, I'd be quite a looker. That might even have worked."

"Alas, arrows to the face it must be."

Rictavio: "Surprising even myself, I find the young man's suggestion -- if crude -- perhaps more likely to succeed. If these lycanthropes treasure their transformation, they will not give it away to someone they are trying to kill. It may be better to get close to one, and learn more about the cult or coven or whatever they call it, and be received as a 'new member' in whatever way their clan finds most appropriate. Lycanthrope communities tend to be tightly-knit and not particularly trusting."

Ireena Kolyana: "You're still a looker, Marcus!" Ireena says encouragingly.

Marcus Veranius smirks

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena has a sudden thought.

"Wait, Van Richten -- is it possible for someone to have Lycanthropy and Vampirism at the same time?"

Marcus Veranius: "That's one way of dodging a clingy suitor." Marcus murmurs.

Rictavio: Van Richten laughs. "No. Vampirism is a demonic variant of Lycanthropy, created by the darkest of dark powers. It cannot coexist with Vampirism. The one provides immunity to the other."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks meaningfully at Marcus.

She looks meaningfully at Suldae.

Marcus Veranius: "Two birds, one stone. Strahd is obsessed with Ireena for whatever reason. Don't know why."

"Although I was considering making this inn your safehouse for the time being if we were to go wolf-hunting."

"Bliding Strahd with Richten's tiger, in combination with the saint's bones Blinksy mentioned. Pair it with affordable rent and an innkeeper friendly to us."

"This might be the safest place for you in all of Barovia."

"Only Strahd's minions would be able to take you, what remained of them anyways."

(To GM)rolling 1d20+6 Stealth

(9)+6

= 15

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+1 Deception

()+1

= 2

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+1 Deception

()+1

= 7

Marcus Veranius:

8

SLEIGHT OF HAND (4)
Marcus Veranius

(To GM):

INSIGHT
Rictavio

Skill: 12

Tops K.: rolling 1d8 Level 5 Hitpoints

()

= 8

rolling 1d10

()

= 1

Liliet (Suldae):

Roll for HP

Roll 1: 3

Average for HP

Average: 5

Tops K.: rolling 4d6d1

( +  +  + )

= 15

rolling 4d6d1

(3 + 2 + 2 + 4)

= 9

rolling 4d6d1

(5 + 2 + 6 + 4)

= 15

rolling 4d6d1

(2 + 2 + 3 + 1)

= 7

rolling 4d6d1

(6 + 5 + 3 + 4)

= 15

rolling 4d6d1

(2 + 1 + 4 + 5)

= 11

Tops K.: rolling 1d10

(7)

= 7

rolling 1d10

(1)

= 1

rolling 1d10

(1)

= 1

rolling 1d10

(8)

= 8

rolling 1d10

(4)

= 4

rolling 1d10

(3)

= 3

Tops K.:

22

9

Longsword (+7)
Zanshuken10
Slashing

19

22

Longsword (+7)
Zanshuken13
Slashing3
BruteGM (GM): Greetings!

Happy Sunday!

Tops K.: o3oGM (GM): Where's our third friend?Tops K.: Good question.(From Tops K.): We could do the Coffin Shop buisness first if he's running late.Liliet (Suldae): I don't now)= apparently not online

sads

GM (GM): Is ok

Liliet (Suldae): i feel bad about this anyway :x

GM (GM): Don't feel bad, maybe he's just running a little late. We'll go on with just you two for a bit :)

Just as Suldae spots the Vistana doll lying on the ground next to the cart, Marcus arrives at the stockyard from the Main Street.

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae! What good timing; I've tracked down the Saint's Bones."

"If we hurry we might be able to recover them before..."

Marcus Veranius looks between Suldae, the doll, and the cart

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks."

Suldae Westwind: "Hm?" Suldae turns to him.

She picks up the doll and studies it curiously

GM (GM): As she does so, she spots two things. First: the "Is No Fun, Is No Blinsky" tag. Second: the shattered door of the cage.

As Suldae picks up the doll she spots two things: First, a tag saying Is No Fun, Is No Blinsky. Second, the shattered door of the cage.

It looks as though the tiger loosed itself.

The Vistana doll is tattered and ragged, it looks as though it has been a chew toy for several months.

Large padded footprints in the mud indicate that the tiger headed east.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stares at the ground past toy for several more seconds, trying to process this.

Marcus recalls, during his glimpse into the tiger cage, seeing a small doll inside.

Marcus Veranius: ...Blinsky wouldn't have liked that. More secrets to keep it seems.

"We don't have time for this today. If those bones aren't recovered, we'll have worse to deal with than one loosed tiger."

Marcus Veranius frowns

Suldae Westwind: "We need to tell Rictavio about this, anyway," Suldae says. "If the tiger attacks people... I don't even want to say 'and if someone knows it's his tiger', you know? I kind of care even if they don't. But it's a good reason to make HIM go look for it..."

"Where is the place you would go next?"

"Is it far from the inn?"

Marcus Veranius: "Coffin shop is that way."

Marcus Veranius points to where the shop is

Suldae Westwind: "..."

"I guess let's go there first, then"

Marcus Veranius: "We ought to just pay someone a silver to deliver the message to Rictavio for us. First person we see on the way there."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks east. The edge of town is close, so it probably left...

"Good point," Suldae agrees. She pulls out her notebook, tears out a page, writes a note. The note says: "Your cat ran off, you should probably look for it"

She folds it.

Marcus Veranius tosses Suldae a silver from the party coffers

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around for someone to send to the tavern.

GM (GM): (Roll Charisma please, Suldae)

Suldae Westwind:

18

CHARISMA (4+1)
Suldae Westwind

A passing lad agrees to take the letter for you and is happy to have the Silver, which Suldae "summons" from behind one of his ears.

You get the feeling that the letter will be delivered quickly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives him a radiant smile and returns to Marcus.

"So, what did you find out?"

Marcus Veranius: "Priest's apprentice has a friend. Friend is 7 and has to feed his siblings. Sold the bones to the coffin maker for a quick buck."

"Though I'm inclined to believe the Coffin Maker knows more of those bones than the kid did."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. From Marcus's spin on the story she gets the impression the kid's fine, so she does not dig.

"So let's go talk to him, then. You take point"

Marcus Veranius nods, putting on his best 'merchant face'. This is going to be one hell of a negotiation.

Marcus Veranius: It is the same face but not as pessimistic-looking.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae puts on a wide-eyed, somewhat scatterbrained-looking smile
She just looks like she's sightseeing and not really tracking what's going on around her.

The Coffin shop is not hard to find. The uninviting facade is two stories tall, somewhat decrepit and in dire need of a paint job. A sign shaped like a coffin hangs above the front door. All of the window shutters are closed up tight, and a deathly silence surrounds the establishment. In the small, rocky yard, the grass has grown thick and tall through the cracks in the grey brick patio. Small statues and mossy fountains stained with hard water and rust line the inner yard, and the fence around the shop's property is tall and overgrown by a dead rose vine, which has formed a partial canopy over the yard, so that all of it is in shadow. A small cast iron table sits in the corner of the patio, with an ashtray and a cast iron chair.

The sign on the door says: "Closed."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae studies the scenery curiously

Marcus Veranius: "Well there goes firm negotiations." Marcus whispers, casing the building best he can.

The shutters are all closed and nailed shut with boards. There are two doors; the main shop door, on the east side, and a rear door, on the south side.

GM (GM): (sorry, put you next to the rear entrance the first time)

Marcus Veranius: The priest was coming. If the guards were to be involved, they had some degree of cover in the form of 'god's will'. Meant they could play a bit less scrupulous for this one.

Suldae Westwind: (oooh gotcha)

Marcus Veranius: "Sneak to the rear entrance. We're going to break in."
(:U)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the building nervously. "How about we don't split up? I don't like how it went last time and I'm not very good at sneaking"

Marcus Veranius: "Well, try your best. I don't want to split up either."

15

STEALTH (7)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: "I'm coming with you," Suldae murmurs

22

STEALTH (3)
Suldae Westwind

(omfg)

(she blends with the grass)

(being really short pays off)

In the mottled gloom of the yard, Suldae seems to almost disappear. Her elven heritage seems a little more prominent, today. Perhaps something to do with a good night's sleep...

Marcus makes almost no sound as he moves around the house.

Soon you are standing before the rear door, which is barred from within.

Just to your right, there is a shuttered window on the ground level.

Marcus Veranius kneels down to door level, breaking out his thieves' tools. This ought to make short work of the lock.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to peek through the shatters *shutters

('barred from within?')

Marcus Veranius:

20

Thieves Tools (7)
Marcus Veranius

With a quiet slide of wood on wood, Marcus's picks move the inner bar and the door opens.

The shutters are boarded shut with nails.

You see a workshop containing everything a carpenter would need to make coffins or furniture. Three sturdy worktables stretch the length of the west wall. The space is relatively spartan -- the open workspace acts as storage space for tools and supplies.

You see two doors in this chamber, one at the far end of the room and one close to the exit.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae, still moving quietly, comes up to the closest door and tries to peek through the gaps

Marcus Veranius peers inside for any traps, then enters the building.

Marcus Veranius:

19

PERCEPTION (5)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus detects no traps.

Suldae sees a small sitting area with four chairs around a circular table, and two large cabinets in the far corner.

A lantern hangs from a chain above the table. It is currently lit.

Suldae Westwind: Can Suldae hear any steps or any noise in the house at all?

22

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

(oh wow)

Suldae hears someone making breakfast upstairs.

She also senses an evil presence, near at hand and lurking watchfully.

Suldae Westwind: "Something bad is nearby, or someone," she murmurs. "Ground floor seems empty of people though"

She opens the door properly and goes into the next room

Marcus Veranius nods. He quietly shuts the back door, then sneaks towards one of the others. One room at a time; gotta find those bones.

Suldae Westwind: or tries at least

Marcus sees thirteen wooden coffins arranged haphazardly around this musty, L-shaped room.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around the room for most obvious hiding spots and checks those, without trying a thorough search for hidden lockers or double bottoms yet

Suldae finds nothing of any particular interest. This appears to be a sort of storage area and sitting room, rarely used except perhaps for funeral consultations. Odds and ends and mementos from previous funerals and images of coffin designs fill the two cabinets in the corner.

It appears to be something of a dusty showroom.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks the door to the north then goes through it

Marcus Veranius tries the obvious spot, looking inside the coffins on display for glowing bones.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins him.

Where else would someone hide bones after all?

Well, anywhere else, it's true, but the coffins do still need to be checked.

Suldae keeps a sharp elven ear out for the malicious presence she sensed earlier

(oh heyyyy look whos here :D hi!)

wanting to check the room for magic, Suldae hesitates, then drums a simple rhythm on a nearby coffin instead of playing ocarina or whistling

Suldae Westwind: (THIS IS WHY I TOOK A DRUMS PROFICIENCY)

26

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae detects no magical energies. At the same time, Marcus finds nothing but empty wood, until he gets to an interesting one, near the front door. A trail of footprints leads in through the dust, passes near this coffin, and suddenly turns into a scuffle. A second pair of footprints heads back towards the last door in the chamber.

Henrik van der Voort: Inside the coffin is a bound and gagged young man who appears to be unconscious.

Marcus Veranius: Wait a minute...

This one isn't dead!

Marcus Veranius waves his arm to alert Suldae; practically flailing it in a frantic mess

Marcus Veranius: He then goes about poking the man in question, trying to wake him up.

Henry of Willowsbrook: stirs but remains unconscious

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notices what he's doing and comes up

Marcus Veranius uncorks his waterskin and dumps it on his face. This is NOT the time to be resting!

Henry of Willowsbrook: Sputters "Whaa THE HEAVENS ARE YOU DOING ?!"

Suldae Westwind: (whats brool)

Suldae gives him a beaming smile, leaning slightly over the coffin

She offers him a hand to get up

Marcus Veranius holds up a hand in the designated 'shoosh' position, the other open as to imply 'please don't freak out'

Henry of Willowsbrook: calmed "could one of you untie me I can't get up"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and reaches inside

Where the rope won't obey, she just cuts it with her dagger

Marcus Veranius unties the gag, making a mental note to buy a knife; this is the second damn time...

Soon, between your combined efforts, the young man is freed.

Suldae Westwind: "So," Suldae murmurs quietly, "what's your story?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Which one the one how I ended up in there or the one of my life?" Henry grumbles acidly

Marcus Veranius: "Why you're here for now, how you got here over a pint in the tavern." Marcus comments.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae chuckles quietly.

"The former first please"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs "My apologies, It's been a rough few da-weeks. I was looking into the missing bones, came here, meet the Coffinmaker had a disagreement on whether I should be in a coffin or not and well his magic was a better argument than my fist"

Suldae Westwind: "Same missing bones as us, I'm guessing," Suldae murmurs. "The saint's?"

"Also, can you tell us more about the magic?" she frowns

Marcus Veranius: "Well his argument won't be better than my crossbow. We're going upstairs to find where his bones are."

Marcus Veranius starts to check the last door for traps/locks as Henry explains the situation

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm afraid not much only that it might have been his ring?"

GM (GM): (Please roll a lock picking, investigation, or perception check)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Please allow me to help the both of you in recovering the bones

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. "Well, I have some magic of my own. My name is Suldae, by the way, Suldae Westwind. Have we met before?"

The young man's face seems faintly familiar to her, though it might just be generically common features in her home region.

(if Henry is taller than 170 cm please picture Suldae's head coming up to his chest/belly when he stands up straight)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "My name is Henry and I don't think we have but I'm not sure" he seems to faintly recognise her but isn't sure if it was different elf

Sulda Westwind: (when they both do that is)

Suldae quirks her eyebrow. "You met so many half-elves they all bleed together?"

She does pride herself on her distinctive appearance, as bards do.

You hear the shuffle of feet above you.

A door swings open and shut somewhere upstairs.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae goes quiet and puts a finger to her lips, looking up.

"We can finish this discussion later," she says more quietly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods and strains to listen

Sulda Westwind: "That's Marcus," she adds in a half-whisper and comes up to him

Marcus Veranius gives a thumbs up, then opens the door.

Marcus Veranius: He draws his crossbow for good measure

Sulda Westwind: Suldae checks on hers, which is at the top of her bag, easily in reach, and brushes her hand on her ocarina, too.

The door opens onto a narrow staircase. The walls are arrayed with small portraits and sketches. Many are framed, but dozens of parchment-and-ink pieces are simply tacked to the walls. Strings of colored yarn connect some of them. The staircase ascends to a small second-floor landing with two doors, one on the left and one on the right.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry places his hand on the pommel of his longsword

Sulda Westwind: "Actually," she murmurs after some thinking, "can you leave it to me to try to magic him up first? And don't attack if it works"

"Just one person, right?" she asks Henry

Henry of Willowsbrook: "one I've meet can't be sure there aren't more "

Marcus Veranius looks between the two doors, then takes out a coin.

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d2

(2)

= 2

Sulda Westwind: Suldae elbows her way past Henry to the front

Marcus Veranius flips the coin, then goes right.

Sulda Westwind: (ty)

GM (GM): (Right as in East or right from your perspective, which would be West?)

(LoI TY)

Marcus Veranius: ,3

Suldae Westwind: (and thats totally the wrong right :P)

Suldae slips ahead of the party

The door opens onto a large, drafty room strung with cobwebs. The room takes up most of the upper floor. Stacks of wooden planks lie amid several crates marked "JUNK."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae checks that there isn't anyone, then goes back

"Not here," she murmurs, then takes point as she goes through the other dor

Her ocarina is readied near her face

Suldae sees a kitchen containing a square table surrounded by chairs and shelves of provisions. It looks like whoever lives here spends a lot of time in here.

Marcus Veranius follows Suldae

A very complex brunch is laid out on the table.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pushes the last door

The last door is locked. As she pushes against it, she hears a gasp on the other side.

Henrik van der Voort: "Who is it?"

"Who goes there? This is private property! You can't just trespass like that!"

Suldae Westwind: "It's a robbery, don't move and your safety is assured," Suldae replies

Henrik van der Voort: "I warn you, I'm armed!"

Suldae Westwind: She's not sure why this is the response that popped to her lips, but it seems as good as any.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks aghast at Suldae

Suldae Westwind: She nods to Marcus to break the lock, moving to the side

Suldae makes a guilty expression to Henry

Marcus Veranius looks shocked at Suldae, then nods with a grimace.

Suldae Westwind: "Might put him off guard," Suldae whispers after a pause.

"I assume average robbers are somewhat less battle ready than we are"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "should I go first trough in cae he reall is armed ? Seeing as I have a both a shield and armor while the two of you.. " Henry trails of taking his companions in

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head

"Let me try firs"

Henrik van der Voort: "Go away! Go on now! Leave me alone!"

Marcus Veranius starts picking the lock

Suldae Westwind: "You come after me though," she adds, recognizing the obvious good idea
 "Marcus, you go last after you let us in"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry unslings his shield holding it at the ready

Marcus Veranius: "If ye want to try any funny buisness, speak your preference of coffin now. I'll try my hardest to spell your name on it."

"Is Henrik spelled with a C or a K?"

23

INTIMIDATION (4)
 Marcus Veranius

15

Thieves Tools (7)
 Marcus Veranius

The lock gives. The door swings easily open.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae goes in first, ocarina at her lips, playing a haunting melody

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head at the theatreics and follows Suldae

Marcus Veranius stands back for Henry, holding his crossbow in support

An old man is cowering in the back portion of a modest bedchamber, containing a cot and several well-made pieces of furniture, including a table, a padded chair, a bookshelf, and a wardrobe.

Suldae Westwind:

19

Higher Level Cast

31

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

Henrik van der Voort: "Don't hurt me!"

"Oh..."

19

Suldae Westwind: I don't think there's a saving hrow for Sleep
 it's just about HP

GM: (You are correct -- my b)

Henrik collapses, unconscious.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kneels next to him.

Marcus Veranius: "I want to make it plain that I feel dirty about this."

Sulda Westwind: "He's just asleep."

Marcus Veranius: "Not that my plan was too much better, but it was by a few marks."

Sulda Westwind: "He will sleep until woken up."

"Is this the man who knocked you out, Henry?"

Marcus Veranius leaves Henry and Suldae to their buisness, and begins checking the storeroom boxes

Henry of Willowsbrook: (is it Him?)

GM: (Yes, it's him.)

The first crate Marcus opens contains nothing but scrap metal.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I believe so" Henry nods and mumbles "overwhelmed by an old man"

Sulda Westwind: "Honestly," Suldae murmurs, "this is THE most ethical way I could think of for handling this. He is as unharmed as it gets for someone we have reason to assume danger of."

She looks to Henry for his opinion.

Meanwhile, she takes out the rope out of her bag and motions for Henry to help her time the man up, just in case. She signs with her hands that he should be gentle and try to not jolt him

Henry of Willowsbrook: "i might not be the best judge here seeing as he knocked me out and stuffed me in a coffin

Henry moves to help

Sulda Westwind: After tying the man up Suldae gets Henry to help her move him to the bed. Whatever his role in this, there's no reason not to be gentle.

Marcus Veranius looks over the storeroom. Damn; lots of places to hide bones

Marcus Veranius:

21

PERCEPTION (5)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus cracks open the next crate. It's full of dirt.

The dirt begins to move...

Sulda Westwind: "I'll watch him and you go help Marcus?" Suldae suggests after a pause

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll go help our friend in the other room

Marcus Veranius: "Feck!"

Sulda Westwind: She's perched on the side of the bed.

Marcus Veranius takes a step back and holds his crossbow to the box

A hand thrusts out of the soil, fumbles around, and grasps the edge of the crate.

With cracks and crunches, all the other crates in the room loosen their lids.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "everythin alright?"

Suldae Westwind: btw @DM just out of curiosity does Suldae get some kind of feedback of how much overkill the strength of her spell was she got, what, $31+19 = 50$?

Marcus Veranius: "...I don't suppose they're ALSO sleeping adventurers?"

"No?"

"Oh bollocks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "SHIT"

Henrik van der Voort:

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 19

Vampire Spawn:

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 5

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 7

Marcus Veranius:

17.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Vampire Spawn:

INITIATIVE
Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 16

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 10.14

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 22.18

Sulda Westwind: Suldae hears the noise from the next room. She knows people affected by Sleep don't wake up from loud sounds, and the man is tied up, so she goes to check

Vampire Spawn:

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 16.15

Sulda Westwind:

15.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Sulda Westwind

err

@ DM pls

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how do I roll Initiative?)

Sulda Westwind: on your sheet at the top

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)
Henry of Willowsbrook

19.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Sulda Westwind: well thats overkill XD

Henry of Willowsbrook: missclick

GM: (Sulda gets the sense that her sleep spell was massive overkill, and could probably have knocked out a room full of old men. The vampire spawn, however, are completely immune to its effects.

Ironically, the vampire spawn which slowly climb out of the dirt in their makeshift coffins are actually dressed like adventurers.

Sulda Westwind: wouldnt marcus be next to one of them not to be mean but

XD

The vampire spawn in the corner climbs up the wall and onto the ceiling on all fours, then scuttles towards Marcus.

GM: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius: "Oh bollocks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius uses his Action Surge and Bonus Action to make 5 crossbow attacks

Suldae Westwind: (means end of turn)

Marcus Veranius: First one against the one he's next to to buy some distance

Suldae Westwind: (daaang)

Marcus Veranius:

17

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to maneuver one of your comrades into a more advantageous position. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and you choose a friendly creature who can see or hear you. That creature can use its reaction to move up to half its speed without provoking opportunity attacks from the target of your attack.

8

Bonus Damage

[Maneuvering Attack]
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (n i c e)

His first shot sticks firmly in the chest of the vampire he was standing next to, which is wearing the robes of a sorcerer.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus then fires extra shots, first into the one he ran from and into another if it falls over.

He aims for the vitals.

6

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

16
Piercing

21

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

15
Piercing

11

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

20
Piercing

9

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

16
Piercing

Marcus Veranius:

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7
Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]
Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

3
Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

6*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(Extra to-hit for the 1st, 3rd, and 4th shots)

GM: 13, 21, 14, 15

The first shot whizzes past as the vampire dodges. The second shot sticks in its chest, between lungs and heart. The third misses by an inch, scraping flesh off its arm. The fourth sticks right between two ribs.

Suldae Westwind: (well we know its precise AC now XD)

The vampire snarls like a tiger and crouches low atop its crate.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"OUT OF THE HOUSE! NOW!"

Marcus Veranius runs for the door

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Suldae Westwind: "THE OLD MAN!!!" Suldae yells as she hears him say that

The feedback from her spell gave her the impression the man was no great mage nor fighter, more likely an innocent caught up in all this.

Marcus Veranius: "Is responsible for this mess!"

A vampire spawn dressed in the rags of a berserker leaps from his crate and sprints at Henry, claws swinging wildly!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 20 | 18

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 9 | 13

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

Sulda Westwind: Suldae still has no idea what the mess is, and finds herself in quite a predicament.

GM: (Hang on, those were with advantage -- let me fix that)

Marcus Veranius: (Just use the first roll)

We'll use the 20 and the 9

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what do i do?)

Sulda Westwind: She already knows Marcus has a tendency to abscond and leave her to fend for herself and whoever she's protecting, would Henry?

(I think you wait for your turn lmao)

Marcus Veranius: (You've got an AC of 20. Anything below that misses.)

The vampire spawn latches on with one hand, gripping Henry's shield! The other hand swings furiously at him, but he keeps it at bay.

GM: (You are now Grappled. Roll strength, athletics, or acrobatics to escape.)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

20

STRENGTH SAVE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

A second vampire spawn leaps from its crate at the same time and sprints after its companion, claws out, eyes blazing crimson in ragged, sunken features.

Henry is not quite able to jerk his shield free of the vampire spawn's brawny grasp.

Suldae hears thumping, hears Marcus sounding the retreat, and hears combat next door.

GM: (EoT)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae comes up to the door and looks through. She sees the situation.

"MARCUS YOU PIECE OF SHIT" she yells in a manner that should sound very inspiring to Henry, and shoots the vampire grappling him.

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you. That creature gains one Bardic

Inspiration die, a d6.
Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost. A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time. You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

(Henry, you can add a d8 to a roll)

(and yes, Suldae has noticed Marcus is right next to her when she's yelling, she doesn't give a shit)

22

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

6

Piercing

Suldae's shot sticks in the barbarian vampire spawn but he seems not to notice.

Suldae Westwind: (yeah, her damage output is... not Marcus's)

(EoT)

GM: (You can make an athletics check again to attempt to free yourself from the grapple, or you can attack the vampire spawn grappling you with disadvantage.

You're up, Henry :)

Suldae Westwind: (if the vampire spawn is holding his shield)

(cant he just drop it)

Marcus Veranius: (If you can hit it with your Shield Shove, that'll push it and also break the grapple)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tries to throw the vampire of 11

25

Shield Shove (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

(does this work)

Marcus Veranius: (Throw on a D8 for Inspiration and hope for the best)

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d8

(2)

= 2

Vampire Spawn:

STRENGTH
Vampire Spawn
Ability: 11

Suldae Westwind: NICE

Marcus Veranius: (SULDAE SAVES US ONCE AGAIN)

GM: (Prone or knocked back 5 feet? Your choice! :D)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (back)

Henry shoves the vampire back so hard that it stumbles against the vampire behind it, knocking both of them away.

Suldae Westwind: (NICE)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry retreats to the door (if I can)

The vampire spawn snarl and hiss!

GM: (You can. On your turn you can move up to your speed and take an action.)

Sulda Westwind: "The old man," Sulda murmurs to Henry's back.

"He's not a combatant, I'm pretty sure"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (eot I think)

(To Marcus Veranius): You're up! :D

Henry of Willowsbrook: " I'd like to help him but I'd frankly rather we save ourselves first" Henry murmurs back harshly

Marcus Veranius: "I don't mean to be disrespectful, but these vampires are only here because he took the Saint's Bones! Let him fall in his own coffin, if they're not his ally in the first place!

Marcus Veranius sprints downstairs

Sulda Westwind: "You think he did that of his own free will?" Sulda hisses

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No but I'd rather not die with him!" Henry snaps

Marcus Veranius attempts to barge out the front door, planning to shoot out the boards from the outside Sulda Westwind: "Well, they'll probably follow us anyway," Sulda mutters. She doubts they'll go after him anyway.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Sulda Westwind: As long as they don't burn down the house again, anyway. In that case she's going upstairs to get him, and fuck the danger.

The barbarian vampire, recovered from the shield bash, scuttles towards the front of the pack.

Rushing upon Henry, it swings its claws once more!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 12

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 17

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

Henry's armor deflects the claws!

A second vampire dressed like a druid sprints forward and clubs at him with its fists!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 14

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 24

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

The first blow glances off Henry's shield but the second catches him between his armor plates and rakes across his skin, drawing blood.

GM: (EoT)

(To Suldae Westwind): You're up! :D

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can a use Shield master to reduce the damage here?)

Suldae Westwind: (oops sorry)

Marcus Veranius: (Shield Master only protects against spell effects)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shoots the barbarian vampire, then closes the door behind herself to reduce likelihood of the vampire spawn _not_ going after them and follows Marcus

24

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

8

Piercing

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so Spells are the only ones with Dex saves? good to know)

Just as her first crossbow bolt is pushed out by the vampire's healing flesh, her second crossbow bolt sticks in a similar spot.

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

(To Henry of Willowsbrook): You're up! :D

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry strikes the Barbarian Vamp with his sword

21

23

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

10
Slashing

2
Brute

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Henry's longsword rips into the creature's flesh, spewing black ichor across the wooden walls.

Henry of Willowsbrook: eww

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae goes for the rear entrance)

The Barbarian vampire screams, enraged.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Shit"

Henry runs down the stairs trying to slam the door behind him

The Vampires slam against the wooden door, rattling it in its frame before ripping it off its hinges.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I might have made them mad

Eot

Marcus Veranius: "They're about to be pissed!"

Suldae Westwind: "Well they weren't exactly friendly already!"

One of them hurls it down the stairs. The door bounces off the staircase walls and skips off the stairs and flips to a stop crash-landing at the bottom.

Suldae Westwind: (where is Marcus's voice coming from?)

(Suldae can't see him)

Marcus Veranius: (The east entrance)

(To Marcus Veranius): You're up! :D

GM: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius: "And on the first day Pelor said; FECK OFF, HERE'S THE SUN!"

Marcus Veranius shoots at the window boards to let sunlight into the house

Marcus Veranius:

13

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

20

22

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)

Marcus Veranius

17*Piercing15

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)

Marcus Veranius

20*Piercing19

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)

Marcus Veranius

17*Piercing8

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)

Marcus Veranius

16*Piercing*

Several crossbow bolts punch through the boards and the window-panes, putting lines of sunlight through that dark attic space.

Loud screaming can be heard from upstairs.

Marcus Veranius moves south to the window closest to the staircase, preparing for escapees

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out. It's only now that she realizes what Marcus's plan was.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stares up the dark staircase steeling himself

An enraged and steaming vampire barbarian charges down the staircase towards him, slinging its claws at his shield!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 21

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 17

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 11 slashing

One blow draws blood, the other clangs on steel!

GM: (EoT)

(To Suldae Westwind): You're up! :D

Marcus Veranius: (Shit, ignore shots 4 and 5. I already used my action surge)

Suldae Westwind: (gve me a sec while I look up a spell)

Marcus Veranius: (Should have only been 3 shots. I got lost in the moment of that one-liner)

Suldae Westwind: Realizing Henry isn't following her but is instead continuing the fight, Suldae steps back up to him and puts a hand on his armor. She breathes out in the rhythm of the Weave, restoring his strength.

1

Higher Level Cast

7

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

"You can do this," she murmurs, giving him Inspiration again.

(another d8)

(Cure Wounds is touch, so I'm flavoring it differently from her music spells :D)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so I'm back up to 40 Hp ?)

Marcus Veranius: (41 it seems)

(You can use your Second Wind as a bonus action to heal even more)

Suldae Westwind: 41 yea

7 + 1

ya sorry

EoT

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry strikes the Vampire in front of him twice

23

20

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13

Slashing

2

Brute

19

24

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

Slashing

2

Brute

His blade cuts viciously deep into the creature, dealing wounds that would be fatal on any normal human.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I shove Suldae further into the room she's in while move into it myself? if so I do that)

GM: You can if she is willing, otherwise you'd have to make a strength check

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Suldae move!" Henry tries to move them both into the room

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is willing

I think we'd decided that Henry could expend her next move action to drag her with him?

What we were doing with Ireena in the Death House

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry also slams this door shut

Suldae Westwind: ah yes, free item interaction

Marcus Veranius: (This is a good chokepoint now that the front windows are out. We could hold the line here and only risk attacks from two, three at most)

Suldae Westwind: :D

(o yess)

(nice)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Which way does the door open?)

Marcus Veranius: (When you're vampire-strong, whichever way you like)

Suldae Westwind: luv yall

Henry of Willowsbrook: (trying to think if leaning against it is possible to stall them some seeing as they are not throwing people around strong)

GM: (EoT?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

(To Marcus Veranius): You're up! :D

GM: (EoT)

Marcus Veranius moves back into the house, intent on supporting the chokepoint. He draws the Oathbow

Marcus Veranius: (Targeting the north window)

18

600

Oathbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

10

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: do you even need to roll to shoot the window

'hit the broad side of the barn' and all that

Marcus Veranius: (lunno. But that one will shine light directly into the staircase)

(And we have the window at the top of the staircase shot out, so there'd be nowhere to hide AND attack Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (where are you anyway?)

Suldae Westwind: (in front of the north window presumably)

(why arent you doing it with the crossbow?)

Marcus Veranius: His second arrow is aimed for the Blue Vampire. "Swift death to you who have wronged me."

11

17

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+4)

Marcus Veranius

19

Piercing

12

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: oooooo

question rescinded XD

The shot is so powerful that the vampire sorcerer takes a full two steps back.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

The vampire barbarian shambles out of the staircase and assaults the door which Henry is barring!

Vampire Spawn:

STRENGTH
Vampire Spawn

Ability: 20

Suldae Westwind: isnt it in sunlight

Then it crumbles to ash.

Suldae Westwind: ;u;
who, the door?

Marcus Veranius: (VAMPIRE DOOR)

The door stands firm in spite of the blow.

Suldae Westwind: (I MEAN WE DID FIGHT AN EVIL DOOR)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "OW those fucks are way to strong for their scrawny asses" Henry hisses

The Druid vampire, seeing its companion collapse, charges the door as well!

(Takes 20 points of radiant damage)

Vampire Spawn:

STRENGTH
Vampire Spawn

Ability: 10 | 5

(Makes its check with disadvantage)

Suldae Westwind: :D :D :D

The sunlight is too overpowering, and the vampire's attempt to open the door barely jiggles it. The vampire retreats to the staircase.

GM: (EoT -- now it's Suldae)

Suldae Westwind: "Henry, would you rather I stay here or go look for Marcus?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'd rather keep an eye on our "fiends" here"

Suldae Westwind: "So I should stay? I'm asking whether you're okay holding the door alone"

Suldae is fully willing to leave Marcus to the consequences of his habit of running off alone if Henry asks her to

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Go I'll be fine. probably

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hesitates at his "probably", but ends up nodding and running off double move

She listens as she runs for any sounds from this side of the house upstairs

She hears nothing from this side of the house.

Suldae Westwind: She sighs in relief

EoT

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry opens the door just enough to peak into the room and up the stairs

Suldae Westwind: (well, Suldae guessed wrong where he is)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry spots Marcus and steps into the room shooting him an angry look before turning to the stair case

Henry sees several vampires huddled at the top of the stairs, crowding the landing to avoid the sunlight.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how big is a square or could I reach them with my Halberd without stepping out of the sunlight?)

Marcus Veranius: (You could stand right at the bottom and hit Blue with Reach. That is absolutely brilliant!)

Suldae Westwind: (so like one step forward)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry puts away his sword and shield grabs his halberd and strikes the nearest Vamp twice

17

11

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

Slashing

1

Brute

8

14

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

Slashing

2

Brute

rolling d8

(1)

= 1

Suldae Westwind: welp lmao

Henry of Willowsbrook: Inspiration on the second one for all the good that does

Suldae Westwind: i figured ;u;

that poor d8

The first stroke of his spear pierces into the sorcerer vampire, but the vampire deflects the second strike with a swat of his hand.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I feel like I'm roleing like crap) EoT

Suldae Westwind: (and Suldae kept rolling super high at the start of this scenario, I think the dice are taking it out on you now XD)

One of the vampires at the top of the stairs races down and tries to attack Henry!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 19 | 21

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 7 slashing

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 10 | 14

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

Suldae Westwind: does sunlight reach here?

GM: (The sunlight does not reach here, but they suffer the disadvantage for a full round after being in sunlight. It also stunts their regeneration, which is 10 HP on each of their turns.

)

Its flailing claws, weakened by the sunlight, glance harmlessly off of Henry's shield!

Suldae Westwind: (welp)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (suck on my currais you blood sucking ass)

The sorcerer vampire, emboldened by this, climbs down the staircase by clinging on the wall!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 7 | 18

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 6 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 23 | 14

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 5 slashing

Henry's shield once again deflects both attacks!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (none say anything that I put my shield away to hold my pole arm)

Suldae Westwind: XD

GM: (For ease I'm going to say the shield is strapped to your arm, which would not prevent you from wielding the pole arm)

A vampire spawn clinging to the ceiling above the staircase drops down onto Henry, swinging both claws as it falls!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 20 | 15

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 11 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 7 | 15

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

Henry shakes off its attempt to grapple him, and it leaps to the ground, then darts back up the staircase. (Attack of Opportunity)

GM: (EoT -- Marcus is up. Henry has an Attack of Opportunity, should he choose to take it.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I do just roll halberd?

Marcus Veranius: (Just one Halberd attack)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20

23

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

11

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

Slashing

1

Brute

(I swear I clicked once9

Marcus Veranius: (Looked like a mouse glitch at the speed they came)Suldae Westwind: using the first is fair imho*Henry's Halberd pierces the fleeing vampire in the back!Marcus Veranius: Marcus frowns. He understands; retreating wasn't the most honorable idea. But only Heroes fight with honor, and Marcus wasn't a hero.

He aims two more shots at the Blue Vampire.

13

24

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+4)

Marcus Veranius

19 + 7

Piercing

5

12

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+4)

Marcus Veranius

19

Piercing

10

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

14

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius:

10

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: why three

Marcus Veranius: (Extra Sworn Enemy damage for the crit)

Suldae Westwind: ooo

nice

The arrow zings. The oath bow sings a serene harmony of elven whispers. The vampire is suddenly headless, and its head is now pinned to the wall behind it. The vampire staggers, stumbles, and collapses on the staircase. When he hits the stairs his body -- skin, flesh, blood, and bones -- bursts into ash.

Suldae Westwind: (I love how Marcus just comes across as super petty

"you scared me, you are now MY SWORN ENEMY")

NICE

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

(Marcus blew a bunch of his cash to out-tip Rictavio at the inn. He is very much petty)

Suldae Westwind: (I love him)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stares at the spot where the now headless Vampire stood and gapes in disbelief "no way thats a normal bow " he stammers to himself

Marcus Veranius smirks

Marcus Veranius: "Elven nonsense. My favorite kind."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry half turns his head to pinn him with a glare "still a bit mad you just ran y'know" he grunts

Marcus Veranius: "I'll get over it. And hopefully you'll live long enough to get over it too."

Henry of Willowsbrook: despite his anger Henry chuckles
(isn't it Vamp turn?)

Marcus Veranius: (17 is dead. If Blue was the Init 16 vampire, it'd be Suldae's turn.

Suldae Westwind: (apparently not)

The druid vampire glares at Henry from the top of the staircase.

Suldae Westwind: (man, what a time for Suldae to be outside XD)

Marcus Veranius: (I can't tell; there's so many vamps huddled into that space. I think that gives us Advantage for them squeezing into an area too small)

(If they're sharing at least)

Suldae Westwind: (they can climb on the ceiling)

(I figure 4 can fit a space)

Marcus Veranius: (Oh yeah, that helps a bit)

Suldae Westwind: (but also advantage for hitting SOMEONE when you swing in the space lmao)
(maybe)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry beckons the Vampire with a venoms glare on his face

Suldae Westwind: is that the green one or one of the unspecified ones public demands to know

Henry of Willowsbrook: venomous*

Suldae Westwind: XD

The Druid (green) vampire lunges down the stairs and assaults Henry!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 9 | 24

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 7 slashing

INITIATIVE

Vampire Spawn

Initiative: 15

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 18

Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

Suldae Westwind: wut XD

lmao this poor vamp
you know if Henry backs out of there they're just target practice for the two of us with ranged weapons :3

Henry of Willowsbrook: why the inniative roll?

GM: (The initiative roll was a misclick)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ah ok)

This vampire's claws also prove to be no match for Henry's skill with the pole arm and shield!

GM: (EoT -- Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rounds the corner, realizes she miscalculated, and runs up to the window to look inside

Henry of Willowsbrook: (my now onehanded polearm it seems lul)

Suldae Westwind: (is the window low enough for her to look thru it normally)

GM: (Yes, it is)

Suldae Westwind: well, Suldae is out of actions, so she just goes "hey there! is the front door open?"

Tops K.: "Door's open, but I think the store will be closed for a while longer."

Marcus Veranius said that

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how many Vampires are still around? from those we've seen)

Suldae Westwind: (eot)

GM: (Two are dead, Three more vampires stand at the top of the stairs, and there is one unaccounted for.)

Suldae Westwind: (why does this sound ominous)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ok) Henry strikes the Druid Vamp twice with his Halberd

24

8

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9
Slashing

4
Brute

19

22

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14
Slashing

4
Brute

The Vampire howls with rage as the halberd skewers it twice!

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

One of the vampires at the top of the stairs recovers from some of its wounds and lunges down to strike at Henry!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 14
Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 10 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 11
Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 9 slashing

Snarling, the vampire retreats up the wall to the ceiling! (AoO)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (AoO for it or for me?)

Suldae Westwind: "You know, if you stepped back, they couldnt reach you without burning!" Suldae calls out

GM: (For you)

Suldae Westwind: (for you, it's retreating out of your range)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

16

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

Slashing

4

Brute

(why bother ugh)

Suldae Westwind: (Imao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry yells back "but then I can't hit them either and they might not risk the sunlight to get to us and go after the old man instead!"

Another vampire rushes down the stairs and grapples with Henry, flailing on him with clawed hands.

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 10
Instead of dealing damage,
the vampire can grapple the
target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

CLAWS

Vampire Spawn

Attack: 8

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

The claws do nothing against Henry's armor.

GM: (EoT -- Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius: "Forgive me if I don't feel pity. I'm lawful good, not lawful nice."

Marcus Veranius stows the Oathbow and draws out a net, hurling it at the cieling vampire. If they don't want to come into the light, he'll drag them there!"

Marcus Veranius:

22

15

Net (+9)

Marcus Veranius

A Large or smaller creature hit by a net is Restrained until it is freed. A net has no effect on creatures that are formless, or creatures that are Huge or larger. A creature can use its action to make a DC 10 Strength check, freeing itself or another creature within its reach on a success. Dealing 5 slashing damage to the net (AC 10) also frees the creature without harming it, ending the effect and destroying the net. When you use an action, Bonus Action, or Reaction to Attack with a net, you can make only one Attack regardless of the number of attacks you can normally make.

>A restrained creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>Attack rolls against the creature have advantage, and the creature's Attack rolls have disadvantage.

>The creature has disadvantage on Dexterity Saving Throws.

Suldae Westwind: "We should break his windows too," Suldae suggests

Marcus Veranius: "Good idea, Suldae. You're on window duty!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We seem to be a bit busy here"

The net snarls the ceiling vampire, tangling it to the point where it cannot cling to the wall. It falls heavily to the staircase, ensnared!

Sulda Westwind: Suldae nods. This does make sense, given she's least useful to the actual fight, even though she's loathe to miss it ceiling vampire

like ceiling cat

only fears sunlight :D

Marcus Veranius: [EoT, I gotta draw a new weapon next round]

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and they all fall down" Henry hums

The druidic vampire recovers from some of its wounds. It glares down at Henry, eyes blazing with crimson and unholy flame.

The vampire spawn turns and darts into the upstairs kitchen.

GM: (EoT -- Suldae is up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "SHIT IT'S UP TO SOMETHING

Marcus Veranius: "It moved to the upstairs kitchen! Window on the west side!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae shoots at the windows as soon as she has a clear shot of it it's not a very good angle but it's a goddamn window instead of the kitchen though she aims for the bedroom window

13

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

4

Piercing

The crossbow bolt punches through the window and a scream resounds from the upstairs bedroom.

The scream is fiendish, bestial, the cry of a monster.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae freezes up with horror, realizing she was probably late.

(EoT also)

(WELL FUCK)

GM: (Henry is up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry not one to pass up on an opportunity graps the netted Vampire and hauls it into the sunlit room behind him

(do I roll for that?)

GM: (No, it's as though he's grappled. You just have to move at half speed, since you're dragging him.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I dump it north of me

The Vampire entangled in the net screams and sizzles as the sunlight bathes its flesh.

It screams!

Vampire Spawn: "No!!! Release me!!!! It burns!!!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces as she hears the scream. It's a bit too human-like for her liking.

But she can guess it's a vampire.

Marcus Veranius: "No."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grimaces but turns to move up the stairs uncomfortable with the tortures suffering but to hurried to end it

Van Richten kicks in the front door.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (do I still have an action)

Rictavio: "What are you wasting time for? Stake it!"

GM: (You do)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grimaces as she hears his voice. She has a sudden realization she does not like the man. And upon thinking on it for a second she's unsure why exactly it's sudden.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the Vampire on the stairs (I think I got two cause of extra attack still)

19

27

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13 + 9
Slashing

3 + 1
Brute

(I got another one right?)

GM: Let's say dragging the net counted as one, since it would require an action or bonus action

Henry's blade rips through the vampire spawn, spraying black blood across the walls and floor.

(To GM):

INITIATIVE
Rictavio

Initiative: 13

Henry of Willowsbrook: (if dragging was a bonus I still got he Extra attack right?)

Suldae Westwind: does extra attack not take a bonus action?

Marcus Veranius: "Richten! You got our invitation for the party!" Marcus smiles, fumbling between his weapons."

Henry of Willowsbrook: nope just adds another strike to my attack

Suldae Westwind: nice

Henry of Willowsbrook: (So can I attack another time ? don't wanna stall just trying to learn it right)

Marcus Veranius: *Rictavio, shott

(You have two attacks. Grappling counts as one, your weapon would count as the other. You could drag the vampire with movement if you move half speed)

(if by-book)

GM: Marcus is correct

Marcus Veranius: (If the GM lets you grab the net with your bonus action, you'd have your two attacks free)

GM: Let's not do the bonus action for it, it makes more sense to be a full action/attack

Henry of Willowsbrook: ok EoT then

Marcus Veranius: (Then Grapple as one of your attacks, as usual. You'd get the second)

(To GM):

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)
Rictavio

Attack: 7

Damage: 7 piercing

(To GM):

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)
Rictavio

Attack: 20

Damage: 4 piercing

Rictavio: 13 (Undead Slayer)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (second was the crit one)

Van Richten draws a silver rapier out of his cane and plunges it into the heart of the vampire in the beam of sunlight, pinning the restrained vampire to the floorboards with his blade. There is a pulse in the Weave as some kind of semi-divine power manifests through Van Richten's soul -- Suldae feels it clearly, even from outside the house the surge of arcane power is noticeable.

The vampire in the net crumbles to ash.

Rictavio snatches up the net and gives it calmly back to Marcus, stepping over the ash-pile to do so.

The vampire spawn on the staircase swings blindly at Henry again!

Vampire Spawn:

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 17

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 10 slashing

CLAWS
Vampire Spawn

Attack: 17

Instead of dealing damage, the vampire can grapple the target, escape DC 13.

Damage: 8 slashing

Its claws prove no match for his shield and skill!

Sulda Westwind: Suldae grits her teeth. She understands logically that when fighting vampires, having the help of a legendary vampire hunter is useful, but she just really, really doesn't like him.
(bless

GM: (EoT -- Marcus is up_

Marcus Veranius reaches for his stashed weapons, but turns to Rictavio first.

Marcus Veranius: "These things weak to anything in particular?"

Rictavio: "Oh, the usual: Sunlight, running water, holy water, silver weapons, stakes through the heart while they're asleep in their coffins, pinned, or restrained, decapitation, flames, a freshly-cut un-bloomed rose-bud atop their coffin, garlic, holy symbols, powerful clerics, and good old-fashioned violence."

Sulda Westwind: (how clearly can Suldae hear this?)

Rictavio: "These are spawn, not full vampires. They have no power or will of their own. We are freeing them from a dark enslavement by disrupting their bodies."

GM: (You can hear it pretty clearly)

Marcus Veranius: "Well I got Violence at least!" Marcus draws his crossbow.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "stabing them does indeed seem to work decently" Henry muses

Marcus Veranius:

17

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

19

Piercing

14

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

15

Piercing

8

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+4)
Marcus Veranius

16

Piercing

(Two for Action, one for Bonus Action)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae's hand finds the holy symbol she wears on her neck
She's not sure how exactly she would use it but it's good to know

The first shot sticks in a vampire but the others are dodged with swift, shadow-swift movements.

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

GM: (Sulda is up)

Sulda Westwind: The northern bedroom window is broken, now Suldae shoots the kitchen window

Suldae feels a strange, tingling warmth coming from the holy symbol when her hand touches it.

Sulda Westwind:

19

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Sulda Westwind

7

Piercing

Suldae hears twin screams of pain!

A flutter of ash comes out the broken window.

Sulda Westwind: After shooting, Suldae returns her hand to the holy symbol. She murmurs a prayer to Corellon, half to give her wisdom, half to protect the man upstairs.

(eot)

The Holy Symbol vibrates in Suldae's hand, as though to acknowledge her request.

The druid vampire, with nowhere to run, retreats to the top of the staircase and hisses down at Henry and Marcus. Most of its flesh and hair have burnt off and its skin is a mass of enraged, blistered scar tissue, still pink and steaming.

GM: (EoT -- Henry is up)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes, her thoughts on Corellon's teachings and her faith that following them will lead her to the best

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the Vampire in front of him three times (Action surge)

14

20

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

5

Slashing

4

Brute

26

25

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

Slashing

2

Brute

24

27

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8 + 9

Slashing

4 + 4

Brute

Marcus Veranius: (Action surge gives you a whole action; that's two extra attacks. Roll one more)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

23

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

Slashing

2

Brute

(those seem good)

Henry cuts down the vampire before him. His third blow kills it and his fourth breaks up its ashes as it crumbles around his halberd.

The last Vampire spawn stands at the top of the staircase, hissing and howling.

It begins to shrink...

Henry of Willowsbrook: (dId I really just do 57 slashing damage?)

Sulda Westwind: eyyyyyyy

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry walks up the stairs determind

Marcus Veranius: (Welcome to Fighter. Here's your complimentary bag of damage dice)

Suldae Westwind: (now THAT is balance)

(Suldae can Speak With Plants but does approximately 3 damage per turn)

GM: Only attacks 2 and 3 hit, but the vampire didn't have that much HP left

(EoT?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I walk up as far as I can than Eot)

Van Richten approaches the bottom of the staircase, then raises his hand with a pinch of iron. Sprinkling it in the air he splays his fingers and a pulse of energy flows through the iron flakes, which crackle into a ring of iron filings hovering before his palm. The ground around the vampire spawn shimmers, and blazing blue runes appear, carving themselves in flame on the wooden floorboards. A rainbow-like shimmer surrounds the vampire in a cylinder of light. It shrivels, and falls to all fours, no longer changing shape.

(To GM):

Magic Circle

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: 10 ft

Components: V, S, M (Holy water or powdered silver and iron worth at least 100 gp, which the spell consumes)

Duration: 1 hour

You create a 10-foot-radius, 20-foot-tall cylinder of magical energy centered on a point on the ground that you can see within range. Glowing runes appear wherever the cylinder intersects with the floor or other surface.

Choose one or more of the following types of creatures - celestials, elementals, fey, fiends, or undead. The circle affects a creature of the chosen type in the following ways.

- The creature can't willingly enter the cylinder by nonmagical means. If the creature tries to use teleportation or interplanar travel to do so, it must first succeed on a Charisma saving throw.
- The creature has disadvantage on attack rolls against targets within the cylinder.
- Targets within the cylinder can't be charmed, frightened, or possessed by the creature.

When you cast this spell, you can elect to cause its magic to operate in the reverse direction, preventing a creature of the specified type from leaving the cylinder and protecting targets outside it.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the duration increases by 1 hour for each slot level above 3rd.

The vampire spawn rushes at the edge of the circle and there is a flash of light. A blast of energy launches it backwards!

The vampire spawn appears to be trapped...

GM: 10800 Total XP

3600 Split XP

Sulda Westwind: D A N G

Marcus Veranius: (I get the feeling this encounter was a bit above our level)
(PRAISE THE SUN)

Sulda Westwind: (I get the feeling we might have not been meant to avoid the windmill, whoops)
(PRAISE THE SUN)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (clever us of choke points is a good replacement for lack of levels)

Sulda Westwind:
yaaa

GM (GM): Good morning!

Tops K.: (Mornin!)

Zanshukun: Heyho

Liliet (Sulda): (eyyy)

Rictavio: Van Richten's glasses flash as he approaches the trapped vampire spawn. The vampire is a young man with dark hair and green eyes, but in his cursed state his body has transformed. His ears have grown large and pointed, his features have contorted into a snarl, his eyes blaze with crimson points of light, his lips are cracked and peeling, and his canines have all elongated into wickedly sharp fangs. His posture is hunched, almost doubled over, and his limbs are longer than they should be. He crouches in the circle, staring at Van Richten fearfully.

Van Richten calmly crouches down to look the vampire spawn in the eye.

Sulda Westwind: (are we still going in initiative order)

GM (GM): (No, combat is over)

Rictavio: "Well," says Van Richten. "We've caught one. What do we want to do with it?"

Sulda Westwind: "What CAN we do with it?" Sulda asks. "How intelligent are they?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "what can we do with it?"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda holds out her hand for a high five as they speak at the same time

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raise his to downplay his surprised jump at her presence

Rictavio: "They still retain all the memories of their host body. If the host never had a soul to begin with, then they're essentially the same original person with a certain degree of added evil."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae slaps him on the hand, completing the high five succssfully

"Never had a soul?..." Suldae tries to remember what that means

(I'm going to roll Religion and see what she would know coz I feel like she should :3)

(and I have no clue)

10

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

(...the basics, apparently)

Suldae has never heard of any verifiable case of a person having no soul. She also knows that there are various magics and rituals which allow one to sense, see, experience, and interact with a person's soul -- so it would not be impossible to verify.

Suldae Westwind: "What does that mean?" she asks.

Rictavio: "Barovia is cut off from all the other planes of reality. That includes Elysium, Limbo, and all the hells. The fog even extends into the Astral Plane. Souls don't leave, but new souls don't come in either. Not all who die are reincarnated. Over time, live births outnumber the available souls, and so bodies are born which look and seem like ordinary people, but which are actually hollow shells."

Suldae Westwind: (ty

Rictavio: "It's a purely Barovian experience."

Suldae Westwind: "Uh."

"Well then."

"Anyway, I think we should question him?"

Rictavio: "You can spot them because they never laugh nor cry."

"Er... Yes, that would be best. The spell only lasts an hour."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses, then nods, remembering the border village.

Rictavio: "Apologies, I got sidetracked. I have an obsession with occult lore."

Suldae Westwind: "Give me a second," she says and pushes her way past Ricardo to the vampire

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

"You should answer our questions clearly, concisely and as fully as you can," Suldae tells the caught creature.

Her voice resounds with power, resonating with the Weave to force its way onto the vampire's will.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..and truthfully?" Henry murmurs

Rictavio:

WISDOM SAVE
Vampire Spawn

Save: 23

Marcus Veranius pokes at the ash piles for spare arrows and past possessions while Suldae performs the interrogation.

Vampire: The vampire spawn chuckles. "Of course... I am willing to comply."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. She can tell something is off.

"Seriously, if you don't cooperate, this guy's probably going to make you regret it"
(one sec)

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

(what are spell slots for if not this)

Vampire:

WISDOM SAVE
Vampire Spawn

Save: 5

"I said I was willing to comply."

He seems to mean it, this time.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to Ric.

Marcus finds a grand total of 257 gold coins, two small rubies worth 100 gold pieces, one diamond worth 300 gold pieces, a single gold earring made to look like a serpent twining around the ear. The serpent has emerald eyes and Marcus senses a tingle when he picks it up -- it is probably magical. Marcus also finds one set of noble clothes from the modern era (ashy). The rest of the clothing is ragged and old and damaged by dirt, and much of it seems to be in an outdated fashion.

Rictavio: "Where are the bones, creature?" Van Richten snaps.

Vampire: "The shopkeeper hid them," he whines. "We never knew where. Never wanted to know where."

Suldae Westwind: "Why are you here?" Suldae asks.

Vampire: "Our master has grown tired of this little frontier town, with its ceaseless, insulting festivals and its walls and its otherworldly protection. We are here to put the fear of Strahd back into Vallaki."

Sulda Westwind: "How did you get inside?"

Marcus Veranius sorts over his findings, putting the gems and coins in the party's coffer box. He looks over the noble's clothes, then at his own withered attire, and takes those too.

Marcus Veranius returns to the interrogation room, holding out 80 coins each for Sulda and Henry.

Marcus Veranius: "Earring for you to look over when we're done here."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda's eyes round as she takes the money and slips it into her pouch, which is now pleasantly weighty. She nods, then looks back to the vampire.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry accepts the coins with a nod keeping his eyes on their captive

Vampire: "Several months ago, our master came to visit Henrik van Der Voort, the coffin maker. We came in our coffins, which are full of desecrated earth."

"Our master brought us one by one, sneaking us into the village."

"A few of us, he made here in Vallaki."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "how many of you are here?"

Marcus Veranius: "Wait, made within the walls? By Strahd?"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods to Marcus as he asks the question she wanted to answer too

Vampire: The vampire nods. "In the gaps between the festivals, there are windows of time. If those coincide with a full moon or a new moon, our master can freely enter and exit the village."

Marcus Veranius: "...bollocks."

Vampire: "The day before, the day of, and the day after a festival, he cannot enter. Nor can he enter if the moon is neither full nor new."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda frowns. "How do restrictions apply to other undead?"

Vampire: "They cannot enter or leave the village willingly. It has proven to be quite the hurdle. The desecrated earth allowed us to come through the barrier, and those who were created here are doomed to stay."

Sulda Westwind: "So only Strahd can come through the barrier on those non-festival non-moon days?"

Vampire: "Only Strahd, yes."

Marcus Veranius: "...those created here are doomed to stay."

Sulda Westwind: "I see," Sulda murmurs. "So, Henry asked how many of you there are"

Vampire: "Well, now that the bones are no longer in the church, we are all safe to enter, safe to leave..."

"There are... many."

He smiles. (Insight)

Suldae Westwind:

15

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

14

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

18

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (double click means first counts im sure)

All three of you know the vampire is bluffing.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises an eyebrow at the Vampire "How 'many' more are there then?"

Vampire: "Oh, none could possibly count them."

Marcus Veranius: "You got that right."

Marcus Veranius smirks

Marcus Veranius: "You know, if we request the festivals be rescheduled to the full and new moons, pair it with the return of the bones. That ought to fix all the holes in the barrier."

Suldae Westwind: "The other way around," Suldae says. "New and full moon are safe, along with the festivals"

Marcus Veranius: "He can't enter if the moon isn't full or new. Double negative."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We've got to find the Bones first anyway for that to mater"

Suldae Westwind: "Oh," Suldae realizes.

"You're right, sorry."

Marcus Veranius: "This makes all the difference. It means we can guarantee Ireena's safety within the walls with a few tweaks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "who's safe.nevermind"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She looks at the vampire again. "Leaving questions of your ability to count aside for a moment, what was your name? Who are you?"

Vampire: "I was Jonathan Harker. A nobleman's son. Strahd showed me the beauty of the darkness many years ago..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You did this.." Henry gestures at him "willfully?"

Suldae Westwind: "Willingly," Suldae mouths quietly but does not interrupt.

Vampire: "Oh no. Not at first. But after I fed for the first time, I realized how precious his gift to me was."

Suldae Westwind: "I see," Suldae says blandly, filing away memory of his name. "So back to the question of numbers"

"Before the bones were stolen, where would others have been?"

Vampire: "Many of them were here. I do not know where the others would be kept."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. "I think he doesn't want to cooperate." She looks to Ric for either backing up of the bluff of her Suggestion spell or decision to end the interrogation and the spawn's life.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glares the Vampire before addressing the others "Only the ones turned inside the Village can be elsewhere...unless they were smuggled in inside something else beside the coffins" he muses

Rictavio: "I do believe we've gotten all the relevant information he has available. He has already regenerated too much. Any last words, people?"

Marcus Veranius: "I don't have anything witty to say, so no."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose in distaste at the suggestion.

Rictavio: Van Richten stands, brushes some imaginary dust off the front of his pants, grasps his cane with both hands, and draws the handle away from the body of the cane, revealing a long, thin sword. He thrusts this through the Vampire's heart and keeps it there. The vampire makes a small sound of surprise, and the flesh where the cold, silver-plated steel touches begins to glow and burn away like paper.

The vampire spawn grips the floorboards, its claws sinking in. The red blaze in its eyes fades away.

The creature collapses into bones and dust.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at it for a couple more seconds, her face for once reflecting exactly how disturbed she is.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Then she looks up and turns around towards the bedroom. The shopkeeper's sleep should have already worn off.

She listens for any sounds from there.

8

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

She hears a low groan.

Marcus Veranius scoops up some of the vampire ashes onto a plate from the kitchen, then follows Suldae

Marcus Veranius: "May I?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes into the room and looks around.

The Shopkeeper is sitting up on the bed, touching his head with one hand. He seems disoriented.

Suldae Westwind: (we tied him up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (where is my token?)

The modest bedchamber holds a small bed, several well-made pieces of furniture, including a table, a padded chair, a bookshelf, and a wardrobe. There are some ropes, slashed to pieces, lying on the bed.

Henrik van der Voort: The old man has some long, thin cuts on his clothing, as though the ropes were slashed by a set of claws, which weren't very careful.

Suldae Westwind: "So I lied," Suldae admits, coming closer. "We aren't robbers."

Marcus Veranius: "Worse than that. We're here on Church business."

Henrik van der Voort: He groans.

Suldae Westwind: "Are you okay? There were a lot of vampires in the house."

Suldae watches him intently, trying to determine his feelings on the situation and whether or not there might be magic involved.

18

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae holds out a hand towards Marcus, wordlessly asking him to let her handle this one for the moment.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glares at the old Man in anger

Henrik van der Voort: The old man grimaces. "I... know."

He shakes his head.

"It's all... Foggy."

"The last time my head was clear -- no whispers, no secrets -- the last time my head was clear.... It must be months ago. So many festivals have come and gone."

"It all got blurry after that damned Vasili came..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, her face calm and clear, and hums a melody, belatedly trying to determine if the man might still be under some enchantment.

29

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

(ok wow)

Suldae determines that the man's mind still bears residual marks of repeated suggestion and charm spells, along with some illusion magic. He is not under any ongoing effects, but the lingering power of the vampires

Marcus Veranius: "Vasili you said?"

*Vampires' persuasive ability still hangs over him.

Henrik van der Voort: "Vasili von Holtz," says the Coffin maker, nearly spitting the name.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "unpealsant fellow I take it" Henry states, his expression lightening

Suldae Westwind: "I'm guessing you did not remove Strahd's protection over the town because you thought being in his power was a wonderful idea," Suldae says, trying to both indicate to her companions what she thinks of the situation and get across to the man just how bad his situation is.

Henrik van der Voort: "I don't know anything about Strahd's protection."

Suldae Westwind: She takes a seat in the armchair, demonstrably relaxed

Marcus Veranius: "...he couldn't even drop the Von part of the name?" Marcus mutters to himself. Le moves to sit on the comfy chair.

(SHIT)

Suldae Westwind: (hehe)

Marcus Veranius was beaten to the chair. He sulks by the table instead.

Suldae Westwind: "The protection of the town against Strahd," Suldae clarifies.

She smiles pleasantly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry leans against the bookshelf careful not to disturb anything

Henrik van der Voort: Henrik shakes his head. He seems ignorant but also oddly worried, as though distantly recalling something. "I... I don't know anything about that."

Marcus Veranius considers what Suldae was implying with the suggestion.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The Saints bones you know about them?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae thoughtfully knocks her fingers on the armchair. "If you stole a set of bones, where would you keep it?"

Henrik van der Voort: His eyes flicker to the wardrobe in the Southeast corner. Only Marcus notices.

"Saints bones? Who would take those?"

"That's a horrible thing to suggest."

"Do you mean the bones of St. Andral were stolen?"

Suldae Westwind: "Someone compelled by Strahd, I imagine," Suldae lifts her eyebrows.

"Like, for example, you. We know that much"

Marcus Veranius: "Bit of a shame. I was hoping we'd find them."

Marcus Veranius casually creaks open the wardrobe while looking at Henrik

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry noticed Marcus move and positions himself to not block the view

Henrik van der Voort: Henrik begins to sweat.

Suldae Westwind: "The sooner the bones are returned, the less trouble you're in," Suldae says bluntly.

"The less damage will have been done for you to be partly responsible for."

Suldae does not empathize the 'partly' bit, leaving it to Henrik to notice it or not.

The Wardrobe contains several sets of dark clothing, some appropriate for a fancy funeral. Marcus spots a seam around the bottom shelf of the wardrobe, and an unusual thickness to the base of the wardrobe. This suggests a secret compartment.

Henrik van der Voort: "The less trouble I'm in? What did I do?"

"All I did was agree to help that stupid man sell his hobby coffins!"

Marcus Veranius smirks

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs.

"Well, that's the last thing you remember, is it?"

"Didn't you say you knew there were vampires?"

Henrik van der Voort: "He promised me wealthy patrons, knew loads of rich people who were about to die, and wanted big, grand funerals."

Marcus Veranius kneels down then assesses the secret compartment, looking for a seam to open it.

Henrik van der Voort: "I... I think I have known, for a few days now..."

"That it wasn't really me..."

"It was them, telling me what to do..." His eyes glaze over and seem to stare far away.

"Their voices, whispering in the darkness every night... Praying for blood..."

"I..."

(Investigation or Perception, Marcus)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him in obvious sympathy.

Marcus Veranius:

15

PERCEPTION (5)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus spots a hidden switch.

Suldae Westwind: She nods, trying to nail the exact expression of someone who can and will help.

19

PERSUASION (7)
Suldae Westwind

(was hesitating between persuasion and performance here lmao)

Marcus Veranius gently taps the switch. Clever man; he'll have to order one of these hidden wardrobes made if he ever sets up shop again somewhere.

GM: (In this case, since you're aiming to produce an impression, it would be performance. If you were aiming to change his mind with an argument, it would be persuasion. If this face is part of the argument you're attempting to make, we can let the Persuasion roll stand.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry scowls biting back an angry remark

Suldae Westwind: (I have the exact same numbers for performance)

The compartment springs open. Inside there are two sacks, one large and one small.

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae has been trying to push him to be honest and open and look to her for help)

Marcus Veranius: So very close indeed. Marcus opens each sack slightly, hoping to spot the glow of blessed bones.

Suldae Westwind: "We are _not_ robbers," Suldae says into the air, doubting Marcus needs the reminder but not doubting Henrik does.

The small sack contains coins bearing the visage of Strahd von Zarovich. The large sack contains human bones.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods absentmindedly at Suldaes comment while watching Marcus watching

Henrik van der Voort: "I remember now..." Says the shopkeeper.

"I asked that boy Milivoj to steal them for me."

"How could I forget that...?"

Marcus Veranius: (Are they glowing like the priest said the saints bones do?)

Suldae Westwind: "Honestly, with how much charm magic there is on you, I'm kind of amazed you remember your own name," Suldae says soothingly.

There is a warm glow of golden light which seems to push away all the shadows and cobwebs in the room. In its light you all seem younger. You can hear birdsong somewhere nearby, and a light breeze in treetops. The air even smells a little fresher.

Suldae Westwind: "Er, you do, right?"

Henrik van der Voort: He thinks.

"My name is... Henrik."

"Henrik van der Voort."

Marcus Veranius: "Mr Voort, my good man! I've heard of people with skeletons in their closets but this is the first time I've seen it so literally."

Henrik van der Voort: Henrik hangs his head in shame.

Marcus Veranius grins widely, moving the sack of saints bones into plain fiew

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I think we might have found the bones .." Henry murmurs noticing the light

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and gets up.

"Well, this seems to be resolved. I'd recommend you come with us to talk to the priests, perhaps ask them to bless your house?..."

Henrik van der Voort: Henrik looks up at Suldae, flabbergasted.

He looks at Marcus and Henry.

Suldae Westwind: She closes her eyes for a second, enjoying the sensation from the bones.

Marcus Veranius: "Oh, and a small sack of coins! Well, not so small. Looks like Strahd's coffers."

Henrik van der Voort: "You're not going to kill me?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae makes a face. "And do Strahd's job for him? Fat chance"

"You won't take his money a second time, I'm guessing. You have a lot of cleanup to do here, too."

Henrik van der Voort: "But I betrayed the whole village! They will surely stone me to death, when news of it gets out."

He begins to bite his nails and stare at the wall.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Why would you think that?" missing his own angry expression

Marcus Veranius: "Well here's the situation, Mr. Voort."

"To let the town know you stole the bones would be to confess that their greatest hope is so easily dismantled."

"I think it best for all parties involved that we not disclose what happened here."

Suldae Westwind: "You are but an innocent victim of a vampire's magic," Suldae assures him. "The locals can be unpleasant, sure, but I'm sure they'll have a lot more problems than the coffin maker... considering the town might just be infested with undead, and simply returning the bones won't get rid of them"

"I do agree with Marcus"

"The priests who asked us to look for the bones will listen, I'm sure, and nobody else needs to know."

Marcus Veranius: "THAT BEING SAID, I'm sure a small tithe to the church will go some way to begging God's forgiveness."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..say Mister van der Voort do you have any unfamiliar jewelrie here?"

Marcus Veranius gently lifts the small sack of coin out of the closet

Henry of Willowsbrook: Jewelry

Marcus Veranius: "As if your deal with Strahd never happened, yes?"

By the weight, Marcus estimates 30 sp and 12 ep.

Henrik van der Voort: Henrik hangs his head again. "Yes, that would be the right thing to do."
He licks his lips.

Suldae Westwind: (wow Marcus is good at estimating jewelry by weight Imao)

Henrik van der Voort: "I have no jewelry, no," he says.

Suldae Westwind: "I mean you could just stay in this house... already familiar to Strahd's minions... surrounded by remains of a bunch of vampires... and not come with us," Suldae rolls her eyes.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns the memory of his capture on his mind

Henrik van der Voort: "I'll come with you!" Henrik says.

Marcus Veranius: (He sold out the town for 3 gold. You cant even buy arrows for that.)

Suldae Westwind: (never let it be said Strahd compensates his employees well)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (well we knew he was a dick)

Suldae Westwind:

3

WISDOM (1+1)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae has no idea what the jewelry question was about.

Marcus Veranius: "I arranged the priest to meet us here; relic bones need handled with gentle care.
With any luck he'll be waiting outside."

Marcus Veranius gently lifts the sack and begins taking it downstairs

Suldae Westwind: Suldae beckons Henrik to come with.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Mister van der Voort are you perchance able to use magic?" HENry asks still frowning

Henrik van der Voort: "What?" says Henrik, standing. "No, I've never touched magic before."
"Too complicated for me."
"I've been a carpenter all my life!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (does he were any accesories?)
(wear)

"Then how did you put me to sleep yesterday?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows as she finally clues in to what he was talking about and gives the shopkeeper a curious look.

Henrik van der Voort: The shopkeeper just raises his eyebrows curiously. "Are you sure that was me? I don't know how to do that."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm certain it was you" Henry says

"Or they atleast looked like you.."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks between them thoughtfully. "Marcus, what did you find on the vampires again?"

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus went downstairs with the bones)

Sulda Westwind: (We followed you downstairs)

Marcus Veranius: (Whoops! RIP me)

As Marcus is moving down the stairs, he spots a small silver ring in the ashes of the vampire that was trapped by Van Richten.

At the moment he spots this, there is a knock on the front door.

Priest: "Hello? Henrik van der Voort?"

Marcus Veranius casually kicks the ring into view, then hobbles downstairs.

Priest: "It's father Lucian. I was wondering if I might have a word with you."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae notices the rings, bends to pick it up, then pauses with her hand hovering over it, then wraps her hand in the fabric of her sleeve and picks it up.

Marcus Veranius: "Do come in; we were just finishing up a chat! He offers a tithe for the church."
"Some remains of particular interest and a donation to their secured keeping."

Sulda Westwind: "And a lot of vampire ashes," Suldae adds slightly under her breath but still audibly.

Priest: The Priest enters, flanked by four guards. "Ah, excellent work!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smirks at her comment but remains silent

Sulda Westwind: "Who is Vasili van Holtz?" Suldae asks meanwhile, innocently half-blocking his view of the man.

Priest: "Who?"

"There's no one of that name in this village."

Sulda Westwind: "Must be someone from the outside, then," Suldae smiles.

"There's a lot of trouble brewing, I'm afraid," she adds, more grimly.

"We should probably talk somewhere that's not here."

Priest: "Let's head back to the temple. Do you think the guards will need to escort him?"

Marcus Veranius: "WE should probably check up on that other situation, with the wagon."

"Rictavio; can you escort the remains to their resting place?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae shakes her head. "He is a victim in this," she says with certainty.

14

PERSUASION (7)
Sulda Westwind

Priest: "You have heard of the wagon too? There have been sightings of a sabertooth tiger sometime in the early morning, it's got the town in a frenzy. Izek Strazni says he's going to hunt the beast himself."

To Suldae, the priest says: "We will trust your judgement in this matter, then. Do you believe he should be released?"

Rictavio: Van Richten pinches the bridge of his nose and heaves a heavy sigh of disappointment.

Suldae Westwind: "I think he should be protected," Suldae says seriously. "I doubt Strahd's minions will take his release from their master's thrall gladly."

"Also..."

Suldae hesitates to talk in front of the guards, and instead quickly writes a note in her notebook, then tears the page out and hands it to the priest. It has all the intelligence the vampire thrall gave on it, from the festivals and new/full moon to the desecrated earth method.

Priest: The priest reads it carefully. At the end, his mouth goes into a little round "O" of understanding. He nods seriously.

"I shall have to speak to the Burgomaster about this, and see if we can get the festivals on a more opportune timing. I'm certain he will be very pleased to find out that his festivals are working. And straight from the devil's mouth, no less!"

Suldae Westwind: "So to speak," Suldae wrinkles her nose. It wasn't exactly Strahd who told them.

While walking down the main road towards the temple, you see Ismark standing outside the Blue Water Inn, leaning against a pillar and smoking a pipe.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Howdy, strangers!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae waves.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns at the overly familiar tone but nods in greeting

On the way to the temple, Marcus (highest Passive Perception) realizes that the party is being followed.

As you arrive at the temple steps, your pursuer ducks into an alley.

Priest: "Well," says the Priest. "I think we can take the bones from here. I'll get them reinstalled beneath the alter."

"Guards,

*"Guards, if you would be so kind as to go back to your posts, and keep a watchful eye out for sabertooth tigers, we'd all be very grateful for it."

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, bollocks. I think I have a hole in my coinpurse. Better check if I left a trail of wealth by mistake."

"I'll meet you two at the camp."

Marcus Veranius ducks out and slips towards the alley their pursuer ducked into

Henry of Willowsbrook: (btw how many coins did we get I forgot to add them to my sheet)

Suldae Westwind: 80

each

Marcus Veranius: (80 gold)

Suldae Westwind: (+ more that Marcus put into party funds i'm guessing)

Marcus Veranius: (17 gold in the party fund for sake of rounded numbers)

Suldae Westwind: (I like the idea of a party fund alongside our individual funds growing)

GM: Marcus, stealth check please

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives him an odd look but takes Henry back to the tavern, looking if Ismark is still there.

Marcus Veranius:

15

STEALTH (7)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to follow Suldae after watching Marcus leave.

Suldae Westwind: (splitting the party, what a great idea, now in FOUR parts)

(Ric, Marcus, Henry and Suldae, Ismark and Ireena)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If you don't mind me asking what's your plan ?"

Rictavio: "I think we should head to the camp. That's where the scent of Vistani would be strongest, so the tiger would go there first. It eats at dusk and at dawn, most days.

Suldae Westwind: (oh, Ric's with us, thank god for that much lmao)

Rictavio: "I will accompany you in pursuit of the tiger, since that is clearly my fault. But first I think we should examine the cart once more, and be sure no foul play was at hand. I have had that tiger in that cage for over a year now, and it's never escaped before."

Suldae Westwind: "Quick recap: this guy," Suldae jabs her thumb at Ric, "has trained a target to attack Vistani. This morning the target was set loose."

"As far as we know, the only Vistani near the town are a bunch of robbers in Strahd's employ..." she trails off. Who would loose the tiger and why, if that were true?

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark is waiting on the porch at the Blue Water, still smoking his pipe.

Suldae Westwind: "We probably don't know something. Anyway, that's Ismark, he's with us."

Suldae comes up to Ismark and quickly recaps what happened.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ah I meant in more general terms" Henry remarks before giving Ismark a more furrow once over *thorough(what am I writing)

Henry sees a tall, rugged-looking young man with decent bone structure and peeling skin. He has a rope burn around his neck which his collar is popped to somewhat conceal. He also has a strange gleam in his eyes.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Howdy. Don't believe we've met. I'm Ismark Kolyanovich. Ireena's brother."

"Has he met Ireena yet?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I am Henry it is my pleasure and I have not"

Rictavio: Van Richten is tapping his boot. "We are in something of a hurry here. The sun sets early in Barovia."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Now now, Rictavio -- don't be rude!"

"I'll just go get her real quick, won't take a sec. She'll be pleased to see we've got extra help."

Suldae Westwind: "Maybe don't," Suldae says seriously.

"The town might just be infested with vampires."

"It should be taken care of soon enough, but for now... just tell her I said hi, maybe."

"Well, definitely tell her I said hi."

Suldae is not blushing, as anyone currently watching her can attest.

"We need to go and take care of the tiger part first," Suldae adds with audible annoyance.

Suldae Westwind: The more she thinks about it, the more certain she is the tiger was always a disaster waiting to happen... and that there's going to be SOME unpleasant surprise related to that waiting for them.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You mentioned the Tiger, the one that got loose, was trained to kill Vistani and that they work for Strahd. How certain are you of this?" Henry asks in a grave tone Suldae Westwind: Please let there not be a whole other tribe of Vistani, children and everything, passing by. Please, she thinks.

Rictavio: "We're certain," says Van Richten.

"I trained it myself."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head. "Who set it loose then, and why?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'll let Ireena know you said hi."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives him a bashful smile and a nod.

Rictavio: Van Richten heads towards the stockyards.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Not that that the Vistani work for Strahd!" Henry thunders with barely contained anger

Henry follows him fuming

Rictavio: "Most Vistani do," says Van Richten, with a shrug. "And I wasn't going to loose it until I was sure, anyway."

"This particular camp is definitely in league with Strahd."

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+5 Acrobatics

(16)+5

= 21

Sulda Westwind: "I don't like it either," Sulda admits, shrugging in annoyance. "There are no children there, at least," her distaste seeps into her voice strongly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... a setup.." Henry hisses under his breath hand clutching the hilt of his Sword

Van Richten inspects the cart carefully.

Rictavio: "Right," Van Richten says.

"To me, this looks like the tiger burst out from the inside, though I can't imagine what could have gotten it so agitated."

"There are footprints around the cart from last night. I see two different males. Fashionable boots."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That bastard set us up!" Henry growls ignoring the others

Sulda Westwind: "Who set who up?" Sulda turns to him.

Rictavio: "Right, Sulda, figure out what he's on about. This calls for more gear."

Rictavio goes to the front of the cart and pops a key into a concealed keyhole, opening a secret compartment. He roots around inside for a while.

Sulda Westwind: The tiger getting free on its own because there were Strahd's Vistani snooping around is, Sulda has to admit, the best case scenario here.

She doesn't like to think about the wide variety of worst case ones.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm a mercenary by trait like you might have guessed." Henry says in a more calmed tone

Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods. She wasn't sure, but it was a safe enough first guess.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "My company took a job here In Barovia. Some nobleman hired us to root out bandits. Pretty standard job or so I was told if not for the absurdly high pay for what was asked of us. The others figured there might be more Bandits than mentioned but they still wanted to take it."

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+9+1d8 Net

(7) + 9 + (7)

= 23

(From Marcus Veranius): Using the Accuracy maneuver

Henry of Willowsbrook: "they said 'how difficult could it be even if there are twice as many we'd still be overpaid' so they convinced the Boss to accept" Henry's voice is filled with bitter regret Sulda Westwind: Sulda nods, lips pressed together. She's not foreseeing a good end to this story.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The second night after we found the bandits, who are Vistani or so we were told, we were ambushed. And bucheterd to the last man, little old me." Henry tapped of into a whisper during the retelling barely restraining his emotions

Rictavio: "Sounds to me like you were suckered in. Same as the others." Van Richten returns from his secret stash with a silvered shortsword and three holy symbols shaped like sunbursts, made of a dark wood inlaid with silver. He has a healer's kit slung over one shoulder, he drops it into a hand and holds it out to Suldae. He has a small hand crossbow with mother-of-pearl inlay. He holds out a quiver of twenty silver bolts. "Take a few. I'll need some too."

He also slings a worn leather bag across his shoulders. It's very large.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes ten bolts and the healing kit, nodding gratefully.

She takes out her own holy symbol from under her clothes and shows it to others present as she puts the bolts where she will easily reach them.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Rictavio "are the Vistani known for taking bodies of those they've slain? you seem like you'd know"

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d20+2 Insight

() +2

= 3

Rictavio: "If Strahd is mustering an army of undead, yes. Otherwise, they tend to do water burials."

Suldae Westwind: "Love the 'if' there," Suldae notes with unconcealed sarcasm.

Rictavio: "Well, he's not a/ways mustering."

Suldae Westwind: "Guess you should be looking forward to meeting your buddies," she adds bitterly.

Rictavio: "Or at least, not actively mustering. He keeps this ecosystem in a carefully maintained balance."

"After all, if the feeders outnumbered the food, well... It would go poorly for them."

"Now. I think we've gleaned what we can from the cart, shall we head to the camp?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

"Priority one, I would say, is to find the tiger," she says seriously.

"Whatever else is happening, not all of the local Vistani are Strahd's."

Rictavio: "I would bet money that it is either at the camp, or in the nearby forest. Getting over the palisade would prove no difficulty for it."

"It is unlikely that it would have gone through the gates, but we may as well talk to the guards there too."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns deeply "when we catch up with it what are we going to do?" His face was hard Suldae Westwind: "When we find it..." Suldae pauses, "we need to be able to stop it. Does it obey commands, or?..."

She doesn't want to say they might need to kill it. But they will probably need to kill it.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "It's likely going to attack the Vistani right?" Henry's voice is hollow "Why are we in such a hurry then?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae makes a face at him. "And if there DO happen to be children in their camp? Say, passing through?"

"Strahd might be a savage beast, but we're people."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glares at her, anger and hatred wafting off of him before cutting out as he turns to look at the sky

"You're right"

He shakes himself and asks Ric "Where do we begin?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out, glad she won't have another fight over this. Now would be really not the time!

Just then, you pass by an alley and see Marcus standing with one foot on a man wrapped in a net. They appear to be having an amicable conversation.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises his voice "Hey Marcus, everything alright" hand drifting to his sword in caution

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae just waves, stopping next to Henry. She really enjoys having someone big and in armor to hide behind.

 Marcus Veranius: "Forgive me if I doubt your story, but I had a chat with Blinsky the other day. He said it was Lady Fiona commissioning his dolls; rather heartbroken about it."

"You ought to know that as her minion, so who's this Strazni fellow?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows. Sounds like quite an interesting conversation they're having. She touches Henry's arm to get his attention and holds her finger to her lips.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches eyes on their new netted "friend"

 Marcus Veranius: (Wait, shit, I screwed up my notes)

(Fiona is responsible for the Strahd doll)

(SO MANY CHARACTERS AAAAAAAAAAAAA)

 Suldae Westwind: (im so sorry)

 Marcus Veranius: (I cant edit either cause we in Roll20 now)

 Suldae Westwind: (and we cant sync properly)

(we can just pretend it didnt happen)

 Marcus Veranius considers the spy's story, and kneels down to eye level with the spy.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (and action)

GM: (I had to go back to the chat log to double-check lmao)

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (let's scrap the first take or play it off)

Marcus Veranius: "Well, Derek, I'm going to be frank with you. Fiona is trying too hard getting her answers by playing in the shadows."

Rictavio: Van Richten approaches, looking down at the man.

Marcus Veranius: "If she wants our stories, suggest to her that she invite us to her estate for dinner."
"We'll talk then, in plain terms."

Rictavio: "Ernst Larnak! I thought after our last conversation, you would have better manners. Pleased to see Marcus has already begun teaching you some."
"Was he following us?" Van Richten asks.

Suldae Westwind: Well, isn't this a party. Suldae hangs back, watching curiously.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry quirks his eyebrow trying to remeber if he had met the man before

Marcus Veranius nods.

Rictavio: "Hmph."
"This is Ernst Larnak. A spy, and a pretty poor one. He works for Lady Fiona Wachter."
"Spends most of his time as a messenger boy, delivering all those little letters she sends every month."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Watcher... really that's the person employing spys?"

Marcus Veranius: "Well then, I wouldn't want to aggravate someone so influential. We'll let bygones be bygones."

Marcus Veranius starts untying the net

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs, catching Henry's eye. She wonders if it's a coincidence or if there's a story to that name, but that question can wait until the spy is no longer there.

Rictavio: "Oh, she's not the only one with spies," Van Richten says to Henry.
"The Burgomaster has his own; Izek Strazni."
"This one just tries harder to be inconspicuous."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lady Watcher the spymistress" Henry says under his breath looking amused

Marcus Veranius: "Oh! And do let her know I'm taking good care of Leetle Strahd." Marcus comments to Ernst.

Rictavio: "It's WACHTER, not WATCHER," Van Richten says. "I made the same mistake myself, at first. The irony was too good."

Spy: The spy gets nervously to his feet, and immediately bolts for freedom.

Suldae Westwind: (omfg then its not even pronounced nearly close)
(tfw read only puns)
(gotta read more attentively)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (put an ä in there and its watcher in German lmao)

Suldae Westwind: (omfg)

(even better)

Marcus Veranius: "Going to be honest, I was hoping he was with the bird society." Marcus murmurs after the spy leaves earshot.

Rictavio: "Well," says Van Richten. "When they spy on us, it's much more discreet."

"He points casually towards a tree on the street side, where a large raven is perched, preening itself."

(Not supposed to be in quotes dammit)

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Are we worth all this attention?" Henry asks his companions quirking his brow

Marcus Veranius: "Unfortunately so. We're in the thick of it."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives them a wave.

*it

the raven

though 'them' works too actually nm

Rictavio: The Raven caws.

Suldae Westwind: "I don't remember if we've already told you, but the shortest version is we're trying to ensure the safety of the girl Strahd is currently obsessed with having for his bride."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs "i'm starting to dislike magic just a bit"

Suldae Westwind: "I'm guessing there's little that stirs up Barovia like his whims being denied him"
Suldae elbows him lightly

Henry of Willowsbrook: He turns to Suldae eyes wide "we are?" He composes himself "well in for a copper in for'em all"

Suldae Westwind: "That's the spirit," Suldae says, glad for that instant and thoughtless 'we'. She holds up her hand for a high five, hoping he gets the idea.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He holds out his hand while rolling his eyes

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wishes he were more enthusiastic about it, but proceeds to make the gesture on her own, if weakly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (and scene)

Suldae Westwind: "I'm kind of in this by accident, too, it's just better to stick with a group in a place like this," she adds softly.

"Most of the time, anyway - but you weren't much safer in that coffin, were you?"

Honestly, sticking with them is probably the definition of unsafe. But it's at least somewhat controlled unsafe, not just waiting until a vampire decides to pop in through your window and make you one of its own, or something.

"We're definitely glad to have you for as long as you're helping."

Zanshuken: heyho

GM (GM): Good morning!

Liliet (Suldae): hiya

GM (GM): We'll wait for Marcus before we begin

In the meantime I'm going to see if I can't muster up some new music

Liliet (Suldae): (yay, I'm not last this time!)

Tops K.: (Sorry for tardiness; here now)

GM (GM): Good Morning all

Everybody remember where we left off?

Rictavio: "Aye, always happy for the extra help," Van Richten says. Something seems to be bothering him.

Liliet (Suldae): (brb)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs feeling awkward with the attention
(we did get that short rest right?)

GM (GM): (Yes, we'll say you had a short rest)

Rictavio: "Right," says Van Richten. "Now that we're all together, we'd better get going. We've got a tiger to catch."

Liliet (Suldae): (back, sorry)

Suldae nods.

Marcus Veranius: "Do we know if it'll still be friendly to us?"

"As long as we're not Vistani, right?"

Rictavio: "As long as we are not Vistani, it should not attack us."

"It remains something of a wild animal, I'm afraid, so that's as good of a guarantee as I can give you."

Van Richten glances at the darkening sky.

"We're burning time. The gates will already be closed. Do we want to try to get past the guards, or go over the wall?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So we better just ere on the side of caution then"

Liliet (Suldae): "I have a spell for this," Suldae notes. "For the tiger, that is"

"No opinion on gates or the wall, honestly"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I think I can get us past the guards" Henry takes His mercenary badge out of a bag to show the others

Marcus Veranius nods to Henry and allows him to take lead. Mercs handling a tiger is entirely in their job description

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Shall we then I'd rather not spend the night outside of town"

Rictavio: "Lead the way," says Van Richten.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry walks of to the nearest gate

Guard: One of two guards accosts him. "Halt! Who goes there?"

"No one is permitted through the gates after dark, Burgomaster's orders."

Marcus Veranius: (Isn't it still morning?)

Liliet (Suldae): (or at least afternoon?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hail my friend. We have orders to take care of something outside. Henry holds out his badge for the guards to see, trying his best to act like his companions are actual mercenaries."

(could be they don't want us to leave in the afternoon cause they don't want to risk us coming back after dark)

Rictavio: "And look, it's not even dark yet! It's hardly three in the afternoon!"

Guard: "The sun sets early in Barovia, my friend!"

Liliet (Suldae): "And yet, right now it's still not dark," Suldae notes.

Guard: "It will be dark before you know it!" Says the Guard. "Just being prudent!"

"You'll be stuck on the road in the dark!"

"Are you lot mad?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises his arm signaling the others to stay quiet

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae shuts up obediently.

Guard: The guard approaches to examine the badge.

Marcus Veranius: "Sun sets for no tigers. As much as we trust Izek Stranzi boasts to fell the tiger, the Burgomaster would rather us trapped outside than him."

Marcus Veranius backs up Henry's claim

Guard: "This all seems to be in order..." He says, scratching his head. "How come I wasn't informed of a mercenary group?"

The other Guard, hearing Marcus's comment, claps a hand over his mouth. His eyes widen. The first guard stiffens visibly and his ears turn bright red.

The second guard presses the issue. He approaches with a rattle of chain-mail and leans on his spear to look at Marcus. "Did you say tiger?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Because our presence is on need to know basis" Henry levels astare at both the guards

Guard: He slaps the other guard on the shoulder. "See! I told you I saw one! Now who's a stupid idiot?"

Marcus Veranius: "Aye. Lucky for you, Henry's equipped in this kind of work." Marcus lightly taps on Henry's armor to prove its sturdiness.

Guard: "Oh, come on. Izek is a filthy liar, how was I supposed to know he was telling the truth this time?" The first guard says.

Marcus Veranius: "He aint specialized in opening gates, however."

Guard: They begin to squabble in front of you like an old married couple. Long night shifts together have given them a strong but frustrating bond.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry clears his throat loudly glaring at them loudly

Guard: "Er, right. Need to know. Official business."

"Right, well. Be back before dark, or the gates won't be open. And good luck on the hunt."

The guards unbar the gate together and push it lightly outward. It swings on well-oiled hinges, opening the road ahead.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods at them striding through the gate confidently

Rictavio: (brb)

Marcus Veranius tips his hat to the guards then follows Henry out

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae follows Henry, keeping her face neutral. She's the least believable mercenary of the group, and feels rather relieved that nobody called her on it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "next time we mime the consummate professionals I would like a for less back talk from my 'lieutenants'" Henry grumbles

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae mimes sewing her mouth shut

Marcus Veranius murmurs to Henry once he leaves earshot of the guards. "Being a dragonslayer gets you through the east gate, being a merc gets you through the west."

Marcus Veranius: "Heaven forbid we take the north gate and need a third excuse."

Liliet (Suldae): "I can make something up about a holy mission from Correllon," Suldae offers. "Won't even need to lie, really," she fingers the holy symbol on her neck.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smirks "or you play royalty stuck here with her servants or something"

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae rounds her eyes in mock horror
Upon consideration, she follows up with a shocked gasp.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What no one would buy either of us acting the princeling" Henry shrugs gesturing at himself and Marcus

Liliet (Suldae): "As if you'd make believable servants!" Suldae side-eyes Marcus in particular

Marcus Veranius: "I'd make a good court jester if I say so myself."

Rictavio: "Come on," says Van Richten. "The camp is this way."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grins following Richten

Rictavio: He leads you down the road, past some small, abandoned farms. On the south side of the road there is a small foot trail, well-traveled. It cuts through the grass for a few hundred yards before diving into thick forest.

"This is the trail to the camp," says Van Richten. "Be on your guard."

He grabs his crossbow and loads a silver bolt and steps into the tall grass.

At the edge of the forest, Van Richten hesitates.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae nods. One of her hands is on the ocarina, the other on her crossbow, silver bolts at the ready.

Rictavio: "Something's not right," he says.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raise his shield hand on his sword nodding face serious

Liliet (Suldae): "What is?" Suldae stops next to him and looks around.

Rictavio: "I don't hear any screaming..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "that's either good or terrible news"

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow

Liliet (Suldae): "Maybe they shot the tiger on approach?" Suldae suggests.

Rictavio: "Maybe..."

He steps into the forest.

Liliet (Suldae): "What do you think other options are?"

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe the tiger is really good at its job, and there's no one left to scream..."

Rictavio: "Other options: we're already too late, as Marcus suggested."

"Or the Tiger never came this way, which seems unlikely.

11

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae nods. She's... conflicted about the whole thing with the tiger - convenient yet horribly unethical, so she's not sure which outcome she's rooting for here.

It takes half an hour of walking to get to the edge of the camp.

Liliet (Suldae): (What do we see?)

(Also, we stop under the cover of trees, right?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I see nothing right now)

You stop under cover of the treeline, observing the camp. You see a large, mounded hill with a flat top. Ringed around it are several permanent huts of curious architecture. Atop the hill, a ring of wagons surrounds a tent. You see smoke rising from the tent. You hear nothing from the camp.

Liliet (Suldae): Does it seem like there should be guards?

(brb)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Something is up..a camp that size thisshouldn't be this quiet before dark"

Dozens of horses are scattered around the hill, grazing.

No one seems to be watching the horses.

You note that the smoke rising from the tent is thin and grey, like the smoke from a fire which is running out of fuel.

Marcus Veranius: "Well good news."

"If the tiger WAS through here, he's trained enough to not hurt livestock."

"Props to you."

Rictavio: "He prefers wolf meat," says Van Richten.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I doubt preferences alone would keep it from eating a horse"

As you stand talking, a figure rises to the peak of a rooftop, on one of the nearby huts. He seems to be looking at you.

Marcus Veranius: "Well, there goes stealth."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae squints at the figure, trying to make out the details.

20

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

The figure is tall and slender. Long silver hair flows in the wind. He is wrapped in dark robes of an exotic cut. He does not sound the alarm, and he makes no attempt to approach you.

Liliet (Suldae): "Well, that's not the tiger," Suldae whispers.

Suldae realizes even from this distance that the man has very long, pointed ears.

Liliet (Suldae): "An elf? What did we hear about local elves?..."

She trails off worriedly.

Marcus Veranius: "They camp with the Vistani if I remember correct."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tries to remember if elves came up in his briefing coming into the region

Liliet (Suldae): "Well, looks like that's one of them," Suldae murmurs.

Marcus Veranius: "Be careful; we were warned of them being a bit clingy."

"Might buy yourself a forever-fan if you're not careful."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "there was no mention of elvish bandits for us" Henry says trying to get a better look

Liliet (Suldae): "I remembered that, thank you," Suldae says venomously. "Any elf would be able to tell I'm half-human at a glance, though."

Henry of Willowsbrook: mention

Marcus Veranius starts walking towards the camp, disregarding the elf for now

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae follows.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows him keeping the elf in his field of view for now

Rictavio: Van Richten follows in the middle of the group, head on a swivel, crossbow at the ready.

Liliet (Suldae): one sec

I want to suggest movement order

I don't think random is a good idea

GM: Please roll initiative.

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Rictavio

Initiative: 18

Liliet (Suldae): can I _first_ suggest movement order?

Marcus Veranius:

15.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)

Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)

Henry of Willowsbrook

Liliet (Suldae): so that we place our tokens the way we were walking

GM: We can modify the initiative to reflect your elected movement order

Liliet (Suldae): when intiiative strats

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wow)

Liliet (Suldae): not initiative, starting positions

Marcus Veranius: (We don't have any chokepoints to filter enemies through; as long as Suldae's in the back we should be fine.)

GM: Yes, who is in front? Who is in the back? Van Richten will be in the middle.

Liliet (Suldae): ^

Marcus was going first, right?

Suldae being in the back makes sense

Henry would be second?

Henry of Willowsbrook: me in front probably

GM: Marcus and Henry in front, then

Liliet (Suldae): then van Richten, then Suldae last

Marcus Veranius: Fighters in Front

A large draft horse stands in the road, chewing contentedly.

Liliet (Suldae):

14.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

It turns its large brown eyes on your group as you approach, looking at you with the fearlessness of boredom.

Liliet (Suldae): (augh)

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 13.14

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 16.15

Suldae Westwind: (wouldn't we have been walking closer together?

(Ric and Suldae right now are awfully far from the rest of the group)

GM: You're all within five feet of each other, unless you want to be spaced farther apart. It's a 10' grid.

Suldae Westwind: (Aha, thank you!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks around trying to find any clues(roll perception?)

Rictavio steps off the road and onto the hill, gaining a slightly higher ground.

GM: (Roll Perception -- where are you looking?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (around us for anything that would explain the lack of people)

Henry spots damage on the nearest wagon -- it looks as though something has clawed its way in through rear door.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Something attacked here atleast" Henry gestures to the wagon

Suldae Westwind: "I could ask the plants here what they saw," Suldae says quietly. "But only once, and not in a very large area. We'll want to pick a spot carefully"

He also sees that one of the nearby wagons does not seem to have been touched -- it is far nicer than the others, and its door is sealed with two padlocks.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and that one looks important.." Henry trails of disturbed by the lack of guards near it

Marcus Veranius squints at Henry's direction

Marcus Veranius: "Two locks? Two leaders of the camp."
"Luvash and Arrigal if I recall from Rictavio's lecture."

Rictavio: "Lecture?!"

Suldae Westwind: "Let's check it?" Suldae suggests the possibly obvious

Marcus Veranius: "Intelligence briefing."

Rictavio: Van Richten harrumphs irritably.
He kneels, touching the ground.

"The tiger did not pass this way," he says. "I see no tracks."

"It must have circled around and approached the camp from another angle."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his eyes "careful we are still in hostile territory" He approaches shield raised

Marcus Veranius: "Does that mean we should do the same? I'd hate to argue a tiger's intuition?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: the wagons

Suldae Westwind: "I'd say the situation has changed between the tiger's approach and ours," Suldae offers

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'd rather not draw more attention to us by stalking around here for long" not

Rictavio: Van Richten stands back up, joints popping audibly. "I think it's safe to approach."
"With caution, of course."

Marcus Veranius nods, then begins sneaking towards the clawed wagon

Marcus Veranius:

11

STEALTH (7)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows as quietly as he can

Marcus Veranius: (STEALTH)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

3

STEALTH (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

10

STEALTH (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (I'm pretty sure the horses can see us anyway)
(should Suldae even try)

Henry's foot disturbs the nest of a burrowing owl, which makes its displeasure known to most of the countryside.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (plate armor is not stealthy so far)

Suldae Westwind: (is initiative moving)

As Marcus approaches the clawed wagon, he gets a glimpse inside. The gore is enough to turn the stomach of the strongest man. Four corpses lie inside the wagon, disemboweled.

They seem to have been ripped apart by massive claws, though they appear uneaten.

Rictavio: "Suldae, you said something about plants?"

Suldae Westwind: "I can make them capable of answering questions," Suldae says uncertainly. She hasn't actually done this before, though she's fairly certain of the methodology. "I'd rather do it in the middle, though, where everything happened"
"Grass doesn't have the best vantage point"

Rictavio: Van Richten chuckles. "True enough."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grimacing from his trip up joins Marcus at the wagon

Rictavio: Van Richten climbs the hill, following the road.

Marcus Veranius attempts to close the wagon doors before the others approach

Suldae Westwind: are we doing the initiative thing, or?...

The wagon doors are too destroyed to conceal much, but it's better than nothing.

GM: Yes, still doing initiative

Suldae Westwind: (so whose turn is it now)

Rictavio: The draft horse doesn't budge as Van Richten approaches.

GM: (Van Richten's)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

Rictavio: "You don't look terribly traumatized," Van Richten comments, patting the horse. It seems very tame.

"Mind budging, for me?"

"Not so much, huh?"

Suldae Westwind: "Just go around it," Suldae suggests, eyeing the incline.

Rictavio: Van Richten skirts around the horse.

GM: (Suldae's turn)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows him.

EoT

GM: Marcus's turn

Marcus Veranius sneaks over to the padlocked wagon and attempts to pick it open while the others get closer to the camp

Marcus Veranius:

8

Thieves Tools (7)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (which side are the padlocks on?)

Marcus Veranius: (:U)

As Marcus is fiddling with the padlocks, on the rear side of the cart, he hears a click. He knows he hasn't engaged the lock yet. Suddenly, before he can react, a three-inch-long needle juts out of the lock and stabs him in the hand. He takes 1 piercing damage and 3 poison damage. (Make a CON save.)

Suldae Westwind: (ok wow that's a great roll)

(thank you dice gods)

Marcus Veranius:

14

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus feels the effects of the poison sinking into his blood. (Marcus is poisoned for one hour.)

GM: (A poisoned creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls and Ability Checks.)

Marcus Veranius: (BIG OOF)

Suldae Westwind: (a somewhat less great one)

(but hey 2d10 damage turning into 3)

Marcus Veranius: "B... bollocks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to marcus "what happend?"

Marcus Veranius: "Trapped lock... I don't feel so good Mr. Willowsbrook."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (really...)

(eot?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

GM: (Henry's up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves over to Marcus taking in both him and the locks

"You tried to pick them?"

tried

Marcus Veranius: "Seemed a good idea at the time."

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae is on the other end of the camp but out of character I would like ot remind you about the crowbar)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks at the locks for a time before shrugging and taking a crowbar out of his baggage

"Are you up for possible surprisses inside?" Hnery asks while wedging the crow bar int postion on one of the locks

Marcus Veranius: "...not so much anymore to be frank."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well prepare anyways" Henry trys to break open the first lock
(what should I roll here? do I roll here?)

GM: (Athletics check with advantage, due to the crowbar)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

23

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(how do i do advanage?)

Suldae Westwind: (two checks take higher)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

19

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: There is a button which switches the roll from normal to advantage or disadvantage, too. Near the top of the character sheet.

The crowbar makes short work of the first padlock.

The second padlock remains.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ah ok see it now do can I try the other one too?)

GM: (That would require your action, do you want to use action surge to attempt the other one too?)
(The athletics check was your first action)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

Van Richten approaches another cart and peers through a window. He makes a "tisk tisk tisk" sound with his teeth. "What a shame, what a bummer! Another whole cart of dead Vistani. Oh, the world is so much poorer."

The cart he has approached has also been torn into.

Sulda Westwind: (can I write like Suldae has followed him already, since that's what's going to happen on her turn anyway)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (he does know no one is close enough to hear him right?)

GM: (yes)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae slaps him upside the head, a little more than slightly.

"Do not talk of death like this," she hisses.

Rictavio: He laughs in her face.

"I have seen more death than you can possibly imagine, child."

"This is not even a particularly interesting mess."

Sulda Westwind: "And learned awful manners about it, I see"

"If it's not interesting, do refrain from commenting, would you?"

Rictavio: "If you have something to say, next time say it with words. My hands have a tendency to talk back to handsy sorts."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae's lips stretch into a very nice smile, the rest of her face following. Out of context, she would look extremely pleasant and happy.

Rictavio looks around at the other carts, rubbing the back of his head.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Marcus watching the other two from outside listening range
"they don't seem to get along great2"

Sulda Westwind: She does not push the conflict further.

Rictavio: "It looks as though the tiger did exactly what it was trained to do. At this point it has probably found the juiciest Vistani to snack on. It may even be napping somewhere nearby."

Marcus Veranius woosily nods to Henry's remark.

Rictavio: [EoT]

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks around for anything else interesting she can spot from this vantage point.

5

PERCEPTION (2)
Sulda Westwind

Suldae sees that al of the other carts within view have been torn into.

Sulda Westwind: And absolutely nothing else)=

(*all) Aside from this, she sees nothing of particular interest.

Sulda Westwind: EoT

GM: (Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus will wait till after Henry breaks the lock)

GM: (Henry, you're up -- Marcus is holding)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves onto the other lock placing the crowbar carefully

11

13

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

The second padlock proves harder to break than the first. Try as he might, he can't force it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I use action surge to try again

24

19

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

16

19

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry grunts with effort after failing the first time to open the lock

With a tinkle of breaking iron, the lock snaps.

The door now appears to be unlocked.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gingerly pulls on the handle (free interaction with the environment)

The door swings open. The cart is packed with items. A heavy wooden chest sits at the back of the cart, with an iron chest sitting atop it, and an onyx jewelry box sitting nearby. A wooden throne sits in the corner. It appears to be inlaid with gold and decorative stones. A rolled up rug if expensive make is crammed into another corner, and near the door is a small wooden box.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Would you look at that" Henry huffs EoT

GM: (Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius: "You think we could buy out the Burgomeister's favor with that chair?" Marcus remarks, looking at all the potentially trapped things

He shakes his head. "We ought to find the tiger first, else we have BOTH the party's front line men in dire straights."

GM: (Roll perception)

Marcus Veranius:

10

16

PERCEPTION (5)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: (all of us?)

GM: (Just you and Marcus)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (without advantage for me, yes)

GM: (Yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry spots a flash of movement through the open flap of the tent just to the south. The movement is orange and striped...

Unfortunately, Marcus, in the haze of the poison, does not see this.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus I think I found our cat" Henry murmurs before raising his voice so the others can hear him "The Central Tent folks!"

Marcus Veranius nods, intent on moving behind Henry

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Rictavio: "Let's catch up with them," Van Richten says, and sprints to join the other two.
[EoT]

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows without argument.

EoT

"One question"

Rictavio: "Fire when ready."

Suldae Westwind: she says as she catches up.

"Ah, never mind actually"

*mind

GM: (Marcus is up)

Rictavio: "Well," says Van Richten.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hey I think Marcus isn't doing so well one of the Locks jabbed him and he seems kind of out of it" Henry turns to Suldae for the last part raising an eyebrow in askance

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus and Henry are both at 15; can you drop Henry above Marcus on the init?)

Rictavio: "Now we know where the tiger is."

GM: (In that case, Henry is up)

Rictavio: "Damn, I should have brought a wolf steak. We could have lured it back to the cart."

Suldae Westwind: "I can make friends with it," Suldae says.

She pauses and clarifies: "With a spell"

Marcus Veranius: "Anyone got a bucket? Vistani soup might work..." Marcus groggily chimes in."

-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry draws his sword but holds it low while raising his shield "Let me take a look first.."
-  Sulda Westwind: "Not sure if it'll be enough to make it actually do what I say though"
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches the tent carefully
-  Rictavio: "Well, it's better than nothing. The tiger's bloodlust should already be sated, we're approaching it while it's resting after the gorge. Odds are good it won't try to attack."
-  Sulda Westwind: "I would say the biggest problem is that we don't have the cart..."
"On the other hand, it's not like we don't have lots of other carts?"
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pulls the tent flaps aside with his sword and takes a look inside

The tiger -- which is twelve feet from nose to tail, and six feet tall at the shoulder, and covered in intricate metal armor, stares at Henry patiently with huge, yellow eyes.

-  Sulda Westwind: (WHAT THE FUCK)
-  Rictavio: "Did I mention its armor?"
"And the sabreteeth?"
-  Sulda Westwind: "No," Sulda says with forced patience. "No, you did not."
-  Marcus Veranius: "I think I remember the teeth actually. Armor's a nice touch."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "Rictavio what the fuck is this?" Henry all but shouts trying to watch the tiger for any signs of attack
-  Sulda Westwind: (dont shout at the wild animal come on) (tho this is ooc lmao)
-  Rictavio: "His name is Boris, and don't make any sudden movements or loud noises. If he feels threatened, he'll eat you."
"Well, kill you. Probably not eat you."
"He prefers wolf meat, as stated previously."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "I swear I'll haunt you if this thing kills me" Henry hisses while backing of EoT
-  Marcus Veranius approaches behind Henry and peeks over his shoulder
-  Rictavio: "You wouldn't be the first!"
-  Sulda Westwind: Sulda rolls her eyes silently. She hopes this is a joke, but she wouldn't be surprised
-  Marcus Veranius: "Well, good luck with that." Marcus gently places his weapon on to the ground so the tiger could feel less threatened
[EoT]
-  Rictavio: Van Richten shoulders his crossbow and grasps his cane firmly with both hands. He approaches cautiously. "Hello, Boris. There's a good kitty. You want some nice, juicy wolf meat? I know where we can get some. All you have to do is come home with old Rictavio, and I'll -- " He is interrupted by a gut-curdling roar. The Tiger takes a swipe at the air and raises its hackles menacingly.

"Now now, Boris. You know that's rude. Don't embarrass me in front of the nice people, just come along now, there's a good kitty..."

He approaches slowly, one even step at a time.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "the great tiger tamer Rictavio everyone" Henry whispers to himself

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE Armored Saber-Toothed Tiger <hr/> Initiative: 8
--

Van Richten's ears turn red but he ignores Henry.

(To GM):

CHARISMA Rictavio <hr/> Ability: 6
--

Rictavio:

CHARISMA Rictavio <hr/> Ability: 11

The Tiger looks over the group of strangers crowding at the entrance of the tent. Its yellow eyes fix on Van Richten, and all too late he realizes his mistake.

Rictavio: "Oh, bugger..."

The Tiger crouches low, ready to pounce...

Rictavio: [EoT] -- Suldae is up

Suldae Westwind: "I don't think my spell can help with this," Suldae murmurs, watching the interaction. Well, maybe it could if she were willing to risk her life to intercede between van Richten and the tiger he'd taught to eat people and apparently earned no favor with, but she does not have particularly much inclination to.

She takes out her crossbow and comes closer.

She shoots with a regular bolt.

19

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

7

Piercing

(Well, she's willing to intercede to put down the beast, just not to help Ricardo make friends with it again)

The Tiger roars!

GM: [EoT?]

Suldae Westwind: (oh yeah sorry)

Enraged, and unable to tell where the pain came from, the Tiger lunges at Rictavio!

Rictavio:

CLAW Armored Saber-Toothed Tiger
Attack: 16 26
Damage: 13 + 8 slashing

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh boy)

Suldae Westwind: the tiger doesn't have advantage right?

GM: No, sorry about that

Rictavio: "AAARGH!" Van Richten yells, barely managing to keep his feet as the tiger surges forward and mauls him with its claws! Several buttons skitter across the floor and his waist-coat now sports four parallel slash-marks.

GM: (Henry is up)

You hear the scream of a horse on the western side of camp. Suldae recognizes it as a scream of unholy terror.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the Tiger with his longsword before he registers the scream

18

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11
Slashing

1
Brute

9

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7
Slashing

4
Brute

25

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12
Slashing

1
Brute

(extra attack and a missclick)

The first blow slices into the beast's armor, but the second glances off with a shower of sparks!

At the same time, the horses surrounding the camp begin to stampede, heading southwest!

Marcus Veranius turns towards the horses and freezes

GM: (Do you want to move?)

Marcus Veranius: "UNDEAD COMING!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I wanted to shield bash the tiger)

Anyone outside the tent looking towards the source of the sound would see four zombies shambling out of the treeline. More seem to be coming from inside the forest.

Marcus Veranius draws a second crossbow and moves to fire shots into the approaching horde

Suldae Westwind: (man, we could really use Rei Morgana's company about now XD)

Marcus Veranius: (Action, bonus action, action surge)

Suldae Westwind: (my 4e sorceress with a radiant damage area at-will attack)

Marcus Veranius:

13

17

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

18

24

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

13

10

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

26

21

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

10 | 20
120
Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius
7
Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (damn nice)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (the poison really puts a damper on it tho)

Marcus Veranius: >Takes sharpshooter

Suldae Westwind: (yes, well, nice for a poisoned guy)

Marcus Veranius: >Still at disadvantage at long range

GM: (You can still use your shield bash @Henry -- it's a bonus action)

(Also, Marcus, all of those shots hit.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how do I do that than)

GM: (Just describe it)

Suldae Westwind: (even the nat 1 ones?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (no what do I roll for it)

18

Shield Shove (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

(found it)

Marcus Veranius fires bolts towards the zombies, switching targets when one falls to the next in line. He's not sure if there's a horde or a if its the haze from poison playing tricks.

GM: (Damn those were nat 1s, weren't they? I forgot how high your attack bonus was -- the Nat 1s do miss, unfortunately)

Rictavio:

STRENGTH Armored Saber-Toothed Tiger <hr/> Ability: 6

Henry of Willowsbrook: (if that worked I should slow the kitty down some)

Three of Marcus's shots together take down one of the approaching zombies, and the other two shots skip wide, missing their targets. At the same time, nearer at hand, Henry bashes the Tiger in the face with his shield, knocking it back, away from Van Richten!

GM: [EoT Marcus?]

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Rictavio: "Dammit, Boris! Don't make me hurt you!"

CHARISMA Rictavio <hr/> Ability: 4
--

Suldae Westwind: (HAHAH)

This seems to enrage the Tiger even further.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (he sucks at this)

Rictavio:

SWORD CANE (AS WOOD CANE) Rictavio <hr/> Attack: 12

Damage: 4 bludgeoning

Van Richten swings his cane at the tiger, menacing it to keep it away.

The Tiger watches the motion of the cane almost lazily...

GM: [EoT -- Suldae, you're up]

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around. "Marcus, I think we should handle the tiger and scam, these undead don't look like we could handle them... that's what I think at least."

There shouldn't be any more people here outside Vallaki who aren't Strahd's, right?

She shoots again.

24

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
 Suldae Westwind

6
Piercing

(EoT)

Her shot sticks beneath a piece of the Tiger's armor, finding flesh.

The Tiger suddenly moves to the back of the tent, still facing Van Richten. It crouches on its haunches...

Marcus Veranius: "We're not leaving Rictavio's tiger for the undead!"

POUNCE: If the tiger moves at least 20 feet straight toward a creature and then hits it with a claw attack on the same turn, that target must succeed on a DC 14 Strength saving throw or be knocked prone. If the target is prone, the tiger can make one bite attack against it as a bonus action.

The Tiger pounces!

Suldae Westwind: "You know, that's a good point," Suldae acknowledges.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (it has disadvantage right
"We might not get much of a choice in the matter"

Rictavio:

BITE
Armored Saber-Toothed Tiger

Attack: 23

Damage: 9 piercing

STRENGTH
Rictavio

Ability: 15

Suldae Westwind: Bite or claw?

The Tiger sails across the tent, jaws wide open, and tackles Van Richten! Despite his frail figure, Van Richten wrestles it off, but not before its fangs pierce his shoulder.

Rictavio: "Damn it, Boris, you're embarrassing me!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae can't help but giggle. For all her dislike of Van Richten, the man can be funny when he tries.

GM: [EoT]

[Henry, you're up]

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Rictavio can you get him under control or do we have to make this ugly?"

Rictavio: "I've got this!" Van Richten insists. He doesn't have it.

Marcus Veranius: "Just knock it out! We can deal with Boris later!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the tiger again hoping wounds will help cow it

17Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook13
*Slashing2
*Brute22*Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook10
*Slashing4
BruteMarcus Veranius: (You can declare a melee attack to be non-lethal if it ends up a finishing blow)Suldae Westwind: (But do we really want to?)With two swift blows, Henry ends the combat. (Lethal or non-lethal?)Henry of Willowsbrook: (we don't really have a way to get an unconscious giant tiger back with us)Suldae Westwind: "This is a fucking man-eating tiger!" Suldae adds her 5 centsMarcus Veranius: "It's the closest thing Richten has to family! I won't forgive it."Suldae Westwind: "His family seems to not have much fondness for him!" Suldae calls back.Marcus Veranius: "Neither do my in-laws!"Suldae Westwind: "It's a fucking man eating tiger!"

"And one that he has proven to not be able to keep under control!"

Marcus Veranius: "Still rather it than the in-laws. Get it in the wagon and I'm grab a horse!"Henry of Willowsbrook: (non lethal) "FUCK Marcus a net please"The final blow is a pommel to the head. The Tiger drops, unconscious.A dull moaning begins to fill the air. It sounds like a horde...Suldae Westwind: "A wagon is good thinking!"

"The tiger's heavy though, do we really have time to drag it up there?"

"Ric, you know what you just failed to do? You failed to make the GIANT MAN EATING TIGER obey you!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Rictavio we'll carry it to a wagon, Suldae get a horse and Marcus please keep them away from us" away

Rictavio: Van Richten's expression has grown quite cold. "Leave the undead to me."

"Get Boris in a wagon."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. She can tell when she's been outvoted.

Marcus Veranius: (Yo, question)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Fine lets just move

Marcus Veranius: (Are these cows hitched to a post?)

GM: (Those are horses, but they're just painted to the map -- they're not really there)

Marcus Veranius: (RIP)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius attempts to net one of the horses; you're being conscripted!

Marcus Veranius:

28

15

15

Net (+9)

Marcus Veranius

A Large or smaller creature hit by a net is Restrained until it is freed. A net has no effect on creatures that are formless, or creatures that are Huge or larger. A creature can use its action to make a DC 10 Strength check, freeing itself or another creature within its reach on a success. Dealing 5 slashing damage to the net (AC 10) also frees the creature without harming it, ending the effect and destroying the net. When you use an action, Bonus Action, or Reaction to Attack with a net, you can make only one Attack regardless of the number of attacks you can normally make.

>A restrained creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>Attack rolls against the creature have advantage, and the creature's Attack rolls have disadvantage.

>The creature has disadvantage on Dexterity Saving Throws.

Marcus successfully nets himself a horse!

Marcus Veranius: "I have so many carrots and oats if you just don't fight this. Please!"

[EoT]

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Rics turn right?)

Rictavio:

HAND CROSSBOW*RictavioAttack: 14*Damage: 3 piercing + 4 piercingHAND CROSSBOWRictavioAttack: 10*Damage: 6 piercing + 8 piercing

Van Richten moves to the edge of the camp, raises his crossbow, and looses two bolts in quick succession. His fancy crossbow seems to load itself!

One of the zombies takes a bolt in each eye, perfectly aimed.

GM: (Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind: "Ric, you need backup or should I go help Marcus with the horse?"

Marcus Veranius: "Take over with the horse so I can help Ric!"

"Do the bard thing!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and goes up to the horse

(ran)

(EoT)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We'll take the fancy wagon, the one without corpses"

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE*ZombieInitiative: 0*INITIATIVEZombieInitiative: 10*INITIATIVEZombieInitiative: 4*INITIATIVEZombieInitiative: 2*INITIATIVEZombie*

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE
Zombie

Initiative: 16

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE
Zombie

Initiative: 11

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry ties up the tiger as best he can unwilling to deal with it when it wakes back up and carries/drags it towards the formerly padlocked cart

GM: (Make an Athletics check)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Unfortunately, the tiger proves too heavy for one person to lift alone!

He is able to drag it to the cart, but not to lift it in.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (damn) "I need some help getting him in!"

EoT

Marcus Veranius: "Rictavio; you help with Boris! I'll cover you!"

Rictavio: "Damn!" Van Richten snaps.

He runs back to Boris.

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus fell off the init somewhere)

GM: (It's your turn, Marcus -- fixed it)

Marcus Veranius moves to where Richten was and continues firing upon the undead

Marcus Veranius:

15

29

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

5

Piercing

13

12

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

5
Piercing

10		25
120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius

6
Piercing

He attempts to ward them off by being scarier than they are

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

4
Bonus Damage

[Menacing Attack]
Marcus Veranius

When you hit a creature with a weapon attack, you can expend one superiority die to attempt to frighten the target. You add the superiority die to the attack's damage roll, and the target must make a Wisdom saving throw [DC 14]. On a failed save, it is Frightened of you until the end of your next turn.

>A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight.

>The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.

3
Bonus Damage

[Menacing Attack]
Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius: (Well, wards ONE of them off)

Rictavio:

WISDOM
Zombie

Ability: 10 | 18

Henry of Willowsbrook: (mindless undead crits the Wis check lmao)

Rictavio:

CONSTITUTION
Zombie

Ability: 13

The first zombie drops, shot through the brains. The second zombie takes the powerful shot in the chest, and finds itself suddenly afraid of Marcus!

Marcus Veranius: Buy some time; it's all Marcus can do. Damn that poison; he could have taken them all down with a steady hand...

[EoT]

Rictavio: "I'll help!" Van Richten says, irritably. "Come on, now!"

(Re-attempt the Athletics check with advantage, Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

11

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

21

13

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Even together, the tiger proves too heavy to lift.

Rictavio: "Dammit, Boris! How many Vistani did you eat!?"

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae refrains from yelling at the men to just kill it, since the mental image of the same tiger now also undead is too vivid in her mind.

Instead she focuses on the horse.

Animal Friendship
Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A beast that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A morsel of food)

Duration: 24 hours

This spell lets you convince a beast that you mean it no harm. Choose a beast that you can see within range. It must see and hear you. If the beast's Intelligence is 4 or higher, the spell fails. Otherwise, the beast must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or be charmed by you for the spell's duration. If you or one of your companions harms the target, the spells ends.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can affect one additional beast for each slot level above 1st.

Wis saving throw for the horse?

Rictavio:

WISDOM
 Draft Horse

Ability: 15 | 16

GM: (Not with advantage, stupid thing)

(It rolls a 15)

Suldae Westwind: and my spell DC is... hold on a sec...

15

does that mean success or failure on a saving throw?

GM: (Give me some good RP and we'll say it failed)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kneels near the horse, taking out the ocarina. She closes her eyes and leads a wistful, lulling melody that seems to erase the presence of undead and all the threats. She matches the rhythm to the horse's movemens and slightly slows down, leading the beast to calm down with the song and listen.

The horse, standing beneath the entangling net, seems to calm down. It begins to chew.

Suldae Westwind: After the horse calms down, Suldae puts away the ocarina but continues humming the same melody as she attempts to untangle it from the net

(can I do this the same turn)

Its ears flick back and forth, listening for threats. It allows her to remove the net, and remains standing in place, focused on her, ignoring the zombies.

Suldae Westwind: (does it have reins?)

The horse is wearing bit and bridle, reins and a saddle.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes the reins and heads back to the cart.

(with the no longer netted horse)

She is still humming.

(EoT)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (this. horse. is on fire-ahhh)

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tries agin to lift Boris the fatcat into the cart

GM: (Also, that's just me playing with an API script. That's the charm effect, I'll probably change it to be less flamey)

Suldae Westwind: (i love that look)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (advantage?)

Rictavio assists Henry in his endeavor (roll with advantage)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9		15
ATHLETICS (7) Henry of Willowsbrook

Together you manage to heave the heavy tiger into the cart. It just barely fits. When it wakes, it will not have room to turn around.

Rictavio: "Sorry for the inconvenience, Boris, but I'm saving your life. Whether you're grateful for it or not."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry closes the wagon door and moves to the front of the wagon to help with the horse when it arrives EoT

Marcus Veranius: Marcus fires shots into the uncharmed zombie, giving the horse more cover

24		29
120
Hand Crossbow (+9) Marcus Veranius

6
Piercing

16		15
120
Hand Crossbow (+9) Marcus Veranius

7
Piercing

14		15
120
Hand Crossbow (+9) Marcus Veranius

9
Piercing

Rictavio:

CONSTITUTION Zombie
Ability: 7

With three shots he is able to drop the not-frightened Zombie.

Marcus Veranius retreats to the leader cart

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Rictavio circles around to the front of the wagon and fires at the more distant zombies.

Rictavio:

HAND CROSSBOW Rictavio
Attack: 12

Damage: 5 piercing + 8
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 7

Damage: 3 piercing + 7
piercing

"Damn," he mutters, as the second crossbow bolt flies wide.

GM: (EoT -- Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae leads the horse to the cart and hitches it, still humming calmly.

She hops on the driver's seat.

(EoT)

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gestures for Suldae to move over and letting him steer the wagon

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gladly lets him take over.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes the driver seat and eyes the hill side warily. Passing the other wagons seems unlikely "this is going to be a bumpy ride I fear"

Marcus Veranius: "Bumpier if we don't move before the undead arrive!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "GET ON BOYS WE'RE LEAVING" he bellows turning the wagon to face downhill turning

Rictavio: "Yes, they have a tendency to foul the wheels," says Van Richten, adding to Marcus's comment.

GM: (We can break initiative to jump on the cart, if we so desire)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Liliet is gone)

Marcus Veranius runs for the center tent to pick up his dropped crossbow, then clings on to the wagon's back

Rictavio leaps nimbly up onto the driver's bench, which is luckily wide enough to accommodate three.

Rictavio: "Go!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry doesn't wait a second longer than he needs to and orders the wagon down the hillside

GM: (Make a check with your land vehicles proficiency)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

19

13

Vehicles (Land) (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

whoops sorry

roll again?

With a practiced hand, Henry guides the horse down the slope. The wheels bump and rattle down the hill, and within a few seconds you are on the track, riding back north towards the main road.

GM: (For defeating the tiger, and some zombies, take 250 XP.)

(And just like that, it's time for the session to end. Looks like Suldae passed out, it's late on her side of the world)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (each?)

Gm: (Each)

Marcus Veranius: (Perhaps now we will be able to rest and read our skill books)

You make it back to the west gate just before sunset. The guards give you no difficulties.

Van Richten insists on taking the Tiger back to the stockyard and installing it in its own cart once again. It seems he paid the two stockyard keepers to repair the cart door in your absence.

Marcus Veranius: At five times a decent fee. Marcus tips his hat to Rictavio's loss

Henry of Willowsbrook: oh she's back

Liliet (Suldae): v

(opera AND discord crashed)

(here's what I was typing when they did)

(after the 'bumpy ride' remark)

"I have a spell for that," Suldae notes. She's aware casting it on a rolling wagon is somewhat questionable, but things tend to come loose first before falling apart altogether, and as long as that doesn't happen, she figures she can manage.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (keep going or end for now?)

Liliet (Suldae): (now let me read what i missed lmao)

(sorry)

Marcus Veranius: (If we do keep going, there's something important Marcus would like to address)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'm up for more)

Liliet (Suldae): (I'm back)

(dammit missed the opportunity for a fun use of Suldae's Mending)

(wagons break :))

(I was going to keep it from breaking)

(o well)

Marcus Veranius approaches Suldae as they're loading Boris into the wagon. His face is stern, and more stable now that the poison has worn off.

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae; I want you to apologize to Rictavio."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (could we move our tokens into town?)

GM: (I have to leave here, I'm afraid, but you are welcome to continue with RP -- you have the next 6 in-game days to study your books uninterrupted, so this next period can pass without much intervention from me. Just play nice! :D)

(We will pick up next week after you've all "studied", six days later)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (damn I wanted to look over our loot wagon but oh well)

Liliet (Suldae): "And I want Rictavio to apologize to the dead he's made and then insulted," Suldae answers quietly, "yet it seems we must both go unfulfilled."

Marcus Veranius: (We can get details on that later. Dibs on the chair)

Marcus Veranius stands firm, and looks Suldae in the eyes.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae matches his gaze.

Marcus Veranius: "I released the tiger."

Liliet (Suldae): "You what."

Marcus Veranius: "Food and alcohol turns to bile once it touches my cursed lips. I snuck out after 'passing out' and smashed the door open."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stiffens "could we have this talk somewhere less open"

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae looks at the stranger in front of her. Oh, they'd only known each other for a couple of days, she knew that intellectually. Yet there was a set of presumptions she was prone to making about people she met.

Suldae waks off to the side, where passerby should not be able to overhear, motioning the others to come with her.

"Hadn't we already agreed to release it, should everything be confirmed?" she asks calmly.

Marcus Veranius follows Suldae to the side

Marcus Veranius: "We knew that camp held the bandits that attacked us on the bridge. We knew they were working for Strahd. We knew their removal would make Strahd blind to Ireena's presence."

Liliet (Suldae): "We knew nothing about the rest of these people, Marcus," Suldae says quietly.

Marcus Veranius: "The only thing unconfirmed was that Rictavio held the info, and he has done NOTHING, and I mean ABSOLUTELY NOTHING to warrant distrust."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows both keeping an eye out fo listeners so the two could focus on their talk

Liliet (Suldae): "Luckily for you, I did confirm there were no other Vistani in town. I don't recall telling you so, though."

Marcus Veranius: "In fact, he's saved our asses twice now."

Liliet (Suldae): "I do not understand why you could not wait for half a day."

Marcus Veranius: "We have divine prophecy and first hand account to confirm Rictavio as a good man, yet still you hold Strahd's vistani minions as of higher value than your ally."

"FURTHERMORE, the tiger only became a problem after YOU attacked it first!"

Liliet (Suldae): "I do not assign people "values", Marcus," Suldae says calmly. "The value of a life is universal, and it's true that sparing some lives leads to greater losses, yet this judgement must never be made in haste, and never in bigotry."

"The tiger was readying to pounce. I was helping protect the very ally you're so firey in defense of."

Marcus Veranius stamps his foot down. "Spare me the moral compass, yee who would defend our enemies and strike down the closest thing a man has to their child."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "She's right it was already poised to attack" Henry calmly states

Liliet (Suldae): "And divine prophecy confirmed that Rictavio is an ally, not that he is a good man. I do not dispute he is, merely pointing out the mix-up you seem to have going on there"

"A man eating fucking tiger is not a child, Marcus"

Marcus Veranius: "Did you forget how Rictavio has nothing but that tiger?"

"Or does the 'all life is valuable' only apply to people?"

Liliet (Suldae): "Judging from the tiger's reaction to him, he did not treat it very well."

"Oh, and judging from the relative size of the tiger and that wagon."

"I do hold sentient beings' lives to be inherently more valuable, yes." Suldae stares right in his eyes. Her certainty in this much is calm and implacable. "Even if they were not, a man-eating tiger that does not obey its handler's orders and tries to kill them when set loose is the definition of "some lives lead to more losses when spared"."

"I will not contest the decision now that it has been made, and I will not sneak away to kill the tiger in the night"

"Since unlike you, I am capable of respecting group agreement,"

For the first time, annoyance audibly creeps into her voice.

Marcus Veranius frowns.

Marcus Veranius: "Let me speak plainly."

"I share Rictavio's pain in losing everything, down to wife and child."

"If I were to trust my soul to any person in this cursed land, it is to him and ONLY to him."

"Any further slight you make to Rictavio and to his tiger is a slight to me as well."

"I will not be moved on this."

Liliet (Suldae): "I wonder who Strahd has lost," Suldae says quietly, staring him in the eyes.

"Did you know, Marcus, that a reason is not an excuse?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tilts his head to look at the setting sun

"It has been a long day don't you think?"

Liliet (Suldae): "It has," Suldae agrees quietly. "I recall Rictavio saying he was holding out for confirmation of his intelligence himself, by the way. Did you remember that?"

"We'll never know now, I think, how many innocents there were in that camp."

"However many, their deaths are on you."

Marcus Veranius remains firm. "Then their blood remains on my hands alone, and you shall blame no one else."

Liliet (Suldae): She turns around, nods to Henry and walks back to the tavern.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He flatly looks at Suldea "I won't mourn them you know"

Liliet (Suldae): At least it does appear that Rictavio did not leave his wagon unsecured.

Suldae shrugs. She's well aware of the ways of bigotry.

Another stranger. Another person she's made more presumptions about than had been warranted.

She'll learn from this.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Anger boils in him at the dismissal but he bites it down

Marcus Veranius turns to Henry, allowing Suldae to walk off. "I'm going to spend the evening at the church. Give the others my best wishes."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods "I'll go rest up" leaving for his room

GM (GM): Good morning!

Liliet (Suldae): mooorn :3

aw, never did rp that Suldae/Henry interaction

GM (GM): It's not too late :)

Liliet (Suldae): t h a t m i g h t b e t r u e

Zanshuken: heyho

GM (GM): Howdy hi

Liliet (Suldae): eyyy

Henry of Willowsbrook: wanna do that Interaction now Liliet?

Liliet (Suldae): sure :D

so when everyone comes back from their wild night out, giving treasure to the poor and whatnot, Suldae and Ireena are sound asleep together, on the same bed but fully clothed

Henry of Willowsbrook: (keep telling yourself that ;p lul)

Suldae Westwind: (thats totally what everyone sees, what happened before that remains veiled by darkness)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena is sleeping with one hand tightly gripped on Suldae's arm.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry, his head hurting like almost never before, approaches the door the others had told him holds their other companions

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has wrapped herself around her like a vine like a very cuddly cat

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry quietly knocks on the Door wincing as it is louder than he intended Suldae Westwind: Suldae, snapping out of the trance, looks up. She checks the situation and decides they're decent enough.

"C'min", she mumbles. Her head has cleared a little, but only a little.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena continues to sleep, snoring very quietly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry knocks once more his human hearing unable to hear mumbelig across a room and through a door hearing not haeting

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena starts moaning feebly as she tries to stay asleep.

Suldae Westwind: "Come in," Suldae says louder and more clearly, hoping her voice does not wake Ireena up.

She sits up, carefully leaving her arm in Ireena's grasp.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry slowly pushes open the door leaning on it and taking in the scene he mentally decides never to think and comment on

"Suldae can I have a Moment please?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and, upon contemplating the scene for a moment, points to the unoccupied bed next to theirs with the free hand.

Then she puts her finger to her lips and nods towards Ireena.

"A very quiet moment," she murmurs at what she estimates to be audible-to-humans volume

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry weighs the options before nodding in direction of the hall "Out here? It should be quieter"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae shakes her head and points at where Ireena is holding her arm.

She's sitting with her knees under her on the bed, behind Ireena from Henry's perspective

"We can talk," she murmurs slightly louder, just quieter than Henry was knocking.

(the awkwardness is thick like butter and I love every second of it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry heaves a small sigh before fully stepping into the room. Closing the door he first leans against it before sliding down and sitting on the floor

Sulda Westwind: "Are you alright?" Suldae asks quietly.

She's seeing what might just be a drunken headache. Or more than that.

(To Marcus Veranius): You come to the sudden realization that you are, in fact, conscious, and that Van Richten has been talking to you for the last few minutes. You are in his room. He's still extremely drunk.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his with a weak smile "Long night"

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten bursts into a cackling laugh. "Did you see Milivoj's face though? Poor boy thought he had actually been visited by an angel!"

(To Marcus Veranius): "Oh, we did a good thing tonight, I feel certain of it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He fishes a canteen out from his belt taking a deep drink of water before offering it to Suldae

(From Tops K.): Marcus thinks, but can't remember anything past stumbling out of the tavern. Given Rictavio's account, things went well!

Sulda Westwind: (Suldae is on the opposite end of the room from him fyi)

(there's a table and a row of beds between the door and the far wall, and they're on the far bed)

(From Marcus Veranius): ...he can't remember WHAT they ended up giving Molovoj for the wagon, but balancing the books was Tomorrow Marcus's job.

Sulda Westwind: (right, I just realized you wouldn't have seen this locale before lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I know gestures are a thing and to him toosing it over to her is a normal thing)

(there should be commas in there)

Sulda Westwind: (gotcha)

(To Marcus Veranius): "I think 'm gonna puke..." Ismark says, burping suddenly. Apparently he's here too.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae contemplates her own dawning headaches and nods gratefully.

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten looks at him like a scientist examining a curious specimen.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He tosses the Canteen gently across the room

(gm I aint seeing jack)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae catches it, splashing a little on herself, and takes a long drink

(From Marcus Veranius): "You're dead AND still have to puke? That's a bum deal! Ask for a discount next time you die." Marcus groggily responds.

From beyond the wall to the west, you hear the sound of someone being violently ill.

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark twists and pukes into the waste basket.

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark burps lightly. "Oh, that's better..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It took me some time to think how I wanted to do this"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lowers the canteen and nods.

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus mumbles complaints about Barovian inflation and now even DEATH ITSELF being cheap. Economy of Barovia is toss; get a new one!

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten is now staring out the window, but it doesn't look like he's seeing anything in the present world.

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten sighs shakily.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Before I and i feel really stupid for taking so long for it remembered you're a bard" Henry says a half smile on his face

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark sighs contentedly and settles back. He's seated on a chest in the corner of the room, and he sets his head against the wall and begins to snore.

(From Marcus Veranius): "And what's your lot then, Richten? What's got you so down that liquor and charity can't free your guilt?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives a half smile in response.

She tosses the canteen back, as gently as she can 20

DEXTERITY (2+1)
Suldae Westwind

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten looks at Marcus. After a moment, he says, "I feel I must do that which is utterly distasteful to me. I find myself in the unfortunate position of owing someone -- in this case, you. What I owe you is an apology."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry catches it deftly "So I came to bring you a story or atleast part of one for now"

(To Marcus Veranius): "I have lied to you. I did this because it was easy, and because it was convenient to the purpose at hand. I did not twist the truth much -- just enough to get you on my side."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, lifting her eyebrows just enough to indicate curiosity.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Taking a moment to gather his thoughts he beginns speaking looking at the ceiling

"there once was a boy for he had grown tall his mind was still filled wtih juvinal wishes for great adventures"

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus blinked. "... accept your apology? You're going to need to be more clear what you're apologizing for though, cause my wit left me a while ago."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae listens quietly, half her attention still on Ireena but the other half solidly on Henry's words.

(To Marcus Veranius): "I do not know if you are ready to hear the truth I hid from you. But to atone for my crime, I feel that I must go on a short journey to one of my nearby safe-houses. I need to be alone, to gather my thoughts. I need time to plan my next move against Strahd. I will be back in Vallaki in a week's time. Get them studying those books. When I come back, it will be to arm you for battle."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He set out his heart freshly broken to fulfill his wishes finding friends and comrades sharing their adventures and heartbreaks"

"and he filled less raw with them, less desperate to flee his old home and live forever"

(From Marcus Veranius): "Well now's a good time to practice; I already forgot the charity trip and I'll likely forget what you say now." Marcus lifted his arm up to give a thumbs up, or at least tried to. The other fingers were being stubborn and wanted to participate as well.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smiles at the ceiling hoping the angle hides the tears in his eyes

(From Marcus Veranius): "...in fact, you ought to write a note for me to find in the morning. Stick a return address there in case things go wrong on your end."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is quiet, no sound from her getting over the muted din from the other rooms.

She is listening.

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten smiles weakly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And then he lost them to, some machinations of a great evil ripping away the scaffolding propping up his heart" Henry's voice is shaky

(To Marcus Veranius): "Don't become me, Marcus. That's the only certifiable wisdom I can give you."

Henry of Willowsbrook: is

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus frowns. "Could have told me before I lost my hair. Don't think I can get a refund on that either." He smirks, offering Rictavio a smile for the road.

(To Marcus Veranius): "The Tower I'll be staying at is a day's journey to the west. It's on a small mountain lake. If things go south in Vallaki, head there. It's something of a safe house."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Night after night his mind returns to them feeding the ghastly feeling that took umbrage in the ruins of his heart, hatred most vile" hatred

Suldae Westwind: Suldae can guess what he's talking about, but isn't sure what to say, so she just nods, knowing he isn't looking at her.

(From Marcus Veranius): "Unless things change, plan's still the same. Go to the werewolf lake, track down a prophecy, get me bit by a bird to buy a few allies. Hopefully it sounds as good a plan sober as it does drunk."

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten smiles. He takes his hat and leaves. Popping back in for a final word, he says: "I'll be taking the Tiger with me. It isn't much, but it needs me. I think we both know how important that is. It's rare to have something trust you enough to need you." He seems to be trying to say something meaningful.

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus smiles in return. "Have a nice evening, Mr. Richten. Good tidings for your trip." The ghoul then proceeded to pass out in his chair, not bothering to leave for his own chambers.

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten looks at the unconscious Marcus and sighs. "I was a good man, once. You're going to have a hard time believing that, when you wake up."

(To Marcus Veranius): Van Richten snatches his journal up from the desk and hastily scrawls a note inside it. He stuffs the note into Marcus's breast pocket, then leaves.

Rictavio: You hear footsteps moving down the hall outside the door, then descending the staircase.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Under some circumstances some of those responsible for his most recent loss die and for a moment he hopes the Hatred would weaken and cease devouring his mind but it didn't" Henry turns to look at Suldae now his tears streaming down his face

Suldae Westwind: Suldae ignores the sound. Someone's always coming and going here, it's an inn.

Also she has a strong impression she's needed here as a cleric of Corellon and not as a bard.

She extricates her arm from Ireena's after all, slips off the bed and comes closer, sitting down on the bed right next to Henry.

"I'm not much of an expert," she says quietly. "But I hear a lot of stories, and in all of them, it doesn't help."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena wakes up slowly, flops around amid the bedding for a moment, realizes where Suldae is, and sighs contentedly. She pulls the covers over her head and returns to sleeping.

Suldae Westwind: Well, a cleric of Correllon IS a bard. Her skillset is rather specific.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What would you call such a story? a tragedy, right? The fall of decent man to the darkness of his own heart" Henry breaks up lowering his head in shame

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark snorts himself awake.

Suldae Westwind: "Not necessarily," Suldae says gently and reaches out, hand hovering where he can take it. "It's a story of someone who learns, perhaps, and learns better."

Ismark Kolyanovich: It is audible even though he is in the next room.

Suldae Westwind: "You tried it. It didn't work. You're still alive to try something else, aren't you?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I don't want to fall." He whispers

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark hops to his feet, greets the morning with a stretch and a satisfied groan, then slaps Marcus on the shoulder. "Come on, old man!"

Suldae Westwind: "You haven't yet," she says gently. Her mind is still somewhat confused, between everything that happened and how little she knows this man, but this she knows. Her learning covers that much.

"You don't want to. That means you haven't."

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark looks down at Marcus, concerned by his apparent coma. He grips Marcus lightly by the shoulders and shakes him. "Yo! Old man! It's daytime!"

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus mumbles. "I aint THAT old! Bollocks...." He remains slumped in his chair. Morning could wait till the morning.

(To Marcus Veranius): Cracking a grin, Ismark says: "Older than I'll ever be! Now get up, we've got stuff to do! I need some cash to go get food for everybody. And coffee! We've got a study session to get started on!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: He raises his head to look at her tears having stopped for now

"I know it might be to much to ask of someone you barely know but..." He stopes taking a deep breath to steady himself "Would you help me, drag me back from the abyss when I need it so that in future they will tell the tragedy of Henry of Willowsbrook" stops

(From Marcus Veranius): Damn undead; he really COULD keep at this for all eternity of he wanted. Damn! Marcus got up, grogilly trying to remember the events of the night before.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (they will never tell damnit)

(From Marcus Veranius): A quick wallet check confirms his coin was still there; that was good news at least. "Alright, I got breakfast money. We'll start there and grab the rest of our bearings along the way."

Suldae Westwind: This is, Suldae is very aware, a lot for a stranger to ask of her, and a lot for her to commit to with a stranger. Too bad that's also exactly her calling, huh?

She slips down from the bed, sits on the floor in front of Henry, her eye level slightly below his because of the size difference.

"It's not much to ask at all," she says quietly. "Watching over what people I'm with do is... it is already what I do."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (GM i stll don't see anything but a black screen)

(To Marcus Veranius): "Hey, don't feel obligated to get up! Just give me, like, 30 gold, and I'll get a spread for us. You can sit here and cool your bunions."

Suldae Westwind: scroll around the room is small

GM (GM): See anything yet?

Henry of Willowsbrook: ah)

(found the room)

Suldae Westwind: (and I just posted the screenshot on discord lmao)

(well more solutions is better than less)

(From Marcus Veranius): "Bollocks, is that what breakfast costs here?" Marcus frowns, pulling the gold from their party's coffers and passing it to Ismark. He remains slumped in the chair since Ismark offered so kindly.

(To Marcus Veranius): Ismark barely contains his giddy laughter until the door closes behind him. He can be heard skipping down the hallway.

Sulda Westwind: "They won't be telling anyone's tragedies on my watch," she says quietly, looking Henry in the eyes.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods, his emotions a maelstrom inside him, "Thank you"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Someone is skipping down the hallway. The skipping stops outside your door. The door swings open. Ismark pops his head in at the door.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae leans back against the bed. "You stay in this tavern too?" she turns her attention to practicalities.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Hey everybody! I'm getting breakfast, any requests? Marcus gave me like a fuckload of cash to blow."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry groans having just taken a door to the back

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oh! Sorry dude. Henry, right?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae frowns at Ismark in annoyance. It's already morning? That does explain why she feels fairly rested, but...

They were having a private conversation.

Oh well.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No the guards gave me a room as pay for training

(To Marcus Veranius): You hear the sound of Ismark shouting "a fuckload of cash to blow."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stands up slowly his body reminding him of the nights drinking "Breakfast sounds lovely"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae stands up as well, and waking her body up bounds over bed after bed until she's over Ireena

She lightly touches her shoulder, still marvelling at being allowed to.

"Good morning," she murmurs gently in her ear.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena comes out of the sheets. Her hair is a black tousle. Puffy-eyed, she smiles at Suldae and stretches.

"Morning."

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus's eyes shoot open, the morning bringing back some senses. A quick calculation brought dread to his face; 30 gold is 3 plat. That's more than double the combined total of the tipping war!

(From Marcus Veranius): He stumbles out of the chair and charges for the main bedroom

Sulda Westwind: Suldae's own hair is something of a bird's nest, though it's obedient enough that a few brushes with Suldae's new hairbrush - in her bag which she picks up - are enough to set it right.

She offers the brush to Ireena.

Ireena Kolyana: She reaches out a hand. A book on the table is suddenly wrapped in a bluish glow as a spiritual hand grasps it. The book shoots across the room and into Ireena's hand. She pops it open at random and flicks through it. "So, what are our plans today?"

Distracted by the brush, she says "Ooh, pretty," and takes it.

She begins smoothing her hair with it methodically.

Marcus Veranius: ".....noooo yooooU DOOONT!" Marcus barges into the bedroom, eyes glaring daggers at Ismark.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Gah!! Hi Marcus!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pulls the door clearing his throat "Good morning I don't believe we've meet yet I am Henry"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I, uh, I was going to give you the change!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Hi Henry. I'm Ireena."

Marcus Veranius: "I didn't realise you intended to buy breakfast for the entire country with THREE PLATINUM!"

He frowns hard. The inflation in this country was bollocks, but not nearly THAT bad!

GM (GM): The sound of the words "Three Platinum" echoes throughout the inn.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He took it while you were still asleep?" Henry asks Marcus sardonically

GM (GM): Someone breaks a glass.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "No! I would never!"

"He gave it to me!"

Marcus Veranius: "Parting coin from a man fighting a hangover is quite the gift, isn't it?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Noting the sound of broken glass Henry muses "Might have been wise not to shout that so early"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus continues to frown, dropping down into a new chair.

"It came from the party coffer box; not my wallet. If you want to spend a fifth of our coin on breakfast be my guest."

Itl only hurt Marcus on the inside, not the outside.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is smiling, listening to them bicker as she smooths down her own clothing to make it looks slightly less obvious that she slept in it.

Ireena Kolyana: "So do you think we'll have time to study those books now?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head fondly being reminded of his family when his aunt and uncles where around

"What books?" Henry asks tilting his head

Marcus Veranius: Marcus nods towards Ireena in response to the comment. "Rictavio's off to plan his next move, and relocate the tiger if this note in my pocket is to be believed."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well, I was born rich. I don't know what things cost!"

Marcus Veranius: "He'll be back in a week, ready to arm us for our wolf cave trip."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gently extricates her own out from the bag and hugs it with unfeigned affection (a gesture that would be familiar to Ireena by now). She can feel it pulsing with its connection to the Weave, ready to become hers, and between the book and Ireena being next to her it's very hard for her to think about the world outside the room.

"The books, yes," she says.

"We need to study up!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wolf cave? You know what forget I asked2

Suldae Westwind: "No, we actually do need to discuss this in detail," Suldae notes, forcefully ripping her mind away from just here and now.

Marcus Veranius: "We've got a week to fill you in; worry not." Marcus remarks. Plenty of room between constant reading

Danika: "Hello! I heard somebody wanted breakfast. Not to worry, it's from a donor! Lady Fiona Wachter sends her regard."

The lady of the house is standing in the hallway with a cart covered in fine silver trays. There is a definitive feather/raven motif to the tea set and the trays and cutlery.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at Danika, wary - not of her, but of what her words imply.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry "...I'm not eating that" he looks to the others to see if they share the sentiment

Suldae Westwind: Politics. Fucking politics. As a bard she knows only too well what kind of story she isn't interested in being in, and this is it.

"I doubt she's out to poison us," Suldae offers.

Ireena Kolyana: "It would be rude not to accept. Thank you, Danika! I'm sure your cooking is excellent as ever."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus takes a break from his ranting of coin to take a note at the breakfast arrangement. This was half what he was expecting of Ismark's 30 gold breakfast arrangement.

Suldae Westwind: "Refusing draws us into these games more than accepting, I think," Suldae shares what little expertise she has.

Marcus Veranius: "Oh my, I must accept. Give my sincere thanks to our humble patrons." Marcus offers a bow to Danika, reading the unspoken message in their cutlery

Suldae Westwind: "And Danika's cooking is too good to waste."

She nods to the woman as well.

Danika: Blushing, Danika pushes the cart gently in through the doorway and lays the trays on the table. There is so much food she has to leave the cart as well, to act as a second table.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "forgive me for doubting a Noble would pay for someone else without some kind of ulterior motive"

Marcus Veranius: "Do you know if our patrons would like anything in return for this, like the priest of yesterday? I'd be a poorer man if I didn't offer."

"We intend to be in town for a week. Plenty of time to run an errand or few." Marcus smikes warmly towards Danika

*smiles

Suldae Westwind: Suldea motions Henry over.

"They absolutely want something from us," Suldae says quietly to him when he comes. "The thing is, we don't exactly have the power to stay out of it entirely."

"We're already involved. Though if you leave, you won't be," she adds and looks at him questioningly.

"Disdaining their favors won't have them ignoring us, it'll have them upset at us."

"We don't want that more than we don't want to be in their symbolic debt, I'm pretty sure."

Breakfast consists of: Thick wolf-meat sausages, served with spicy country mustard and hand-made applesauce. Puffy waffles with round scoops of yellow butter and thick, hot, strawberry preserves. Dozens of eggs (poached, deviled, boiled, scrambled, Benedict), strips of wolf bacon, hashed potatoes with sour cream and diced green onions, fresh hot bread, black coffee and black tea with fresh cream and semicrystallized honey, three small pheasants, a fish, and three dusty bottles of Champagne du le Stomp, which has a printed label bearing a winery in the style of a manor house, with wings.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus turns to Suldae, still smiling warmly. "Worry not for this one. I'll vouch for authenticity, if our mystery patron is whom I assume. We've nothing to fear."

Danika: "She did have a letter for you, yes. She already had it sealed when she came in."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs "I know Nobles and their games Suldae" he takes a long look at the food and cutlery "and I won't leave you to deal with them alone no worries"

Danika: Danika hands a sealed envelope to Marcus.

"Enjoy! I've got to get back to the bar."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae piles on a full plate for herself and looks to Irenea for directions on what to get for her.

Danika: leaves.

Marcus Veranius: A letter as well? How quaint! He takes a good look at the seal before anything else; perhaps more important than the contents was the person asking.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles at Henry, slightly blushing. This is the kind of logic she herself employs, and it turns out to be incredibly pleasant when someone else does it to you.

Marcus Veranius: "A note for the future, a merchant's tip. Humble gifts are the first play in a game of diplomacy; we're in such a game with two factions."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry heaves a long sigh "the fish is mine then" he says before filling his plate and sitting down on a chair

Marcus Veranius: "That one would play their hand in return is a good sign. Danika would have intercepted a trap, this I'm sure."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae fetches Irenea food to the bed they were on and sits there with her.

The book is carefully hidden away in the bag again, not to be soiled.

The seal depicts a feline-headed humanoid female with fingers upraised, standing in the middle of an arcane symbol.

Marcus Veranius: ...hmm. Marcus had no idea whose seal this was. Perhaps the Wachter family? Wasn't a feather, so he wasn't too confident in this being the were-ravens.

Using one of the breakfast knives as a makeshift letter opener, Marcus would gently tear open the missive and glance at its contents. The others could enjoy their boon in his stead.

"Dear Sir And/Or Madam.

I have heard of your exploits and your talents from a number of reliable sources, and would like to speak with you about the possibility of an alliance. I am serving a private dinner tonight at Wachterhaus -- my family's manor. I hope to have the honor of serving you within my humble home.

Yours, Lady Fiona Wachter.

Marcus Veranius: A smug grin drew across Marcus's face. He gently folded the letter, passing it to Suldae before finding a plate.

"Miss Wachter has determined we are not a threat, and is interested in sharing her secrets. Mayhaps she thinks we're not a threat after my chat with her boys and her spy."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks over the letter and grins in amusement, passing it to Henry and Irenea - whoever reaches for it first.

"Apparently she does this a lot"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Or we're walking into a trap" Henry calmly adds between bites. The food really was great Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. Not taking Irenea is an obvious suggestion, but she doesn't want to make it.

Marcus Veranius: "I sincerely doubt it. Twas my offer to Miss Wachter that if she want to know of us, to simply invite us into her home. It's the message I left her spy to deliver, and here we are."

Suldae Westwind: It's not that likely it's a trap.

Marcus Veranius: "Better she be upfront than have her agents lurk in our every shadow."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm I just feelled someone had to say it"

Suldae Westwind: "It's probably not a trap," Suldae says and finds Irenea's hand with her own.

Marcus Veranius: "More important than the Wachters, however, is the exact manner in which we treat an unknown faction offering olive branches." Marcus remarks, placing a wolf sausage onto his plate. My my, no expense was spared here.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Taking a moment to consider it "I doubt it aswell but dismissing the possibility has us in for a rough night if it were to be a trap"

Marcus Veranius: "Keep in mind that we're still waiting for the Order of Feathers to extend their hospitality, and they're watching our every move. Even in this inn."

"If we show we are distrustful to a peace offering, what chances are there for they to do the same?"

Sulda Westwind: "We're in for a rough entire-time-left-here if it was not a trap and we treated it as one," Suldae speaks up.

Marcus Veranius: "Put your best foot forward, whether or not you think it's a trap. Be on your best behavior and show we're worthy of holding trust."

Sulda Westwind: "Stick together and we'll be fine," Suldae offers. She feels much more confident in a social dangerous situation than in a house full of vampires, truth be told.

She's not a fan of politics. But she has a few blunt instruments to handle them with, should worst come to worst.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs rolling his eyes " Fine it is not a trap but acting like it never could be one makes us look like morons to potential watchers" watchers

Sulda Westwind: "No, it might be a trap," Suldae elaborates on her point. "We just act like we believe it isn't, while staying entirely on guard so there's not any actual opening more than absolutely necessary"

Ireena Kolyana: "I think he's right. We should consider the possibility."

"If it is a trap, is there any way we can prepare for it?"

Sulda Westwind: "I feel prepared enough," Suldae admits, fingers running over the ocarina she's already picked up from where she'd dropped it last night.

Ireena Kolyana: She looks at her arm ruefully. "Even doors can kill, remember."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus nods. "If it were a gift anywhere but in this inn I'd be inclined to agree. But I hold significant trust in our host to look out for our best interests."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae winces at the reminder.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I do hope our most honored host won't take offence to my coming armed and armored"

Sulda Westwind: "I think the main lesson we should take from that is that we don't fucking separate," she says a bit rougher than intended and gives Marcus a look

"I'm sure that counts as formal clothing," she notes to Henry.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus looks Henry over for a moment. Armor WAS considered formal attire... for a knight. To a mercenary, not so much.

"...pair it with a cloak, polish it. If not a speck of grime is present, it could pass as formal."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If it doesn't she can stick her complains where the sun don't shine" he murmurs to himself

Marcus Veranius: "The distinction is whether you wear it for show or for buisness; you'll want to make it seem the former rather than latter."

GM:

Marcus Veranius: "I, on the other hand, have recently acquired a rather nice piece of noble's fashion from a former-vampire. A bit of dusting and I should be good."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "the old bastard was right I really do appreciate his acting lesons now" Henry sighs

There is a tapping on the window. A large raven is perched on the sill, staring in through the glass.

 Sulda Westwind: "My cloak's formal," Suldae notes, running her hand over it as she wraps it around her shoulders. It hums back to her hand with the magic woven into it

The raven has a rolled-up parchment tied to one leg.

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks at Marcus questioningly. He's the alliances expert now.

 Marcus Veranius: "My my, two letters in one night! How quaint!"

The Raven caws irritably and taps the glass again.

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus makes haste for the window, opening it and freeing the raven from it's binding.

The Raven flies away the moment the letter is removed.

 Marcus Veranius: His eyes turn briefly for one of the sausages. Ravens like sausages, right? Oh... nevermind.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry appraoches taking the parchment

 Marcus Veranius: Marcus surrenders the paper in favor of another breakfast sausage. "I sincerely hope it's not another dinner invitation. We could scarcely afford to ignore either."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae just returns to her food serenely. She needs energy to handle this.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: He chuckels "ever been that lucky?"

The little scroll bears only one sentence: "Lady Wachter worships the Devil Strahd."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Crap" Henry curses before repaeting the message a loud repeating aloud

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae sighs, looking up from the food. "Well, there could be worse ways to find out you're right"

 Marcus Veranius: "...on second thought, me thinks I'll be spending the day refitting those noble clothes to hide leather armor underneath."

 Sulda Westwind: She glances at Ireena apologetically

 Ireena Kolyana: "Well now, wait a minute! How do we know we can trust the ravens?"
"All we had was Rictavio"
"Rictavio's word, excuse me, about that."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Can we afford not to?"

 Ireena Kolyana rubs her chest, surprised by the painful hiccup.

Ireena Kolyana: "All I'm saying is that we need to examine our assumptions."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus considers a moment, looking over Miss Wachter's missive and recalling his own investigations.

Suldae Westwind: "I like the ravens," Suldae says after a few moments, examining her assumptions and finding no better arguments.

"We really have no idea what we're in the middle of, don't we."

Ireena Kolyana: "They warned us away from that tower outside town, remember?"

"And there was that huge stone circle in the woods, with all the ravens circling around it."

"We didn't even get close enough to see it. Maybe that would tell us more about them."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a moment to think on the situation "We could just not go to miss Wachter"

Suldae Westwind: "A raven warned us away from the windmill," Suldae remembers.

Marcus Veranius: After some deliberation, the merchant turned to the girls. "Did Ismark give you his ounce of intelligence yet?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows. "I don't think so?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus leaned in towards Suldae and Ireena, keeping his voice low. "He believes this inn to house the Order of the Feather, with Danika as humble host...if not member herself."

Marcus leaned back into his chair, voice returning to normal volume. "Given that, I'd argue we've been in the Order's good graces for a while now, and have returned them in kind knowingly or otherwise."

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh, in that case... If she wanted to hurt us, she could have done it long ago."

Suldae Westwind: "So basically we kind of already have an alliance," Suldae sums up. "It's arguably better than nothing"

"Yeah, that."

Ireena Kolyana: "That's fair."

Marcus Veranius: "Begrudging, if in secret."

"If we're debating whom to trust, I'd rather birds than nobles any day."

"EXCEPT GULLS! Gulls are a toss."

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, if Lady Wachter really is an ally, not going to her party tonight should be a forgivable offense, right?"

"She can't really fault us, given the circumstances."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "She's a noblewoman. Even a good-intentioned noblewoman can commit murder at a slight."

"And in Vallaki? Land of the wolf steak? I doubt people solve their problems nonviolently out here."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays quiet. She's about all out of opinions, for the moment.

Everyone seems right.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus nods. "More importantly, we can trust you here safely while we address the Wachter's banquet on our own."

Just then, you hear a loud procession in the street. It sounds like a parade.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What now"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces. She really hoped the solution of leaving Ireena locked up while they go do things again would not come up.

Marcus Veranius: Oh bollocks. This better not be a third missive, else Marcus's head would explode from the scheming.

Under threatening skies, a parade of unhappy children dressed as flowers trudges through the muddy streets, leading the way for a group of sorry-looking men and women carrying a ten-foot-diameter wicker ball. The burgomaster and his smiling wife, who holds a sad bouquet of wilting flowers, follow the procession on horseback.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a look out side leaning out the window a bit to get a better view

From here you can watch as the parade passes by, heading southeast toward the main village square. As weary spectators watch from their stoops, the ball is borne to the town square. There, it is hoisted and hung from a fifteen-foot-high wooden scaffold, and townsfolk take turns splashing it with oil. Before the wicker sun can be set ablaze, the sky tears open in a sudden downpour. "All will be well!" cries the burgomaster as he brandishes a sputtering torch and marches defiantly through the rain toward the wicker ball, only to have his torch go out as he thrusts it into the sphere.

A singular laugh erupts from the crowd, audible even from here, drawing the burgomaster's fiery gaze as well as gasps from the townsfolk.

Marcus Veranius: "...bollocks, we missed the festival didn't we?"

"It's gunna take a month for us to get another opportunity."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm not the cultural type I would say we really should chek this out" Henry says uneasy Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays quiet. They have a point, but she's really happy to not be there right now.

"Who laughed?! Who dares to spite me!?" The Burgomaster is shouting on his horse.

"You! Arrest that man!"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: Guards apprehend one of their own, a hapless-looking fellow that you recognize from the west gate.

The scene is tense. The man is dragged before the baron, who stands talking for some time.

Marcus Veranius: "On second thought, let's celebrate our breakfast instead."

Suddenly, the other guards lunge on their companion and bind him with ropes. They give the long end of the rope binding the man's feet to the Baron, who ties it to his saddle.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Marcus "You should get your crossbow I fear we might need it soon"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae watches from the window mutely.

"There we are! Now, for the amusement of all, I shall drag out the spite which blackens the heart of Vallaki!"

Suldae Westwind: She really wishes there was something they could do that wasn't utterly stupid.
Politics. Fucking politics.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not getting involved in this; we worked too hard shielding the town from Strahd only to be kicked out."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena paces to the window. Her skin is crackling with white light.

Suldae Westwind: "I don't think we could meaningfully help," Suldae says tensely.

"Not in the middle of the crowd."

She glances at Ireena hopefully.

Magic sounds good right now.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena what are you doing?"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus squints at the procession, then notices something strange. He checks his notes for a moment then takes a closer look at the crowd.

"Burgomeister, wife. But where is his son?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena reaches out and grasps Suldae's arm. Suldae feels the Weave twisting around the two of them. Ireena points a finger...

WISDOM Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Ability: 3 12
--

Henry of Willowsbrook: "not with them it would seem" Henry mutters "what is this procession for anyway"

The Baron sits straight upright.

The Baron unties the rope.

"Free this man! And let this be a warning to you all! Smile, and all will be well!"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena sighs and stumbles away from the window.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and catches her.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus tilts his head oddly at the burgomeister, then at Ireena, then at the burgomeister with great concern.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What did you do?" He turns to her

Suldae Westwind: (what DID she do? could Suldae tell)

?

18

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks. I really hope no one saw that."

Suldae Westwind: "I doubt anyone was looking here," Suldae tells him.

Ireena Kolyana: "Suggestion. I studied it last night. I cast it through a Message. I don't really have the experience with psychic magic to control someone's behavior like that, but Suldae does. She helped me cast it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Have we ever been that lucky" Henry returns to watch the outside

Ireena Kolyana: Sheepishly, Ireena looks at Suldae. "I took a little of your power to do that, but I couldn't cast both at the same time."

"At least, not without your help."

"I don't think anyone saw; the rain is pretty thick now."

"But if they did... We could be in a host of trouble."

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you," Suldae says with full sincerity.

Ireena Kolyana: "People like this don't understand magic, and they don't like it."

Suldae Westwind: "Feel free to do that anytime"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "you made him do something by force" Henry tersely bites out

Suldae Westwind: (does this cost me a spell slot?)

Ireena Kolyana: "It was that or let the other man get tortured to death. It was warranted. I won't apologize for using the tools at my disposal."

(Yes, already subtracted it)

Suldae Westwind: "Oh no," Suldae says venomously, glancing at Henry, "she forcefully made him not commit an evil act"

"Truly inexcusable, to save a man's life with force"

(ty)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry massages his head the headache from early returning "Thats not what they will see damnit"

Ireena Kolyana: "They saw a fickle madman change his mind."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm gald she saved that man but think what happens if someone noticed you doing it"

You see a flare of purple light from the window of a large mansion on the other side of town. No one else in the village is an any position to notice it, as they are all in the town square.

Ireena Kolyana: "That was a teleportation spell. A failed one."

"Whose house is that!?"

Marcus Veranius: "...you don't suppose that's the Wachter's manor?"

Suldae Westwind: "If one person noticed her doing it, we deal with that. The entire crowd obviously didn't"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...Marcus you should really go get your crossbow"

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not starting a sniper war over the baron's parade!" Marcus harumphs. This burning ball of twigs is what keeps Strahd out of the village; if it stops over a few crossbow bolts then that's a three day window for Strahd to muck about town.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Irenna "do you know what they tried to teleport or where it was supposed to go"

Suldae Westwind: "Doesn't a failed teleport spell tend to spell bad things for the caster?" Suldae asks.

She's trying to remember.

Ireena Kolyana: Her eyes flicker. She mutters and twists the Weave in her fingers. Small sparks and stars of free energy float around her hands.

Suldae Westwind:

22

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana: She mutters continuously, pacing, ritually casting Detect Magic.

At the same time, Suldae's second-hand knowledge of teleportation magic does indicate that a failed teleport is usually lethal or crippling, and sometimes causes planar implosions -- cross-planar shifting, where everything in that space in every plane gets scrambled. That's a rare result, but a known one. If the spell is a failed teleportation circle, on the other hand, the failure of the spell means only that the circle releases a backwash of cosmic energy, spiritually poisoning nearby things, and fails to establish contact with another circle. Circles which fail in this manner usually have to be redrawn from scratch.

Suldae Westwind: "...or not, depending on how they did it," Suldae sighs.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena finishes muttering. "Nothing came or left. The spell failed completely. It feels like a... large teleport spell. Like it was meant to be stable."

Suldae Westwind: "...So we're not so lucky."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Like a gate perhaps.." Henry trails off hoping he is wrong

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses thoughtfully.

"Honestly, I vote we wait and see what happens."

"Teleportation circle, probably"

Ireena Kolyana: "The whole area is humming with astral energy now. It's dangerous just to be in the building."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to that.

"This town is a disaster."

"Better than outside though"

Ireena Kolyana: "It's like the leftovers of some kind of apocalypse," says Ireena.

Suldae Westwind: "That's what you get when you mess with dimensions and get it wrong," Suldae tells her, sighing.

"Fucking wizards, no offense."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus considers the reasons WHY someone would teleport, and double-checks the festival pamphlet he was given. Did the priest manage to change the date? Was this the scheduled parade, or one earlier than expected?

Ireena Kolyana: "None taken."

This seems to be the correct date for the parade, according to the new numbers given to the priest. It seems the Burgomaster listened.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Could they try again somewhere else?"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Ireena Kolyana: "They could try again there. It requires material components to make a teleportation spell that large."

Marcus Veranius: "Say, how do you suppose Strahd snuck into the city back when there was a hole in its defenses?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I'd imagine they have a workshop over there. They're not likely to stop. They may not realize the danger."

Marcus Veranius: "Do you think he entered through the front gate, or did he use magic?"

Ireena Kolyana: "He probably rode his horse," says Ireena.
"It's a Nightmare."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae snickers.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... A noble visit wouldn't be cause for suspicions" Henry says

Marcus Veranius: Marcus's face is less amused by the joke, if it was one. "It's very likely between the unceremonious return of bones and the sudden early festival that Strahd's minions couldn't escape town before the option became unavailable, if not Strahd himself."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lady Wachter entertaining guests regularly" he gestures at the site of the failed spekk spell

Suldae Westwind: Then Suldae remembers what 'nightmare' probably actually means in this context and sobers up.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena smiles. "This is Beucephalus. His steed." She points a finger at everyone in the room, and a flash of an image pulses through your minds. The steed is coal-black and flaming with inner hellfire.

"He can ride across the dreamscape of Barovia on her back, and emerge in hellfire or from the Ethereal plane. While standing near her, he is shielded from all flame."

"She flies across the sky at nights, like a meteor, streaking from place to place -- when he chooses not to travel by his other means."

Suldae Westwind: "So he wouldn't need a teleportation circle," Suldae finishes the thought.

Ireena Kolyana: "He used to come and visit the house on her. But my father's father had a charm around the house, and she could not approach it on her back."

"So yeah. He wouldn't need a teleportation circle." Ireena seems confused and sheepish about suddenly going on and on about Strahd. She tugs at her neck ruff irritably.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What about his minions"

Ireena Kolyana: "His minions can be stopped with boarded windows and a crossbow, or a sword, if need be. Stopping him and stopping the Nightmare are harder things to achieve with the strength of an arm."

Suldae Westwind: "So we really want the town's protections to hold," Suldae notes.

Ireena Kolyana: "He can become a shadow. He can become a mist. He can become any creature of the night."

Suldae Westwind: She squeezes Ireena's hand comfortingly.

Ireena Kolyana: "We have probably already encountered him a few times."
"He likes to know what's going on in his land."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shivers, at that. It does sound likely.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena someone capable of this kind of teleportation could they have noticed your magic trick earlier"

Marcus Veranius: Marcus's eyes roll at the word 'likely'.

Suldae Westwind: They're tangling with something much more powerful than themselves, treading water while barely keeping their heads above it.
"They might have if they were watching us," Suldae tells Henry. "The important thing is that the Baron didn't."

Henry of Willowsbrook: He shakes his head lightly "Just considering that the two things aren't as unconnected as they might seem"

Suldae Westwind: "They seemed unconnected to you?" Suldae asks with a bit more venom in her voice than intended.

"We're being watched."

"We know that."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises a hand palm down "Was the teleportation because of her intervention or because of the festival is what I meant"

Ireena Kolyana: "So we have to decide what to do with our time. If Van Richten is not coming back for a week, we need to make good use of that time."

"A teleportation spell of that kind would have required ten minutes or more just to cast. It's not likely that the spell was started because of my spell."

"Are we going to Lady Wachter's house tonight?"

"Do we want to investigate the windmill and the standing stones?"

"What's our plan for getting into the Order of the Feather?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Is it the magically poisoned house overthere because I'd rather not have diner there then" Henry replies trying to inject some levity

Ireena Kolyana: "Yes, we need to find out whose house that is, too."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus considers. "We ought to entertain the Wachters at the very least; we may learn something of Valakai's upper crust."

Ireena Kolyana: "I can stay here if you think it wise."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I'll stay here too. Gotta keep an eye on my little sis."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Someone should ask Danika she probably knows who lives there"

Ireena Kolyana: "That's smart, I didn't think of that."

"You seemed like you were getting along with her, Marcus."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nearly tells Ireena she'll stay with her then, but common sense takes over. Ireena will be taken care of; it's her companions that'll need her.

She just stays silent, again.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Barowners know everything and more" Henry says lightly

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena squeezes Suldae's hand reassuringly.

Marcus Veranius: "Aye, not a bad idea. And after this Wachter buisness is behind us, we can redouble our efforts in winning an invitation with the feather."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs rolling his shoulders face turning serious" I'll go ask Danika and then get my Stuff" He turns to leave the room "I'll be back shortly"

Danika: Danika informs him that the house belongs to Baron Vargas Vallakovich, Burgomaster of Vallaki

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry makes his way though Vallaki as quietly and unsuspicioisly as possible to his place mulling over the implications of that

Suldae Westwind: (back)

GM (GM): How do you all prepare for the dinner party?

Henry of Willowsbrook: (c we say I got my things and came back already then?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae studies her book and chats idly with Ireena, trying to make herself a little less nervous.

Marcus Veranius: Unless Henry takes the initiative, Marcus will fetch that armor polish he mentioned. It was as good an excuse as any to check the Treasure Wagon stored nearby

GM (GM): (Yes)

Suldae Westwind: (oh lmao Suldae forgot about that already)
(she has a... weird relationship with money)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry then joins Marcus(unknowingly) At the loot wagon then before returning to the Inn then

GM (GM): Treasure. The wagon contains the following items:

A wooden chest containing 1,200 ep (each coin stamped with the profiled visage of Strahd)

An iron chest containing 650 gp

An onyx jewelry box with gold filigree (worth 250 gp) containing six pieces of cheap jewelry (worth 50 gp each) and a potion of poison in an unlabeled crystal vial (worth 100 gp)

A wooden throne with gold inlay and decorative stones (worth 750 gp)

GM (GM): A rolled-up 10-foot-square rug with an exquisite unicorn motif (worth 750 gp)

A small wooden box containing twelve fake potions in stoppered gourds (the Vistani sell these nonmagical elixirs to naive strangers, claiming that they protect against the deadly fog surrounding Barovia)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so we've all return to the Inn then?)
(returned)

GM (GM): (Yes)

(To Suldae Westwind): Subtract 6 hours from the study time of your book

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry setting his armor up to polish it Turns to the others

"Good news I know who Lives in the house now,bad possibly worse news It's the Burgomeister and his family"

Marcus Veranius: "Sounds like he could use a new chair and carpet if his furniture is astral-plagued."
Marcus remarks.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark bursts out laughing.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. Of course it's the worst possible option.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smirks lighty while he starts to polish his armor

Suldae Westwind: "Of course it's the worst possible option," she says out loud.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Could have been someone we hadn't heard of before adding their own brand of complication to the mix"

Suldae Westwind: "That would be better," Suldae argued.

"That wouldn't be the Burgmeister."

Henry of Willowsbrook: He gestures with the piece of cloth he is using "Could have been even worse too"

Marcus Veranius: "Could have been his son." Marcus remarks, donning his noble's clothes and polishing his boots. Had to look his best for the dinner party!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You did say he wasn't with them" Henry says moving on from his breastplare that was shining satisfyingly Suldae Westwind: "Well, it obviously weren't personally him, since he was in the street," Suldae corrected.

"So yeah, maybe his son."

"Let's just hope we weren't noticed from that direction"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods working begining the finnicky work oof polishisng his gauntlets

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena surreptitiously pulls out a small pair of wire-framed glasses and puts them on while she reads her spell books, taking notes in the margins with a raven-feather quill.

"Oh," she says. "There's ink and quill pens in one of the dresser drawers, if anyone needs them."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers her clothes and ends up deciding that her regular outfit - a bard's outfit, that makes her look like a bard - is fine, just the spare one and not the one that she's slept in.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Anything intressting so far?" He asks nodding in direction of the book

Ireena Kolyana:

2
Force

120 feet

Magic Missile

Henry of Willowsbrook: (did she just shoot something as demonstation?)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena raises a hand and three darts of crystalline energy zip from her palm and blow small craters in the wall.

"Whoops! Sorry, I didn't realize that would be quite so destructive."

"Saving that..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gawks at the wall "first I'm not paying for that and second telling us would have been fine2

Marcus Veranius: Marcus blinks at the holes. Oh bother; he'll need to get that repaired before Danika notices.

Ireena Kolyana: "Sorry everybody!"

"I think I can fix this..."

"Suldae, do you know mending?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

She raises her own ocarina and begins playing before anything else is said.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs and moves on to polish his greaves

The wall un-dents itself with a crunching sound, and the torn wallpaper seals itself back into proper shape. When the song finishes, it is impossible to tell any damage had ever occurred.

Ireena Kolyana: "Thank you, Suldae!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns at the magic a question visibly on his mind but he doesn't say anything

Ismark Kolyanovich: "You guys should probably get going. It's about to start getting dark."

Suldae Westwind: "I love this song," Suldae informs everyone, looking at the wall smugly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If someone helps me but this on I'm ready to go" Henry says gesturing to his now brightly shining armor

Marcus Veranius: Marcus offers Henry a hand; best not to be late due to armor.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry with Marcuses help puts it on swiftly straping everything on tightly testing the way it sits and noding satisfied while fixing his sword belt and staping on his shield

"Ready if you are"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes her bag - it is picked to look well with all of her outfits, like part of an ensemble - and just like that, ocarina at her belt, she's ready.

Soon you are all standing just outside the south entrance of the Blue Water tavern. The sky is a riot of orange light in the slow sunset.

Izek Strazni is watching you from the shade of a building just west of you.

He's massaging his right arm as though it pains him. His right hand is clenched and spasming.

He makes no move to approach you but he does not hide his stare, either.

As the light begins to darken, he gives up a pained groan.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus looks him over, eyes on his arm. On second thought, he also could have been in the Baron's estate.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up. What's the moon like right now?

Marcus Veranius: "Looks like all is NOT well." Marcus murmurs to the others. He tips his hat to Izek and focuses on the task at hand.

Suldae Westwind: She also tries to remember what she saw the previous several nights.

The moon is high already, and very nearly full.

Suldae Westwind: "Nearly full, but not full yet," Suldae says out loud.

Marcus Veranius: "...tomorrow's the full moon then. That ought to be fun." Marcus remarks.

Suldae Westwind: "I'm more worried about today," she glances at Izek.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry straightens his back "We should get going. Wouldn't possibly want to be late" He almost succeeds in sounding completely sincere Marcus Veranius: Was this tavern where the Wachters wanted to meet? Strange place for a noble's banquet.

Suldae Westwind: (no, tha'ts where were'e staying)

Suldae tries to remember all she's ever heard about werewolves.

Spy: "This way, follow me!" Ernst Larnak has appeared, emerging from the shadows of a road just to the south.

He takes one look at Izek and whimpers loudly.

Izek Strazni: Izek begins marching towards him.

Spy: The spy bolts, fleeing southwards.

Suldae Westwind:

18

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That doesn't inspire confidence" Henry comments watching the apparent guide run

Spy:

INITIATIVE

Spy

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE

Izek Strazni

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 6.14

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 19.15

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 19.18

Marcus Veranius: The great game was in full tonight it seemed. Spies and spies. Probably a raven hiding somewhere too; what a bother.

Marcus thinks fastest in that moment, and reacts first.

GM: Suldae recalls that werewolves are deathly allergic to silver, resistant to most forms of damage, frighteningly fast and strong, and, depending on the nature of the curse at hand (lycanthropy can be caused by many distinct curses, some of them hereditary) werewolves can sometimes transform fully or partially even without a moon, and even during daylight. This happens more often when they are supplanted by a dark otherworldly power, which is common enough that werewolves of this pact/pack nature are sometimes considered a distinct kind of creature. Most lycanthropes are bound to the cycle of the moon, and when they transform they lose all control.

Suldae Westwind:

6.1400000000000000
01

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: Marcus turns towards Izek, rather intent to not let their dinner be delayed by this confrontation.

Suldae Westwind: ohhh my god

Marcus Veranius: "Look, I don't know what's going on, but I've got a donation for the Burgomeister's re-election if you can put it off for another day."

He looks at Izek to see how receptive he is towards the suggestion

Izek Strazni: Izek is mid-sprint and rapidly accelerating.

He doesn't seem to be listening.

As he runs, his right sleeve and glove explode into tatters of fabric.

Marcus Veranius: ...

Izek Strazni: His arm has transformed, replaced entirely by a huge claw of black shadow.

He reaches into the shadow of a building as he sprints past, snatching a black axe from the darkness as he pursues the spy.

Suldae Westwind: (how far is he from us?)

Marcus Veranius: On second thought, they could probably get directions to the Wachter estate from Danika.

Izek Strazni: (Less than 50 feet)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Marcus Veranius: EoT

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae has the spell for this hhh fucking initiative deciding to mirror the browser >x>)

GM: (Henry is up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Eyeing the the approaching 'man' warily Henry raise his shield steping in front of the others. Who is this and whose his target

EoT

Suldae Westwind: (we might want an actual grid for this)

Spy: "Someone help me!!!"

(ignore the ruler size, let me adjust that)

(It's adjusted now)

Izek Strazni: "Official business. Stay out of this, civilians!" Izek howls, as he charges past the front door of the inn, rounding the corner to head south towards the Spy.

(Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind:

Hold Person*Enchantment 2Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 60 feetTarget: A humanoid that you can see within rangeComponents: V, S, M (A small, straight piece of iron)Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Choose a humanoid that you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or be paralyzed for the duration. At the end of each of its turns, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. On a success, the spell ends on the target.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, you can target on additional humanoid for each slot level above 2nd. The humanoids must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Marcus Veranius: (oh bollocks)Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays several dissonant sharp notes on the ocarina.Henry of Willowsbrook: "Suuuldae what are you doing?" Henry asks already dreading the mess they surely are getting inot right now intoSuldae Westwind: "The guy was yelling for help," Suldae defends herself.
so uh
Wis save?Izek Strazni:WISDOM
Izek Strazni

Ability: 1 | 9

GM: He is uh... Not very wise.Izek Strazni: "What the -- ?"

Izek is overwhelmed by Suldae's music. He stops, frozen in place as though gripped by an invisible hand.

"What sorcery is this!?"

Suldae Westwind: "What's going on?" Suldae asks, doign her best to pretend it wasn't her.

"Who's that guy?"

Izek Strazni: He fills his lungs to shout for the guards, then Suldae's power seals his mouth. He is now paralyzed completely, frozen in place.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs shaking his head "Why don't we go have a chat with him and see if we can help him out Suldae Westwind: "You should go get that guy," Suldae suggests to her companions. He's too far out of range for her magic.

Henry of Willowsbrook: A forced smile on his face as he talks to the others

"Marcus would you get the other one while I go 'help' him?" Henry asks gesturing with his shield

Marcus Veranius: Marcus is at a loss for words and ideas.

GM (GM): (EoT Suldae?)

Suldae Westwind: ya

sorry

EoT

Marcus Veranius: "We are between a rock and a hard place!" He furiously whispers to Henry, trying to think of what to do. "I'm staying out of this in case it ends in the stockades; one of us needs to be out of cuffs to pay bail for the others!"

He slips back into the inn, trying to disappear before Izek can pin ire onto him.

GM (GM): (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: (EoT)

GM (GM): (Henry is up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns watching first Marcus go back inside and then the now immobile man before turning to Suldae "He's right we really should stay out of whatever 'this' is as best we can" his voice is pitched low so only she can hear him

Suldae Westwind: "Go inside, then," Suldae murmurs.

This is not going to plan, but then, the plan sucked.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Are you going to stay out of it?" He asks flatly look directly into her eyes

Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers her options for a second.

"I'll do my best," she says unconvincingly. "Just go"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You suck at lying" he sighs turning to the man "if I die I'll haun you" He murmurs before slowly walking over to Izek haunt

Suldae Westwind: "I asked you to leave," she hisses

Henry of Willowsbrook: he pauses mid stride "I'm not leaving you to something stupid alone" resuming his walk alone

Reaching Izek he does his best to appear clueless "Sir is everything ok? Is there any way I can help you?"

Izek Strazni: Izek says: "Ghrmfghlgrgmpgh!"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae drops her spell at this moment.

Izek Strazni: His jaw is clenched shut.

He pops it open.

"Ah... I'm free. Who cast that!? Did you see? Did you see who was playing the ocarina?"

He whips around, scouring the scene with his eyes.

PERCEPTION Izek Strazni <hr/> Skill: 18
--

Suldae realizes she still has the ocarina in her hand! Make a stealth roll to hide it, or a sleight of hand roll to stow it without him seeing!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I have no idea what you are talking about sir"

Suldae Westwind:

9

SLEIGHT OF HAND (3)
Suldae Westwind

welp

Izek Strazni: "YOU!"

Suldae Westwind: "Huh?" Suldae looks at him like she has no idea what's happening.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (His attentions solely on her right now right?)

Izek Strazni: "I saw that! I saw you put it in your bag!"

(yes)

Suldae Westwind: "This?" Suldae takes out the ocarina, figuring this is one piece of evidence she can't exactly deny the existence of given it's bright blue and very noticable.

Izek Strazni: "That!"

"You were playing it, and I felt the power of dark magics take hold of my muscles!"

"You're a witch!"

Suldae Westwind: "I am not!" Suldae protests, taking a step back.

23

PERSUASION (7)
Suldae Westwind

"I don't know what happened!"

Izek Strazni:

INTELLIGENCE Izek Strazni <hr/> Ability: 7

He seems bewildered by her apparent innocence.

"I... If it wasn't you, then... Who?"

(Meanwhile, the spy makes it to the town square)

Suldae Westwind: "It's just a toy! I don't know! You were running, and then..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I saw someone run north after you stoped moving"

Izek Strazni: "Ah, I understand now... It must have been one of the cultists."

"Lady Wachter is protecting her filthy little spy! Even now her audacity knows no bounds."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "How terrible"

Suldae Westwind: "Cultists?" Suldae rounds her eyes in very convincing horror. "Here?!"

Izek Strazni: "Aye, here. Even in the very streets of Vallaki! It is said that they gather in her manor to study the dark arts of their master."

"I have good reason to believe that many of the wealthiest families are involved."

"The confessions I have heard, during long torture sessions, describe decadent orgies and dark rituals to foul and unholy beings."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae listens, eyes still rounded in a display of horror and attention she doesn't have to try hard to fake.

Henry of Willowsbrook: " a conspiracy" Henry gasps

Suldae Westwind: "Dark rituals?!"

Whatever's going on, there's SOME intel they're getting out of this at least.

Izek Strazni: "The Burgomaster does not believe me -- yet. But when I have gathered sufficient evidence, and can prove the truth of what I assert, then he will send the town guard with me to root out this menace once and for all."

"If only I had some means of getting into her house!"

"That damned spy will have made it to her doorstep by now."

Marcus Veranius: Marcus returns to the open, seeing a possible business venture in this.

"Mayhaps I could offer you aid then?" He approaches Stranzi, letter in hand.

GM (GM): Izek eyes Marcus suspiciously, noting his scarred features. He glances at his own twisted, demonic arm thoughtfully. He glances at the letter.

Izek Strazni: "You have an invitation," he says, his eyes lighting up.

Marcus Veranius: "I of course believe all should be well, and these accusations are most horrid."

"The Wachters had invited us over for a feast; mayhaps I could observe them in your stead?"

"Anything for the humble graces of the Baron of course." Marcus offers Izek a short bow. He held no obligations to either side, though if made to pick one would surely rather be in good graces with nobility.

Izek Strazni: "Aye. You could report back to me. To the burgomaster. With the eyes of many witnesses, she's certain to hang."

"Of course, there'd be coin in it for you, too. I'd pay handsomely for your aid."

"If she realizes I'm paying you, she'll have you killed."

Suldae Westwind: "We can't attract attention to ourselves," Suldae says in a horrified tone. "We'll have to observe without doing anything to provoke her suspicion"

Marcus Veranius: "Mayhaps you could point us in the direction of her estate?" Marcus asks. Not like they have Derek to point them the right way anymore.

Izek Strazni: "Aye. It's that way." He points northeast, towards a large red house just up the northern road.

"No doubt her spy will have circled around by now. If he hasn't turned into a bird again."

Suldae Westwind: "A bird?"

Izek Strazni: "Big black bird."

"Yeah. He can do that."

Suldae Westwind: "Him specifically?" Suldae asks, making it sound like natural curiosity/horror.

Marcus Veranius tips his hat to Izek, noting his comment about the bird

Suldae Westwind:

24

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Izek Strazni: "Well, he's the only one I've ever seen do it before. But they say there are other people that can do that."

As he speaks, he seems to calm down. His dark arm transforms back into an ordinary human arm and hand, and the shadow axe fades away to black mist.

Marcus Veranius: "...best of luck with the arm." Marcus remarks, making his way towards the Wachter estate.

Izek Strazni: "Best of luck with the face," remarks Izek.

Marcus Veranius: "Ouch. I deserved that."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods pleasantly following Marcus "Wouldn't want the Lady to think we weren't coming"

"Being invite guests and all"

invited

Suldae Westwind: "We'll do our best!" Suldae whispers loudly before following the others.

She puts the ocarina back on her belt.

GM (GM): (We may need to end the session here for today. Thank you all for playing! This was a really fun session for me!)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah I was about to say)
(about 11pm my time)

(gtg)

(THIS COULD HAVE GONE WORSE)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Lets end it at the doorstep of the manor seems more appropriate

Suldae Westwind: (love playing high Cha)

(...and getting good rolls)

This house seems disgusted with itself. A slouching roof hangs heavy over furrowed gables, and moss-covered walls sag and bulge under the weight of the vegetation. As you study the house's sullen countenance, you hear the edifice actually groan. Only then do you realize the extent to which the house hates what it has become.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's fingers itch. She wants to know what the plants here have seen and heard; but this can wait, for now.

GM (GM): Good Morning!

Liliet (Suldae): a very good one!

Zanshukun: I am here

Marcus Veranius murmurs to the others, trying to be stealthy and subtle. "Remember why we're here. We get proof of foul play and we'll have good tidings with the Burgomeister AND take out one of Strahd's allies in one swoop."

Marcus Veranius: "Be polite until you no longer have to be."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae nods. That's her default anyway.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods lightly

"Should we knock?"

Marcus Veranius: "Be my guest. Or their guest, rather."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches the door at a measured pace and knocks twice loud enough to be heard he hopes thorough out the building

(turns out throughout is one word huh TIL)

GM (GM): The front door is locked and reinforced with bronze bands. A small window at eye level slides open, and a pair of beady blue eyes look out.

In a gruff tone, a male voice says:

"State your business."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We were invited by Lady Wachter to join her for dinner" Henry says gesturing for the others to come closer and bring the invitation

Marcus Veranius holds the invitation up to the door slot for inspection

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae stands a bit behind them, feeling... not so much shy, but unsure.

Suldae Westwind: This situation feels very far from what she's been used to dealing with

The beady blue eyes scan over the invitation quickly. You hear a set of metallic thunks and clanks, then the door swings heavily inwards on a set of reinforced iron hinges. The door seems to weigh thousands of pounds.

An elderly butler stands before you, looking like a desiccated scarecrow in a black suit. He waves you into the foyer.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods in greeting and steps inside

Marcus Veranius follows Henry inside, eyes drifting to the locks. Was this a manor or a fortress?

The front door opens into a narrow vestibule. Three stained-glass doors in wooden frames lead farther into the house. Two closets flank the front door, one on the west, and one on the east.

Butler: "Lady Wachter is in the Parlor. I shall announce your presence. Wait for me here."

The butler leaves the room, and you see him take an immediate left after he passes through the first door into the house.

Marcus Veranius looks around the foyer. Rather cramped in here; barely room for a coat

The two doors seem to lead into closets. Other than that, the room is practically empty. A long black table with a few empty drawers sits against one wall and supports an array of large black pots, which contain spiky-looking plants with dark and gleaming leaves.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes the presence of the plants and her fingers itch with the desire for music, but holds off on doing obvious spy magic in a noble's house. At least, so far.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches the plants to try and find out what kind they are (Nature right?)

3

NATURE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15

NATURE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(that was pointless)

Henry determines that these are in fact plants.

The stained-glass images depict a looming black castle filling much of the framed sky, and a manor house standing beneath it, next to a forest and a windmill. Below the manor and filling the rest of the frame is a large image of the moon -- painted with the face of a beautiful woman, amid craters and silver dust -- which fills the rest of the panel.

Marcus Veranius: "And to think I now own the windmill depicted on so many paintings and reliefs." Marcus hums to himself with a grin

With an abrupt blast of thunder and a flash of lightning, it begins to rain heavily.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ominous" Henry comments under his breath

The streets of Vallaki vanish in the downpour. The rain hits with such ferocity that the ground seems covered in mist. The deluge is clearly unnatural.

The Butler returns and shuts the heavy door properly, muffling the sounds of the storm.

Butler: "Lady Wachter will see you now."

"If you would all be so kind as to follow me into the Parlor."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lowers her head in acknowledgement, hiding her nervousness under a layer of courtesy.

The dining room and attached lounge are wealthily appointed. An ornate dining table stretches the length of the dining room, a crystal chandelier hanging above it imperiously. The silverware is tarnished, the dishes chipped, yet all are still quite elegant. Eight chairs, their backs adorned with sculpted elk horns, surround the table. Arched windows made of a latticework of iron and glass look out onto the small, fog-swept estate. To the north, in the lounge area, three elegant couches surround an oval table made of black glass. All are set in front of a blazing hearth, above which hangs the portrait of a smirking nobleman sporting a broken nose and a tangle of hair graying at the temples. Several smaller portraits hang on the north wall.

In the corner of one couch, close to the fire, a tall, spindly, elderly woman sits, stroking what appears to be a ball of black fur with two yellow, slitted eyes. She wears a subdued finery which presents the very best in elegance of taste and quality of material. The fabric of her high-collared, corseted, heavily-embroidered gown is glossy and prone to delicate, crumpling folds. Her hair is pinned up into a complicated bun. She watches you all over her long, elegant nose.

Seated across from her is a man in dark robes, facing away from you. From here you see his long, silver hair, and the tips of his pointed ears.

It appears to be one of the dusk elves, from the camp.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Ah, at last. My heroes have arrived!"

She rises from her seat.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae does a half-curtsy half-bow appropriate for a bard.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Please, enter. Make yourselves at home."

"Karlsbach, bring us some wine and something light before dinner."

Butler: "Yes, my lady."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is not hiding behind Henry. She's not. She's just... coincidentally on the other side of him.

Marcus Veranius takes a short bow and escorts himself to one of the lounge chairs. Seems a bit early for dinner.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins Marcus on the seat.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry bows "Milady we thank you for inviting us so..." he puses more for effect than because of need

Marcus Veranius: "A pleasure to make your acquaintance, Lady Wachter! I've heard good things."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "unexpectedly"

pauses

Henry remains standing not willing to take a seat next to the Lady or her guest

-  Marcus Veranius: "Forgive our lateness; it seems your escort for us had other business to attend. We had to find our own way here."
-  (To Marcus Veranius): You realize as you sit down that the fireplace is shared with another room, separated from it by an iron mesh. Marcus spots a pair of boots on the other side of the fireplace -- possibly an eavesdropper.
-  Lady Fiona Wachter: "Yes, he told me he had a little run in with the Burgomaster's Brute, Izek."
"He said he had you to thank for his life."
"I asked him why he had insulted you, and insulted my hospitality by not coming back to lead you to me. He could not give a good answer."
"I assure you, he will have better manners when next you meet."
"I am pleased that you chose to accept my invitation, I know it must have seemed a little strange."
-  Marcus Veranius: "Well he may not be the most reliable, but at least he's got good looks. I'm a bit jealous."
-  Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter does not seem to know what to do with this.
-  Marcus Veranius: Marcus remarks in jest, eyes looking towards the warm fireplace
-  (From Marcus Veranius): And for a reaction from the boots
-  Lady Fiona Wachter: Awkwardly, she gestures towards the man seated across from her. "I... Er... I hope you will not begrudge me for inviting an additional guest. This is Kasimir Velikov, an old friend and advisor."
-  Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir gives a small nod. His eyes are curiously fixed upon Suldae.
-  Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods courteously, trying to ignore everything she's heard about local elves. He's just another guest, she's hypnotizing herself into thinking. It's not working very well, but at least her face is well-schooled into behaving.
-  (To Marcus Veranius): The boots move, pacing a little bit back and forth.
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smiles a smile that doesn't reach his eyes "Pleased to make your aquaintance Sir"
-  Marcus Veranius squints at Kasimir. "I do not mind the company. Have we met before by chance? You seem familiar."
- Marcus notices that Kasimir is wearing a large, out-of-place looking amulet with a large, raw emerald in a gold setting.
-  Kasimir Velikov: "I have seen you, yes."
"I was at the camp."
-  Marcus Veranius: "Ah, sordid business that was. It is good to see you are safe."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tries to keep an eye on the Lady to get a read on her thoughts on this
-  Kasimir Velikov: "The tiger wanted nothing to do with me, and I wanted nothing to do with it. We passed each other by."

GM: (Roll Insight, Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

3

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(really..)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is trying to keep track of the undercurrents of what the elf is saying.

GM: (You detect no discernible reaction from Lady Wachter. It is impossible for you to say how she is reacting.)

Suldae Westwind:

11

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

GM: (Suldae detects that Kasimir is being intentionally cagey about his stance on the entire matter. He is carefully expressing neither approval nor disapproval, without threat and without fear. He seems utterly calm, but at the same time he is acting very cautious.)

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Kasimir here was just telling me about the whole event! I understand it was a tribe of bandits, or some such? And someone released a wild tiger among them. Horrible violence, of course. But a group of strong-arms came and took the tiger away, giving it right back into the hands of Rudolph Van Richten."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae silently notes her knowledge of the man's full name.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "And now Rudolph has wandered off alone again, back to his tower. Leaving you all here, for some strange reason."

"And then there is the woman..."

"The woman Izek has been making dolls of, all this time..."

"You have brought me many interesting puzzles, do you realize that?"

"I observed your intervention during the festival of the Blazing Sun, and it is clear to me that you oppose the insanity of the Burgomaster."

Marcus Veranius nods, noting the use of Rictavio's actual name. It seems nothing escaped the Wachter's watch.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry for a moment debates if he should deny they had anything to do with what happened earlier but doesn't because the Lady is clearly going somewhere with this Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays quiet, allowing some shyness into her demeanor. The lady should not think anything odd of her not saying anything, she is simply a young woman getting tongue-tied in the presence of nobility.

13

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 12 | 20

Marcus Veranius: "One of many orders from Blinsky as of late. Dolls mimicking people; I've seen the handiwork. Bought a piece myself, though I fail to understand the commission's intent."

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter smiles.

Marcus Veranius smiles in return. A game of information it is then, spymaster against merchant. Whose senses were most keen?

Lady Fiona Wachter: "You do oppose the Burgomaster, do you not?"

Marcus Veranius: "With all due respect, I oppose a dragon, Lady Wachter. My dealings elsewhere are reactionary and without purpose."

"I don't think the Burgomaster has any relations, does he?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays quiet. Multiple possible answers are at the tip of her tongue, but she is only a shy country bumpkin, isn't she?

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry keeps his thoughts to himself waiting for people likely cleverer than him to maneuver around each other Lady Fiona Wachter: "He is married, and he has a son," says Lady Wachter.

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, I meant to the dragon. Can't imagine it'd be pleasant having one as family; you'd never be able to have furniture this nice last long."

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Perhaps it would be easier to answer if I told you plainly that I am opposed to the Burgomaster. I believe he has it all wrong."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's attention focuses on the Lady at the remark

Marcus Veranius nods. "I'm sure that's a common opinion, though the reasons are vast and distinct. What by chance would be yours?" The merchant's eyes looked towards their patron with curiosity.

Lady Fiona Wachter: Her eyes flash. She chuckles lightly.

The butler enters the room, bearing a tray of wine glasses.

She takes a glass and holds it to her lips, smelling it for a moment or two.

"He believes that the reason Strahd attacks us so ferociously is because we do not hold enough festivals and keep big, stupid smiles on our faces."

Marcus Veranius: "And do you believe that? That his festivals are a frivolous facade?" Marcus chuckles to himself, as if nodding in agreement.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "I believe that the reason Strahd attacks us is because we misunderstand him. My family has long been loyal to the von Zarovich line. Strahd von Zarovich is no tyrant. He is, at worst, a negligent landlord. If he whips us, it is because we have not paid the rent."

"The festivals are a waste of time and energy. By installing a ruler who can understand and work with Strahd, we can move Vallaki from a position of imminent doom to a position of security, safe in the embrace of Ravenloft castle."

"The Burgomaster is too thick to understand this, so I bring the concept before better minds than his."
She gestures to the room.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to keep her face as impassive and guileless as possible at this.

19

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 14

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A ruler like yourself mayhaps" Henry says not asks lightly

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Alas, my ruling days would not last long, at my age. But my sons would be good substitutes, after my passage."

"They have so much of their father in them," She says, gesturing towards the painting above the mantelpiece.

Marcus Veranius: And that was all Marcus needed to hear. Irregardless of her opinion, the festivals had testimony to their effectiveness. Their disbandment ultimately threatened Vallaki. Either she genuinely didn't know, or did and intended to let Strahd in by removing wards.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "What do you say, then? We hold a common belief: the Burgomaster is cruel and insane, and must be removed from power."

Marcus Veranius: He would do his best to keep up the facade. "I've met your sons; do you suppose they would come to an agreement on who would take the chair?"

"Or would they risk the town bickering over whom was the better?"

Lady Fiona Wachter: Her eyes flicker again, this time in annoyance.

"The elder will take it, naturally. The laws of inheritance would apply."

Marcus Veranius nods

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Now, the first thing we must do is kill Izek Strazni."

"Without him, the burgomaster will be defenseless."

Marcus Veranius 's face turns flat. "That's easier said than done. I'm told his arm has a hellof a swing. Would you by chance know the reason?"

Lady Fiona Wachter: "I have learned his tale, yes. Izek and his sister were born in Vallaki. One morning, their father and their uncle took them fishing on Lake Zarovich. On the way back to town, a dire wolf attacked Izek and bit off his right arm. His father carried Izek back to town while his uncle distracted the beast. His sister ran and hid in the woods, and was never seen again. Unlike his sister, Izek was born without a soul. The loss of that little girl was a terrible tragedy, and his parents both succumbed to their grief, leaving him a widow. The boy was a prolific killer in his youth. He was good at hiding the bodies of the children who mocked him. Even with his skill, he was caught, and brought before the Burgomaster. Instead of punishing him for his crimes, our lovely Burgomaster hired him as loyal muscle. After years of doing the Baron's dirty work, he awoke from a drunken stupor one morning to find that he had grown a new arm to replace the one he had lost."

(Leaving him an orphan, not a widow -- jeez)

"No one knows the source of the gift, but it certainly seems fiendish to me."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae silently notes the 'no soul' bit of info.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Strahd would be capable of such a gift, but I doubt he even knows of Izek's existence."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir, you note, seems distinctly uncomfortable now.

Marcus Veranius nods. "The secret then would be to investigate how his arm came about, if not for a bane but to see how one might replicate that power."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir looks at Marcus as though seeing him for the first time.

Marcus Veranius: "Would you have any leads?"

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Yes... That is true..."

Kasimir Velikov: "I know the place where the dark powers which made this land still slumber."

"If Izek's arm is from beyond this plane, there are only certain entities within reach."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "I mean no offense but would a Lady of your means not be able to 'remove' the man herself. Why really on strangers like us?" his tone is that of a soldier looking for further instructions

Lady Fiona Wachter: She laughs. "I have tried before, with other adventurers and mercenaries. I have had little success, even when the odds seemed to be in my favor. Izek is a fiend in battle."

Marcus Veranius turns to Kasimir

Marcus Veranius: "Dark powers that made this land... as in more than Strahd?"

Kasimir Velikov: "They were here before Strahd, and they will be here after he is dust. They are the beings which made Strahd, for the price of his soul."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's face remains neutral "And you are of the belief we could accomplish that which others have failed to achieve"

"Milady" he adds after a brief pause

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Yes," says the lady. "Your reputation precedes you. My spy, good mister Larnak, tells me you successfully cleansed the old Durst manor."

Marcus Veranius frowns

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Many brave adventurers have died within its walls."

Marcus Veranius: "Forgive me if I wish not speak of it. The experience wasn't pleasant."

"But I do see your point of trust."

Lady Fiona Wachter: "You are far from the first to come through this land, seeking to destroy Strahd. Each night, at midnight, you can see them leave their graves and take their nightly journey to the castle, only to be reminded of their own, inevitable defeat. Strahd has slain thousands of would-be champions and saviors, and no one yet has lifted the curse which binds this land -- and binds him to this land. I have seen adventurers before, but they did not seem like you do. You seem like survivors, to me."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "One remains a survivor right up until one dies" Henry says sardonically sardonically

Marcus Veranius nods. "To my knowledge, I'm the first in this realm to chase not the man but his lieutenants. Perhaps starting small will make all the difference."

Marcus Veranius: "Not that dragons are a small foe. But it'd make a good foundation for every move after."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at the Lady shyly, trying to gauge her reaction

24

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter seems annoyed that the conversation has turned away from her immediate goals.

Marcus Veranius: "But I digress. We will investigate this arm and the power behind it."
"And then we will know our best path for handling Izek."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods shyly, adding her assent to Marcus's.
Outward assent, anyway.

Marcus Veranius: "I trust your spy can devote his attention towards the lake? See if any secrets lie there while we form our plans in-town?"
"He'll know better what to look for than we will."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Supposing we succeed and kill Izek wouldn't we be the obvious target for retribution? we are strangers here after all and not the first to make an attempt at his life"

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir seems terrified to be in her presence but he's hiding it exceptionally well. Suldae also realizes out of nowhere that his ear tips are illusions, hiding horrible scars. As she observes him, he turns to her abruptly and says, in broken Elvish:

"Tel' ath salen nys nha trapped aul bren rûn. Enna ahnvae aul salen reverie, si comes lor tel'quiet, ent si shows tel'quiet tel' ya. Sal can lead var nae tel' arael ath tel' amber temple, ent there sar can break Tel' khaor Ath barovia"

(To Suldae Westwind): "The soul of my sister is trapped in this land. Each night in my reverie, she comes to me, and she shows me the path. I can lead you to the heart of the Amber Temple, and there we can break the curse of Barovia."

Kasimir Velikov: "Bren woman nha vaarn."

(To Suldae Westwind): "This woman is evil."

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter raises her thin, sharply-painted black eyebrows.
"Towards the lake?"

Marcus Veranius: "That is where Izek lost his arm. Perhaps it is also the source of his new one."

Lady Fiona Wachter: "And yes, you will have to be quiet and clever when you kill Izek. I recommend removing his head in his sleep."

"That is a good point," says Lady Wachter.

"I had not thought of that."

Sulda Westwind: "Come find us later," Sulda says in Elvish, then turns to Lady Fiona and shyly murmurs "my apologies" in Common

Lady Fiona Wachter: "I'm afraid my spy is much to great a fool to know what to look for in that respect. I will go myself, to investigate."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir stands. He bows deeply towards Lady Wachter, then leaves without a word, and without so much as glancing at anyone else -- except Sulda.

Marcus Veranius: "Safe travels to you." Marcus responds to the elf as he leaves, though quickly returns to Lady Wachter

"Our plan is settled then. Shall we enjoy the rest of the evening carefree before our work forces us serious for a while?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves behind the seat the elf occupied and remains standing

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Yes, let's," says Lady Wachter. She reaches to the table and lifts a small crystal bell. She rings it. A moment later, the door pops open and a cook in a black dress with a white apron and hat pushes a cart of silver trays into the room.

The cook arrays the dishes on the table, then leaves.

Tonight's dinner consists of mashed potatoes, wolf steaks, roast venison, a whole roast duck, fresh, hot dinner rolls, and a spicy beef stew.

The fare seems surprisingly... simple.

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter rises and glides to the table as the "cat" on her lap crawls up her torso and wraps itself around her shoulders like a mink shawl.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda compliments the food quietly, still playing up her shy persona.

Marcus Veranius: Or, for those with no sense of taste, ash and bile. Same as every day, though he'd be polite to make a show of enjoyment regardless.

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter lifts the curtain aside with a finger and peers out into the storm. She seems impatient. She turns to her food, drinks her wine, and watches you all.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry carefully takes a seat visibly concerned about the chairs ability to hold him hiding his careful awareness of the doors leading into the room

Sulda Westwind: "It's stormy tonight," Sulda mumbles, as if in a mangled attempt to make small talk.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Indeed. It came up so suddenly. I shall send you back to the inn by carriage, if it does not let up soon."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda glances at her, trying to discern her true opinion of the storm,

9

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

(welp)

Lady Fiona Wachter: She does not seem all that surprised by the storm, in spite of her careful alteration of the tone of her voice to present her surprise as genuine.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glances at the others hoping they wouldn't seriously consider taking her up on the offer

Marcus Veranius: "I might have to take you up on that offer; it's not often I have the chance to justify clothes this nice."

"My thanks to you."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at Henry, hoping he won't contradict what has already been said.

The less information Lady Fiona gets on their party the better, as far as she's concerned, and the best way to organize that is to present a united, utterly closed front.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's hope it doesn't become nessecary" Henry says "for the Sake of your drivers dryness"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives a shy smile, as if amused by the joke, but truthfully more relieved.

Marcus Veranius: "And to think we wasted silvers on that armor polish. With rain this stern, we could have stuck you outside and let it cut the grime for free!"

Marcus Veranius jests to Henry

Dinner passes quietly. Conversation is muted and awkward, as the thunder of the storm now seems to be directly overhead. The candles do little to combat the darkness of the storm, and the eery brightness of each booming flash.

After dinner is over, Lady Wachter attempts to resume conversation. She seems hesitant to order the carriage, but the rain does not seem to be letting up any time soon. Only when the clock gongs out the hour -- 11:00 PM -- do you realize she is stalling for time.

Suldae Westwind: "I believe we can go even through rain," Suldae says shyly as she continues to play someone utterly uncomfortable with noble hospitality.

"We are accustomed to rough weather"

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Nonsense, darling. I wouldn't dream of it."

"I shall go order the carriage."

She leaves the room, seeming distracted by something (Roll Insight)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

27

Unarmed Strike (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

5 + 1
Bludgeoning

17Unarmed Strike (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook5Bludgeoning*

whoops

not insight

20INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook7*INSIGHT (0)
Henry of WillowsbrookHenry of Willowsbrook: (LOL)Marcus Veranius:*9*6*INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry has a sudden jolt of understanding. She was waiting for someone to arrive, and she is still stalling to buy them time.

Suldae Westwind:*6*INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

wow

just WOW

Marcus and Suldae sense nothing amiss.

Marcus Veranius: (whoops, shouldnt have neem disadvantage)Suldae Westwind: "I suppose it would be rude to impose on her any longer," Suldae speaks up in a manner that should seem in tune with her role to all but her party mates, who would be more familiar with her actual personalityHenry of Willowsbrook: Henry gets up quietly "She is waiting for someone" his voice is pitched lowSuldae Westwind: "It would be really rude to still be here when other guests arrive," Suldae stands up as well, just a hint of metal in her voice.

She is speaking quietly as well, in keeping with both her previous role and common sense.

Strahd von Zarovich: 4

Marcus Veranius: "We ought to make our leave then."

(Oh bollocks)

Strahd von Zarovich: 5

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves to head out of the building

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 20.14

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 15.15

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 19.18

Suldae Westwind: (UH)

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Strahd von Zarovich
Initiative: 23

Suldae Westwind: (WELL THEN)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (crapbaskets)

GM: Suldae is up

Suldae Westwind: if we're all agreed on moving out of the building, can we all use our move actions together?

To go in this formation?

GM: Yes

Suldae Westwind: we all have 30 ft aka 6 squares of movement right?

Strahd von Zarovich: Sounds about right

Suldae Westwind: "You've been on fire today, Marcus," Suldae mentions quietly as they walk. He gets Bardic Inspiration

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Wait! Don't leave, you'll be soaked!"

"Please, take my carriage. As a sign of our newfound alliance."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Please don't trouble yor self Milady we'll be fine"

Marcus Veranius: "I just came to a horrible realization."

Sulda Westwind: "I'm scared of cramped spaces," Suldae confesses shyly.

10

PERSUASION (7)
Sulda Westwind

(OUCH)

Marcus Veranius: "If we're seen in your carriage, Izek will never let us close enough to make our play."

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 13

Marcus Veranius: "I hate to say it, but we may better depart in the cover of rain."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae glances at Marcus.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Oh, I hadn't thought of that," says Lady Wachter.

Sulda Westwind: (NICE SAVE)

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Perhaps you're right. I can have my footman drape the carriage in something, to cover the family coat of arms. In this rain, I think it unlikely anyone will take note."

"And besides, I'm sure you've probably been seen coming here to begin with."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae stays quiet, aware her interjection fell somewhat flat and unwilling to draw any more attention to herself.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "disrupting your servants night for us really isn't nessecary Milady"

Marcus Veranius: "I'd certainly hope we weren't caught; Derek made a good show of being chased."

Marcus Veranius has genuinely forgot the name of her spy, instead resorting to his alias

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Derek?"

"You mean Ernst?"

Marcus Veranius: "...your man?"

"Yes, that one."

"He's got fast legs. You know hoe to pick good men."

*how to

Marcus Veranius tips his hat and makes stride for the alley before Lady Wachter can interject

Lady Fiona Wachter: "No, wait, please!"

STRENGTH
Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 19

Lady Wachter grips Suldae by the arm.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tries to slip out of her grasp

(can I oppose it with a Dex check?)

Lady Fiona Wachter: (Yes -- or acrobatics or athletics)

"The carriage is nearly here, it's not right to just blunder off into this downpour, you'll catch your death of cold!"

Suldae Westwind:

19

ACROBATICS (5)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae manages to slip free -- just barely.

Suldae Westwind: She follows after Marcus, pretending she didn't notice the odd strength in the old lady's grip

(I guess she was really motivated XD)

Marcus Veranius puts his hand to his heart, bearing a sincere smile

Marcus Veranius: "That we won't is why you trust us so, is that not the case?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to leave aswell his and clutching hand easing of his sword

Marcus Veranius makes his leave

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows ushering Suldae in front of him putting himself at the rear of the group

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels much better in the middle of the group.

BOOM.

A massive plume of fire rises into the southern sky. It seems to have come from the South Gate.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (fuckin really)

You hear the shouts of panicked guards, raising the alarm.

Marcus Veranius: "Dinner AND a show it seems."

The downpour is far more intense now that you are outside in it.

GM: (Jeez, not that intense -- sorry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry curses both in Common and UnderCommon for waht seems like minutes without taking a breath

Marcus Veranius curses having to get blood on his new clothes.

Suldae Westwind: "Do we... go there?" Suldae asks, looking in that direction.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We should"

Marcus Veranius: "I'd rather see them on the wall then have them find us on the streets."

Marcus Veranius turns for the south gate

The deluge fills the air with cold and clinging mist. People are running through the streets, still putting on coats and drawing weapons. The militia has been mobilized.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry unslings his shield and draws his sword moving toward the Gate

Marcus Veranius pauses to consider

Suldae Westwind: "Agreed," Suldae says in relief.

She was mostly worried about the party wanting to hold back where she wanted to interfere again.
Or at least look at what's happening.

Marcus Veranius: "This is a game in several plays. Lady Wachter knew we were opposed to Strahd."
"If she intended to keep us in her home, and keep the watch on the southern gate."

Suldae Westwind: "She certainly didn't try to keep her loyalties secret," Suldae says.

Marcus Veranius: "Where is the Burgomeister, since his house is not an option."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It was the one we saw earlier with the failed spell"

Marcus Veranius: "...we need to find Izek. The Great Game is far from over."

Suldae Westwind: "I propose we go south first. He might be there, as well."
(we are talking while walking, right?)

Marcus Veranius: "We need retainers for all the messages we've to send."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pauses " He should be around there he is the Burgomeisters muscle"

Marcus Veranius: "Gate first, as Suldae suggests."

Marcus Veranius resorts to sprinting

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows as fast as he can given the wet ground

The mist seems to thicken in a way that the rain alone cannot explain. In the heart of town, at the peak of the little hill where the main crossroads splits the village, the mist is thick enough to hide your own knees from view.

Marcus Veranius curses to himself. They did so good to thicken the wards. The festival was but hours earlier; how was all of this coming about!?

From the high ground here, through the rain, you see the torches of a group of men southwest of you. They seem to be headed towards the gate.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "This is not normal mist" Henry barks out

Suldae Westwind: Suldae does quite well for herself, with her dexterity and training in tumbling give her an advantage in dealing with treacherous terrain, so despite her shorter stature she keeps up with her companions

Henry of Willowsbrook: barks

Suldae Westwind: "Agreed!" Suldae calls out.

She just hopes the inn is as safe as the ravens' protection would suggest.

You hear the sound of Izek Strazni shouting commands.

Marcus Veranius: Oh bollocks. So he IS here

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Found our man"

Suldae Westwind: "He's there!" Suldae cries out unnecessarily

Marcus Veranius runs to Izek's side

Marcus Veranius: "IZEK! Bless that we found you!"

Izek cannot quite hear your words over the rain, but he turns and stands blinking in the downpour, looking in the direction of your voices.

Strahd von Zarovich: He raises his demonic arm and snaps his fingers, and a blast of flames envelops the fingertips. The fire burns bright as a torch, cutting through the darkness.

(Not supposed to be Strahd, sorry -- that was Izek)

Suldae Westwind: (thank god Imao)

Izek Strazni: "You lot!"

Marcus Veranius: "Lady Wachter makes her play today!"

Izek Strazni: "Walk with me, we've got a situation at the southern gate. What did you find out about Wachter?"

"What do you mean, makes her play today?"

Marcus Veranius: "The south gate is a diversion, as was the banquet. She means to strip away all those who might be capable of guarding the Burgomeister."

Izek Strazni: Izek turns on his heel.

He looks Marcus in the eye.

Marcus Veranius looks stern

Henry of Willowsbrook: "She was waiting for someone and was trying to keep us under her eyes"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him, wide eyed and certain. She agrees with Marcus's analysis.

Izek Strazni: Without hesitation, he sprints away, headed towards the Burgomaster's manor -- conveniently less than a hundred feet away.

Suldae Westwind: "Do we follow him or do we go south?"

"If we follow him we're blowing any cover we might have"

"If we don't... well, we're out of the game on that"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Whatever after the Burgomeister is going to be worse then whats at the gate"

Marcus Veranius: "Henry, I trust you to keep the Burgomaster alive. Suldae; I trust you to keep both Izek and Henry alive."

Suldae Westwind: "NO WE DO NOT SPLIT UP"

"MARCUS"

Suldae grabs his sleeve and glares at him

"Not AGAIN"

"Splitting up is the worst of both worlds"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind:

10

PERSUASION (7)
Suldae Westwind

(up to you how you react to that, just wanted to put a number on it)

Marcus Veranius: "Bollocks all. What choice do we have?"

Suldae Westwind: "East or south!"

"Or stay where we are and do nothing! Or go back to the inn!"

"Just pick one!"

Marcus Veranius hates everything about this

Marcus Veranius: He takes out a coin and lets fate decide

Strahd von Zarovich: The mist swirls in a sudden whirlwind, forming into a towering pillar which suddenly assumes a humanoid form. This spectral giant stares down at you, claws akimbo.

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d2

(2)

= 2

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry seeing the mist shouts "GUYS!"

Suldae Westwind: so @Gm did you mean to have it be Strahd this time
coz spoilers if so XD

Marcus Veranius: "I've seen storms come to a head but this is just bollocks"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "TIMES UP I THINK"

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Strahd von Zarovich

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 16

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 6

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 20

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE
Ghoul

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 9

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie
Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 6

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 6

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 5

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 13

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 13

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Guard
Initiative: 19

Suldae Westwind: "Well, stay here and do nothing it is I suppose," Suldae deadpans.

Marcus Veranius: "Make for the wall; lets trust Lady Wachter's fears were genuine."

Suldae Westwind: "Or that"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "so we ignore the mist monster?" Henry isn't sure if he sounds hopeful here

Suldae Westwind: "It'll probably chase us anyway," Suldae genuinely sounds optimistic.

19.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "I aint got arrows that can kill a cloud, Henry!"

5.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

18.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (wish we had a proper grid for this that would put us in sane to scale distance from each other)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Neither do I but turning our backs to this sounds like the deadly kind of stupid"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses, then decides she doesn't lose much by trying the stupidest thing she can think of [holding off until her turn]

(though wait her initiative is first anyway lmao)

(just not in the tracker)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus aint in the tracker either. RIP)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (none of us are)

Suldae Westwind: wish this happened after the timeskip lmao would raise my spell DC by 1 anyway, it's totallly Suldae's turn

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

Suldae looks at the mist creature and says: "I'm sure you don't want to be in this town or in anyone's way tonight"

GM (GM):

WISDOM SAVE
Strahd von Zarovich

Save: 9 | 23

The figure of mist seems unaffected by Suldae's spell. She can tell that the spell did not take hold.

She realizes a moment later that it is probably an illusion.

Suldae Westwind: (an advantage, fucking really)

(fuck)

"Alright, that didn't work," Suldae says brightly. "It doesn't seem to be real, actually"

"Let's go to the wall"

She starts in that direction

GM (GM): (EoT)?

Suldae Westwind: yeah EoT sorry

(pls put me in the tracker)

(im confused)

Marcus Veranius: (Same)

Suldae Westwind: (*pls put US in the tracker)

GM (GM): You're all in the tracker...?

I'm not sure why it's not showing it, but you're all visible to me

Marcus Veranius: I think our tokens from another tab might be in the tracker. Our tokens in THIS tab are not, thus only you can see us in the initiative

GM (GM): Oh, how obnoxious

Well, we're about to change tabs again, I'm throwing down a scale map

Marcus Veranius: #GM Problems

GM (GM): A little easier for combat

Suldae Westwind: :D

thank you

GM (GM): So hold off on the initiative rolls for a sec

Suldae Westwind: ^^

GM (GM): OK -- roll initiative now, please

Henry of Willowsbrook:

8.15

INITIATIVE (2.15)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

8.18

INITIATIVE (4.18)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

17.14

INITIATIVE (3.14)
Suldae Westwind

OUCH

Marcus Veranius: (Forgive me; can you change the color of the grid on this page's tab? I can barely see it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I want my other roll back)

Suldae Westwind: Why Is This Keep Happen

GM (GM): I've restored your original rolls

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 4

INITIATIVE

Strahd von Zarovich

Initiative: 9

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 3

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Gate Guard

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 9

INITIATIVE

Guard

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE

Ghoul

Initiative: 15

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 13

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 6

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 12

INITIATIVE*Strahd ZombieInitiative: 14INITIATIVEStrahd ZombieInitiative: 8GM (GM):*INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 16INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 16INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 12INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 22INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 8INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 8GM (GM):INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 22INITIATIVEGhoulInitiative: 17

Aaaaand CLIFFHANGER

Because unfortunately I have to leave now :D

Marcus Veranius: (RIP)Suldae Westwind: well this is a fun oneGM (GM): You'll probably maybe survive for a while

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh well)

Marcus Veranius: (On the bright side, at least we're 1000% sure the Wachters are against us)

Suldae Westwind: (or, that we are against them)
(whichever way you put it)

GM (GM): Good morning!

Liliet (Suldae): I want to ask: those people with a... halberd? i guess? those are town guards?

Zanshukun: ello

Suldae Westwind: (hi)

GM (GM): Ah! I forgot to turn the nameplates on Yes, those are guards

Henry of Willowsbrook: (everyone ready?)

Marcus Veranius: (yee o3o)

The figure of fog looms over Vallaki, turning its vast, empty eyes this way and that, sweeping its gaze over the huddled dollhouses behind the tiny toothpick palisade. The darkness beyond Vallaki is absolute. From above, the village sits like a tiny gold coin on an endless blanket of black velvet. Away to the east, a fork of lightning blasts the dark castle into silhouette. The fog being appears to be searching for something.

It has taken no notice of you.

The guards are running south towards the gate. The stench of smoke and the sound of flames come from that direction.

Marcus Veranius praises the wards for doing their work. The master of darkness cared not for bluffs; only magic would beget magic.

Marcus Veranius: "Let the fog blow its smoke; gut the horde and Strahd loses his hands."

Marcus Veranius runs for the south gate

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows keeping an even pace to tired himself out to not

Tops K.: Potato

GM (GM): Technical difficulties, bear with us

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

CHARISMA SAVE (-2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM (GM):

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 3 | 16

Ammunition: You can use a weapon that has the ammunition property to make a ranged attack only if you have ammunition to fire from the weapon. Each time you attack with the weapon, you expend one piece of ammunition. Drawing the ammunition from a quiver, case, or other container is part of the attack. At the end of the battle, you can recover half your expended ammunition by taking a minute to search the battlefield.

If you use a weapon that has the ammunition property to make a melee attack, you treat the weapon as an improvised weapon (see "Improvised Weapons" later in the section). A sling must be loaded to deal any damage when used in this way.

Damage: 3 Piercing

SHORTBOW

Guard

Attack: 9

Damage: 2 Piercing

SHORTBOW

Guard

Attack: 6

Damage: 4 Piercing

SHORTBOW

Guard

Attack: 2

Damage: 7 Piercing

SHORTBOW

Guard

Attack: 17

Damage: 5 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 3

Damage: 3 Piercing

GM (GM):

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 10

Damage: 3 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 20

Damage: 6 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 11

Damage: 6 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 14

Damage: 5 Piercing

27 Total Damage

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 6

Damage: 6 Piercing

GM (GM):

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 3

Damage: 5 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 10

Damage: 4 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 10

Damage: 6 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 20

Damage: 4 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 2

Damage: 2 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 9

Damage: 2 Piercing

GM (GM):

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 17

Damage: 5 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 13

Damage: 3 Piercing

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 5

Damage: 3 Piercing

18

SHORTBOW
Guard

Attack: 16

Damage: 7 Piercing

SHORTBOW*GuardAttack: 7*Damage: 6 PiercingGM (GM):*SHORTBOWGuardAttack: 6*Damage: 2 PiercingSHORTBOWGuardAttack: 11*Damage: 6 PiercingSHORTBOWGuardAttack: 14*Damage: 6 PiercingSHORTBOWGuardAttack: 9*Damage: 6 PiercingSHORTBOWGuardAttack: 9*Damage: 3 PiercingSHORTBOWGuardAttack: 5*Damage: 2 PiercingGM (GM):*SHORTBOWGuardAttack: 20*Damage: 4 Piercing32

HIT POINTS Ancient Black Dragon <hr/> Hit Points: 375
--

Good morning everybody!

Liliet (Suldae): m o r n ^^

hey, Suldae was over here

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ok

The mists drift in strange and swirling shapes. Spectral images of fallen champions emerge, clutching their weapons, only to stare at you, hollow-eyed, before dissipating into skeletal forms and blusters of swirling fog.

Six conscious guards are about to open the gates for Strahd.

GM: (Henry, you just knocked one guard unconscious. You're still up.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves in front of them determined to not let them help Strahd in (EoT)

Guard: "Unhand me, unhand me! Let me go to him! Our master needs us..." The man has a dazed look in his eyes as he tries to rush into the gate-house. (Either Suldae or Henry may use their reaction to attempt to attack, grapple, or stun this man as he enters the western gate tower.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I grapple one

Guard: (Athletics check)

STRENGTH Guard <hr/> Ability: 20

Henry of Willowsbrook:

27

Grapple (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

you can use the Attack action to make a Special melee Attack, a grapple. If you're able to make multiple attacks with the Attack action, this Attack replaces one of them.

Using at least one free hand, you try to seize the target by making a grapple check instead of an Attack roll: a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you succeed, you subject the target to the Grappled condition.

>A grappled creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>The condition ends if the Grappler is incapacitated (see the condition).

>The condition also ends if an effect removes the grappled creature from the reach of the Grappler or Grappling effect, such as when a creature is hurled away by the Thunderwave spell.

Henry reaches out and grabs two of the guards rushing at the gate.

One guard makes it into the western gatehouse and grabs several axes, which he distributes to the other guards as soon as he emerges. The guards advance on the gate, axes upraised, eyes glazed.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae, who is still playing, shifts the melody. This is a grove, the music whispers, now calmer. A place for trees to grow and flourish; and for people to rest. Calm, restful, peaceful; you will be safe if you sleep.

21

Higher Level Cast

17

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

Guard: 38

3.4545454545454546

Three of the guards immediately collapse, snoring.

The remaining two guards stand loyal to you. Henry has grappled two charmed guards, still conscious. Suldae stands over three sleeping ones. A fourth sleeping one, knocked unconscious by Henry's blow, lies in the street.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is playing.

(EoT)

A fifth one is still running away.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Guard:

INITIATIVE
Strahd von Zarovich

Initiative: 18

Marcus Veranius stares at the sky, his initial dread having melted into tears. Some of past loss, some of present horrors.

Liliet (Suldae): (so im not saying we need ambience music, but, , ,)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT; Marcus doesn't have non-lethal takedowns. :U]

Liliet (Suldae): (the net???)

Marcus Veranius: (FAK)

Liliet (Suldae): (YOU CAN STILL UNDO IT THE DM HAS NOT DONE ANYTHING YET)

(in all the games I've played the rule for changing your mind was 'before the next person reacts')

Marcus Veranius: (...that other guard is super out of range)

(Net has like... 3 squares max)

Liliet (Suldae): (so you run?)

Marcus Veranius chases after the one guard

Marcus Veranius: This is NOT running away from the dragon or Strahd. It is a tactical chase.

[EoT]

Strahd von Zarovich: "I shall be very cross with you, Vallaki, if you do not greet me warmly in a moment or two. You had better not let anyone stand in your way."

Guard: "Stay away from me, you freak!"

Strahd von Zarovich:

LONGSWORD (TWO-HANDED)
Guard

Attack: 12

Damage: 8 Slashing

The guard takes a swing at the pursuing Marcus, and attempts to flee. As an Attack of Opportunity, you may attempt to snare him with your net.

Marcus Veranius is not in the mood for the three witty retorts he'd normally lay down against that comment

Marcus Veranius:

21

15

Net (+9)

Marcus Veranius

A Large or smaller creature hit by a net is Restrained until it is freed. A net has no effect on creatures that are formless, or creatures that are Huge or larger. A creature can use its action to make a DC 10 Strength check, freeing itself or another creature within its reach on a success. Dealing 5 slashing damage to the net (AC 10) also frees the creature without harming it, ending the effect and destroying the net.

When you use an action, Bonus Action, or Reaction to Attack with a net, you can make only one Attack regardless of the number of attacks you can normally make.

>A restrained creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>Attack rolls against the creature have advantage, and the creature's Attack rolls have disadvantage.

>The creature has disadvantage on Dexterity Saving Throws.

Wordlessly, he draws a net from his side and aims to subdue the guard. Less this chaos spread to the other gatehouses.

Guard: "Oof!"

The guard collapses, tangled completely in the net.

He screams pitifully. "Please! You must let me go! You must let me go!"

Strahd von Zarovich: "No answer?" Says Strahd, his voice growing cold.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "TOWN'S UNDER CONSTURCTION PLEASE RETURN AT A LATER DATE"
Henry yells back

Strahd von Zarovich: "Have all the people of this village forgotten their instincts for self-preservation?"

Liliet (Suldae): (Suldae is playing)

Strahd von Zarovich:

Mass Suggestion
Enchantment 6

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Up to twelve creatures of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: 24 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence up to twelve creatures of your choice that you can see within range and that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act automatically negates the effect of the spell. Each target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a group of soldiers give all their money to the first beggar they meet. If the condition isn't met before the spell ends, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage a creature affected by this spell, the spell ends for that creature.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a 7th-level spell slot, the Duration is 10 days. When you use an 8th-level spell slot, the Duration is 30 days. When you use a 9th-level spell slot, the Duration is a year and a day.

"I suggest that anyone listening should heed my words, and open this gate to me."

(DC 17 Wisdom saves all around, please)

(Suldae has advantage on the check)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

1

WISDOM SAVE (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind:

15

15

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Suldae Westwind

(FUCK)

(FUCK FUCK FUCK)

Strahd von Zarovich: (Marcus, it's all you)

Marcus Veranius:

17

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (you're out of range)

GM: Henry and Suldae will do anything in their power to open the gate -- on their next turn. Marcus is free to act normally.

Strahd von Zarovich: (Not for Strahd)

Sulda Westwind: (range: 60ft)

Strahd von Zarovich:

WISDOM
Commoner

Ability: 15 | 11

WISDOM
Commoner

Ability: 10 | 20

WISDOM
Commoner

Ability: 9 | 5

WISDOM
Commoner

Ability: 18 | 19

WISDOM
Commoner

Ability: 8 | 19

2

Sulda Westwind: (speak with plants has 10 mins duration. fuk)

Surprisingly, few if any villagers emerge from their houses at his call. It seems they fled into spaces where his voice could not reach them.

Strahd stands with his arms wide, ready to embrace Vallaki, which is slow to come and greet him.

GM: (Henry is up)

(In spite of her own urge to open the gate, Suldae can still attempt to hinder or stop Henry, and still understands that she should do so)

Sulda Westwind: (n i c e)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ugh)

Henry lets go of the two bespelled Guards he is holding

Sulda Westwind: (hm, so I haven't used my reaction)

(what can I do with a reaction)

(can I cast a spell with a reaction)

GM: (What spell did you have in mind?)

Sulda Westwind: (Suggestion)

GM: (Yes)

(The spoken component would require you to stop playing, if I'm not mistaken)

Suldae Westwind: "SNAP OUT OF IT!" Suldae screams, dropping the ocarina. "DON'T LISTEN TO HIM!"

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

GM: (Roll the wisdom save, Henry)

Suldae Westwind: @ Henry

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes out his Halberd

1

WISDOM SAVE (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(wtf)

Suldae Westwind: (THANK YOU DICE)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so I'm back to normal?)

GM: You fall under her influence, and Strahd's.

So now you know you want desperately to do something for Strahd

But you no longer remember what he said.

Suldae Westwind: this is amazing

(this is VERY ooc me saying lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ah paralysing indesicion it is)

Suldae Westwind: (so incidentally, who still has Suldae's inspiration)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry, halberd raised ready to strike pause visbly confused at what he was supposed to do

GM: It feels a bit like walking an armful of dirty laundry to the washer and suddenly realizing that you're standing over the bathtub for some reason with an armful of dirty laundry and no memory of how you got there or what you were doing.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He leans on his halberd, mind spinning and headache growing "Wha..." EoT

GM: (Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae picks up the ocarina, her head swimming. She remembers there's an effect she's maintaining and that it's important, but she also remembers that she needs to open the gate, and the life of everyone in Vallaki depends on it.

She looks at the trees. They grew here at her command, didn't they? Why did she do that? She can't remember, but it doesn't matter. They should still listen.

"Open," she asks.

12

25

PERSUASION (7)
Suldae Westwind

(NO ADVANTAGE)

(I FORGOT TO TURN IT OFF)

Suldae Westwind: (THE 12 GOES)

With trembling temerity, the branches refuse Suldae's command.

Strahd von Zarovich: "That's right, my children... You are born of this land, and you are of the land. And / am the land."

Suldae Westwind: (this was the action, right?)

Strahd von Zarovich: "Open, as the half-elf said."

The branches rattle, shaking leaves free.

The branches strain and groan, beginning to part.

Suldae Westwind: "We need to open this, or we're dead!" Suldae cries, a part of her mind aware that something is wrong but the larger part believing that whatever it is can wait, and opening the gate is more urgent.

The gate is beginning to open. Suldae feels her mind freed from the Suggestion. Henry feels the suggestion in his mind changing -- transforming into an urge to kill the nearest thing.

Strahd begins to laugh as the branches snap themselves and crumble off in woody chunks.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's eyes widen in horror, as she realizes what just happened. Not knowing what else to do, she jumps forward into the breach and attempts to hold the wood together with her hands.

(does she have actions left or did the persuasion roll consume that)

Green leaves rush from the branches and form into emerald hands and grasp her firmly by the forearms. She is held in the gap by the embrace of the forest. Bark begins to grow on her skin.

She sees shadowy shapes of green dart across the crumbling gate, knitting, weaving, braiding new-growth vines and branches across the crumbling gap.

Suldae Westwind: With trembling hands she puts the ocarina back to her lips, guided by forest's embrace, and continues her previous song.

She sees green hands break the earth, and bring forth new trees of stout redwood -- a brand-new palisade door, completely sealing the gate, even as her original gate crumbles.

The green figures vanish back into the wood, becoming just a distortion of shadows on the bark of the trees, then nothing at all.

Suldae Westwind: (W H E W)
(EoT)

Strahd von Zarovich: Two gauntlets of bark have grown on her skin, covering her forearms and the backs of her hands.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: (Can Marcus see Strahd through the holes in the barrier?)

GM: (Henry still seems to be enchanted by both Suldae and Strahd, and very confuzzled. Strahd is no longer visible beyond the dense new growth which has filled the gate.)

There is a single gap, through which a golden eye blazes.

The oath bow trembles in Marcus's hands.

Marcus feels the brush of a powerful mind attempting to crush his will and dominate his desires. He shrugs it off. He also senses the center of evil itself, hovering above the city, swooping around just inside the cloud cover.

Choices, choices, Marcus...

Marcus Veranius: Those eyes Marcus knows all too well. Twice have they tried to sunder his will, and twice had he kept his resolve. What weighed more? Revenge, or Perseverance?

Surrender the gates for a chance to settle past pain, or abandon it for those in the present.

There was no choice. The oathbow would remain strapped to his side as crossbow sung its retort to Strahd's cry.

"Leave."

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

1

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

13

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)

Marcus Veranius

5

Piercing

Marcus Veranius:

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

6

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

13

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)

Marcus Veranius

10

Piercing

11

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)

Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

(...)

(My miss senses are tingling)

Zanshukun: (Strahds real power is making us roll like shit it seems)

Strahd's laughter echoes through the night. Wolves howl in a chorus that seems to come from all sides. It seems the armies of the night have encircled Vallaki.

The darkness blossoms, encompassing the gate. It is impossible to see if your crossbow bolts had any impact.

Henry is freed from Strahd's Suggestion.

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE Ancient Black Dragon <hr/> Initiative: 15.14
--

Henry of Willowsbrook: (are we supposed to not see Suldae right now?)

Suldae Westwind: (ya great q coz Suldae was inside the barrier)

GM: The forest has by now deposited Suldae back on your side of the barrier, before Strahd's Darkness spell overcame the barrier.

"Very well, then," says Strahd von Zarovich. Suldae feels the Weave move and flow. Strahd's voice then booms out over the entire city. "Have it your way. Nothing will leave or enter Vallaki until you have made peace with me, your king. I shall return tomorrow night. Bring me the wizard, Ireena, and Vallaki shall be spared from my wrath. Fail me again, and I will destroy you all."

You see a pulse of light blast into the sky a moment later, as though a teleportation circle has just been used.

All grows quiet.

It seems the dawn light is about to kiss the sky.

The darkness is slowly fading as the sky brightens. A dragon roars, soaring southwest.

Somehow you know that you will see it again soon.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes to the end of a verse and lowers the ocarina, exhausted beyond measure.

Strahd von Zarovich: 800 XP

GM: (You each gain 800 XP)

Guard: "Wh... Where am I?" The guard Henry knocked unconscious is coming around.

The other guards begin to rouse themselves. They look around, confused.

They stare at the wall of darkness where the gate was, and scuttle away in horror.

The guard in Marcus's net suddenly rolls over onto his back and stares up at Marcus.

"Let me out," he says. He seems to be fighting off an anxiety attack.

"Please! I'm bad with tight spaces."

Marcus Veranius takes the lull in combat as his sign that he can stop being strong. He helps the guard out of the net, packs it away gently, then collapses onto the cobbles.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry mind now less clouded turns to Suldae "Would... Would you mind stopping...stopping that" He Gestures at his head Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, releasing the spell.

"Sorry," she says quietly. "It was the only thing I could think of"

Guard: One of the guards runs into the tower.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head "Don't worry about it" he offers her his arm concerned she might slip on the still wet cobbles as weak as she now seems Suldae Westwind: Suldae accepts his arm gratefully, and clips the ocarina back onto her belt with her other one.

"We survived today, it seems," she says weakly. "Now to find out what happened elsewhere, I suppose."

Milivoj: A young man comes running down the street, spots Marcus, and sprints to him. Breathlessly, Milivoj says: "Come quickly! It's the church!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods weakly the rush of combat leaving him

Milivoj: "Come quickly!" He says, seeming on the verge of tears. "Come on!"

"Please!"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Seems the nights not over yet"

Marcus Veranius: "It seems I will find no respite this day."

Marcus Veranius is easy to drag along, his will all but evaporated

Suldae Westwind: Suldae tiredly limps along, attempting to lean on Henry as little as possible. This night has not been easy on any of them.

By the time you reach the corner of the intersection where the church comes into view, you see the cause of Milivoj's concern. The church has a gaping hole in the ceiling.

Marcus Veranius: (It took 20 seconds for the map page to load in. Iunno if you wanna kill the lighting effects)

Suldae Westwind: (i am seeing only a white rectangle)
(and now a purple pointy circle on the white rectangle)

GM: (Can you see now?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "please tell me my minds still under spell and there is not really a hole in the Church"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pats him on the back sympathetically. "I wish"

She has burned out through her reserve of not sarcasm completely.

Marcus Veranius inspects the hole carefully for signs of acid melt. This may have been the dragon's true purpose after all.

Suldae Westwind: (I am still only seeing a white rectangle btw)

(and now also a black squiggle)

GM: (Try reloading the page?)

Marcus Veranius: (The black squiggle is a former church)

GM: (Anyone else seeing the map?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I see It)

GM: (I turned off the lighting effect, that might help)

Marcus Veranius: (It took a while to load in when you first switched to it, but I see it)

Suldae Westwind: (im going to reload the page)

GM: Let me know if it works

I see it!

Suldae Westwind: without the lighting effects

"The bones?..." Suldae trails off. The chances that those are fine aren't exactly stellar. But hope springs eternal.

GM (GM): (I had to reload it too)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (big priesti boi tokens)

GM (GM): (They weren't appearing when I was placing them, had to reload the page to see them)

Milivoj: "Come on!"

Milivoj races up the steps and into the church.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry still some what fresh in body follows right behind him

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is matching Henry's steps

Marcus Veranius: "The bones." Marcus retorts, tone a mix of pained acceptance. He already knows how things are in the church without even having to see it.

Suldae Westwind: If the priests aren't idiots, Suldae thinks, the bones should have been underground again.

Would that help against a dragon?...

Marcus feels a strange aversion to the inside of the church. At the same time, Henry and Suldae step inside, to see a large boulder filling most of the space. It rests within a sunbeam. Beneath it, pinned in the small space between the altar and the boulder, you see an arm extending into the sunlight.

Milivoj: "Come on!" Milivoj is in tears now. He rushes to the hand and grasps it.

"I brought them! Father, I brought them!"

"They're here!"

Priest: "Oh, what's that, boy?" Father Lucian's voice is weak and quavering.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lights bright and merciful" Henry murmurs

Suldae Westwind: Suldae runs over and touches the arm. She half-murmurs half-sings a prayer of Corellon, not knowing if the man is injured but aiming to make it not so anyway.

8

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

Suldae Westwind

Priest: "Oh, why -- I feel stronger already!"

"Thank you, child! You were right to seek these people out."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks around seeking something that could be used to stem the boulder up and away

Suldae Westwind: "The crowbar?" Suldae wonders, looking over at Marcus. She's not sure it'll help, but hey, brainstorming, right?

Nothing in the chamber seems particularly suited to use as a lever. Except... There is a large cast-iron tapestry bar on one wall.

The problem is that it's twenty feet up, and about twenty feet long.

Suldae Westwind: Her hand still rests on the priest's, attempting to bring him comfort.

GM: (Has Marcus entered the church yet?)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus has)

Priest: 22

Marcus bursts into holy flame and is immediately expelled from the church.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "to short to be of use" Henry remarks eyeing the bar

Marcus lands rudely on the steps of the church, lightly singed.

He knows, somehow, that this was a relative love-tap.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What the ? Marcus you alright"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks in his direction, eyes wide.

Marcus can stand in the doorway, but cannot cross the threshold without flames appearing.

Marcus Veranius lies on the ground outside, not bothering to get up this time.

Marcus Veranius: "I stopped being OK an hour ago."

"This is just icing."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll help," Suldae promises the priest with certainty and rushes over to Marcus. She offers her hand to help him up - or rather, attempts to drag him upright regardless of his wishes. She whispers the prayer again.

5

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius is dragged up, standing only because Suldae willed it

The black cat hops up onto a gravestone nearby and watches you calmly.

You suddenly realize that several people in black clothing are standing in the road, observing the church.

Suldae Westwind: It does not matter what he's done and what is wrong - she wishes and prays for it, and knows Weave will respond.

Suldae looks over at them, supporting Marcus even though she's barely able to stand herself.

As you watch, more emerge from around the sides of the building. You see Ravens flying into the graveyard. A moment later, people emerge from behind the gravestones.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Do you have a ladder or something like that around here?" Henry asks
Marcus is clearly hurt but so was the preist and one of those he could help

Priest: "A... ladder? I... Think so. In the shed."

"Behind the church."

Marcus Veranius looks around at the robed figures. Of all the days for them to meet in person, it had to be at his worst.

Danika: The tavern keeper approaches, and crouches down, and touches Marcus on the shoulder. He feels restored by powerful healing magic.

Danika Martikov smiles down at Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: (Marcus is already standing)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry now noticing the people outside turns to Milivoj "could you go fetch the ladder please"

Milivoj: "Sure thing, sir!"

Milivoj runs off, looking worried.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He approaches the others outside with forced calm

Wereraven: "We were pleased by your performance today," says Urwin Martikov, leaning casually against the banister of the stairs leading up to the church.

Marcus Veranius attempts to smile back, weakly. "I do not deserve your kindness. Thank you."

Suldae Westwind: "Perfomance," Suldae says. "Is that a pun, or?..."

She's lightly yet visibly swaying on her feet.

The smile on her face looks slightly frozen.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys eyes pass bye each of them in turn setteling on the Speaker

Wereraven: One of the were ravens unslings a mandolin and begins to play. The restful tune moves through your bones, restoring your bodies.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "we are gratefull to have 'entertained' you then" Henry said voice all vinegar

Suldae Westwind: Suldae straightens up and sighs, familiar swirls of the weave, now guided by someone else, comforting her mind as well as her body.

Memories of what happened today crash into her anew, but she's able to keep standing nonetheless.

She looks around more alertly.

Wereraven: Urwin Martikov smiles mirthlessly at Henry. "Do you know why the Keepers of the Feather have so cautiously guarded their secrets for so long?"

"Our enemy is wily. Our enemy is crafty. Our enemy is deadly. Our enemy is persistent. Our enemy is thorough."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Habits mostly by now?"

Wereraven: "We are not the first organized society to attempt to depower and destroy him."

Marcus Veranius: "Because Strahd has his roots in everything." Marcus retorts. "No matter how many we sever, his influence springs up somewhere else."

Suldae Westwind: "Is... our friend safe?" Suldae pipes into the conversation.

Strahd's mention of her to the entire town fills her mind.

Wereraven: "And now that we have seen you stand against his will, we cannot let you pass unaided through this land."

Danika says: "Your friend is safe. We have already hidden her with us."

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you," Suldae breathes out with a weak smile. She feels as though a mountain has fallen off her shoulders.

Wereraven: Danika reaches out a hand. A raven flies down to her finger. She extends her hand towards Suldae.

"We have had to take precautions, naturally."

"Her form could give her away. Strahd can see through most illusions."

"It was necessary to alter her completely, you understand."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae extends a hand with trepidation.

She notices the bark on it anew.

Wereraven: "She is unharmed, of course. We can turn her back at any time."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "so she's a bird now" Henry sighs

Wereraven: The Raven hops over to Suldae, bounces up her arm, and perches on her shoulder. It nuzzles her with its beak rather affectionately.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the raven with her hand extended.

Marcus Veranius squints, then nods solemnly. "Strahd's magics could track her so easily had you done anything else. This was wise."

Suldae Westwind: She leans her head to the side, attempting to something like nuzzle it back.

Marcus Veranius: "It would not be the first time either."

Suldae Westwind: Upon second thought, she reaches with a hand to touch the raven's head instead. The large bird is heavy, but she is extending all effort she can to stand straight and keep her comfortable.

Wereraven: "We must plot our next move. The village will not last long in a siege. The allies of Strahd will tear his enemies to pieces. Already the cult is making moves."

"In a day or two, this place will be a bloodbath unless we do something."

Suldae Westwind: The plant growth on her hand seems entirely unimportant in the light of everything else, although a part of her mind is screaming that it's more important than anything else, since it's her arms. Suldae is still ignoring that part though.

She looks at the speaker, allowing the words to sink in.

(question: do we know this person's face/name? this isn't Danika, right?)

Wereraven: A few Wereravens approach the door of the church. They do not enter, and seem to take great caution not to cross the threshold. They raise their hands and gesture at the giant boulder, which slowly rises into the air weightlessly.

GM: (The Danika is the same Danika Martikov from the tavern)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah but she's not the one speaking right now?)

(oh wait, she is)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh radiant Light guide and protect us till the Last Dawn" Henry murmurs in practiced cadence "So I take it you fine folk have a plan then"

Suldae Westwind: (who was the other person?)

The priest emerges from the space beneath the boulder. The interior of the church and the altar seem to be unharmed by the boulder.

GM: (The other person was Urwin Martikov, her husband)

Suldae Westwind: (I'm going to assume Suldae knows him then, ty

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to look at the priest contrite. He had almost completely forgotten him

Marcus Veranius looks into the church, eyes watching as the priest became free. The tapestry they intended to use, however, quickly caught his eye. And with it, an idea.

The Wereravens fling up their hands, and the boulder hurtles out of the church with a swirl of wind that raises the priest's white hair in gusting wisps, and gutters all the candles. The boulder soars away, no doubt aimed at a nearby mountain.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae watches the complex magics at play, her eyes wide. She's had little interaction with mages who weren't other bards of Corellon.

Wereraven: "As you can see," says Danika, "We are capable allies."

"In spite of the limitations of our curse."

Sulda Westwind: This is somewhat like watching fireworks for a kid, for her.

Wereraven: "You are not the only one who cannot walk on hallowed ground, Marcus."

Sulda Westwind: It's certainly doing a great job of distracting her from all the horrors of today.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...I am starting to get tired of magic" Henry whispers to himself

Sulda Westwind: Suldae grimaces guiltily. She still doesn't feel particularly fine about using compulsion magic on a friend, despite knowing it was her only choice.

(TY for the visual!!!)

Her free hand finds the holy symbol at her throat and fingers it. She reaches for the warmth within it for comfort.

Eyes closed for the moment, she offers a silent prayer to Correllon for centering of mind and grace of thought.

The bark catches her attention again, but she still pushes the thought aside.

Marcus Veranius: "I tire of many things. But rest is for those who have no danger at their heels."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry catches her expression before heaving a deep sigh "Suldae I told you it was fine I just..." he takes a moment to form the sentences, he was so tired,"..feel so insufficient in the face of such wonders"

Marcus Veranius: "At least we may be tired in the company of good friends."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks at him, eyes wide, then finding no words, reaches for him, takes his arm and touches her forehead to it, attempting to both give comfort and take it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and horrors" He adds shivering at the memory of Stradhs grasp on his mind

Sulda Westwind: "I could not resist either," she whispers, "and it could have been the greater disaster."

Wereraven: "Come, we have much planning to do. We will use the Tavern as our fortress, for now."

"You should come as well, Father. You may be useful."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae, still holding onto Henry's arm, catches Marcus's with the other.

Marcus Veranius nods. "I will assume my ejection from the church means the bones are still safe. There is some solace in that, even if my entry be barred."

Priest: Father Lucian nods solemnly, smoothing his whips white hair.

Sulda Westwind: She walks between them, holding onto both, Ireena on her shoulder.

Priest: "Yes, the bones remain safe."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Don't suppose we could rest before planning even if its only a little while"

Sulda Westwind: "Thank the gods," Sulda whispers at the news.

Wereraven: "We can rest in the tavern with the doors and windows barred. It will not see guests until after the noon hour, so we have the morning to ourselves."

(Do you agree with her suggestion, and go to the tavern, or do you suggest some alternative spot, or make some other decision?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Small favors" Henry hums his tiredness blanketing his mind more so than his body

Sulda Westwind: Sulda has no objections, and is ready to follow.

She is keeping hold of her companions, for comfort more than anything.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus likes the tavern suggestion. His walk maintains more spring than it did moments ago. Perhaps the day was salvageable; hard to wallow in doubt with so many doing their best to raise spirits.

Sulda Westwind: (wait, is it like.... morning already???)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (yep dawn came a strahd fucked of)
as)

Sulda Westwind: (ty)

(uh, am i the only on seeing two suldaes)

Marcus Veranius: (Sulda and the Cooler Sundae)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (nope Henry also just selfduplicated

GM: (The Description of this room, again)

Damp cloaks hang from pegs in the entrance portico. The tavern is packed with tables and chairs, with narrow paths meandering between them. A bar stretches along one wall, under a balcony that can be reached by a wooden staircase that hugs the north wall. Another balcony overhangs an entrance to the east. All the windows are fitted with thick shutters and crossbars. Lanterns hanging above the bar and resting on the tables bathe the room in dull orange light and cast shadows upon the walls, most of which are adorned with wolf heads mounted on wooden plaques.

Danika and Urwin methodically lock all the doors and windows on the ground floor, sending their boys to do the same on the upper floor. Meanwhile, the other Wereravens sidle into the room and get comfortable.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda drags both Marcus and Henry to the table with her before getting seated.

(i can move henry's token :D)

You see a representative age group. 4 Young men, 3 Young women, 3 Old men, 2 Old women, and 4 Children.

GM: ALRIGHT IT'S TIME TO NAME SOME NPC'S
EACH GOOD NAME IS 10 GP

Marcus Veranius: Bill
Bill Jr

Suldae Westwind: Marina, Olena, Bogdan

Marcus Veranius: Bill Sr

Wereraven: 20 GP to Marcus
30 GP to Suldae

Henry of Willowsbrook: Miroslav

Suldae Westwind: Gleb, Oleg, Ruslan, Lyudmila
Dana, Milana

Henry of Willowsbrook: Friedhelm Janosh

Wereraven: 10 GP to Henry

Suldae Westwind: Vladimir
Lubov

Henry of Willowsbrook: Detlef

Suldae Westwind: Tamara, Kira
Danila

Wereraven: Boom, contest is over

Suldae Westwind: (lubov is female, danila is male btw)

^^

(I'll take those 30gp :D)

Wereraven: All yours

Henry of Willowsbrook: (whats gp?)

Marcus Veranius: (Gold Pieces)

Suldae Westwind: (miroslav is a great one btw)

GM: Alright you can look outside the tavern to see the names, I'm removing the lighting effect
If you see a name you suggested, take 10 GP for it

Suldae Westwind: ...im going to refresh the page. the lighting effect moves with me scrolling instead of disappearing lmao

GM: Lol

TeChNiCaL dIfFiCuLtLeS

Wereraven: Technical Difficulties

Tops K.: The unfortunate thing is that only those who can control the token can see the names.
Therefore, we don't get paid jack tiddly

Zanshuken: (damn and no mystery biscuits)

Liliet (Suldae): (yp)

GM: Well frag-doodly

Ireena Kolyana: NAMES UESED:

BILL JR (Young Man)

BOGDAN (Young Man)

OLEG (Young Man)

DANILA (Young Man)

MARINA (Young Woman)

Ireena Kolyana: OLENA (Young Woman)

LYUDMILA (Young Woman)

BILL (Old Man)

MIROSLAV (Old Man)

GLEB (Old Man)

TAMARA (Old Woman)

Ireena Kolyana: KIRA (Old Woman)

VLADIMIR (Little Boy)

LUBOV (Little Girl)

JANOSH (Teenage Boy)

FRIEDHELM (Teenage Girl)

GM: I expect to see all of those on the important NPCs list

Liliet (Suldae): (holy shit i get 100GP :D)

Marcus Veranius: (No)

Liliet (Suldae): (Marcus pleeeeeease :o)

Marcus Veranius: (OK fine)

GM: Each one that's still alive by the end of the week is worth additional XP

Henry of Willowsbrook: Friedhelm is a guys name

GM: Well, I should say, at the end of the siege

Her parents are very modern

Liliet (Suldae): I'm guessng she gets called Frieda in everyday conversation XD

Marcus Veranius looks around the room, waiting to see if anyone would take the floor. If not, he motions to speak himself.

Liliet (Suldae): OOOH

I'm starting ot see their names!

teenagers are genderless~

all teenagers are secretly nb

this is an important truth to acknowledge

...is there an easy way to make all tokens half sized

Liliet (Suldae): so they fit the chair size

^^

now we fit in the tavern much better

Marcus Veranius: "I do not know what passes as entertainment in Barovia; have you heard of stage magicians? Sleight of hand experts who use guile and trickery to confuse the mind, rather than magic?"

"Drop a curtain, lift it up. The man under has vanished into thin air."

The raven hops onto the table.

Marcus Veranius: "Moved out of sight, but seemingly made to evaporate. The senses betray what reality isnt."

The black cat jumps up onto the table.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae raises her eyebrows at that description, and waits for Marcus to elaborate.

The cat nuzzles the raven.

Suddenly, the cat is nuzzling Ireena Kolyana, who is sitting on the table.

Marcus Veranius: "We have half a parlor trick. Strahd's chosen bride has vanished, and no magic will be able to point her location."

Ireena greets the cat into her arms and it crawls onto her shoulders.

Ireena Kolyana: "Hi guys!"

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae stands up, pushes her chair aside, and offers Ireena her arm

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena stands up on the table and hops off with Suldae' aid.

Marcus Veranius: "Now how can we complete the act in a way that tricks Strahd to leave the village be?"

Liliet (Suldae): She smiles at her radiantly, joy lighting up her features and melting away the mental exhausting of this night.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tiredly begins the process of taking of his armor as best he can for

now

Ireena Kolyana: The cat remains perched on her shoulder. Ireena seats herself in Suldae's chair.

Marcus Veranius: "I open the floor to ideas."

Ireena Kolyana: *on the arm of Urwin: The owner of the Blue Water strokes his greying beard thoughtfully.

"I don't believe our illusion magic would stretch far enough to achieve a simulacrum, would it?"

Danika: Danika shakes her head, sadly.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae pulls Ireena down into the chair proper and seats herself into her lap, judging this a better arrangement than vice versa due to their respective sizes,

Urwin: "Damn."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry ignoring Marcus for now turns to Danika "you wouldn't happen to have some cherry or apple brandy would you?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena seems to enjoy the new arrangement better.

Liliet (Suldae): (FUCK)

Ireena Kolyana: The cat hops down into Suldae's lap.

Liliet (Suldae): (my mouse is not doing what i want gimme a minute)

Suldae is petting the cat as she's listening to everyone.

(ty)

Marcus Veranius: "I have one idea if no one has a better suggestion, though I hesitate given how risky and foolish it may be."

Danika: "I'll see what I can rustle up. Our stores are getting light, the last shipment was late."

Danika leaves, moving into the kitchen. You hear the sound of children playing for a moment inside the kitchen, then the door swings shut.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae has a thought as well, though she hopes Marcus's idea is better.

Urwin: "We must look to the safety of Vallaki and its people."

"We will do what we can to help you, and to get her out of the village."

"But we have our own people to think about first."

"It's clear that Strahd must be slain, I think we agree on that point."

Marcus Veranius: "Mayhaps we may not need to evacuate just yet. Perhaps we give Strahd what he wants."

"A bride to soothe his aching heart, though not necessarily the one of his choosing."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's mind sluggishly rumbles over what he knows about the region, Strahd and the Divine as a whole Sulda Westwind: Suldae gives Marcus a glare. She doesn't doubt he doesn't mean what that sounds like, but a token glare is in order nonetheless.

Urwin: Urwin cocks an eyebrow. "What did you have in mind?"

Marcus Veranius: "There is a certain elder in this town who is obsessed with Strahd, wanting nothing more than to make peace with him as to save Vallaki."

"Her methods are crude and I cannot justify them, but her heart may suit our purposes."

Urwin: "You are referring, I presume, to Lady Fiona Wachter. You mean too persuade her to stand in for Ireena?"

Marcus Veranius: "What if in the absence of the real Ireena, we could make her into a fake? Grant her the chance to be with Strahd as his bride."

Sulda Westwind: Suldae whistles appreciatively.

Urwin: "That's not a half-bad idea. You might find her more complex than that, however." Urwin glances at his wife, who has re-entered the room.

Danika: Danika approaches Henry, offering him a bottle of peach brandy. "This is what we have, I'm afraid."

Marcus Veranius: "Well I didn't say it was a GOOD idea. There are countless risks."

"Nevermind the methods of HOW we would shape her into Ireena's doppelganger."

Danika: "Lady Wachter still sleeps with the corpse of her husband. She keeps it from rotting with a Gentle Repose spell."

Sulda Westwind: "It would, of course, be highly unethical to use magic to aid in her persuasion," Suldae murmurs. Suggestion only lasts a short while, but if the suggestion is made for her to find convincing reasons why she'd want it...

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry peeling himself out of his chestplate and pauldrons takes a moment to think "wait a moment Suldae what did that Elf tell you the one we met at Lady Wachters"

Danika: "So you might find she'll take some convincing to, uh... Move on."

Sulda Westwind: "That she's evil," Suldae answers. "The fact he isn't on her side was the more interesting bit of information there, if implicit."

Urwin: "Elf? What elf?"

"The Dusk Elf?"

Sulda Westwind: "...you know," she remarks to Danika, "the idea of using magic there is growing on me."

Under the circumstances it might actually count as therapy.

Kira: An old woman seated at a long table with some other elders, smoking a pipe, says: "Aye, there's a tragic tale."

Sulda Westwind: She nods to Urwin.

Marcus Veranius: "The fact of the matter is, it would be easier to convince one person to play a part than it would be to hold off all of Barovia's monsters. If it meant cutting around an impossible siege, I would give it a try."

Sulda Westwind: And looks to Kira curiously.

Miroslav: . An old man pats Kira's hand. "Not now, Kira. Not in front of the children."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods his thanks at Danika before taking a deep gulp of the brandy, not quite the taste of home he had sought but close enough for now

Ireena Kolyana: "'Tis too gruesome."

(That last as Miroslav, sorry)

Miroslav: "'Tis too gruesome."

Tamara: "They've a right to hear it! They are a part of this land as much as any of us!" An elderly woman at the back of the table blurts out.

Olena: "I want to hear it, grandmother!" One of the young women guarding the front door pipes up.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda looks around the room. No actual small children seem to be actually present.

"Maybe we should hear it," she adds her voice to the suggestion.

Urwin: Urwin looks at Kira. "That old elf won't help us. He's too wrapped in his pain. He'd need something from us, to make it worth the diversion from his grieving."

Kira: "Alright, then. I'll tell the tale."

"Once, there was a thriving community of Dusk Elves in this area."

"Their people had lived alongside us, in the hills and the forests, for centuries. Bear in mind, my grandmother's mother was just a child at the time this happened. It was a long, long time ago."

"They say there was a woman among the Dusk Elves, more beautiful than all the rest. Her name was Patrina Velikovna."

"Her beauty brought the attention of Strahd, who chose her as his bride."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda listens, perhaps more attentively than the rest.

And doubly so now.

Kira: "His treacherous manservant, Rahadin, opposed the union. Patrina was sent back to her people in secret, against the will of Strahd."

"It is said she longed for power, and went to Strahd willingly."

Her people stoned her to death for it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns dreading how the story will no doubt end already Sulda Westwind: Sulda's eyebrows rise, both for the use of the word 'treacherous' and Patrina's ending.

Kira: "Strahd's vengeance was cold, and calculating. Through a curse, he slew the women and children among the Dusk elves. By the hand of his manservant, Rahadin, he mutilated the surviving males -- clipping their ears, to shame them. Ever since, he has kept his spies near them, watching them, ensuring that their power does not grow and their allegiance to him remains strong."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda frowns.

"Why did Rahadin did what he did?"

Kira: "Spies have said that the Dusk Elf Kasimir, Patrina's brother, would be a good target to turn to our side."

"The Dusk Elves live forever. Now they live forever as a broken people -- without a future. He will not allow any of them to make children, or to adopt new members into their community. They are doomed to a dwindling fate."

 Suldae Westwind: "Sounds to me like they would all make good targets..." Suldae mumbles under her breath. No allegiance brought by fear can be more than skin deep.

Urwin: "Their power has always been a rumor. It is said that they are gifted spell casters."

"Now that the spies who watched them in the Vistani camp are gone, we can approach them for aid."

Oleg: One of the young men asks: "Wait, what happened to the Vistani camp?"

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces visibly.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grunts "Tiger got loose"

Urwin: "A tiger attacked it. There were no survivors."

Oleg: "What? NO!?"

Oleg bolts to his feet and flees for the door.

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches her hand to grip Marcus's. She squeezes, attempting to comfort him / help center his thoughts.
(fff)

Olena: The two young women guarding the door hold it shut, looking to their elders for commands.

 Suldae Westwind: (one sec while i place the token as i want)

Urwin: Urwin sighs heavily, massaging his temples.

 Suldae Westwind: (there)

Urwin: "I'm afraid she's gone, Oleg. There's no use leaving Vallaki to find out what you already know."

Oleg: Oleg collapses as though his legs have been taken out from under him. He slides down the door pitifully, breaking into silent sobs. He is trying very hard not to show his face to the room.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae finds Ireena's hand with her other one and threads her fingers through hers, seeking comfort of her own.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry regards the other man with open sympathy

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena gives Suldae's hand a squeeze.

"Alright," says Ireena. "So some bad things happened."

"But we've got to move forward."

"Where do we go from here?"

"How do we get out of Vallaki? Do we get out of Vallaki?"

Urwin: "I understand from the reports, you and your companions visited the fortune teller. Is that true?"

Sulda Westwind: "We could suggest to Fiona to consider our plan," Suldae says.

Urwin: "Perhaps in her words there may be some wisdom."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Her Lady Wachter wanted us to kill the Burgomeisters Man for her because his arm scared her "

Sulda Westwind: "Though it's a risky plan."

Marcus Veranius looks up. "Some wisdom came from the Vistani, though none immediately relevant to our predicament."

Sulda Westwind: "We have spoken to the fortune teller, yes," Suldae rakes her memory for the old woman's words.

Marcus Veranius: "Although..."

Sulda Westwind: Then she goes to her notebook instead.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I haven't" Henry adds sardonically the way things had gone fortune telling might just have been salt in his wounds

Sulda Westwind: "Walls of bones, a chandelier of bones, and a table of bones -- all that remains of enemies long forgotten," she reads.

"A powerful force for good and protection, a holy symbol of great hope"

Marcus Veranius: "The dusk elves mentioned an amber temple which held power beyond Strahd. Madame Eva mentioned a treasure in a castle guarded by amber giants."

Sulda Westwind: "Thsi might just refer to the church here, but if not..."

Marcus Veranius: "If these are two in the same, that may be a possible way forward once the siege is mitigated."

Sulda Westwind: "The treasure is hidden in a small castle beneath a mountain, guarded by amber giants... And a dragon," Suldae reads the other passage.

She looks up at Marcus.

Urwin: "The description of the bones sound like the Hall of Bones, inside the castle. We have heard rumors of such a place. The other does sound like it might have something to do with the Amber Temple."

Marcus Veranius: "There is one prophecy we have identified in a cave of wolves to the west. The only other would be a vault of temptation hidden behind a woman of great beauty."

"Where which we will find a creature of darkness that will lead us to Strahd... or something."

Sulda Westwind: "The castle?" Suldae asks. "Castle Ravenloft itself, where he lives? Sounds... dubiously useful, if so."

Urwin: Urwin shakes his head. "I'm afraid I can't help you there."

Marcus Veranius: "It's all bollocks in the now. Treasures we have neither the time nor secrecy to acquire."

"Though the dusk elves' tale does embolden me to reaffirm my plan."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena's cat hops up onto the table, picks up a black raven feather in its mouth, and drops it on the table in front of Marcus. "There are ways we could move unseen," says Ireena.

Suldae Westwind: "Alternatively," Suldae speaks up, "if we can manage to get out of the town past Strahd's blockade, and alert him that we did without handing ourselves to him on a silver platter..." she trails off. This consists of two parts, competing for least doable.

Marcus Veranius picks up the feather, staring at it curiously

Suldae Westwind: She looks up at Ireena, hopeful for another solution.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry muses for a second "the Lake might be something we could look into it's where Izek got his arm that seems to atleast inconvenience Strahd"

Marcus Veranius: "...well, that'd be ONE way of getting around I suppose. If we were to receive that blessing."

"Regardless, Strahd is a creature of Ego. He will NOT let Vallaki go unless we give him what he wants. And what he wants is a beautiful bride."

"Not necessarily Ireena, as there have been brides before and likely brides after."

"That is our key. We counter war with love."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wrinkles her nose skeptically.

"I think he might be the type to go after Ireena just to prove he's not to be denied, even if another woman catches his eye."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry laughs "Didn't take you for a romantic"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark approaches the little table and seats himself next to Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: "He's after affirming his power as much as he's after... well, lust"

Suldae has her own opinions on what counts as love and what doesn't.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What about Rictavio?"

"Should we try to contact him?"

"Do we trust him, at this point?"

You do not need to be reminded of the corpses falling in the street

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I trust him to oppose Strahd but with little else "

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Isn't that enough?"

Ireena Kolyana: "No, Ismark. It's not enough."

"The Baron opposes Strahd."

Marcus Veranius: "Rictavio is a wicked man, but he is also an enemy of Strahd." Marcus affirms, voice bordering on cold. "I trust him to work with us however we may go about out buisness."

Ireena Kolyana: "Do you see us looking at him as an ally?"

Sulda Westwind: Suldae's eyes dart towards the young man shuddering in grief at the door, then back to Ismarck.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He would see this town ruined if it gave him a shot at ending Stradh" Ireena Kolyana: "That's true enough," says Ireena.

Sulda Westwind: "He is not exactly reliable, even if he means... well..." Suldae says, not concealing her skepticism at the word "well".

Ismark Kolyanovich: "So would I!" Shouts Ismark, and he thumps the table with both fists.

Sulda Westwind: Suldae reaches over the table and smacks him on the head.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "We should be hunting that beast down, not finding out how to appease his ego." Ismark gets to his feet, ruefully rubbing his head.

Sulda Westwind: "Rictavio would sacrifice Ireena in heartbeat," she notes.

Ismark Kolyanovich: He starts pacing around the table, crossing his arms.

Sulda Westwind: She's well aware the manipulation is crude, but so's his reasoning.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Rictavio would use Ireena as bait," says Ismark, remorselessly. "But he'd only do that if he thought there was a chance of killing that vampire for the cost."

Marcus Veranius: "This is a game of chess, Ismark. Strahd has us in check, Checkmate if we do not lessen his hold."

Ireena Kolyana: "Uh, hi," says Ireena, hand upraised.

"Not going to be bait," says Ireena.

Marcus Veranius: "Whatever move we make against Strahd CANNOT come at the cost of Vallaki."

Ireena Kolyana: "Sorry to disappoint."

"And yes, what Marcus said."

Sulda Westwind: "Yeah," Suldae joins her voice to hers.

She tries to not give away too much of the rush of joy running through her body at Ireena's words.

She's not going to forget what happened at the house any time soon.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns at Ireena incredulously "Was that even on the Table?"

Sulda Westwind: "No, we're just clearing things up," Suldae assures him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: he is visibly confused here

Sulda Westwind: "And talkng about why Rictavio is... a very dubious asset."

"He has something of a tunnel vision problem."

Suldae is trying to be delicate, mostly for the sake of the young man still crying.

Ireena Kolyana: "I've had a terrible realization," says Ireena.

"What if Strahd had those Vistani under illusions when Rictavio was spying on them? To make the camp seem better armed than it was?"

"What if he was misled, too?"

"And he just... Escalated his response..."

Suldae Westwind: "Likely," Suldae agrees, dry tone showing she does not think that much of an excuse for his actions.

That was why she was trying to insist on double checking.

Marcus Veranius: "I do not wish to think of this. What's past won't help us in dealing with the present." Marcus frowns. The debate on who they could trust was a matter for when they DIDNT have 24 hours before the town's destruction.

Ireena Kolyana: "Right, so we've got to think quickly."

"How can we make the most of the time we have before nightfall?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What's done is done" Henry groans out unwilling to reopen such fresh wounds

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays silent. She agrees with the sentiment.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "We can make the guards deaf, for one thing," says Ismark.

"Suldae, you can heal eardrums, right? What about you, priest?"

"Just go around with a stick and poke poke"

"Strahd can't get in, can he? And his fire can't cross in."

"So what's the problem? His monsters burn up if they cross the threshold."

Urwin: "The real danger to Vallaki comes from Vallaki's own people, I'm afraid."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows. "If the guards agree to the procedure, yes, I could heal them later. If."

"I doubt however that he has no way of harming the town."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry heaves a deep sigh "They aren't nearly trained well enough to fight and follow orders deaf"

Suldae Westwind: "They'd hardly need to fight," Suldae noted.

Marcus Veranius: "That rock in the church is good evidence that the town is NOT immune to siege."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to Marcus's words.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Wait, what rock?"

Priest: "The rock that nearly crushed me, you nincompoop!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oh, I wasn't there for that. I was spying on the Burgomaster."

Suldae Westwind: "What happened there, actually?" Suldae asks.

Addressing both of them.

Oops.

Priest: "Right, so the dragon can drop rocks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "They don't need to but they might have to fight and and I'm telling you those man are one bad thing happening away from deserting even with out compulsion"

Priest: "It can't breathe acid through the protective barrier, but it can drop pieces of the landscape through."

Urwin: "He's right, the men are not disciplined or organized, and their leadership is based around fear."

"My own people are better trained, more organized, and more mobile. You'll be using us to defend the city instead."

Suldae Westwind: "The Burgomeister," Suldae sighs. "So, what happened there, Ismark?"

"Honestly the guards are best kept at their homes with their families."

"If they hadn't been at the gate at all, today, we would have been actually safer."

"Live and learn."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Izek showed up and went inside. There were some purple flashes from an upstairs window. They barricaded the doors and windows, and a guard came out every fifteen minutes to see if the coast was clear."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks up the ceiling for a moment "We don't know what that spell that failed yesterday was supposed to to riht?"

right

"The teleporting one at the Burgomesiters place" He adds more to remind himself what it was

Danika: "The Burgomaster's son has been attempting to build a teleportation circle for gods know how long. It will always fail, due to the very same protective power that shields Vallaki."

"It will not permit anything to teleport directly into or out of the village."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and we don't know what he tries to teleport or where ?" Henry asks suspecting he already knows the answer

Danika: "We have not ascertained that much, unfor

*"unfortunately."

Marcus Veranius: "If I were to guess the man for how he acts, perhaps it is a backdoor escape should his walls fail to keep Strahd at bay."

"Save himself, worst come to worst."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smirks "a metaphysical bolthole, seems about right"

Suldae Westwind: "So was there any resolution at the house?" Suldae asks, bringing the topic back around to Ismark's intelligence.

"Do we know if the Burgomeister is alive?"

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "I assume do. He had Izek all to himself."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "He's alive."

Suldae Westwind: "Izek could have been late," Suldae notes more for the sake of arguing than anything.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Probably still holed up in his house as we speak."

Suldae Westwind: "He is?"

Suldae pauses, trying to come up with the least offensive version of 'how do you know'. She's not questioning Ismark's brains, she's just trying to figure out the details!

Ireena Kolyana: "I saw as much with Miranda, too," says Ireena, stroking the cat.

"Incidentally, Suldae, what do you think of the name Miranda?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That's...good" Henry comments unsure if it was actually all that good comments

Suldae Westwind: "It's an excellent name," Suldae says with feeling and scratches the cat's ear. She's guessed the cat is Ireena's familiar a bit ago already.

Marcus Veranius: "Seems more like a daughter name. But one better than I could come up with."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry bites down on his comment

Marcus Veranius looks at the feather once more, then nods to himself. "Right then. Unless anyone else has a plan, I shall go about mine. Urwin; if I were to secure a volunteer impostor, do you possess the means to make them look genuine?"

Urwin: "I believe that could be accomplished. Danika is fair-to-middling with illusion and shape-changing spells."

Danika: "Indeed, I am fair-to-middling in those."

Marcus Veranius: "Then I shall try my luck with Lady Wachter. We save the most lives avoiding war than playing into it."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Marcus. She's tired as hell, but...

"You might want use of my magic in that. But perhaps we should rest first?"

"We have a full day. We can talk to her in the evening. We haven't slept for a full 24 hours now."

Marcus Veranius: "Perhaps. I'm exhausted, and likely so everyone else in town."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Rest sounds lovely" Henry murmurs energy draining out of him like water out of a damaged barrel

Marcus Veranius: "And about this suggestion of moving about stealthily; the one Ireena proposed." Marcus looks between Ireena and Danika, feather still in hand.

Urwin: "Your induction into the order is.... A possibility."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae straightens out and listens intently.

This seems like something that concerns her.

"You've mentioned a curse, earlier," she says.

Marcus Veranius: "How much do you know of my past? Between overheard secrets and drunken rambling?"

"Suffice to say, I have no home. I have no family. I have no banner to fight for, besides those I wander with."

"And if Rictavio is any indication, that road will only end in misery."

"I would try something different. I would pledge myself to your banner, if only you would allow it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys looks around the room eyes regarding every one of the Ravens in turn
"Is it permanent?" His voice is soft

Urwin: "It's very permanent," says Urwin. (And cliffhanger again, I'm afraid I have to go. Thanks for playing!)

GM (GM): (Morning Guys!)

Tops K.: (Mornin! o3o)

Zanshuken: moin

GM (GM): (I'm excited to see what happens this session!)
(Morning Liliet!)

Liliet (Suldae): (am here!)
(morning!!!)

Urwin: "Very, very permanent." He looks at his wife. She reaches out a hand silently and he takes it and holds it.

Danika: "But you won't regret it."

"But the danger is: your children might. The curse lingers down the bloodline, and is easily transmitted by a bite or a kiss."

Urwin: "We usually ask those choosing to enter the order if they are willing to submit to an oath. You must swear never to have children, unless it is with a Wereraven. You must also swear never to turn anyone into a Wereraven against their will."

GM (GM): "And never without the sanctification of the Order of the Feather."

Tops K.: "That sounds both reasonable and rich in foresight. I will accept this oath."

Marcus Veranius nods

Danika: "We have been building strength in this land across centuries, always with the intent of overthrowing Strahd."

GM (GM): (Everyone roll Perception)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

7

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

16

PERCEPTION (5)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

20

PERCEPTION (2)
Suldae Westwind

Urwin: "If you'll accept the oath, then we'll be glad to have you.

GM (GM): (Suldae spots a small crack in one of the shutters, and a human eye peering in through the gap. It's Ernst Larnak's eye.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll have to decline I think" Henry

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pokes at Marcus and points towards the shutter discreetly

"How exactly can the curse be transmitted?" Suldae asks meanwhile.

Marcus Veranius turns where Suldae nudged, then turns back

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry not noticing works even in character cause he is both tired and slightly buzzed)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah, and we're discussing Thing Worth Focusing On) (100% works)

Marcus spots the gap in the shutter, but the eye is gone by the time he turns to look.

Marcus Veranius looks at Suldae with a curious look, then returns his attention to Urwin Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes that the man has withdrawn. Well, it's not urgent anymore, she supposes - everything worth seeing he'll have already seen.

GM (GM):

13

PERCEPTION (2)

Urwin: "The curse can be transmitted by a kiss or a bite. We believe it is spread by the saliva.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, but before asking her next question notes: "To anyone who's curious, by the way: we have, or just had, an audience," - she points towards the shutter.

"Lady Fiona wanted to know what's happening, apparently"

Marcus Veranius turns his head back at the shutter with a more stern look

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks."

Urwin: "Marina. Olena. Oleg. You know what to do."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry perks up "thats not good"

Urwin: "Darling?"

Danika: "Already on it."

Danika raises her arms. Her pupils expand in a flow of darkness that covers even the whites of her eyes. She twists her fingers in arcane patterns.

Marina and Olena drag Oleg back to his feet and open the front door. They burst out, running out into the road.

There is a faint shout of alarm.

After a moment, there is a continuous yell with a Doppler effect, which steadily ramps up in volume.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reluctantly slips off Ireena's lap and heads outside Danika's hand juts out, and the shout stops with a jerk.

Suldae sees Ernst Larnak hanging in midair, surrounded by a drift of black feathers.

Danika: "Whew. Got him."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sets down his bottle of brandy and gets up

"I'll go fetch him"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps aside, allowing for anyone to go inside or outside

Marcus Veranius pulls up a chair for Mr Lamask at the party's table

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches Ernst cautiously intend on grabing him and dragging him inside

Ernst: "Wa-wait, woah!" He drifts weightlessly along in Henry's grasp.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hey there it's been a long day so please don't make this any harder then it needs to be"

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, Derek! So nice of you to join us! Why don't you take a seat."

Suldae Westwind: "A long night, too," Suldae murmurs as she follows them back inside.

And seats herself in the same place in the same position

Ernst: "Oh, uh, hey -- hey everybody"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry deposits Ernst into chair carelessly before standing at his back

Ernst: "Nice to see you all!"

"Danika, you're looking hale and hearty."

Danika: Danika picks up a glass and begins to polish it as though about to pour. "Would you like a drink, Ernst? I've heard you have a taste for poisons."

Ernst: Ernst swallows nervously.

"So, uh. What can the Larnak do for you?"

"Heh heh"

GM (GM): He laughs nervously.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He is surprisingly bad at this all things considered" Henry remarks in a deadpan voice

Suldae Westwind: "Everyone's a critic," Suldae remarks with utterly neutral tone, as though discussing a theatre play.

Marcus Veranius: "I thought that too, but here we are. He's either the best or worst spy in all of Vallaki."

"This is the SECOND time tonight he's been caught after all, meaning he survived the first one."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Luck is part of the job I suppose" Henry says

Suldae Westwind: "Tonight?" Suldae asks skeptically.

It's morning, after all.

And she's just tired enough to focus on these details.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Pedant" Henry coughs smirking

Marcus Veranius considers for a moment. "I have a question for you, Derek. Genuine one; what's your position in this game of spies? Is it loyalty to the Wachter family, or loyalty to its coin?"

Ireena Kolyana: "More likely loyalty to his own neck," says Ireena.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs disdainfully in response to Henry's remark, attempting for 'actual royalty' impression.

16

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

(brb)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It is a fine neck" Henry adds audibly grinning while placing a hand on Ernst shoulder

Ernst: "I'm an unwilling servant! Lady Fiona is very evil, she's blackmailing me into her service!"

GM (GM): (roll Insight)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

5

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(sigh)

Suldae Westwind:

21

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

(oh nice)

GM (GM): (Suldae immediately sees he is lying. Henry believes him.)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows skeptically. "No you're not. Try again, truthfully this time"

She is going for the nonchalant tone of 'i can see entirely through you'

27

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Ernst: "Alright! Alright!"

"She pays me, alright? She pays me really well."

"But that doesn't mean I'm loyal to her."

"I'm really more loyal to me, I guess."

"Let's just say I'm willing to go with the times, you know? Sometimes you have to go with the flow."

Marcus Veranius looks to Suldae for confirmation, having no real sense of lies or truth in these games.

Suldae Westwind:

24

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

(holy shit)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so thats where my good rolls went)

GM (GM): He is telling the truth now, but he's not telling all of it. He's mostly motivated by fear, but he's still hoping to negotiate this into something that will actually benefit him because he knows that if Lady Wachter learns he was captured in this way, she would probably have him harmed in some way.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry was willing to believe Ernst but was also aware he really didn't have to do anything here other than acting like a thoug

GM (GM): So he's afraid of you, but more afraid of her.

He's also motivated by greed, which means he's just as motivated by something being taken away from him as he is by something being given to him.

Suldae Westwind: "Mm. You're afraid of her and us both, but probably more of her. This might be a bad set of priorities," Suldae smiles in a slightly fake sympathetic way

25

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "I'm going to be frank with you, Ernst." Marcus says, fingers to the temples of his eyes in frustration. "I have no qualms against you specifically; only the chair you hold. So let me define the current state of the board."

Ernst: Ernst swallows nervously.

Marcus Veranius: "We have until the evening before Strahd lays his siege. Who survives THAT will be uncertain."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's grip becomes harder on Ernst's shoulder, a reminder he is in no position to leave.

Ernst: Ernst cries out as though in pain. Apparently Henry's grip took him by surprise.

Ernst stifles himself.

"Sorry, I'll try not to do that again."

Marcus Veranius: "As a supporter of Strahd, however, Lady Wachter is sure to have her position revoked before then. Either by playing the part of our fake Ireena, or being reported to Izek and his inquisition."

"You can throw your lot with her and take whatever ending she has lined up, or you can take my coin and work for us instead."

The Wereravens are observing the spy who has everything needed to out their entire order directly to their primary enemy. The look on all their faces is that of a person who has an unpleasant task ahead of them, but willingly shoulders the burden for the sake of a more important good.

Danika: "He cannot be trusted."

Urwin: "I would recommend his elimination, if you have larger plans in mind. He will only foul them up."

"I have a cellar where we can keep him prisoner for a while."

"You all could use some rest, and some time to think."

Ernst: "I'll go with you!"

"I'll do whatever you want!"

Marcus Veranius: "I trust him to be smart enough to be bought. And I wish to buy your silence, Ernst."

Ernst: "Coin works for me, you can name your price. I'll be worth it!"

Marcus Veranius: "What's the rate Lady Wachter offers for your services?"

Suldae Westwind: "If we keep him for a while, Lady Wachter will likely know something is wrong. But releasing him does indeed carry risks. While there is magic that could take care of that, I'm spent."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns regarding their hosts. 'Impriornment' rarely spawned such a dance.

Suldae Westwind: A simple Suggestion would work, in truth, with a threatening trigger condition.

Ernst: "She pays me sixteen platinum a month," says Ernst, immediately.

Suldae Westwind:

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "Horseshit."

Henry of Willowsbrook:

18

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae's sense of money doesn't allow her to accurately guess the price of a spy. Sixteen platinum sounds reasonable, maybe?

Henry feels this price would be obscenely high.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Try again Ernst" Henry deadpans

Suldae Westwind: "Ah, so likely not trustworthy after all," Suldae sighs with a slightly put-on disappointment.

14

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

GM (GM): (Roll Insight, Marcus)

"Fine, it's only 12 Platinum."

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus doesn't need to. He has an intelligence score above 10)
(16 plat is bonkers)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Hernys none braincells fell insulted right now) (nine)

GM (GM): (Roll Insight all the same, just on the off-chance you get a critical)

Marcus Veranius: (Okie)

6

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: (pff)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae is skeptical of the new sum as well)

18

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

To Marcus, a few copper would seem like a more appropriate fee for such an incompetent spy. To Suldae, the new sum is an obvious lie as well.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: "Marcus, are you sure you want to work with him?" Suldae asks skeptically.

Marcus Veranius: "Alright. Here's my offer then."

"I shall pay for your services for one day at your proposed rate, on condition that you do a task for me."

"If I am satisfied with the results, I'll pay the rest of the month at that rate as well."

"You will stay here, and in addition write a report to Lady Wachter for me to deliver."

Ernst: "I'm illiterate!"

GM (GM): He isn't.

Marcus Veranius: "You're illiterate for 12 platinum?"

Ernst: "Oh, you were saying you're going to pay me that much?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs in a put upon manner "Ernst my dear pleas atleast try"

Suldae Westwind: "Maarcuus," Suldae drawls skeptically, counting on the good cop / bad cop effect.

Marcus Veranius: "IF I am satisfied with the results of your work."

Ernst: "Well, in that case, I suppose I could remember enough letters to scribble out something...."

Marcus Veranius: "1 day at 12 platinum a month is four gold."

"So I'll give that now, and the rest if the letter works out."

"Is this agreeable?"

Ernst: Ernst sighs. He runs his hands nervously through his hair.

He weighs his options.

"Alright."

"What do you want this letter to say?"

Marcus Veranius reaches into his coffers and slides four gold across the table.

Marcus Veranius: "You are to report that Ireena was relocated to the church during the evening's attack."

"And, unfortunately, was crushed by a sudden boulder falling from the ceiling."

Ernst: "But why? She's right there."

Marcus Veranius: "Because I'd prefer Lady Wachter didn't know that."

Suldae Westwind: "Marcus, he's too stupid for us to work with him," Suldae complains with pretty much no acting needed.

Ernst: "Alright, alright. Somebody get me a pen and some paper."

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "I trust her to believe an employee above an enemy."

Marcus Veranius: "At the very least, I'm only out four gold if this doesn't work."

"And if it DOES, I'd be happy to pay the rate."

Marcus Veranius slides Ernst a paper and quill from his bag

Suldae Westwind: "Fair enough," Suldae shrugs indifferently.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Suldae even a dull axe is still a tool" Henry admonishes grinning widely

Ernst: Ernst immediately begins writing.

Ernst shoves the finished document over to Marcus for review.

The parchment reads: "Have visited upon our mutual friends, as you requested, and have determined that the Wizard Ireena is dead, crushed by a boulder that fell on the church. The rest remain, and are likely to stir up trouble."

Marcus Veranius looks over the note and nods

Marcus Veranius: "That will be all for now. Take the rest of the day off in the cellars, and I'll see you after the siege."

Ernst: Ernst sighs heavily.

Urwin: "I'll take him from here." (Roll Insight)

Suldae Westwind:

15

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

20

INSIGHT (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

14

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM (GM): Marcus realizes that the tavern has no cellar.

Henry and Suldae detect nothing amiss.

Marcus Veranius: "...should be safe enough down there should Strahd's forces break through the barrier. Don't look so down."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (...well duh we are literally looking at the floor plan)

Suldae Westwind: "We might need more information from him," Suldae notes. [I WOULD HAVE BROUGHT THIS UP ANYWYA]

[also see: more than 0 int, as marcus has remarked earlier]

Marcus Veranius: "I think his handwriting is good enough. Can someone have this letter delivered?"

Suldae Westwind: "Point one," Suldae raises a finger, "how do we deliver it so Lady Fiona will believe it's from him?"

Marcus Veranius: "...we could pay the church boy to deliver it. Same source location as the contents of his report."

"And just hope Lady Wachter has the same regard for his skill as we do."

Suldae Westwind: "But would he have entrusted it to a church boy?" Suldae asks and looks at the man in question

"We can do a little better than hope"

Marcus Veranius: "Not too much better, or it may look too professional to be true."

Suldae Westwind: "We can ask him," Suldae explains in plain language.

"He would prefer that we be satisfied with the results, so he'll tell the truth"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes Ernst lightly to get him to answer

Ernst: "I wouldn't give it to a church boy," says Ernst. "But if a Raven were to drop it off, it would be her normal way of getting my reports."

The tension in the room grows considerably.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises both eyebrows at that, but nods. She's heard of that already.

The Wereravens are looking at him as though he might be some kind of traitor.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Huh"

Ernst: Ernst hangs his head, looking defeated.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "how odd"

Suldae Westwind: "That's something people in here would be interested to know about, by the way, I believe," Suldae says.

"Izek mentioned something like that, didn't he?"

Marcus Veranius: "He did..." Marcus murmurs

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Very emphatically"

Suldae Westwind: "It might or might not have driven him to believe all wereravens are Lady Fiona's, and therefore Strahd's, minions," Suldae adds, more for the joy of it than for any particular reason.

Nothing better than the truth for dramatic effect.

Miroslav draws a dagger and spikes it into the table.

Urwin: "Aye."

"Can you imagine that?"

Ernst: Ernst swallows and whimpers a little.

Marcus Veranius shrugs. He's gotten what he wanted from Ernst; let the rest have their pieces.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "but to get caught with it by Izek of all people" Henry whispers to himself

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs. "I believe it"

Miroslav: The elderly gentleman, Miroslav, rises creakily to his feet. He stomps over to Ernst Larnak's side.

Miroslav looks at all of you calmly for a moment or two, holding your gaze. His stare is serious and stern.

"You will let us deal with this one in our own fashion, by the laws of our own people."

Marcus Veranius: "You are uncontested. I wish you the best." Marcus tips his hat as a measure of goodwill

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs

Ireena Kolyana: "Isn't he the evidence you need, to prove that you're not allied with Strahd?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks away, actually somewhat abashed but keeping it off her face, which still holds an indifferent expression.

She is very grateful to Ireena for speaking up.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Making it clear to the Burgomeister your not involved with Lady Wachter might be usefull"

Urwin: "Perhaps we should deliver this one to Izek?"

"For the punishment appropriate in the Burgomaster's mind."

Suldae Westwind: "Tomorrow, perhaps," Suldae suggests. "It could mess with our plan"

Urwin: "For the moment, then, he sleeps in the storage shed."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If we get a tomorrow" Henry asks morbidly sardonic adds

Urwin: "Come, Miroslav. Be seated. Relax."

"Let me bring you some more ale."

Suldae Westwind: question to DM: can Suldae target Sleep more narrowly?

GM (GM): Yes

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Suldae raises the ocarina to her lips

30

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

Ernst Larnak droops to the table, snoring loudly.

Suldae Westwind: A sweet lullaby resounds through the tavern, the Weave gathering around the spy.

"He'll wake up on his own soon enough," Suldae instructs upon finishing the melody.

Urwin: "Well, that's convenient."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm sure you can come up with a way to handle that, though."

Urwin: "Danila, Bill, come help me."

Suldae Westwind: She smiles happily, genuinely pleased with being helpful.

The three men lug Ernst out through the kitchen door.

They return a few moments later.

Urwin: "Good. Now, we'll deliver the letter. You go and get some rest."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Sounds lovely"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae droops into Ireena's arms, weaving her own around her neck and doing her best impression of a cat and/or small child

She will need to be carried.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs. She mutters a spell, her fingertips sparking. Suldae becomes relatively weightless.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae, very pleased, is holding on to her and rubbing her head against Ireena's neck.

Marcus Veranius: "Perhaps in a moment. Before our earlier interruption, I believe I was to be sanctified into the order?"

Suldae Westwind: "Oh yeah," Suldae turns her head, still holding on to Ireena. "I wanted to know what the drawbacks are, and all effects."

"You said something about children possibly regretting it. What is there to regret?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sets to gathering his discarded pieces of armor "Do you want us to stick around for that?"

Suldae Westwind: "I would like to hear all of it, first."

She's still hanging off Ireena.

It doesn't interfere.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Being a Raven maybe"

Suldae Westwind: "A child is unlikely to regret a shapeshifting ability," Suldae disagrees. "What was it about hallowed ground? Anything else?"

She looks around the room.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Your right they would't until they pick a fight with a bigger bird " Henry yawns out

Danika: "A child born with the curse will bear the curse forever. A person given the curse in adulthood can have it removed, with clerical magic. If you are born with it, only the most powerful spell casters in the world could hope to cure you."

Henry of Willowsbrook: wouldn't

Danika: "And the transformation is voluntary most of the time, but once a month it is involuntary, and you are, in truth, a Raven. Often you will transform in your sleep, and awaken in a different form than the one you fell asleep in.

"Transformation is sometimes painful. The Raven-Spirit is a being of its own, and if it takes a dislike for you, the state of existence will be a hell on earth."

"Thus we do not spread the curse at random, which is what makes Ernst's condition such an affront to us."

Urwin: "The manner in which he gained it is more my concern."

Danika: "But yes. We have deemed you all worthy, if you should choose to accept it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys eyes drift towards the kitchen where he remebers the child ravens were

Urwin: "Yes. And we understand if you wish to decline."

Suldae Westwind: "You only shapeshifted Ireena for a time, I understand?" Suldae asks, and looks up at the woman herself.

Ireena Kolyana: "Yes, that was temporary. Just a polymorph spell. She's promised to teach me how."

Danika: "It will take time, it's a tricky spell. You might not grasp it fully for years."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll pass I think" Henry says no even bothering to hide how easily the answer came to him

Suldae Westwind: Suldae regretfully lets go of Ireena, so the situation can have at least a fraction of the gravity it deserves. She focuses on her holy symbol, closing her hand around it. She will not do anything Corellon would disapprove of, and so she asks

15

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana: 59

Correllon gives her little to work with. After a long time, she feels the cryptic, alien thought: "Many instruments may form a song."

Suldae Westwind: She breathes in, out. This is of little help, but it's something to go on, still.

"What you have mentioned about the church," she repeats in a questioning manner.

Urwin: "The church?

"What of it?"

Danika: "Are you ready, then? Marcus?"

"It sounded as though your interest had not waned."

Marcus Veranius nods. "You have made me feel more at home than I have been since the loss of my former one. I shall wear this curse with pride."

The Wereravens smile.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae sighs. She steps - or rather hops - a step away from Ireena, still holding her hand though. "My decision will depend on you."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (I know they are on our side but that is still a creepy image there)

 Sulda Westwind: (as it should be)

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at Danika.

 Sulda Westwind: (Suldae would not be looking to join a non-creepy secret order, she's got standards)

 Ireena Kolyana: "This is the safest place I've been since... Before I can remember. This feel's safer than my father's place -- no offense, Ismark -- ever felt."

 Ismark Kolyanovich: "None taken. Father's place was a little grim."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (eh I'm more of an inane secret order guy myself)

 Ireena Kolyana: "I think, if you take it, I'll take it too. If you don't, I won't."

 Sulda Westwind: (to each their own)

Suldae breathes out, attempting to calm her nerves. "Together, then," she says, trying to inject a fraction of confidence she doesn't truly feel into it, and turns to Danika and her husband. "I would find it an honor"

Danika: "Bear in mind, there will be permanent physical transformations, even to your humanoid form. Those may not be reversible even if you are later cured. Do you understand this?"

"All Were-ravens have dark, glossy hair, for one thing. Yours will change to suit."

"Your handsome face, Marcus, is likely to be restored to a more human appearance. This may present a jarring change in your experience."

"None of us here have the power to reverse the curse."

"If you take it, you take it with this understanding, and the aforementioned oath."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae cocks her head to the side and slowly drags her palm through her hair. She is in fact attached, but it's not like hair dye doesn't exist. And illusions. And the ravens' hair is pretty too.

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena absent-mindedly runs her hand through her own dark, glossy hair.

"Not much of a change, for me?"

The auburn glow in her hair is likely to disappear.

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae steps back up to her, still weightless, and hugs. "Not much, I would say," she murmurs.

 Marcus Veranius looks down at himself, then back at Danika. He resists the urge to make a parting jab at his appearance and nods.

 Sulda Westwind: She turns to the ravens again. "I swear to never let the curse spread outside of the bounds you've outlined," she says calmly, her hand on her holy symbol.

 Marcus Veranius: "I understand and accept the oath. I shall bear no children, nor a lover outside the order's view."

Ireena Kolyana: "The same for me."

Danika: "Very well. You are now members of the Order of the Keepers of the Feather."

Ireena Kolyana: Danika leaps into the air and transforms, landing lightly on the back of a chair in Raven form.

Danika: *Danika leaps into the air and transforms, landing lightly on the back of a chair in Raven form.

Urwin: "Present yourselves for the peck."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stretches out her hand, her eyes landing on the bark again. She turns it palm up

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry despite the obviously serious tone has to hide his laughter under a cough, badly

Marcus Veranius stretches out his arm, rolling back his sleeve as to keep his new suit undamaged

Suldae Westwind: Well a second ago Suldae was taking this seriously, but Henry is infectuous, and now she's suppressing a smile as well.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena extends her arm, palm upwards.

Ireena snorts.

She regains her composure, passing it off as a strange sneeze.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at Ireena and takes her hand back. She has a better plan.

She hopes the ravens understand.

The peck is brief and horribly painful. The black beak darts out and twists, then snatches away a small chunk of skin.

Danika pauses, waiting for Suldae.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (UH she gonna kith Ireena)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches out to Ireena, who has just been pecked, hooks her arms behind her neck and reaches.

Marcus feels a horrible churning in his gut.

Marcus's skin begins to itch.

Marcus Veranius smiles, trying to hide the pain in his wrist, and gut, and everything

Suldae Westwind: She hopes Ireena isn't too offended at Suldae not going for the painful peck. She should have thought of that, but oh well Marcus's skin begins to burn furiously. It is more sensation than he has felt in years.

Suldae Westwind: (or wait HAS Ireena been pecked yet)

(im assuming she has but if she hasnt retcon htis out)

(if given a second more to think Suldae does this he other way around)

Marcus Veranius falls to the ground, curling into a ball. Faking it isn't working out Marcus's hands feel the worn texture of the smooth and polished floor of the tavern. His fingers are pale and smooth. His skin no longer looks like the flesh of a withered corpse.

As his skin returns, so does the dark hair on his arms.

Marcus feels a fullness in his face -- a new tightness and softness of the skin.

Marcus tastes the inside of his mouth.

Marcus feels his breathing change as a nose grows slowly from the wreckage.

Marcus's scalp itches horribly, then burns, then grows a luscious fountain of thick, dark, glossy hair, which pours right to his shoulders.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches visibly concerned before pausing and looking at the Wereravens in askance his face asking 'Is it save to get close?'

Or would, if not mostly contained by his hat.

Danika: "The transformation is painful. He may appreciate the consolation. He is safe."

GM: (Did you mean you want Suldae to get bitten, then transmit it to Ireena?)

Suldae Westwind: (ya)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods kneeling down next to Marcus "Steady ya old bastard you're almost done"

Marcus Veranius buries his face into his hat, trying to cut down on some of the overflowing senses that were coming back all at once. It felt less like a peck and more like a carriage crash Suldae feels the transformation already coursing through her veins. As her own hair darkens, she...

Marcus feels a horrible shrinking sensation and a deep-set chill as his bones all become hollow at once.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae waves the bird off, through her pain, and reaches out for Ireena herself. She hooks her arms behind her neck and stretches out, inviting Ireena to lean closer.

He feels himself beginning to shrink, and his body beginning to grow in strange and disproportionate ways. His fingers are stretching wildly, his nose and chin are moving, his teeth are shifting outward, all of them sliding, dissolving strangely in his mouth.

Ireena leans into Suldae.

Marcus feels his legs changing, his toe-bones migrating, lengthening, his ankles stretching away, his joints repositioning themselves.

Tattoos fade into existence all over his skin. They depict feathers and arcane runes, patterned almost like fish-scales.

The tattoos darken and begin to move.

The tattoos grow -- extending into the real world as feathers.

Marcus has by now shrunk to the size of a small dog, and has mostly vanished under his own clothes.

The rest of the world sees a lump beneath the shirt, shrinking still for a while.

After a moment, the shape beneath the shirt lies still.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry delicatly moves the clothes to free his now shrunken companion

A large black Raven sits there, calmly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kisses her deeply, not caring that the entire order is watching. This is correct, and this is the way it should be. The two of them might yet part - likely will, a small part within Suldae will never stop thinking - but this moment is theirs forever.

Marcus is aware of a curious change in perspective. He is now approximately eight inches tall, and standing balanced with his chest parallel to the ground and his head on a long, stalk-like neck. His arms are crumpled to his sides and feel extremely complicated.

Marcus Veranius is frozen in shock. Between feeling things again, and feeling them in the wrong way

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You you okay there?" Henry asks Marcus pointiedly not looking at Suldae and Ireena

There is a collective gasp of shock, but it comes from only a few members of the group.

Ireena smiles, pulling away with her hands on Suldae's face. She looks into Suldae's eyes. Suldae watches as Ireena's warm brown eyes begin to glow with an inner gold which slowly expands to fill her Iris. Her yellow eyes still smile as she begins to shrink and change. Suldae shrinks proportionally, and has the strange experience of watching a mirrored transformation on another person while undergoing it herself.

Within a few moments, the two of them have both vanished beneath their respective clothing.

Marcus Veranius lets out a weak 'eeeeee' sound in confusion

Suldae Westwind: (I'm sure they were shocked at the PDA and not their respective genders. Let me live in a world where that is true~)

Suldae fights her way out of the layers of fabric over her. Everything feels novel and very large; she experimentally spreads her wings.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry despite himself looks at the two lovebirds for a moment. And just for an instance he seems far away and heartbreakinly saddened.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark splutters, then laughs out loud.

"Oh my god, that explains so much."

Kira: "Such an open display! Flagrant. In my time, you did that sort of thing in secret, with the urgency of a crime."

Kira begins fanning herself slightly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae caws indignantly at Ismark. She hops around a little, trying out the feel of her new shape.

She ignores the old lady entirely.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Returning to the moment Henry shakes his head lithly before offering Marcus and Suldae his hands to perch on Suldae Westwind: Instead, she keeps an eye on Ireena. She has already been a bird, of course...

Ireena Kolyana flies up onto the table and snatches at the letter with her claws -- a little clumsily.

Marcus Veranius instead opts to hide within his hat until he can regain some level of composure. And come to terms with new circumstances

Henry of Willowsbrook: *shakes his head lightly

There is a knock at the door of the Tavern.

It sounds loud and official.

Danika: "Quickly! Up into the rafters."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs at Marcus reaction turning to the dooe door

All of the patrons of the Tavern transform and flutter up to the ceiling. When they transform, their clothing goes with them. Perhaps it is a skill that one can learn.

The Priest remains, calmly sipping his wine.

Marcus Veranius: Given that Marcus has barely figured out how existing works yet, he makes a full dash behind the bar instead, hat shuffling out of sight

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives flying her best shot.

She would greatly appreciate assistance.

Also, clothes.

They would, too!

Danika snatches up Marcus's clothing and carries it around the bar, which she immediately begins polishing.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Taking a moment to gather Marcus and Suldaes possessions into neat bundles and setting his own armor atop them on a chair

Suldae finds it surprisingly instinctive, and soon finds herself on the rafters, looking down at the tavern.

Ireena lands beside her a moment later.

At the door, there is a wooden shutter which can be opened to see through an eye-slit.

Henry of Willowsbrook: The pile on the chair only looks like some slightly stained armor and assorted pieces of clothing to Henry so he takes a seat beside it and sips at the Brandy bottle he had been using

The knocking comes again, more urgently this time.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Isn't this place already open for business?" Henry asks projecting his voice to be heard outside from outside

Urwin: "I'll get it. The door's locked."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hops a little closer to Ireena. Now that the moment's passed, she's a bit embarrassed, but still regrets nothing.

As soon as Urwin peers through the shutter, Izek Strazni kicks the doors in, causing him to stumble backwards, landing prone.

Izek Marches into the room, flanked by six guards. Seeing only Henry, the Priest, and Danika in the room, (other than Urwin) he addresses Urwin specifically.

Izek Strazni: "Where is the girl, Ireena?"

"We know that the outsiders have been staying here, old man."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (isn't Ireenas brother also here?)

Izek puts his boot on Urwin's chest."

Ismark, previously unnoticed because he was sitting absolutely still, turns around and waves. A baleful light is in his eyes.

Izek Strazni: "They are the only newcomers. They must be the ones who brought the girl he wants."

"The Burgomaster wants a word with her."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Izek my friend isn't it a bit early for such savagery" Henry calls out one hand sliding down to his Sword hand

Danika: Danika snatches up a pad of paper and scribbles something on it. She rips it off and drops it on the ground in front of Raven Marcus.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Such rude behavior is unfitting for a man of your Import"

The paper reads: "Concentrate. You can change back, if you will it."

GM: (You can make a WIS check to try and transform back intentionally.)

Izek Strazni: "Savagery?"

A red light glows beneath his cloak. His demonic arm must be summoning flame. An unholy light glows in his eyes.

Suldae Westwind: (if Suldae does it she'll be in the rafters lmao)

Izek Strazni: "The Savage is Strahd, and whatever he wants, he shall have. To spare Vallaki from the beast, we must all be willing to make sacrifices. All will be well, if we maintain the safety of this village."

Marcus Veranius looks at the note, having come to terms with a few truths of his condition.
Hands are not-hands, legs are hands, feathers means he's not indecent.

Marcus Veranius: ...an idea comes to mind, looking at the note

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And you are not stooping to his level attacking those under your charge"
Henry calmly replies

Marcus Veranius:

22

WISDOM (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: now not not there

Marcus finds the path. The Raven-Spirit is sentient and conscious within him. He simply asks it for the privilege of his own form again, and the Raven, as an offer of brotherhood, accepts. Marcus transforms back into a human being with a silent pop. Danika kicks his pile of clothes in his direction.

Izek Strazni: "I will stoop to any level to protect Vallaki."

"Now tell me where she is, or I will singe this old man's beard."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You only should when it's needed" Henry says "Which it isn't right now"
"She's dead"

Izek Strazni: "Dead?"

It seems to hit him strangely hard.

(Roll DECEPTION)

Marcus Veranius looks at Danika and shakes his head. Rather, he puts on his hat and leans up from the bar about chest-high

Henry of Willowsbrook:

11

DECEPTION (-2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

2

DECEPTION (-2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: "Don't you know the funeral customs of outsiders!? There's a reason we locked the door!"

Izek Strazni:

INTELLIGENCE
Izek Strazni

Ability: 18

Marcus Veranius attempts to put Izek at disadvantage with a sudden exposed Marcus

Izek Strazni:

INTELLIGENCE Izek Strazni <hr/> Ability: 9

Distracted by Marcus, Izek does not catch the lie.
 He seems to be wracked by some kind of guilt.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (thank god for GM fiat)

Izek Strazni: "Dead," he mutters.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "She was in the Church when.." Henry trails off

Izek Strazni: "Oh, gods...."
 "How horrid."

Marcus Veranius grumps, holding up a piece of cloth to look more decent Izek Strazni: "I must return to the Burgomaster, to decide upon a new plan.

 "You lot will continue to stay out of my way."
 "And old man?"

"Next time you try to hide a secret from me, I'll singe more than your beard. I'll burn your whole tavern to the ground. Vallaki has no need of such a welcome-mat for outsiders, anyway."

Marcus Veranius: "Give us our day of mourning. We'll be finished with our investigation into the Wachter family."

Izek Strazni: "Good day."

Marcus Veranius: "Which we are STILL doing for you."

Izek Strazni: He pauses.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The most pleasant day to you Izek"

Izek Strazni: He does not know if he can still trust you, after you hid Ireena from him.

Marcus Veranius: "Why don't you have a chat with the Toymaker, ask him why the Wachter family ordered this little trinket."

Marcus Veranius holds up the Strahd puppet for Izek to see

Izek Strazni: Izek recoils in horror.
 "They commissioned this?"
 "He told you as much?"

Marcus Veranius: "He did."

Izek Strazni: "This is a clear sign of their allegiance. This is one of the two required witnesses for a conviction of witchcraft. With a second witness, willing to testify, we can have her hanged. Or burned!"

"Depending upon the heinousness of the crimes she confesses under torture, of course."

Marcus Veranius: "Then I shall find you a second witness. Keep the town safe, Izek. I've got your back."

Izek Strazni: "Good work. I shall keep this as evidence."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Don't you have a report to make" HEnry cuts in Marcus Veranius: "Do you mind if I keep it for now? See if I can find those who recognize it?"

"We may find our second that way."

Izek Strazni: (Roll Persuasion)

Marcus Veranius: (with Inspiration)

15

20

PERSUASION (1)
Marcus Veranius

Izek Strazni: "Very well."

Marcus Veranius nods

Izek Strazni: He hands the doll back.

Marcus Veranius: "Keep up the good fight, Izek. We're counting on your heroics!"

Izek Strazni: He sneers.

He leaves, marching out of the tavern with his men.

Marcus Veranius: "...I promised Blinksy that I wouldn't bring harm to his toy."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry waits until they are out of sight before taking a deep gulp of brandy

Marcus Veranius: "But that bought us a distraction."

Marcus Veranius scrambles to put his attire back on

Marcus Veranius: (Roll20 doesn't like the new not-ghoul marcus token)

Suldae Westwind: ...I can photoshop the hair dark for you

Henry of Willowsbrook: "As much as I hate to addmit it I agree with Lady Wachter, Izek needs to be dealt with" Henry tonelessly says

Tops K.: ATTACK ON MARCUS

Suldae Westwind: Suldae attempts to transform right up where she is.

13

WISDOM (1+1)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Sie sind das Essen und wir sind die Jäger)

Marcus Veranius: "That's an adventure for when we don't need his strength to hold off a vampire's army."

Suldae is unable to force the transformation, despite her magical abilities.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grumbels something about running him through next time he acts that way before taking another sip of brandy

 Suldae Westwind: (the Raven Spirit questions Suldae's wisdom in transforming right up there) (shame)
Suldae flies down, hops under the table next to her clothes and tries again.

11

WISDOM (1+1)
Suldae Westwind

(welp)

Danika: "Now you should rest. The lies have been spread. The trap is laid. We can deliver the letter, and this afternoon you will meet with the Wachter family. We will have your weapons silvered, and we will help the priest to produce as much Holy water as you deem necessary."

The Raven Spirit in Suldae seems surprisingly reluctant to transform back. It is enjoying the freedom, and the fun of being such a small size.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods "Our thanks"

 Ireena Kolyana:

3

WISDOM (2)

 Henry of Willowsbrook: He stretches like a large dog yawning loudly

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena flies a circle around the rafters, just beneath the ceiling.

 Marcus Veranius nods. "I thank you. How much rest does one usually get upon first joining the order?"

 Ireena Kolyana: She lands on the table and hops around.
She can't seem to transform back either.

Danika: "The inn is guarded night and day. You can rest here as long as you need to, unless we have urgent need of you."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae gets from under the table and instead practices flying.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Danika our lovebirds seem to have a spot of trouble seizing to be birds"
HENry says grinning sheepishly

 Suldae Westwind: The tavern feels rather small for such a large bird.

Danika: "Yes, it happens sometimes. They have not yet come to understand the animal spirit."

Danka: "Once they come into alignment, they will be able to transform freely."

Marcus Veranius: "In that case, I have an inner spirit to get acquainted with. If you'll excuse me."

Ismark Kolyanovich: (Does Marcus currently look scarred?)

Marcus Veranius makes his way for the inn room

Marcus Veranius: (nope o3o)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Goddamn, you're kind of hot now, Marcus. Is that what you looked like before?"
"Bird stuff did you good, man."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flaps her wings and does a little dance on a tavern table. She does indeed like being a bird, all things considered.

Marcus Veranius: "Hot enough, it seems, that you completely forgot this was the SECOND time you've seen it."

Marcus Veranius smirks. That dwarven ale was a kick in the memory

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It has a stunning effect, I'll admit."
"It was on full blast just there, when you were talking to what's his face."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry laughs loudly before suddenly turning serious and looking at his companions

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Right, so, this is getting weird. More ale?"

Marcus Veranius takes his leave. Rest, meditation, and figuring out how to bribe an inner spirit. He's made harder sales in the past

Priest: "You'd better leave your weapons with me. I will pray over them in the church. Perhaps the blessing of Saint Andral will aid you."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If any of you mold or preen yourself on my stuff I set cats on you" He says graven as he looks at Marcus and Suldae face graven

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flies up and aims to scratch his head through his hair with her claws a little

22

ACROBATICS (5)
Suldae Westwind

GM (GM): (We can do a time-skip to around 3:00 PM. You will be long-rested, and you will have transformed back into human form.)

Marcus Veranius: (Sure)

Suldae Westwind: (works for me)

GM (GM): (What do you want to do with your resting time?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I roll athletics to catch Suldae?)

GM (GM): (Yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

22

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(also fine with me)

Suldae Westwind: (can I roll acrobatics to dodge)

GM (GM): (Yes)

Suldae Westwind:

19

ACROBATICS (5)
Suldae Westwind

(welp, apparently not)

Henry and Suldae have a little feint, but Henry doesn't catch the airborne raven, knowing that its bones are hollow. Suldae's attempt to ruffle his hair fails.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "None of that my little Crow" Henry says smirking

But he easily could have caught her, and almost did, and Suldae knows this.

Suldae Westwind: She does.

She regrets nothing.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus spends his resting time sleeping with a pile of shiny trinkets and bread crumbs at his side. This is about the limit of his knowledge on what birds like.

Suldae Westwind: She would try to transform again, just to remind him of the difference between ravens and crows, but common sense has kicked in to remind her of the shed clothing by now.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Now if you'll excuse me I'll go fall unconscious for as long as I possibly can" Henry says getting up and leaving his sword with his Halberd Marcus Veranius: ...and a glass of water. Spirits probably like water?

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flaps in Henry's face indignantly. Who's going to take care of her stuff?

Danika: Danika thoughtfully puts Ireena and Suldae in the barn, in a secret nest in the hayloft. It seems on nights of transformation, this place provides refuge for resting were ravens.

She also brings all their belongings, minus the weapons, which she leaves with the priest.

After resting, the party regroups in the tavern proper. Most of the Wereravens are still here. Your weapons are returned to you, blessed and silvered.

Urwin: "It seems the Wachterhouse is waiting for you. All day, wagons of supplies have been rolling there. Many guests appear to have been invited. Invitations even came for you. Including one for you, miss."

Marcus Veranius hesitates upon reaching for the Oathbow. Can he... can he still use this? The weapon of vengeance, of Rictavio's path?

Urwin: Urwin hands Ireena an invitation to the "Divine Seance of Reconciliation."

All the invitations are identical. They appear to have been mass-printed.

Marcus Veranius: ...

He straps it on his back, but keeps the crossbow closer.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his shoulders under his freshly cleaned armor to shake of the last of his sleepiness

The invitations read:

TONIGHT: Divine Seance of Reconciliation, hosted by the hon. Mrs. Fiona Wachter. Fancy dress required. Come help us contact the long-dead elven mistress of the dark lord Strahd, and through her, find the key to peace in Barovia.

GM (GM): Roll Religion, Suldae

Or Performance

Your call

Suldae Westwind:

18

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae frowns at hers. She's not quite all the way through processing yesterday's events, and now this.

Marcus Veranius looks over Suldae's shoulders

Marcus Veranius: "Do you think this is her way of handling the news that Ireena didn't make it?"

Suldae hears a hint of some song in the back of her mind, as though half-remembered -- though she is certain she has never heard it before.

Translated to Common, the song would say: "What has been made by faith can be destroyed by faith. Who feeds the darkness starves the light."

Ireena Kolyana: "But she gave me an invitation?" Ireena asks, confused.

Marcus Veranius thinks for a moment

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe it's a mistake?"

Suldae Westwind: "Do you think she wouldn't?" Suldae asks skeptically.

Ireena Kolyana: "Maybe she had them printed in advance?"

"Or maybe she's just trying to psych you out, in case you're lying..."

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe she knows. Maybe she's hopeful that it's a lie."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Possibly"

Ireena Kolyana: "What if she has other spies?"

Marcus Veranius: "Regardless, this is a rather good opportunity."

Suldae Westwind: "Mhm," Suldae agrees.

Ireena Kolyana: "Beyond Ernst, I mean?"

"I mean, he was pretty... Comically incompetent."

Suldae Westwind: "She loses nothing by inviting you, and potentially gains"

Ireena Kolyana: "Almost as though he was meant to be caught..."

"Well I can't come, obviously."

"Although I'm curious about this 'Elf Maiden'"

"You'd better be careful in there, ok?" Ireena says. "There's no telling what kind of people might be in attendance."

Urwin: "Yes there is. They will mostly be members of her cult."

"This is a good opportunity to ambush the allies of Strahd all at once."

Marcus Veranius considers for a moment. "We need a replacement Ireena, right? And we need to convince Lady Wachter to play the part."

Suldae Westwind: "And we should probably not allow this ritual to take place," Suldae says out loud.

"The protection of St Andral can only take so much darkness in one place"

"So we go either way, the question is what we do when there"

Marcus Veranius: "I don't put much faith into seances and spiritual stuff, but perhaps a sudden change of appearance mid-seance would convince her to play the part."

Ireena Kolyana: "Ooh, that's good..."

Marcus Veranius: "aS dEeMeD bY tHe SplrItS"

Ireena Kolyana: "We don't know if she's as gifted a spell caster as she tries to present herself as."

"Maybe, if you explore the house, you can find out what kinds of things she's really up to?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs "Its going to be another red night isn't it Lights be just and kindand merciful"

Ireena Kolyana: "Because if she is a powerful witch, she'll probably realize what's happening when she transforms."

Marcus Veranius: "...bugger, you're right."

Marcus Veranius is not keen when it comes to magic anything

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It was going to be another red night from the get-go. Strahd's armies will no doubt be teleporting in."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs. "There are few problems that aren't solved by a well-placed Suggestion. Assuming it works, of course. Which it might not, if she's a gifted witch..."

"And we really need to make sure the town's protection holds."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "May the Light shine on us til the Last Dawn" Henry murmurs in practiced cadence

Marcus Veranius nods

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark stiffens.

"He's moving," he says.

"He feels... Distant. When he's traveling. Like he's not all the way in this world."

Ismark shakes himself.

Ireena Kolyana: "Right," says Ireena.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lets get to it then2Herny grimly says
Henry

Suldae Westwind: Suldae arches her eyebrows at Ismark's statement and files it away.
His abilities are curious.

Marcus Veranius brushes his beard as he approaches the Wachter estate, grinning with pride

Suldae Westwind: "So," she speaks up to the ravens, "have you got anything to bleach hair?" She touches her newly dark hair.

Marcus Veranius: "Don't you have a hood with that cloak?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "or a wog if everything else fails"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae skeptically fiddles with her hood.
"I do, but it's not reliable"

Henry of Willowsbrook: wig

Suldae Westwind: "A wig. You have anything?" She addresses the hosts again.

Danika: Danika bites her lip thoughtfully.

"I'm afraid not. There might be something at the Arasek stockyards, but we haven't got anything here like that. That man Rictavio had a disguise kit somewhere, did he not?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (screen fades to black and credit music starts playing TO BE CONTINUED)

Suldae Westwind:

Roll for HP

Roll 1:	8
---------	----------

Zanshuken: rolling d10

(5)

= 5

rolling d10

(10)

= 10

Ireena Kolyana:

Roll for HP

Roll 1:	1
---------	----------

Average for HP

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP

Roll 1:	5
---------	----------

Zanshuken:

BRUTE FORCE*Racial: Brute Subclass 3*

Starting at 3rd level, whenever you hit with a weapon that you're proficient with and deal damage, the weapon's damage increases by an amount based on your level in this class (1d4).

BRUTE FORCE*Racial: Brute Subclass 3*

Starting at 3rd level, whenever you hit with a weapon that you're proficient with and deal damage, the weapon's damage increases by an amount based on your level in this class (1d4).

Marcus Veranius:

20Longsword (5 ft) (+7)

Henry of Willowsbrook

8
*Slashing3
Brute

rolling 1d10 Level 6 HP Roll

(10)= 10

Based birb gods

1812

120

Hand Crossbow (+9)
Marcus Veranius2
*Bonus Damage5
PiercingTops K.:*24*Shield Shove (+7)
PROPOSAL: Paladin Henry

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

27Vehicles (Land) (7)
PROPOSAL: Paladin HenryLiliet (Suldae):

Conjure Animals

*Conjuration 3Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Unoccupied spaces that you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You summon fey spirits that take the form of beasts and appear in unoccupied spaces that you can see within range. Choose one of the following options for what appears: One beast of challenge rating 2 or lower Two beasts of challenge rating 1 or lower Four beasts of challenge rating 1/2 or lower Eight beasts of challenge rating 1/4 or lower Each beast is also considered fey, and it disappears when it drops to 0 hit points or when the spell ends. The summoned creatures are friendly to you and your companions. Roll initiative for the summoned creatures as a group, which has its own turns. They obey any verbal commands that you issue to them (no action required by you). If you don't issue any commands to them, they defend themselves from hostile creatures, but otherwise take no actions. The GM has the creatures' statistics.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using certain higher-level Spell Slots, you choose one of the summoning options above, and more creatures appear - twice as many with a 5th-level slot, three times as many with a 7th-level slot, and four times as many with a 9th-level slot.

(To GM): !t RandomItem

(To GM): Chain Shirt

(To GM): Adamantine Armor

(To GM): Boots of the Winterlands

(To GM): Breastplate of Force Resistance

(To GM): Chain Shirt +1

(To GM): Carpet of Flying

(To GM): Breastplate of Necrotic Resistance

(To GM): Arrows +1

(To GM): Bag of Devouring

GM (GM): (Good morning everyone! Happy Sunday!)

This house seems disgusted with itself. A slouching roof hangs heavy over furrowed gables, and moss-covered walls sag and bulge under the weight of the vegetation. As you study the house's sullen countenance, you hear the edifice actually groan. Only then do you realize the extent to which the house hates what it has become.

Zanshuken: (hello)

A fabric banner has been draped across the facade, above the door. It reads:

GM (GM): Lady Fiona's Divine Seance of Reconciliation.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "This definately is not a secretive affair" Henry muses

A small crowd has gathered in the street and is looking up at the house curiously. They seem interested to see you approach.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm surprised the seance itself doesn't count as a second witness for Witchcraft sentencing."

"It might not be too late to invite Izek into this."

A small window cut into the front door of the house at eye height pops open. A pair of eyes comes to the slit.

The door unlatches and swings silently inward.

Lady Wachter stands in the doorway, a orange tabby cat at her ankles. The cat has surprisingly bright orange eyes, narrowed to devilish slits at the moment. Lady Wachter wears a gown of red fabric with exquisite crumpling folds.

The tailoring alone must have cost a small fortune.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (Wait it just ocured to me both Suldae and Marcus don#t know Henry is a Paladin)

Marcus and Suldae both realize that the fabric is threadbare in places and far older than it looks.

Liliet (Suldae): (yep we don't know)

h u h

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Good evening!"

"I'm so glad you could join me."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (that'll be afun surprise)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae assumes the old role of the shy one and moves aside to half-hide behind Marcus

Marcus Veranius: "Hosting two parties in two days; it is as they say; your family is truly the most well-off in Vallaki."

Lady Fiona Wachter: She gives a high, tittering, false laugh.

To Marcus it sounds oddly brittle.

"Please, come with me. The other guests are waiting, we are about to begin the ceremony."

"All we await now is Kasimir."

Marcus Veranius nods, understanding the laugh for what it is.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Marcus in askance if he should take the lead inside

Marcus Veranius: "By all means; you're the best dressed of us."

Lady Wachter steps aside, opening the way into the narrow vestibule. Three stained-glass doors in wooden frames lead from it.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry smirks taking the lead

Lady Wachter takes an immediate left, ducking into the parlor.

The combined Dining Room and parlor are both occupied by well-dressed, mask-wearing guests.

The masks are all identical -- black, with many long, horn-like flanges flowing away from the nose.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels uncomfortable in the house, remembering the previous narrow escape all too well.

She channels it into the role of shyness and discomfort with the luxury.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry uses his new found Divine Sense

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, are these Kasimir's friends?" Marcus comments, noting the long hair and pointed masks.

Lady Wachter crosses the room briskly, moving to the low coffee table in the parlor, which is glittering with bottles and decanters. She pours a few glasses of wine and brings them over to you cheerfully.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Yes, these are his friends. They have come to aid me in our spiritual journey, and to witness the reunion of brother and sister.

"

"Please, eat, drink, make yourselves comfortable, mingle with the other guests. Once Kasimir arrives, we can begin."

A large charcuterie board has been spread across the long table in the dining room.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around, wide-eyed. She hardly needs to act, only exaggerate the vaguely well mannered country hick mannerisms a little.

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, forgive me if I do not drink tonight. It would do me little good to be seeing double once night falls." Marcus moves to sit beside Henry at the table.

Suldae Westwind: She is sticking to Marcus like glue.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (GM could I get some Divine Senseing please)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses near them, uncomfortable. She has noted that the other guests have sat so that they cannot all three sit together.

She solves the riddle by taking a chair and bringing it to the corner to sit between the men.

Marcus Veranius: "...I do not think we will be making peace with Strahd, after all. Ireena is no longer in our company."

Suldae Westwind: (Henry you can move your token in more precise places by holding alt)

Henry senses a lesser devil within the room. He does not sense any undead, nor the presence of any other fiends. He detects no celestial presence. He senses evil, but it seems to be nothing more than a particularly distilled and concentrated form of ordinary human wickedness.

The lesser devil seems to be right at his feet.

An orange tabby cat brushes between his legs.

It gives him a "mrrrow?"

The cat saunters across the room to follow Lady Wachter.

The presence of the lesser devil moves with it.

GM: (Roll Religion, Henry)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

RELIGION (-1)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Oh? Ireena is no longer with your group?"

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry lightly hums an old tune about deals and evils he once heard but remains otherwise impassive

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Did she set off on her own?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes out the ocarina and starts playing a pleasant, quiet melody, too quiet to interfere with the conversation yet still distinct enough to work.

Charm Person*Enchantment 3Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A humanoid you can see within rangeComponents: V, SDuration: 1 hour

You attempt to charm a humanoid you can see within range. It must make a Wisdom saving throw, and does so with advantage if you or your companions are fighting it. If it fails the saving throw, it is charmed by you until the spell ends or until you or your companions do anything harmful to it. The charmed creature regards you as a friendly acquaintance. When the spell ends, the creature knows it was charmed by you.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "In a manner of speaking"

Suldae Westwind: She is targeting the three people at the table closest to her - Lady Fiona and the two elves.

The melody is slightly mournful, fitting for the conversaiton topic.

(the two presumed elves)

Marcus Veranius: "She did not survive last night's siege. It was our folly to think the barrier would be safer if we kept Strahd's beloved next to its source, but the Dragon couldn't sense her."

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 8

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 16 | 13

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 11 | 11

GM: (They don't have advantage, take 1st rolls)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

GM: (That's two fails and a pass, I think?)

Suldae Westwind: (mm! one of the cultists it didn't work on)
(the spell doesnt say the creature notices on a failed save)

GM: (We'll say the farthest one passed it)

Suldae Westwind: (the one in front of Suldae then)

?

(she only targeted the closer two)

(that guy wasnt targeted)

Lady Fiona's expression softens. She looks at Suldae differently, her dark eyes glittering slightly.

The old masked man seated across from Suldae also lowers his fork and looks at her, as though deeply invested in her title tune.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae drops her eyes and seems to let some of her grief through, when Lady Fiona looks at her.

22

PERFORMANCE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Gods..."

"What a horrible fate!"

"I heard about what happened to the church. You mean to tell me she was inside it?"

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

[CHANNEL DIVINITY]

NATURE'S WRATH

Class: Oath of the Ancients

As an action, you can cause spectral vines to spring up and reach for a creature within 10 feet of you that you can see. The creature must succeed on a Strength or Dexterity saving throw (its choice) or be restrained. While restrained by the vines, the creature repeats the saving throw at the end of each of its turns. On a success, it frees itself and the vines vanish.

(whoops

Suldae Westwind: Suldae keeps playing.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (nevermind that

Marcus Veranius nods, grimly

Suldae Westwind:

Charm Person*Enchantment 2Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A humanoid you can see within rangeComponents: V, SDuration: 1 hour

You attempt to charm a humanoid you can see within range. It must make a Wisdom saving throw, and does so with advantage if you or your companions are fighting it. If it fails the saving throw, it is charmed by you until the spell ends or until you or your companions do anything harmful to it. The charmed creature regards you as a friendly acquaintance. When the spell ends, the creature knows it was charmed by you.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

This time she targets the remaining two elves at the table.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Gods...." Says Lady Wachter again.

"Well, that dooms us, does it not? If Von Zarovich cannot have what he wants, his rage will be legendary. As it was the last time his beloved was slain by mortals."

Marcus Veranius: "I fear the tragedy of Patrina Velikovna may repeat itself if we cannot give Strahd SOMETHING, yes. We are of like minds in that."

Lady Fiona Wachter: She raises her wine glass. "To Patrina Vellikovna! And to Ireena Kolyana, the latest to be destroyed by the ignorance of mortal man."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry quietly ponders of dragons truly count as mortals but his face remains a stoic visage

The guests raise their glasses silently and drink the toast.

Lady Wachter seems to be blaming the death entirely on Vallaki.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still playing, both her hands incidentally busy with that.

Marcus Veranius: "Dragon, in this case. I'd hate to be that winged soon-to-be handbag."

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 9

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 8

Marcus Veranius toasts

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry lightly nims at his glass out of courtesy

Two more cultists come under Suldae's power.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: nibs

She feels her power over their minds, the subtle grasp of the harmonies she weaves.

Marcus Veranius: "I DID have some sort of backup plan, however."

GM: (Henry, roll Survival or Religion)

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Oh?"

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

SURVIVAL (0)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is uncomfortable with the spell she keeps weaving, which is easily enough transmitted into the same performance of shyness and grief both.

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter now leans over the table, a finger running around the rim of her wine-glass. Though she speaks with Marcus, her eyes seem to be for Suldae.

Henry detects nothing amiss about the wine.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives Marcus a visibly hopeful glance.

There is a soft knock at the front doo.

There is a soft knock at the front door.

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd wants Ireena, but WHY her? Simply, she bears a striking resemblance to his late fiancee."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae keeps playing, and now targets the last remaining guest in the room.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Excuse me, that might be Kasimir. It's the Butler's night off, I'll be right with you."

Suldae Westwind:

Charm Person

Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A humanoid you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: 1 hour

You attempt to charm a humanoid you can see within range. It must make a Wisdom saving throw, and does so with advantage if you or your companions are fighting it. If it fails the saving throw, it is charmed by you until the spell ends or until you or your companions do anything harmful to it. The charmed creature regards you as a friendly acquaintance. When the spell ends, the creature knows it was charmed by you.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 6

Suldae Westwind: (I love these rolls)

The music takes another victim.

Lady Wachter cuts Marcus off mid-sentence, leaving to the front door.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys eyes roam around the room looking for anything that stands out from the last time he was here

Suldae Westwind: Suldae keeps playing, not intending on blowing her cover or putting aside the very convenient excuse to not eat or drink anything a second earlier than it would be entirely necessary.

She returns a moment later, leading the cloaked and cowed Kasimir, who regards the room with a stare that seems to look far beyond the walls. There is an ancient grief etched into his features.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Our guest of honor has arrived!"

"Please, come and join us at the table. Marcus here was just expounding his plan to save Vallaki."

Marcus Veranius offers Kasimir a smile

Kasimir's eyes flicker towards Suldae. He knows exactly what she is doing.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at the elf with the same shyness. She hopes he is friendly enough already for her to not need to charm him as well.

Kasimir seats himself and glances around the table, taking in the number of souls currently bound to Suldae's power.

He smiles one-sidedly, ever so slightly, for only the party to see.

He makes no attempt to touch the food or drink. He sits bolt upright in his chair, hands in his lap, passively watching the scene.

Marcus Veranius: "Simply put, in the absence of the real Ireena, we must produce a duplicate. Just as the Toymaker produces duplicate dolls, we shall produce a duplicate Ireena."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at Lady Wachter now, eyes hopeful. She does not need to act to show how much she wants her to be onboard with this.

Marcus Veranius: "We have the means to make the appearance right, so long as we have a willing bride."

"You wished to be Burgomaster of Vallaki, but how does Countess of Barovia sound in its stead?"

Lady Fiona Wachter: Lady Wachter's jaw drops.

(Roll Persuasion)

(With Advantage)

WISDOM Lady Fiona Wachter <hr/> Ability: 12
--

Marcus Veranius:

17

8

PERSUASION (1)
 Marcus Veranius

A flush comes to Lady Wachter's high cheekbones.

She laughs.

She sighs. She smiles to herself.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "This is a brilliant idea."

"Do we have a way to sustain the illusion permanently?"

"He is not one to be easily fooled."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles briefly, then the smile fades back into grief. No amount of successful planning can bring back the dead, after all.

She is still playing.

Marcus Veranius: "I was to understand a Polymorph would be involved. Forgive my lack of knowledge on arcane arts, but perhaps that would suffice?"

"So long as you can play the part, it may be sufficient."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns slightly his eyes looking for the cat-devil

Marcus Veranius: "At the very least, it hurts not to try."

Lady Fiona Wachter: "A polymorph?"

"You mean a true Polymorph, right?"

"Because an ordinary one would dissipate far too quickly for this ruse to work."

"He'd kill me the moment the transformation fell away."

"One of you is capable of such obscenely powerful magic?"

She arches a delicately-painted eyebrow.

Marcus Veranius squints at Suldae with a worried look. What did Danika say she had at her disposal?

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Playing the part will be no difficulty, of course. I shall simply perform a seance to speak with the departed Ireena, and learn her natural habits and behaviors from that."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

She has no idea, but that's not what matters right now.

She finishes the melody and speaks up quietly.

"I do not think Strahd knew Ireena's habits. He was only fascinated by her appearance, after all..."

20

PERSUASION (7)
Suldae Westwind

Lady Fiona Wachter: "True... He has pursued other women in the past, as we shall explore this evening."

"Are we ready to begin the ceremony?"

Suldae Westwind: "What's it for?" Suldae asks shyly.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "We wish to speak with Patrina Velikovna, late of the Dusk Elf tribe. She died hundreds of years ago, slain by her own brethren for daring to love Strahd von Zarovich. Strahd's vengeance was unholy: he murdered all the women and children in the Dusk Elf tribe, and cut the ears of all the men. In life, she was a powerful sorceress, fit to rival the power of Strahd. Her soul bears secret tales of the Amber Temple, where Strahd forged his pact with the dark powers, and learned to become a Vampire."

Suldae Westwind: "Wouldn't it be more convenient to do that with Strahd's help?" Suldae asks shyly.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Strahd is a wise and ancient being. He will never share his secrets, not even with the most loyal of his servants... To do so would be a disrespect to them. He believes that the strong will seek out power and knowledge of their own accord, and bring it to his aid, and that the weak are worth little more than the momentary pleasure of a kill."

Suldae Westwind: "That makes sense," Suldae agrees, not allowing herself to think hard enough about the argument to have even a chance of her inner eyeroll at it sneaking into her acting. "Still, even without his direct help, as a Countess you'd have access to many more resources than here, wouldn't you?"

Marcus Veranius coughs. "If it's a matter of being strong, we probably don't need the seance. We could just kick in the Amber Temple's doors ourselves."

Marcus Veranius: "I mean, STRAHD did it. And we have three to his one."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks thoughtful.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Oh, nonsense. This will be fun! I have spent a long time preparing this ritual, and many people are invested now in its results. They have questions for the Elf witch."

"Now, let's head down to the Chamber and get it started."

Suldae Westwind: "I still think you should postpone it"

Suldae murmurs this in a sing-song voice

Marcus Veranius looks to Kasimir

Suldae Westwind:

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

Marcus Veranius: "What's your take in this? You know our plan. You know that performing it and the seance in the same evening might be dangerous to both."

"You ARE the guest of honor."

Lady Fiona Wachter:

WISDOM

Lady Fiona Wachter

Ability: 14 | 23

(Rolled Wisdom save with Disadvantage, due to Charm and Help)

Suldae Westwind: ^^

(spell DC is 15 :D)

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Well, you never answered my question. Do you have a way to sustain the illusion indefinitely?"

Marcus Veranius repeats to Kasimir in Elvish

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "We have our means milady" Henry flatly adds

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns thoughtfully at Lady Fiona's question. "I believe we do, though more arrangements need to be made. There is a mage who owes us a favor who has agreed to help with this, I'm not certain by what exact method"

*more arrangements MIGHT need to be made

Lady Fiona Wachter: "I see..."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir responds in accented Elvish. His voice is a deep baritone. "There are prisoners in one of the storage rooms. The cultists are armed. We are being watched. Lady Wachter is not a free agent at the moment, alliances with dark factions have entrapped her, and many wills are bound up in the execution of the ritual tonight. The ritual will begin, whether we wish it or not, with or without Lady Wachter. Whether it ends successfully is another matter, and my blade will have a hand in answering it. Will yours?"

In Common, he says: "I think we should proceed to the Chamber and get this over with. It has been long since Patrina could hear me."

Marcus Veranius looks to the fireplace, then to Kasimir. He nods.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Well, I am in favor of your plan. But I see no way to cancel the Ritual tonight, not when so many have done so much work to prepare it."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry scratches his head to hide his raised eyebrow as he looks at Suldae and Marcus

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir has the right of it. No sense wasting the festivities."

"But our plan need not our involvement. And as Strahd's soon-to-be, you likely need not any answers from the seance."

"Kasimir and we shall stay. You shall dress for your part. Does this sound reasonable?"

Lady Fiona Wachter: "No, I suppose that's true... I need nothing from this ritual now. The work done to make it possible has gained me everything I needed."

"Yes, I think the ritual can carry on easily enough without me."

"Did you bring some of Ireena's clothes?"

Marcus Veranius: "Suldae may have access to them." Marcus smirks.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "We will be the most pleasant of guests Milady Wachter" Henry says his face mimicing his fathers when he was talking to taxmen Liliet (Suldae): Suldae blushes deeply. She doesn't need to fake that.

Suldae Westwind: "...I don't have them on me, but... we have her things," she admits mournfully. She pauses. She is not sure what the best suggestion to make here would be, and luckily her shy persona allows her to wait for others' input without arousing suspicion.

She gives an annoyed glance to Marcus, as well. After all, Ireena is dead and he is grieving, isn't he?

The joke is in poor taste.

Marcus Veranius: "Then that settles it. Make your way to the Blue Water inn and mention that Marcus sent you."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "It might be best if one of us were allowed to fetch them" Henry says in a knowing tone hinting at the runner doing more than that

Marcus Veranius: "The tavernkeepers will prepare the rest."

Marcus Veranius trusts Danika can pull off the rest of their plan with their prior instruction

Suldae Westwind: "I could show you to the tavern," Suldae volunteers after a pause, combining both of the suggestions.

"Though I do not believe my presence would be necessary," she admits and glances with curiosity - which is very little pretend - at Casimir.

"The tavern keepers know enough to help you"

Kasimir Velikov: "Yes, we will have need of your music for certain."

Suldae Westwind: *Kasimir, whoosp

*whoops

Kasimir Velikov: "The magic that will add is indispensable."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blushes, choosing to take it as a compliment to her music rather than a blatant hint.

Lady Fiona Wachter: "Oh, I know my way across Vallaki! The sun is still up, and I will not need a guide. I will see you there."

"I hope the ritual will be profitable for you all!"

Marcus Veranius: "And may our margins ever rise."

Lady Fiona Wachter: She gets to her feet and leaves, walking at a steady pace.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae curls up on herself again, as if overwhelmed by shyness after a spell of uncharacteristic boldness.

She takes out the ocarina and begins quietly playing again, as though it is her retreat to comfort - which is not inaccurate.

Marcus Veranius: "Well, Kasimir; you ought to take lead. We'll follow right behind you."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry again looks around the parlor for the cat-devil

Kasimir Velikov: "One of you had better show us where the Chamber is," says Kasimir, to the nearest cultist.

The cultists rises as one, and slowly make their way back towards the middle of the house.

On the staircase leading up to the second floor, they pause and turn towards the left-hand wall of the stairwell. Pressing a secret switch, they open a hidden passage into another staircase, which descends into gloom.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry keeps at the back waiting for the Marcus and Suldae to pass him by wanting to speak a word with them

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is sticking to Henry like a shadow, this time.

Marcus Veranius follows behind Kasimir as a show of solidarity

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry leans down and whispers to Suldae "Keep your eyes on the Cat"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She'd been keeping an eye on the room, and remembers the cat.

There seemed to be nothing odd about it, but there's no reason for her to not trust Henry's warning, whatever the reason for it.

This large root cellar has a dirt floor. Two ascending flights of stone steps enclosed by wooden railings stand across from one another. Tracks in the earth lead from one staircase to the other, and other trails go from both staircases to the center of the bare west wall. Four neatly made cots are set in a row against the south wall.

Kasimir Velikov: "This hardly looks like a ritual chamber to me."

Cultist: "It's through a secret door. That wall."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "bit out of the way for servants quarters to" Henry murmurs mostly to himself

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, thank you."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae presses her lips together in a moment when she's concealed from everyone by Henry's wide back. Cellars and basements. She's almost getting flashbacks.

She didn't like it last time.

* for a moment

Several cultists descend the staircase, following you. Some of them weren't in the room with you earlier.

One cultist knocks on the western wall of the cellar.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae never stopped playing after starting it up again when Lady Fiona left

There is an answering knock, a moment later.

Flickering candles in iron holders fill this room with light and shadows. This room has a ten-foot-high ceiling and a large black pentagram inscribed on the stone floor. At each point of the pentagram rests a wooden chair. Seated in four of the five chairs are men and women in black robes with hoods: a young man who has the face of an angel; a balding hulk of a man; a squat, middle-aged woman; and a taller, younger woman with an unsettling glare.

The secret chamber has opened.

The orange tabby cat, unnoticed a moment ago, slips between Kasimir's legs and into the chamber.

GM (GM):

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

4

Higher Level Cast

31

Fire

150 ft

Fireball

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses her playing and looks around.

"This seems like a safe place, yet someone needs to guard us from outside still."

Her eyes flicker between the cultists who are her 'friends' at the moment.

A tremendous blast of flames obscures the Chamber and sends dirt and dust quaking from the ceiling. All the Cultists in the chamber are obliterated.

Suldae Westwind: She turns to the chamber, not needing to fake the alarm

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry curse drawing his sword

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir's fingers still spark with red light.

Marcus Veranius takes his cue and draws the oathbow

Kasimir Velikov: He grabs the nearest Cultist by the throat, before anyone else can react.

8

24

120 feet

Chill Touch (+6)

4

Necrotic

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE

Kasimir Velikov

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 20.2

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 7.15

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances around for the light sources.

Marcus Veranius:

8.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 23.15

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 16

Marcus Veranius:

8.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 2

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

10.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

14.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 11

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 13

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 21

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 20

Suldae Westwind:

11.15

INITIATIVE (3,15)
Suldae Westwind

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Cultist

Initiative: 11

Suldae Westwind: "RUN!" Suldae yells out.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "They Are Kind of blocking the Stairs"

Suldae Westwind: Sure some of the cultists will get away, but there's probably more of them out there anyway, and this might ease the fight.

Suldae glares at Henry, face obscured from the cultists by her friends and her height. The suggestion is obviously not meant for THEM

The charmed cultists all take Suldae's advice and immediately try to run.

One cultist makes it all the way up the stairs.

GM (GM):

STRENGTH

Cultist

Ability: 7

A cultist not charmed by Suldae tries to leap over the railing of the stairwell but his foot catches in the bannister and he falls flat to his face, taking 1 points of falling damage.

Suldae Westwind:

b l e s s

He shoves himself angrily back to his feet and rushes at Kasimir, swinging a scimitar!

GM (GM):

SCIMITAR

Cultist

Attack: 19

Damage: 7 slashing

Kasimir Velikov: "Aargh!" Kasimir cries out in pain as the Scimitar draws a line of blood on his arm!

STRENGTH

Cultist

Ability: 5

Suldae Westwind: these poor cultist

the bannister is their worst foe

The young cultist chilled by Kasimir tries to flee, scrambling up onto the staircase. After a moment he gives up and tries to run around instead.

Another one makes it all the way up the stairs.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (how wide are the stair cases btw)

A third makes it out.

Staircase is about 7 feet wide.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (so two people can comfortably make it up damn)

Suldae Westwind: "Runnn," Suldae intones, and the tones of her voice warp the weave around her to her will, dimming the candleflames in the room as low as she can.

Thaumaturgy

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: See text

Components: V

Duration: Up to 1 minute

You manifest a minor wonder, a sign of supernatural power, within range. You create one of the following magical effects within range: Your voice booms up to three times as loud as normal for 1 minute. You cause flames to flicker, brighten, dim, or change color for 1 minute. You cause harmless tremors in the ground for 1 minute. You create an instantaneous sound that originates from a point of your choice within range, such as a rumble of thunder, the cry of a raven, or ominous whispers. You instantaneously cause an unlocked door or window to fly open or slam shut. You alter the appearance of your eyes for 1 minute. If you cast this spell multiple times, you can have up to three of its 1-minute effects active at a time, and you can dismiss such an effect as an action.

The charmed Cultists continue to flee, but the ones not charmed hold their ground, scimitars gleaming. They seem disturbed by the show of power, but determined to accomplish.... Something.

GM: (Any movement?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps back to clear some room for her companions

EoT

Cult Fanatic: The cultist at the foot of the stairs begins to chant something in Abyssal.

The orange tabby cat turns and runs to him.

Marcus Veranius perks his ears up

Suldae Westwind: omg

Another cultist descends the staircase and shakes the charmed young man ascending.

Cult Fanatic:

WISDOM
Cultist

Ability: 6

Unable to free his companion from Suldae's charm, he lets the man run past him, and continues descending.

GM: (Henry is up)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

Misty Step

Conjuration 2

Casting Time: 1 bonus action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V

Duration: Instantaneous

Briefly surrounded by silvery mist, you teleport up to 30 feet to an unoccupied space that you can see.

Suldae Westwind: im not sure if theres a point to not letting the extra cultists flee

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry teleports behind the chanting Cultist using his new found power

Suldae Westwind: oh NICE

Suldae stares at him, feeling the weave twisted by his will as he steps across the room. He can do this since when?...

19

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

(want to see if Suldae can identify any source of this power)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Raising his Sword Henry attacks the Chanter

Suldae senses the presence of an essence of nature. Some kind of deity has a hand in this.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

14

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

11
Slashing

10

Longsword (5 ft) (+7)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

9
Slashing

GM: (That's a kill and a miss, please describe)

Suldae Westwind: Well, that's as good an answer as any. Suldae feels the presence of a similar entity in herself. Apparently this is a new alliance they've made, then.

Cool.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Taking advantage of the confusion his sudden appearance must have caused Henry rams his blade through the cultists back must

Suldae realizes that Henry must have made a pact with something, to be able to do what he just did.

Suldae Westwind: She makes a mental note to ask about this later.

It joins the mental note to think about the bark on her arms and the mental note to try to figure out her connection to the raven spirit.

These are accumulating.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Raising His Shield Henry scowls at the remaining Cultists to try their luck (EoT)

The chanting cultist gurgles on his own blood as he drops to his knees. Abyssal sounds better this way anyway, and his blood fountains over the cat.

Cult Fanatic:

INITIATIVE

Cat

Initiative: 8

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius:

LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY

Abyssal

(what did that one cultist say to the cat?)

GM: (The Cultist said to the cat: "Majesto, Lord of Bones, bring forth your defenders for the time of our need is at hand! Your servant calls to you!")

Marcus begins to see cracks forming in the packed earth of the cellar floor.

Marcus Veranius: "Something big's coming! Watch your footing!"

Marcus Veranius fires an arrow into the cultist next to Kasimir

Marcus Veranius:

25

19

600

Oathbow (+10)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

(That shouldnt be with advantage)

Cult Fanatic:

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 9

Cult Fanatic:

INITIATIVE

Skeleton

Initiative: 13

Anyone can see that multiple things are starting to push their way up through the dirt.

Marcus Veranius: (Is the one cultist still up?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is glaring at the cat. She doesn't need to understand the words - Henry's warning is enough for her to connect the dots that it's somehow to blame for this.

GM: (Yes)

Marcus Veranius:

27

600

Oathbow (+10)
Marcus Veranius

11

Piercing

GM: (Wait, do you mean the chanting cultist? Henry downed him)

(The rest you can see on the map without red Xs are up)

Marcus Veranius: (I mean the one next to Kasimir)

(That I launched an attack on earlier)

(Before mr Bones Wild Ambush)

Suldae Westwind: (doesn't using ranged weapons in melee provoke AOOs?)

GM: (I missed your first attack before my frenzy of initiative rolls, my b - he's dead)

Marcus Veranius fires an arrow at the cultist up the stairs, then runs up the stairwell

GM: (That cultist?)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee)

GM: (He dead now)

Marcus Veranius: Using an action surge, Marcus fires a few extra shots into the uncharmed cultist and cat

16

600

Oathbow (+10)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

19

600

Oathbow (+10)
Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

"I don't like the sound of it, but watch out for a lord of bones?"

(EoT)

The first shot wings the cultist, taking him into a spin that ends in a dirt nap. He won't regain consciousness for a while. The last arrow rips right through the cat and sticks in the dirt beyond it.

The cat sways on its paws for a second or two.

The cat flops over on its side, dead.

Kasimir Velikov: "Get back."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows at that. Seems... easy. She doesn't trust easy.

Kasimir Velikov: "Get away from it!"

Suldae Westwind: Yeah, that's more like it.

It's too late to move.

What begins to happen next is trauma-inducingly horrific.

By the end of the horror, what was the body of a cat has erupted into a sprawling, insectoid, overwhelming mass of huge and growing white, skeletal limbs.

It continues to expand, swelling wildly into a slick-slimed skeletal shape.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"BAD KITTY!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stares, her mind calmly attempting to find words for this.

Mentally narrating is a habit that's easy for a bard to fall into, and it's the only one she can retreat to now.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "I REALLY FUCKING HATE THIS PLACE" Henry yells in between a sting of curses in Undercommon

Suldae Westwind: Right now, the best she has got is "It shouldn't be as pretty as it is"

Majesto the Bone Devil rears to his full and menacing 12 feet of height. His sting rattles and clicks as it flickers and swings through the dark air. The candles in the chamber all gutter and die, plunging the room into utter darkness. Red eyes blaze in the gloom, high above you.

Kasimir Velikov:

CLAW

Bone Devil

Attack: 13

Damage: 10 slashing

CLAW

Bone Devil

Attack: 26

Damage: 8 slashing

STING

Bone Devil

Attack: 9

The target must succeed on a dc 14 constitution saving throw or become poisoned for 1 minute The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success

Damage: 12 piercing + 17 poison

Henry feels something like five swords scrape across his shield, followed by a second slash of five sword-like claws that actually draws blood. Something punches into the wall beside his head, he dodges it by pure luck.

The Bone Devil rumbles in the darkness, closing its eyes and slinking backwards. You hear the sound of fists punching through dirt.

Kasimir, seeing clearly with his elven eyes, raises a hand and casts Light on his own sword.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grits his teeth biting down the pain

The chamber is once again brightly illuminated.

Kasimir Velikov: "Don't let it escape!"

Skeleton: "RRRAAWAWGGGHhh..."

A skeleton, still dropping clumps of dirt and dust, charges towards the illuminated elf.

SHORTSWORD
Skeleton

Attack: 17 | 5

Damage: 7 piercing

Kasimir cries out in pain as a sword pierces him.

Skeleton:

SHORTSWORD
Skeleton

Attack: 18 | 23

Damage: 6 piercing

INITIATIVE
Skeleton

Initiative: 7

While in the presence of the Bone Devil, the skeletons move with increased speed and aggression! Their blows are difficult to avoid. Marcus feels a jolt of cold steel in his flesh. (The skeletons have advantage on attacks while the Bone Devil is alive.)

Skeleton:

SHORTSWORD
Skeleton

Attack: 16 18

Damage: 8 piercing

One skeleton guts the unconscious cultist.

One skeleton readies itself to defend its master, attacking anything that comes within range.

Marcus Veranius:

OTHER PROFICIENCY

Immunity:

Another loops around and charges at Marcus.

Skeleton:

SHORTSWORD Skeleton

Attack: 20 17

Damage: 8 piercing

Marcus Veranius looks down at the attacks on his chest, not seeing blood drawn

Marcus now faces two skeletons on the staircase, neither of whom can hurt him.

One charmed cultist flees.

Skeleton:

SHORTSWORD Skeleton

Attack: 13 6

Damage: 6 piercing

Kasimir fends off another skeleton poorly and gets scratched for it. It seems he's not very good with a blade.

GM: (Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in and out. She can feel the Weave trembling in between them, and she knows what she can attempt to do with it. She focuses and starts up a slow, melodic trill.

Hypnotic Pattern

Illusion 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A 30-foot cube within range
--

Components: S, M (A glowing stick of incense or a crystal vial filled with phosphorescent material)
--

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You create a twisting pattern of colors that weaves through the air inside a 30-foot cube within range. The pattern appears for a moment and vanishes. Each creature in the area who sees the pattern must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, the creature becomes charmed for the duration. While charmed by this spell, the creature is incapacitated and has a speed of 0. The spell ends for an affected creature if it takes any damage or if someone else uses an action to shake the creature out of its stupor.

12

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

The chamber crackles and flares with a disco inferno of whirling lights. Everyone is momentarily distracted by the dazzling display, which continues above you for as long as Suldae maintains concentration.

Henry and Marcus have advantage on the save.

Suldae Westwind: Kasimir is totally the point of origin!

Marcus Veranius:

22

20

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: wait

Henry doesnt need to roll a save

Kasimir also has advantage on the save.

Suldae Westwind: the zombies all fit in a cube that Henry and Kasimir are outside of

(You are correct)

GM: (Like this?)

Suldae Westwind: I drew it

GM: Gotcha

Skeleton:

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 16

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 19

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 5

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 13

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 12

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 16

Skeleton:

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 4

7 saves for 7 Skeletons

Derp

Should be 8

WISDOM
Skeleton

Ability: 12

8 now

Skeleton:

WISDOM
Bone Devil

Ability: 21

WISDOM
Bone Devil

Ability: 4

Sulda Westwind: 3 of htem and the bone devil saved

GM: (Bone Devil makes its save with advantage for a 21

Sulda Westwind: (makes sense -_-)

Suldae gives the same trills on the ocarina to keep up the pattern once every several seconds.

GM: (Does Suldae want to move?)

(You could take Kasimir with you)

Sulda Westwind: Suldae moves to Kasimir and shoves him towards the door

Kasimir: Kasimir goes without protest.

he clutches his wounds as he stumbles along.

Suldae Westwind: She shoves him inside and stands in front of him. She is not certain of what it was she saw happen to Marcus, but she figures her odds are better than his, anyway.

She has actual armor and a magic cloak and everything.

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a step back while swaping from srord and shield to Halberd sword

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae shoves Kasimir to a point right in front of the door, just so she can block the entrance from inside

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry swings his halberd at the devil

13

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

10

Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite

9

Slashing

25

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

15

Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite

11

Slashing

while wreathing it in Divine Light

rolling d4

(1)

= 1

GM: (Don't forget you have Bless on your weapon attacks too)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d4

(4)

= 4

17 and 26 please

GM: (Can do)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae stares at Henry. She thinks she might just understand what's going on.

It's clear the Bone Devil was not anticipating the pain of this warrior's blows. The holy light takes it entirely by surprise, the blessed weapon strikes true -- truer, for the evil it now faces -- and the silvered edge cleaves through all resistance. The Bone Devil takes 45 points of damage.

Liliet (Suldae):

23

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

One of its arms tumbles off casually.

Suldae realizes that Henry must have been claimed as a Paladin for some deity or natural force. She has heard only legends of such spontaneous semisainthoods.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

Suldae Westwind: She smiles to herself, the realization distracting her from the horror they are now facing. Since he'd talked to her, fearful of losing his way, it seems he has fully found it.

GM: (EoT Henry?)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (yes)

GM: (Marcus is up)

(The stunned skeletons don't get a save unless jostled or harmed, or if Suldae breaks concentration)

Suldae Westwind: That thing is still incongruously pretty. Suldae very much does not mind the newfound asymmetry of it.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus attempts to do the seemingly-impossible to give Henry aid against the demon. A technique many have attempted, but none so far have succeeded.

He's jumping off the stairs!

GM: (Make an athletics check :D)

Marcus Veranius:

15

ACROBATICS (8)
Marcus Veranius

Kasimir Velikov: Marcus somersaults neatly through the air and lands effortlessly, even sticking the landing.

Marcus somersaults neatly through the air and lands effortlessly, even sticking the landing.

It seems lycanthropy has additional benefits.

Marcus Veranius appears behind the demon, in a less-cool way than Henry. No idea how he can just poof behind things; that mad lad!

Marcus Veranius: "Oi! Over here you overgrown rat!"

13

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

20

Piercing

10

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

18

Piercing

GM: +Bless

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d4 Bless

(3)

= 3

rolling 1d4 Bless

(2)

= 2

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

5

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

2*Favored Enemy Bonus8Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

GM: (Total rolls?)Marcus Veranius: (Ignore the second instance of Favored Enemy. Dunno why thats showing up)

13+3+5

10+2+8

GM: (Both hit)Marcus Veranius: 22+20 Piercing Damage (Magic/Silvered Weapon)

The Bone Devil takes two silvered arrows from a blessed elven bow of vengeance and screams in pain!

Marcus Veranius: "Didn't like that, did ya? What are you going to do about it!?"

(EoT)

Kasimir Velikov:CLAW
*Bone Devil*Attack: 27Damage: 12 slashingCLAW
*Bone Devil*Attack: 11Damage: 8 slashingSTING
*Bone Devil*Attack: 15

The target must succeed on a dc 14 constitution saving throw or become poisoned for 1 minute The target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success

Damage: 20 piercing + 15 poison

The Bone Devil moves in a whirlwind of action, slashing with both hands at Henry and firing its barbed tail at Marcus.

It manages to draw blood once more, but Marcus neatly avoids the darting sting.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus ducks below the stinger, sweating profusely. Now THAT looks like it would hurt!

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (12 damgae wuhu)

Kasimir Velikov:

Prestidigitation

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 10 ft

Components: V, S

Duration: 1 hour

This spell is a minor magical trick that novice spellcasters use for practice. You create one of the following magical effects within range.

- You create an instantaneous, harmless sensory effect, such as a shower of sparks, a puff of wind, faint musical notes, or an odd odor.
- You instantaneously light or snuff out a candle, a torch, or a small campfire.
- You instantaneously clean or soil an object no larger than 1 cubic foot.
- You chill, warm, or flavor up to 1 cubic foot of nonliving material for 1 hour.
- You make a color, a small mark, or a symbol appear on an object or a surface for 1 hour.
- You create a nonmagical trinket or an illusory image that can fit in your hand and that lasts until the end of your next turn.

If you cast this spell multiple times, you can have up to three of its non-instantaneous effects active at a time, and you can dismiss such an effect as an action.

Detect Magic*Divination 1 (ritual)Casting Time: 1 actionRange: Self (30 ft)Components: V, SDuration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

For the duration, you sense the presence of magic within 30 feet of you. If you sense magic in this way, you can use your action to see a faint aura around any visible creature or object in the area that bears magic, and you learn its school of magic, if any.

The spell can penetrate most barriers, but is blocked by 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood or dirt.

Kasimir waves a hand and senses the Weave.

He approaches the center of the pentagram.

He reaches down a hand and feels the air above the center of the pentagram.

He recoils in alarm.

Kasimir Velikov: "They have used this as a summoning circle."

"Many times."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him, while trying to keep an eye on the battle as well.

Kasimir Velikov: "Patrina has never been called here, but many others have..."

"The boundary is weak here."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes for a second. That would explain the warning she got - that this time would be the last, if allowed to succeed.

Kasimir Velikov: "He could use his teleportation room to break through."

"We must sanctify this space at once."

Suldae Westwind: "What do we do?" Suldae asks in between the trills.

"We need to get rid of that first," she nods towards the other room. Her need to focus on the spell saps the concentration needed to figure this problem out.

Kasimir Velikov: "Maintain your concentration! Don't let them in here."

"I will attempt to do what is necessary."

"We must overturn the chairs."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lowers her head in acceptance. She is not a fan of how vague that sounds, but she supposes she can only do so much at a time.

Kasimir Velikov: He says this last after a moment of thought.

Suldae Westwind: She kicks over the chair next to her.

Kasimir Velikov: (Athletics check for each corpse-occupied chair)

STRENGTH
Kasimir Velikov

Ability: 15 | 15

Suldae Westwind: (oh alright)

(basically im using up my turn on this)

12

ATHLETICS (0)
Suldae Westwind

whee

Kasimir Velikov:

SHORTSWORD
Skeleton

Attack: 22

Damage: 8 piercing

SHORTSWORD
Skeleton

Attack: 6

Damage: 5 piercing

Two skeletons rush up on Marcus and stab him futilely.

The one skeleton waiting to guard its master from any that would approach continues to do so, not realizing that Henry can reach its master with the pole arm.

Marcus Veranius: "Hey, stop that! These are my good clothes damnit!"

GM: (Suldae, you're up -- you can cast one non-concentration spell and still do stuff with chairs and sanctifications)

(You can also make an arcana check to try and verify his findings)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae chooses to take his word for it, instead attempting to figure out the sanctification.

14

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae realizes that this place has been a place where people have gathered to twist and concentrate the Weave. This was not done by talented spell casters, but by frauds and crooks who only half-believed in what they were doing, and by fanatics, misled by devils and men. The place here has been used for ritual human sacrifice many times, she can sense the uneasy presence of lingering death. The Weave has been distorted and broken here, stretched apart by hellish energies and strange disharmonies of nature. She senses the larger flow of natural magic in Barovia, and the peaceful harmonies of the Weave stand out as obviously discordant with the weave-song at the center of the circle. She feels it spiraling around her, a current of inrushing and outpouring energy, an exchange between planes. If a counter-current could be produced, or if she could alter the discordant notes and somehow twist the song to better match the larger Weave, perhaps she could Mend the ruined planar boundary somehow...

Suldae Westwind: Suldae starts a rhythm of tapping her foot and humming, weaving the thrills of the continued spell on the other room into this. The idea is somewhat silly, but it could not possibly hurt.

Mending

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Touch

Target: A single break or tear in an object you touch

Components: V, S, M (Two lodestones)

Duration: Instantaneous

This spell repairs a single break or tear in an object you touch, such as a broken chain link, two halves of a broken key, a torn cloak, or a leaking wineskin. As long as the break or tear is no larger than 1 foot in any dimension, you mend it, leaving no trace of the former damage. This spell can physically repair a magic item or construct, but the spell can't restore magic to such an object.

She attempts to mend the Weave.

27

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

There is a spiraling sound followed by a an inward rush of wind and a faint "Pop!"

The smell of wildflowers wafts through the chamber.

Suldae is reminded of weddings and funerals, somehow.

The last two cultists whose charred corpses still sit in chairs both crumble to ashes.

GM: (Henry, you're up)

The Bone Devil stiffens as though something in the air has drastically changed.

Henry feels renewed vigor in his arms.

(Henry receives 15 points of healing.)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes of the twinge of feeling he is getting from where Suldae is and decides to focus on the big bony problem in front of him.

13

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

22*Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite13Slashing27*Halberd (10 ft) (+7)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

7 + 3*Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite12 + 9Slashing*

Henry again brings down his halberd on the Demons limbs

rolling d4

(4)= 4

rolling d4

(4)= 4*Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (damn son)Suldae Westwind: (BOOM)Henry's holy halberd brings the devil back to the nine hells face-first, dealing a godly 66 points of damage.]]GM (GM): (You overkilled it by 11 points)

(Would you care to describe the takedown?)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry feeling the the full might of the Light filling Him swings at the Devil first swiping at its legs, severing and searing them before Bring the Halberd up and straight down on Its head "By the Light! BEGONE!" he yells proudlyThe Bone Devil collapses into a crumbling mass of brittle, powdery calcium, vaguely skeleton-shaped but rapidly deteriorating and blowing away on some kind of spectral wind.The other skeletons crumble instantly.Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still playing/humming/tapping the tune she's come up with. She feels the very fabric of reality right itself.Marcus Veranius stares at Henry

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry huffs out a few laboring breaths before approaching Marcus the remnants of Divine Light ebbing of him "You alright Marcus" He says grinning widely Suldae Westwind: As the last remains of the curse on this place ebb, Suldae finishes the tune and comes out to look at her comrades.

Marcus Veranius 's mouth is practically on the floor

Suldae Westwind: She is amused by Marcus's look in more than one way.

GM (GM): The party gains 9025 XP

2256.25 XP per person

Suldae Westwind: The rips on his best clothes are giving him a quite interesting look, with his renewed appearance, and it appears that unlike Suldae he had not figured out Henry's new thing from the start.

GM (GM): (Round that to 2256

Suldae Westwind: (EXCELLENT, NOTED DOWN)

Marcus Veranius: "Since when have YOU been a portable sun!?"

"That's rather convenient actually."

"We can save on armor polish that way."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes up to Marcus, puts her hand on the most suggestive tear and begins to hum her song.

Mending

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Touch

Target: A single break or tear in an object you touch

Components: V, S, M (Two lodestones)

Duration: Instantaneous

This spell repairs a single break or tear in an object you touch, such as a broken chain link, two halves of a broken key, a torn cloak, or a leaking wineskin. As long as the break or tear is no larger than 1 foot in any dimension, you mend it, leaving no trace of the former damage. This spell can physically repair a magic item or construct, but the spell can't restore magic to such an object.

This is helping her not giggle.

Marcus Veranius: "...AND on weaving expenses!"

There is a brief glow. A moment later, it is impossible to tell that the shirt was ever damaged to begin with.

Marcus Veranius: "I really need to learn this 'magic' stuff."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "Since about this afternoon I had a rather productive nap you could say " Henry replies with a shiteating grin

Marcus Veranius: :|

Suldae Westwind: Suldae claps him on the shoulder in sympathy. A desire to learn magic is something she is fully there for.

Marcus Veranius: "Remind me to take notes on how to nap."

Suldae Westwind: She smiles at Henry.

Marcus Veranius: "I'm doing it wrong apparently."

Suldae Westwind: "A Paladin, then," she says seriously and radiantly.

Actually, this calls for a celebration, and she has no reason not to indulge herself.

She comes up to Henry, and standing on her tippy toes to at least somewhat compensate for the height difference, hugs him around the armor.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "I stand before you as the Herald of the Ancients, the Spiritsof Bravoria as it should be" Henry replies expression now serious

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps back and nods, her expression serious. She can feel the entity within herself stir at those words, and can't feel anything but happiness for the unity of it.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: He does however pull Suldae in close with his free hand

Suldae Westwind: She hugs him closer.

Marcus Veranius follows suit with the look. Fun as this is, there was serious business to intend to.

Marcus Veranius: "Glad the spirits are with us. How about the living? You mentioned prisoners, Kasimir?"

Kasimir Velikov stands nearby, his gaze directed towards the ceiling.

Suldae Westwind: "Well, we've done one half of the plan, so to speak," Suldae says optimistically.

Kasimir Velikov: "They are upstairs. In a storage room. Guarded."

Suldae Westwind: This was the smaller half, and yes, she knows math doesn't work like that.

Kasimir Velikov: "Your charmed ones have left the building."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "So I feeled you doing something and I take it it worked?"

Suldae Westwind: "They?" she turns to Kasimir.

She nods to Henry, explanr.ations to follow late *explanations to follow later.

Marcus Veranius: "Hopefully not to meddle in our other plans. We must trust our allies to see the wall through."

"We owe a debt, and freeing those prisoners may help to alleviate it."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "We should move then"

Marcus Veranius nods to Kasimir

The front door of the manor swings shut and locks.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae mends everyone else's clothes and armor on the way, as well.

She touches Kasimir's wounds, first.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir points east. "Through the kitchen."

Suldae Westwind:

1

Higher Level Cast

12

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

Suldae Westwind

(amaze @ the higher level cast)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Keep your magic Suldae" laying a hand on his chest

Marcus Veranius follows Kasimir's instruction and heads east, dropping the pretense of stealth.
*Plenty of noise in the basement

Suldae Westwind: She casts the spell twice, attempting to get him back into shape as best she can.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

LAY ON HANDS

Class: Paladin 1

You have a pool of healing power that replenishes when you take a long rest. With that pool, you can restore a total number of hit points equal to your paladin level x 5. As an action, you can touch a creature and draw power from the pool to restore a number of hit points to that creature, up to the maximum amount remaining in your pool.

Alternatively, you can expend 5 hit points from your pool of healing to cure the target of one disease or neutralize one poison affecting it. You can cure multiple diseases and neutralize multiple poisons with a single use of Lay on Hands, expending hit points separately for each one.

This feature has no effect on undead and constructs.

Suldae Westwind:

9

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

Suldae Westwind

(both? both. both are good)

Kasimir Velikov: "Thank you. I feel better than new."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry heals himself with lay on hands for 5hp

Popping through into the kitchen, Marcus sees a woman working at the hearth, stoking up a fire.

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae is, habitually, untouched. She'd feel bad about it but she just doesn't. Luck is luck, good thing worse didn't happen)

She doesn't seem to hear him enter.

GM: (Roll Insight, Marcus)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (wheres the Kitchen?)

?)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae's on the doorstep)

Marcus Veranius:

6

INSIGHT (5)
Marcus Veranius

(OOF)

Marcus thinks she's got a weapon.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry enters the kitchen wearily

In fact, as he looks at her, he sees the unmistakable shape of a longsword's handle in her clenched fist.

GM: (Roll insight, Henry and Suldae)

Suldae Westwind: (im fucking dying)

Marcus Veranius stomps in, holding his bow out

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

INSIGHT (0)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind:

24

INSIGHT (4)
Suldae Westwind

(LMAO)

To Henry she looks suspicious.

Marcus Veranius: "Drop your weapons, hands up!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs Marcus's shoulder.

Marcus Veranius:

13

INTIMIDATION (4)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae sees her holding a fire poker and shaking in her petticoats, terrified. Someone must have her under immediate danger.

Suldae Westwind:

19

ATHLETICS (0)
Suldae Westwind

(wow lmao)

Suldae snatches Marcus backwards just as the Cultist fires his crossbow.

Crossbow bolts whizz past, narrowly missing the bridge of Marcus's nose.

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE
Cultist

Initiative: 15

Marcus Veranius:

14.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

13.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE
Kasimir Velikov

Initiative: 20

Suldae Westwind: (good thing we're immune to these)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

12.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (sme of us anyway)

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 3.15

Suldae Westwind:

21.15

INITIATIVE (3.15)
Suldae Westwind

(LMAO)

Suldae is up

Marcus Veranius: (I don't have the guile to explain why crossbow bolts don't skewer me)

Suldae Westwind: (they stick in you like butter then get slowly pushed out)

(its creepy)

('s how im headcanoning it anyway)

Suldae turns to the cultist and fires off her favorite spell, playing a fast yet oddly lulling melody.

Basically it can pierce you but when you pull it out your flesh isn't actually parted -- just like the two briefly intersected but did not really interact normally.

Suldae Westwind:

27
Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep
Suldae Westwind

About a dozen people collapse, unconscious.

You can hear several people snoring in the adjacent room to the north.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses. She did not expect this effect.

The woman should be untouched.

*untouched.

The cultist drops, unconscious. The cook remains conscious.

Suldae Westwind: "We are not here to harm you," she addresses you.

"I apologize for my hasty comrade."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs moving over to the cultist

Marcus Veranius lowers his bow

Suldae Westwind: "Gotta tie him up," Suldae tells Henry as he passes her, "this does not last long."

Cook: The cook puts the fire poker down and slowly turns around, hands in the air.

"There's more of 'em -- in the larder! And they've got the girls in the northwest servant's quarters."

Marcus Veranius: "In all fairness, Lady Wachter has a bunch of skeletons in her closet."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods kicking the crossbow out of his hands before setting to tying him up

Cook: "I don't know if any of them went upstairs!"

Suldae Westwind: "The girls?" Suldae asks.

GM: (Roll dexterity or sleight of hand for the knot-tying)
(Or survival, actually)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

15

DEXTERITY SAVE (0)
Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: "...wait. Did you cook the evening's meal?"

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I add bless to the knot tying as it's a save lol)

Cook: "Aye, that was me. I had to do it all by me lonesome cuz it's the Butler's day off and the rest of the girls got too uppity for the Missus to deal with, so she had 'em locked up with a guard to keep 'em out o' the way 'til her party's all done."

Marcus Veranius offers a thumbs up

GM: (Oh, not a dex save, do a dex check)

Suldae Westwind: (it's not a save)
(it's an ability check)
(you clicked in the wrong place)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well party's over" Henry muses

Marcus Veranius: "You're worth every silver she pays. Best dinner platter I've had in Barovia."

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

2

SURVIVAL (0)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows at 'the rest of the girls got too uppity'. Quite an interesting household, this.

Cook: The woman flushes beet red and giggles nervously.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (goddamn really

Suldae Westwind: She comes over to Henry, seeing him fumbling with the knots, and helps.

4

SLEIGHT OF HAND (3)

Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius aids Henry with the rope-tying (Roll again)

Suldae Westwind: (OH MY GOD)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

SURVIVAL (0)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae somehow manages to tie Henry and the prisoner together in the same knot.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: (.... rope true final boss)

Henry manages to undo this only with difficulty.

Marcus Veranius: "I don't suppose they teach rope-tying in chef school?"

Kasimir Velikov:

DEXTERITY

Kasimir Velikov

Ability: 14 | 21

Kasimir comes in and ties a suitable but not particularly pretty or strong knot.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps away and looks at the elf gratefully.

This was humiliating.

If a little hilarious in retrospect.

*retrospect

Kasimir Velikov:

DEXTERITY

Commoner

Ability: 20 8

The cook comes over, tweaks a single strand of the knot, and turns it into something very sturdy and secure.

Marcus Veranius: "You're not being paid enough."

Marcus Veranius checks on the next room

Without her bonnet and with a bit more of an education, the cook would probably be a total babe. As is, she seems a little brainwashed.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry waits before no one is looking at him before inspecting his hands what was that Marcus finds the next room's door to be locked with a chain from the outside. This is easily undone. Inside he finds several sleeping commoners, including one young Vistani woman.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae just hopes no-one goes for half-elf jokes here.

She's heard a few too mcuh of those.

That prospect aside, that was genuinely hilarious.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: If his Granpa had seen him ty such a shody knot Henry would have had to woodchoping duty for a whole dayagain tie

had to do

Marcus Veranius looks at the Vistani woman. What were the chances she was from the west camp? What were the chances she was the maiden of that one Feather lad.

GM: (Roll for a Divine Intervention. Add the levels of all party members together for the threshold)

Marcus Veranius: His guilt pleaded, wanting to turn away, but locked on.

(whats a divine intervention?)

GM: "roll percentile dice. If you roll a number equal to or lower than your Cleric level, your deity intervenes. "

(In this case, the number to be equal to or lower is the combined level of Marcus, Suldae, Henry, Ireena, and Ismark)

(Ireena and Ismark are the same level as the rest of you)

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: so 30

GM: (Rull 1d100, Marcus)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d100 (DC 25)

(40)

= 40

Unfortunately the fates will not be so kind.

Suldae Westwind: (WELP)

She is the sister of the girl in the camp.

Marcus, of course, has no way to know this.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae does not even consider this, as she instead checks on the girls' health as best she can.

22

MEDICINE (2)
Suldae Westwind

All of the prisoners appear to be uninjured and healthy.

They sleep peacefully, wrapped in the harmonies of Suldae's spell.

Suldae Westwind: "They are unhurt," Suldae says, straightening out and turning to Kasimir,

Marcus Veranius: "Do we wake them? The Keepers may want to know of Vistani survivors."

Suldae Westwind: "They will wake on their own soon enough, and it is better if they do not panic," Suldae contributes.

Paladin Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Maybe we should have a look around the Manor. It would be a shame to leave when such dastardly villains are still here" he gestures to the cultist while speaking mostly to the Cook Marcus Veranius nods, heart sunken with guilt. Now wasn't the proper time, yet here it was.

GM: (Unfortunately, this may have to wait for next session -- thank you for playing, all! :D)

Suldae Westwind: (THANKS EVERYONE ;u;)

(From Tops K.): It's time for our favorite game; Curse of Shit-What-Time-Is-It-My-Character-Becomes-Spooky-At-Sundown

(From Tops K.): Starring your host: Things-I-Forgot-To-Consult-With-The-Party

(To Tops K.): Yes, it is nearly night-time

(From Marcus Veranius): Marcus still has the default Wereraven token on my side. Do I need to re-drop his token in for it to show up?

GM (GM): Morning !

I think I need to update Marcus's token

Marcus Veranius: Tokens are half the fun of character creation

I recently bought a pack of token boarders. Super-worth it

GM (GM): Did you have a hybrid image in mind? For your hybrid form?

(https://cdn.discordapp.com

/attachments/553420140037931010/600861575154368528/Marcus_Raven_Hat_Token.png) I have this image for his raven form

Tops K.: That was the hybrid form; raven was the derpy one

GM (GM): Ah

Tops K.: Gotta have them distinct somehow

GM (GM): Do you have one in mind for his full-raven form then?

We could use the derpy one if you really want to bird is life

Tops K.: The derpy one is too pure
I can't stop using it

GM (GM): (Good morning all!)

The Barovian commoners continue to snore quietly. A cultist lies bound in the corner of the kitchen.
The house around you now seems to wait, looming in silence on all sides.

The sun has nearly set.

Liliet (Suldae): "We need to get them out of here, and we need to search the house," Suldae says.
"We also should not split up"

Marcus Veranius tightens his hat, making sure the illusion is set. This party took longer than he had intended

Marcus Veranius: "Well that's easy enough. If we secure the stairwell, our chef here can help the others out."

"There's no other threats on this floor, is there?"

Marcus Veranius moves to peek in through the west door

Cook: "Were you askin' me, sir?"

Suldae Westwind: "If you know the answer," Suldae says.

GM (GM): (Where did Marcus go?)

Suldae Westwind: She walks around the room, peering into all corners

14

INVESTIGATION (4) Suldae Westwind

Marcus has found the Back Vestibule. The back door is locked and similar to the front door in every respect. A few doors lead onward into the house.

Suldae finds 4 silver coins that someone dropped in the larder a long time ago. Otherwise, she finds only barrels, neatly labeled, all containing various pickled, salted, or otherwise preserved foods. There are a few small casks of wine, but they are nearly empty.

Marcus Veranius: Ah, well that's convenient enough! Just unlock this and it was an easy exit out the back!

Marcus Veranius , in the absence of a key, attempts to force the locks open

Marcus Veranius: "Henry; can you give me a hand here?"

The door jiggles in the frame but does not open.

GM (GM): (Attempt a strength/athletics check?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Did you check these for traps?" Henry teases

Marcus Veranius: (Is it locked?)

"...I didn't, come to think of it."

Marcus Veranius takes a closer inspection before attempting anything

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pockets the coins, considering the sum to be too insignificant to bother the team over.

The door is locked. The glass in the decorative panels appears to bear an enchantment, Marcus can see teeny tiny runes etched into it when he is up close.

Suldae Westwind: She lingers in the doorway, keeping an eye both on the unconscious commoners and on her team.

Marcus Veranius: "Bollocks, thanks for the advice. Suldae; can you dispel whatever these are on the class?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the door thoughtfully.

"I do not quite have the spell for it; I could attempt to at least"

Suldae taps her fingers on the glass and whistles a melody that comes to her as she feels the patterns in the Weave.

18

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

She taps her foot, aiding in the process.

She feels the magic resist her for a moment... [[1d20+5

She feels the magic resist her for a moment... 17

The runes fade from the glass.

The door seems to relax in some indefinable way.

Marcus Veranius grins as the runes fade. With Henry's help, he attempts to finish off any mechanical locks still left.

Marcus Veranius:

27

22

Thieves Tools (8)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out, silence spreading as the melody ends with the runes fading.

Marcus's tools make short work of the lock. Within a second or two, the door is ready to be opened.

Marcus Veranius: "And there we go! One evacuation route for our friends!"

Marcus Veranius opens the door

The door swings easily open. Beyond, he sees the grounds of the small estate. Between the high stone walls, there are many small trees and decorative plants. Many fern varieties are on display.

The sun is setting in the West, and to the east, the sky is darkening swiftly.

It will be a clear night, with many stars. A good night for dragon hunting.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We should hurry and finish up here quickly"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances outside, still keeping one eye on the women, and wonders about the moon phase.

22

INTELLIGENCE (3+1)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius peers around for their other allies, then speaks in a low tone

It will be a full moon tonight.

Marcus Veranius: "Probably a bad time to mention this, but... you know this animal spirit that Lycanthropes have?"

Suldae Westwind: When does the moon rise today?

6

INTELLIGENCE (3+1)
Suldae Westwind

oh my god

Marcus, you consider the question too - a lot depends on it XD

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a peak outside "...the full moon..." he sighs out

Marcus Veranius: "Yeah, it's about that."

"I spoke with it; fine bloke. The good news is that it operate under the New Moon. Opposite side of the lunar calendar. The moons don't NORMALLY have an influence."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..But?" Henry quirks his brow

Marcus Veranius pokes his fingers together awkwardly

Marcus Veranius: "I... made an arrangement."

"Seemed like being able to fly at-will would be helpful asset, despite not having time to master the curse properly..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Suldae the question 'did you do the same?' plain on his face

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns. She was too exhausted by the events of the day to do anything other than sleep and recover, but... She reaches inside herself, attempting to touch the new part of her soul she knows is there

7

ANIMAL HANDLING (4)
Suldae Westwind

(...wow)

(fucking wow)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (rope all over again)

Marcus Veranius: "Long story short... I might have agreed to let the curse turn me birdlike when the moon is out."

"BUT!"

"I still have that Hat of Disguise. And I am hoping no one will notice!"

Suldae Westwind: (kind of need GM to give me results from my rolls...)

Suldae feels a squawking panic inside of her -- it seems whatever she has reached out to touch was peacefully slumbering, and is now very agitated.

She also realizes that she cannot tell when the moon will rise -- it could be at any moment.

In fact, the full moon may already be risen...

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a moment to consider before deeply sighing "Well now thats inconvenient" he grimaces "Okay let's table that for after we are going out in the open, we do have a Manor to investigate"

Marcus Veranius: "Which we ought to do swiftly." Marcus nods.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods mutely.

Marcus Veranius: "At the very least, the curse shouldn't be a problem tonight so long as we leave it to sleep peacefully."

Suldae Westwind: She is agitated as well.

Suldae cringes.

That, yes...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So how do we do this? we have quite a bit of property to cover"

Marcus Veranius: "Everyone pick a door, open them at the same time?"

"Repeat until house is clear?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs " we stay in shouting distance at all times at the minimum2
"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the women. Hopefully they were exhausted enough that they will keep slumbering for a while...

She looks at the cook.

Cook: "I'll stay here, if you want."

Suldae Westwind: "Keep them safe and calm," she asks.

"Please"

Cook: "I shall certainly strive to do my best, marm."

Cook twists her apron nervously.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods gratefully.

Upon consideration, she counts out 5 gold and gives them to the woman.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll take this one then" Henry says moving to the western door

Suldae Westwind: "Be safe yourself, too," she says and returns to the team.

Cook: "Do you think you and your'n might be needing the services of a cook, after all this is over? I think I should like to quit my service here, y'know..."

Marcus Veranius: "And I'll take this one. On the count of three."

Suldae Westwind: "Let's not split up."

Marcus Veranius: "One..."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll talk more later," she adds to the cook over her shoulderr with a faint smile.

She has no ideas for it but that doesnt mean nothing can be done.

Marcus Veranius: "Two... itsnotsplittingupifwe'reinthesameroom...

"THREE! Oh look, shoes!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry has his sword in one hand while putting the other on the door

Henry throws it open loudly

Marcus's room appears to be a closet of some kind. Henry's leads directly into a long servants' quarters with an armed Cultist standing guard in the doorway. Three young women cower on the other side of the room.

Seeing Henry's handsome face and shining armor, the girls shout joyously, momentarily distracting the bored Cultist.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "STAND DOWN" Henry bellowsat the cultist

14

INTIMIDATION (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

The Cultist turns to see the cause of the commotion and finds himself face to face with Henry. 17

The Cultist lunges forward, swinging his scimitar! 13

His scimitar glances off Henry's defense, leaving him wide open to a counter-blow or grapple.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at him from behind the door, ocarina at the ready.

20

INTIMIDATION (5)
Suldae Westwind

omg

i dont know what the result of it will be but she definitely is intimidating

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry graps his arm and slams him into the doorframe

GM (GM): (Athletics please)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

24

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12

ATHLETICS (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae's new beak puts such a fright into the now-pinned Cultist that he drops his weapon. "I surrender!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Could have started with that" Henry snarls at him

Marcus Veranius: "...umm, Suldae?"

Suldae Westwind: (wait re you telling me i should switch the token)

Marcus Veranius points

Suldae Westwind: (omg)

Suldae appears to be in Hybrid form now.

Suldae Westwind: (bless)

(how does this work wrt equipment and stuff immediately)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to the ladys in the Room blocking their view of Suldae " Are you alright ?" His face a mask of effortless confidence

Marcus Veranius: (You'll probably need to visit a tailor to fix Suldae's sleeves, but equipment use is the same)

She stands the same height, but her skin has become covered in glossy black feathers, and she has grown a prominent black beak. Her eyes have turned orange. She has a disturbing mix of humanoid and avian features now, and from her back a large pair of black wings has silently sprouted. Her arms remain. She still wears all of her equipment, and can still use her hands.

Her hands are now scaly and bark-braceleted, with curved black talons and eerily long, graceful fingers.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stares at her hands, taking an extra several seconds to process what is going on.

Bark on her arms, sure, that doesn't even feel like it matters right now (though it should).

Turning into a raven, that has been deliberate and for a reason.

This isn't necessarily bad or wrong.

It's just straining her ability to think straight, is all.

She would like a couple of days to herself.

Suldae Westwind: To meditate and everything.

Unfortunately it seems the world is not about to oblige.

The ladies in the room rush forward, grabbing various objects -- a bedside table drawer, a bedpan, and a metal hairbrush -- and charge at the pinned cultist.

Suldae Westwind: She steps back from the doorway.

Marcus Veranius casually slips into the room to blocks Suldae from sight

Suldae Westwind:

12

WISDOM (1+1)
Suldae Westwind

...She's not panicking. Not really.

This is going to distract her, though.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry befuddled raises his voice "WAit Wait hey Stop!"

Marcus Veranius: "Hey, look! A beak-shaped mask! That's incredibly convenient for no particular reason!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at Marcus.

Marcus Veranius takes the Cultist's mask and passes it to Suldae

One girl bursts into tears and drops her brush. She gives Henry a weepy hug.

Marcus Veranius: Oh

That's a hug

Suldae Westwind: Suldae attempts to figure out how to play the ocarina with a beak.

The other two girls do their best to get the tips of their shoes lodged between the cultist's ribs, sending swift kicks at him even as Henry tries to keep them off.

Suldae Westwind: It doesn't work, predictably.

she puts it back on her belt, slips into the room, taking advantage of the women's distraction, and looks around for something that could make an improvised hand drum.

9

INVESTIGATION (4) Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry slightly overwhelmed drags the cultist back towards him and swiftly punches him with the hand holding his sword

Suldae Westwind: (ouch my rolls)

Henry of Willowsbrook: in the face to knock him out

"You saved us!"

Suldae finds nothing that would be suitable for real drumming, but realizes almost any solid object would do.

Marcus Veranius pats the girl on the shoulder. "It's OK; everything's going to be OK."

The cultist collapses, out cold.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rifles through her equipment and takes out the box with the disguise kit.

This will do.

The girls crowd around Henry, clinging to him.

Suldae Westwind: She's fine.

"We've got to get out of here!"

Suldae Westwind: She sits on the bed, watching the scene with amusement.

She attempts talking.

"Hey"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Okay " Henry hands his sword of to Marcus for a amoment to
"We'll get you out of here" he says keeping both his hands up and visible to the women between gently patting their shoulders in reassures

Marcus Veranius takes it by the handle out of caution. Not touching the silver end when he possibly looks like Suldae under the illusion

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir, who was definitely with you the entire time and not forgotten by anybody, watches the scene silently.

Suldae Westwind: (I figured he stayed with the cultist in the kitchen)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Are you unhurt if so please wait outside." he gestures towards the opened door "We'll be right with you after making sure there is nothing bad around inside here" Henrys calm and meassured voice doesn't quite match his slightly paniced face

Marcus Veranius moves to give Suldae a pat on the shoulder as well

Suldae Westwind: "The women over there," Suldae speaks up, or attempts to (GM can she talk)

GM: (yes)

Marcus Veranius: (Only pure raven form loses language)

GM: (Ravens can imitate speech)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha ty)

Marcus Veranius: "First rule of Barovia; no one has respect for your time. Not even the curses."
"You alright?"

Suldae Westwind: The talk comes out harshly, in a different voice than Suldae is used to.
Still, she talks.

"The women will be waking up. They will need to be looked after, and we will be busy ensuring the safety"

It's hard to even focus on her wording, so distracted she is with the new sound of her voice. She can work with this, if only, again, she had time...

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry now realising he isn't being heard by these women gently places a hand under once chin "Hey I need you to get outside I'll be right there with you in just a second. Can you do that for me please?"

*to look in her eyes

Marcus Veranius moves to the bed and sits down next to Suldae

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grips Marcus's hand.

She is fine.

Definitely.

Totally.

She is definitely finer with him next to her.

Marcus Veranius: "...you get used to it. Having your body screwed up outside your will." He holds Suldae's hand firmly.

Women: The women realize what Henry is saying and decide to move outside, into the back yard, to wait for you.

Marcus Veranius gives Henry a thumbs up for playing diversion

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blinks and looks at Marcus. She's barely had the energy to consider his situation - being healed forcibly, and before that, having been scarred this badly. It is definitely... relevant.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs before murmuring "fairytails shouldn't be so stressfull"

Marcus Veranius pauses, thinking for a moment

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry Moves over to them holding his hand out for his sword

Marcus Veranius: "Bright side; you still have a nose!" Marcus remarks, trying to brighten the mood. He hands Henry the sword back Suldae Westwind: Suldae snorts, or something like that. The closest that raven anatomy allows. She brings up her hands to examine her beak.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "How are you feeling" he asks Suldae in a tone kin to the one he used for the women

Suldae Westwind: "I'll probably have to start bringing the guitar into combat," she remarks. Well it's not like she can't fix it if it gets scuffed...

Kasimir Velikov: "Are you planning on turning back at some point?" Kasimir asks, with the slightest edge of mockery in his tone.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at the elf. It's nice of him to not freak out at least, but he's not helping.

"As soon as I can," she says.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir glances out the window at the darkening sky.

Suldae Westwind: She's not lying, not really. She doubts trying to turn back would help the panicky bird inside her feel better, so she's not going to even try, even if there's a chance she'll succeed.

Kasimir Velikov: He turns and looks once again at Suldae.

Suldae Westwind: Sometimes it's better to just... surrender for a while.

Marcus Veranius: "Listen; we're rather new to this. Only a week in Barovia and we're all half-monsters of a sort."

Marcus Veranius turns to Suldae. "But Kasimir has a point. We don't have a lot of time for this to bog us down."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves on the next door "We still have things to do" waiting for the others to gather themselves for a moment he kicks open the door

Kasimir Velikov: "You are in conflict with the lycanthropic spirit?"

Suldae Westwind: "We're... trying to find our balance," Suldae answers.

Marcus Veranius: "If it makes you feel more comfortable, YOU can wear the hat of disguise, and I'll use one of these blankets as a cloak."

Suldae Westwind: "I don't think we're in conflict, per se. Just... I'm not very good at this, I think"
Suldae shakes her head.

A gigantic spider drops from the rafters and lands on the coffee table in the middle of the newly-rediscovered lounge and dining room. Henry witnesses its huge hairy body and the rope-thick line of webbing which it dropped from, and watches its long legs brace themselves between couch and table and floor. It knocks over some of the liqueurs on the coffee table, and shatters a small glass. It has not noticed him.

Suldae Westwind: "How I look to others is not the part of this that freaks me out"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Guys" Henry whispers

Marcus Veranius: "How you look to yourself is just as important." Marcus nods, unaware of the bug problem in the other room

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir thinks for a while. "You do not have a god, then? You have no familiarity with the manners of the spirit world?"

Suldae Westwind: The bardic training Suldae has gone through has made her used to changing her appearance for plays and such. This is not quite playing a role, but still - her outward appearance she perceives more as a tool than anything. Sure, right now it's not a very working tool for anything, but it doesn't really matter.

Suldae winces. She did not even think of that.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns before quietly stepping up to the beast with his sword raised

Suldae Westwind: She takes out her holy symbol.

Henry of Willowsbrook: sword

ROLL PERCEPTION, HENRY

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: "It's not about how I look, it's that I can't play," Suldae admits with annoyance. This is the part that's been playing the most havoc on her nerves. She can interact with the Weave in other ways, but she is much more comfortable with the ocarina.

She closes her eyes and sighs.

"I should... take a minute," she says.

Marcus Veranius considers for a moment

Suldae Westwind: "To handle this."

"Thank you for talking me through this."

Marcus Veranius: "You ever hear a bird's song?"

Suldae Westwind: She kicks his leg. She is trying to meditate.

Marcus Veranius: "They have no flute, yet their whistles are nature's symphony."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm a raven," she mumbles to him.

"Give me a minute."

She clasps the holy symbol in both hands. Corellon is a god of knowledge and music, but nature as well - the beauty of it, the rejuvenation of it, the deep workings behind it all that require knowledge to understand it.

Marcus Veranius flinches. Fine! Personal space time! He can play that!

The candles in the dining room have guttered out, and the room is utterly dark. Henry does not notice this, so fixated is he upon his prey. Other things lurk in the darkness, but he does not realize this. The light from the doorway is enough for what he needs to do.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (... I hate my dice)

Marcus Veranius gets up from the bed and turns to check on Henry and HOLY SHIT THE HOUSE HAS A ROACH INFESTATION!

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the bug monster or is it monster bug?

Suldae Westwind: She had loved the nature around the temple, as a kid, and while it was not her primary occupation, she spent a lot of times with the animals kept there. She'd focused her studies of the Weave and producing effects with it on interacting with the natural world, making it listen and follow her will.

She knows how important it is to listen back and allow nature to take its course, in turn.

This is, in truth, what's causing so much unrest to her right now - she feels the need to give the animal spirit inside her its space, but does not have the opportunity to do so.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (should I just do the attack roll?)

Suldae Westwind: But there is another way.

GM: (Marcus has dark vision, right?)

(Do the attack roll, please -- and the stealth roll)

Marcus Veranius: (Not until Ranger 3)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

STEALTH (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: (None of the night birds have it)

GM: (Ah, then I need a perception check from Marcus as well)

Suldae Westwind: It is not only an animal, but also a spirit. And she is an acolyte of a faith, not only an adventurer.

Marcus Veranius:

27

PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: (So am I stealthed?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sinks into herself and just listens, without even a prayer. Only attention turned inwardly on herself and her position in the world and everything around it.

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 23

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 11

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 18

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 18

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 19

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 8

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 25

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 25

(To GM):

STEALTH
Giant Spider

Skill: 18

(To GM):

WISDOM
Giant Spider

Ability: 17

Sulda Westwind: She is clasping the holy symbol, mutely requesting her patron's guidance through this.

Henry approaches. The spider is minding its own business and the clattering of breaking glass has distracted it. It does not hear Henry, though he is seen by many other watchful, beady eyes. Marcus counts about 80, like stars among the dark rafters.

Sulda Westwind:

11

RELIGION (9)
Sulda Westwind

(FUCK IT)

(IM USING INSPIRATION)

21

RELIGION (9)
Sulda Westwind

Marcus Veranius pokes Henry, then points up

Sulda Westwind: (thats FUCKING better)

Marcus Veranius: (Kasimir is helping you find your spiritual center; that might be advantage without use of inspiration)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns before looking up at where Marcus pointed Sulda Westwind: (well the dm didnt even tell me to roll, advantage or not)

(idk what im doing)

(im improvising)

(maybe im hoping for new inspiration here :P)

Sulda hears the wind on grass, and the sigh of oak trees in a gale, and the creak of pine and cedar, and the babble of mountain brooks, and the silent hum of fresh snowfall. She hears the cawing of a Raven. She hears a harmonizing trill on some strange, otherworldly instrument -- something only Corellon himself could hope to play. The Raven answers, and Corellon's song ascends in response, echoing through mountains and across the endless skies of ancient plains and faewild reaches. In a single clear moment she sees that she and the Raven are two songs of the same soul, more sisters than strangers.

Henry sees the eyes. He also hears a faint sucking, squelching, liquid sound. It sounds like someone whose mouth has too many parts, messily eating a huge burrito with bones.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Hery pales stepping back towards the door

Marcus Veranius draws his bow once Henry enters the doorway, readying a bunch of arrows.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches for the spirit again. She thinks of flying, of starry night and fresh wind.. and of horrors hiding in it, and of anger against the horrors. What is wrong should be put right; that is what she is working for. The protection of all; is that not something she and the Raven are in agreement on?

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir, how many of those explosions do you have left?"

"CAW!" Suldae's beak says, as though the voice was forced from her.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He turns to the others over his shoulder looking foremost at Kasimir "You wouldn't happen to be willing to burn that room down would you?" Henry asks with a strained calm

The Spider turns.

Kasimir Velikov: "I've used them up. Why?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Shit" Henry weakly curses "We have a slight bug infestation. About the size of dos I'd say"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae slowly builds a picture in her mind. The night sweeping over Barovia, mists and mountains, brooks and forests and the stars above. People looking at these stars; people in the town they're in.

A threat from the outside. A threat taht needs to be handled, before peace is had again.

I will handle this, she thinks to the Raven. You and I, we, I-we will handle this.

Henry of Willowsbrook: dogs

(also why is there a big lowercase j token?)

Marcus Veranius: "OK, Suldae's probably going to be busy for a few minutes. I'm going to stand in front. Henry, you poke from behind me with that stick you have."

"Kasimir, throw out fire on whatever survives our poking."

"Don't let them get into the room."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods taking a step behind Marcus and swaping out his sword for his Halberd

Marcus Veranius looses arrows into the ones from the back. Time for pest control

"Caw." Suldae's beak says again. To Suldae, it seems to be saying: "Very well then, if we're pressed for time, you might as well lead until we can properly discuss this."

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 7

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 21

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 15

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 17

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 20

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 14

Sulda Westwind: Suldae breathes out. The contact has been established.

"The beak is inconvenient for playing," she tells the other half of her soul. "Would it be possible-?"

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 18

(To GM):

INITIATIVE

Giant Spider

Initiative: 19

(To GM):*INITIATIVEGiant SpiderInitiative: 19(To GM):*INITIATIVEGiant SpiderInitiative: 16(To GM):*INITIATIVEGiant SpiderInitiative: 18*Marcus Veranius has advantage on enemies that have not yet actedMarcus Veranius:*13*13

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

19*Piercing11*15

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

19*PiercingGM: (First misses, second hits)

(Superiority die?)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee)

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

6*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus fires two precision shots with his Crossbow, sticking the nearest two jumbo spiders on the ceiling.

Marcus Veranius:

9.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

20.2

INITIATIVE (5.2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

2.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

17.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: (This is where Marcus's advantage on initiative pays off)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I rolled a 2 ... I hate my dice so much)

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 20.1

INITIATIVE

Kasimir Velikov

Initiative: 21

Suldae realizes that the Raven spirit is asking her which form she would like to be in.

Suldae Westwind: "Half-elf, for the moment," she says innerly. "I would love to get more acquainted with all of the rest once we're not currently handling a crinightsis, I promise I will. Hopefully to"

*Hopefully tonight

jeez

(It is also asking her to roll initiative)

Suldae Westwind:

16.15

INITIATIVE (3.15)
Suldae Westwind

Kasimir Velikov:

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out and opens her eyes.

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 10.15

Suldae Westwind: The support of her other half leaves her a lot more grounded that she would have expected to be, tonight.

She really can handle this later. Somehow, she suspects the were-raven spirit will have insight to offer about the bark, too.

Or might, at least.

The spider Marcus shot at puffs up, enraged, and suddenly convulses, flipping its distended lower body towards him. 21 to hit.

Marcus Veranius: (Hit)

A huge spray of webbing expands in midair like a net and gloms onto Marcus, completely entangling him! (As an action, you can make a DC12 STR check, bursting the webbing on a success. The webbing can also be attacked and destroyed.)

Marcus Veranius: ...oh bother

GM: (You are now restrained)

Kasimir Velikov:

16

16

120 ft

Fire Bolt (+6)

10

Fire

A streak of fire comes from Kasimir's outstretched hand and singes the webbing, which immolates so quickly that Marcus is unharmed by the flames.

The webbing burns away completely, freeing Marcus.

GM: (You're lucky he hit)

(Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius: "Thank you kindly!" Marcus sends out more arrows, hopefully to thin the approaching swarm

6 | 8
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

21
Piercing

GM: (Miss)

Marcus Veranius:

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

2
Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]
Marcus Veranius

GM: (Still a miss)

Marcus Veranius: OOF

9 | 14
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

19
Piercing

GM: (hit!)

(Where do you want it?)

Marcus Veranius: (Spider 2)

GM: (You slew him, care to describe?)

(In fact you totally overkilled him)

Marcus Veranius fudges his shot with the close spider. Hastilly, he turns to place a shot towards the other one's abdomen begging for a bigger target. It goes clean-through, shattering its shell and the important bits hidden inside

Marcus Veranius: He's rather thankful Miss Wachter won't be back to see what becomes of her parlor

After dripping most of its guts onto the floor, the remains of the heavy exoskeletal creature drop from the ceiling and crash to the floor, right in its own pile of goo.

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: (EoT)

Kasimir Velikov:

WEB (RECHARGE 5-6)

Giant Spider

Attack: 13

The target is restrained by webbing. As an action, the restrained target can make a DC 12 Strength check, bursting the webbing on a success. The webbing can also be attacked and destroyed - AC 10; hp 5; vulnerability to fire damage; immunity to bludgeoning, poison, and psychic damage.

Another spider scuttles up and launches webbing, but Marcus dodges it this time.

GM: (Suldae is up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps up to the door and considers the situation.

The newfound clarity of understanding gives her a solution.

She raises the ocarina to her lips - half-elven again - and begins to play.

She reaches out to the spirit of the faewild, asking them to help. What hunts spiders?

Conjure Animals

Conjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Unoccupied spaces that you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You summon fey spirits that take the form of beasts and appear in unoccupied spaces that you can see within range. Choose one of the following options for what appears: One beast of challenge rating 2 or lower Two beasts of challenge rating 1 or lower Four beasts of challenge rating 1/2 or lower Eight beasts of challenge rating 1/4 or lower Each beast is also considered fey, and it disappears when it drops to 0 hit points or when the spell ends. The summoned creatures are friendly to you and your companions. Roll initiative for the summoned creatures as a group, which has its own turns. They obey any verbal commands that you issue to them (no action required by you). If you don't issue any commands to them, they defend themselves from hostile creatures, but otherwise take no actions. The GM has the creatures' statistics.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using certain higher-level Spell Slots, you choose one of the summoning options above, and more creatures appear - twice as many with a 5th-level slot, three times as many with a 7th-level slot, and four times as many with a 9th-level slot.

7

NATURE (6)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae Westwind: (holy shit)

(Suldae has no idea what hunts spiders)

Suldae realizes that while a regular spider might have all kinds of predators, a Giant Spider has very few. It is an apex predator in its own territory, and only comes into danger when it crosses into the territory of other, larger beasts. Suldae remembers a song which seems to suggest to her that the spiders come into the greatest danger when crossing large rivers and other bodies of water, and thus have an almost mortal fear of sea-dwelling creatures which can often devour them in a few bites.

Suldae Westwind: GIANT OCTOPUS INCOMING?

2 of them in fact?

GM: (You have the character sheet now, you should be able to control the tokens too)

(Place them where you want them, please, and roll initiative for them (NPCs have a special button to do so, just make sure you've selected one of their tokens))

Suldae Westwind: (I like where they are rn lmao)

The house creaks.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry surprised by the sudden appearance of what he was certain were aquatic beasts almost drops his halberd "...that's it magic is bullshit" he hisses

The floorboards groan as pressure is relieved. Water seems to be seeping up from beneath them in two areas.

Suldae Westwind:

INITIATIVE
Giant Octopus

Initiative: 21.13

INITIATIVE
Giant Octopus

Initiative: 21.13

Marcus Veranius, in the course of a day, had gained his skin back, watched it become buried under feathers and beaks, used nudity to ward off a constable, had ghosts discuss investment properties, and saw a graveyard erupt from an otherwise ordinary basement.

Marcus Veranius: But squids

SQUIDS!?

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE MAINLAND!?

After a moment, clear water gushes up from the floorboards in a fountainous splash. A refreshing scent of cold sea breeze wafts through the musty parlor. When the wave recedes into the floorboards, a gigantic Octopos with wood-textured flesh sits in the resulting puddle.

Suldae Westwind: "...that's not what I meant to do," Suldae admits, lowering the instrument. She feels the will of the beasts probing for her own. "Thank you for coming, brave warriors, and please help us"

The Octopi push themselves up on their long tentacles, ready to fight.

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

GM (GM):

BITE

Giant Spider

Attack: 14

and the target must make a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 9 (2d8) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. If the poison damage reduces the target to 0 hit points, the target is stable but poisoned for 1 hour, even after regaining hit points, and is paralyzed while poisoned in this way.

Damage: 6 piercing + 6 poison

A Giant Spider drops from the ceiling, landing fangs-first on the nearest Octopus. The Octopus rears back, coping with the venom while pulsing with wild, multicolored textile and wallpaper patterns.

GM (GM):

CONSTITUTION

Giant Octopus

Ability: 4

Suldae Westwind:)=

GM: (Henry is up)

Suldae Westwind: (Marcus is a ranged fighter, Henry should just go in front of him next to the octopi)

(imho)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The Octopi are our friends the Octopi are our friends "Henry mutters before attacking the closest spider with his Halberd

22

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

Slashing

20

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7

Slashing

His Halberd pierces exoskeleton, spearing deep, gooey flesh.

The Giant Spider hisses and recoils, thumping its legs at him, but unable to reach him with the tangling tentacles of the Octopi in its path.

GM: (Anything else you'd like to do?)

(Also, if I didn't make it clear, you had a short rest at the start of this thing)

(Just in case that helps)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh)

Suldae Westwind: (oh ty)

(uhh did i even use any inspiration)

Marcus Veranius: (It helps cause I get ACTION SURGE AND MORE DICE)

Suldae Westwind: (Imao no)

(welp gonna do that on her next turn)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (short rest doesn't give me spell slots back right)

Marcus Veranius: (Warlocks get them back after short rest, everyone else is long rest)

(Warlocks also have like, 2 spell slots ever)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (4 i think also could you tell me which Octopus is poisend and Eot)

Marcus Veranius: (None are; its poison damage. Half as much on a save)

Suldae Westwind: the top left octopus

is hurt

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh well EoT)

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: "Get them!" Suldae proclaims, and the first octopus lashes out at the spider in between them.

TENTACLES
Giant Octopus

Attack: 20

If the target is a creature, it is grappled, escape DC 16. Until this grapple ends, the target is restrained, and the octopus can't use its tentacles on another target

Damage: 7 bludgeoning

The Tentacle cracks exoskeleton! The spider chitters and screams, trying to scuttle away!

GM: (The Octopi share a single turn, so they both get actions/moves)

Suldae Westwind: The other octopus lashes out at another spider!

TENTACLES
Giant Octopus

Attack: 17

If the target is a creature, it is grappled, escape DC 16. Until this grapple ends, the target is restrained, and the octopus can't use its tentacles on another target

Damage: 10 bludgeoning

Once again, exoskeleton cracks, and tentacles take a firm hold! Both Octopi have grappled nearby spiders!

Suldae Westwind: EoT

"Good job!" Suldae calls out from her huddle behind Henry's back.

(brb)

(bck)

Kasimir says "Excuse me," and politely slips past Henry, Marcus, and Suldae, toward the front of the group.

He raises a hand and directs it towards the ceiling.

GM (GM):

DC14

Half damage

Constitution Save

30
*ColdSelfCone of Cold*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 5*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 7*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 9*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 21*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 13*GM (GM):*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 20*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 18*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 19*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 10*CONSTITUTIONGiant SpiderAbility: 14*GM: (Kasimir's DC is just 14)Suldae Westwind: (alas)GM: (4 die outright, the rest take half damage)

(5 take half damage wait I haven't rolled for one)

GM (GM):

CONSTITUTION Giant Spider <hr/> Ability: 10

GM: (50/50 split, then. Half die, half survive.)

Suldae Westwind: (i love a good lineup for aoe spells)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Its not fire but honestly I'm fine with that" Henry whistles

5 ice-crusted spiders fall from their webs and smash into popsicled, frost-bitten shards.

The rest of the spiders, cowed by the blast of frost and mist, cringe back slightly, but stare at you with renewed hatred.

GM: (Marcus is up)

Kasimir: "That's all I have in me for today, I'm afraid."

Marcus Veranius: And there goes the couch and coffee table.

Suldae Westwind: rip

Marcus Veranius: Marcus steps forward, again. He aims for one of the remaining spiders, hoping to damage any more of Lady Wachter's fine furniture.

7 | 20
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

18
Piercing

(that shouldnt have advantage)

6
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

17
Piercing

Suldae Westwind: OUCH

Marcus Veranius slips on a frozen spider piece and botches the shot

GM: (Ouch)

Marcus Veranius: EoT

Suldae Westwind: GO BACK

Marcus does manage to damage a rather expensive-looking mirror, by piercing it with a crossbow bolt.

Marcus Veranius isn't allowed to fight tipping wars anymore, but he isn't going to lose a "I'll stand in front" war with Kasimir

GM (GM):

BITE

Giant Spider

Attack: 9

and the target must make a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 9 (2d8) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. If the poison damage reduces the target to 0 hit points, the target is stable but poisoned for 1 hour, even after regaining hit points, and is paralyzed while poisoned in this way.

Damage: 9 piercing + 12 poison

BITE

Giant Spider

Attack: 12

and the target must make a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 9 (2d8) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. If the poison damage reduces the target to 0 hit points, the target is stable but poisoned for 1 hour, even after regaining hit points, and is paralyzed while poisoned in this way.

Damage: 5 piercing + 15 poison

WEB (RECHARGE 5-6)

Giant Spider

Attack: 17

The target is restrained by webbing. As an action, the restrained target can make a DC 12 Strength check, bursting the webbing on a success. The webbing can also be attacked and destroyed - AC 10; hp 5; vulnerability to fire damage; immunity to bludgeoning, poison, and psychic damage.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so the OathBOW is shooting crossbow bolts today? is that why Marcus misses so much)

The spiders rush forward as a mass, scuttling along the ceiling. One of them fires webbing at Marcus, entangling him and pinning him in place, while the others drop from the ceiling on swift lines of silk and attempt to bite him. They miss only because Marcus falls over, and Suldae is the first to react.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: "Get them Henry!" Suldae yells out from under his arm, takes out her crossbow for the first time today and shoots at the spider in front of Marcus

6

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

8

Piercing

.....

anyway Bardic Inspiration for Henry

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I still got one)

Marcus experiences the curious sensation of being pierced by a silver bolt for the first time. It seems to have gone through his foot and boot, while he lies prone beneath the webbing. It hurts a great deal.

GM: (EoT?)

(Or do you have any bonus action spells?)

Suldae Westwind: (im pretty sure it should be Kasimir and not Marcus)

(Marcus fell)

(then again who am i to argue)

Marcus Veranius: (no pls, Kasimir is weezard. 8 might kill him)

Suldae Westwind: (the physics of this be weird)

(and that lmao)

GM: (In the interest of maintaining a civil relationship with this NPC, it's probably better if it slips under Kasimir's hand and sticks in Marcus's boot as he's weaseling with the big-ass spiders on his chest

GM (GM): *wrassling

Marcus Veranius: (At least I THINK he's a weezard. Fireball is a very weezard spell)

GM: (He is much wizard, ye)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so do Bardic inspirations stack cause I think I got 2 right now also aren't we still Bless'ed)

Suldae Westwind: (yes i do agree)

Henry you can't have 2 the other would have long run out)=

Marcus Veranius: (Bless only works if you remember it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ok)

GM: (Flerpderp yes, you're still blessed, I forgot completely -- but don't forget to add that to your rolls with the attacks)

Suldae Westwind: the target can roll a d4 ;u;

GM: (The bardic inspirations do expire, and they do not stack)

Suldae Westwind: its even in hte phrasing

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You can inspire others through stirring words or music. To do so, you use a bonus action on your turn to choose one creature other than yourself within 60 feet of you who can hear you.

That creature gains one Bardic Inspiration die, a d6.

Once within the next 10 minutes, the creature can roll the die and add the number rolled to one ability check, attack roll, or saving throw it makes. The creature can wait until after it rolls the d20 before deciding to use the Bardic Inspiration die, but must decide before the DM says whether the roll succeeds or fails. Once the Bardic Inspiration die is rolled, it is lost.

A creature can have only one Bardic Inspiration die at a time.

You can use this feature a number of times equal to your Charisma modifier (a minimum of once). You regain any expended uses when you finish a long rest. Your Bardic Inspiration die changes when you reach certain levels in this class. The die becomes a d8 at 5th level, a d10 at 10th level, and a d12 at 15th level.

wrt that

>Once within the next 10 minutes,

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

GM (GM):

BITE
Giant Spider

Attack: 14

and the target must make a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 9 (2d8) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. If the poison damage reduces the target to 0 hit points, the target is stable but poisoned for 1 hour, even after regaining hit points, and is paralyzed while poisoned in this way.

Damage: 4 piercing + 12 poison

CONSTITUTION
Giant Octopus

Ability: 7

Suldae Westwind:)=

GM: (Henry is up)

Suldae Westwind: queston

why didnt Kasimir go back

if hes out of spells

GM (GM): (Good point)

Marcus Veranius: (He and marcus are in a duel of elven pride)

Suldae Westwind: (I think only Marcus is)

GM (GM): (He would have moved back, I didn't think of it at the time)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry steps deeper into the room bemoaning his lacking reach

Henry attacks the spider again with his halberd

18

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

Slashing

9

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7

Slashing

rolling d4

(1)

= 1

rolling d4

(3)

= 3

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d4

(2)

= 2

His first blow pierces the spider, but the second glances off a hardened portion of its unyielding exoskeleton, and does no harm.

The spider is very close to death. It twitches and foams, gushing greenish blood.

Suldae Westwind: (roll inspiration)

(Suldae has more)

(oh wait not anymore you cant)

Marcus Veranius: (Let the octopus finish it off)

Suldae Westwind: (only could before the dm said the results)

(is in the rules)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry also removes Suldeas crossbow bolt before his light wreathed hand reaches out for Marcus

Lay on Hands on Marcus for 8 hp

GM: (I should have waited, my b)

Suldae Westwind: i would note octopi have 15ft reach

Henry of Willowsbrook: wait Layon hands is an action nvm
(eot)

GM: (Suldae, your buddies are up)

Suldae Westwind: The top octopus lashes out at the spider right next to it

TENTACLES
Giant Octopus

Attack: 11

If the target is a creature, it is grappled, escape DC 16. Until this grapple ends, the target is restrained, and the octopus can't use its tentacles on another target

Damage: 10 bludgeoning

The Tentacles compete with hairy spider limbs, which bat them away. The Octopus cannot get through the spider's armor.

Suldae Westwind: The other octopus lashes out at the spider that attacked it

TENTACLES
Giant Octopus

Attack: 11

If the target is a creature, it is grappled, escape DC 16. Until this grapple ends, the target is restrained, and the octopus can't use its tentacles on another target

Damage: 10 bludgeoning

(GODDAMMIT)

GM: (What is up with all these doubled dice rolls? This has been happening all session)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

GM (GM):

8

12

120 ft

Fire Bolt (+6)

10
Fire

(Should not be with advantage, sorry)

Kasimir flings another firebolt through the doorway and misses, almost singing Marcus in his attempt to free him from the webbing. Kasimir hides around the corner, looking at Suldae on the other side of the doorway.

Suldae Westwind: welp

"We must free your friend."

GM: (EoT)

(Marcus is up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and puts one hand on her dagger.

Marcus Veranius winces in pain; the silver in his foot feeling like burning metal. Bollocks with his bow; he'll use his crossbow instead.

Kasimir Velikov: "Where do you think all these giant spiders came from? It is not as though they could have been here the whole time," Kasimir muses.

Marcus Veranius:

$$28 + 4 \quad | \quad 28 + 4$$

120

Hand Crossbow (+10)
Marcus Veranius

7
Piercing

GM: (Pew pew!)

Marcus Veranius: (at the near-dead one)

Marcus's crossbow bolt rips through the injured spider.

A spray of greenish guts paints the fireplace and mantle.

Suldae Westwind: "Maybe they just live here," Suldae suggests unconvincingly. This does not seem the best explanation to her either.

Marcus Veranius aims for one of the south spiders and fires two more shots

Flecks of slime dot the face of Lady Wachter's late husband, in his frame above the mantle.

Marcus Veranius:

$$14 + 3 \quad | \quad 6 + 3$$

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+5)
Marcus Veranius

19
Piercing

(Roll Perception, Marcus)Marcus Veranius:

$$\begin{array}{c} 23 + 2 \quad | \quad 17 + 2 \\ 120 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+5)

Marcus Veranius

19

Piercing

In spite of being entangled in the webbing, Marcus apparently manages to squeeze off several shots, one of which slays a spider and one of which does not.

Marcus Veranius aims for where the ice burns weakened its chitin hide, hoping for a finishing blow

Marcus Veranius: "That settles it! I'm done with this longbow nonsense!"

[EoT]

Henry of Willowsbrook: (should you roll a strength check to break out of the web?)GM: (It takes an action)Henry of Willowsbrook: (ah missed thatMarcus Veranius: (Cant stack disadvantage twice; its Crossbow time!)Suldae Westwind: (yeah its better that Suldae burns her action on that)

A spider lumbers over the fallen corpse of its comrade and comes for Marcus, lunging at him with its mandibles and fangs.

Kasimir Velikov:

STRENGTH

Giant Spider

Ability: 22

Marcus Veranius:*10*11

ACROBATICS (8)

Marcus Veranius

(Worth a shot)

Suldae Westwind: (i dnt think you can acrobat your way out of the webbing)Marcus Veranius: (Looked like a grapple attempt)Suldae Westwind: (wait how did Marcus get there)

(ooo)

The Spider snatches Marcus by the webbing which entangles him, and starts to scuttle backwards with him in its clutches, dragging him roughly over the couch, across the table covered in bottles and broken glass, across the other couch, and into the dining room. Marcus takes 4 assorted damage as though by an improvised weapon.

The spider seems to have dragged him into the clutches of another spider, so that the two can share him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (spider drag sipder drag oh my god the sdier dragged him away)

Kasimir Velikov:

BITE

Giant Spider

Attack: 19 | 7

and the target must make a DC 11 Constitution saving throw, taking 9 (2d8) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. If the poison damage reduces the target to 0 hit points, the target is stable but poisoned for 1 hour, even after regaining hit points, and is paralyzed while poisoned in this way.

Damage: 6 piercing + 11 poison

Marcus Veranius:

19

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: (NICE)

(and immune to piercing right)

Marcus has the strangest experience. The spider plunges its fangs into his belly. He feels pain from the fangs themselves, although he knows they cannot truly harm him. Then the venom begins to course into his body, and he feels his body fight back. He resists most of its effects, but still feels a wave of numbness and nausea which makes him realize he is not immune to poison.

Marcus Veranius is not happy with any of this.

Marcus recovers from the 4 assorted damage as his lycanthropic form rapidly recovers.

Suldae Westwind: (the octopi would have protected you...)

GM: (On their turn, or as a readied reaction at your command)

Suldae Westwind: (no i mean if he hadnt moved forward)

GM: (Oh lol yes, that's true)

(Suldae is up!)

Suldae Westwind: (remember when he was having a one-sided contest of stupidity with Kasimir)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (more about Marcus prancing around in front of them like a cocky drow)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lunges forward with the dagger and slashes at the webbing

Henry of Willowsbrook: crow)

GM: (From now on always and forever I shall call it stupidity. I shall say it Stoopdeety.)

Suldae Westwind: (omg)

do i need to roll to destroy the webbing

GM: (Yes: it has an AC and an HP)

Suldae Westwind:

24

20/60

Dagger (+5)
Suldae Westwind

4

Piercing

(...i dont think i need to roll the d4 XD)

Marcus Veranius: (web has 5 hp)

Suldae Westwind: (oh my god)

(...can I use the Bless for damage instead)

(I mean its a fucking web theres nothing to it than precision of the stab)

(or, well, slash)

Marcus Veranius: (its OK, ill keep firing crossbow bolts)

GM: (Bless won't add to damage, unfortunately -- and the web does have 5 HP)

Suldae Westwind: (fucking god)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (omegalol)

Suldae Westwind: "I'm here," she tells Marcus as she works, giving him Bardic Inspiration in the process

EoT

A spider lumbers over the couch towards her and spews webbing at her, trying to glue her to the floor as she works on Marcus's web!

Kasimir Velikov:

WEB (RECHARGE 5-6)
Giant Spider

Attack: 23 | 12

The target is restrained by webbing. As an action, the restrained target can make a DC 12 Strength check, bursting the webbing on a success. The webbing can also be attacked and destroyed - AC 10; hp 5; vulnerability to fire damage; immunity to bludgeoning, poison, and psychic damage.

Suldae is now webbed in place.

Suldae Westwind: (I will not say I did not see this coming)

(I absolutely saw this coming)

GM: (Henry is up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (which Spiders are the most banged up?)

Marcus Veranius: (All of them; hit by cone of cold)

Suldae Westwind: (no, most)

(which are most banged up)

GM: (The remaining 3 have 11 HP each)

Suldae Westwind: (so equally)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry steps forward swinging his halberd at the Spiders

15

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

6

Slashing

23

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

6

Slashing

Suldae Westwind: (Henry you have reach remember)

Henry of Willowsbrook: the one on the right of us

Suldae Westwind: (and octopi are about to act)

(but thank you

(goddammit i cant do the heart emoji here)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is 100% done with this nonsense
(EoT)

GM: (Octopi are up)

Suldae Westwind: The octopus reaches for the restrained Marcus and grabs him Marcus isn't struggling against it, right? :)
right? :) :) :)

Marcus Veranius is very much struggling against the seabeast

Marcus Veranius: But likely cant say no

Suldae Westwind:

STRENGTH Giant Octopus <hr/> Ability: 9

oh my god

Marcus Veranius is tenta-dragged

Suldae Westwind: I think you can roll to oppose the grapple -_- and you will be dropped

Marcus Veranius: (I was joking about struggle; where is Marcus being moved?)

Kasimir Velikov:

STRENGTH Giant Spider <hr/> Ability: 4
--

Marcus scoots across the floor, yojanked right out of the arms of the giant spider which originally snatched him.

GM: (The other octopus still has an action)

Suldae Westwind: rght sorry

Marcus is gently deposited in front of the door

the other octopus grabs Suldae

she does not struggle, and she is deposited on top of... I mean next to Marcus as well maybe a little on top of

(the one that snatched her is dead, right)

Marcus Veranius: (I dont think she was snatched; just webbed)

GM: (Correct)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Kasimir Velikov:

DAGGER (MELEE)*Kasimir VelikovAttack: 19*Damage: 3 piercing

Kasimir frees Marcus the rest of the way and helps him to his feet.

Suldae Westwind: (YUSSSS)

GM: (Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius draws his bow and shouts in a fury of anger and pain. Mostly pain; he just stepped on the crossbow bolt stuck in his boot

Marcus Veranius: (one hit for each spider)

14 + 4

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

20*Piercing9 + 1

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)

Marcus Veranius

20*Piercing*

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

GM: (Two kills -- care to describe?)

Marcus Veranius puts two arrows into the oathbow, firing for the space between both spiders' eyes. The shot is clean, straight, and both bolts whiz past Henry's head.

Suldae Westwind: (bolts)

(are you sure)

Marcus Veranius: (arrows)

(reeeeeeeeee)

The spiders fall, and so does Marcus as he frustratedly digs the bolt out of his foot.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still webbed up who will free her

Each member of the party gains 1100 XP.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry angrily stomps ver to the others "I hate this place

GM: (She can make a strength check/athletics roll)

Marcus Veranius: After inspecting the damage, he heartbrokenly tosses both boots into his backpack.
No sense wearing one without the other, and that one is done.

Suldae Westwind: (she isnt)

Suldae is lying on the floor waiting with curiosity for when someone remembers to free her

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry holds his glowing hand out to Marcus

Suldae Westwind: the octopi check the room

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how much hp did You lose?)

Marcus Veranius: (14; lemme Second wind)

"I'll be fine; can you give suldae a hand while I catch my breath?"

Henry of Willowsbrook:

26

Halberd (10 ft) (+7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7

Slashing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pumps a mental fist. Someone DID remember.

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

11

Healing

Second Wind
Marcus Veranius

With a whoosh, Henry's halberd expertly cleaves the webbing.

Suldae Westwind: She slowly climbs to her feet.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry casually sweeps his halberd at the web holding Suldae Suldae Westwind: She gives Henry a hug, then Marcus.

Then she grins at Kasimir, still shaking with adrenaline a little.

"Did what you told me to"

Kasimir Velikov: "You did indeed."

Outside the window, night has fallen.

Marcus Veranius is covered in sticky web. The clothes are a loss. The boots were a loss. Thank goodness the Hat of Disguise made him look in better straights than he was Suldae Westwind: Suldae uses Mending again.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "....So do we just pretend we checked upstairs and get out of here?"

Suldae Westwind: She sits on the broken couch and plays the ocarina, feeling the comfort of it.

Marcus Veranius: "Kas; do you know if any more hostages were upstairs?"

Suldae Westwind: Actually she spends several minutes just fixing everything she can.

It's therapeutic.

Kasimir Velikov: "I'm not certain we have the time to search the upstairs. We should take the prisoners we have and tell the guard what happened here."

Suldae Westwind: The couches and the table are oddly fine.

Kasimir Velikov: "There may be other dangers waiting here."

Marcus Veranius: "Right. We'll leave mending for later. There's just one thing I need to check."

Suldae Westwind: The octopi, who cannot fit through doors, check that there is no more danger and after a ceremonial bow (using tentacles) disappear.

Marcus Veranius looks behind the fireplace

Suldae Westwind: (meanwhile Suldae is playing and fixing stuff)

She feels her inner thoughts come into order together with what she can fix of the room.

Marcus sees three cultists standing with their backs to the fireplace, facing a fourth figure who stands horrifyingly tall and ominous at the far end of the adjacent room.

Suldae Westwind: It is also very pleasant to prove to herself that she can in fact play, still and again.

A cauldron stands in the middle of the room, casting a red glow onto the ceiling.

Marcus Veranius: That... doesn't look good

Marcus Veranius hobbled back towards Suldae, speaking softly

Marcus Veranius: "There's a couple of cultists with a cauldron in a hidden room on the other side of the fireplace. What say we give them a rain of arrows as a parting gift?"

"I believe their hidden spy window goes both ways."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows and glances at Henry, who hears this too.

"Honestly I am in favor of clearing out the whole place"

The Raven spirit inside her is slightly more in favor of structure and being thorough and methodical

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I doubt they enter and leave through the fireplace every time"

Marcus Veranius: "I don't think we have enough time for a full sweep, but we can give them a few shots to disrupt what they're doing."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I doubt they'll like that"

Suldae Westwind: "Enough time before what?" Suldae asks. "I've reached an agreement with the raven, and Strahd gave us until dawn"

Marcus Veranius: "Well they're on the other side of a fireplace. What are they going to do about it."

Suldae Westwind: "Summon another roomful of spiders?" Suldae asks innocently.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: The octopi are still milling about in the room

Kasimir Velikov: "If you think that Strahd will not spend every moment of opportunity to attempt to undo the protection of Vallaki, you do not know evil."

Suldae Westwind: "Exactly why we should clear out this place," Suldae counters.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...then lets smoke out the fireplace people" Henry grumbles

Suldae Westwind: She is sitting on the armrest of the now-fixed couch.

Henry of Willowsbrook: people

Marcus Veranius turns to Velikov. "What would you recommend then? Assuming our mock Ireena is being prepared as we speak?"

Marcus Veranius: "Do we wrap things up here, or escort the double to Strahd?"

Suldae Westwind: "Which we should do so that if or when Strahd discovers the deception, he blames us and not the town of Vallaki," Suldae elaborates on the thought, mostly just for the sake of being morbid.

Marcus Veranius: "...fair."

Suldae Westwind: "We should also leave town after doing that, to clinch the disassociation," Suldae continues.

"Which means that we should wrap up our unfinished business first. And our unfinished business is this," she sweeps her arm around the room in a grand gesture.

Kasimir Velikov: "I will leave the choice to you."

Marcus Veranius reaches into his bag and draws the cultist mask he pulled out earlier. "We'll let Izek clean up here while we oversee the business with Strahd."

Marcus Veranius: "There. Both errands handled."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "sure that should work"

Marcus Veranius: "To the inn then; with haste!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods after hesitating.

The octopi leave.

...into the other room, through the fireplace

Marcus Veranius heads for the exit, smirking.

Kasimir Velikov:

STEALTH
Giant Octopus

Skill: 20

None of the people in the other room notice the octopus silently slipping into the room.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll go get the girls" Henry says before considering the fireplace "and lead them around the east side of the building" (they are still in the back yard right?)
considering

Suldae Westwind: wait what happened to the cultist over here

GM: (Yes they are still in the backyard.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry knocked him the fuck out

Suldae Westwind: ah ok

he is either dead or conscious by now probably

(or maybe im just cranky coz its nearly 11pm)

(not that im not loving this)

Marcus Veranius: (Throw him into the fireplace too; problem solved)

GM: (We should pick this up next session, I need to go eat lunch. You've got the hardest fight of the campaign so far coming up.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (shouldn't the ones Suldae Sleep'ed also have woken up by now?)

Suldae Westwind: (absolutely)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Can we say we gather all the captive woman and the cook outside and end it there for today?)

GM: (Works for me!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (any objections? otherwise I'd say ggs for today)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah agreed)

(we round everyone up and shove the other cultist into the fireplace)

(where, offscreen, the octopi are being mean to people who presumably got the spiders there)

(they dont give a shit coz they're fae spirits temporarily given form and will go back to being that once the spell runs out or once they run out of hp)

(they are invincible, sort of)

GM (GM): (morning!)

Tops K.: (G'mornin!)

(Today is the day Strahd punishes us for our hubris and poor decisions!)

GM (GM): (We shall see :D)

(Haven't seen much hubris so far, tbh -- if anything y'all are kinda timid)

(Not a bad thing! It's a horror campaign, after all)

(But so far you've played your cards cautiously, and I don't think you've made any serious missteps so far.)

(I'm interested to see how this thing with Lady Wachter will go)

Tops K.: (A walking shrubbery tried to eat my face. Timid is the natural response)

GM (GM): (Indeed!)

(Good morning everybody!)

(Now, where were we...)

The house groans quietly around you. The servants and prisoners have all been ushered into the walled garden of the backyard, and they are safe for now. Two octopi are moments away from scuttling through a fireplace after a hastily-thrown cultist. Unless anyone wishes to change the initial conditions...

Henry of Willowsbrook: (sorry I'm eating so might not talk much for a bit)

GM (GM): (no worries)

Marcus Veranius sighs, exhausted already before the big show. They've already stopped the worst of things; with any luck the town guard could handle the rest.

In the small chamber beyond the fireplace, standing before a comfortably-cushioned window seat, the Butler passes his hands in interesting arcane shapes. He is twisting the weave, aided by three fellow cultists. All four are standing around a cauldron which bathes the ceiling in crimson light.

Liliet (Suldae): (I will note that i dont actually see the POV of the octopi)

(like id have to drag Suldae's token there to see anything)

GM (GM): (better?)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

(i will be honest: i expected to leave the octopi to do their octopi thing in the background)

(considering Suldae doesnt exactly get sensual feedback from them)

GM (GM): (Ah, in that case...)

STEALTH
Giant Octopus

Skill: 25

STEALTH
Giant Octopus

Skill: 10

WISDOM
Barovian Commoner

Ability: 5 | 4

Neither the Butler nor the three cultists notices the two Octopi delicately slithering into the room. One octopi scuttles across the floor and ducks beneath a side-table to come upon the middle cultist on the right-hand side of the room from below. Stealthy tentacles encircle but do not yet grasp the legs of this cultist.

The other Octopi scrambles up the brick chimney and over the plaster crown moulding and onto the delicately frescoed ceiling. Within a few seconds he is climbing down the chandelier and positioning himself delicately above the head of the Butler.

Suldae Westwind: (I love this)

As though at a predetermined signal, the first octopus yanks the legs out from under one cultist, and the second octopus drops onto the head of the butler, wraps its body firmly over his head and tangles its tentacles around his neck and shoulders.

the Butler says: "MMMMMMMMPHHHH!!! MMMPPPPH!!!"

Stumbling blindly around, suffocating and slapping at his own head, the butler jostles against the cauldron and dumps it over. With a splash, a wave of red liquid spills across the floor.

The Butler falls over, kicking and struggling, unable to wrest the Octopus from his head. The other cultist, screaming: "HELP ME!" Is dragged backwards into the fireplace and expertly thunked against the stone base of the fireplace installation. His scream cuts off abruptly. The red liquid pours over him, the feet of the two standing cultists, and the fallen Butler.

Instantly there is a glow of crimson light which envelops each person or creature touched by the liquid.

Suldae Westwind: 0.0

Marcus Veranius peeks into the window, wondering what the sudden glowing is all about

Suddenly a dog-sized cockroach races out of the fireplace, into the living room, and into a safe hiding place under the table. The Butler grows until his feet hit the south wall and his head bumps against the north one. The other cultists swell in size until they have to crouch to not be crushed against the ceiling.

The Octopus on the head of the Butler -- already gigantic, by the proportions of any normal octopus -- is now positively humongous, having doubled completely in size. It fills the entire northwest corner of the room, and shoots its tentacles to grasp the two enlarged cultists!

With a meaty CLONK, the octopus brings their two heads into better acquaintance, then drops them both -- like felled trees -- over the living room furniture. The coffee table gives with a pitiable crunch of teakwood.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins him and goes O.O

Marcus Veranius: "...we can't be invited anywhere."

Suldae Westwind: "Wel that explains the spiders," she murmurs quietly

The Butler grows still. The Octopus pops itself off the Butler's head with a wet-suction sound. The Butler is still alive, just unconscious.

Suldae Westwind: "They literally did that to themselves," Suldae disagrees

Marcus Veranius: "We've been invited to two houses and both of them ended up like this."
"Heaven forbid Strahd invites us to his castle and jinxes his luck."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (where is Suldaes token btw)

Kasimir Velikov: "You people are clearly experts at this."

Suldae Westwind: "We've been in more houses than that," Suldae assures him. Ireena and Ismark's house, the shops, the tavern...

Kasimir Velikov: "I may have need of your services later."

Marcus Veranius: "I'll write up a buisness card."

Suldae Westwind: "The Strahd thing might work though," she adds with a touch of smile

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Whats going on?" Henry asks turning away from the freed woman he was keeping an eye on

Marcus Veranius: "Land Kracken, if the tentacles are any indication."

Suldae Westwind: (ok who is where)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus is at the north window)

Suldae Westwind: (aha i see)

A huge tentacle slaps against the glass and sticks, suction-cups puckering.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry's at the back door with the NPCs)

Suldae Westwind: (is Marcus where his token is?)

Marcus Veranius stumbles back, almost reaching to hold his hat to his heart in shock.

Marcus Veranius: But that would be a bad plan

Suldae Westwind: "...We should probably get going," Suldae proposes, her eyes still glued to the window.

Marcus Veranius nods and motions for the road

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry after walking over pauses taking in the scene before closing his eyes and deeply inhaling "...I-You know what no I don't want to know" before going back to the women

The women seem happy to have him back.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ok if everyone is alright to move we'll leave...Now" Henry says voice calm and easy

Suldae Westwind: "Now to go find Izek," Suldae suggests as she tears her eyes away from the sight.

Moments later, back on the streets of Vallaki, you and a gaggle of servants and freed prisoners find a quiet, clear night. The stars are in abundance, and the streets are silent and empty. The lamps are all lit for the evening.

Izek Strazni is, conveniently, walking towards you already -- accompanied by a contingent of 6 guards.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae restrains the urge to hide behind someone. She did nothing wrong, right? Right.

Izek Strazni: "Ah! I'm glad to see you all!"

Marcus Veranius: "As are we. I've acquired your second piece of evidence." Marcus stands forward.

Izek Strazni: Izek approaches. His yellow eyes reflect light like the eyes of a cat.

You realize that he is at least 6 inches taller, at night.

Suldae Westwind: On second thought, Suldae does hide behind Henry. She just kind of feels better like that.

Marcus Veranius: "...also many witnesses. And we've turned some of the Wachter's magics against their own house by means of smashing it."

The full moon is high above you, peering through the trees.

Izek Strazni: "Excellent. Are there any prisoners to round up?"

Suldae Westwind: "Inside the house, we left a few tied up, didn't we?" Suldae asks

The question is directed towards Marcus.

From behind Henry's very broad and very armored back.

Marcus Veranius nods "We weren't able to clear the upper floors. Some prisoners on the lower."

Marcus Veranius: "It pains me to leave a job half-finished, but I intend to save the rest of my strength for the wall."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is very careful not openly showing his distaste of Izek while holding a broad ready stance careful of not*

Izek Strazni: "I've got another job for you, for tomorrow. There's rumor of a second cult gathering place. Conveniently, it's right where you've been renting, so it should be easy enough to investigate. Now, let's see to these prisoners!"

Izek commands the men forward and leads the way into the house.

As you walk away, you hear some of the voices of the soldiers.

"I swear! It was bigger than a couch! Bigger than a piano! Tentacles like THIS!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and thats our queue" Henry murmurs

Marcus Veranius bows respectfully as Izek marches off, hiding his concern. That... was an issue for if they even survive the siege.

"Well where is it now, numbskull? If there was a great big octopus it couldn't get out that fast! All I see is a jumbo butler!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae carefully does not giggle as she looks straight ahead.
She loves this spell.

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. We proceed as planned."

Suldae Westwind: "And that would be exactly how?" Suldae clarifies.
It's not that she's unclear on the plan. It's that... she's unclear on the exact plan, yes.

Marcus Veranius: "With any luck, Lady Wachter will be ready to play her part as Ireena... for the hour it will last."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You think Danika will mind" Henry half asks discredly gesturing at the gaggle of newly freed women

Marcus Veranius: "But I believe Strahd will see through the trick anyways, because he's not stupid enough to fall for it. If anything, he'll expect the trick."

Suldae Westwind: "Not like we have any other option," Suldae murmurs to him.
"And yeah, we had better get ready to run."

Marcus Veranius: "BUT"
"Our trap comes in layers."

Izek Strazni: Izek comes back out of the Wachter house. "Actually, I will want to question the servants. You'd better leave them with me for now."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the women. Hopefully they'll be fine?

Marcus Veranius turns, half-interrupted. "If anything they're safer with you and the guard. We're marching to war."

Marcus Veranius: "Thank you, Izek."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae changes her position so she's once again hiding behind Henry, and nods from behind there

Henry of Willowsbrook: "we should go" Henry says turning to leave to so as to not have to look at Izek for to long

Izek Strazni: Izek says, "Right then. Ladies, this way if you please. This won't take long."

Izek and the women leave.

Marcus Veranius continues with his explanation once Izek is out of earshot

Kasimir stands patiently listening.

Marcus Veranius: "...as I was saying, our trap comes in two layers. The 'trick' which Strahd is looking for, and the trick he is not."

"He will discover the Ireena we sent out was not the real Ireena. And if he does what he did at the Death House, he will charm her to gain information."

"...but Lady Wachter thinks Ireena is truly dead."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

"And meanwhile, we run?"

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd will then attempt to scry for her, but the Feathers said that their polymorph would prevent that."

"If he thinks she is truly gone, Strahd will then strike against her killer in a most brutal fashion."

"...the dread dragon Vorgansharax, who dropped the boulder that ended Ireena's life."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...hopefully"

Marcus Veranius: "We use Strahd's own rage to destroy his only feasible weapon. Once the dragon is out of the picture, Vallaki's wards will prevent further invasion."

"...and if that doesn't work, I've still got 40 arrows."

Kasimir Velikov: "You will need a spell of Nondetection. Polymorph will not prevent scrying."

Suldae Westwind: "That's our best case scenario," Suldae agrees.

"Now let's go over the worst case."

"What all can go wrong?"

Marcus Veranius: "I'm sorry, what?" Marcus stares. But... the innkeepers said...

Bollocks magic was hard.

"You're joking, right?"

Suldae Westwind: "Can you cast that spell?" Suldae asks the elf wizard.

Kasimir Velikov: "It is a simple spell. It requires diamond powder, that is the only difficulty."

Suldae Westwind: "Okay, so our first possible pitfall is if Ireena is detected by scrying. We need diamond powder to prevent that?"

Marcus Veranius puts his hands to his face. God damn, was there no place left in this world for silver tongues?

Marcus Veranius: "WAIT!"

"Non-detection; didn't our circus acquaintance ward the inn room with that?"

Kasimir Velikov: "It is possible that the protection over Vallaki may prevent scrying as well. I am uncertain. Deific magic is complex."

GM: (He did)

Marcus Veranius: "God damn, Rictavio, you may have saved us."

Suldae Westwind: "Alright, so Ireena doesn't get detected. What else can go wrong?" Suldae asks again patiently.

Marcus Veranius: "Right then, plan goes as we planned it. Cross your fingers and draw whatever luck charms in your possession."

Suldae Westwind: "This is not a plan, Marcus, this is wishful thinking unless we go over contingencies," Suldae says.

"First of all, what if Strahd turns his ire on Vallaki instead of the dragon? Do we have a plan for that? "

"Actually, that's incredibly likely to happen either way. What is our plan for handling that?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "we really aren't in a position to do anything about it if he does"

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir rubs the tip of his ear absent-mindedly, as though lost in a distant memory.

Marcus Veranius: "We stop him the old fashioned way if he does."

Suldae Westwind: "Really?"

"And if we can't?"

Marcus Veranius frowns, looking towards the road. "If we're being honest, Strahd is going to attack the town if we do nothing. Or he does if we fail at doing something."

Suldae Westwind: "Yes. We need a plan specifically for preventing him from attacking the city."

Marcus Veranius: "This is the default path, and all we can do is our best."

Suldae Westwind: "I have an idea."

"And you know what it is. We present him with the fake Ireena, and then we conspicuously run the fuck away"

"It needs details ironed out, but if it works, he'll be that much less likely to pay attention to Vallaki anymore"

Marcus Veranius: "...a good plan, except I only have 40 arrows."

"And once they run out, I need a week before the Oathbow's curse lets me use any other weapon."

Suldae Westwind: "So we need more arrows?"

Marcus Veranius: "We NEED rest."

Kasimir Velikov: "I know a place where we could hide."

Marcus Veranius: "More rest than we've gotten."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns to Kasimir. "Please tell us"

Kasimir Velikov: "There is a tower on a lake, to the west of Vallaki. It is the tower of a long-dead wizard, and the magical protection in the area makes it very secure."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I got 36 arrows you can have" Henry adds under his breath

Marcus Veranius: "...would we be able to hold out there for a week's time?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Kasimir thoughtfully. "Would it work to deter scrying?"

Kasimir Velikov: "I believe it would be secure enough to hide there for a week or a month. It would deter scrying and teleportation, and direct physical assault."

"We should raid the guardhouse before we leave Vallaki. These men are a waste of arrows anyway."

Marcus Veranius draws two gold and passes them to Henry. "Thank you."

Suldae Westwind: "So now the question is ironing out the details of running away."

Marcus Veranius: "I wouldn't mind passing by the store, but I'd rather now piss off the Burgomaster on the way out."

*Rather not

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry wave Marcus of "I barely need them anyway"

Suldae Westwind: "Maybe two groups would be best: one to move our stuff, and one to make a spectacle of delivering Ireena and running away from Vallaki?"

Marcus Veranius nods, withdrawing both coin and arrows into his bag. "Kasimir's hideout it is then. That's our contingency."

Marcus Veranius: "I'll take a quick run to the store to handle what treasures we still have, while you finish with Lady Wachter. We meet at the wall."

"And DONT say we aren't splitting up!"

Suldae Westwind: "No, at this point I think it's a good idea. Except we aren't done planning yet."

Marcus Veranius: "Because this is something I need to do alone." Marcus looks at Suldae with a stern expression

Suldae Westwind: "Let's go over it step by step, okay?"

"What do we do with our wagons?"

"The wagon and the cart, anyway."

Marcus Veranius: "I'll sell them and what remains of our non-coin treasures to the warehouse keepers."

Suldae Westwind: "Alright, I'll need to grab my stuff from there, then," Suldae notes.

Kasimir Velikov: "It may be wise to have a cart on the road. The king has spies across the land."

Suldae Westwind: "Then, second question. Who goes where?"

Kasimir Velikov: "He does not rely entirely on scrying."

Suldae Westwind: "Kasimir, what do you mean?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wouldn't avoiding the road be better then?"

Suldae Westwind: "Three of us can take raven shape, including the one Strahd is looking for," Suldae says, abandoning the pretense of secrecy.

Kasimir Velikov: "The wolves and werewolves answer to him. The vultures are his, as are the bats. Even the spiders report to him with love."

"Those who can fly should fly straight to safety."

Suldae Westwind: "I have a spell that can be used to summon giant eagles, if I manage it," Suldae continues.

"Two at a time."

"We need to figure out the logistics of this"

Kasimir Velikov: "The tower is warded by many protective spells -- it may not be possible to approach in animal or hybrid form, if your companions are lycanthropes. Ireena's presence must be carefully concealed."

Marcus Veranius: "I have some knowledge of traveling in discretion. If we make our way close to the tower by air, I can get us the rest of the way by land."

NATURAL EXPLORER

(GROUP BENEFIT)

Class: Ranger 1

You gain the following benefits when traveling for an hour or more:

>Difficult terrain doesn't slow your group's travel.

>Your group can't become lost except by magical means.

>Even when you are engaged in another activity while traveling, you remain alert to danger.

>If you are traveling alone, you can move stealthily at a normal pace.

>When you forage, you find twice as much food as you normally would.

>While tracking other creatures, you also learn their exact number, their sizes, and how long ago they passed through the area.

Kasimir Velikov: "Even her scent must be concealed."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll need to make sure Strahd isn't scrying for her during the time it takes her to move between the warded locations," Suldae suggests.

Kasimir Velikov: "The decoy is perfect for this, if she can maintain the deception."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Ok how far is it to the tower?"

Suldae Westwind: "We have three people who can't fly," Suldae continues, "unless you can fly or don't come with us?" She looks at Kasimir questioningly.

Kasimir Velikov: "Just under four miles as the crow flies, or about five or by road."

"I would see that the Devil Strahd does not get what he wants. I will go with you far enough to ensure this."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So about two hours away walking briskly"

Suldae Westwind: "Logistics, then," Suldae says again. "Who goes where when?"

Marcus Veranius: "If you have those eagles at your disposal, we all go by air."

Suldae Westwind: "Two," Suldae reminds him.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: "Three non-fliers. Two eagles. And the summoning might not work, if we are particularly unlucky"

Marcus Veranius 's eyes go wide. He forgot Ismark!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I don't think giant eagles carrying two of us would be as subtle as we need it to be"

Suldae Westwind: "We want the opposite of subtle"

"We want to be entirely clear that we are in the opposite direction from Vallaki"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "ok let me rephrase I will not be carried around like some overgrown rabbit"

Marcus Veranius: "OK, fine. How does this sound?"

Suldae Westwind: "I was thinking more riding them"

Marcus Veranius: "We need Ireena in the tower's ward before the decoy is spoiled, so Suldae and Ireena go by air."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Marcus, hoping for a more together plan than her own scattering of ideas and resources.

Marcus Veranius: "Those going by land will take a wagon, which will leave tracks."

"About halfway to the tower, we'll crash it on the side of the road and go more stealthily by foot."

"With luck, Strahd will continue west beyond our hiding spot."

Suldae Westwind: "Also a disguise for when Ireena assumes human shape to go into the tower," Suldae reminds him.

Marcus Veranius adds it to the shopping list

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir jumps into the middle of your huddle very abruptly, and makes a huge, exaggerated sniffing sound.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We could have her use the hat"

Kasimir Velikov: "The wolves will not be fooled by a tumbled cart."

Suldae Westwind: "Also, any plan that contains the words 'any luck' in it and doesn't clarify what happens otherwise is incomplete"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So the wolves will know you, Ismark and I walked west afterwards" Henry frowns at Kasimir

Marcus Veranius frowns. Luck got them this far anyways

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at him. Luck is good, planing for worst case scenarios is better.

Kasimir Velikov: "The wolves will follow your scent to the tower," says Kasimir.

Suldae Westwind: "So I think hiding that we went to the tower is not particularly in the cards."

"What we really want to hide is that Ireena is with us."

"And we want to reach the tower alive"

"And distract Strahd from the town."

"That's the objectives."

Kasimir Velikov: "I need mistletoe and spruce. With that, I can make a powder which will conceal your scent and your trail -- at least from the wolves."

Suldae Westwind: "Would it be possible to have the cart going from another gate tahn the one where we talk to Strahd?"

Suldae perks up. "That would help!"

Marcus Veranius: "...I mean, it didn't take much to make the horse go on its own when the bandits attacked."

Suldae Westwind: "Send Ismark with the cart, in disguise," Suldae suggests. "His absence will make the fake Ireena ruse easier to sell, too."

"We could have the cart reach the tower on its own, or we could reunite with it partway through"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (where is ravenloft in realation to valaki btw)

Marcus Veranius: (East)

Suldae Westwind: "Ireena could fly to the tower on her own and enter it... what could be used to make her undetected to Strahd's spies as she does that?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Maybe we should go and include her and Ismark in our planning and maybe the wereravens to" Henry murmurs Suldae Westwind: "Lady Wachter is there," Suldae reminds him.

Marcus Veranius starts tallying the shopping list up as Suldae plans, nodding in aproval

Suldae Westwind: "It's true that we should have her input, but I think it's better to go through the details while we can do it without worrying about her."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "the Inn has more than one room"

Suldae Westwind: "Their. I mean their input."

"We should also not make Lady Wachter suspect there's more to our plan than what we've told her," Suldae reminds him.

"As much of the planning is possible should be done while she thinks we're still at the ritual site"

*as

Henry of Willowsbrook: "hm" Henry deeply frowns turning some of his attention inwards, to the bundle of awareness he knows as the connection to his patrons 'Is their something you can do?'

Suldae Westwind: "So the version of the plan I'm seeing for the main group is that we hand not-Ireena over with a touching speech for how the town of Vallaki refused to harbor her and she agreed to go so as to not put us in any further danger," Suldae outlines meanwhile

"The eagles we should probably summon in advance, just so we don't have to re-plan on the fly if it doesn't work"

"Anyway, no-Ireena goes to Strahd and we conspicuously leg it"

"By a different route than the one the cart takes, preferably"

*by a different route than the one the cart takes takes

Suldae Westwind: jeez

"Meanwhile, Ireena somehow enters the tower on her own. She can probably take some supplies along in raven form, that would allow her to conceal herself?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We really should decide who goes to the meeting with Strahd, I'd say Kasimir is out of the question"

Suldae Westwind: She looks to Kasimir for insight, as the one most familiar with Strahd and also the oldest of the group.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir smirks. "I will not face that demon again until I am ready to kill him."

"Ireena should not go anywhere alone."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs nervously. "But I'm the one who eagles are certain to obey... Fine, I guess I give them instructions beforehand and go with Ireena. That will make her concealment easier."

"My absence alongside Ismark's will make the ruse more momentarily believable, too."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Which would leave me and Marcus to meet with Strahd right?"

Suldae Westwind: "So Kasimir and Ismark take the cart, making it untrackable. Henry and Marcus go to Strahd, and preferably both take the eagles - the longer Strahd does not know about the lycanthropy, the better."

This is not a particularly good plan, with all the ways it could still go wrong. But it does at least seem a somewhat complete one.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm not sure we need to employ the eagles"

Suldae Westwind: "What, you want to fight Strahd to the death? Or flee on foot?" Suldae glares at him. "Sure, in the best case scenario you two can indeed leave peacefully on foot and get to the tower without Strahd catching on. And in that case the eagles should stay concealed until the spell runs out," Suldae breathes out nervously, planning on the fly.

"We do need them in case he catches on instantly, though, because fighting him then and there? Without the means of retreat? I don't think that's a fight we can win yet," Suldae squeezes the holy symbol in her hand, attempting to calm herself.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm not aware we were planning of leaving the protection of Vallaki while dealing with Strahd"

Marcus Veranius: "Honestly, do we even need to meet with Strahd? He can just charm us and we'd be bollocks."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae buries her face in her palms. Weren't they JUST discussing this?

"We need to protect the town, first and foremost."

"That means we need to make Strahd aware we left it."

Marcus Veranius: "I thought the point of the wagon was to do that?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Yes and yelling at Strahd from the top of the Gate will do just fine

Suldae Westwind: "Not talking to Strahd, just fleeing, is probably a better plan, true."

"Weren't we going to make the wagon stealthy?"

"And it will not be fast, either."

Marcus Veranius: "I thought you were sending it out the north gate."

Suldae Westwind: "The poitn is not which gate, the point is where we want Strahd to look and what we want him to see."

"This ruse is showmanship. We want to decide what the show is, first."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry groans loudly "ok again from the top lets go over the plan so far to make sure we are on the same page"

Marcus Veranius: "The show is 'we sent a decoy out alone while we flee by wagon out another gate'. "

Suldae Westwind: "That's exactly why we're having this conversation," Sudlae murmurs.

Marcus Veranius: "While we use magic to cover our retreat out the west gate."

"That's all we need."

Suldae Westwind: "So Strahd thinks Vallaki tricked him?"

"This is not enough."

Marcus Veranius: "He'll charm Lady Wachter and know that we tricked her to trick him."

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd needs to know the people who sent the decoy are not in the town."

Marcus Veranius: "Or better than that, she'll just tell him we tricked him."

Suldae Westwind: "Nor working WITH the town."

"Yes, but if he just assumes we're in Vallaki!..."

Marcus Veranius: "...but WE sent the decoy!!"

Suldae Westwind: "He needs to know for a fact we're not."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I can go and knock out some guards while we leave if you want"

Suldae Westwind: "Doesn't matter WHO, matters WHERE"

"I guarantee if we don't make a show of it, Strahd will attack the town just to make a point, without an investigation"

"Henry can go with the wagon and Marcus with Ireena, and I'll put on the show for Strahd," Suldae proposes after a pause.

Everyone roll Perception and a Wisdom saving throw.

Marcus Veranius:

23

PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

19

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

8

WISDOM (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

WISDOM SAVE (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15

WISDOM SAVE (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(are we still Bless'ed?)

Kasimir Velikov: (Yes)

Marcus Veranius: rolling +1d4 bless

1

= 1

rolling +1d4 bless

1

= 1

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d4

(3)

= 3

Marcus Veranius: (the gods do not favor Marcus)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (saves and attack rolls only)

(so 2 9s for Wis save)

Suldae Westwind:

16

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Suldae Westwind

rolling 1d4

(2)

= 2

Marcus feels a prickle of dread down his spine. Vorgansharax is near.

Suldae Westwind:

9

PERCEPTION (7)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "...we're out of time! Strahd is making his move!"

Suldae Westwind: (oh my GOD)

Marcus Veranius: "We either act NOW or we let Strahd do as he wants!"

Suldae feels the presence of a Mind, pressing down upon the group. She knows that someone is trying to watch them. She hears the stillness of the settling Weave, like an unearthly silence beyond reckoning.

Almost without meaning to, she and the Raven spirit bring a whisper of song into the Weave, disrupting the scrying attempt.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Can Henry's spirit employees do anything btw)

(employers)

The Weave returns to normal a moment later, unruffled and faintly singing.

Suldae Westwind: (probably should have rolled Religion for that)

Henry and Marcus both see a shadow cross over the stars, wheeling high above the city.

Marcus Veranius: "OK, I'm making an EXECUTIVE DECISION as our group's leader."

"Henry, send the Decoy Wagon out the north gate.

"Suldae; go to the tavern and send Lady Wachter out. Then bring Ireena to the West gate.

"Kasimir; you and I are going to the shop. I'm wrapping up loose ends while you cast the spell that keeps us from being tracked.

"We meet up at the west gate and RUN."

Suldae Westwind: "Run?" Suldae clarifies

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Where do we send Lady Wachter"

Marcus Veranius: "East gate, to meet Strahd."

"The cards are down. We can only hope our hand is a winner."

Suldae Westwind: "We were at the south gate when we last talked to him," Suldae remembers.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "South gates a forrest now remember?"

Marcus Veranius: "HE'LL FIND HER JUST FINE! GO NOW!"

Marcus Veranius starts bolting south towards the shops, with Kasimir hopefully in tow

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at him, but breaks into a run obediently.

Kasimir Velikov follows behind, his long legs moving swiftly and silently.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns running off to get the wagon

Suldae Westwind: Worse comes to worst, she'll send a firework spelling out some insult to Strahd or something as they flee.

At the tavern, Suldae finds Danika waiting with the disguised and charmed Lady Wachter. Danika comes close and explains that she has cast a Modify Memory enchantment on Lady Wachter, so that she will believe she has done all of this entirely of her own free will, and so that she will not recall the Keepers of the Feather or their lair.

Henry easily gets the cart to the north gate with Ismark's help. Ismark is more than agreeable.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae buries her face in her palms. "Us? Will she remember us?"

Marcus and Kasimir shop quickly. The shopkeeper has to be wakened, but that is no difficulty.

Suldae Westwind: "The people who talked her into this?"

Danika: "She will remember you, and her own tragic vision of the death of Ireena Kolyana."

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you," Suldae breathes out.

A raven lands on Suldae's shoulder.

She will remain perched there, since she does not know the exact details of the plan.

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd will be waiting at the eastern gate," she tells Lady Wachter with utmost conviction

Lady Fiona Wachter: "I understand. Thank you for everything, Suldae! It has been a privilege."

She embraces Suldae. It is strange to be hugged by Ireena "one last time."

Lady Wachter heads to the eastern gate.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to her with a sincere - she really is saving all of them, hopefully! - smile and runs to the west gate.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Approaching the gate "Ok Ismark seeing as the gates are supposed to remain closed over night we'll have no trouble making a scene but remember we are angrily leaving the city becuse Strahds a dick"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "A scene? A SCENE!? I'M NOT MAKING A SCENE!"

"I JUST THINK WE SHOULD LEAVE BECAUSE STRAHD IS A DICK, AND THIS TOWN IS KILLING MY SISTER!"

"OUT OF MY WAY, PEASANTS!"

The guards at the north gate, bewildered, look at one another nervously. (Henry can make an intimidation or persuasion check with advantage due to Ismark's help)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... good"

20

21

INTIMIDATION (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

"Open the gates" Henry barks out from atop the Wagon

Impressed by his armor and bearing, and the aura of holy power which he seems to radiate, the guards obey at once.

The cart rolls out onto the northern road.

Kasimir and Marcus are done shopping, and move to the next stage of the plan.

They reunite with Suldae at the crossroads.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has remembered to grab the guitar from her room.

It is now slung on straps over her back.

Marcus Veranius is smiling super-wide. Having so much shiny platinum in his possession has destroyed any foul mood the evening had cast.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at the entirely inappropriate to the situation smile.

"So we make a scene at the west gates?"

Marcus Veranius: "The opposite. We're leaving calmly so Strahd doesn't turn his eye."

Suldae Westwind: "Alright. How?"

Kasimir Velikov: "With this," says Kasimir, holding up a small jar of ash.

"Courtesy of Mrs. Arasek's herbarium."

"Gather close."

Marcus Veranius: This is better than Marcus's plan. He rolls with it

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We should keep heading north for a while before we swing westwards to meet up with the others" Henry says to Ismark after getting outside of earshot of Vallaki

Suldae Westwind: Suldae obediently presses close to the elf.

"By the way," she murmurs, "we could send out the eagles - or something flying - as a decoy in another direction"

Kasimir Velikov:

Pass without Trace

Abjuration 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V, S, M (Ashes from a burned leaf of mistletoe and a sprig of spruce)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

A veil of shadows and silence radiates from you, masking you and your companions from detection. For the duration, each creature you choose within 30 feet of you (including you) has a +10 bonus to Dexterity (Stealth) checks and can't be tracked except by magical means. A creature that receives this bonus leaves behind no tracks or other traces of its passage.

Kasimir throws a fistful of the dust into the air. As the cloud of it falls over Marcus and Suldae, they feel an incredible lightness move through their bodies. The shadows seem darker, the light, less revealing.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wraps her hand around her holy symbol for a moment. This is a good step one.

Marcus Veranius rubs his head, confused by the silence. This was both a welcoming but strange addition to his normal stealth routine

Ismark: "Right, we'll get out towards Lake Zarovich a ways, then circle west, cross the river to kill our tracks, ditch the wagon, and head on through the forest. Right?"

Suldae Westwind: (I was just going to suggest switching to the global map)

^^

Marcus Veranius: (Oh god, the north gate doesn't lead anywhere)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ugh sure I just know we are looking for a tower west of Vallaki to meet the others"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Right. Tower,"

"A tower..."

Ismark swallows.

"Strahd's here. At the east gate. I can... Feel him."

Suldae Westwind: (is the cart loaded?)

(where's the stuff that was on it? did Henry take care of that before starting?)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Let's keep moving. I hope Lady Wachter is a decent actress..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (some traveling junk maybe)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae had some of her stuff on the cart)

Marcus Veranius: (The only provisions left are the NPC's equipment, which Ismark will carry because older brothers get the shaft)

Suldae Westwind: (I guess she grabbed that too before living)
(now to find out how much she had to ditch because encumbrance :))

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus will have grabbed it; you gucci)

Suldae Westwind: (aha ty)
(Marcus can definitely carry more than her lmao)

Lady Fiona Wachter:

PERFORMANCE Lady Fiona Wachter <hr/> Skill: 10

Henry of Willowsbrook: (,,,))

Suldae Westwind: (...is that good)
(btw Suldae is fine carrying everything)

Marcus Veranius: (Good, because Marcus only has 6 pounds carry weight unused)

Strahd von Zarovich:

INSIGHT Strahd von Zarovich <hr/> Skill: 7

It seems fortune has favored the bold. For the moment, Strahd Von Zarovich is deceived... And happy.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how do you calc carry weight?)

Marcus Veranius: (15 x Strength Score)

With a crackle of thunder, the Teleportation circle vanishes after Strahd and his bride-to-be go through.

Vorgansharax circles high in the darkness, looming over Vallaki greedily. Seeing that no prey is to be had this night, the great black dragon wheels south once more, returning to his lair.

Suldae Westwind: (yay best case scenarios!)

Marcus Veranius: "...remind me what direction the Amber Temple was in?"
"Is it the one our dragon is flying?"

Within a matter of moments, Kasimir has you over the wall by means of a back alley with some convenient crates, a low roof, a slightly higher roof, a concealed ladder, and a slim grey rope.

Kasimir Velikov: "I came up this way before, you see. The guards can be presumptuous."

Kasimir pauses, considering Marcus's question. He peers into the sky, finds the dragon, and says, "Aye. That's the right way."

Suldae Westwind: "Cute," Suldae says, too nervous to think of a better comment.

Kasimir Velikov: "But our path must, for the moment, lead elsewhere. We must return to my hut for certain supplies I have need of. Then we can be on our way."

"But first we must find your friends in the wagon."

"I fear the huts will be guarded by now; the bodies of those destroyed by the tiger have been roaming the landscape the last night or so."

"We will have need of your new Paladin."

Suldae Westwind: "Any of the three of us," Suldae indicates herself, Marcus and the raven on her shoulder, "can scout from above, find the wagon and lead the way, hopefully."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir stops to think.

Marcus Veranius nods. "I'll go, aye. I've got control of things."

Kasimir Velikov he spreads his arms gently, fingers making an arcane gesture. He lifts from the ground. Silent as a shadow, he flies up to the level of the treetops. He is difficult to look at, somehow -- the mind wants to look elsewhere, due to the spell.

Kasimir Velikov: "Speed is of the essence," he murmurs. "And more separations would be unwise."

Marcus Veranius: "...or that. That's a better plan."

Kasimir Velikov:

Fly

Transmutation 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S, M (A wing feather from any bird)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

You touch a willing creature. The target gains a flying speed of 60 feet for the duration. When the spell ends, the target falls if it is still aloft, unless it can stop the fall.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 3rd.

(damn, should have had him take a feather for the casting, that would have been way cooler)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "So there's the river," says Ismark.

"We're, uh... We're going to do something about that, right?"

Kasimir Velikov: A shadow drops down beside the trees and, with the voice of Kasimir, says: "Do not be alarmed! It is I, Kasimir. Your friends are on their way."

Suldae Westwind: "What is the plan?" Suldae murmurs. She's not sure if she can fly in hybrid shape, and the raven shape is definitely not big enough to carry all her equipment.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm? if you want to take the cart across I don't think that'll work"

Suldae Westwind: She waits, for lack of further instructions.

Kasimir Velikov: "At least, I think they're on their way..."

Marcus Veranius: "How much do you weigh?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses, her brain scrambled for a second by the unexpected question. How would she know? She tries to evaluate.

Marcus Veranius grabs Suldae and starts flying after Kasimir

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns toward Kasimir "So we leave the cart then?" his face is deadpan at the sudden appearance of the elf

Marcus Veranius:

GM: (x)[https://data.whicdn.com/images/85772475/original.gif]

Suldae Westwind: (pfff. beautiful)

GM (GM): (x)[https://data.whicdn.com/images/85772475/original.gif]

That should work for image embeds hmmmmm

Suldae Westwind: The answer appears to be "yes". Yes, she should be able to fly in this form. She reaches inside herself to the raven spirit, and invites her to spread her wings.

Marcus Veranius didn't turn off the Hat of Disguise; this likely looks sillier than he intended without the wings

GM (GM): Ah, I dood it backwards

(<https://data.whicdn.com/images/85772475/original.gif>)

Suldae Westwind: NICE

(...wait. If the hybrid form has both the wings and the arms,)

GM (GM): (It does)

Suldae Westwind: (do the wings, like, magically go through the clothes/armor on the back? The same way as with the weapons immunity?)

GM (GM): (You look a bit like a very feathery and beaky black-winged angel. And yes, they do. As you continue to transform, the equipment can meld completely into your body, too.)
(Wereravens are not particularly savage lycanthropes)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'd say yes and as for why? it's magic don't think about it too hard or it'll break) it'll)

Suldae Westwind: (No. Logistics are always important) (Thinking hard about magic is where the fun is)

Marcus Veranius: "If you're wondering, you are PARTICULARLY heavy, so you ought to spend our week of rest becoming agreeable with whatever bird spirit controls the wings."

Suldae Westwind: (That's why I'm playing a spellcaster and you aren't :P)

Marcus Veranius doesn't like this fairy tale liftoff arrangement

GM (GM): (For example, the spell Haste is secretly one of the deadliest in existence.)

Suldae Westwind: Interrupting Marcus, Suldae spreads her own wings and detaches from him.

Marcus Veranius: (It's not even a secret; action economy is good)

GM (GM): (It's not the action economy that kills)
(You can cast it on someone, and the side effects will let you destroy them)

Suldae Westwind: (oh my god i remember that calculations of how fast a person can go in dnd)

(anyway I need to be able to visualize everything is my point_
)

Suldae whoops alongside the raven twin in her head - and partially controlling her body, as Suldae wouldn't have the first clue of how to not fall on her own - as they do a barrel roll.

They're on a serious mission, she knows. But - flying!

Her and her raven spirit are in perfect agreement regarding this.

Marcus Veranius is in agreement that not dying is the most productive thing he can do right now, and does so

Within a matter of moments, Marcus and Suldae see Henry and Ismark and Kasimir and the cart far below, on the shores of the lake.

10

The night is quiet and still.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry while waiting hums some old song about a fisherman he was certain he had forgotten till now

Ireena lands on Ismark's head.

Henry of Willowsbrook: forgotten

Marcus Veranius drops down next to Henry at a respectable distance

Henry of Willowsbrook: *forgotten

Marcus Veranius: "Right; small change of plans. We need to help Kasimir fetch his things."
"THEN we book it for the tower."

Suldae Westwind:

5

DEXTERITY (2+1)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "Dragon's gone, so the ploy worked. We have arguably... an hour before Strahd comes back pissed as the dickens."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ok do we expect trouble getting his stuff?"

Marcus Veranius: "Probably."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae overbalances and comically flails for several seconds as she lands
In the end, she manages to not topple only by sinking to her knees anyway.
She looks up at the others, face split by a shit-eating grin.
Flying!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A true picture of artistic grace" Henry comments bone dry

Marcus Veranius cant complain. His face was just as wide from the coin they built up

Suldae Westwind: She pushes to the forefront of the body, her raven sister giving the way somewhat reluctantly.

"Undead are expected," she says, a half-elf again.

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir; lead us to your house. We'll leave the horse to fend for itself."

"With any luck we'll be in the tower's protection range before it all goes to hell."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "good thing its a pasture horse" Henry murmurs

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir mutters to the horse in Elvish. "Return to the village and get yourself a nice young master."

Kasimir Velikov slices the straps that bind the horse to the cart.

The horse trots back towards the village.

Kasimir Velikov: "We do not want to feed the wolves," says Kasimir.

"Come with me. It is this way."

He points with his sword.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around and shivers, as she follows.

Wolves. Birds fly away from those, so she's in luck, her raven sister assures her. Still.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his shhoulders setting of to follow

Marcus Veranius takes watch from the party's rear; no ambushes today

It takes only twenty minutes of walking through the forest to reach the edge of the camp. Kasimir casts Pass Without Trace once again as the party walks, ensuring that all members are equally protected.

Suldae Westwind: (i was gonna ask if thats where the camp is, but this is also good :D)

Marcus Veranius remains a bit apprehensive on returning to the camp, but what must be done must be done

Marcus Veranius: "Do you suppose we can sneak by the undead without alarm?"

Suldae Westwind: (Hmm. Philosophical question: does turning into hybrid form and back erase hair dye? Probably not, Suldae IS still looking like her token here)

Kasimir Velikov: "It's too quiet," says Kasimir. "The corpses were just wandering around freely this morning."

"I don't see any now."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "This is going to go horribly"

GM (GM): (Hair dye would count as equipment to me, so you wouldn't lose it when you came back.)

Marcus Veranius: "...maybe Strahd was good on his word. Town was spared."

Suldae Westwind: (Yeah I figured that too, like how a hair tie would stay in her hair too)

"I think the faster we go the better"

Kasimir Velikov: "What I need is a spell book and a few wands. And my sister's journal."

"I don't know if it's entirely worth it, if we think this will be too dangerous."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Which one's your place?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head. "It sounds like a good idea to me."

The mention of a spellbook has her ears pricking up. Could Ireena use that for some reference, too?

Kasimir Velikov points.

Suldae Westwind: "...Right the opposite side. Joy."

"Let's go around, then"

Marcus Veranius: ('m sorry, can I get an arrow to the right house?)

(We have a line of shadows over most of the camp; can't see where the house is)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Going around does seem like the best idea" (its southern most house)

Marcus Veranius nods, beginning to circle around the camp

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves to keeping himself between his friends and the camp

GM: (Roll stealth, adding an additional +10 to your stealth check)

Marcus Veranius:

24

STEALTH (8)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

17

STEALTH (3)
Suldae Westwind

+10

Marcus Veranius: (34)

Suldae Westwind: =27

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

STEALTH (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

20

You move silently through the long grass, circling the tall domed hill where the gaudy wagons still sit -- looking dirtier and damper than before.

As you circle around one of the low stone houses at the base of the hill, you see that the door has been smashed in. The interior is dark.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (isn't the door on the left side so opposite of us?)

(wait thats the chimney)

Marcus Veranius points the door out, then moves to go around the back end of the house

Marcus hears deep breathing from inside the dark interior of the house.

It sounds like a large wild animal.

Marcus Veranius: ...

Bollocks

Marcus Veranius keeps a bit farther from the house, having a good idea where the zombies went

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry taking Marcus lead keeps his distance from the house

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir moves calmly ahead, leading the way towards his house but staying just in Marcus's shadow.

Marcus Veranius leans in towards the second house, listening for occupants

Marcus hears nothing. The second house has not yet been smashed in. The windows are dark.

Marcus Veranius gives a thumbs-up to the others, then moves towards their target

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves to catch up with Marcus

Marcus Veranius: ...which happens to have a back door!

Ismark and Ireena hang back. For a moment the revenant looks like a scarecrow with his wereraven sister perched on his shoulder.

Marcus Veranius does his best not to comment

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sends a glance in their direction, worried. She'd feel safer with them closer. She is a little too busy worrying to notice the humor of the scene.

Kasimir Velikov says "This is the one."

Marcus Veranius whispers. "Do you have a key?"

He approaches the door and stops, frozen in place. The doorknob is turning from the other side.

Something is about to come out.

Suldae Westwind: "Henry!" Suldae whispers.

Kasimir drops flat to his face in the grass and vanishes.

Marcus Veranius moves to the side of the house

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises his shield stepping in front of the others

Marcus Veranius comically pulls Henry to the side of the house as well. Now's not wall time!

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins Marcus behind the corner

(oops sorry)

(my cursor is glitching)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry lets himself be tucked

Suldae Westwind: (i was trying to grab my token not yours)

The door creaks open. Something large, shaggy, and humanoid steps out onto the grass.

The Werewolf raises its head and looses a bestial howl at the full and glowing moon.

He is clutching a book under one arm.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is stil as her eyes focus on the book. Of course it's the spellbook, she doesn't even doubt.

Marcus Veranius: ...well, that was easy enough to find.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Herry looks at the book before rolling his eyes with his fullbody

*Large, hairy shapes emerge from the other houses and some come from the wagons and tents.
Several huge werewolves are converging on the howl.*

Marcus Veranius: Marcus draws his bow, attempting to take a gamble. If he can take the wolf out before it could react, that might allow them to maintain stealth Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers her ocarina, but that would break their cover something fierce. Ah, the trials of a bard.

Marcus Veranius steps out from behind the wall and looses 4 shots

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises draws his sword silently cursing up a storm

Marcus Veranius: (Action Surge)

$$\begin{array}{r|l} 10 + 4 & 11 + 4 \\ \hline 600 & \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

23
Piercing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows their example and quietly takes out her crossbow and arms it.

Marcus Veranius:

$$\begin{array}{r|l} 20 + 2 & 9 + 2 \\ \hline 600 & \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

17
Piercing

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 11 + 1 & 20 + 1 \\ \hline 600 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

16
Piercing

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 17 + 2 & 12 + 2 \\ \hline 600 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+5)
Marcus Veranius

17
Piercing

(attacks at advantage cause of Ranger's bonus against targets whom haven't acted)

Suldae Westwind: (nice)

Swifter than thought, four arrows fly from the Oathbow. The Werewolf, unsuspecting, takes all four silent shots. (The Werewolf takes 73 points of piercing damage.)

Marcus Veranius: (Is it still up?)

Kasimir Velikov: (That uh, that math does not seem uh)

Suldae Westwind: 60+13

looks god to me

*good

The Werewolf hits the dirt.

Marcus Veranius motions for the others to get into the house. He attempts to drag the werewolf inside

The book sprawls from its grasp. Kasimir snatches it, tucks it into his cloak, then, swift as a passing thought, ducks into the house.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares daggers at his back, hiding the crossbow again. His strategy in the face of a danger is not her favorite.

A raven caws. It sounds worried.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes out and looks around.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So what now"

Marcus Veranius: "OK, so I have a plan. It's not a good plan, but it's a plan."

"As soon as Kasimir has his things, I'll shoot out a window opposite of where we want to go. Then we book it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Herny takes a step outside the house to keep an eye out

Suldae Westwind: "I'm not sure we want to make loud noises quite yet," Suldae murmurs as she takes stock of the situation outside.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ismark and Ireena are still back there"

Marcus Veranius: "...oh bollocks."

Several werewolves are converging on this house. Suldae sees Ismark stealthily moving towards the house with Ireena still perched on his shoulder. Both of them are shielded by Kasimir's spell, but the werewolves are likely to come between them and the house before they can reach it.

Marcus Veranius: "...so hey, do we still have those eagles at our disposal?"

"Now would be a good time for eagles."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses. If Kasimir still has Fly active... She glances at him.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir goes to a cabinet in the corner and begins to rummage through it hastily, snatching up two wands, a staff, and a large tome.

He stuffs them all into some place within his cloak. It doesn't seem like so much could be so easily concealed without magic.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Herny curse inwardly, he really hoped he could avoid the eagle shenanigans

Suldae Westwind: Suldae begins to quietly whistle, instead of taking out the louder instrument, and tap on the door of the house. The rhythm resonates with the Weave, reaching for the faewild. Suldae focuses on the image of a giant eagle.

Conjure Animals

Conjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Unoccupied spaces that you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You summon fey spirits that take the form of beasts and appear in unoccupied spaces that you can see within range. Choose one of the following options for what appears: One beast of challenge rating 2 or lower Two beasts of challenge rating 1 or lower Four beasts of challenge rating 1/2 or lower Eight beasts of challenge rating 1/4 or lower Each beast is also considered fey, and it disappears when it drops to 0 hit points or when the spell ends. The summoned creatures are friendly to you and your companions. Roll initiative for the summoned creatures as a group, which has its own turns. They obey any verbal commands that you issue to them (no action required by you). If you don't issue any commands to them, they defend themselves from hostile creatures, but otherwise take no actions. The GM has the creatures' statistics.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using certain higher-level Spell Slots, you choose one of the summoning options above, and more creatures appear - twice as many with a 5th-level slot, three times as many with a 7th-level slot, and four times as many with a 9th-level slot.

aaand drumroll...

11

ARCANA (9)
Suldae Westwind

...

...we're in a mountainous area

Suldae Westwind: giant eagles are PERFECTLY REASONABLE

(2 beasts of cr1)

GM: (Henry, roll religion)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

RELIGION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

5

RELIGION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Kasimir Velikov: 19

Henry feels the Nature Spirits respond to Suldae's song. With a sound like the wind on wingtips, a gust blows down the chimney and swirls into the room, bearing hundreds of black feathers which swirl together into two small and tightening storms of whirling black down. A second later, two Giant Vultures sit where Suldae has beckoned them.

Suldae Westwind: After a pause, Suldae bows to them. Good enough?

*Close enough?

"Kasimir, can you still fly on her own?" Sulde asks quietly, beckoning everyone outside.

hhh

the two squares below Suldae

i probably want to restart my laptop tbh

Suldae Westwind: or at least reload the page hold on Marcus Veranius: "They're getting close!" Marcus whispers, ready to fly off at a moment's notice.

The Vultures stand ready to fly. Kasimir slips out the window and sails into the night sky.

Marcus Veranius: "Right then. Fly north and we can draw them away from Ismark."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry regards the vultures with wide eyes turning to look at the approaching werewolves

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae beckons the siblings over.

"Climb on one," Suldae instructs Henry.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He seems to be considering taking his chances with the wolves before climbing one of the birds

Liliet (Suldae): "Be polite," she adds after a second's thought.

"It COULD just carry you," Suldae adds optimistically as added motivation.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Fuck fuck fuck fuck fine" Henry mutters

Within seconds, the werewolf coming from the west will be upon you!

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae motions for Ismark to mount the second vulture.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry runs up to a vulture "Hey there mind carrying me" He sputters before nearly flinging himself on its back Liliet (Suldae): She beckons the raven sister closer, shifting into the hybrid form.

Ismark, dashing at top speed, only just makes it to the edge of the house. He will not beat the werewolf to the vulture.

Marcus Veranius takes off his hat. Better for a bird to be caught flying through the air than Marcus Liliet (Suldae): "Grab him," Suldae instructs the vulture after a second's pause in coarse raven voice.

(this token isnt multisided)=)

Marcus Veranius: "Time to go!"

Marcus Veranius takes for the clouds

Liliet (Suldae): (rip Ismark, should have stayed with the group if he wanted to ride on top and not below)

The Vulture leaps into the air with a massive beat of its wings and snares Ismark by the shoulders and rises into the eastern sky.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae leaps off immediately after that.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Heave ho birdy" Henry urges his mount

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae motions for the bird to follow, in case this was unclear to it from context.

Henry's vulture swoops into the sky.

In a moment, you are leaving the camp far below you, and rising silently above the trees, into the starry night.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae - or rather, her raven sister, brought to the forefront - does a circle around everyone, making sure everybody is fine.

Everyone seems to be accounted for.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "FUCK" Henry loudly cries out no of his normal calm ness remaining as he wildly clings to the bird beneath him

Far below, the werewolves find their dead companion and investigate the site. They smell no one, and detect no trace of any outsider. Even the arrows are scentless.

Perplexed by this, they will have an interesting report to bring to their masters.

Marcus Veranius forgot to reclaim the arrows. THOSE ARE EXPENSIVE!

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae looks to Kasimir as they rise, expecting him to lead the formation.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry spends most of his time alternating between praying to the light and cursing with reckless abandon, mentally of causeok maybe a bit audibly aswell

The party flies on, over dark forests and choked, abandoned-looking roads. From up here, Barovia is just a small lagoon of trees and hills and mountains within an endless desert of fog. There seems to be no world beyond the small confines of this kingdom.

Kasimir leads you by the swiftest route. Within half an hour, you can see the small lake and its resident tower.

Liliet (Suldae): (global map?)

A small but gaudy wagon sits at the base of the peaked tower, which sits on a small island in the heart of a small circular lake. A land bridge connects the island to the road.

Marcus Veranius: ...hah! As Marcus suspected!

Liliet (Suldae): Of course this is the place Rictavio went. Of course it is, Suldae thinks as she starts descending.

(mental high five)

Marcus Veranius: "So this is the tower Rictavio spoke of!"

"We are in good company then."

Before landing, you notice that a SECOND small and gaudy cart sits parked beneath the bridge, likely not visible from the road.

Now that you're looking, the cart at the tower does not look like Rictavio's. It is purple, for one thing, and it has little coffin-shaped windows.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blinks at this, bemused.

The cart beneath the bridge is definitely Rictavio's, however.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry only half listening uges his mount "Down! Down! Please for the love of the gentel Light PUT ME DOWN!"

GM (GM): (And on that note, we will have to end this session! Thank you all for playing! Congratulations on your masterfully executed ruse.)

Marcus Veranius: o3o

Tops K.: (How much exp do we get for pulling fast ones on werewolves?)

Suldae Westwind: (...and the ruse :D)

GM (GM): 34250

Suldae Westwind:

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	7

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	1

Average for HP
Average:	5

Zanshuken: rolling d10

(8)

= 8

rolling d10

(5)

= 5

=+19 max Hp

ACTION SURGE Class: Fighter 2nd Level
--

GM (GM): Banishment

Black Tentacles

Blight

Compulsion

Confusion

Conjure Minor Elementals

GM (GM): Conjure Woodland Beings

Control Water
Dimension Door
Divination
Dominate Beast
Fabricate

GM (GM): Faithful Hound

Fire Shield
Freedom of Movement
Giant Insect
Greater Invisibility
Guardian of Faith

GM (GM): Hallucinatory Terrain

Ice Storm
Locate Creature
Phantasmal Killer
Polymorph
Private Sanctum

GM (GM): Resilient Sphere

Secret Chest
Stone Shape
Stoneskin
Wall of Fire

Suldae Westwind:HMMMM

GM (GM): 4th-level Bard spells in my Roll20 compendium

Suldae Westwind: if only it wasnt 11pm :x

can you also paste lvl1-3 bard spells? ^^ I'd look over them tomorrow~ (i will note that on this double levelup i can replace a total of 2 spells...)

GM (GM): Waiiiit

Roll20 why u do dis

Not all of these spells from the "Bard Spells by Level" listing are actually bard spells

wtf

(level 3)

Bestow Curse

GM (GM): Clairvoyance

Dispel Magic
Fear
Glyph of Warding

Hypnotic Pattern

Major Image

GM (GM): Nondetection

Plant Growth

Sending

Speak with Dead

Speak with Plants

Stinking Cloud

GM (GM): Tiny Hut

Level 4:

Compulsion

Confusion

Dimension Door

Freedom of Movement

GM (GM): Greater Invisibility

Hallucinatory Terrain

Locate Creature

Polymorph

rolling 1d10 Level 7 Hitpoints

(4)

= 4

rolling 1d10 Level 8 Hitpoints

(4)

= 4

Thanks for the doubles Roll20. Taking average

Zanshuken:

6

ARCANA (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM (GM):

8

13

INTELLIGENCE (3)

5

14

INTELLIGENCE (3)

(Good morning!)

Zanshukun: heyho

GM (GM):

19

INTELLIGENCE (3)

(Good morning, Tops!)

Tops K.: Mornin!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (let me just turn down my kpop there ready!)

Liliet (Suldae): m o r n i n g

GM (GM): Morning!

Marcus Veranius: "...anyways, the reason I had you smite that piece of leather was to get these runes burned into the cuffs in holy fire."

"It's Draconic. The approximate translation is 'What god doesn't smite, these boots shall trample'. Fitting for a paladin, yes?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm not some magical hole punch for the record"

Marcus Veranius: "Noted."

A huge gust of mist billows out of a single point and rushes to fill the chamber.

Through the mist, Ireena says: "Sorry! Sorry everybody, I'll just --"

There is a flicker of multicolored light in the fog, a moment later, it dissipates as though it had never been.

Ireena Kolyana: "Right, so that might be useful someday," Ireena says.

She puts a little mark in the corner of the page of her spell book, then turns the page.

Marcus Veranius: Well at least they'd be able to travel around as vampires if that ever came to pass. One mystery of Strahd solved.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "hm Marcus could help me for a second" Henry says "I wanna try something"

Marcus Veranius: "Sure, where do you need me to stand?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Just look at me and tell me if you see anything" Henry says before closing his eyes and taking a deep breath

He's trying to channel Light through his eyes like some depictions of angels are known to do known

(Should I roll for that?)

Liliet (Suldae): (morning/evening/afternoon everyone, it is now an officially recorded fact that my laptop takes ~15 minutes to reboot)

(s o r r y)

Ireena Kolyana: (No w o r r i e s)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae, perched on top of a cupboard - flew up there in raven form - is watching the proceedings with curiosity.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (What should I roll to try to emulate the glowing eyes of divine glory?)

GM: (Religion or Arcana, or you could cast Thaumaturgy or Prestidigitation)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir is poring over some of Ireena's notes detailing the Tarokka reading and the subsequent interpretations of that reading.

Suldae Westwind: (shit, we didnt talk to Ezmerelda at all during the timeskip)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

3

RELIGION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

19

RELIGION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (I mean I'm SURE we did)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir as she reads, she lays out cards from her own Tarokka deck. The small reading seems very illuminating. By the end of it she has a dozen cards laid out in circles across the floor.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I have it," she says calmly. Her accent is a little thick.

Suldae Westwind: (can we have a recap of what Ezmerelda would have told us about herself during this time, assuming moderate lev of nosiness on our part?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (You know I think I'll just say I rolled for each eye individually cause its funnier)

Marcus Veranius: "...looks like you're about to give someone a bad time, Henry."

Marcus Veranius turns his attention to Esmerelda. "We've identified one prophecy as being in the nearby wolf cave, one as being in the Amber Temple, and one in Strahd's basement."

Marcus Veranius: "Think it was the... vault of the lady we hadn't figured out?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I feel like it didn't quite work" Henry sighs one eye blazing in golden light the other one still ordinary blue

Suldae Westwind: Suldae laughs from the top of the cupboard, and her laughter is booming and seems to come from every corner of the tower at once.

Why no, she's not showing off. How dare you suggest that.

...Okay, maybe she is showing off.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He closes his eyes for a moment the light visibly winking out as he does Suldae Westwind: "You'll get it right eventually," Suldae reassures him from the top of the cupboard, sounding suspiciously insincere for someone who makes sounding sincere into her life's craft.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wait I have 3 as proficiency and 5 as my strength mod shouldn't my longsword deal 1d8+8 then?)

Marcus Veranius: "We also do not know yet if the Hall of Bones in Castle Ravenloft is accessible without a full siege. It'd be convenient if we could slip in then out with its treasure, otherwise we'd need to strain our resources during the final assault."

Suldae Westwind: (does proficiency bonus apply to damage?)

Marcus Veranius: "...how does your interpretation fare, Esmeralda?"

(no)

(at least not typically)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (why do i have +2 to damage then? outside of my strength bonus)

(wait its dueling)

Marcus Veranius:

[FIGHTING STYLE]

DUELING

Class: Paladin 2

When you are wielding a melee weapon in one hand and no other weapons, you gain a +2 bonus to damage rolls with that weapon.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "The Hall of Bones is not likely to be accessible without breaking into the castle relatively deeply."

Suldae Westwind: (a shield is not a weapon, right?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (shields not counted as a weapon)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "As to the 'woman of great beauty' I have no doubt this refers to the original Tatyana, and must be a reference to a portrait somewhere within the castle."

Marcus Veranius: "Two of our prophecies within the castle. Well, so much for preparing beforehand."

Suldae Westwind: "We still have two left, right?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We must see what Mother Night has hidden for him, in the den of wolves. There is a werewolf den to the northwest of us, I have seen their tracks."

Suldae Westwind: "Mother Night," Suldae perks up. "Who's that?"

Marcus Veranius nods. "We concluded as much ourselves. And the Amber Temple holds our other prophecy."

-  Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "This last, with the Amber Giants... I cannot make it out, but I detect that it is to the south of us, and deep within the earth."
-  Kasimir Velikov: "That must be a reference to the Amber Temple," says Kasimir.
-  Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Mother Night is a goddess of darkness, starlight, and nocturnal creatures," says Emerelda, by way of explanation.
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wasn't that dragon headed south?"
-  Rictavio: "Indeed he was," says Van Richten.
-  Marcus Veranius: "The prophecy said the treasure in Amber Temple was guarded by a dragon, unfortunately." Marcus frowns. Even having let go of the pain, that dragon still seemed to haunt him.
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "Cave first then" Henry posits
-  Suldae Westwind: Suldae flicks Marcus a worried and sympathetic glance. He's been much better, recently, but better doesn't mean immediately well.
-  Kasimir Velikov: "There is another lead. The hag coven in the windmill has between them a special magical scrying eye, which I believe to be linked to someplace inside the castle."
-  Suldae Westwind: "The hag coven in the windmill?... Is that the one-" Suldae glances at Marcus, drumming her heels against the cupboard.
-  Marcus Veranius blank faces
-  Marcus Veranius: "...well we DID intend to return eventually. See the condition MY windmill is in."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry quirks an eyebrow at them inviting them to explain what they were on about
-  Marcus Veranius: "Come to think of it, the deeds I hold may also grant the land around. I could very well own the entire road to Castle Ravenloft."
-  Suldae Westwind: "The Death House we were in," Suldae explains from her perch.
"There were papers there."
She considers this a sufficient explanation.
-  Marcus Veranius: "Legally speaking, there's no heirs to the house. I hold the documents, so it's my land."
-  Suldae Westwind: Suldae is not a lawyer. This seems suspect to her, but then, law often is.
-  Kasimir Velikov: "Is that how humans do it? How crude."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ah right evil devil Lord doesn't mean less paperwork"
-  Marcus Veranius: "...Vampires can't enter where they aren't invited, right? Do you suppose I could tell Strahd to get off my property and he wouldn't be able to attack us inside?"
-  Ireena Kolyana: "That's how it works in Barovia," says Ireena.
"The danger is that he might make you want to invite him in..."

She shudders, thinking of her father.

She tugs at her high collar absent mindedly.

Suldae Westwind: "Ah yes, standing outside and talking," Suldae says blandly, her own thoughts going to the gate incident.

"I do wish I had something better than I currently do to counteract it..."

Ireena Kolyana: "That windmill looked so decrepit, though."

Rictavio: "If it has had a coven of hags in it, you probably don't want it. All sorts of curses are likely to linger."

"We'll have to do that one cleverly, there may be hostages involved."

Suldae Westwind: "Hostages?" Suldae raises her head and glances at him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Sooo Cave or Property assesment first then?" Henry asks tone showing he found this some what amusing Suldae Westwind: His last involvment in matters concering civilians is... fresh in her memory.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Personally I have more experience with werewolves than hags," says Emzmerelda ruefully.

She rubs one of her legs.

Kasimir Velikov: "The coven has been there for decades now. They are not likely to be dislodged with any ease."

Rictavio: "And the hags don't have anything that we want."

Ireena Kolyana: "Except hostages, possibly?"

"We care about that, right?"

Suldae Westwind: "And didn't you bring up a scrying eye?" Suldae joins her voice.

Kasimir Velikov: "I did," says Kasimir.

Suldae Westwind: "Do elaborate on the hostages, please."

Marcus Veranius: "We can always talk it out. And if we can't, I'm quick with a bow."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to the mage.

Rictavio: Van Richten sighs. "You've never fought a hag coven before, have you?"

"As I recall, you had a strong distaste for magic. They tend to use a good deal of it."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Hags are known to eat people," says Ezmerelda. "They will have a larder."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "how quaint" Henry groans

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "If we do intend to take them out, we must locate the hostages, isolate each hag, and kill them before they know we are upon them."

"Any other way is likely to end in casualties."

Rictavio: Rictavio rolls his eyes at "casualties."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae presses a palm to her lips. She'd known that Barovia was a land of horrors, but this... It's not even directly in their way, is what bothers her.

"...After we deal with Strahd?..." she says uncertainly. There is just... so much to do.

Rictavio: "At any rate, the coven is much farther. It's on the eastern side of Vallaki, and we can't be seen wandering the roads."

"It will probably have to wait."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to that with no small measure of relief.

Kasimir Velikov: "It was only a suggestion."

Marcus Veranius: "We don't need vision into the castle until the siege begins. It's a good suggestion."

Suldae Westwind: "It goes on the to-do list, but not in the first place."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So man-eating werewolves first man-eating hags later"

Suldae Westwind: "We should start with what we can do without attracting attention."

Marcus Veranius: "Wolves, temple, hags. Castle."

"And any other detours we may find along the way."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to Marcus gratefully. There's a reason she defers to him as the leader of this mess.

Marcus Veranius: "The question remains; when do we wish to make our move on the caverns? At night when the wolves are in full form, or in the day?"

"...they turn back in the day, right?"

Ireena Kolyana: "It will not make much of a difference, most likely. Many werewolves can change form at will, like yourselves."

Marcus Veranius coughs

Rictavio: "They will probably be human in the daylight, if they have things to do -- or if they're sleeping."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So Wolf cave, Where? How many exits and entrys? how many werewolves do we expect there?"

Rictavio: "We'll need to scout closer to determine all that," says Van Richten.

Marcus Veranius: "Northwest shore of the lake, one probably, and yes."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his eyes at Marcus

Suldae Westwind: "One?" Suldae joins with Henry skeptically.

Marcus Veranius: "I mean, Caves usually have one exit?"

Suldae Westwind: "They don't. They really DOn't"

Marcus Veranius doesn't know how caves work

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Both of you never dealt with badger or fox dens before then" Henry remarks

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has actually been in more than one cave before. If it's anything more than a grotto and has actual tunnels, odds are against it having only one exit.

And that's before you count deliberate backdoors.

*exit

"For the cave to have only one exit, they'd need to have either blocked off all the others or deliberately looked for the one cave in Barovia that had only one. And they'd need to be idiots for that"

"I somehow doubt we're that lucky"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Not even animals are stupid enough to make it that easy for you" Henry agrees

Suldae Westwind: "Oh, people are capable of much greater stupidity than animals could ever manage", Suldae assures Henry with the tone of an expert. "But probably not this time, yeah"

GM (GM):

DECEPTION
Lady Fiona Wachter

Skill: 6

INSIGHT
Strahd von Zarovich

Skill: 24

Liliet (Suldae): So... what has Suldae seen 0.0

Marcus Veranius: "Right then, let's begin scouting out the wolf cave while absolutely nothing of note happens elsewhere in Barovia."

Thunder rolls over the landscape. It sounds like someone shouting: "WHAT!?"

Liliet (Suldae): ...so everything was fine up until now?

Thick black clouds blot out the sky.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ok that sounds bad"

Marcus Veranius: "Right then, let's hide in the tower for another day."

"ffffiiiiiiiiINNNDDDD HERRRRRR..." The entire landscape seems to groan.

Liliet (Suldae): Somehow, Suldae is already standing next to Ireena. She didn't really make a conscious decision to move, it just kind of happened.

Suldae's elf ears pick up the faintest remnant of a lingering female scream.

Suldae Westwind: Not like her being physically close will, y'know, make any difference. But she just kind of feels better like this.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena drops to her knees. She's shaking.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes, drops to her knees next to Ireena, hugs her and holds her close.

She has little sympathy to spare for Lady Fiona Wachter, but... This is her doing.

This, whatever just happened, is on her.

Rictavio: Rictavio smiles as the lightning outside glimmers off his glasses, each flash turning them into flat silver coins. He pops a cigar in his mouth and hefts his crossbow. "Looks like wolf-hunting weather to me."

Suldae Westwind: It was Suldae who charmed her into compliance with a suicidal plan.

"Well, we definitely don't have time to delay anymore," Suldae murmurs, still pressing Ireena to herself.

Marcus Veranius considers. "On second thought, Rictavio's absolutely right."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda stares northwest. "So we have a shorter timetable. We can work with that."

Marcus Veranius: "Give it a half hour and the wolves will leave the nest in Strahd's hunting call."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We can work with that..." She plays with her Tarokka cards again, shuffling and shifting a few cards in her hands.

Marcus Veranius: "Not as many at home to stop us barging in."

Kasimir Velikov: Kazimir wraps his cloak around himself. "We left no trace on our journey here. We should ambush them invisibly, diminish their numbers. The strongest will be out scouting and hunting for Strahd. The weakest will be at home, guarding the nest."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the fortune teller.

Rictavio: "Get to the heart of your enemy. Always a sound strategy," says Van Richten.

Suldae Westwind: "So, how many children do we expect to be there?" Suldae interjects cheerfully.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda's hard eyes soften. "I had not thought of that. We must be cautious. We must play our cards well. With the right hand, we might not need to draw blood."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stops adjusting his armor to look at the others

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena hugs Suldae back, and with Suldae's help she gets back to her feet.

Suldae Westwind: "What exactly IS our objective there?" Suldae asks.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Have a look around the murder cave I presume"

Suldae Westwind: "We're stealing something, right?"

Marcus Veranius: "Find the knowledge to understand our enemy. The Treasure of Mother Night."
"Whatever that means."

Suldae Westwind: Stealing something sounds much better than slaughtering all inhabitants.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We are here for what was prophesied -- a knowledge of Strahd. Something in that cave will tell us what we need to know to defeat him."

Suldae Westwind: "...So we might not even need to take anything. Just enter, scout and leave unseen"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "The wolves are likely to be worshippers of Mother Night. She is real, in this place -- an echo of some strong female figure in the mind of Strahd. The same is true of Father Day -- he is an echo of some male figure of influence with an antagonistic relationship to Strahd. That much I can surmise already."

"But that does not mean they must be slain, it means only that we are likely to encounter an actual shrine of some kind."

"And items offered on a shrine are cursed to those who take them, as all Vistani know."

Rictavio: "You make things too complicated, Ez. We kill the big ones, we take the little ones to be cured and live normal lives."

"How else do you dismantle an evil cult?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Emerelda seems discomfited by this.

Suldae Westwind: "What DO the werewolves do?" Suldae interjects.

Kasimir Velikov: "If a wolf or a man takes a liking to the taste of humanoid blood, it must be put down," says Kasimir.

Suldae Westwind: "Evil cult" sounds vague to her.

Rictavio: "This particular group have been known to steal children. They've raided farmsteads in the local area. Why do you think Vallaki and Krezk have walls?"

Marcus Veranius frowns. "The actions of these wolves started the chain of events that led to the Saints Bones being stolen."

Marcus Veranius: "Sold off by a child whom parents they slew."

Henry of Willowsbrook: After inspecting his sword, Henry slams it into his sheath turning to the others he says "Soo how about this we go, now, and try our best to not 'senselessly' slaughter our way through" Henry shrugs face placid "Doesn't sound all that hard"

Marcus Veranius: "Cure or not, they ARE a problem that needs to be handled. And we will begin handling it."

Marcus Veranius moves for the elevator

Suldae Westwind: "Okay, they steal children," Suldae says. "The human eating thing, does that actually happen?"

Suldae grabs Marcus's sleeve and glares at him.

Again? her eyes are saying.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I can assure you it does," says Ezmerelda, with a wince.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at her, expecting more explanation.

Marcus Veranius looks back at Suldae, then outside where storm clouds are brewing, then back.

Marcus Veranius: "We're short on time. We can talk on the way there."

Kasimir Velikov: "Before we go: this may buy us more time to investigate or prepare." Kasimir grabs the small pot of ash again and scatters a cloud of it over the group, casting Pass Without Trace.

Suldae Westwind: "Does Ezmerelda come with us?" Suldae asks, looking at Marcus.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Of course she does!" Says Ezmerelda, indignantly.

Rictavio: "There's no better hunter to have at your side," says Van Richten.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae inclines her head to her. "Then let's go. Tell us more on the way."

Marcus Veranius: "Rictavio and Ismark will hold fort. Ezmerelda and Kasimir are with us."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Down," says Ezmerelda, and the elevator begins to descend.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at her, still expecting a story>

.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I heard a story once, the Count of Weiherberg hiring Adventures once to deal with a small werewolf clan" Henry's face darkens if it's as bad here as in that story it's going to be ugly business"

"if it's as bad

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "How do we propose to get to their camp?" Ezmerelda asks, pointing across the lake at the shore and slope and the hill where the cave entrance sits.

Marcus Veranius checks the time of day

Marcus Veranius: (Is it night or morning?)

Suldae Westwind: "...Well, I can only summon two giant eagles at a time, and they're kind of conspicuous... but I'm open to other animal ideas," Suldae says cheerfully.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well unless we have no other option I'd say not through the main entrance"

Suldae Westwind: "Only two giant octopi at a time, too"

In spite of the early morning hour, the sky is dark with heavy storm clouds. No rain has yet begun to fall, but lightning splits the sky occasionally and thunder rolls angrily over the landscape.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No more Eagles thanks" Henry murmurs

(Sorry this is the official description of the cave:) Above the tree line, carved into the side of a rocky mountain spur, is a wide, torchlit cave that looks like the gaping maw of a great wolf.

Marcus Veranius: "Giant Octoboats it is."

Suldae Westwind: "...I could turn two people into animals temporarily," Suldae says after a pause.

Above the cave, farther up the sloping mountainside, there appears to be a rocky ledge or clifftop.

Suldae Westwind: "Unfortunately there are three non-lycantropes here?..."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Kasimir.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "or we could walk" Henry acidly says "like people"

Kasimir Velikov: "I can handle transportation," says Kasimir, lightly touching Rictavio and Ezmerelda as he walks past them, then gracefully steps into the sky.

Marcus Veranius follows behind Kasimir in Birb Form

Kasimir Velikov: "Would you like to fly as well, Henry?"

"You could be one with the winds, under your own power."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a deep breath before shaking out his limbs "Fine" he says defeated "If you would Kasimir"

Suldae Westwind: "Your other option is becoming a bird and doing the same thing another way," Suldae adds cheerfully.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glares at her expression void of any mirth

Kasimir Velikov: "Alas, I can only manage three targets," says Kasimir, after a moment of effort.

Rictavio says: "Ah! I know. I won't be needing it, thank you."

Kasimir: "In that case, I shall pass it to Henry instead of Rictavio."

Fly

Transmutation 5

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S, M (A wing feather from any bird)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

You touch a willing creature. The target gains a flying speed of 60 feet for the duration. When the spell ends, the target falls if it is still aloft, unless it can stop the fall.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 3rd.

Henry no longer feels the power of gravity upon him. Even his armor feels weightless now. It feels like flying in a dream.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still landbound, watching after Henry and waiting for him to get his bearings.

Kasimir Velikov: Lightly, Kasimir drifts skyward. Ezmerelda follows him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "hurgh I hate this" Henry hisses following them slowly

Rictavio: Van Richten taps his boots together and walks calmly down to the shoreline, then steps onto the waves. A faint blue glow emanates from his shoes, and he walks atop the water without sinking.

Flying or floating or walking on water, the party converges towards the shores beneath the massive cave.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae circles around Henry, watching him like a very raven-like hawk

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry hurrys past the others to touch down on the shore first Suldae Westwind: She is a small bird now, a perspective familiar enough by now the shift barely registers.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Definatley only because he is the most heavily armored one among them yes no other reason for it

Suldae Westwind: When landing, she turns into an elf before she even touches down, just in time to land on two feet.

She has been practicing this.

Up close, you see a shoreline of muddy beach running north-south between two dense patches of forest. To the northwest, the slope rises steeply into the clay-dense cliffsides of the small mountain.

A stroke of lightning splits the sky, and a torrential downpour begins.

Marcus Veranius drops down and un-birbs, not wanting to be close to the lightning. Birds fly low during storms apparently; he learned this last week!

Marcus Veranius: "Well, not a lot of cover to hide behind. We ought to use Kasimir's spell cover and move while we can."

"The sooner we're out of the rain the better."

Liliet (Suldae):

Prestidigitation

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 10 feet

Target: See text

Components: V, S

Duration: Up to 1 hour

This spell is a minor magical trick that novice spellcasters use for practice. You create one of the following magical effects within range: You create an instantaneous, harmless sensory effect, such as a shower of sparks, a puff of wind, faint musical notes, or an odd odor. You instantaneously light or snuff out a candle, a torch, or a small campfire. You instantaneously clean or soil an object no larger than 1 cubic foot. You chill, warm, or flavor up to 1 cubic foot of nonliving material for 1 hour. You make a color, a small mark, or a symbol appear on an object or a surface for 1 hour. You create a nonmagical trinket or an illusory image that can fit in your hand and that lasts until the end of your next turn. If you cast this spell multiple times, you can have up to three of its non-instantaneous effects active at a time, and you can dismiss such an effect as an action.

Suldae nods, going over her spell list in her head. Oh! She starts humming quietly, conitnuously casting prestidigitation to 'clean up' their tracks as they go.

It is, admittedly, fairly slow.

 Kasimir Velikov: "That is not necessary, we already leave no tracks," says Kasimir. "But I admire your thoughtfulness."

"How do we wish to go about this?"

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stifles a snort

 Rictavio: "We could go up to the top," says Rictavio.

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae nods, humming. The shift in the Weave is easy enough it's comforting, and she might as well.

 Marcus Veranius: "In the front door while the wolves are out. Seek out a back exit while we're inside."

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Or we could go in animal form. Assume the shape of something small and innocuous -- a spider, or a scorpion, perhaps. We could spy ahead."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'd rather do a quick check to see where the other exits would be first"

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Assuming Suldae would be willing to cast such a high-energy spell."

 Kasimir Velikov: "In the storm, it may be dangerous to fly too high."

 Liliet (Suldae): "It'd be useful enough to justify it, in my opinion," Suldae says.

"I don't have enough for everyone, but a single scout..."

 Marcus Veranius: "I'll go." Marcus states, going back into birb form and flying low. Magic or not, he knows how to get about unseen

27

12

STEALTH (9)
Marcus Veranius

GM: (Stealth check, please -- don't forget Pass Without Trace)

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae presses her lips together, watching him go.

 Marcus Veranius: (I rolled a 27; Pass without Trace doesn't apply if I'm not next to Kasimir)

 Liliet (Suldae): It doesn't seem like a good idea to her, but he makes his own decisions.

 Rictavio:

PERCEPTION
Werewolf

Skill: 12 | 10

PERCEPTION
Werewolf

Skill: 7 | 23

The open jaws of the wolf's head form a fifteen-foot-high canopy of rock over the cave mouth, held up by natural pillars of rock. The ceiling rises to a height of twenty feet inside the cave. Torches in iron brackets line the walls. From somewhere deep inside, you hear the echoing sounds of a flute. Some of the notes are discordant—painfully so.

You come to a Guard Post. Here, the cave splits to the left and right. Standing on a five-foot-high ledge between the divide are two feral-looking women wearing shredded clothing and clutching spears.

They do not notice you, by some miracle.

To the left you see firelight. To the right you hear water.

Marcus Veranius flies back to the others

Marcus Veranius: "Two guards, human form with spears. Walls are lined with torches; bright inside. Someone's playing a flute but Suldae does it better."

"We might be able to take both of them out with a well-timed ranged ambush."

Rictavio: Rictavio gives Marcus a quick thump on the back his head. "That was terribly foolish, Marcus! That kind of reckless behavior will get your entire team killed, if an enemy knows you are capable of it!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae does an exaggerated bow.

Marcus Veranius rubs the back of his head. "I wasn't the one that suggested scouting ahead!"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Emerelda shuffles cards. She draws one. She grimaces and puts it back in the deck. "We will be more careful next time. Let's go take out the guards."

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you. And let's not do that again."

"The suggestion was for a spider, not a goddamn raven!"

Rictavio: "Still, fine flying, my boy."

"They didn't catch a whiff?"

"Must be the rain. You're cursed with luck, I think."

"Now, shall this be a lethal or nonlethal removal of the aforementioned guards?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We need to be quick when taking them out least they alarm the others"

Marcus Veranius: "Wouldn't be the first time." Marcus nods, drawing his oathbow.

"Lethal. We thin them here, there won't be as many to chase us when we move from the tower."

Rictavio: "This is logical and practical on its face, but revenge is a powerful motivator."

"I feel in no way confident that we can wipe out the entire clan tonight."

Kasimir Velikov: "A sleep spell, perhaps?"

"Just as quick. With the music playing, they'll suspect nothing."

"I cannot cast such a spell, alas. But Suldae, I believe that one is in your repertoire?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda comes close and grabs Marcus by the arm.

Suldae Westwind: "Anyone got any objections?" she asks.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: She starts walking calmly towards the mouth of the cave. She raises her crossbow, standing just outside the light of the torches.

She takes careful aim.

"No, none at all."

"But I'm going to cover you while you cast."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We have to secure them anyhow afterwards least they cut of a flight path"

Marcus Veranius also takes aim, just in case.

Rictavio: "I doubt we have the means to contain them. They will burst ordinary rope."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Dammit! I didn't bring my shackles."

Rictavio: Rictavio cocks an eyebrow, looking at his protege with interest. "Shackles, my dear?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Handy in all sorts of situations," says Ezmerelda.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Bropken ankles?" Henry asks wincing at his own brutallity

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ooh, ouch. I don't know."

Marcus Veranius: "They can just shift out of the shackles." Marcus murmurs.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: (Suldae and Marcus, roll insight or perception (your choice))

Marcus Veranius:

27

28

PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus Veranius

(that shouldnt be with advantage)

Suldae Westwind:

19

PERCEPTION (8)
Suldae Westwind

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Not my shackles," says Ezmerelda. Marcus notices by the uneven wear upon her fashionable boots that one of her legs is a very well-made prosthetic. Suldae notices that her crossbow is very expensive-looking.

Rictavio: "Right," says Van Richten.

Suldae Westwind: "Well, you don't have them, do you," Suldae sighs.

Rictavio: "The longer we stand here, the more likely we'll be encountered."

Suldae Westwind: "I vote for breaking bones."

Rictavio: "Won't that wake them up?"

Suldae Westwind: "...I can cast it twice"

"Also, the spell only lasts for a minute either way," she adds, remembering.

"So let's plan with that in mind"

Rictavio: "In that case, let's just plan to be as quick as possible -- in and out."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Did you see any other werewolves in the cave? Any other passages?"

Marcus Veranius: "I didn't get very far in scouting." Marcus admits.

"Cave splits in two. Water to the right, torches to the left"

Suldae Westwind: "..."

While everyone's talking, Suldae comes closer to the cave mouth and takes out the ocarina. The sounds are quiet enough to blend in with the rain - oh, the guard would notice eventually, if they weren't lulled by it to sleep instead.

9

Higher Level Cast

24

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

(...does it work the first time?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Might be their fresh water supply so the don't have to rely on the lake"
Henry muses

The two werewolves either cannot hear the music, or seem to be unaffected by it for now...

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae frowns and pauses the melody.

Marcus Veranius blank faces

Liliet (Suldae): "It hasn't worked yet. I will try again, but be ready to act as well"

She comes even closer and plays again, tugging at the Weave more forcefully this time.

18

Higher Level Cast

29

Hit Points of Creatures

90 feet

Sleep

Suldae Westwind

One werewolf yawns heavily

After yawning, she shakes her head vigorously and stands up straighter.

Kasimir Velikov: "Perhaps they are too strong for it," says Kasimir.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae presses her lips together and steps back before she's noticed.

She nods to Kasimir.

Marcus Veranius holds up his crossbow

Marcus Veranius: "Now?"

Liliet (Suldae): (Where are the guards?)

18

Liliet (Suldae): (Aha ty)

(...can't we see them?)

GM: (You should be able to...?)

Liliet (Suldae): (ty, no i can)

*now

GM: (It's the Fog of War view distance)

Liliet (Suldae): (doesnt seem right tbh)

(but oh well, thats the lack of dynamic lighting for us XD)

so, are we rolling initiative or what?

Suldae is waiting for everyone else's input.

Marcus Veranius: Round of suprise attacks then init?

Yup

Marcus Veranius fires his crossbow out towards the right guard. His motions are both swift and brutal

Marcus Veranius: (5 attacks, 2 Base, 2 Gloom Stalker, 1 bonus action)

26		16
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius
17 + 1
Piercing

13		14
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius
22
Piercing

18		15
----	--	----

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

19

Piercing

19

18

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

7

Bonus Damage

17

Piercing

18

14

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

4

Bonus Damage

20

Piercing

Liliet (Suldae): Suoldae takes out her own crossbow and follows Marcus's actions, though her single shot is ridiculously lackluster in comparison

22

80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

6

Piercing

Marcus deals 125 to the right-hand Werewolf.

Kasimir Velikov: Jebus

Zanshuken: (Henry has no ranged options after giving Marcus all his arrows)

Liliet (Suldae): (hahahahahahhha)

Marcus Veranius: (Wait, cut one of those gloom stalker attacks. I misread it)

Liliet (Suldae): (oh my god Henry...)

Marcus Veranius: (Should be just one unless I'm using Action Surge)

(whoos)

With a spray of crossbow bolts, Marcus eradicates both werewolves.

Zanshuken: (ugh I cant select Henry for chat anymore

They have no time to speak or even groan as the crossbow bolts pierce skulls and torsos, and bring both to the ground.

Kasimir Velikov: "Well," says Kasimir, raising both eyebrows.

Marcus Veranius: "...I've been practicing."

Liliet (Suldae): (welp, Suldae's quick acting led to a wasted bolt. rip)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Emerelda comes up and gives Marcus's bicep an experimental squeeze. She takes his left hand and turns it over, palm up, and rips off his glove.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir reads the palm of Marcus very intently for a moment or two, then gives it back.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae watches this, eyebrows raised.

Ah. Palm reading.

Marcus Veranius looks down at his palm, curiously

Suldae's crossbow bolt still sticks in the cave wall behind the dead werewolves.

Giant Octopus: -waves a tentacle-

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right," says Ezmerelda. "I'm just going to walk in, now. Marcus, you can walk right beside me."

Marcus Veranius nods

Rictavio: "What the devil is that huge, betentacled creature?" Van Richten asks, clearly freaked out by the Fey spirit.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks after them, ready to follow at a distance

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir waves quietly at the octopus.

Suldae Westwind: (that isnt really there)

Kasimir Velikov: (Oh)

Giant Octopus: -gracefully bows and disapears into thin air-

Suldae Westwind: (I was just making fun of the fact I still have the option to do that)

Zanshuken: (help I cant select Henry as an option (or the guards but eh))
(for chat I can move the token just fine)

GM: (still not working?)

Zanshuken: nope

GM: (What about now?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Yay)

Marcus Veranius: (>|< can move Henry. Maybe it only gave me movement permissions in the new universe)

Rictavio: "We'd better stick to a tight formation. I'll be at the back with Kasimir and Suldae. Henry, you'd better be right in the middle in case we are ambushed."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves to follow behind Ezmerelda and Marcus nodding at Rics suggestion

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right or left?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's get to it then" Henry says in a low voice
"Water was left? I'd say there first2"

Suldae Westwind: "Left," Suldae suggests.

Marcus Veranius: "...left. Torches lead that way, water the other way."

Suldae Westwind: "..."

"We have an actual consensus"

"Someone check for flying pigs"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "oh water was right?" Henry pauses "Left works I guess"

As you round the corner into the left-most passage, you see nine wolves and a werewolf in human form. The werewolf is an older man, playing an electrum flute (not very well.) The wolves are huddled close around him.

A five-foot-high stone ledge overlooks this large cave, which has a smoldering campfire at the far west end. The floor is covered with gnawed bones.

The werewolf is too busy playing to notice you.

3

Suldae Westwind: How big are the wolves?

GM: (They appear to be normal-sized wolves.)

(Not Dire Wolves.)

Suldae Westwind: (no, like, pups, adults?)

GM: (Adults)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae waits quietly. She is not comfortable with ANY decision they could plausibly make here, so she just kind of peaces out and waits for the group to think.

Marcus Veranius looks to Ezmerelda for advice

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves closer to the front as to be ready to step in front of the others

Ezmerelda d'Avenir Ezmerelda reaches into the folds of her cloak and draws out a small vial of alchemist's fire.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Be ready," she says.

Kasimir Velikov: "What's happening up there?" Kasimir asks.

Marcus Veranius holds up 10 fingers, then throws in two more

Marcus Veranius: (Just the 10. I'm bad at counting today)

(This is the alternate universe where I failed math)

Suldae Westwind: (arent you the party ledger keeper, in-universe)

Marcus knows that a single bottle of alchemist's fire is not going to affect everyone in the circle.

Suldae Westwind: (our poor party ledger)

After some deliberation, Suldae comes to the front of the group

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns slightlymurmuring "9 Wolves" low enough only the elv should hear it

Marcus Veranius readies his crossbow to focus-fire the wolves not hit by the fire

Suldae Westwind: "Wait, " she whispers.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda looks at her curiously, but waits.

Suldae Westwind: The music she starts up would sound familiar to Kasimir, Henry and Marcus.

Hypnotic Pattern

Illusion 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A 30-foot cube within range

Components: S, M (A glowing stick of incense or a crystal vial filled with phosphorescent material)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You create a twisting pattern of colors that weaves through the air inside a 30-foot cube within range. The pattern appears for a moment and vanishes. Each creature in the area who sees the pattern must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, the creature becomes charmed for the duration. While charmed by this spell, the creature is incapacitated and has a speed of 0. The spell ends for an affected creature if it takes any damage or if someone else uses an action to shake the creature out of its stupor.

She is tapping her foot and giving perodic trills

Wolf:

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 12

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 9

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 5

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 10

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 5

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 20

Wolf:

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 20

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 2

WISDOM
Wolf
Ability: 3

WISDOM
Werewolf
Ability: 14

Suldae Westwind: (the DC is 16)

Wolf: (Only two wolves pass)

A massive, swirling disco-show of arcane fireworks completely fills the cave, obscuring everything else from view. Only two wolves shut their eyes and flee as the spell overtakes the rest of the group, stunning them into submission.

Suldae Westwind: ...initiative?

wow they're fast XD

The wolves flee at a full dash, racing up the stairs to the northern side of the chamber, and provoking attacks of Opportunity from Ezmerelda, Suldae, Marcus, and Henry.

Marcus Veranius fires at the wolves retreating. Hard to get an ambush set up with a lightshow like that

Marcus Veranius:

22 | 20
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

17
Piercing

16 | 8
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

17
Piercing

12 | 23
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

20
Piercing

Henry of Willowsbrook: (AoO can be a javelin throw right?)

Marcus Veranius:

19 | 12
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+6)
Marcus Veranius

18
Piercing

Suldae Westwind:

18
80/320

Light Crossbow (+5)
Suldae Westwind

3
Piercing

(...a spirited contribution)

GM (GM): (RAW, unless you have a feat that specifies otherwise, Attacks of Opportunity must be melee attacks)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh well)

GM (GM): (But you could just as easily shoot at them after they zoom past -- it just isn't an attack of opportunity)

Marcus Veranius: (This IS after they nyoom past)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (out of range I think Javelin are 30 ft)

GM (GM): (@Marcus, I know -- this was in answer to Henry's question about the javelin -- Attack of Opportunity lets you use your reaction to take a whack at them as they pass, and after taking that whack you can shoot at them too)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah Sulde doesn't stab at them lmao)
(guess its after)

GM (GM):

+1 RAPIER
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 22

Damage: 9 piercing

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wait they passed in side of ten ft of henry HALBERD TIME)

As the wolves zoom past, Ezmerelda gets a good stab in at one of them with her swiftly-drawn rapier.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20

Halberd (10 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

10
Slashing

13

Halberd (10 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11
Slashing

Henry's blade nearly fells the other one, and as both wolves are running away, Marcus and Suldae's shots bring them down.

The pretty lights still bind the rest of the group in the chamber.

Marcus Veranius: "We're not going to be dazed in light if we step in that, right?"

Kasimir Velikov: "Oh, excellent choice," says Kasimir, seeing Suldae's work. "Don't step into the radius, unless you want to clean a minute's worth of drool off your shirt afterwards, Marcus."

"When we pass by they won't know what happened. Let us dispose of the evidence and keep moving."

"The spell will not hold them for long."

Marcus Veranius: "...are we sure that's wise? we still need to pass by on the way out."

"Might be easier if we finish them now."

Kasimir Velikov:

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

3

Higher Level Cast

27

Fire

150 ft

Fireball

"As you Wish."

WISDOM
Werewolf

Ability: 10

The blast of flames scatters wolves in all directions, and hurls the stunned Werewolf about ten feet. The werewolf lands still smoking, still alive, still trapped in the pretty lights.

Kasimir Velikov: "Oh? A survivor?"

"How embarrassing."

12

Force

120 ft

Magic Missile

Three darts of force fly from Kasimir's hand, ripping the stunned werewolf apart.

Suldae Westwind: damage taken breaks the effect but i guess he didnt have tiem to react ;u; or wait does it only give wis save?
nope

Kasimir Velikov: (No, I think you are correct -- I misread)

Suldae Westwind: the spell ends for affected creature if it takes any damage that was hideous laughter
save every turn and on damage atken

Henry of Willowsbrook:AURA OF PROTECTIONClass: Paladin 6

Starting at 6th level, whenever you or a friendly creature within 10 feet of you must make a saving throw, the creature gains a bonus to the saving throw equal to your Charisma modifier (with a minimum bonus of +1). You must be conscious to grant this bonus.

At 18th level, the range of this aura increases to 30 feet.

AURA OF PROTECTION*Class: Paladin 6*

Starting at 6th level, whenever you or a friendly creature within 10 feet of you must make a saving throw, the creature gains a bonus to the saving throw equal to your Charisma modifier (with a minimum bonus of +1). You must be conscious to grant this bonus.

At 18th level, the range of this aura increases to 30 feet.

(my green circle)

Marcus Veranius: (Can you make it a blue circle. Its kindof hard for me to see.)

(Partial colorblindness)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh Gm If you'd please?)

Kasimir Velikov: (Better?)

Marcus Veranius: (Yes thanks.)

(Also AWESOME)

Suldae Westwind: (I like this color also)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I just realized I can do it to sorry)

Suldae Westwind: (fits with the Protection)

Marcus Veranius moves closer to Henry's Circle of Paladin. This expedition was going well!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (You might be able to feel it but its not visual IC)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is uncomfortable with the amount of dead bodies they're leaving, but the idea of having a chance to make a difference and doing nothing doesn't sit well wiht her either. She just really doesn't like that their only option seems to be killing.

All in all, she is... neutral.

She comes closer to Henry as well, enjoying the protective touch of the swirl of the Weave around him

To the north, on the ledge, a maze of torchlit tunnels and caves expands ahead. Bones lie strewn upon the floor.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a look around checking to make sure they didn't miss anything to the west of them

The pretty lights still obscure the western portion of the cave, but they are beginning to fade as the minute winds to a close.

15

As the lights fade, you see the ashes of a dead fire and the bones of many animals.

You also see a small leather pouch and a small electrum flute, lying where the werewolf dropped them when he took his brief flight.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I wanna roll Nature to Identify the bones)

Marcus Veranius squints furiously

GM: (You may)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

22

NATURE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

20

NATURE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: "Electrum."

Henry sees the bones of many creatures here. Mostly he sees the bones of animals: deer, rabbits, turkey. In and among them, however, he sees bones which tell a darker tale. The bones of human beings are here -- in shocking numbers, and with a broad age distribution. The tiny bones of an infants mingle with the bones of children, teenagers, young adults, and the elderly. A cross-section of Barovians has been at this dinner table.

Marcus is able to estimate that the flute is worth at least 250 gp.

Marcus Veranius: "....."

"...someone take the flute. I don't want to touch it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gingerly picks up a human bone, an adult one, and presents it to the others " Human" he says darkly calm Rictavio: "Well, that confirms some of our suspicions," says Van Richten.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. This makes her feel better, except not really - there isn't much about seeing human bones that makes her really feel better.

Her mood is simply now dark in a slightly different way.

Suddenly the dead werewolf jerks.

He stiffens, and twists, and chokes in a desperate breath.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry drops the bone walking over to the werewolf plannting a boot on its chest

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stiffens, one hand on the ocarina and another on the crossbow.

He turns and twists to look at all of you, his watery old eyes slit-like.

He cackles. "When Kiril returns," he says to you with his last breath, "he'll skin you alive."

He collapses.

There is a quiet gurgle as his soul departs.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's move on" Henry bites out before murmuring an old prayer he half remembers

Suldae Westwind: "Kiril," Suldae murmurs and takes a note.

Marcus Veranius: "See, this is what you get for devoting yourself to Electrum."

Suldae Westwind: Following Henry's example, she puts her hand on her own holy symbol and gives a prayer to all whose remains lie here - both the bones and the fresher bodies.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry picks up the pbag ant the flute

Suldae Westwind: It makes her feel marginally better.

Henry of Willowsbrook: *bag and

Marcus Veranius continues following Ezmerelda's pace, still uncertain of the palm reading's purpose.

The small bag contains four gemstones, each worth 50 gp. A sapphire, a ruby, an emerald, and a diamond.

Rictavio: (we should probably cut off here -- we can pick up with the rest of the wolf cave next session :D)

Marcus Veranius: (okie o3o)

Henry of Willowsbrook: sure)

Suldae Westwind: (a nice stopping point yea)

GM: (Thanks for playing, everyone! I hope you had at least half as much fun as I did, in spite of the technical difficulties <.<)

Suldae Westwind: I have had A LOT of fun]

 (To GM): Today's temperature is about 10. The wind is Strong Wind. The Precipitation is None

 (To GM): Today's temperature is about Normal for the season. The wind is None. The Precipitation is Light rain or Light snow

 (To GM): Today's temperature is about 20. The wind is Strong Wind. The Precipitation is None

 (To GM): Today's Temperature: 30. Wind: None. Precipitation: None.

 (To GM): Today's Temperature: 1t[WeatherTemperature]. Wind: Strong Wind. Precipitation: None.

 (To GM): Today's Temperature: 1. Wind: None. Precipitation: Light rain or Light snow.

 (To GM): Today's Temperature: colder than normal (30° F). Wind: None. Precipitation: None.

 (To GM): Button ([Extreme Cold])

 (To GM): The road fades away under a covering of snow, but it takes you far enough to see the facade of some kind of temple carved into the sheer mountainside ahead. The front of the structure is fifty feet high and has six alcoves containing twenty-foot-tall statues. Each statue is carved from a single block of amber and depicts a faceless, hooded figure, its hands pressed together in a gesture of prayer. Between the two innermost statues is a twenty-foot-tall archway with a staircase leading down.

 GM (GM): (Morning!)

 Tops K.: (Good morning!)

 Zanshukun: heyho

 Henry of Willowsbrook: i have arrived

Oi no not cool

 schmable: uhhh

 Henry of Willowsbrook: >:(

 Liliet (Suldae): M IN
i think

To the north, the corpses of two wolves lie in the mouth of a tunnel which seems to lead further into a network of tunnels.

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is fiddling with her holy symbol nervously.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's keep going before that Kiril guy comes back"

To your right, beyond the rock wall, you can hear what sounds like falling water.

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We'd better keep moving. The more we stand still in here, the more likely someone is to come across us."

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae follows Henry.

Kasimir and Rictavio follow towards the rear, casually chatting.

Their communication styles are amusing in concert: the educated and refined emotionless monotone of Kasimir contrasts with the animated and loquacious performer's voice of Rictavio.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is, naturally, listening in.

She's mostly curious about how well they get along.

As well as what conversation topics they have.

Suldae realizes after a moment or two listening to the muttered conversation that the two of them are discussing the Fireball spell, which Rictavio never mastered.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tries to blend them and the water out to

The two sound a bit like old mechanics talking about the differences between different kinds of wagon axles.

Henry of Willowsbrook: keep track of other sounds that are not them moving around Liliet (Suldae): Suldae keeps her ears sharp. The exact details of workings of the Weave are her jam, too.

Immediately upon entering the warren of tunnels, Henry sees several options: northwest, north, northeast, or east.

To the east the sound of falling water is loud, and the passage floor drops off abruptly.

The moment Henry steps foot into the tunnels, he hears the CRUNCH of many small bones. The floor is strewn with them.

It may be difficult to sneak through these tunnels...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Great... crossroads" Henry grumbles pointedly ignoring the bones pointedly

Marcus Veranius: (Wouldn't that be a trace of travel covered by Pass Without Trace?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh right we had that

Kasimir, hearing the crunch of bones, moves closer to the front to stand near Henry. Rictavio frowns, and catches up to Marcus and Ezmeralda.

Kasimir Velikov: "We must stay close together. The spell should hide the sound of our footsteps," says Kasimir.

Rictavio: "Well, Henry," says Rictavio. "You'd better pick a tunnel."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "north" Henry says to quickly

Marcus Veranius follows behind, keeping with Ezmeralda's pace. He's still not quite sure what she read in his palms but he's not going to question it.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If they have anything material here It'll be deeper inside"

Kasimir Velikov: "Wait! I see one."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is always happy to leave actual decisions to other people whenever possible.

Kasimir points around the corner to the west. A large creature is sleeping in a nest of elk furs, in a small cave tunnel to your immediate west.

Liliet (Suldae): ...Yep. Let other people make decisions on this one, please.

Rictavio: "That's a big girl," says Van Richten. "We'll have to bring her down quickly."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We could move on. She's sleeping."

Kasimir Velikov: "It will present us with a greater risk, upon our departure. Better to be thorough, I think."

Rictavio: "My thoughts exactly."

Marcus Veranius: "Until something in the deeper caves makes a rally cry. Then we have two fronts to cover."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We really can't leave them in our possible escape path " Henry adds sourly Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is staying quiet.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Suldae, your thoughts?" Ezmerelda asks, turning to her with a frank and interested expression in her brown eyes.

Marcus Veranius: "Someone count to three; we'll fire bolts simultaneously."

Kasimir Velikov: "Wait... There are two more, to the north."

"Another cave. Also sleeping. One looks like a juvenile."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Almost like its a den" Henry murmurs to himself deadpan

Marcus Veranius: "Juvenile beast sitting in a nest of Human bones. Forgive me if I'm not too concerned."

Liliet (Suldae): "..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda frowns. "A child is a child. Lycanthropy is curable."

Liliet (Suldae): "Can we just walk around?"

Rictavio: "Yes, curable with silver."

Liliet (Suldae): "It's not "necessarily" a problem"

Kasimir Velikov: "I see no reason we could not simply move around."

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir's right. If they wake up, we can deal with it then."

Rictavio: Van Richten is still quietly chuckling at his own joke.

Liliet (Suldae): "Walk quietly and make no ruckus, that's my mottto," Suldae says very convincingly for someone who has never uttered anything of the sort before.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Well, someone lead the way," says Ezmerelda, double-checking that her crossbow is loaded.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his shoulders "Lets go around then" before moving

To the east, rough-hewn stairs lead down to a torchlit cave and a bizarre sight: wide-eyed children stand behind wooden bars and stare at you in terrified silence. The cave holds six wooden cages, their lids held shut with heavy rocks. Two of the cages are empty, and each of the others holds a pair of frightened children.

A crude wooden statue stands between the cages. It bears the rough likeness of a wolf-headed woman draped in garlands of vines and night flowers. Piled around the statue's base is an incredible amount of treasure. A woman in shredded clothes kneels before the statue. Behind the statue, two maggot-ridden corpses hang from iron shackles bolted to the wall.

The woman is deep in urgent prayer, and does not notice you -- or the wide-eyed alarm of the children.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae muffles the ocarina with her wrist as she plays a quiet tune.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "how about her" Henry murmurs rolling his sword hand

Liliet (Suldae):

Hold Person

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A humanoid that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A small, straight piece of iron)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Choose a humanoid that you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or be paralyzed for the duration. At the end of each of its turns, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. On a success, the spell ends on the target.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, you can target on additional humanoid for each slot level above 2nd. The humanoids must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

She then looks at the children with her finger to her lips.

Kasimir Velikov:

WISDOM
Zuleika Toranescu

Ability: 14

Liliet (Suldae): Indicating to be quie.

*quiet

The woman stiffens as the muffled song locks her bones and sinews in one position.

Her muttered prayer continues. She seems to think this is part of her religious experience.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae waves for everyone to go in, rapping the ocarina in time with the previous tune to keep the spell going.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... I'll go knock her out"

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae shakes her head at him.

"Let's find out what's going on first," she whispers.

Amid the treasure piled at the base of this statue, you see a large leather tome surrounded by small lit candles, which have burned down to wax-puddle stubs. The tome bears a familiar crest in silver...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Last time we let some one pray Marcus and I got stabbed by less than normally dead skeletons" Henry hisses out at her tone a mite accusatory

Suldae Westwind: (someone please remind me what we were looking for)
(i just remember its a shrine but what we want _there_ is beyond my memory)

You also see thousands of coins in mintages foreign to Barovia, dozens of gemstones, a dozen pieces of jewelry, a drinking horn, and a censer made of electrum, with platinum filigree.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Information on Strahdy Boi Night mother adjacent)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes, stepping quietly, to the nearest cage, still holding her finger to her lips.

"Who is she?" she whispers to the children in it.

She hopes they have enough sense to answer in whisper too.

The little girl inside comes to the bars. Whispering very quietly, she says: "That's Zuleika. She guards us."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry quietly follows her glaring holess into the back of her head for just running ahead

Marcus Veranius moves to check the book. This may be the knowledge of ancients belonging to mother night.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns to Henry and nods.

There were options in the back of her mind for who the woman might be, but apparently it's simpler than that.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry approaches the woman from behind raising his sword to strike her with the pommelö he waits looking at the others for a signal

Marcus recognizes the silver coat of arms emblazoned on the old leather. It is undeniably the Von Zarovich symbol.

Marcus Veranius nods. "This is a book relating to Strahd. I'd say this is likely what we came for."

Henry of Willowsbrook: felling ignored Henry shrugs striking the back of the Womans head

GM: (Roll me an athletics check or an attack, Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (do I roll to knock her out? and what?)

ah ok

GM: (Athletics or an attack)

Kasimir Velikov:

CONSTITUTION Zuleika Toranescu <hr/> Ability: 15

GM: (Gotta beat a 15 to knock her out cold)

Suldae Westwind: (where are the NPCs? :3)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (do I have advantage because she doesn't know I am here?)

GM: (Yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

27

13

ATHLETICS (8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Kasimir Velikov: "Do not touch anything, Marcus. I sense a powerful curse."

Henry's silvered pommel strikes the back of Zuleika's head with a satisfying "CLONK."

Marcus Veranius backs away

Zuleika collapses.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae indicates the cage lids to others with gestures.

She is likely to take a 3 hour nap.

Kasimir Velikov waves his hands over the pile of treasures.

Marcus Veranius: "I was about to ask. Esmeralda mentioned a curse on offerings to Mother Night."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir joins Suldae in checking on the children. "Should we free them?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pauses for a moment "no skeletons this time ...progress" He muses

Rictavio stands watching the scene, arms folded, impatiently waiting.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at her, eyebrows raised. "Is that a question?" she whispers.

Marcus Veranius: "All the wolves are out prowling the roads. If we were to let them out, how would we ensure their safety?"

Suldae Westwind: "And leaving them here is somehow a better alternative?... My first thought is that they will likely be able to solve the tower's puzzle"

Marcus Veranius: "Come to think of it, we're not too far from that... cathedral was it? The second place we were to take Ireena if Vallaki didn't work out."

"That may be safe."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Unless I missed an orphanage in the tower we really can't keep them"
Henry adds

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Leaving them here won't ensure their safety either," says Ezmerelda. "But taking them with us means risking their lives too. Unless we ensure that the werewolf pack is destroyed."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Or that sure"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rubs her temples. The argument for destroying the den is mounting, admittedly.

Rictavio: "I was not prepared to find so many children here."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Are you ever?"

Ezmerelda says this with a certain acidity of tone which suggests prior experience.

Kasimir Velikov: "I understand the curse."

"We cannot take anything from this shrine without inviting a curse of nightly sleeplessness."

"Whoever takes from Mother Night will have no rest except by daylight."

Suldae Westwind: "Where are you from?" Suldae whispers to the children.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's let them out and decide what to do with them later like when we are no longer in the murder cave" Henry says sardonically moving to open a cage

Suldae Westwind: She turns to Kasimir. "Does that... does that work on elves?"

She nods to Henry. SOMEONE here is thinking like a rational person, at least!

Kasimir Velikov: "There is more to the curse which I cannot decipher. It seems likely that the consequences would be painful no matter the race of the thief."

The children explain in mutters and whispers that they are from nearby villages. They name names, but only a few of them seem to be locations within the foggy walls of Barovia. It seems the werewolves have been making raids on nearby settlements beyond the wall of fog.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Breaking the curse is out of the question?" Henry asks thing back if he ever heard of a truly unbreakable curse

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the unconscious woman. "Hey, does it mean 'the one who planned the stealing' or 'the one whose hands touched the things?...'"

Kasimir Velikov: "Breaking the curse would likely require the intercession of a very devout priest."

Henry of Willowsbrook: He stes to move rocks 'locking' the first cage starts

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir, hearing Suldae's question, regards the statue thoughtfully for a moment or two.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We don't happen to know someone like that do we"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grimaces. If only her teacher were here...

Henry of Willowsbrook: (athletics to move the rocks?)

Kasimir Velikov: "I have no way to determine the results of such an attempt to circumnavigate the curse."

GM: (Yes, Athletics)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

25

ATHLETICS (8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry effortlessly removes the massive rocks from atop the first cage.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs. "Give or take a curse..." she murmurs and comes up to the woman.

A girl 9 years of age emerges from the cage.

Suldae Westwind: (Do I need to roll to puppet her hands to push the book off?)

GM: (No, you do not)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Stay close to us" Henry instructs the girl gently

Ezmerelda joins Henry in helping to remove the rocks from the cages. Within a minute they have all the children freed.

Henry of Willowsbrook: instructs

Suldae Westwind: Suldae manipulates the unconscious woman's hands to push the book they're after away from the hoard.

The children stay close to Henry, for reasons they cannot, perhaps, articulate. His aura of protection gives them a feeling of security.

Marcus Veranius: "I mean, we ARE next to Abbey of Saint Markovia. The one in Kresk to the west. Might be a priest there."

Suldae Westwind: She's careful not to touch anything on it herself, even if the effectiveness is dubious.

23

WISDOM (2+1)
Suldae Westwind

The tome slides down the slope of the pile, scattering coins in little tinkling flurries.

Suldae Westwind: She does not touch anything other than the book.

The tome lies at the base of the pile now, away from the main portion of offerings on the shrine.

Suldae has a horrible sense of foreboding...

Suldae Westwind: Suldae drops the woman.

Something divine is watching her very, very closely. Suldae feels the psychic pressure like a strange song in the Weave.

Suldae Westwind: She picks up the book, figuring she can't be any more cursed than she probably already is.

The wooden statue groans. It creaks like a pine forest in a hurricane. The wood shifts, and suddenly grows with almost explosive speed. The statue reaches twelve feet in height. The wood has darkened and hardened, turning obsidian black. The statue turns its head, looking at each of you in turn. Then its eyes flare with light... (Make a DC 17 Wisdom Saving Throw.)

Suldae Westwind:

12

WISDOM SAVE (3)
Suldae Westwind

FUCK

Marcus Veranius:

17

11

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

16

WISDOM SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

WISDOM SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry feels like he is back at the harvest fair with all the young kids clustering around him only with less of him showing of his axe throwing and more dead people around

Suldae and Henry both feel a strange weight on their limbs...

Kasimir Velikov:

SLOW (RECHARGE 5-6)
Stone Golem

The golem targets one or more creatures it can see within 10 ft. of it. Each target must make a DC 17 Wisdom saving throw against this magic. On a failed save, a target can't use reactions, its speed is halved, and it can't make more than one attack on its turn. In addition, the target can take either an action or a bonus action on its turn, not both. These effects last for 1 minute. A target can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success.

WISDOM
Kasimir Velikov
 Ability: 12

WISDOM
Rictavio
 Ability: 16

WISDOM
Ezmerelda d'Avenir
 Ability: 18

INITIATIVE
Stone Golem
 Initiative: 17.09

INITIATIVE
Kasimir Velikov
 Initiative: 13

Suldae Westwind: Well, Suldae thinks. There ARE always ways for a situation to get worse.

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE
Ezmerelda d'Avenir
 Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Rictavio
 Initiative: 11

Henry of Willowsbrook:

5.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
 Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: Through the pressure she drops the book in her bag.

12.15

INITIATIVE (3.15)
 Suldae Westwind

Kasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE <hr/> Initiative: 10.1

Marcus Veranius:*46.22
INITIATIVE (26.22)
 Marcus Veranius
GM: Jesus what howMarcus Veranius: (OK thats not correct Roll20)Suldae Westwind: ...howKasimir Velikov:

INITIATIVE <hr/> Initiative: 34.22
--

Suldae Westwind: uhMarcus Veranius: (Its having a stroke trying to auto-advantage Marcus's init)GM: (So it's really 26.22 with the tiebreaker)Marcus is the first to react as the statue springs to ominous life!Marcus Veranius: This is NOT something Marcus wants to fight with all the children in smashing range.Henry of Willowsbrook: "get back" Henry grunts at the kidsMarcus Veranius: He draws the Oathbow and readies to smash the thing apart.
(I dont remember the command word halp)Suldae Westwind: ('swift death to you who have wronged me')Marcus Veranius: "Swift death to you who have wronged me!""Swift defeat to thy enemies," sings the Oathbow, in Elvish.Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. So unless they kill thing thing now it's another week of this.Marcus Veranius: (Using Action Surge. 2 attacks + Gloom Stalker Round 1 attack. x2)Suldae Westwind: There goes her good idea.Marcus Veranius:

7		24
---	--	----

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

19*Piercing9*13

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

17*Piercing11*25

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

17*Piercing15*26

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

23 + 6*Piercing8*17

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

2*Bonus Damage17Piercing16*12

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

5*Bonus Damage23Piercing*

Marcus Veranius: (Throwing Precision on the 13, 17, and 16)

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(24, 17, 15, 26, 21, 20)

GM: (AC 17. First, second, fourth, fifth, sixth hit. Third misses.)Marcus Veranius:*12Piercing[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

9*Piercing[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

10*Piercing*

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

11

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

11

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

12

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius: +1 for crit9

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

GM: o.O

(Total Damage?)

Marcus Veranius: ...203 Piercing, magicalGM: Holy mother of godSuldae Westwind: ok yeah holy shitWith an almighty flurry of arrows, Marcus turns the head of the Golem into gravel.GM: (Care to RP how you just instakilled this thing?)

(By an overage of... 25 points of damage?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (FATALITY sound faintly echos through the room)Suldae Westwind: ...That works too. Suldae watches, and it takes all her willpower to keep her mouth from gaping.Marcus Veranius steps back, peering at the statue's joints as it moves. Solid as stone except for the breaking points. Precision work, but easy enough from its standing position.Marcus Veranius: Two in the elbows to stop it from striking. Two in the knees to stop it from charging
Two in the head to send it tumbling away from the children
A stonemason would mourn tonight.In a matter of moments, Marcus unmakes the statue of Mother Night.Stone crumbles to the ground.

The children huddle around Henry, clinging to his armor.

Marcus Veranius breathes deeply, eyes widened out of genuine fear.

The effects of the slowing spell fade, freeing everyone.

Marcus Veranius: "...is everyone OK? No one's hurt?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...Show off" Henry snarks with calm confidence "I had it"

Suldae Westwind: "...Okay," Suldae says quietly, both hands on her bag. "Now let's get the fuck out of here before someone else comes."

Marcus Veranius: "Agreed."

Suldae Westwind: She would not normally swear in front of so many children.
Right now is not 'normally'.

Rictavio: Rictavio is still furiously rubbing his eyes.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is totally faking it to keep the kids calm obvious to anyone seeing his twitching jaw

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda smiles to herself, as though something she had expected was beginning to show itself.

Kasimir Velikov: "We must go at once."

"Ancient things awaken..."

Kasimir Velikov leaves the room without another word.

7

Marcus Veranius: "Straight to Krezk. No detours."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Follow me kids we're getting outta here" Henry says cheerily

Marcus Veranius: "We don't rest until the children are safe in that abbey"

The children follow Henry gleefully but silently.

Within a few moments, you are all safely outside the wolf cave.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at children skeptically. "We might need to take a break along the way," she disagrees. "But only as much as absolutely necessary, I agree"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wait how many kids did we rescue again?)

The eight children follow Henry closely.

Marcus Veranius looks westward, confirming his suspicions with his map

Kasimir stays close, shielding the party with his magic.

Rictavio: "We should be able to reach Krezk from the north if we work our way due west, over the hills."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda comes to Suldae as the party travels. "How are you feeling?"

Marcus Veranius: "It's level terrain up until the downwards slope at Krezk. It's the easier path, with full view of the forest's edge."

With the stars overhead, Suldae has an unshakeable feeling of being watched.

Marcus Veranius: "No chances for ambush."

Suldae Westwind: As soon as they're far enough from the wolf cave to not disturb anyone else, Suldae starts playing a sweet melody after melody on her ocarina, for the children's entertainment.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We can carry some if the way gets to rough" Henry muses to the others distracting the kids by flickering gentel light at his hands

Suldae Westwind: While she is playing, Suldae allows the music to bring her closer to the Weave, keeping an eye out for anything more unexpected.

Henry of Willowsbrook: he was not promising piggy back rides he 'never again' he shudders internally

Suldae Westwind: She is fairly sure her trick did not work and the curse fell on her, but hopefully that's not a problem for right now

GM: (Well, unfortunately this is where today's session has to end. We can do some travel RP in the discord, get you to Krezk, and explore the new Tome Henry of Willowsbrook: ok thx)

Marcus Veranius: (thanks for running! o3o)

Suldae Westwind:

ffff

i keep forgetting it doesnt work

{3

{3 {3 {3

...thats meant to be heart emojis

GM (GM): Thanks for playing, everybody! :D

schmable:

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	3
Roll 2:	3
Roll 3:	6
Roll 4:	6

Roll 5:	4
Roll 6:	6
Roll 7:	4

Average for HP

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP Level 2

Roll 1:	2
---------	----------

Average for HP Level 2

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP Level 3

Roll 1:	3
---------	----------

Average for HP Level 3

Average:	4
----------	----------

schmable:

Roll for HP Level 4

Roll 1:	6
---------	----------

Roll for HP Level 5

Roll 1:	3
---------	----------

Average for HP Level 5

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP Level 6

Roll 1:	1
---------	----------

Average for HP Level 6

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP Level 7

--	--

Roll 1:	2
---------	----------

schmable:

Average for HP Level 7
-------------------------------	--

Average:	4
----------	----------

Roll for HP Level 7
----------------------------	--

Roll 1:	3
---------	----------

Average for HP Level 7
-------------------------------	--

Average:	4
----------	----------

Abjuration 2

Components: V, S, M

Abjuration 2

Components: V, S, M

Abjuration 2

Components: V, S, M

schmable:

Abjuration 2

Components: V, S, M

oh its doing it here

Liliet (Suldae): schmable, if you are embarrassed to do these things in public or dont want to clog up the chat, /talktomyself

Zanshuken: GM waiting room

GM (GM): (Hiere Unthere. Glorious)

Journeying over the rocky hills, you encounter no difficulties. All of nature seems to sit silently listening to Suldae's music. The children are quiet, but with Henry nearby they do not seem afraid.

Liliet (Suldae): (what time of day is it)

schmable: (did the photo update?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (afternoon I think)

Suldae Westwind: (...is it?)

As the dawn rises, you leave the forest and come across a large walled settlement on a steep, mountainous slope.

Suldae Westwind: (ok thats about what i expected whew)

Suldae smiles at it thankfully. The children are tired, and her nerves only grow more taut with every minute that passes peacefully.

The walls are twenty feet high, made of stone, and reinforced with buttresses every fifty feet or so. Beyond the wall you see the tops of snow-covered pines and thin, white wisps of smoke. The somber toll of a bell comes from a stone abbey that clings to the mountainside high above the settlement. The steady chime is inviting -- a welcome change from the deathly silence and oppressive fog to which you have grown accustomed.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around for any sign of a gate. Or a road.

Hiere Unthere: (has Hiere been introduced to the party?)

Suldae Westwind: (nope)

Marcus Veranius: (If the world map's correct, there's a road into Barovia from the west. He can just show up with little issue)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Noticing Suldae searching Henry clears his throat "We'll just follow the wall til we find a gate" he says assuringly

Suldae Westwind: "It shouldn't be far," Suldae agrees and smiles at the children before starting up a new melody

GM (GM): (altitude lines are indicated -- the slopes are V E R Y steep.)

A light dusting of snow covers the steep slopes of the hill this fortified settlement is built on. The air is surprisingly cold.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus nods in agreement, crossbow having been drawn since leaving the caves. He's not taking any chances with the children at risk Suldae Westwind: What altitude can we walk at?

You see to your left a steep climb through thick trees to the wall of the abbey, and a gatehouse on the northern side of the abbey. There is also, to the west, a relatively gentle incline that one could follow around the entirety of the wall of the settlement.

Suldae Westwind: (ooo)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "Around or up?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the kids. They could have fun climbing, but how tired are they?
(this is a question for the GM)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to the kids "how are you feeling ? think you can make it up there?" Henry points up the slope

One small girl just mutely hugs Henry. She seems pretty pooped. The older kids seem like they could go a little farther, but none of them seems willing to be the spokesperson for the group. Judging by their silence and their ragged thinness, none of them have eaten well in a long time.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry scratches his head before sighing in resignation before picking the girl up "Hold on tight ok?" He murmurs to her before looking at the other Kids

 Sulda Westwind: "...Around it is," Suldae suggests.

 Marcus Veranius: "Around is good. Rather not be seen on the wrong side of the wall."

 Marcus Veranius starts leading the others around to the west

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "If you can't keep going say something and we'll figure some thing out ok"
Henry instructs the children

As you come around the wall, you see guards on the wall-top at intervals. They hold spears and wear fur hats, but they do not attempt to speak to you. They watch you silently.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (why is my token so tiny)

Mist rolls in off the western forest. You can see a high wall of mist that seems to stretch endlessly into the sky -- it must be the border of Barovia.

Ezmeralda stops, throwing out an arm to stop the rest of you.

Silently, she points to the south.

Two Vistani on foot walk along the main road, leading a flamboyantly dressed traveller. He has not noticed them drawing their swords.

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Vistani assassins," says Ezmeralda. "Do we want to get involved?"

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Is t really a question of wanting?"

 Sulda Westwind: "Assassins?" Suldae asks.

 Marcus Veranius: "I'd rather not see a poor bloke cut up as his first and last action in Barovia."

 Sulda Westwind: She is very much not in favor of making any more decisions blind.
Assassins sounds like that person might be someone important

 Marcus Veranius draws out the Oathbow; only a longbow is going to make it that close in time

 Sulda Westwind: (im sorry im dragging this out, in-character knowledge and not is Sacred)

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I guarantee you, they are doing the work of Strahd. I can see by their colors."

 Rictavio: "They have a color code!? Why the devil didn't you tell me?!"

 Sulda Westwind: "Well, let's be getting involved then," Suldae agrees and draws her own crossbow.

 Hiere Unthere: "yes, yes dears. His name was Jonathan"

 Sulda Westwind: She looks at Ezmerelda and Ric with curiosity.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry puts down the girl he was carrying before drawing his sword "Lets get to it then"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda rolls her eyes. "Your memory is as poor as your eyesight."

Marcus Veranius: (We havent taken a rest since the wolf cave fight, right?)

GM: (You have not)

Suldae Westwind: (we would have taken a short rest imho)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stes of in the direction as fast as the terrain allows

Suldae Westwind: (kids cant walk that long without pause)

GM: At least a short rest

Suldae Westwind: "Let's do this," Suldae says calmly and seriously. Inspiration dice to Marcus.

*die

Marcus Veranius: (Short rest then? Action Surge is up)

17

INITIATIVE (8)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: i would note we're currently a not-to-scale-to-our-tokens distance from them as per this map dont forget your advantage

19.15

INITIATIVE (3,15)
Suldae Westwind

fff

Henry of Willowsbrook:

15.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 11.15

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 6.1

INITIATIVE
Rictavio
Initiative: 9

INITIATIVE
Ezmerelda d'Avenir
Initiative: 5

INITIATIVE
Kasimir Velikov
Initiative: 15

INITIATIVE
Vistana Assassin
Initiative: 7

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE
Vistana Assassin
Initiative: 21

GM: Please roll initiative, Able. Don't forget to select your character token first

Suldae Westwind: we, uh, really should have come closer first before rolling init

Marcus Veranius: (SNIPER FIGHT!)

GM: (Shhhhhhhh you did)

Able: (game crashed sorry)

Suldae Westwind: (thank)

GM: Range is still pretty far, for fun

Able:

21

INITIATIVE (3)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE
Initiative: 7

GM: (Tiebreaker roll 4)
(Please roll a D6, Able)

Hiere Unthere: rolling d6

$$(3) = 3$$

GM: (Assassinate: During its first turn, the assassin has advantage on attack rolls against any creature that hasn't taken a turn. Any hit the assassin scores against a surprised creature is a critical hit.)

(Sneak Attack: The assassin deals an extra 14 (4d6) damage when it hits a target with a weapon attack and has advantage on the attack roll, or when the target is within 5 ft. of an ally of the assassin that isn't incapacitated and the assassin doesn't have disadvantage on the attack roll.)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

MULTIATTACK

Vistana Assassin

The assassin makes two shortsword attacks.

Vistana Assassin:

SHORTSWORD

Vistana Assassin

Attack: 16 | 10
and the target must make a DC 15 Constitution saving throw, taking 24 (7d6) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Damage: 6 piercing + 21 poison

SHORTSWORD

Vistana Assassin

Attack: 9 | 14
and the target must make a DC 15 Constitution saving throw, taking 24 (7d6) poison damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Damage: 9 piercing + 29 poison

Hiere Unthere:

10

21

CONSTITUTION SAVE (2)

Suldae Westwind: (UM)

(this looks terrifying)

(lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (rouge vs wizard)

GM: (First attack is a critical hit for 12 piercing and 42 poison, due to Assassinate, and will also deal an additional 10 piercing due to sneak attack)

Hiere Unthere: Here falls unconscious

Suldae Westwind: (thought so)

Hiere Unthere: (fan autocorrect)

The Assassin on Hiere's right draws a short sword and plunges it through him with a horrible sound. As he collapses, the Assassin stabs him again. Luckily, due to circumstances not yet discovered, the blow does not kill the downed man.

Luckily, Hiere drank antivenin before coming to Barovia. He's got the Assassin fooled, but it's VERY convincing.

The divination wizard feigns unconsciousness wisely as the companions he foresaw come to his rescue.

Suldae Westwind: (tfw you need dem to counter dem)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Hm tasty dm fiat that even makes sense in character)

GM: (You're up, Suldae!)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae literally cannot do anything at htis range. Preferring not to turn into a raven in front of the whole goddamn town, she breaks into a run towards the injured man.

EoT

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: (I've got 300 ft of elevation over the forest. Can I shoot without blocking terrain?)

Suldae Westwind: She hopes he's not quite so dead yet that magic can't revive him.

Marcus has a clear shot, unimpeded by the trees.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus curses his lack of swiftness, and sends his regards in the form of arrows. A proper volley for each assassin

(Action Surge, 3 attacks each assassin)

(The ones against the assassin that hasn't attacked get advantage)

10

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

18

Piercing

19

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

17*Piercing9

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

17*PiercingMarcus Veranius:*22

|

15

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

23*Piercing19

|

9

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

20*Piercing17

|

17

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

24*Piercing*

(I'll throw some Precision Dice on the 9 and 10)

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

2

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Marcus Veranius: 12, 19, 16, 22, 19, 17

Three arrows whizz in over the treetops and rip into the Assassin who has not yet attacked, nearly bringing him to his knees. The next three zoom in, and the Assassin who stabbed the traveler deflects the first with his blade but takes the next two in his chest.

Realizing that they may have been spotted, the Vistani shout to one another and turn as though to flee.

GM: (Movement, then EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: THEY MAY HAVE BEEN SPOTTED

YOU KNOW ITS A DISTINCT POSSIBILITY

NOT IMPOSSIBLE

(love)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus moves up as fast as they can. A fleeing enemy is a routed enemy.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Misty Step

Conjuration 2

Casting Time: 1 bonus action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V

Duration: Instantaneous

Briefly surrounded by silvery mist, you teleport up to 30 feet to an unoccupied space that you can see.

Henry runs down the slope at a break neck pace turning into mist whenever it seems he might lose his footing reaching the edge of the trees by pushing his body to its limit

The children watch in awe. So do several of the people on the wall-top.

Ezmeralda, meanwhile, is looking at Marcus like she's never seen a man loose so many arrows in so short a span of time.

Rictavio is quietly humming a jaunty tune as he watches the destruction.

Kasimir wraps his mouth in his scarf and watches the wall of fog warily. He is uneasy this close to human settlements.

Zanshuken:

Reaching into a pouch on his belt Henry takes out some seeds he gathered his body filling with magical energy. Crushing the seeds Henry Points with his blade at the assassins calling down a beam of pale light

(i cant select Henry for chat again)

GM: (Hmm, I don't know why... It's all set up properly)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

GM: (You got it to work?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: works again

GM: (Weird)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (does the spell discription for Moon beam show up?)

Suldae Westwind: (nope)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Abjuration 2

Components:

Zone of Truth

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A 15-foot-radius sphere centered on a point of your choice within range

Components: V, S

Duration: 10 minutes

You create a magical zone that guards against deception in a 15-foot-radius sphere centered on a point of your choice within range. Until the spell ends, a creature that enters the spell's area for the first time on a turn or starts its turn there must make a Charisma saving throw. On a failed save, a creature can't speak a deliberate lie while in the radius. You know whether each creature succeeds or fails on its saving throw. An affected creature is aware of the spell and can thus avoid answering questions to which it would normally respond with a lie. Such a creature can be evasive in its answers as long as it remains within the boundaries of the truth.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (huh the other spells work

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

"A silvery beam of pale light shines down in a 5-foot-radius, 40-foot-high cylinder centered on a point within range. Until the spell ends, dim light fills the cylinder. When a creature enters the spell's area for the first time on a turn or starts its turn there, it is engulfed in ghostly flames that cause searing pain, and it must make a Constitution saving throw. It takes 2d10 radiant damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. A shapechanger makes its saving throw with disadvantage. If it fails, it also instantly reverts to its original form and can't assume a different form until it leaves the spell's light. On each of your turns after you cast this spell, you can use an action to move the beam 60 feet in any direction. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the damage increases by 1d10 for each slot level above 2nd."

GM: (I'm not sure why that one's not working, it looks like it's set up properly from what I can see)

(Anyway, please roll 2d10 for the damage, unless you wanted to use a higher level spell slot)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

CONSTITUTION
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 5

CONSTITUTION
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 17

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I got no higher ones)

rolling 2d20

(17 + 17)

= 34

GM (GM): (UHHHHH)

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 2d10

(2 + 4)

= 6

(wrong dice)

GM (GM): Lol

Suldae Westwind: ri[

*rip

A blinding stream of silvery light descends upon the two assassins. One of them covers his eyes, the other screams out in surprise at the sudden arcane radiance.

Henry of Willowsbrook: well EoT

GM (GM):

DC14
Half damage
Dexterity Save

7 Bludgeoning		14 Cold
300 ft

Ice Storm

(A hail of rock-hard ice pounds to the ground in a 20-foot-radius, 40-foot-high cylinder centered on a point within range. Each creature in the cylinder must make a Dexterity saving throw. A creature takes 2d8 bludgeoning damage and 4d6 cold damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Hailstones turn the storm's area of effect into difficult terrain until the end of your next turn.)

GM: (Evasion: If the assassin is subjected to an effect that allows it to make a Dexterity saving throw to take only half damage, the assassin instead takes no damage if it succeeds on the saving throw, and only half damage if it fails.)

Suldae Westwind: (im guessing hes not that far behind the party lol)

GM (GM):

DEXTERITY
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 12

DEXTERITY
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 15

10.5

Kasimir raises his hand. Mist wells from his eyes, and above the Assassins a small storm cloud billows into being. Huge chunks of hail plummet towards them. One Assassin easily dodges all the hail, the other dodges only most of it.

Kasimir frowns. "They're good," he says.

Rictavio: "Let's see how good."

Rictavio looks at the slope and the distance. He leans on his cane. "Actually... Ezmeralda. See how good they are."

One of the Assassins begins to flee towards the fog.

Suldae Westwind: lmao

E> E> E>

oh this works

Henry of Willowsbrook: (could you mark the AoEs on the map please)

Suldae Westwind: im going to be doing that

Hiere Unthere: yes centre it on the unconscious boi

Suldae Westwind: im sure its right next to him~

Ezmerelda d'Avenir raises her crossbow and aims carefully. She lowers it after a second. "Damn. I can't hit them with anything from this distance."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir frowns and massages her wooden leg, biting her lip.

Rictavio: "Well? Get closer! Chase after them!"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Shut up you old man! There's no point. They're too far by now."

Marcus Veranius: "They're retreating. We've made our point."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry whilst maintaining his magic feels as if he misses some bickering

Marcus Veranius: "Let's attend to the injured gentleman, rather than leave three bodies."

Suldae Westwind: i dont think they can get away THROUGH ice storm quite yet?

The other assassin begins to retreat as well, just as the "unconscious" man "wakes up".

Suldae Westwind: i mean w/e

Marcus Veranius: "What the... well bugger me; he was faking it!"

Hiere Unthere: "oh HELLO there"

GM: (Actually yes, the difficult terrain would slow them down, and they have to make dex and con saves for moonbeam and ice storm)

Suldae Westwind: (is the initiative still going)

GM: (Thank you for reminding me)

Suldae Westwind: (are we still where the map says we are)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

CONSTITUTION
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 12

CONSTITUTION
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 22

DEXTERITY Vistana Assassin <hr/> Ability: 17

DEXTERITY Vistana Assassin <hr/> Ability: 21

Henry of Willowsbrook: (do I roll damage again?)

The Assassins slip easily through the falling ice, but the effort does slow them down. The moonbeam continues to bathe them in its light. (Please roll damage for the moonbeam again)

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 2d10

(9 + 4)

= 13

One Assassin dies in mid-sprint, collapsing onto the tumbled chunks of ice. The moonbeam seems to have done him in. The other keeps running, but seems severely weakened. Some of his clothing has caught fire.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere Unthere:

24

60 feet

Ray of Frost (~- Lm_GcyvTSH2s3u1Z4ex repeating_attack_- LmyqEn0ZASdCemCNmsq_attack_dmg)
--

(+8)

"it was ICE to meet you"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

7

Cold

Vistana Assassin: "Aargh!!"

The zapped assassin stumbles as ice slows his legs.

Hiere Unthere: (EoT)

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (OH YEAH)

(can i like take hp damage to run extra fast bc reckless on a slope)

GM: (Yes!)

(1 hp = 1 foot)

Suldae Westwind: oof

Hiere Unthere: (i only have 2 feet though)

Suldae Westwind: so ok 60ft run action and lets say 20 more from her being an idiot

(she stumbles and falls at some point, bruising and spraining herself, but rolls until shes in position to get up again and run)

GM: (Works for me)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus sprints forward, trying to reach the fallen/not fallen man as quick as he can.

(EoT)

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves up while moving the Beam to stay atop the Assassin

(If he got out)

Vistana Assassin:

CONSTITUTION
Vistana Assassin

Ability: 15

GM: (Roll damage, please)

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 2d10

(1 + 8)

= 9

As the light still streams over the retreating Assassin, he tries to cover his head in his cloak. Ice still falls

The Assassin rolls his ankle while running, and hobbles out of the area of hail at last.

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

Still in pain, still bathed in holy radiation, the Assassin stumbles on, panting, gasping for breath, hunched with weariness.

He can see the Wall of Fog ahead, and knows that if he can just reach it, he'll be safe.

Suldae Westwind: (holy radiation is such an amazing turn of phrase its great)

Kasimir and Rictavio watch the battle from afar.

Ezmeralda pulls the children towards her and begins trying to distract them with an old, jaunty song.

The Assassin stumbles on.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere Unthere:

23

60 feet

Ray of Frost (~-
Lm_GcyvTSH2s3u1Z4ex|repeating_attack_-
LmyqEn0ZASdCemCNmsq_attack_dmg)

(+8)

rolling d8

(2)

= 2

"that SNOW way to greet someone"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry now in range to hear the stranger wishes he wasn't

Hiere Unthere: (RoF decreases speed too)

Vistana Assassin: "Aargh!" The Vistani Assassin clutches at his ears as the pun sends chills down his back. Literal ice crusts his legs and he trips, face planting in the mud. He army crawls on, one elbow in front of the other, trying to keep his ears covered as he goes.

Suldae Westwind: (LMAO)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere gets up and starts walking towards them

The battle is clearly over.

Marcus Veranius: Marcus runs down to Hiere as quick as he can, giving him a look-over

Suldae Westwind: Suldae runs the rest of the way through the forest

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry considers before letting the Beam of light wink out

Marcus Veranius: "I'm terribly sorry for the rude welcome to this country."

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae gets there FIRST thank you)

Marcus Veranius: "Most people give you the COLD shoulder."

Vistana Assassin: "AARGH!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae ignores the assassin, looking instead after Hiere's wound.

8

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If I may" Henry offers a Hand him

Suldae Westwind: She's too exhausted to put much oomph into it, but it should at least plug some damage.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

LAY ON HANDS

Class: Paladin 1

You have a pool of healing power that replenishes when you take a long rest. With that pool, you can restore a total number of hit points equal to your paladin level x 5. As an action, you can touch a creature and draw power from the pool to restore a number of hit points to that creature, up to the maximum amount remaining in your pool.

Alternatively, you can expend 5 hit points from your pool of healing to cure the target of one disease or neutralize one poison affecting it. You can cure multiple diseases and neutralize multiple poisons with a single use of Lay on Hands, expending hit points separately for each one.

This feature has no effect on undead and constructs.

The wound from the first blade is severe but non-lethal. The poison should have killed him, but he seems fine. The second blow pierced only his clothing, missing his waist by a half inch.

Hiere Unthere: "Oh it was only a flesh wound"

Suldae Westwind: After making sure he's not actively dying, Suldae slides down to the ground next to him, giving him a mild glare. Her leg is sprained, all because he gave them a scare.

Not that it wasn't warranted under the circumstances, she'll admit.

She's just grumpy from pain.

Rictavio:

17

Higher Level Cast

9

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry instead shrugs planting his Hand on Suldaes head letting healing light course through her

11 from lay on Hands

Suldae Westwind: She breathes out and clasps Henry's hand in gratitude for a moment.

Rictavio pats Sundae on the shoulder as he walks past. "Nice bit of running, there. I admire your spirit."

Rictavio *Suldae

Suldae Westwind: She glares at him too, for good measure.

(god i hadnt actually realized how close the words were)

GM: (My autocorrect did for the first time)

Marcus Veranius: "So what brings you out to these miserable parts? I've got bad news for you, but there's no leaving now that you're here."

GM: (Also, you're fully healed thanks to Ric)

Suldae Westwind: (and Hiere?)

Marcus Veranius: "The local vampire lord makes sure of that with his one-way fog."

GM: (Ric doesn't know him, so Ric doesn't care)

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you," she murmurs.

(ah, of course)

(how is Hiere's HP?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so my Lay on Hands healed nothing? O.o)

GM: (He's 4/5ths good)

Hiere Unthere: "I was told of a great Abbott in a town nearby"

Suldae Westwind: (you got there first)

GM: (Your lay on hands healed 11 points!)

(You probably fixed the sprain, Ric just gave Suldae a second wind)

Marcus Veranius: "Is that so? We were also told the town had a cathedral, though we're seeing it for shelter over forgiveness."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gets up, her fatigue washed away by Rictavio's magic, and turns to the stranger's wound again.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I am Henry please..nice to meet you"

Marcus Veranius: "Do you need a hand? Or a new escort that ain't so rubbish?"

Suldae Westwind: Apparently everyone was so concerned about her, they forgot to fix him. Amazing.

Touch

Cure Wounds
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises his eyebrow at the others over their lack of Introduction

Suldae Westwind: "Suldae," the bard introduces herself with a touch to his chest next to the wound.
A somewhat unorthodox greeting, but then neither is faking your death upon meeting.

Hiere Unthere: "pleasure's all mine. I'm Hiere Unthere. Thank you all for helping me not die"

Marcus Veranius: "Marcus. Pleasure to make your acquaintance."

Suldae Westwind: (still reading it as Hyere btw~)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks at him flatly "are you serious.." he murmurs to himself

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She's too pissy from having injured herself by accident to do the full nicey nice routine, so she just smiles mildly. It's still genuinely friendly, especially paired with the healing.

Ezmeralda and Kasimir herd the children to a spot on the road out of crossbow reach from the walls, but also not terribly close to the new stranger, either.

Hiere Unthere: "No, do you know him? Nice fellow. I'm Hiere, though."

Rictavio: "Van Richten," says Rictavio. He bows grandly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry groans loudly

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flips him off, visibly to the new acquaintance, but like in a friendly way. After a week together, he'll know that.

Rictavio: "You're some kind of fortune-teller, then?" Van Richten asks, gesturing at the wounded jacket.

Henry of Willowsbrook: at Hieres remark and possibly at Van Richtens theatrics

Rictavio: "Or a con-man?"

Marcus Veranius: "Not a fortune-finder, that's for sure."
"Else he wouldn't be here."

Hiere Unthere: "I am... changed now. All that is behind me."

Rictavio: "Don't be so sure. Fate is longer than a few minutes, and we have seen only a few minutes so far."
"Changed, you say?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes. Starting off full drama, then.

Hiere Unthere: (really wanna drop a YES DID I STUTTER)

Suldae Westwind: "Well if you're changed from whatever you were, what are you now?"

Hiere Unthere: "lost"

Suldae Westwind: "Well, that's easily fixed. We're in... actually, what's this place called?" She looks at Ric

Hiere Unthere: (was that edgy enough)

Marcus Veranius: "That's fair."

"You uhh... want to follow us to the gate?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So as much as like chatting could we maybe go it's a might fresh out here" Henry says nodding to the town "and stabby" he adds under his breath

Hiere Unthere: "i do think i will"

Marcus Veranius: "Well then, probably nicer up the path than it is down the slope."

Rictavio: Rictavio looks at Suldae, then looks at the wall. "Ah, this is Krezk. With the Abbey of Saint Markovia."

"I've not yet had the privilege of entering the walls. They're terribly secretive."

Marcus Veranius raises an eyebrow

Marcus Veranius: "Are they not the type to let in refugees? Might have been good to know before planning the trip."

"Heaven forbid they won't take the children. Not we can send them back to Vallaki."

Rictavio: "You seemed to have it all in hand. I imagine with the added leverage of youth and beauty, my chances will be better this time."

"My, er... Former strategies... did not pan out."

"Rope and grapnel tends to get you acquainted on bad terms."

"Let's head up, at least. I'll, er. Stay at the back."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head this was going to be one of those days huh (so)

The air grows colder as you approach the walled settlement. Two square towers with peaked roofs flank a stone archway into which is set a pair of twelve-foot-tall, ironbound wooden doors. Carved into the arch above the doors is a name: Krezk.

GM (GM):

The walls that extend from the gatehouse are twenty feet high. Atop the parapet you see four figures wearing fur hats and clutching spears. They watch you nervously.

The walls that extend from the gatehouse are twenty feet high. Atop the parapet you see four figures wearing fur hats and clutching spears. They watch you nervously.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae waves her hand with a cheerful smile

This creates a flurry of panicked whispering.

Liliet (Suldae): She sweeps her arm at the group of children with them

Indicating with her body language 'its not that we want to impose on you but what ARE we supposed to do?'

Marcus Veranius: "We seek refuge inside the city. With us are children rescued from last night's terrible storm and the monsters that lurked within."

"May we enter?"

Liliet (Suldae): "Or at least they," Suldae adds more pragmatically.

The town is probably not full of cannibals who look for little children to eat them. PROBABLY.

After a brief discussion amongst themselves, one of the guards leaves the wall top.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "don't seem like the trusting type" Henry murmurs to the others

Liliet (Suldae): "Seems like we're waiting," Suldae notes.

She has some travel rations in her bag, though she's not sure how much every child will get if she splits.

(how many kids are there?)

Marcus Veranius: "These are unusual circumstances. I would not be suprised that they consult a superior for advice."

Henry of Willowsbrook: 8 I think)

Liliet (Suldae): (i think i have 5 rations)

Suldae indicates the food, trying to keep it out of sight of the children, conveying the question of if her teammates have more food.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs digging out 3 rations indicating to split them in half still hidden from the kids hidden

Marcus Veranius: Marcus holds up 9 fingers for 9 rations.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae takes hers out openly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I got seven more without these 3" Henry

Liliet (Suldae): "Let's eat," she says and starts distributing hers. She follows Henry's advice to split in two, as children eat less than adults anyway

She gives away 3 of her own

(6 portions)

Marcus Veranius tosses three of his into the mix

Liliet (Suldae): She is ready to give more to anyone who asks for more.

GM (GM): brb: cat determined to have food

Liliet (Suldae): She also eats half a ration herself, not being particularly hungry

(how many children are there?)

Marcus Veranius: (The 9th ration was for cat.)

GM (GM): (Back)

A short but well-built man comes to the top of the wall. He has stern features and a large white beard, and in his hand is a large sword.

Liliet (Suldae): (GM how many children were there and how much food do we have left, this is srs accounting bsns pls ^^)

GM (GM): (I believe there were between 8 and 12)

Liliet (Suldae): (and more precisely?...)

Zanshukun: Henry shares 3 of his rations

GM (GM): (Let's go with 8)

Liliet (Suldae): (alright, are we giving them full rations or splitting in half? question to GM really) (bc it depends on how hungry the kids are)

Baron Krezkov: "Greetings, travelers! What brings you to the walls of Krezk?"

Liliet (Suldae): (w/e im writing off 3 and everyone is fed)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We're looking for shelter mostly for these children"

Baron Krezkov: Baron Krezkov frowns slightly. "I'm afraid there is no shelter here for troublemakers. You will have to seek refuge elsewhere!"

Rictavio stays out of sight, hiding in a blind spot behind one of the buttresses of the wall.

Marcus Veranius: "Troublemakers? I do not follow."

Suldae Westwind: "Just the children," Suldae says. "We could give coin if necessary to get them settled. We do not ask to be allowed inside ourselves"

Baron Krezkov: The Baron seems to contemplate this. His face growing stern, he says: "Alas, I am afraid the duty I bear to my people prevents me. I cannot endanger my own, not even to shelter apparent innocents."

Something seems to be bothering him.

Suldae Westwind: "What's the danger in letting small children in?" Suldae asks.

10

PERSUASION (8)
Suldae Westwind

(well wow)

"Could we prove our good intentions somehow?"

Marcus Veranius: "...you seem troubled. Is something amiss?" Marcus focuses less on the handout and more on the patron.

Baron Krezkov: A spot of color rises in the Baron's dark cheeks at Marcus's remark. Ignoring it, he answers Suldae instead. "If you had done something to benefit Krezk, my duty would require me to provide you with shelter."

"Otherwise, I see no reason to trust that you will not rush the gates the moments we open them to these innocents."

One of the little girls begins to cry. The Baron seems deeply troubled by this. He retreats somewhat from the wall-top, so that she will not be within line of sight.

Suldae Westwind: "What can we do?"

Marcus Veranius: That was both horribly cruel and terribly fair. Not an easy decision for the Baron.

GM: (You may make an insight check, Marcus)

Marcus Veranius:

18

20

INSIGHT (5)
Marcus Veranius

(Shouldnt have been with advantage. 18)

Baron Krezkov: "We have not had a shipment of wine in some time, and the spirits of the people have sunk very low. If you could secure a shipment of wine from the Wizard of Wines winery, we would owe you a debt of gratitude."

Marcus realizes that the Baron is grieving a recent and painful loss.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's voice is terse with barely contained anger "Where is this winery?"

Suldae Westwind: "Wizard of Wines?"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae steps back and presses the crying kid to her side, attempting to comfort her with a half-hug and distract her with mussing her hair.

Marcus Veranius: "I know that look, ser."

Baron Krezkov: "It lies to the south of here some few miles," says the Baron.
He sighs heavily.

Marcus Veranius: "That is the face of a man who fights between trust in the world, and scars begging otherwise to spare further pain."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the children.

"...some of us should stay here and look after the little ones. Can those who stay under the walls count on protection from them?"

Marcus Veranius: "I shall make the decision easy for you. If you wish to hold trust in the youth of our world, we shall take a quest from you and leave the children at the gate. We cannot rush them if we are down the hill."

Suldae Westwind: "Some, at least?"

"Or that," she adds to Marcus's words.

Marcus Veranius: "It would be unfair to beg your aid and not work for it in return."

Baron Krezkov: "You may leave the children here. You and your companions should get going before the daylight dies. When you return with the wine, on my honor as a noble and by my oath of office, I will be required to show you proper hospitality."

"Once you are out of sight of the walls, we will bring the children into the city."

Suldae Westwind: (IT'S DAWN)

(or just past dawn)

Baron Krezkov: "You have my oath that they will not be harmed."

GM: (Daylight dies swiftly, in Barovia)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows deeply.

Marcus Veranius nods. "Thank you ser. I shall not add to your regrets."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's get them some wine then" Henry states to the others "enough so that they never have turn anyone away sober again" his tone is almost as cold as the snow he turns walking down hill

Ezmeralda, Rictavio, and Kasimir begin to follow.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comforts the upset and scared children, explaining to them that they're about to be let into the city and be taken care of. She makes the oldest children promise to look after the smaller ones.

Marcus Veranius follows Henry's lead

Suldae Westwind: Then, she follows as well.

A faint wailing begins as the party walks away. The young children have grown attached to their newfound protectors.

Baron Krezkov: "Gods be with you," says the Baron.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry runs his hand across his face "This sucks" he had hopefully managed to hide his open disdain for the townsfolk from the children wouldn't do to color their perception this way

As you reach the bottom of the little winding track, you hear the gates creak open. The children are ushered in through the smallest of cracks, and the gates are closed once more.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "They have had much hardship, I think," says Ezmeralda.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, agreeing with her.

"He did eventually let them in," she points out.

Marcus Veranius: "I can't imagine how they wouldn't. The only blessing they have is not to be as close to the castle as Vallaki."

Suldae Westwind: "Just didn't want us around for that."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir pulls a scroll from her pack and unrolls it. It appears to be a detailed map of Barovia.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ah," she says. "Here. Wizard of Wines. We take the road east to the bridge over the Raven River, then head southwest through a forest trail. Should be there in no time."

"Should be about a five mile journey."

Kasimir Velikov: "I do believe we could shorten the distance drastically by air," says Kasimir.

Rictavio: "Do we really want to draw that much attention to ourselves?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to Rictavio.

"I think we don't. Not when it's not an emergency"

Marcus Veranius: "We don't. Not when we're on an uphill battle of trust as-is."

"We must take exactly as much time as they think we'll take."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I say we walk, we could also check if the road is clear"

Marcus Veranius: "Heaven forbid we're back too soon or too late."

Suldae Westwind: "Good point," Suldae nods to Henry.

"We'll be going back with a load, hopefully."

"More convenient to check the road first"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Onwards then to wine and victory" Henry says with sarcastic smile and deadpan voice

Suldae Westwind: "Wine," Suldae notes. "I think the man was genuinely trying his best to come up with something for us to do."

Kasimir Velikov: "I would not be so sure of that. There is only one winery in all of Barovia that can still grow edible grapes."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Can I use 3min during the walk to meditate/pray to add magic weapon to my prepared spell list?)

GM: (Yes)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows at Kasimir.

"Why?"

Marcus Veranius: "Didn't Danika also mention missing shipments? This is a far-reaching problem."

Kasimir Velikov: "The ground is cursed," says Kasimir simply.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry begins absentmindedly walking down the road eyes half closed

(To GM): 2

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pauses, then nods. That parses. She glances at Henry, remembering who his patrons are.

"And the winery can still grow grapes?..." she asks

Marcus Veranius: "Presumably, else they'd be out of business ages ago."

"Might be the root of the current problem."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at him, pondering if it's a pun.

Plants. Roots. Cursed ground. You know.

Marcus Veranius: It was not a pun, as Grapes grow from a vine.

Suldae Westwind: (vines also grow from the ground)

Kasimir Velikov: "I have long suspected that they may have magical means of protecting their grapes from the curse."

The miles pass quickly enough. Soon you come to the bridge.

Suldae Westwind: "Well, it does have 'Wizard' in the title"

"Maybe that's literal"

Suldae glances towards the tower.

Rictavio: "Hold!" Hisses Rictavio. "There's someone down there."

He points to the far shore, where a tall, armor-clad humanoid is pacing with a drawn and gleaming longsword. He has not noticed you, and seems to be heading eastward along the south bank of the river.

Suldae Westwind: People inside there are safe, right?

Suldae stops.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Is he headed to the tower?"

Rictavio: "I don't think so," says Rictavio.

"Look, he seems to be tracking something."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry seems to rouse out of a sudden trance "Huh what'ya say?"

GM: (Perception checks, please)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

23

PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

13

PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

27

PERCEPTION (8)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: (As a fellow armor-clad humanoid, Henry is particularly adept at noticing his peers.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Incense of honor duels or asking for blacksmiths to fix creaking joints of cause)

To Marcus, the man is obviously undead. It is abnormal to see one in armor and bearing weapons. To Suldae, the man reminds her vaguely of Ismark. To Henry, the man is obviously undead, but the ebb and flow of nature does not seem to avoid him, but rather to embrace him. He has been revived with a singular purpose, and not by any evil entity.

Suldae realizes the man is a revenant.

Marcus and Henry both note that the man's armor bears a mark like a twisting dragon.

Suldae Westwind: "Another revenant," she says in a voice low enough not to crry.

"Could be an ally."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Not one of Strahds I believe" Henry adds soto voce

Marcus Veranius: "If we share a goal, the most reliable kind of ally."

Suldae Westwind: "Let's go greet him?" Suldae suggests, glancing at Marcus and Henry.

Marcus Veranius nods

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll take the lead if you allow me"

Suldae Westwind: She motions for the others to stay behind. Too large a party might spook a lone traveler.

She nods to Henry and follows behind him.

(She also questions just how much of Barovia Rictavio has managed to piss off already. It just sounds like too much to take a chance on a random person)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rests his left hand on his sword's pommel striding forward with the confidence of an ordinary soldier taking a walk he raises his right arm when he reaches the Revenants hearing distance "Hail!" he calls out voice calm and cheery

Revenant: The Revenant turns, his matted black hair drifting as though underwater. His grey and wrinkled face leers up at you skeletally from the riverbank, and his yellow eyes glare. "Hail. Who walks the road of Barovia so boldly?"

"Are you an agent of the king, or a traveler from beyond this accursed domain?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Just some weary unfortunate drifters"

Revenant: "More useless travelers, then. Leave me to my business. There are werewolves which need slaying."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wants to ask what king, but holds off for now.

The Revenant turns as though he intends to travel on.

Suldae Westwind: "We are also attempting to ease this realm's burden," Suldae pipes in.

Suldae (with her 27 to Perception) catches a bit of engraved writing on his tattered armor. It reads: Argynvost Forever.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tilts his head "We know a few things about werewolves around here maybe we could share for"

Suldae Westwind: (does... does Suldae know what that means. Should I roll History or Arcana or Religion?)

Revenant: "No matter how much the burden is eased, the root of the curse remains. Four hundred years I have walked these lands, and in those lifetimes I have seen many brave warriors die 'easing the burden.'"

GM: (Roll History, please)

Suldae Westwind:

13

HISTORY (6)
Suldae Westwind

"Well, we DO plan on killing Strahd when we gather the means," Suldae says bluntly.

Suldae has vague recollections of a silver dragon named Argynvost. He disappeared many centuries ago, but his noble name has lived on in certain songs.

Suldae Westwind: "Not that 'die trying' doesn't remain a likely outcome."

"What is your name?"

Revenant: "You do?" The Revenant turns completely to face Suldae.

Suldae Westwind: She nods.

Revenant: He growls. "I... No longer recall a name."

Suldae Westwind: "Suldae Westwind, at your service," she does a sweeping courtly bow, complete with swiping her hat's feathers on the ground.

"Make one up?"

Revenant: "I would like nothing more than to put my steel through his heart, but I cannot march upon the castle without orders from my general."

Suldae Westwind: "Your general?" Suldae asks. Her eyes slide towards the engraving on he armor.

Marcus Veranius: "...you've been at this for 400 years. If your general had departed in that time, wouldn't that make you the acting general?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "not quite how chain of command works but whatever" Henry murmurs

Marcus Veranius: "Depends on the structure. There must ALWAYS be an acting officer. If none are present and communications are cut off, it goes to the next person."

"Which would be our acquaintance here, as a supposedly lone operative."

Revenant: "My general is Vladimir Horngard, the leader of the Order of the Silver Dragon. He waits at Argynvostholt."

Suldae Westwind: "Is that inside Barovia?" Suldae asks.

Revenant: "Aye. It lies to the southeast of here, at the bend of the Luna River."

"North of the ruins of Berez."

Marcus Veranius: Oh! A functioning military structure! That was interesting! Marcus scours his map for such a place.

...there DOES in fact, appear to be a settlement of some kind in that spot!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "In which case you would continue with your current rank unless you were to assume a command that requires a higher rank" Henry grumbles on mostly to himself

Able: able able

Suldae Westwind: "We are going in another direction right now," Suldae says. "But if we came there at a later time?..."

(Able, read the chat archive :D)

Revenant: "I have nothing but time on my hands."

"Farewell. Do not die before convincing my general to march upon the castle."

Suldae Westwind: "We'll try," Suldae promises, amused.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "There is a cave of werewolves just north of here at the shores of the lake...Baratok I think it was" Henry adds respectfully

The Revenant turns and continues on. He pauses at Henry's statement. Without looking back, he says: "Thank you..."

Then, quite calmly, he walks into the lake and vanishes beneath the waves with hardly a ripple.

One gets the sense that he might be walking along the lakebed.

Ezmerelda d'Avenirir: "Well," says Ezmeralda. "That was interesting."

"It's rare to see a Revenant that old. Usually they only make it a year, if their vengeance goes unfulfilled."

Kasimir Velikov: "It happens often, in Barovia. There is nowhere for the vengeance-driven soul to go."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae listens to their exchange curiously.

Rictavio: "Right. Well. Shall we carry on?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "400 years" Henry whispers solemnly

"We should" He sets of not waiting for the others face drawn in contemplation

As the party moves on into the depths of the forest, the road begins to thin, and become overgrown.

After a while, the road is just a muddy trail that meanders through the woods, descending gradually until the trees part, revealing a mist-shrouded meadow. The trail splits. One branch leads west into the valley, and the other leads south into dark woods. A wooden signpost at the intersection points west and reads, "Vineyard."

Marcus Veranius: "Well, the curse certainly hasn't put a damper on these plants." Marcus murmurs, trying not to trip on the undergrowth. Seems they're close.

Able: (ok think I'm up to speed)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "but what vineyard? could be anyone one of them" Henry says flipantly after seeing the signpost

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns at the growth. How do they normally deliver their goods? When was the last time they did?

GM: (You can make a nature or survival check to look for tracks)

Suldae Westwind:

19

NATURE (6)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: can I also make one?)

GM: (You may)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

11

NATURE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

18

SURVIVAL (5)
Marcus Veranius

GM: (Henry, make your Nature checks with advantage)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

NATURE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere: Hiere sputters awake, having been lying in some dirt nearby. "AHA! I knew you guys would show up eventually!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him and raises her eyebrows.

"What... are you doing here, exactly?"

Suldae and Marcus both spot the tracks of wagon-wheels. It seems that no one has come this way in weeks. Henry is distracted by the fact that all of the fruiting plants in the area seem to be coming up poisonous, and that several of the nearby plants have thorns -- even the pine trees.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "How did?... when did he? But he was?" Henry is bewildered to say the least Hiere Unthere: "Waiting for you, of course" he brushes off his top hat.

Marcus Veranius: "Wizards. This isn't even as bad as that fucking tower door."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blinks, and decides to accept it.

Marcus Veranius is jaded to it

Suldae Westwind: "Right. So let's go find out what's these guys' deal."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry decides to add this to his growing list of 'magic bullshit I don't care enough about to be bothered by' and moves on

"We're here to get Wine for Krezk your welcome to tag along I guess" Henry says to the top hatted fellow with the silly name before moving down the western path you're*

GM: (BRB: Family wants to give me the tour -- back in 5ish)

Hiere Unthere: "uh, i think you'll find I knew that already"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes demonstrably.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere gives him the full 'yare yare deze' head shake

Suldae Westwind: She vaguely feels like there's only supposed to be one performer in the group.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I don't care" Henry adds in a cheery sing song

Suldae Westwind: Or if there are two, the other is supposed to also be a bard.
Not that she is competitve or anything.

Hiere Unthere: (should i roll deception)

Henry of Willowsbrook: why? what are you hiding?)

Hiere Unthere: (knowing that already)

Suldae Westwind: (you didnt know did you)
(Imao bless)
(please do tho)

25

INSIGHT (5)
Suldae Westwind

Hiere Unthere: (well)

Suldae Westwind: (omg. well try to beat that)

Hiere Unthere:

17

DECEPTION (0)

Suldae Westwind: Realizing the man was just showing off actually makes Suldae feel better, and she gives him a more genuine smile.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'm not gonna roll cause Henry really doesn't care If Hiere knew or not)

Suldae Westwind: Lying to enhance your image doesn't get her hackles up as much as boasting real power, oddly enough.

Hiere Unthere: (are we LR'ed up?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: LR?)

GM: (Long Rested)

(You are not, unfortunately)

Hiere Unthere: (ok just checking)

GM: (Actually, Hiere could be, now that I think of it)

(For shits and giggles we'll say Here is long rested, since he got jumped within seconds of coming into existence)

Hiere Unthere: (Imaoo)

Marcus Veranius: (Hiere needs it more than we do; he got near-oneshotted in his intro)

Rictavio: "Well? Which way shall we go? Onward to the Vineyard, or south to Yester Hill?"

Suldae Westwind: "What exactly would we want south?"

Marcus Veranius: "To the Vineyard. I wouldn't mind a rest in safer walls."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry a good 10 meters down the path to the vineyard stops to turn around and blankly stare back at him

Marcus Veranius: "Gotta get the liquor for that."

Suldae Westwind: "Agreed," Suldae says. She wouldn't mind a rest by day.
Not looking forward to the effects of the curse.

A light drizzle begins to fall. Unpainted fences blindly follow the trail, which skirts north of a sprawling vineyard before bending south toward a stately building. The fog takes on ghostly forms as it swirls between the neatly tended rows of grapevines. Here and there, you see rope-handled half-barrels used for hauling grapes. North of the trail is a large stand of trees. A man wearing a dark cloak and cowl stands at the edge of the trees, beckoning you.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stops as soon as she sees the beckoning.

Rictavio: Following the rest of the group to the West, Van Richten says: "In answer to your questioning, I have heard rumors of a colony of druids at Yester Hill."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere points at the barrels. "Those are used for carrying the potatoes, you know"

Marcus Veranius: "Grapes. Wrong kind of vineyard."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stares at Hiere with the deadpan annoyance of a farmer's son having heard such jokes more than he ever needed to before turning to the Cloaked figure Suldae Westwind: "Are potatoes vines?" Suldae questions.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "NO"

Hiere Unthere: "...i meant grapes"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rubs the bridge of his nose

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bites her lip to keep from laughing.

Marcus Veranius approaches the cloaked individual. "Greetings! Are you with the Vineyard staff?"

As Marcus approaches, he realizes there are a total of nine figures in the forest. There are five adults and four children.

Marcus Veranius: ...probably not with the staff.

The figure which beckoned to the party is a hunched old man. The group emerges quietly from the trees and greets the party. They wear dark leather rain cloaks and cowls, and their features are oddly familiar...

Davian Martikov: "Greetings, travelers! You'd best be headed back the way you came, the way is not safe."

The gentleman bears a striking resemblance to Urwin Martikov, keeper of the Blue Water Inn.

Marcus Veranius: "That's unfortunately not an option. I've two requests to investigate the vineyard."
"...say, you wouldn't happen to have any relatives in Vallaki?"

Davian Martikov: "Aye! A good-for nothing son and his hardworking wife, along with some... extended family."

"Why, have you come from that way?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "In a way"

Marcus Veranius: "I'm afraid we may be part of the extended family. And those relatives are half the reason we're here."

"Not on their request per say, but you do what you can for family."

Davian Martikov: "Well, if you insist on being brave adventurers, we may as well do this properly. Davian Martikov, at your service. This here is Adrian, my eldest son, Elvir, my youngest, Stefania, my daughter, and Dag Tomescu, her husband." Gesturing to the children, he says: "These here are Claudiu, Martin, Viggo, and Yolanda." Claudiu is a teenager, Martin and Viggo are young, and Yolanda is an infant in her mother's arm.

The old man looks at Marcus with a glimmering eye. "You're Keepers of the Feather, then?"

Marcus Veranius: "Half members, half close associates."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gestures at Marcus and Suldae

Hiere Unthere: Hiere lifts his top hat in greeting. "Hiere Unthere, at you- i beg your pardon?"

Marcus Veranius: "...and a +1."

Davian Martikov: "I see. Well, that changes things."

Marcus Veranius gestures to Hiere

Davian Martikov: "I'll be the first to admit we need help, and if you were trusted enough to be brought into the family then I believe you've already proven yourselves useful."

"Come and sit a while, we're just having breakfast now."

Hiere Unthere: "...."

"yes"

Marcus Veranius moves to sit with the others. Doesn't look like the best place for a meal, but he had the suspicion that there may be a reason for it

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Marcus and Suldae "I'm not explaining 'that' to him" hes says noddong at Hiere nodding

Leading the way into the deeper forest, the old man hobbles to a small campsite concealed from the road. Several pieces of bacon sizzle on a cast-iron pan over the flame. The campsite has a makeshift, desperate, vagabond look to it.

Davian Martikov: "I don't mind telling you we've seen some trouble lately."

Hiere Unthere: "yes that's quite the nice chicken you've got cooking there"

Davian Martikov: "Is he alright?"

"I've got a half-brother in Vallaki who could make you a pair of spectacles, sir."

Hiere Unthere: "i may or may not have been stabbed in the back a few hours ago"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "General or specific trouble?" Henry asks

Davian Martikov: "Is that metaphorical or literal...?"

"Nevermind." Davian shakes his head and turns too Henry.

"We'd been holding out against Baba Lysaga's scarecrow attacks for several months, but with the added difficulty of the druids we were finally forced to abandon the place a few days ago."

"Wine is the lifeblood of the Barovia people. It is one of the only indulgences left to them. Without it, many Barovians will lose their last shred of hope and succumb to utter despair. Although the Vistani sometimes bring wine from distant lands, they share it infrequently, and at exorbitant prices. Thus, most of Barovia's wine comes from only one source: the Wizard of Wines Winery and Vineyard."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Did they move in?" Henry asks glancing at Rictavio asks Davian

Marcus Veranius: "Baba Lysaga? That's a new name."

Davian Martikov: "The druids did, aye. They're still there now."

"Baba Lysaga is a monster from when the world was young. It's she who has brought the real trouble upon us."

Marcus Veranius: "So even if we handled the druids now, we'd still have her to deal with." Marcus murmurs. This was a complicated situation.

"...are the druids working with the Baba, or have they taken over for their own means?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (he gone)

GM (GM): Morning all!

Tops K.: (Mornin!)

Liliet (Suldae): (hell!)

*(hello!)

Zanshukun: Heyho

Able: able able

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how do I best add the modifier from Magic Weapon to my CS hm)

Davian does not answer Suldae immediately, as he is busy plating several pieces of bacon. He presents them to you all. (Insight)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

INSIGHT (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Davian Martikov: "Here, if you're planning to head to the Vineyard you'll need to be well fed."

Liliet (Suldae):

22

INSIGHT (5)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae notes a twinge of pain on Davian's face as he hands the bacon over. She also notes the hungry stares of the other family members, who are willing to be patient and hopeful but also seem like they haven't had a square meal in a while.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae takes out the rations she still has.

If these peopel are sharing food, so can they.

Tops K.:

8

INSIGHT (5)
Marcus Veranius

Liliet (Suldae): She glances at the other party members, hoping they get her hint.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thank you but no thanks" Henry waves him of "I hate fighting with a full stomach" he seems to remember something very unpleasant

Liliet (Suldae): "We should all eat together"

She mixes the rations into one big communal dish rather than separate portions.

Hiere Unthere: "Sorry. I'm vegan" Hiere takes out his rations instead.

Marcus Veranius looks at Suldae, then back at the others. He contributes a ration to the Stone Soup

Perception rolls, pleaseMarcus Veranius:*24*PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus VeraniusHenry of Willowsbrook:*7*PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook10*PERCEPTION (3)
Henry of WillowsbrookHiere Unthere:*13*PERCEPTION (4)

Marcus spots a flicker of movement to the west of the party, between the trees. His keen eyes catch the shape of an enormous elk. It seems almost to be watching the party.

Marcus Veranius: Druids. How bothersome that they make spies of what otherwise might have been food.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae invites the whole family to eat.

(my laptop crashed out of the blue)

Davian and his family gratefully join you. Since the food has not been offered as charity, and is rather the feast of a now somewhat larger family, they can accept without taking offense. Davian's gratitude and relief are palpable.

The Elk seems to lose interest in you. It turns to the north, and begins to walk.

Marcus Veranius watches it leave, then returns his attention to the others.

Marcus Veranius: "On reconsidering the situation, I remember now that we have a spare ticket into Krezk's walls. That is, if we were to bring them the wine. But it would do us no good carrying it all the way to the Baba's lair?"

"How about we clear out the winery, and you take the wine up in our stead."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nibbles at some bacon, more to create the impression she's eating than to actually load up. She'd eaten earlier, with the children. She is taking rather more joy from watching the rest of them eat.

If only helping was always this easy.

She silently sends thanks to Corellon for putting them into position where they could

Somewhere out of sight, a bird trills out a happy little song. It is the first such song you have heard in Barovia. After a few seconds, it goes abruptly silent.

The silence is more oppressive, knowing what should be filling it.

Hiere Unthere: ".....it's just napping"

Hiere looks into the trees nervously

Davian Martikov: "I'll not deny that me and mine are in dire need of proper shelter," says Davian.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bites her lip. She hadn't noticed until now.

Well, they're going to fix this land or die trying, one or the other.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So ten odd Druids and and an indeterminate amount of living shrubbery..."

Henry murmurs to himself

Davian Martikov: "If you can rescue the wine, we can transport it for you, and pass on the tale of your heroics."

Marcus Veranius: "Saves us a trip. This is a suitable arrangement!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods

Hiere Unthere: Hiere looks at him completely seriously, "my good sir, your vines will grow like no other"

Marcus Veranius: "Of course, we'll send word when things have gotten better down here. And they WILL get better. That's what family does, right?"

Davian Martikov: "Aye," says Davian, cracking a broad, gap-toothed smile. "Aye, that's what it does, alright."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae beams at him.

She really likes this whole 'family' idea. More is always better.

Marcus Veranius puts down his plate and oils his crossbow. Druids and Shoemakers have always been at odds; this was just business as usual.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm I'm not overly familiar with vineyards but horticultur ought to be similar enough, Guess there won't be a lot of cover for our approach outside of the grapevines"

Davian Martikov: "I can't honestly think of a good way to get close to the house without being seen. It was built to be somewhat defensible."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wishes she'd gotten a night's (or a day's) rest first. Oh well.

Or...

Hiere Unthere: "I could.. help with that"

Suldae Westwind: "Actually, we've been walking all night," she says.

"How much worse would the situation be if we waited until evening?"

Davian Martikov: "You are more than welcome to rest here," says Davian. "We could keep watch over you. Evening may be a wiser time to approach."

Marcus Veranius: "Not a bad idea. I thank you for the hospitality."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows in gratitude.

Marcus Veranius: "Tell me if the animals start looking at us funny. I dated a druid's daughter once; that's the first sign of trouble."

Suldae Westwind: It looks a little odd, considering she's sitting.

She snorts at Marcus's joke. Or is it?

Davian Martikov: "We will keep careful watch. I'll wake you all at the first sign of trouble."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So we'll rest up then"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere spends the time attempting to bicep curl some fallen branches or what have you in an attempt to one day become as ripped as Suldae

(referencing last time)

The day passes quietly. It is a good day for a nap -- the sky is overcast but the sun is warm, and the smell of the earth is somehow comforting. Henry in particular feels as though the party is watched by something benevolent and caring.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is out like a light, exhausted from magic, the curse, and looking after half a dozen scared children.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Good thing he hasn't seen Henry yet or we would have to worry over Hiere doping to match his swoleness)

Suldae Westwind: (rip)

Marcus Veranius: (FORBIDDEN FITNESS: SUMMONING OF THE ABS)

Hiere Unthere: (don't do drugs kids)

Suldae's dreams are full of otherworldly harmonies more perfect than any earthly song. The tones and rhythms dance across a landscape of smooth white sands and strange, twisting, ancient trees, all beneath a star-filled sky wrapped in auroras of multicolored flame.

Marcus dreams of dragon wing-beats and the screams of a village.

Hiere dreams of a pale nobleman seated at the head of a lonely long table. Behind him sprawls a pipe organ of incredible complexity and detail. In his hand is a crystal goblet of what seems to be wine. The nobleman stares into the distance with a somber, almost lonely expression. A rage to topple nations hides behind his otherwise cold features.

Henry dreams of a forest full of bird-song, humming with insects, thick with undergrowth, and free of any fog.

Before you know it, Davian is shaking you awake one at a time.

Davian Martikov: "There's activity at the house," he says. "They're up to something."

Marcus Veranius is easy enough to wake. He didn't sleep well last night.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes to consciousness slowly, her mind trying to hold on to the melody. She still remembers some of the notes as she wakes, but they're fading fast. Still, she shakes it off and sits up, looking at Davian for more explanation.

Marcus Veranius: "Sounds like our cue to charge in while they're distracted."

Marcus Veranius moves to help Henry into his armor

Hiere Unthere: "...Do any of you know a dude with a pipe organ?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae blinks. "The temple of Corellon back at home had one, and there was a variety of dudes there, but I doubt that's..."

Marcus Veranius: "A better question is who can afford both the instrument and the space to hold it."

Suldae Westwind: She looks at Hiere. Is this another divination thing? It is, isn't it?

Marcus Veranius: "Priest or a local lord probably?"

Hiere Unthere: "Well, he didn't seem too happy about it."

Suldae Westwind: "Was he playing it?"

Hiere Unthere: "No, just kinda sitting there with a drink. Poor fellow."

Suldae Westwind: "...was the drink blood?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his shoulders while clearing his throat "Is this the time?"

Marcus Veranius: "Probably not. Let's hurry."

Suldae Westwind: "It can be if it's a prophetic dream," Suldae argues.

"...There isn't a pipe organ at the winery, is there?"

She looks at the Martikovs.

Marcus Veranius: "Davian; do you own an organ?"

Davian Martikov: "No, no pipe organ that I know of," says Davian.

Marcus Veranius: "Then it can wait."

Suldae Westwind: "Then we can worry about it later," Suldae agrees.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere jumps to his feet, putting on his top hat.

Suldae Westwind: "Write it down," she recommends to Hiere.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere scribbles it down. "lets go sort out this vine eary."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head lightly

Marcus Veranius starts approaching the house stealthily. Front door, checking for traps. It was probably best they not fly up through the window and reveal any family secrets early on.

Marcus Veranius:

22

STEALTH (9)
Marcus Veranius

24

PERCEPTION (8)
Marcus Veranius

Situated in the midst of the vineyard, the winery is an old, two-story stone building with multiple entrances, thick ivy covering every wall, and iron fencing along its roofline. The trail ends at an open loading dock on the ground floor.

A wooden stable of more recent construction is attached to the east side of the winery, next to the loading dock. West of the winery is a crumbling well and a wooden outhouse.

Hiero Unthere: Hiero examines the vines, acknowledging their poor quality. Those damn druids.

Marcus detects no traps, but he does see several curious-looking twig-bundles standing around. There are about thirty in all, scattered around the vineyard and the area near the house.

Suldae Westwind: (...are we supposed to be anywhere on the map? seeing something?)

GM: (Not at the moment, no)

Suldae Westwind: "I could ask the plants what they know," Suldae murmurs to her companions.

GM: (Henry and Suldae, roll Religion or Nature please)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

NATURE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius moves around the outskirts towards the open loading dock, hoping to see the previously-described staff druid supposedly controlling the twig things.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (~rolling low again~)

Suldae Westwind:

26

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: (To clarify, Marcus is still hiding in the tree line. Gunna see if we can play sniper)

Suldae Westwind:

12

STEALTH (3)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what treeline)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays a healthy distance away uncertain of her ability to approach without alerting everyone to their presence.

Marcus Veranius: (There's forest all around the vineyard, the forest we were hiding in)

Suldae senses powerful harmonies building to a crescendo. Some kind of ceremony is happening behind the winery. It seems to be a summoning, or an awakening, or perhaps a corrupting. She hears an ancient, benevolent soul groaning as powers wrap around it. The sound of leaves shivering in the wind seems to come from this ceremony.

Marcus does not see anyone in the upper windows of the winery, but the house is dark inside, and no lights are burning.

Henry has an uneasy feeling about the twig bundles, and an inexplicable feeling of dread about something behind the house.

Marcus Veranius: "No one's inside." Marcus whispers.

Suldae Westwind: "Marcus," Suldae calls his attention. "Something's behind the house."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Somethings wrong"

Suldae Westwind: "We should probably be there."

"As in, we shouldn't leave it unchecked-out."

Marcus Veranius: (About how far out is the house? 500 ft or so?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I agree"

Marcus Veranius: "Keep following the treeline. It does us no good to charge through those twigs if they're motion-sensitive."

Hiere Unthere: "who's going in first?"

Suldae Westwind: "We're scouting first," Suldae tells him.

"And then Henry."

"He's the one with the armor."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises his shield and smiles with grim vigor
(we still have Ezmeralda, Kasimir and the artist formerly known as von Richten with us right?)

Suldae Westwind: (i think we're waiting for the GM at this point)

(also, great question!)

(NICE)

GM: (Sorry for the delay, the map they have for the vineyard doesn't give you the lands around it for some effing reason)

(So I'm improvising, bear with me)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (aura color fine for you Marcus?)

Marcus Veranius: (GM hastily redraws the map because the module wasn't designed for Guerrilla Warfare)

Suldae Westwind: (rip)

("players are meant to be idiots")

(so north = front, right?)

Tops K.: (Front is to the east if the Barovia map is accurate)

Suldae Westwind: (is it kidn of Ike this?
(the treeline?)

Hiere Unthere: (its spreading)

Suldae Westwind: (whats the terrain like hill-wise?)

GM: (The terrain slopes gently downward toward the south-western side of the battlefield. There are rows of dead vines all around the house, which can provide a little more cover for you. I have not placed them on the map because I haven't been able to find a decent token for them, but I've taken long enough as it is.

Tops K.: (Can we start on the side of the treeline that's the back of the house?)

Suldae Westwind: (coz we've just decided to move there, stealthily)

GM: (One moment

(Need stealth checks for Hiere and Henry, too)

Hiere Unthere: (i was gonna wait behind and cast inv on the scout)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

7

STEALTH (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

STEALTH (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere:

23

STEALTH (3)

Suldae Westwind: Hiere's outfit blends with the vegetation, becuae that's the colors tha vegetation in Barovia is, for some reason

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Shiny Holy Boi remains highly visible at all times for road safety I guess)

Hiere Unthere: (hahahahahahhhh)

It seems as though Hiere has walked this path before. His feet know where to land, and he makes no sound. Suldae accidentally breaks a twig. Henry's armor reflects the waning moonlight.

All the same, the party soon reaches the southernmost side of the Winery.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Can I roll on the ground to be less shiny?

Suldae Westwind: I could polymorph you into a bug a non-shiny bug

excellent for stealth

Six druids are dancing around a large tree behind the house. Their hair is long and unkempt. They are wrapped in the skins of animals and covered in mud. They wear the heads of animals: stag and goat, wolf and bear, dire wolf and elk. Their voices lift in strange, discordant harmonies.

As they dance around the tree, it seems to wither and darken. Cracks form in the bark. Something that looks ominously like blood begins to trickle down the trunk.

Suldae and Henry both hear it: the Tree is Screaming.

Suldae Westwind: "I think we should stop that," Suldae whispers to the rest of the party. "Everyone in agreement?"

Marcus Veranius: "I no longer have reservations about attacking the druids."

Marcus Veranius draws his crossbow

Marcus Veranius: (Do any of them have that staff we were warned about?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry draws his sword without comment rolling his wrist to loosen it

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lifts the ocarina to her lips.

The Druid in the Dire Wolf headdress bears a long, gnarled, black staff. It is this which seems to be the focus of the ritual's power. He is a head taller than the rest, and his frame is packed with muscle. His skin swirls with strange, reflective tattoos.

Marcus Veranius swaps the crossbow out for the Oathbow. Kill the head chanter, end the ritual.

The wind moans through the branches of the tree. Suldae and Henry both hear a voice whisper, as though in their ear. The words are distinct although the voice is unlike any they have heard before. "Save me..."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays, calling to the native spirits of the land. She doesn't know what she can do, but she can give them power to come and help.

Conjure Animals

Conjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Unoccupied spaces that you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You summon fey spirits that take the form of beasts and appear in unoccupied spaces that you can see within range. Choose one of the following options for what appears: One beast of challenge rating 2 or lower Two beasts of challenge rating 1 or lower Four beasts of challenge rating 1/2 or lower Eight beasts of challenge rating 1/4 or lower Each beast is also considered fey, and it disappears when it drops to 0 hit points or when the spell ends. The summoned creatures are friendly to you and your companions. Roll initiative for the summoned creatures as a group, which has its own turns. They obey any verbal commands that you issue to them (no action required by you). If you don't issue any commands to them, they defend themselves from hostile creatures, but otherwise take no actions. The GM has the creatures' statistics.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using certain higher-level Spell Slots, you choose one of the summoning options above, and more creatures appear - twice as many with a 5th-level slot, three times as many with a 7th-level slot, and four times as many with a 9th-level slot.

(no roll, coz I'm literally just calling to them instead of trying to impose my will on the result)

The trees nearby the party suddenly creak and groan. They are moving as though in a powerful wind -- but no wind is blowing.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a small vile out of a belt pouch, it is filled with water

Suldae Westwind: (are we rolling initiative yet?)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Bless

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: Up to three creatures of your choice within range

Components: V, S, M (A sprinkling of holy water)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You bless up to three creatures of your choice within range. Whenever a target makes an attack roll or a saving throw before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to the attack roll or saving throw.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st.

Suldae Westwind: (well, I'm scared)

Marcus Veranius: "This land belongs to my family, and I fight to defend it. Swift death to you who have wronged me."

Marcus Veranius knocks his arrows

GM: (They don't know you're here yet, so you can act before we roll initiative.)

Suldae Westwind: (nocks, I'm pretty sure)

(not knocks lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (on Marcus, Kasimir Rictavio and Henry himself Bless)

Marcus Veranius: (KNOCK KNOCK OPEN UP THE DOOR! YOU'RE DEAD)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae invites the spirits to appear next to them

60ft range

Marcus Veranius: (Should I make my full turn's worth of attacks?)

Suldae Westwind: I think this is called a surprise round

"Swift defeat to my enemies," whispers the oath bow.

GM: (As soon as any of them take damage, or become alert to your presence, we will roll initiative. So just one attack this round.)

Marcus Veranius:

24

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

20

Piercing

Suldae hears the whispering of the trees to her left and right and knows, somehow, that she has awakened them with her call.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Light grant us your guidance" Henry murmurs sprinkling the holy water around "AARGH!" The lead druid cries out in pain as an arrow appears in his chest.

Marcus Veranius:

9

Piercing

[Sworn Enemy]

Marcus Veranius

(I should have a sworn enemy toggle)

Suldae Westwind: (heres hope that is more useful than it sounds like considering the distance lmao)

Marcus Veranius:

16

INITIATIVE (8)

Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: (is your Initiative advantage still screwed up?)

Suldae Westwind: (looks right to me)

19.15

INITIATIVE (3.15)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: (No, its working now. Rolled a 1 and an 8)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

7.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 2

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 20

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 14

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 16

INITIATIVE
Druid

Initiative: 15

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Twig Blight

Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE
Awakened Tree

Initiative: 1

Hiere Unthere:

10

INITIATIVE (3)

Marcus Veranius: (Can we have the Staff Druid marked with a color so I know who he is?)

GM: (He has been marked in red)

(Making coffee real quick, one sec)

Seeing the way the arrow came from, but unable to see any archers there, the druid next to the leader raises a hand. In her cupped palm appears a tongue of flame, which she goads into greater power before hurling towards the tree-line blindly.

GM (GM):

PRODUCE FLAME
Druid

Attack: 14 | 5

Damage: 2 fire

The fire streaks wide, missing the party by several yards.

The Lead Druid raises his staff and unleashes an unholy, inhuman cry.

Suldae Westwind: Where Are We In The Initiative

Marcus Veranius: (Lead druid is at 2?)

Suldae Westwind: im seeing Marcus but im not seing either Henry or Suldae

GM: (Hang on, need to put y'all in. Please remember to click your token when you roll initiative, it adds you automatically if you do that)

Suldae Westwind: ...yeah :x

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ezmeralda Kasimir and Ricky haven't rolled Initiative yet also yeah mb)

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Initiative: 20

INITIATIVE
Rictavio

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE
Kasimir Velikov

Initiative: 17

Choosing not to cast anything that might give her position away, Ezmeralda raises her crossbow and looses a bolt.

GM (GM):

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1

Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 19

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 15 Piercing

The bolt pierces one of the nearby druids, almost mortally wounding him.

Suldae Westwind: oh! btw i suspect thats not where hiere currently is

GM (GM):

Barkskin

Transmutation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S, M (A handful of oak bark)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You touch a willing creature. Until the spell ends, the target's skin has a rough, bark-like appearance, and the target's AC can't be less than 16, regardless of what kind of armor it is wearing.

Marcus Veranius: (Hiere is tank now)

Suldae Westwind: our formation got reversed when it was moved south...

Hiere Unthere: (is that ok)

GM: (Go ahead and rearrange yourselves :))

One of the druids raises both hands and coats himself in thick, bark-like armor.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae readies an action to move forward behind whoever of the party moves forward before her.

EoT

no wait

GM: (You can ready a movement and an action, if you want)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae readies a movement and a dash action.

She also speaks up.

"Kill them," she tells Marcus calmly.

Bardic Inspiration

NOW eot

Marcus, you have a blessing AND bardic inspiration to do this!

Druid: "Keep going! We must finish the ritual! Send in the blights, master!"

PRODUCE FLAME

Druid

Attack: 16 | 23

Damage: 1 fire

The druid who shouts this follows it up by lobbing a small fistful of fire into the forest, in the general direction of the party.

The small meteor falls towards Suldae, streaking down toward her face -- by sheer random coincidence. It never meets her. The branch of the tree to her left moves, swinging out furiously to bat the flames away. With a creaking of bark and a groaning of ancient oak, the tree grumbles its rage at the flames dancing on the end of its bough.

The leader of the druids finishes his strange shout, and suddenly, across the landscape, dozens of small bundles of twigs begin to shift. Small red eyes open, and tiny wooden monstrosities begin to charge towards the treeline, attempting to root you out.

Suldae Westwind: (thats a pun isnt it)

Marcus Veranius curses his lack of speed. Things just got trickier

Henry of Willowsbrook: (17 little twig shits by my count)

Hiere Unthere: (you sure about that)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (16)

Marcus Veranius: (In the interest of not having the init flooded, can they all move on the same round?)

Suldae Westwind: (20)

Marcus Veranius: (50)

Suldae Westwind: ..23

Kasimir's face works with dark emotions for a moment. Suddenly he darts forward, racing towards the tree and its group of druids. Raising his hands, he intones a powerful incantation, intended to break their spell mid-cast.

Suldae Westwind: fuck

Henry of Willowsbrook: (might have been a bit to zoomed in)

Marcus Veranius: (Zoom out)

Druid:

Counterspell

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 ft

Components: SDuration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

INTELLIGENCE
Kasimir Velikov

Ability: 21

Suldae Westwind: (if he's running forward, where does he move to?)

(Suldae's readied action triggers)

(rip both of us)

The old tree in the center of the ritual suddenly sighs and settles. The spell has broken, the ritual will need to be restarted from the beginning.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

(The twig blights have one initiative for all of them, which you might not thank me for in a bit)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus isn't going to let the ritual restart. He sets loose three arrows at the leader

7 + 2

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

15

Piercing

18

Piercing

21 + 4

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

8

Piercing

21

Piercing

14 + 3

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

7*Piercing18Piercing*

Suldae Westwind: dont forget the bless and the insp

GM: (Bless seems to be included, but I don't think the bardic is)

Marcus Veranius: (Will inspiration fix a 1?)

Suldae Westwind: yeah
well 9 + 1d8...

Marcus Veranius: Roll me bardic on the first hit then)

Suldae Westwind:

(5)

= 5

14

thats suldaes AC, idk about the druids :3

Marcus Veranius:

When you make a weapon
attack roll against a creature,
you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

11*Piercing2Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

GM: (Final numbers?)

Marcus Veranius: (SHIT, don't include the 11 piercing.)

(16, 25, 17)

GM: (3 hits)

(Final damage?)

Suldae Westwind: 47

GM: (Care to describe how you fucking dismantle this guy?)

Hiere Unthere: (lmao)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus aims for the druid's arm. No staff, no ritual. He lays a shot in the wrist, a shot in the shoulder. Then one more in the chest, for good measure. The farther that staff is, the better.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (isn't it 87 or do you only use one damage roll per attack?)

Marcus Veranius: (It IS 87)

Hiere Unthere: (...)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Hiere met Marcuss Oathbow also known as the nova machine)

Suldae Westwind: oh rip ill get better at counting your damage next time ^^

Marcus Veranius: Marcus makes three more shots at the nearby druid, the Oathbow's magic done for the day. Have to stop them through ordinary marksmanship.

(Action Surge)

26 + 3

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

21 + 2

Piercing

8 + 1

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

23

Piercing

24 + 1

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

3

Bonus Damage

17

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (RIP)Henry of Willowsbrook: (let the bodies hit the floor)Marcus Veranius: And now Marcus awaits the inevitable sworn of tasteless shrubbery
*swarmHenry of Willowsbrook: (43 on the second target form Marcus) (assuming 9 desn't hit)GM: First shot is a kill, 2nd shot is a miss, third shot can go to another target if you likeMarcus Veranius: (Barkskin Druid)GM: that's the one you've circledSuldae Westwind: rip didnt help them did itMarcus Veranius: (Bark is worse than its Biteskin)

Arrows rip into the druids. The one who has covered himself in bark takes it through the left eye -- the one part of his body not covered by the spell. Another druid on the other side of the tree is spun completely around by the shot which hits him.

Marcus Veranius: "Pick up the staff! I dare ya!"Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus you are a scary fucker you know that?" Henry lets out deeply impressedGM: (EoT?Marcus Veranius: [EoT]Ezmeralda: "The strength and speed of your arm is.... Impressive."Marcus Veranius: "I don't like it when someone messes with my family. It's only reasonable."Rictavio: "Well, in my heyday, I could have given you a run for your money. But good shooting, son!"Hiere Unthere: (do the twiglets stop movin)

Having already received their final command, the twig blights continue their mindless charge.

Hiere Unthere: (oh)Suldae Westwind: (rip the two of us. henry van kenobi, you're our only ho... probably...)Druid: "NIGHTMOTHER, I CALL UPON THEE! GRANT ME THE POWER!"

One of the druids suddenly vanishes in an explosion of white feathers and fur. In her place is a very pissed-off looking Owlbear.

Druid:

INITIATIVE

Owlbear

Initiative: 3

Suldae Westwind: RIP US

Marcus Veranius: (The virgin Bear Wildshape VS the Chad Owlbear)

Suldae Westwind: (no, wait, rip only kasimir)

The Owlbear barrels down upon Suldae and Kasimir, rearing to its full height. It drops with claws and beak, striking first at Kasimir, then biting at Suldae.

Druid:

BEAK (~-
LOGYCFIDMJLYLGD1CWY|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-
LOGYDIIQEVDVIHKBXOC_NPC_DMG)

Owlbear

Attack (~-
logycfidmjlylgd1cwylrepeating_npcaction_- logydiiqevdvihkboxoc_npc_dmg)

:

8 | 14

Suldae Westwind: (i doubt its got silvered claws)

Druid:

CLAWS (~-
LOGYCFIDMJLYLGD1CWY|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-
LOGYDIIQEVDVIHKBXOD_NPC_DMG)

Owlbear

Attack (~-
logycfidmjlylgd1cwylrepeating_npcaction_- logydiiqevdvihkboxod_npc_dmg)

:

8

Suldae Westwind: (move the token?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (thats one clumsy bear)

Suldae Westwind: little known fact: terrified mages can dodge very feast *fast

Suldae hears a cold laugh somewhere in her left ear. "I have other plans for you, little brat." The Owlbear's claws miss her by several feet, as though perhaps it is seeing something other. Kasimir dodges with preternatural elven speed, letting the Owlbear's beak bite only air.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands in place, frozen with fear for a second. What was that?

It did not sound friendly.

Ah.

The curse.

Of course.

Druid: "Nightmother! I too would like some power!"

Suldae Westwind: (omg)

The second druid transforms into a gigantic badger! Not nearly as intimidating as the owlbear, somehow.

Suldae Westwind: Says you. Suldae has met badgers before, and only the great surge of will is keeping her pants dry right now.

The Badger lumbers forward on all fours, then suddenly dives into the earth, tunneling ten feet underground.

Suldae Westwind: ...Well, at least they broke the ritual. That's totally worth all of them dying right here, right?

(Suldae is a lot less of an optimistic person than she normally acts like actually...)

Marcus Veranius: Druids. They always do this.

Another druid calls out to the Night Mother. "For you, my queen, I give my all! Destroy them!"

The Druid draws a silver dagger and plunges it into her own chest.

She falls, dead before she hits the ground. Her form begins to shift and twist, and darkness wells up from the earth to cover her changing shape.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae Does Not Like what is happening right now and would like to be elsewhere please and thank you.

Too bad she's committed now.

GM: (Hiere, you're here)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry curses to himself, were these servants or a charity case with all the things they have to ask for so many hand outs

Suldae Westwind: boo

Hiere Unthere: (just checking if i could counter spell a ws)

Hiere sees Marcus release and then looks to Henry. Hmmm.. what if....

He castes Haste on Henry.

*release 999 attacks

GM: Any movement you'd like to make?

Hiere Unthere: He then ducks for cover behind the friendly tree

Suldae Westwind: I love that Hiere can totally plausibly in-character act based on knowledge that technically hasn't been shared with the party yet.

Hiere Unthere: (wait am i metagaming?)

"Suldae! Kasimir! Get away from that thing!" Rictavio charges up to Suldae and slaps her on the shoulder. She feels a strange, protective energy shroud her.

Suldae Westwind: (my point is that imho no) (though technically yes, the trees haven't moved yet)

Rictavio:

Death Ward

Abjuration 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S

Duration: 8 hours

You touch a creature and grant it a measure of protection from death. The first time the target would drop to 0 hit points as a result of taking damage, the target instead drops to 1 hit point, and the spell ends. If the spell is still in effect when the target is subjected to an effect that would kill it instantaneously without dealing damage, that effect is instead negated against the target, and the spell ends.

Hiere Unthere: (the tree stopped an arrow hitting you IC iirc)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah the fire thing)

(Hiere could have noticed that, true)

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (though id recommend commenting on that in-character)

GM: Let's just say Hiere has a really good feeling about this particular tree

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at Rictavio. This is nice of him, but she is a lycanthrope and he is not!

And not Kasimir, as far as she knows!

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry strides up to the Owlbear Hieres magic giving him an unusual ease in his step

21 + 2

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)

Henry of Willowsbrook

11

Slashing

27 + 1

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)

Henry of Willowsbrook

13
Slashing

22 + 2

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12
Radiant Smite Damage

12
Slashing

9 + 4

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

10
Radiant Smite Damage

15
Slashing

(that last attack doesn't count and I forgot to turn on smite for the first two)

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 2d8

(7 + 3)

= 10

rolling 2d8

(7 + 3)

= 10

rolling 2d8

(7 + 1)

= 8

GM: (Final to-hit and damage numbers?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: 23 28 24 36 slashing 32 radiant

GM: Care to describe the epic smackdown? It's dead

Henry of Willowsbrook: With a measured calm Henry approaches the transformed Druid that's standing on its hind legs, his Longsword glowing dangerously with golden and green Light. Two carefully placed strokes dig into its front shoulders making it unable to even attempt to block the final stroke across its throat.

For a moment the great beast seems unaware that it has died.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae cheers.

Then it topples over backwards with a tremendous thud, sprawling out across the grass.

Oddly enough, it does not transform back into its human form in death.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks at the remaining Druid before raising his sword in their direction in a mock salute

EoT

The black staff rolls along the ground of its own accord. It touches against the corpse of the druid leader, and extends dozens of twigs and vines which punch into the corpse and stick.

Suldae Westwind: Was that an Owlbear taking a humanoid shape, Suldae wonders for a second.

Suldae does not need to tell the trees what to do. They came here to protect the central tree, after all.

There is a sound like hurricane-force winds through a forest. To Marcus and Ezmerelda's right, the roots of a nearby tree begin to break the soil as they lift from the ground. The tree Hiere is standing behind seems to be uprooting itself as well. The roots move with the sinuous grace of living tentacles, moving the trees slowly forward.

Both trees move smoothly over running twig blights, crushing them effortlessly to death.

Hiere Unthere: "i totally knew that would happen"

Marcus Veranius blinks in disbelief as his cover starts marching forward

The trees seem to be moving towards the dead druid still covered in strange, unnatural darkness.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "What in the nine hells!?" Ezmerelda cries out.

She does not know whether or not to attack the tree, but seeing it advance upon her companions she shouts: "Did one of you do this!?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flashes her a thumbs-up, as if to say 'all part of a plan'

"They're friendly!" she answers.

That's not technically an answer to her question.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir draws a hand-axe from her belt and chucks it at a twig blight approaching on the left.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

+1 HANDAXE (RANGED)
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 13

Damage: 4 slashing

The axe makes short work of the twiggy construct.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry has to fight to keep from laughing out 'See we got our own botanical buddies ya' mud covered shitheads'

Ezmerelda d'Avenir runs around the tree on the left, drawing her rapier. She prepares to stab the first enemy that draws within range -- she anticipates that the badger will be emerging from the soil somewhere nearby.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's cheer when Henry killed the owlbear was Bardic Inspiration

She draws her dagger and prepares to stab the first twiggy thing that comes close enough. She also once again prepares to follow whoever in the party is the first to move closer to the central tree.

EoT

The twig blights shuffle blindly towards their enemies. As they approach, they seem to mass together aggressively.

Ezmeralda finds herself facing three at once. She attacks two with her rapier before they can draw near enough to strike her.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

+1 RAPIER
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 21

Damage: 7 piercing

+1 RAPIER
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 27

Damage: 8 piercing

CLAWS
Twig Blight

Attack: 20 | 10

Damage: 4 piercing

The third claws her, ripping her gown!

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

CLAWS
Twig Blight

Attack: 14 | 15

Damage: 5 piercing

CLAWS
Twig Blight

Attack: 12 | 10

Damage: 4 piercing

Kasimir, distracted by the sudden motion of the tree, does not see the approaching blights until it is too late. Neither is within range of Suldae's dagger, but their claws glance off Kasimir's magic armor, which he wisely cast before the battle began.

Suldae Westwind: (wise of him)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

Entangle

Conjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 90 ft

Target: Any creature inside a 20-foot square from a point within range when the spell is cast

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Grasping weeds and vines sprout from the ground in a 20-foot square starting from a point within range. For the duration, these plants turn the ground in the area into difficult terrain.

A creature in the area when you cast the spell must succeed on a Strength saving throw or be restrained by the entangling plants until the spell ends. A creature restrained by the plants can use its action to make a Strength check against your spell save DC. On a success, it frees itself.

When the spell ends, the conjured plants wilt away.

The injured Druid begins to flee towards the house. As she goes, she flings a spell behind herself. (Strength saves from Kasimir, Rictavio, Suldae, and Henry)

Druid:

STRENGTH

Kasimir Velikov

Ability: 14

Henry of Willowsbrook:

25

STRENGTH SAVE (7)

Henry of Willowsbrook

Druid:

STRENGTH

Rictavio

Ability: 13

Henry of Willowsbrook: aura is plus 2 to saves for them

Suldae Westwind:

13

STRENGTH SAVE (0)
Suldae Westwind

(yeah...)

oh wait!

rolling 1d4

(3)

= 3

16 :3

Vines and snaring roots rise from the earth around you, but in Henry's aura they seem hesitant to truly bind you.

Suldae Westwind: or wiat

GM: (All four of you passed)

Henry of Willowsbrook: your not blessed

Suldae Westwind: dammit suldae wasnt blessed was she yeah

13)=

Henry of Willowsbrook: 15

Suldae Westwind: does Suldae pass with 13?

Henry of Willowsbrook: 15

Suldae Westwind: oh

15

yeah nice

Kasimir Velikov: "Oh, we'll see about that," says Kasimir, seeing the fleeing Druid. He raises a hand and unleashes three darts of magical energy!

10

Force

120 ft

Magic Missile

The darts swerve through the night, all three impacting the fleeing Druid. She falls before she can reach the door, knocked unconscious by the blows.

Kasimir Velikov seems unconcerned about the twig blights at his feet.

The dead druid at the foot of the tree is now completely covered in darkness. A large shape composed entirely of massing shadows grows ominously larger.

Marcus Veranius: (I think Marcus got skipped)

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: ...yeah

Marcus got skipped

between Kasimir andd the druid

Marcus Veranius runs forward towards the horde of Twig Blights, swapping oathbow for crossbow. He attempts to cut off their line towards the more vulnerable party members

Marcus Veranius:

21 + 4

120

Hand Crossbow (+11)
Marcus Veranius

10

Piercing

13 + 4

120

Hand Crossbow (+11)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

31 + 2

120

Hand Crossbow (+11)
Marcus Veranius

11 + 5

Piercing

GM: (Oh! Sorry sorry :O)

Suldae Westwind: NICE

GM: (Also, holy shit)

Suldae Westwind: rip twiggies

GM: (Three shots, three kills)

Marcus Veranius: (They have a lot more where that came from)

"We should be fine if it's just those twigs coming at us!"

GM: (When Kasimir knocked the one druid unconscious, the AoE entanglement faded)

Marcus Veranius stares at the emerging mass of shadows and giant druid. "...oh bollocks."

Marcus Veranius: [EoT, Hiere's up!]

Able: (refreshed lemme just read what's happened)

Hiere Unthere: "Is that mess confusing enough?"

Hiere decides it's not confusing enough.

Hiere casts Confusion on the bigboi

Confusion

Enchantment 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 90 feet

Target: Each creature in a 10-foot-radius sphere centered on a point you choose within range

Components: V, S, M (Three nut shells)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

This spell assaults and twists creatures' minds, spawning delusions and provoking uncontrolled action. Each creature in a 10-foot-radius sphere centered on a point you choose within range must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw when you cast this spell or be affected by it. An affected target can't take reactions and must roll a d10 at the start of each of its turns to determine its behavior for that turn. d10 Behavior 1 The creature uses all its movement to move in a random direction. To determine the direction, roll a d8 and assign a direction to each die face. The creature doesn't take an action this turn. 2–6 The creature doesn't move or take actions this turn. 7–8 The creature uses its action to make a melee attack against a randomly determined creature within its reach. If there is no creature within its reach, the creature does nothing this turn. 9–10 The creature can act and move normally. At the end of each of its turns, an affected target can make a Wisdom saving throw. If it succeeds, this effect ends for that target.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 5th level or higher, the radius of the Sphere increases by 5 feet for each slot above 4th.

GM (GM):

WISDOM

Ability: 17

Suldae Westwind: rip

The spell seems to slide right off the strange patch of growing darkness without effect.

Hiere Unthere: "Still not confusing enough :(("

Suldae Westwind: (bless)

GM: (Any additional movement?)

Hiere Unthere: (moved already)

Rictavio: "Excuse me," says Rictavio, gently slipping past Suldae and Kasimir with cane in hand. He draws a silvered shortsword from within the cane and lunges at the two Twig Blights north of Kasimir.

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)

Rictavio

Attack: 6

Damage: 6 piercing

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)

Rictavio

Attack: 15

Damage: 5 piercing

The first twig blight dodges his attack, but the second one is scattered by the silver blade.

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: "Go!" Suldae urges her paladin friend.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

22 + 4

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12
Slashing

Walking forward Henry absentmindedly swipes at the twig thing

(I can also hurle a Javelin at the shadow thing right?)

His blade blows it to splinters.

GM: (Yes)

(Also, if you wind up in clusters of small enemies, overflow damage will be distributed to all nearby enemies if you're using a slashing weapon)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17 + 4

30/120

Javelin (30 ft) (+8)

Henry of Willowsbrook

13
Piercing

Henry then hurls a Javelin at the gathering of shadows (he drops and then picks up his sword to do this)

GM (GM): 327

320

Suldae Westwind: 0.0

The javelin seems to vanish into the shadows. There is no discernible reaction.

He has the strangest feeling that he has hit something, but it seems to have little effect.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "hm" he hadn't expected much else so he isn't surprised he readies himself to strike at any enemy that comes into is range EoT

Suldae Westwind: doesnt move any further forward?)=

The black staff has now firmly rooted itself in the corpse of its former bearer, and is now beginning to grow. It pulses with red light in waves, and the corpse seems to shrink and desiccate, as though the staff is drinking its liquefied innards.

The two huge awakened trees lumber towards the forming mass of darkness with a strange urgency.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Where are they off to in such a hurry?" Ezmeralda asks, before loosing several crossbow shots at the advancing twig blights.

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 17
You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 14 Piercing

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 25
You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 12 + 1 Piercing

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 23
You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 13 Piercing

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae followed the trees, as her reaaadied action was basically to move foward while hiding behind SOMEONE)

Suldae abandons caution and runs forward, coming next to the tree.

She'd been keeping an eye on the staff thing.

A low hanging branch seems to invite her to climb.

Suldae Westwind: She takes the invitation and gets up in the tree.

(does that take an action?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "the big suicide fueled shadow-thing appears to be their priority" Henry calls over to Ezmerelda "Strange right" He isn't even sure if he is snarking or not

She feels the comforting presence of the old oak, and it makes her climb easy. (Does not take an action)

Suldae Westwind: After sliding up into the branches, Suldae takes out her ocarina, breathes deeply and begins to play, attempting to commune with the nature around her.

Speak with Plants

Transmutation 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self (30-foot radius)

Target: Plants within 30 feet of you

Components: V, S

Duration: 10 minutes

You imbue plants within 30 feet of you with limited sentience and animation, giving them the ability to communicate with you and follow your simple commands. You can question plants about events in the spell's area within the past day, gaining information about creatures that have passed, weather, and other circumstances. You can also turn difficult terrain caused by plant growth (such as thickets and undergrowth) into ordinary terrain that lasts for the duration. Or you can turn ordinary terrain where plants are present into difficult terrain that lasts for the duration, causing vines and branches to hinder pursuers, for example. Plants might be able to perform other tasks on your behalf, at the GM's discretion. The spell doesn't enable plants to uproot themselves and move about, but they can freely move branches, tendrils, and stalks. If a plant creature is in the area, you can communicate with it as if you shared a common language, but you gain no magical ability to influence it. This spell can cause the plants created by the entangle spell to release a restrained creature.

She does not understand enough about what is going on. The spell is intended to lull herself, too, into a kind of trance, to give her a better understanding of what is happening.

As her music wafts over the battlefield, she comes to realize that Silvanus and Correllon are weak in the land of Strahd. Strahd's power moves in the Twig Blights, and in the strange black staff. His power is not present in the growing mass of darkness, but his will permits it to be there. The old oak seems to whisper with its branches and leaves, and Suldae hears hissed warnings about the Night Mother. The Old Oak is telling her to flee for her life, and be far from the shadow when it completes its growth. The name Nightwalker springs to her mind, though she knows she has not heard it before. It seems likely that it may be some scion of the Night Mother.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae thanks the tree for the warning, but stays where she is. where she has at least a chance to help. Her music wafts over the battlefield, carrying the insights she's found.

Bardic inspiration to... uhhh... Henry hasn't used his yet has he

Kasimir probably

GM: (Any additional actions/movement?)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Ezmerelda d'Avenirir:

CLAWS
Twig Blight

Attack: 11 | 19

Damage: 5 piercing

CLAWS
Twig Blight

Attack: 14 | 17

Damage: 3 piercing

Rictavio: "Aargh!" Rictavio cries out, as one of the twig blights manages to scratch him.

15

The unconscious druid stirs fitfully.

Suldae Westwind: did the badger druid flee the fuck away from this shit?

if so i approve of their life choices fireball kicks ass but has proportionate drawbacks its a spell of very narrow usefulness

Kasimir Velikov:

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

27
Fire

150 ft

Fireball

Suldae Westwind: WELL THEN

20ft RADIUS :D

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a second to think at the scream of pain "Why havent they stopped yet...Suldae! Can you get the Staff ? You might be able to use it to Stop the Twiggy Bastards" Suldae Westwind: "Got it!" Suldae calls in answer.

Kasimir flings a small red star which zips across the distance and erupts into a huge, spherical blast of perfect blue flame. It blasts over five twig blights, incinerating them instantly.

Suldae Westwind: is there grass in the area?

this actually matters for my spell too

GM: (Yes, there is grass in the area)

Henry of Willowsbrook: its a vineyard so...probably?

yeah

Suldae Westwind: (but its not dry?)

GM: (Not dry, no)

Suldae Westwind: (also, are there vines?)

(in my 30ft circle specifically :3)

Hiere Unthere: (tis a vineyard iirc)

GM: (If you would like there to be vines in your 30 ft circle, there can be -- since I didn't mark them on the map)

Marcus Veranius: (Plants are dead without the vineyard seeds anyways)

GM: (But yes, the vines are mostly dead and completely barren)

Suldae Westwind: (how does that 'mostly' work with the animation spell?)

GM: (They can still do the difficult terrain trick)

(You could also have a vine reach out and try to grasp the staff)

Suldae Westwind: (thats exactly what im planning on doing next turn yep)

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus, satisfied with the twig horde being a distance away, returns to the more critical problem. Henry chucked a javelin in that shadow thing's face and it didn't stop being ominous.

He draws the oathbow again and chants a different incantation, hoping magic-backed arrows may stick better.

90 feet

Hunter's Mark
Marcus Veranius

(Oh hey, thats not a spell block)

Hunter's Mark*Divination 1Casting Time: 1 bonus actionRange: 90 feetTarget: A creature that you can see within rangeComponents: VDuration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You choose a creature you can see within range and mystically mark it as your quarry. Until the spell ends, you deal an extra 1d6 damage to the target whenever you hit it with a weapon attack, and you have advantage on any Wisdom (Perception) or Wisdom (Survival) check you make to find it. If the target drops to 0 hit points before this spell ends, you can use a bonus action on a subsequent turn of yours to mark a new creature.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd or 4th level, you can maintain your Concentration on the spell for up to 8 hours. When you use a spell slot of 5th level or higher, you can maintain your concentration on the spell for up to 24 hours.

13 + 4

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

2*Bonus Damage20PiercingMarcus Veranius:*17 + 2

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

3*Bonus Damage22Piercing*

(Targeting Shadow Thingy)

Marcus's twin shots seem to make an impact. A psychic roar of pain washes over the landscape.

Marcus Veranius: ...well! That's not good!

[EoT]

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

STRENGTH
Giant Badger

Ability: 4

STRENGTH
Giant Badger

Ability: 7

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels the roar close by, yet the trance she's maintaining while playing keeps her mind at a distance from it.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus!" Ezmeralda cries out, as an enormous badger bursts from the ground at her feet, trying to grapple her.

It cannot seem to get a good grip, and retreats beneath the ground once more. j

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda hops around on one foot.

"Got my bloody leg!" She shouts. She does appear to have only one leg, now.

Rictavio: "Ezme!?" Rictavio shouts.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Relax, old man! It's just wooden."

The dark mass of shadows continues to grow. A pair of inordinately large horns seems to be rising from within the darkness.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

(Unfortunately this will have to be the last round for today, my folks are giving me the stink eye)

Hiere Unthere: (can i make a check to see if it can be counterspelled before death rains down upon us?)

Marcus Veranius: (I kindof need to make dinner :D)

GM: (You can! Arcana)

Hiere Unthere:

9

ARCANA (8)

(fuck)

GM: Hiere is absolutely convinced that it can be dispelled.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (...welcome to the low roller club)

GM: (Or counter spelled)

Hiere Unthere: "BEGONE.. BEAST!"

Hiere surges with energy in an attempt to shut down whatever's forming

Suldae Westwind: (fun fact! i am physically incapable of rolling that low) (because my bonus is +9 i cant get lower than 10 on arcana and religion)

Hiere Unthere: (bruh)

The power of an angered god breaks his spell even as he casts it. His power means nothing in comparison to this.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (my arcana is at -1)

Suldae Westwind: (tbf you're only 1 point below)
(your bonus is +8)

Hiere Unthere: (did that only take a reaction?)

GM: (Yes)

Hiere Unthere: Hieres feels his control over the weave jolt away.

"Oh no"

Hiere does what he tries to do when faced with something out of his control.

Burn it.

"YOU WILL PAY. FATE DEMANDS IT."

Hiere casts Fireball at the beast, setting its save roll die to 7

GM: Oh boy

(Mark a 20 foot radius sphere for me please)

(Place it how you want it)

With a 7 on the die, the creature rolls a 11

Suldae Westwind: my recommendation do a wis roll

Hiere Unthere: (avoiding big tree, but burning the awakened one if necessary {not sure how to circle})

Suldae Westwind: of DC you think it would take for Hieres to aim to the side of the creature thats how i do i

Hiere Unthere: (not cantered on it though lol)

Suldae Westwind: oh ok hieres passed the roll automatically i guess XD

GM: Roll damage please

Hiere Unthere:

DC 16Dexterity Save*34
Fire

150 feet

Fireball

GM: (The Creature takes 17 points of fire damage. The awakened tree is lightly singed, taking the same amount of damage due to being at the edge of the radius.)

The flames erupt from a point several yards to the left of the shadow, and the blast encompasses it entirely. The shadow does not burn, and the flames around it seem to break and vanish as though singing stone. The awakened tree screams as several of its branches catch fire, continuing to burn. (It will take 1d6 fire damage every round as it burns, and is vulnerable to fire damage.)

GM: (EoT?)Hiere Unthere: EoTSuldae Westwind: its an alive tree

ailve trees dont burn well

its not *dryHenry of Willowsbrook: depends on the treeEzmerelda d'Avenir:

Sanctuary

*Abjuration 1Casting Time: 1 bonus actionRange: 30 ftComponents: V, S, M (A small silver mirror)Duration: 1 minute

You ward a creature within range against attack. Until the spell ends, any creature who targets the warded creature with an attack or a harmful spell must first make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, the creature must choose a new target or lose the attack or spell. This spell doesn't protect the warded creature from area effects, such as the explosion of a fireball.

If the warded creature makes an attack or casts a spell that affects an enemy creature, this spell ends.

Rictavio runs towards Ezmeralda, casting Sanctuary upon her.

GM: Henry, you're up)

I may have to drop out, family serving lunch -- but please finish up your move and I'll do results when I get back if I don't catch it in time)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry attacks the shadows with all his might

Hiere Unthere: (the lack of open paren is hurting me)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15

Radiant Smite Damage

13

Slashing

19 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13

Radiant Smite Damage

12

Slashing

(secon doesnt count)

Hiere Unthere: (still hasted up)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12 + 4

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7

Radiant Smite Damage

13

Slashing

(not because of that I'm out of smite juice)

19 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14

Slashing

Action Surge

15 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14

Slashing

10 + 1

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14
Slashing

Henry of Willowsbrook: Inspiration

Suldae Westwind: roll a d8

for bardic insp

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d8

(4)

= 4

16 16 22 18 15 to hit

22 radiant +68 slashing

54 slashing if 15 doesn't hit

Henry's blade crashes into the darkness, striking something that feels ominously like flesh and bone. A pulse of light flares through the shadows as his holy smite impacts!

A psychic roar blasts forth from the gathering darkness, wailing out over the landscape.

Able: able able

GM: EoT Henry?

Zanshukun: yeah

Liliet (Suldae): welp, that things turn, also known as Hell

Tops K.: (It moves on Init 14)

(2 is the Leader, who is dead[?])

Suldae Westwind: ah

oh the staff

its probably the staff's init

Henry of Willowsbrook: staff hs been slurping the leaders body I think

The Black Staff grows, unfurling wild branches with a storm of creaking and cracking. The black tree it has become splits open a ragged mouth of jagged wood -- with a screaming sound like a foretaste of the nine hells. Two eyes open, red and blazing. The creature looks much like the twig blights, but it is far, far larger.

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Tree Blight

Initiative: 7

One of Suldae's awakened trees rushes straight towards her, extending gnarled branches as though trying to snatch her from the branches of the unmoving oak.

GM (GM):

STRENGTH
Awakened Tree

Ability: 19 | 15

GM: (You may attempt to avoid being grappled by the friendly tree with an athletics or acrobatics check)

(Or you can allow it to grab you)

Suldae Westwind: (one sec)

Suldae allows the tree to grab her

Suldae feels a sense of relief flood from the tree as it grabs her. Putting on an extra burst of energy, it attempts to drag her away from the center of the conflict.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "OK, so can I shoot the black tree?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae settles in the tree's branches, still playng, and still in the trance.

Marcus Veranius: "Unless you got something that'll pierce that blanket of shadows, it's a good plan!"
Marcus chimes out

Henry of Willowsbrook: "YES!"

Hiere Unthere: "PLEASE"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is playing, and Ezmerelda probably cannot see her nod from the branches.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus, do you mind?" Ezmeralda hops to his side and leans on his shoulder with heavy crossbow in hand, since she's currently monopedal.

She smells of incense and essential oils, with a spike of something that smells like gunpowder.

Taking careful aim (with the aid of Marcus's shoulder), Ezmeralda fires upon the black tree.

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 18 | 11

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 8 Piercing

Marcus Veranius is leaned on. This does distract from his plan of 'run into the treeblights to distract them', but he'll manage

The crossbow bolt sticks in the tree, which bleeds hot red blood.

A moment later, the impact side suddenly blazes with white fire! 9

The Alchemist's Fire Crossbow Bolt seems to be somewhat effective! The tree will have a hard time putting that out.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ha!"

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae proceeds with her previous plan of asking the nearby vines to grab the black tree/staff, carefully to not light themselves on fire.

With a crackling sound, vines leap from their supports and whip out to ensnare the Tree Blight, tangling its roots and branches. They seem to be reaching into the braided trunk of the staff/tree, as though there may still be a staff in there to grab.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae plays, pumping all the support she can into their efforts.

The Tree Blight is restrained! It will have to attempt to break free.

At the moment, it seems more concerned with the flames creeping across its exterior.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is playing a song of defiance, rejuvenation and standing strong in the face of terror. Bardic Inspiration to Henry

GM: (The Tree Blight is restrained, and will have to try a save at the beginning of its next turn)

Suldae Westwind: She feels a little lightheaded as she plays this, as though this is the last idea she has for a while.

(my last bardic insp)

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

(Suldae moves further inside the tree, freeing up its exterior branches for other actions)

The Twig Blights suddenly move with renewed energy, surging towards the flaming staff/tree.

They seem to be intent on helping it, somehow...

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir looks at the looming darkness and the twisted tree, and makes a decision.

Suldae Westwind: (there, the three leaves mark concentration now)

Kasimir Velikov: "Henry! Duck behind your shield!"

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

6

Higher Level Cast

25
Fire

150 ft

FireballHenry of Willowsbrook: (so I roll Dex?)GM: (With advantage, due to advance notice)Kasimir Velikov:

DEXTERITY

*Tree Blight*Ability: 12*Suldae Westwind: OUCH THAT POOR TREEHenry of Willowsbrook:*3*14*DEXTERITY SAVE (2)

Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius: (One more space left and down hits an additional blight while not hitting henry)Kasimir Velikov:

DEXTERITY

Ability: 7*Henry of Willowsbrook: (Did I pass?)As Henry crouches behind his shield, a tremendous blast of blue flames erupts between the black tree and the growing Nightwalker.Suldae Westwind: As the tree is currently animated and pseudo-sentient thanks to Suldae's spell does it get anything out of thatHenry of Willowsbrook: "Light be kind that was close" Henry curses to himself at the sudden flash of heatThe Black Tree screams. The damage is severe, most of its branches are destroyed and it is left a singed and burning wreck of itself -- still clinging to life, but not by much. Where the flames intersect with the shadow creature, they seem sucked in by the darkness, as though they are falling into a void. Kasimir is familiar enough with the feel of Suldae's pull upon the weave that he is able to break his flames as they enter the area of her control, leaving the ancient oak untouched.Three approaching twig blights are blasted to ashes by the explosion.GM: (Marcus, you're up!)Marcus Veranius: "Esmeralda; you wouldn't happen to have a couple more of those fire arrows?"Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Pff. Does an owlbear crap in the woods?"

"Here," she says, and hands him three.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus is a city boy he wouldn't know"

Marcus Veranius: "Thank you kindly." Marcus fires two at the shadow monster, aiming where he thinks the head is.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae slumps in relaxation somewhat when she sees the oak is unharmed, still playing.

The bolts look a little strange -- the tip is heavy black glass, and feels as though it might contain liquid. (Alchemist's Fire Bolts deal ordinary bolt damage, and 2d12 fire.)

Marcus Veranius: (Wait, are these bolts or arrows?)

GM: (She was using a heavy crossbow)

Marcus Veranius: (Shit. We usin a bow.)

GM: (Unfortunately, the bow can't fire bolts)

Marcus Veranius: (I asked about arrows ;-;)

Marcus readies to fire the... bolts?

GM: (You asked about more of those fire arrows -- she interpreted)

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (didn't you swap to crossbow after blasting the leader druid?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, you silly. You can't shoot these with that!"

"Here, use mine. It's excellently balanced."

(Ezmeralda hands off her +1 Heavy Crossbow)

Marcus Veranius hands her the Hand Crossbow

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: The crossbow is gorgeously made, all dark wood inlaid with mother of pearl.

Marcus Veranius: "...yer the best."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Don't I know it. You can thank me later, and properly."

Rictavio: "WHEN YOU'RE DONE FLIRTING!?!?"

"MAYBE SHOOT?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh come on don't you enjoy a show with your side of lethal danger"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You wouldn't know a woman was flirting with you if she nailed a notice of intent to flirt to your forehead!"

Marcus Veranius: (I was looking up the damage dice for heavy crossbow ;-;)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (1d10)

GM: (I figured, Rictavio's just being Rictavio -- no pressure)

(He may or may not be a little envious)

Marcus Veranius:

18 + 4

FUCK

>Sharpshooter (Heavy

Crossbow+1 (+7)
Marcus Veranius8

Bonus Damage/Fire

25

Piercing

16 + 2

FUCK

>Sharpshooter (Heavy

Crossbow+1 (+7)
Marcus Veranius15

Bonus Damage/Fire

21

Piercing

Hiere Unthere: "Women flirt with that guy?"Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "When he's wearing that stupid hat they do!"Rictavio: "I take exception to that! I will have you know I have been quite successful with the fairer sex."Henry of Willowsbrook: (why is it labled FUCK?)Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You know how we know you haven't? You call them 'the fairer sex!'"Marcus Veranius, as the person being flirted on while wearing the hat, makes no commentEzmerelda d'Avenir: "It looks better on you anyway," says Ezmeralda more quietly, flicking the hat with one finger. "And you're not hiding beneath its enchantment."Marcus Veranius: (5 magical piercing, 18 fire if its relevant)

(Dunno why it merges them together)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Suldae take notes this definatly goes into the retelling"Marcus Veranius: "...not currently anyways."Marcus Veranius takes his shot*GM: (Both those shots hit -- what's the final piercing and fire?)(Wait I can do math 46 piercing, 23 fire)Suldae Westwind: Suldae is too busy playing to react but she definitely is Noting.

(also i love the 'fuck')

Marcus Veranius: (51 piercing, 18 fire)

(It merged the Hunter's Mark piercing with the alchemist fire in calculation)

Both bolts vanish into the darkness. There is a sound like a deep, otherworldly moan. It reverberates through the earth.

Marcus Veranius: "That's either good or bad!"

Marcus Veranius tries to slump a bit farther away from the shadow thing, carrying Esmeralda along

Marcus Veranius: (Half move speed?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir hops along with him. (No impact to movement speed, just take her with you)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

With an explosion of earth, the giant badger emerges, tackling Rictavio!

Rictavio: "BLAST and DAMN!"

STRENGTH
Giant Badger

Ability: 6 | 17

Marcus Veranius: "Bollocks, he was right under us still!"

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY
Rictavio

Ability: 15

It's over too quickly to see exactly what happens. The Badger bursts forth from the earth, snatches the old man, and dives once more into the ground.

The Darkness continues to grow...

Marcus Veranius: "Rictavio!"

Hiere Unthere: (oboi)

GM: (Henry, make a DC 21 Con save)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

24

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere: (legend)

GM: (11 Necrotic damage avoided!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (don't mind me just sweating bullets)

The enormous shadow creature rises to its full and towering height. It is taller than all the trees of the forest. The air around the towering figure is wrapped in black mists and glittering darkness. All the grass in the immediate area dies. Suldae feels the old oak groan as darkness creeps up its limbs.

Rictavio:

CONSTITUTION
Awakened Tree

Ability: 15 | 14

Marcus Veranius: (Can we get an aura marker around the DC21 Danger Zone if its visible?)

GM: 15

The nearest awakened tree groans and creaks as the darkness wraps around its trunk and limbs.

GM: (The Nightwalker will not act this round, it's just standing up this turn. Hiere, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Aura of Protection is a plus 2 not that it would have mattered right now)

GM: (Henry would feel that his aura did help the tree, but not enough to save it)

Hiere Unthere: The past repeats itself, and Hiere drops another fireball on Nightwalker.

"WHY WON'T IT DIE"

DC 16

Dexterity Save

25
Fire

150 feet

Fireball

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY

Ability: 10

The blast of flames seems to have little effect on the creature. The fire is swept into its form, like flame dying in the void of space.

A twig blight nearby is blasted to ashes, however.

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY
Tree Blight

Ability: 6

The fireball sweeps over the Black Tree, singeing it horribly. It will not survive much longer, at this rate.

GM: (EoT? Any movement you'd like to make?)

Hiere Unthere: (will move a bit away, then EoT)

GM (GM):

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)
Rictavio

Attack: 23

Damage: 3 piercing

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)
Rictavio

Attack: 15

Damage: 5 piercing

You hear the muffled roar of pain of a large, burrowing creature.

GM (GM): Henry, you're up :)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry despite the impending danger turns inward briefly to use his divine senses

DIVINE SENSE

Class: Paladin 1

As an action, until the end of your next turn, you know the location of any celestial, fiend, or undead within 60 feet of you that is not behind total cover. You know the type of any being whose presence you sense, but not its identity. Within the same radius, you also detect the presence of any place or object that has been consecrated or desecrated. You can use this feature a number of times equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier. When you finish a long rest, you regain all expended uses.

Henry feels the chill of undeath from the Nightwalker.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (welp there goes turn the Faithless) with this revelation in mind Henry attacks the being

26 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15
Slashing

17 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12
Slashing

16 + 3

Longsword (5 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8
Slashing

Marcus Veranius: (UNDEATH YOU SAY?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (last one doesn't count)

Marcus Veranius: (+8 damage from prior rounds Favored Enemy)

Liliet (Suldae): (DM, did Henry feel any consecrated/desecrated objects? and anything from the black thing?)

GM (GM): 17.5

Liliet (Suldae): (that was the staff?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (27/2 isn't 17.5 btw)
(i rolled an attack to much)

Henry feels a cruel and twisted root of power, an artifact he senses has come from the desecration of a piece of holy wood. He has the strangest feeling that this piece of wood was once a stake driven through the heart of a vampire.

GM: (For owning up to it even though it went in your favor, take inspiration)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what does that do again?)

GM: (A free re-roll, essentially)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (sweet)

Marcus Veranius: (Roll a single d20 of your choice with advantage)
(I try to save mine for social situations or when I've fucked up hard)

GM: (Always good to have in your back pocket)

Henry's blade cleaves into the shadow creature, but its flesh seems somehow amorphous, half mist. The blade does little damage.

Despite the silver on its edge.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry despite the obvious risk runs past the creature to try get it away from the tree

As Henry rushes past the creature, it takes an almost lazy swing in his general direction.

GM (GM):

ENERVATING FOCUS (~-
LOG_JSTPN5A8KB3FNVU|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-
LOG_ZK9NBOSV4RB-HXCC_NPC_DMG)

Attack (~-

log_jstpn5a8kb3fnvu|repeating_npcaction_-
logzk9nbosv4rb-hxcc_npc_dmg)

:

19

The target must succeed on a DC 21 Constitution saving throw or its hit point maximum is reduced by an amount equal to the necrotic damage taken. This reduction lasts until the target finishes a long rest.

Damage: 34 Necrotic

Henry of Willowsbrook: doesn't hit me

The claws hand of shadow misses, deflected by the shimmering aura of holiness around Henry. In the black mists surrounding the creature, Henry glows with a faint, fire-fly green light.

*clawed

Henry of Willowsbrook: "YE MISSED YE GIANT GHASTLY FUCKHEAD" Henry yeers at it because he why not try and provoke the undead abomination abit while he's at it

EoT

GM (GM):

STRENGTH
Tree Blight

Ability: 12

The Black Tree tries to free itself from the entangling vines, but to no avail.

In desperation, it screams. The piercing sound can be heard for miles.

The Twig Blights move with renewed vigor, rushing towards their master. (Bonus Action: Move Twig Blights)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae's music punctuates Henry's yelling, making it sound more mystical and important.

9

PERFORMANCE (8)
Suldae Westwind

It sounds silly instead.

rip)=

Henry of Willowsbrook: (does it take the damage from burning now or ?)

The Black Tree, still burning, takes 7 Fire damage.

GM: (Damage will be doubled due to its vulnerability to fire)

As the Black Tree burns to death, its twig blights reach it just in time. Three of them leap onto it, merging themselves with its form and rebuilding what has been destroyed. (The Tree gains 12 points of HP)

The Awakened Tree bearing Suldae flees to the southeast, trying to bring her away from danger.

It tramples three twig blights that happen to be in its path, and ends up next to Kasimir, who looks up with a great deal more respect than before.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "This is getting complicated..."

Magic Circle

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: 10 ft

Components: V, S, M (Holy water or powdered silver and iron worth at least 100 gp, which the spell consumes)

Duration: 1 hour

You create a 10-foot-radius, 20-foot-tall cylinder of magical energy centered on a point on the ground that you can see within range. Glowing runes appear wherever the cylinder intersects with the floor or other surface.

Choose one or more of the following types of creatures - celestials, elementals, fey, fiends, or undead. The circle affects a creature of the chosen type in the following ways.

- The creature can't willingly enter the cylinder by nonmagical means. If the creature tries to use teleportation or interplanar travel to do so, it must first succeed on a Charisma saving throw.
- The creature has disadvantage on attack rolls against targets within the cylinder.
- Targets within the cylinder can't be charmed, frightened, or possessed by the creature.

When you cast this spell, you can elect to cause its magic to operate in the reverse direction, preventing a creature of the specified type from leaving the cylinder and protecting targets outside it.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the duration increases by 1 hour for each slot level above 3rd.

Liliet (Suldae): (Kasimir has Bardic Insp, just in case)

GM: (Ah, feck. That takes a minute to cast)

Something else instead... One moment

Marcus Veranius: "Take back the Crossbow; I'll make due with what I got."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir steadies herself on Marcus's shoulder. "Don't... Fucking... Move." She points a finger gun at the black creature and intones something in Vistani.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

29

Lightning

Self

Lightning Bolt

DEXTERITY

Ability: 24

DEXTERITY

Tree Blight

Ability: 10

From her fingertip springs a crackling line of white lightning, which rips through the Shadow creature's heart without much visible effect, and continues on to smite the Black Tree, which explodes in a tremendous blast of splinters and flaming clods of ash. There is a final, rending scream, which echoes throughout the forest. All of the Twig Blights immediately die, collapsing into piles of twigs.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: "That works!" Marcus's eyes are wide in awe

Ezmerelda d'Avenir blows the tip of her finger to cool it, and grins at Marcus.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae realizes that the tree might just continue like that and hops down from the branches, then nods to it gratefully.

That does not give her much of a better idea for what to do now, though, so she shifts from playing to whispering a song as a prayer, hands on her holy symbol again.

17

RELIGION (9)
Suldae Westwind

She prays to Corellon for guidance and insight on how she could help.

Suldae feels a power stirring within herself...

GM: (Suldae, go ahead and level up.)

Liliet (Suldae): OOOO

ty

GM: (The rest of the party will be joining you shortly, but this is a good RP opportunity to grow Suldae in the heat of the moment)

Liliet (Suldae): (oh fuck im going to be messing w/ homebrew... SHIT)

(i think thats my full turn action lmao)

Marcus Veranius: (You missed a druid)

GM: (Works for me -- needs some time to process new feeling)

Liliet (Suldae): (yep)

Marcus Veranius: (GM needs time to process his kill bar)

GM: (Well, since I can't stack up your corpses, gotta stack some corpses)

(What else is a GM for?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (murder tallies are a lot of work y'all)

Hiere Unthere: (lmao)

Marcus Veranius: (60 Blights, 2 druids, 1 Owlbear, 1 Greater Tree)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (did Hiere just move under the owlbear token?)

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir raises his hands, eyes blazing with arcane power, and chants something.

The spell ripples over the landscape, wrapping around the black creature.

WISDOM

Ability: 17

The spell fails, he feels it in his bones.

"This creature's mind is no great feat to overcome!" he shouts. "It has resisted me by mere chance!"

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus aims more arrows at the creature. On a scale of 1 to NOT GOOD, this is about a NO

*Bolts

22 + 3

FUCK

>Sharpshooter (Heavy

Crossbow+1) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

4*Favored Enemy Bonus/Bonus Damage21Piercing9 + 3FUCK>Sharpshooter (Heavy*Crossbow+1) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

3*Favored Enemy Bonus/Bonus Damage27Piercing*

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

7*Favored Enemy Bonus/Bonus Damage5Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(Ignore that 7 for bonus damage)

GM: (Final numbers?)Marcus Veranius: 25 / 17 to hitGM: (Two hits)Marcus Veranius:*7Favored Enemy Bonus/Bonus Damage14FireAlchemist Fire Bolt

Marcus Veranius

(Ignore the 7 again, fak)

55 Magic Piercing, 14 Alchemist Fire

The black creature moans again in sudden pain. A tiny splash of flames appears where the well-aimed crossbow bolt struck, but the flames die quickly. The Nightwalker reaches slowly up and plucks the bolts from itself, massive glowing eyes turning towards the one who has brought it pain.

GM: (It is now down to double digits)

(Any movement or additional things? Or EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: "Forgive me for this."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "For what?"

Marcus Veranius casts Zephyr Strike as a Bonus Action. Once during the duration of the spell, his movement speed increases by 30

Marcus Veranius puts the crossbow in Ezmerelda's arms then books it to play distraction for the beast

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "WHAT? YOU WANT IT TO BLAME ME!?"

Marcus Veranius: "I WANT IT TO FOLLOW ME!"

The creature's eyes track Marcus with fixated intensity.

Liliet (Suldae):

ARMOR PROFICIENCY

ARMOR PROFICIENCY

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "OH! I GUESS THAT'S KIND OF NOBLE!" Shouts Ezmeralda, hopping on one leg.

Marcus Veranius flips the creature off

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Liliet (Suldae): oops

GM (GM):

MULTIATTACK

Giant Badger

The badger makes two attacks: one with its bite and one with its claws.

BITE (~-

LOGzETwZANOyHQRMMr_|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-

LOGzF4ZZdWVV99SGvFA_NPC_DMG)

Giant Badger

Attack (~-

logzetwzanoyhqrmr_|repeating_npcaction_- logzf4zzdvv99sgvfa_npc_dmg)

:

11 | 4

CLAWS (~-

LOGzETwZANOyHQRMMr_|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-

LOGzF4ZZdWVV99SGvFB_NPC_DMG)

Giant Badger

Attack (~- logzetwzanoyhqrmr_/repeating_npcaction_- logzf4zzdwwv99sgvfb_npc_dmg) : 12 18
Damage: 7 slashing

An old man's cry of pain can be heard, muffled by the earth.

The black creature opens wide its mouth and moans. It points a single long, blade-like finger of darkness towards Marcus.

GM (GM):

FINGER OF DOOM (RECHARGE 6) <hr/> The nightwalker points at one creature it can see within 300 feet of it. The target must succeed on a DC 21 Wisdom saving throw or take 26 (4d12) necrotic damage and become frightened until the end of the nightwalker's next turn. While frightened in this way, the creature is also paralyzed. If a target's saving throw is successful, the target is immune to the nightwalker's Finger of Doom for the next 24 hours.

17

Then the tremendous creature glides 40 feet straight towards Marcus, trailing its aura of shadow with it.

GM (GM):

CONSTITUTION Ezmerelda d'Avenir <hr/> Ability: 17 21
--

Marcus Veranius: (Umm)

(Can I have the 18 Divination Thingy)

Ezmeralda manages to hobble out of the way of the shadows before it passes through her area. She's cursing up a storm.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere points his finger out towards Marcus too. "NO, YOU WILL NOT DIE"

(Save die replaced with an 18)

Marcus Veranius: And as Hiere foresaw, Marcus did not in fact die. Between the blessing and foreseen truth, there was no way Marcus could fail.

rolling 1d4 Bless

(3)

= 3

Wisdom 23

Marcus feels the power of the shadow wash over him, and an alien fear plumes through his chest. Then there is another plume -- a feathered whirlwind. The Raven Spirit within him is not afraid of a little darkness. (Marcus is now immune to the effects of the Finger of Doom for 24 hours.)

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hieres Unthere: (hmmmmm)

Marcus Veranius: (Does the Corpse Tally provide half cover for Hieres?)

GM: (Not so much, no)

(Moving this corpse collection to the GM layer)

(Hopefully I won't get confused with all the other horrible monsters still incoming)

(Nahhhhh JK)

(Or am I?)

(I guess Hieres would know -- this is the last monster in this combat, except for the badger, which is on its last legs)

Hieres Unthere: Hieres releases a barrage of silvery beams at the creature, all of them smacking into the beast.

2
Force

120 feet

Magic Missile

that should be at level 4 :(

GM: 10 Additional damage

I think it only rolled the one dart

GM (GM): Wait wait one sec

Right, should be a total of seven darts, or 7d4+7

Go ahead and roll it, please :)

Hieres Unthere: 21

The Nightwalker roars as it is peppered with crystalline bolts of light. Its gaze turns towards the spell caster.

Hieres Unthere: (oh no)

GM: (EoT?)

Hiere Unthere: (moved and now EoT)

GM (GM):

MULTIATTACK

Rictavio

Rictavio makes two attacks with his sword cane.

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)

Rictavio

Attack: 18

Damage: 5 piercing

SWORD CANE (AS SILVERED SHORTSWORD)

Rictavio

Attack: 8

Damage: 5 piercing

Henry of Willowsbrook: Ric is blessed

Hiere Unthere: Hiere scrambles out of the way and ducks behind a tree

The roar of a giant badger's death cry, muffled by a layer of dirt, is followed by an old man shouting: "Ha!"

Liliet (Suldae): (i currently have no prepared spells except for domain spells and cantrips, right?)

GM (GM):

Freedom of Movement

Abjuration 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S, M (A leather strap, bound around the arm or a similar appendage)

Duration: 1 hour

You touch a willing creature. For the duration, the target's movement is unaffected by difficult terrain, and spells and other magical effects can neither reduce the target's speed nor cause the target to be paralyzed or restrained.

The target can also spend 5 feet of movement to automatically escape from nonmagical restraints, such as manacles or a creature that has it grappled. Finally, being underwater imposes no penalties on the target's movement or attacks.

Henry of Willowsbrook: so is Kasimir but he hasn't used it yet

Rictavio suddenly bursts forth from the ground like a revenant, clawing his way out of the dirt with surprising ease and agility.

Rictavio: Rictavio spits into the hole. "Bah! You think that's the first time I've been buried alive!? Amateurs, I swear!"

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Since Hiere casted a spell Haste has ended and Henry is suddenly over taken by lethargy

GM: (His concentration hasn't been broken, actually)

Marcus Veranius: (Only if he casts a second Concentration spell)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Unable to move or take action till my next turn)

Oh
well

GM: So you're still good :)

Henry of Willowsbrook: disregard

GM: Go get 'em, tiger

Hiere Unthere: (unless its been 10 round you should be good)

GM: Has not been 10 rounds, unless I'm crazy

But hey who's counting

(Upon entering the shadow creature's aura for the first time on your turn, you do have to make another DC 21 Con save though)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry first throws a Javelin at the monster

13 + 4

30/120

Javelin (30 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

Piercing

13 + 3

30/120

Javelin (30 ft) (+8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

Piercing

(Why do I always roll unintended extra attacks 11 piercing)

17 to hit

Marcus Veranius: (Extra Attacks are addictive)

The Javelin soars from Henry's hand. (Henry, make a Nature or Religion check)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

NATURE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

can I add Bardic to the nature check?

GM: Yes

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d8

(5)

= 5

rolling d8

(6)

= 6

14

In mid-flight, the Javelin blooms with white flowers, a moment before striking the black creature in the back. 5

The creature moans again. The Javelin sticks, dealing what seems to be a particularly painful blow.

GM: (Nature spirits have helped you overcome the creature's resistance to nonmagical attacks, and have done a small amount of additional damage)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

7

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Inspiration

23

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

[CHANNEL DIVINITY]
NATURE'S WRATH
Class: Oath of the Ancients
As an action, you can cause spectral vines to spring up and reach for a creature within 10 feet of you that you can see. The creature must succeed on a Strength or Dexterity saving throw (its choice) or be restrained. While restrained by the vines, the creature repeats the saving throw at the end of each of its turns. On a success, it frees itself and the vines vanish.

[CHANNEL DIVINITY]

NATURE'S WRATH

Class: Oath of the Ancients

As an action, you can cause spectral vines to spring up and reach for a creature within 10 feet of you that you can see. The creature must succeed on a Strength or Dexterity saving throw (its choice) or be restrained. While restrained by the vines, the creature repeats the saving throw at the end of each of its turns. On a success, it frees itself and the vines vanish.

As Henry charges into the shadows, for a moment it feels as though they will chill him to the soul. Then there is a supernatural warmth around him, and a strange glow surrounds his armored body.

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY

Ability: 15

GM: (That was not Rictavio, that was the Nightwalker)

(Actually, it would make a strength save, not a dex save... Rerolling, one sec)

Nightwalker:

STRENGTH

Ability: 22

GM: (Well, I guess either way it passes, assuming the DC is 13)

Henry of Willowsbrook: yup worth a try

Spectral vines rise from the earth to ensnare the undead monstrosity, but they die in the shadows before they can reach it.

GM: (Did you come within 15 feet of the creature?)

Nah I think you're good, nvm

Henry of Willowsbrook: yes

natures wrath is 10ft

GM: Well, in that case

Nightwalker:

ENERVATING FOCUS (~-
LOG_JSTPN5A8KB3FNVU|REPEATING_NPCACTION_-
LOG_ZK9NBOSV4RB-HXCC_NPC_DMG)

Attack (~-
log_jstpn5a8kb3fnvu|repeating_npcaction_-
log_zk9nbosv4rb-hxcc_npc_dmg)

:

31

The target must succeed on a DC 21 Constitution saving throw or its hit point maximum is reduced by an amount equal to the necrotic damage taken. This reduction lasts until the target finishes a long rest.

Damage: 27 Necrotic

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

As Henry retreats from the shadow creature, its hand swats at him. The shadow claws pass right through his body and armor, carving into his soul. He feels the weakness that the wound inflicts.

GM: (Henry's max HP is now 54)

(This can be reversed by a long rest)

(Any additional actions/movement?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: that was the movement that got me hit so nothing else EoT

As Henry emerges from the shadows of the creature's aura, weakened and diminished by the darkness, he sees the animated tree approaching him. It has sprouted thousands of white flowers, which flurry down from it in a whirling rush driven by an invisible wind. Henry feels something, some power, move through his soul.

Liliet (Suldae): (oh damn nice)

Henry glows with divine radiance as the boon of the nature spirits enwraps him. The dark mists are pushed back by his newfound light, and the Nightwalker cringes away from the brilliance.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda, realizing that she is far too close for comfort, hobbles towards Rictavio, casting Protection from Good and Evil on herself as she goes.

Rictavio: Rictavio holds up a trophy: An ornately carved wooden leg.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You sly bastard!"

Rictavio: "Guilty as charged, my dear!"

GM: (She's dashing this turn, with the handicap we'll treat it as difficult terrain)

(Suldae, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: (yay im done!!!)

Suldae opens her eyes, snapping out of the trance the prayer sent her into.

She feels the blessing of Correllon suffuse her, and knows, this time definitely knows that she has to do this.

What is 'this' remains to be figured out, but she has to. She has been given means to so she could.

She walks forward out of the tree's protection.

Her hand still on the holy symbol, she sings several high notes, calling on the sacred light given to her.

Suldae Westwind:

DC14

Dexterity Save

12

Radiant

60 feet

Sacred Flame

Suldae Westwind

Nightwalker:

DEXTERITY

Ability: 9 | 8

Suldae Westwind: (yes, still a little underwhelming... but better than the goddamn crossbow)

In the light of Henry's aura, the Nightwalker is distracted so much that it does not sense the holy twist of the Weave around it. A blast of golden flames completely envelops the thing in a pillar of whirling fire. The Nightwalker screams.

After the blast, it is a wreck of its former self -- the shadows are patchy and broken, and amongst them you can see the floating, javelin-speared corpse of the druid, hanging in the twisting black mists.

The Nightwalker's eyes snap towards Suldae.

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Kasimir Velikov seeing the creature turn its gaze upon Suldae, Kasimir races forward and grabs her by the shoulder.

Kasimir Velikov:

Greater Invisibility

*Illusion 4Casting Time: 1 actionRange: TouchComponents: V, SDuration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You or a creature you touch becomes invisible until the spell ends. Anything the target is wearing or carrying is invisible as long as it is on the target's person.

The two of them vanish into thin air.

The Nightwalker roars! It is enraged that its prey should be taken from it.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae mouthes 'thank you' to Kasimir barely audibly.

Kasimir Velikov: "Excellent work, Suldae," whispers Kasimir. "However, I think now would be a good time to remain unseen..."

Marcus Veranius sweats with concern as the Nightwalker's attention turns. Fearing what would happen if it walks the other way, he goads it out in Abyssal; language of the undead.

Able: able able

Marcus Veranius: "Nalkruska jiak'm done wiavh lat, jiak'll piukuk par avhe nighav moavher'uk ukhrine! nalkren iuk avhaav?"

~When I'm done with you, I'll piss on the Night Mother's shrine! How is that?~

Marcus Veranius fires two more arrows at the beast for good measure

The Nightwalker's head whips around. Its eyes narrow.

Marcus Veranius:

22 + 4

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

19

Piercing

10 + 3

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+6)

Marcus Veranius

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

24

Piercing

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

2

Favored Enemy Bonus

1

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(26, 14 to hit)

GM: (Two hits)

Marcus Veranius: 47 Magical Piercing damage

Marcus makes a tactical retreat before he's sure the monster's hit

The arrows stick in the juicy center of the dark beast, and the corpse of a druid falls from the twisting shadows. It lands in the grass with a banal finality. The creature of shadows collapses with a rush of black mist.

Marcus Veranius is still running, scared for his life

Rictavio: "Is that it?" Rictavio asks.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It's over?"

"Marcus! Marcus, you killed it!"

Marcus Veranius turns around, fear clearly dripping off his face. The corpse of the beast brings some relief

Hiere Unthere: Hiere peeks, still behind the tree

GM: (Excellent job, everyone! You may immediately level up.)

(I have revealed the stat-block, you may note "Life Eater" as a particularly nasty feature)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rests his hands on his knees breathing deeply before standing back up straight and yelling loudly in triumph

Hiere Unthere: (very ouch)

The remains of the shadow creature begin to evaporate into black mists which fade and disperse on the night winds. The corpse of the dead druid remains in the grass, looking distinctly broken.

Suldae Westwind: (yeeeeeep)

Suldae looks around at the field of corpses.

Corpses, and broken piles of twigs on the ground.

Marcus Veranius: "Is everyone alright? No one evaporated? Everyone in one piece and not hell-bound?"

Suldae Westwind: And scorches on everything.

(does Kasimir release the spell?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Having reattached her leg, Ezmeralda jauntily walks over to Marcus. "You people aren't quite as bad as I thought! Maybe we do stand a chance, after all."

"I'll be taking my crossbow back, now."

Hiere Unthere: "Not sure about that hell-bound bit, but a-okay"

Kasimir Velikov: "It seems to be over. We should join the others."

Kasimir Velikov drops the invisibility spell.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Feeling a bit shortwinded after it hit me but that should pass after some rest"

Hiere Unthere: (gm how are you trying so fast wtf)

GM: English major man

Hiere Unthere: LMAO

Rictavio dusts the dirt from himself methodically.

Rictavio: "Right, well. That was easy!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows to the tree spirits.

Marcus Veranius returns the crossbow. "It's a bit weighty. Don't think I have the strength to use it on the regular."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hey guys am I crazy or am I glowing right now?"

The trees bow in return, then settle in and take deep root in their new positions.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae releases the spell.

They bloom with white flowers as the spell is released.

The old oak creaks.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Henry, smiling dazzlingly with relief and happiness for surviving this.

In Sylvan, it says: "Thank you..."

Suldae Westwind: "You are."

Marcus Veranius: "So I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but there's like... four druids unaccounted for?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "They're probably inside the winery," says Ezmeralda.
"We'd better root them out."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows to the tree as well.

Marcus Veranius: "BEFORE they can turn into more shadow monsters."
"Heaven forbid they pull off a backup ritual while we rest."

Rictavio: "Agreed," says Rictavio.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Huh well I'm not doing it but yeah lets go take care of them"

Rictavio: "Luckily, we won't need a light source," he says, nodding towards Henry.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and comes closer to Henry, inspecting him for wounds. She realizes there are none she can cure, with a touch of fear.

Marcus Veranius squints at Henry. Is this just Paladin standard procedure?

Suldae Westwind: She tugs at her clothing, readjusting it awkwardly as though it could help her feeling that she has laid claim to something beyond what she should have.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere approaches the rest of the party. "I knew he would do that"

Suldae Westwind:

7

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "I can't argue against it. Glowing seems like a regular paladin activity."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods respectfully towards the wizard. She's seen his contributions to the fight; she has few reasons to doubt his words.

Hiere Unthere:

15

DECEPTION (0)

Suldae Westwind: She looks at everyone.

"Rictavio? Marcus? Ezmerelda?"

"Are you unhurt?"

She boldly presumes the two wizards have, in fact, managed to stay out of harm's way.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere takes off his hat and checks it for wounds.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae automatically checks it out too. The hat seems unwounded.

Rictavio: Rictavio sheepishly exposes some deep slashes on his left arm.

"Had to put my arm in its mouth, you know. So it couldn't get to my throat."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'm a bit banged up too, actually," says Ezmeralda. "Friggin' badgers."

Kasimir Velikov: "I am unharmed."

Marcus Veranius: "But do you have any spells left? We could try to sneak in and catch the druids by surprise."

"Might work better than a straight assault with a mostly-drained party."

Kasimir Velikov: "I am not weary, I have retained much of my magical energies."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'm good on that front too, actually."

Rictavio: "I'm in a killing mood, to be honest."

Marcus Veranius nods. "Kicking down doors it is then."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm" Henry walks over to the remains of the shadow beast intend on trying to recover his javelins

He finds that one of his javelins has bloomed into a small tree of what seems to be holy wood. It is already blooming, and growing slowly before your eyes. It is rooted in the corpse of the dead druid which was the center of the Nightwalker.

The other javelin is still ordinary wood.

Suldae Westwind: (Are we currently taking a short rest?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes the ordinary one and leaves the tree to grow

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sits next to the old oak that was the center of the ritual and starts playing a relaxing song.

Marcus Veranius nudges Henry. "Look at the bright side, most of my arrows just break and become compost."

Suldae Westwind:

SONG OF REST

Class: Bard

Beginning at 2nd level, you can use soothing music or oration to help revitalize your wounded allies during a short rest. If you or any friendly creatures who can hear your performance regain hit points at the end of the short rest by spending one or more Hit Dice, each of those creatures regains an extra 1d6 hit points.

Suldae plays, finding calm and comfort in the action, though she wishes she had her guitar.

Still, the music helps her center herself.

She has the personal attention of Correllon now - the help she asked for.

She understands full well what it is intended for, and has a pretty clear idea of what she'll do with it. There is nothing wrong or off with the practicalities of it.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, Suldae. That's lovely." Ezmeralda stretches.

Rictavio: "Aye. You're a talented musician."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir smiles to himself, as though he has an insight others do not. He knows that the song is magical.

Suldae Westwind: She smiles from behind the ocarina and nods to the vampire hunters.

Hiere Unthere:

10

PERFORMANCE (0)

Hiere starts poorly humming along

Suldae Westwind: Still, once she takes a step back and looks at the situation as a whole, it feels... wrong, as though the world has tilted. But that's not new, is it? It had tilted already, and the changes are coming. Still, there was a difference between willingly taking on a curse - two curses by now - and getting involved in a story - something a bard is meant to do! - and laying claim to... this.

Kasimir Velikov:

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 ft

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell.

The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do.

You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't preformed.

If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so we are short resting? cause I think both Haste and Bless are up time wise)

Kasimir Velikov: "I suggest you stop humming, Hiere, and listen instead," says Kasimir.

Suldae Westwind: (yeah we are) (lmao rip)

Hiere Unthere:

14

WISDOM SAVE (5)

GM: (You passed the save lmao)

(Yes, this is a short rest, so Haste and Bless will both fade)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere vehemently disagrees, continuing to hum.

Suldae Westwind: This would give her claim to a higher rank in the clergy than she'd ever thought she'd even approach. Oh, the path of the bard was respected and important in its own way, and she had never been anything short of proud of her calling. But this feels like... more, in a way that leaves her shy and uncertain. What is she, now?

Suldae is too busy meditating to her song to notice~

Henry of Willowsbrook: (hello action surge) With Hieres magic fadeing Henry briefly slumps yawning deeply "Man that takes it out of you but definately worth it, Thanks Hiere that really helped" Henry smiles waiting for the tired feeling to pass

Hiere Unthere: Hiere is now humming out of key and off by a sixteenth

Marcus Veranius takes a break to listen and calm down. So much magical conflict over a shoddy building and spoiled grape juice. Casters tearing the world apart to hold their claim. But it was all for Family, and that's what mattered most.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda, seated beside Marcus, leans over with a quiet rustle of silks. Her hand might or might not be on his leg. "Thank you for what you did back there," she mutters. "I think you may have saved my life."

Rictavio: Rictavio is watching the two of them with a great intensity in his gaze.

Henry of Willowsbrook: after the magic induced lethargy subsideds Henry begins rolling his shoulders "So how do we do this just kick down the door and rush whoever is inside?" He Ingores the display quite poinietly

Kasimir Velikov: "I believe that tactic should suffice, yes," says Kasimir.

Marcus Veranius: "You might have saved mine. Heaven forbid you weren't as prepared." Marcus notes the hand and smiles, which quickly fades at Rictavio's judgment

Kasimir Velikov: "If any of them are shape-changers we may need to improvise solutions."

Rictavio: Rictavio looks away. His glasses flash, hiding his eyes from view.

"Right," he says, grunting as he gets to his feet.

"Killing time?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll do the kicking then if you all don't mind"

Rictavio: "Not at all, dear boy! You may kick when ready."

"The back door should do," he says, pointing.

Marcus Veranius: Oh dear. He angered the old man. This was not good...

"Umm, yes! We should... get going yes."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda catches the exchange and smiles mischievously to herself. "Help me up?" She asks, reaching to Marcus.

Marcus Veranius blushes and quickly starts polishing his hand crossbow's string. A well-oiled bow shoots faster and never catches!

Marcus Veranius also gives Ezmeralda a hand

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Getting un-cross-legged with a wooden leg is tricky business.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Everyone ready? Please do come closer I don't bite...anymore atleast" Henry smiles broadly

Marcus Veranius: "I wouldn't have noticed if you didn't point it out."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda overbalances slightly and nearly falls on top of Marcus. She is slightly taller than him.

"Oh!" She giggles. "Thank you."

"Now," she says, suddenly serious.

"Let's go kill some bad druids."

Hiere Unthere: "...He used to bite?"

Kasimir Velikov: "I, too, am curious about this rabid past."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere checks Henry for teeth

Rictavio: Rictavio lines up behind Henry, sword at the ready.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Butchers boy used to fight dirty" Henry says deadpan while shrugging Kasimir Velikov: "Are you ready, Suldae?" Kasimir asks, getting slowly and gracefully to his feet.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae finishes the melody with thoughtful tones - she would come back to this - and gets up, nodding to Kasimir.

"As ready as I'm going to be."

Which is not very. But oh well.

 Kasimir Velikov: "Are you alright, Suldae?"

 (To Henry of Willowsbrook): /as GM (You may roll the athletics check whenever you're ready)

 Suldae Westwind: "More alright than I was previously, technically she tells the mage."

 Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir blinks slowly. "That is not quite an answer, but I appreciate your tactfulness."

 (From Marcus Veranius): Umm, why am I rolling Athletics? Did I miss something?

 Suldae Westwind: * technically", she tells the mage.

GM: (Lol I think whispering to the character whispers to everyone who has access to the sheet)
(Sorry for the confusion, just didn't want to interrupt the RP)

 Suldae Westwind: i didnt see anything

 Hiere Unthere: ^

GM: Huh... In that case, I don't know

 Suldae Westwind: She shakes her head. She does not mean to hide things, just... how does one explain something like this?

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry half turns to look at them before bracing himself and kicking the door

GM: I whispered that Henry could roll his athletics check to kick the door in

 Henry of Willowsbrook:

14

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

19

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

 Marcus Veranius: (I still have ownership on Henry's sheet ever since I wrote it up)

 Suldae Westwind: "I'll tell you later," she says and comes closer to Henry.

 Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir nods slowly. He follows Suldae.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (Can that be advantage cause I had time to aim) cause

Henry's booted heel shatters the lock, and the door bursts inward.

A dirty window in the south wall allows dim light to enter this room. Wine bottles are manufactured here, as evidenced by the tools lying about, the wooden rack full of freshly blown glass bottles along the south wall, the hearth built into the southwest corner, and the barrel of sand standing next to it. A staircase descends underground, and between it and the rack of bottles stands a barred door.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Great more doors"

A *formerly barred door.

A door on the northern wall leads farther into the building.

Marcus Veranius whispers to Henry. "Hey, want to play a trick?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Sure why not"

Marcus Veranius holds up a lockpick and attempts to silently open the door

Marcus Veranius:

29

Thieves Tools (9)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus effortlessly picks the lock.

Marcus Veranius grabs a bottle and hurls it as far down the stairs as he can

Liliet (Suldae): omg

Marcus Veranius: "Move quietly. They'll think we're coming from the other way"

You hear the shattering of glass, and the rustling movement of several medium-sized creatures in what is probably a basement.

Marcus Veranius motions for the others to come through the unlocked door

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes the lead

Marcus Veranius follows behind

GM: (Roll stealth checks, please)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20

STEALTH (0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

22

STEALTH (9)
Marcus Veranius

Marcus and Henry silently enter the next chamber. The rich smell of fermenting wine fills this large, two-story chamber, which is dominated by four enormous wooden casks, each one eight feet wide and twelve feet tall. A wooden staircase in the center of the room climbs to a ten-foot-high wooden balcony that clings to the south wall, which has four windows set into it at balcony level. Stacked against the wall underneath the balcony are old, empty barrels with "The Wizard of Wines" burned into their sides. The balcony climbs another five feet as it continues along the west and east walls, ending at doors leading to the winery's upper level. Underneath these side balconies are several doors, some of which hang open.

The balcony creaks, drawing your eye to a wild-looking figure hunched over the westernmost cask, pouring a flask of thick syrup into it. She wears a gown made of animal skins and a headdress with goat horns, and her hair is long and unkempt. Suddenly, you see something skittering across the floor. It looks like a tiny creature made of twigs. It moves from its hiding place under the stairs and disappears behind the easternmost cask.

Marcus Veranius: (To GM)rolling 1d10 Level 9 HP; if Henry's rolling I can too!

(4)

= 4

(From Marcus Veranius): ...I can also take average when the dice say no o-o

(To Tops K.): Lol yes you can

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to Marcus and mouths "capture" while nodding in the druids direction

He seems to ask

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae is behind them.

They know she has a spell for this.

Marcus Veranius squints at the syrup. He shakes his head 'no', then moves to sneak behind the druid.

Marcus Veranius: (Where is Druid on the map? I don't see them)

GM: (The Druid is on the second level, on a wooden balcony)

(To get behind him you'd have to climb the staircase, which is right in his eyeline)

(Eye-line)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at them, not confident enough in her stealth skills to follow.

Kasimir approaches, touches her on the shoulder as he passes, and turns them both invisible once more.

Marcus Veranius points to Henry's Javelin, then to his crossbow, then the druid Kasimir moves into the room, heading left.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae moves forward.

Rictavio and Ezmeralda seem occupied with the staircase, concerned about the noises coming from below.

Suldae Westwind: (do I still need to roll Stealth for sound?)

GM: (Yes, but with advantage)

Suldae Westwind: (one minute while i open my charsheet)

5

23

STEALTH (4)
Suldae Westwind

Rictavio makes a series of hand gestures. Ezmeralda understands, and moves silently through the doorway after Marcus.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae moves into he room and spos the druid.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns carefully drawing his javelin uncertain on how to proceed

Rictavio beckons for Hiere to catch up.

Suldae makes no noise as she invisibly enters the room.

Suldae Westwind: She takes out the ocarina and plays, muffling the sound with her hand. The druid would hear it now, but...

Hiere Unthere: Hiere adjusts his hat, also disappearing

Suldae Westwind:

Hold Person

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A humanoid that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A small, straight piece of iron)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Choose a humanoid that you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or be paralyzed for the duration. At the end of each of its turns, the target can make another Wisdom saving throw. On a success, the spell ends on the target.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, you can target on additional humanoid for each slot level above 2nd. The humanoids must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Hiere Unthere:

Invisibility

Illusion 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: A creature you touch

Components: V, S, M (An eyelash encased in gum arabic)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

A creature you touch becomes invisible until the spell ends. Anything the target is wearing or carrying is invisible as long as it is on the target's person. The spell ends for a target that attacks or casts a spell.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 2nd.

Druid:

WISDOM
Druid

Ability: 18 | 10

The Druid seems to stiffen, as though listening. Then the stiffness becomes paralysis.

GM: (Somebody roll a d2)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d2

(1)

= 1

The Druid teeters, his extended arm nearly overbalancing him. He does not fall into the open barrel, despite the paralysis.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Huh" Henry tilts his head quietly he really isn't sure what happend

Suldae Westwind: Suldae walks up to the top flor

Suldae walks up to the top floor

Marcus Veranius motions quickly for the others to move inside, ready to block the door with a barrel

Suldae Westwind: (i dont think i could get visibility over the barrles could i?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head before going to look for the twig thing he saw

GM: (If you're climbing the staircase you can see over the barrels)

(Make an investigation check, Henry)

Rictavio silently shoves Hiere through the door and closes it behind the party, sealing the glassblowing studio.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

4

INVESTIGATION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry is unable to determine where the twig blights could have gone.

Marcus Veranius re-locks the door then rolls a barrel in front. That'll screw up the Druid's formation

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes up to the druid and carefully ties him up.

14

SLEIGHT OF HAND (4)
Suldae Westwind

Hiere Unthere: (hiere is invisible but ok)

The druid stares at her angrily, unable to resist her.

Suldae Westwind: (BETTER THAN LAST TIME)

(Hiere might be invisible but if he didnt move Rictavio would still know where he is)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (How many doors are there in this room?)

Marcus Veranius runs up the stairs and... sees the druid being tied up by enchanted rope?

Hiere Unthere: (he had :()

Marcus Veranius: He attempts to secure the container of syrup

On the ground floor there are four small doors, two sets of double doors, and a large pair of sliding wooden doors locked from the inside.

Two of the doors on the western side of the room are open, and a pair of double doors on the right side is open as well.

Henry has found a storage room. Bare hooks line the walls of this storage room. Shelves to the south hold several pairs of stained wooden sandals with oversized soles. Both doors to this room hang open. The one to the west is fitted with iron brackets and leads outside into the rain. Lying on the floor next to it is a five-foot-long wooden beam.

Outside, he can see a small outhouse.

Marcus Veranius:

22

STEALTH (9)
Marcus Veranius

Hiere Unthere: Hiere follows Marcus down the staircase

Marcus Veranius: (I was lookin through logs and saw the earlier request for stealth checks. oops)

Hiere Unthere:

12

STEALTH (3)

8

STEALTH (3)

Marcus finds a small silver vial. The syrup has a distinctly foul and deathlike odor.

Marcus Veranius: "Don't know about you, but I don't think you know enough about wines to make a thoughtful choice of additives."

"Fuck, how much of the wine is lost?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae murmurs "it's me, Suldae, I'm invisible" to Marcus as he's nearby.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tests the door he is standing in front of

Marcus Veranius perks up at Suldae's mention

Henry of Willowsbrook: to see if it's locked

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm, wonder how the wine tastes. Care to have a sip?"

Henry determines that the doors are not locked.

Marcus Veranius moves to the second barrel and reaches in, tankard in hand. He gets a sample and moves for the druid's lips

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gestures for anyone to come to him

The druid's eyes go slightly wider with serious fear.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes and bats away his hand.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere moves up to beside him and whispers in his ear "hi"

Marcus Veranius frowns

Marcus Veranius: "So this is in fact, the LAST barrel they wanted to poison."

Ezmeralda joins Henry. Rictavio paces quietly through the room, glancing at the labels and the barrels.

Marcus Veranius: "Was hoping it was the first but that look says otherwise."

Rictavio:

INTELLIGENCE
Rictavio

Ability: 12

Suldae Westwind: "The last barrel?" Suldae frowns.

Marcus Veranius: "He wouldn't be afraid of the second barrel's ale if he didn't get to it yet."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hit Fast and Hard ok"

Marcus Veranius: "Probably started right to left."

Kasimir, invisible, approaches Marcus and Suldae. "It is me," he says.

Marcus Veranius: "Rather than left to right."

Suldae Westwind: "...ah"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ok," says Ezmeralda.

Marcus Veranius puts down the tankard, wondering what to do...

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pushes the doors open wide runing inside right after sword and shield in hand

Henry sees a startled druid inside the chamber!

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20

11

WISDOM SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Tops K.: (Test)

14

15

Net (+11)
Marcus Veranius

A Large or smaller creature hit by a net is Restrained until it is freed. A net has no effect on creatures that are formless, or creatures that are Huge or larger. A creature can use its action to make a DC 10 Strength check, freeing itself or another creature within its reach on a success. Dealing 5 slashing damage to the net (AC 10) also frees the creature without harming it, ending the effect and destroying the net. When you use an action, Bonus Action, or Reaction to Attack with a net, you can make only one Attack regardless of the number of attacks you can normally make.

>A restrained creature's speed becomes 0, and it can't benefit from any bonus to its speed.

>Attack rolls against the creature have advantage, and the creature's Attack rolls have disadvantage.

>The creature has disadvantage on Dexterity Saving Throws.

Zanshuken:25*Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook9Slashing14*MW Longsword (+10)
Henry of Willowsbrook16*MW Longsword (+10)
Henry of Willowsbrook27*MW Longsword (+10)
Henry of WillowsbrookMagic WeaponTransmutation 2Casting Time: 1 bonus actionRange: TouchTarget: A nonmagical weaponComponents: V, SDuration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You touch a nonmagical weapon. Until the spell ends, that weapon becomes a magic weapon with a +1 bonus to attack rolls and damage rolls.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the bonus increases to +2. When you use a spell slot of 6th level or higher, the bonus increases to +3.

Zanshuken:*16*MW Longsword (+10)
Henry of Willowsbrook14Magic Slashing25*MW Halberd (+10)
Henry of Willowsbrook13Magic Slashing*

Liliet (Suldae):23*CHARISMA SAVE (10)
Suldae WestwindSuggestionEnchantment 2Casting Time: 1 actionRange: 30 feetTarget: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand youComponents: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

COUNTERCHARM*Class: Bard*

At 6th level, you gain the ability to use musical notes or words of power to disrupt mind-influencing effects. As an action, you can start a performance that lasts until the end of your next turn. During that time, you and any friendly creatures within 30 feet of you have advantage on saving throws against being frightened or charmed. A creature must be able to hear you to gain this benefit. The performance ends early if you are incapacitated or silenced or if you voluntarily end it (no action required).

CUTTING WORDS

Class: College of Lore

When a creature that you can see within 60 feet of you makes an Attack roll, an ability check, or a damage roll, you can use your Reaction to expend one of your uses of Bardic Inspiration, rolling a Bardic Inspiration die and subtracting the number rolled from the creature's roll. You can choose to use this feature after the creature makes its roll, but before the GM determines whether the Attack roll or ability check succeeds or fails, or before the creature deals its damage. The creature is immune if it can't hear you or if it's immune to being Charmed.

Able: able able

Liliet (Suldae): bop

GM (GM): Mornin' y'all!

Marcus Veranius feels more in-tune with nature, as if his Fighter and Ranger skills somehow swapped in proficiency!

Liliet (Suldae): so, last on: I was mildly confused about what the plan is Marcus Veranius: ...about 1 spell more in-tune. With everything else the same

Suldae Westwind: heheheheheh

Marcus Veranius: ~ZEN~

(I believe the plan is: We don't have one)

Suldae Westwind: yeah okay then more speciifcally i was confused about if i have to keep up concentration on hold person on this druid we have caught

GM (GM): Seemed to me like you were on a room-by-room rampage

Marcus Veranius: (Druids are now confused as to our current position. Round up the rest at our discession)

Suldae Westwind: bc right now its taking up both my rope and my concentration and most of my spells are concentration spells so i would appreciate input

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I was going to play whack-a-druid before we ended last tim)

GM (GM):

(<https://media3.giphy.com/media/1ludrxHRnUmT6/giphy.gif>)

My hint

Suldae Westwind: I Don't Like Splitting Up

Marcus Veranius frowns. "I think we've gleamed all the information they're willing to give us.
Take him out and we'll reconviene with the others."

Marcus Veranius: "...wait, where ARE the others?"

GM (GM): (@Henry had you already rolled the attacks/damge?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: no

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Marcus.

He cannot see her but she's looking at him

"..."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir invisibly steps forward, between Suldae and the druid.

"Do not ask this one to kill for you."

He reaches out an invisible hand and clutches the Druid by the back of the head.

Frost creeps over the Druid's hair and skull, the already-rigid Druid shivers for a single moment, then the rest of his head freezes solid. His eyeballs glaze over with frost.

"There," says Kasimir. "It is done."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is not sure who he's addressing but feels very called out anyway. Also grateful, because Yes That Is A Problem.

She sighs nervously as she sees what Kasimir has done, then relaxes.

"Thank you," she murmurs guiltily.

She untangles the rope.

Marcus Veranius is also thankful. He didn't want to risk trying arrows with invisible allies about

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Hiere and Ezmeralda were following me right)

Hiere Unthere: (hiere was yes)

GM (GM): (Yes, I believe that's correct)

Suldae Westwind: "Marcus," Suldae says meanwhiel, a thought gripping her. "Do you have a dagger?"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"No."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hands him her dagger.

(1 regular dagger)

Marcus Veranius: "I know we discussed buying one after that stupid house but I forgot."

Suldae Westwind: "I have more."

"This is now yours."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry having charged into what appears to be a storage room with another Druid inside raises his sword to attack them

Marcus Veranius gives a thumbs up towards where he thinks Suldae is

GM: (Go ahead and roll the attacks, Henry)

Suldae Westwind: She's a little to the left of that but appreciates the gesture.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

14

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

Slashing

27

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

Slashing

Suldae Westwind: (hey, did we see where Henry went?)

GM (GM): (He's downstairs, you can see him from the balcony -- he went through the double doors on the eastern side of the main room.)

Henry's first swing is deflected by the druid's hastily-raised shillelagh, but his second slash cuts the druid across the chest, spattering the walls with his blood.

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Druid

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 1.1

INITIATIVE

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE

Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Initiative: 9

Henry, Hier, go ahead and roll initiative

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I still use my bonus action from attacking him

Hier Unthere:

23

INITIATIVE (3)

GM (GM): Ok, if you can take him out in this turn, he won't have a chance to yell for help

Marcus Veranius:

28

INITIATIVE (8)

Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind:

5.15

INITIATIVE (4.15)

Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)

Henry of Willowsbrook

14

Shield Shove (+9)

Henry of Willowsbrook

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

(Wanna knock them prone)

GM (GM):

DEXTERITY
Druid
Ability: 12

Having drawn blood, Henry knocks the druid to the ground with his shield!

GM (GM): (Since Marcus is out of range of this particular fight, we'll skip to Hiere's initiative)

Suldae Westwind: uh

Maybe We Should Get A Chance To Get There

Hiere Unthere: (do I have my I5 slot?)

Suldae Westwind: Please Don't Skip My Initiative When It's My Turn

Henry of Willowsbrook: (you don't know its happening I think)

Suldae Westwind: yes but i was going to go downstairs and check on Henry either way

GM (GM): If this druid dies right now, no help comes. If this druid does not die right now, he calls for help, then Marcus and Suldae's upstairs initiative will matter

Suldae Westwind: I Was Already Going Downstairs

GM (GM): Just wanted to see if the druid got the jump on them, this is not really initiative since this guy probably own't live long

Suldae Westwind: that was going to be my next action if there wasnt a call for initiative

GM (GM): won't*

Suldae Westwind: i asked if i can see where henry went for a reason i mean skipping marcus is fair if he didnt want to do that but Suldae did

Marcus Veranius: (I am down for the Heavy Platemail Assassin handling things before formal initiative. We have so much stealth and its the clanky one pulling this off)

Suldae Westwind: ofc shell be just walking downstairs at normal pace but she will be

heee

Hiere Unthere: (Do the barrels count as medium bois? Are there any tinies like pebbles or something around?)

GM (GM): Barrels are mediums, no tinies in sight

The were ravens keep this place pretty clean

Friggin' autocorrect

Hiere Unthere: Hiere silently reappears in the process of animating two of the nearby barrels. The barrels, having been victim to the druids' poisoning, don't take too kindly to this one.

rolling 1d20

(18)

= 18

GM (GM): That's a hit

Hiere Unthere: rolling 1d20 + 5

(17)+5

= 22

GM (GM): Also a hit

Hiere Unthere: rolling 1d6

(2)

= 2

rolling 1d6 + 5

(6)+5

= 11

rolling 2d6 + 5

(5 + 5)+5

= 15

(28 bludgeoning damage)

GM (GM): (Care to RP how these barrels goosh this guy like a stomped-on tube of toothpaste?)

Hiere Unthere: (LMAO)

One of the barrels bows to the other one, which bows back and then proceeds to squish the druid, followed by the other one emulating a rolling pin quite accurately.

The results are Jackson-Pollock-esque. It seems the wereravens will probably need to repaint this room.

Suldae Westwind: (btw the druid is upstairs now dead and that could stand to be reflected in the token)

(also rip)

The kill is relatively silent.

GM (GM): (Alright, we can proceed. We will re-roll initiative next time you find yourselves face-to-face with an enemy who is aware you are there)

Hiere Unthere: Here gives Henry a thumbs-up

*Hiere

GM (GM): (Unless you would prefer to explore the house while in strict initiative order, which is also an option)

Marcus Veranius: (Crit init aint worth it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry mildly disturbed looks over the remains for anything of note while murmuring a funeral rite he half remembers

GM (GM): (We can hold the crit for later)

Hiere Unthere: (can we get barrel tokens)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae goes downstairs.

Marcus Veranius follows Suldae

If there had ever been anything of note on the now-paper-thin druid, it is now paper thin as well.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere pats one of his barrels as the other one nuzzles his leg

The exception are a handful of coins: 14 gp, 8 silver.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to inspect the remaining barrels for tempering while pocketing the gory coinage

The remaining barrels in this room are empty -- they appear to be new barrels, ready to be filled and given a maker's mark.

Marcus Veranius turns to look into the barrel storage room, eyes-wide in terror

Marcus Veranius: "...what sort of rituals were these druids doing..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hiere did it"

Marcus Veranius: "Oh, that somehow makes it worse."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere continues calming the barrels down

Marcus Veranius: "The one upstairs is down. If that WAS one of the druids, then that makes two left."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda takes a peek in, pales, and turns away to fight the contents of her stomach back down.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..." Henry faltly looks at Marcus while presenting his splattered front

Marcus Veranius: "Do you think both of them are downstairs?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It was worse in motion and possibly but we can't be sure there aren't more anyway"

(do the stairs in this room go up or down?)

Marcus Veranius: "I mean, we were given a headcount of 10 by the owners, and they have a birds-eye view of the place."

The spiral staircase ascends to the next floor.

Marcus Veranius: "Six outside, two down inside."

"Two more."

"...maybe miscellaneous constructs."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Well, we know something was in the cellar -- we heard it."

"So that's at least one of them, probably."

Rictavio: "How do we know that there were only ten? Druids are, after all, shape-changers."

"Oh, good gods. What a mess!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "One of them turned into a badger, I'm not going to just assume our friends missed one or two"

Marcus Veranius: "So are the owners. I'd have thought they would account for it."

"But good point."

Marcus Veranius starts checking behind the barred doors

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands there, staring at the gory floor. She's feeling more or less fine, she just needs time to process it fully, is all.

Rictavio: "Well, there are some forms one can take that can go unnoticed. I myself once spent a delightful evening on the ceiling of a vampire duchess's chambers, in the form of a tiny spider.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry walks up the stairs to check where they lead

Suldae Westwind: Suldae really doesn't want to ask R what was the delightful part.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere raises a less-clean-than-usual hand to cover Suldae's eyes

Marcus finds that the first barred door he comes to opens onto a veranda with three large half-barrels for stomping grapes in. Henry finds himself on the second level of the building, in a long hallway with several doors on the right hand side.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Someone wanna help me check up here?" Henry calls down Suldae Westwind: Suldae dodges Hiere's hand and keeps looking.

"Oh, sure!"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere follows Henry up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows Henry.

(Sorry, Marcus)

Hiere Unthere: (how does one go up?)

Suldae Westwind: (wait for the DM to help)

Hiere Unthere: (ah gotcha)

Marcus Veranius checks out the other doors on the floor

GM: (Henry went upstairs, Marcus is still on the ground floor checking doors)

Suldae Westwind: (we're following Henry)

Marcus Veranius is following henry!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (are you still in visible?)

(invisible)

Suldae Westwind: (if Kasimir is keeping up the concentration, then yes)

Hiere Unthere: (oh probably not)

Animate Objects

Transmutation 5

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: Up to ten nonmagical objects within range that are not being worn or carried

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Objects come to life at your command. Choose up to ten nonmagical objects within range that are not being worn or carried. Medium targets count as two objects, Large targets count as four objects, Huge targets count as eight objects. You can't animate any object larger than Huge. Each target animates and becomes a creature under your control until the spell ends or until reduced to 0 hit points. As a bonus action, you can mentally command any creature you made with this spell if the creature is within 500 feet of you (if you control multiple creatures, you can command any or all of them at the same time, issuing the same command to each one). You decide what action the creature will take and where it will move during its next turn, or you can issue a general command, such as to guard a particular chamber or corridor. If you issue no commands, the creature only defends itself against hostile creatures. Once given an order, the creature continues to follow it until its task is complete.

Animated Object Statistics

Size	HP	AC	Attack	Str	Dex	Tiny
20	18	+8	to hit,	1d4 + 4	damage	4
18	Small	25	16	+6	to hit,	1d8 + 2
6	14	Medium	40	13	+5	to hit,
2d6 + 1	damage	10	12	Large	50	10
+6	to hit,	2d10 + 2	damage	14	10	Huge
80	10	+8	to hit,	2d12 + 4	damage	18
6	An animated object is a construct with AC, hit points, attacks, Strength, and Dexterity determined by its size. Its Constitution is 10 and its Intelligence and Wisdom are 3, and its Charisma is 1. Its speed is 30 feet; if the object lacks legs or other appendages it can use for locomotion, it instead has a flying speed of 30 feet and can hover. If the object is securely attached to a surface or a larger object, such as a chain bolted to a wall, its speed is 0. It has blindsight with a radius of 30 feet and is blind beyond that distance. When the animated object drops to 0 hit points, it reverts to its original object form, and any remaining damage carries over to its original object form. If you command an object to attack, it can make a single melee attack against a creature within 5 feet of it. It makes a slam attack with an attack bonus and bludgeoning damage determined by its size. The GM might rule that a specific object inflicts slashing or piercing damage based on its form.

At Higher Levels. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher, you can animate two additional Objects for each slot level above 5th.

Suldae Westwind: yep

you dropped invis

are you keeping up the concentration on the barrels?

GM: (Kasimir is still concentrating)

Hiere Unthere: (yup)

Marcus Veranius would comment about their assumption that a way into the basement exists on the second floor, if not for the fact that the stupid kill manor had one

Ezmerelda and Rictavio follow Marcus up the stairs behind Suldae, Hiere, and Henry.

Hiere Unthere: The barrels slowly roll up the stairs(?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry goes to the end of the hallway first to check around the corners

The barrels, unfortunately, seem to be too large to roll up these particular stairs. There must be a way to get them up here, though!

Suldae Westwind: Suldae peeks around the corner, then steps back as she sees...something there.

A second later she realizes she's invisible.

And comes out to look again.

She carefully peeks around the corner, not making any noise.

Through the open door into the chamber at the end of the hall, you see three creatures. One appears human but is so caked with dirt and mud that it's hard to know for sure. Her hair is full of twigs, and her face is hidden behind a veil of moss. She is rooting through the contents of the cabinet and haphazardly tossing them onto the floor. Behind her stand two creatures made entirely of vines. This chamber contains a desk, a chair, a tall wooden cabinet, and a strange contraption that takes up most of the northern end of the room.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what of that does Henry see?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes up to her companions and tugs their sleeves in the direction of the room.

GM: (Henry sees the same)

Suldae Westwind: Silently.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry beckons the others to come over

GM: (Does Henry still have his aura up?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Aura of Protection? or the Holy Aura you gave me?)

GM: (The Holy Aura has faded, though it may come back in a time of great need)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Protection is on as long as Henry is conscious)

AURA OF PROTECTION

Class: Paladin 6

Starting at 6th level, whenever you or a friendly creature within 10 feet of you must make a saving throw, the creature gains a bonus to the saving throw equal to your Charisma modifier (with a minimum bonus of +1). You must be conscious to grant this bonus.

At 18th level, the range of this aura increases to 30 feet.

GM: (Gotcha, stupid question sorry)

Marcus Veranius: (Henry, as always, makes things better by existing)

(This is nothing new)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is mildly surprised at the tugging "...Suldae?" he whispers

Suldae Westwind: "Let's check out that room together," she whispers back

(also Marcus, mood)

Marcus Veranius takes a peek to see what the hubub is about, then ducks back. Does he recognise the creatures as undead?

Marcus realizes that these are constructs, not undead.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks down at his heavily armored self, caked in druid gore "I think they might notice me"

They seem to be composed entirely of living vine.

Marcus Veranius frowns. Not this again

Marcus Veranius: He draws his crossbow at the ready

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Do you want them to notice me?" Henry asks quirking and raising one eyebrow Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs, then realizes she's invisible.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere steps back a bit as he realises the barrels haven't followed him.

"come on gallonthony, come on pintsworth"

He recruits gallonthony to help him push?drag pintsworth up.

Marcus Veranius gives a thumbs up. "Block the door, we throw volleys from behind you. What are they going to do; you're walking iron."

The barrels scrape against the sides of the narrow spiral staircase, making a terrible racket. Then Pintsworth gets stuck -- completely jammed.

Suldae Westwind: "Just making sure yuo noticed"

The noises inside the room beyond stop.

Suldae Westwind: She smiles at Marcus and touches her holy symbol, feeling a new aura of power from it.

It was always there, she just hadn't been able to perceive it as directly as she can now.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs rolling his shoulders and stepping out "Whats up Weeds Unhappy to see me?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE

*Vine Blight*Initiative: 4

INITIATIVE

*Vine Blight*Initiative: 6

INITIATIVE

*Druid*Initiative: 14*GM: (Go ahead and roll initiative)Hiere Unthere: "shit shit shit no you had to go up breadth-forward" Hiere stops pintsworth from strugglingHenry of Willowsbrook:*20.1INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of WillowsbrookSuldae Westwind:*12.15INITIATIVE (4.15)
Suldae WestwindMarcus Veranius: (28 Initiative from crit)Hiere Unthere: (23 from crit(?))Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE

*Ezmerelda d'Avenir*Initiative: 19

INITIATIVE

*Rictavio*Initiative: 15

INITIATIVE

*Kasimir Velikov*Initiative: 20*Henry of Willowsbrook: (dont you have advanttage on Initative anyway MARCUS?)Marcus Veranius: (Yee. I wouldnt be bothered rerolling if the offer to carry the crit was revoked)GM: (Marcus, you're up -- you might realize that the noise of the barrel getting jammed in the staircase has alerted the druid to the presence of your party.)

Hiere Unthere: (Henry also stepped out to greet them)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (why do I have +0.1 to initiative btw It just ocured to me I don't know why that is)

Marcus Veranius grumbles about wizards and steps forward. He aims his crossbow towards the druid in hopes of cutting off the construct's support

Henry of Willowsbrook: (After your rukus Hiere)

Hiere Unthere: (this is true)

GM: (It's a tiebreaker addition, to prevent NPCs and players from rolling the same initiative)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ah ok)

Marcus Veranius: He casts Hunter's Mark and lets loose 4 shots

26		24
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+7) Marcus Veranius
3
Bonus Damage
19
Piercing

The druid, hearing Henry first, turns her attention -- and that of her constructs -- towards him. (He has drawn their focus)

Marcus Veranius:

11		24
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+7) Marcus Veranius
2
Bonus Damage
21
Piercing
10		20
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+7) Marcus Veranius

2
Bonus Damage

21
Piercing

21 | 14
 120
>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
 Marcus Veranius

7
Bonus Damage/Bonus Damage

19
Piercing

GM: Then she's utterly obliterated by a hail of crossbow bolts lmao

Marcus Veranius: (Roll over remaining shots to construct in front)

GM: The first two shots kill the druid, the third one kills the first construct

Marcus Veranius: (...)

(Roll over last shot to 4th construct?)

GM: Wait, hang on

Ok, first two shots kill the druid, second two shots kill the first vine blight (it has 26 total HP, so the first shot doesn't quite take it out)

Marcus Veranius: (Okie)

Marcus's crossbow bolts rip into the druid, pinning her to the wall. Then his next two shots punch through both of the vine blights, striking critical parts of each mass.

The two vine blights crumble into a pile of loose vines.

GM: (They are, after all, not super solid)

Finally, two barrels spring out of the staircase, almost bowling over Hiere in their excitement to be rejoined to their master.

Marcus Veranius: (WAIT, shit)

They can barely fit into the hallway together.

Marcus Veranius: (I shouldnt have made that last shot)

(Fak, bonus actions)

GM: Oh?

Henry of Willowsbrook: "huh" Henry is surprised at how much it still surprises him to see Marcus turn foes into pincushins

Marcus Veranius: (Fleck it, I burn my action surge. Dont want to recalculate this)

GM: (Thank you

(Suldae, roll a perception check)

Hiere Unthere: "One at a time my boys" Hieres attempts to make sure they don't get jammed up again.

Suldae Westwind: "See, Henry, I knew it would be fine," Suldae says cheerfully, clapping him on the shoulder.

Being invisible, she is stricken with a compulsion to make her presence tangible and audible at all times.

11

PERCEPTION (10)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs "I just thought we wanted to be subtle"

Marcus Veranius: "Subtle went out the window with kill barrels."

Suldae Westwind: "This was relatively subtle."

Suldae has a prickling feeling that something is wrong.

Suldae Westwind: "Anyway..."

Suldae trails off.

The source of the feeling seems to be coming from outside, and seems to be approaching.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You tell me" Henry says walking into the room "Would you care to check the other rooms please"

GM: (Marcus, roll perception)

Suldae Westwind: "Something's coming, I think."

Marcus Veranius:

22

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Suldae figures she might as well not waste time and goes into the room.

Which she was intending to search.

Marcus hears the faintest sound -- like a faraway heartbeat. It is terrifyingly familiar.

Suldae finds a key hanging from a loop of twine.

Marcus Veranius takes a moment to hone his senses

Marcus Veranius:

PRIMEVAL AWARENESS (UNDEAD)
--

Class: Ranger 3

You can attune your senses to determine if any of your favored enemies lurk nearby. By spending 1 uninterrupted minute in concentration (as if you were concentrating on a spell), you can sense whether any of your favored enemies are present within 5 miles of you. This feature reveals which of your favored enemies are present, their numbers, and the creatures' general direction and distance (in miles) from you. If there are multiple groups of your favored enemies within range, you learn this information for each group.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (...It's the dragon again init?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes it and quickly glances over the mess, looking if there's anything else quickly identifiable that's useful.

She also realizes that the strange machine is a printing press, which the Martikovs probably use to label the wine bottles. There are bottles of ink in the cabinet, along with pieces of parchment and jars of glue.

Hiere Unthere: (be back in a sec gotta grab dinner)

Suldae Westwind:

30

PERCEPTION (10)
Suldae Westwind

(THANK YOU DICE)

(wasnt the druid looking for wsomething?)

Suldae finds, at the bottom of the drawer, a ledger of some kind.

It contains names -- many names. Some of which she recognizes.

The names are connected by lines and symbols. As a storyteller she realizes that this is a family tree of the Keepers of the Feather.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry searches the room dead druid for anything because if she was supposed to be snooping she would have to be importent no?

the dead druid not the room

Suldae Westwind: She slips it into her back, deciding to look it over later and then return it to the rightful owners - or just return it. Leaving it there doesn't strike her as the wisest course of action, given the premonition.

"...Let's go back downstairs," she suggests.

Somehow being on the second floor feels riskier.

Marcus senses a single undead, approaching from the east.

GM: (Roll perception again, Suldae, as you step out into the hall)

Marcus Veranius: (What type?)

(We talking Wight? Zombie?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (so do I find anything on the druid?)

Judging by its altitude, the creature could only be a vampire.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Strahd is coming."

Henry finds nothing particularly interesting on the druid except for a small stone idol to the Night Mother.

Suldae Westwind:

13

PERCEPTION (10)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: "fuck"

Suldae notices a thick white fog blanketing the vineyard outside the window.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out nervously.

The fog is getting thicker, approaching steadily.

Suldae Westwind: "So, about that basement?"

Marcus again hears the deep heartbeat from high above.

Not a heart, he realizes -- but a pair of very large wings.

Suldae Westwind: She is not sure it's a good idea, but.

Marcus Veranius: "AND the dragon!? That bastard can't let us have ONE victory!"

Marcus Veranius starts running for the first floor

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Of cause not He's a raging cunt after all" Henry lets out following as well

Ezmerelda and Kasimir and Rictavio follow.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere sees them running away "oh god p&g try keep up"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "He may not know we're still here," says Ezmerelda.

"We have to find shelter, and hope that he passes us by."

"And he may not be able to enter the manor, since it is technically a dwelling."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Basement?)"

"

Marcus Veranius: "Wont help us if the Dragon melts it!"

Marcus Veranius considers

Marcus Veranius gets an idea

The barrels do manage to make it down this wider spiral staircase, although they scrape the hallway on both sides as they bump and jostle along.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "OR would that be to risky with the stone chugging lizard around?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Didn't Davian mention something about brown mold?" Ezmerelda asks.

Marcus Veranius: "Hiere; do you have a spell known as Rope Trick?"

Hiere Unthere: "Yup do you have a rope?"

Marcus Veranius tosses Hiere some rope

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Right the Mold that grows if it gets hot and then freezes things"

Hiere Unthere:

Rope Trick

Transmutation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: A length of rope that is up to 60 feet long

Components: V, S, M (Powdered corn extract and a twisted loop of parchment)

Duration: 1 hour

You touch a length of rope that is up to 60 feet long. One end of the rope then rises into the air until the whole rope hangs perpendicular to the ground. At the upper end of the rope, an invisible entrance opens to an extradimensional space that lasts until the spell ends. The extradimensional space can be reached by climbing to the top of the rope. The space can hold as many as eight Medium or smaller creatures. The rope can be pulled into the space, making the rope disappear from view outside the space. Attacks and spells can't cross through the entrance into or out of the extradimensional space, but those inside can see out of it as if through a 3-foot-by-5-foot window centered on the rope. Anything inside the extradimensional space drops out when the spell ends.

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir; do you still have a casting of Invisibility left?"

Kasimir Velikov: "I can cast it twice more, I think, before I will need to rest."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere grabs it and cuts off a bit, yeeting it into the air as it opens up into a portal

Marcus Veranius: "Hit me once; I need to hide the others outside. They won't be able to escape Strahd's gaze."

Liliet (Suldae): (are we on the first floor? How high is the Rope Trick entrance from ground level?)

Marcus Veranius: (I mean it doesnt NEED to be high in the air. Hiere can hold the end like a foot up and that's the entrance)

Hiere Unthere: (here only took a bit, everyone can climb into it)

Marcus Veranius: (Or up to 25 feet high because thats how much rope Marcus gave)

Hiere Unthere: (hiere)

()

Kasimir touches Marcus, and Marcus turns invisible as well.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (also henry could probably throw people up into it tbh)

Marcus Veranius shifts to birb form and flies as fast as he can towards the Family waiting outside

Hiere Unthere: (in front of the rest??)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Wait, where are you going!?" Ezmerelda asks, practically shouting. She doesn't realize he has already flown away, since he transformed after becoming invisible.)

"Marcus? MARCUS!?"

Hiere Unthere: (oh right)'

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He'll be fine"

Rictavio: Rictavio chuckles. "Oh, I haven't seen a good rope trick since my last trip hunting mummies in the sands of Sekhar-Tesh."

Suldae Westwind: (yeah im curious what will happen if the manor gets destroyed)

Hiere Unthere: "I know"

Suldae Westwind: (it wont hurt us but what will it look like when we come out)

Marcus Veranius: (Hope the basement floor is closer than 25 feet down or else it'll be inconvenient to leave the rope dimension)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So just up and inside?" Henry asks standing next to the rope intent on helping people climb up if the they need to Rictavio: "Right-o, my lad. Be a good chap and make a stool, will you? I'm not as limber as I used to be."

Henry of Willowsbrook: puts his sword and shield away and interlaces his fingers to provide a foothold

Sulda Westwind: Sulda touches Ezmerelda's shoulder.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere begins reaching for his pants, wondering how that would help, then sees Henry.
"oh"

Sulda Westwind: "He'll be fine," she says.
She loves being visible again.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Vampire asshole fast approaching people"

Sulda Westwind: Sulda waits for Rictavio, Hiere, Ezmerelda and Kasimir to get inside first.

Marcus Veranius flies as fast as he can towards the others, trying to figure out how best to break the news

Rictavio is first up, followed by Kasimir. Ezmerelda hesitates, then gracefully clambers up as well.

Outside, Marcus finds the campfire and the family gathered around it, watching their former house fearfully as the dense fog rolls in.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Do go on I'll go up last"

The fog is moving through the forest, threatening to envelop them.

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd is coming and he has a dragon. I can hide up to 8 of us."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere nods at Henry, entering the hole

Marcus Veranius realises he's still invisible, but casts Rope Trick anyways

Marcus Veranius: The rope is visible

Davian: "Then I shall stay," says Davian.
"My family is all that matters."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Sulda Westwind: Sulda tries to show off a little.
* a little

26

ACROBATICS (6)
Sulda Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "This is the best I can do. I'm honored to be considered your extended family."

Sulda Westwind: She flips into the pocket dimension like a circus acrobat doing a trapeze trick, and lands into a graceful position.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a moment to look around and listen before climbing up the rope himself

Hiere Unthere: As soon as he's up Hiere pulls the rope through

Marcus Veranius flies back to the others so as to leave all 8 spots in the Rope Trick for the Martikovs

By now the fog has grown thick around the manor. The sound of wing beats has gotten loud enough for anyone to hear. As Marcus flies back into the house, he finds himself dealing with a peculiar problem. He can't see the rope trick now, and his friends inside it cannot see him.

The Martikovs use the rope trick, and Davian transforms into a raven and stays in a nearby tree.

Marcus Veranius drops a shoe on the ground, which stops being invisible when he lets go of it

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry reaches out of the hole with one arm

Marcus Veranius grabs Henry's hand, and the shoe

Suldae Westwind: Suldae takes the shoe from him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pulls him up

Suldae Westwind: (god bless having multiple casters in the party)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere examines the magic shoe

Suldae Westwind: (god bless having an all caster party lmao)
Suldae takes the shoe away from Hiere and gives it back to Marcus once he's inside.

Marcus Veranius: "Davian had to stay outside. Pray for him for me."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods and does just that.

Inside the rope trick, you stand in a void of endless white space. No sounds of the outside world can be heard. The trick shields against sound-based spells, and the circle looks a little like a scrying pool -- a window into another place, somehow partially disconnected from reality.

GM: (Roll for Divine Intervention + a Religion check, please)

Suldae Westwind: (Divine Intervention - what roll is it?)

GM: (1d100)

Suldae Westwind:

29

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

rolling d100

(80)

= 80

GM: (D A N G)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry also prays not sure it will help

Re-roll the divine intervention, with that religion check

Marcus Veranius doesn't have any gods to turn to; he only hopes for the best

Suldae Westwind: rolling d100

(91)

= 91

(WELP)

Suldae's call to Correllon is heard. She feels a note of sadness ring through her mind. Correllon cannot easily intervene in the plane of Barovia.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Could HENry implore his Fey? Nature Patrons to help?)

GM: (Yes -- same rolls)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Could I roll Nature instead of Religion?

)

GM: (Yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

15

NATURE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

rolling d100

(64)

= 64

rolling d100

(25)

= 25

(welp worth a shot)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae prays, sitting on her knees in the white void. She cannot know what is going on outside, and she cannot keep her mind off the family that she did not see Marcus help and off the one he couldn't. She can pray, at least, and hope that Corellon might be able to give at least a tiny nudge that will help.

Suldae Westwind: She feels the note of sadness and understands.

As far as Correllon interfering, mostly she is it.

And she cannot help them right now.

She opens her eyes.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry uncertain if it would help turns his attention inside to the bundle of power he knows to be his connection to his patron spirits asking them to help the Matrikovs however they can

Able: able ablr

Suldae Westwind: typo

Hiere Unthere: (back)

Suldae Westwind: E>

The fog rolls in until it presses against every window of the manor. Outside, Davian Martikov is engulfed in the white mist. His family in the rope trick is safe and hidden, and Marcus was wise enough to pull the rope trick a little ways away from their campsite. The flames gutter and die.

The heavy wing beats approach.

Something MASSIVE lands heavily on the roof of the Manor.

Kasimir is touching the mouth of the portal, allowing sound to pass through in only one direction.

You hear the rending of wooden timbers and the shattering of roofing tiles, and the deep sniffing of a tremendous beast.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae whispers a prayer again, her hand on the holy symbol, if only just to center herself, as she listens to what is happening.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere silently orders pintsworth and gallonthony to go out and and try to distract the dude

(OH)

Suldae Westwind: (HIERE DONT DRAW ATTENTION)

(he cannot know we are here)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys expression is furious and both his jaw and hands are clenched hard

Hiere Unthere: (the barrels will misdirect)

Suldae Westwind: (not for sure)

With a great rush of slithering scales, Vorgansharax the Black pushes through the shattered roof and into the second story of the building. Timbers and beams plummet and crash to the ground of the main floor.

Henry of Willowsbrook: He absolutly HATES feeling helpless

Vorgansharax's serpentine neck moves and twists, his snout ruffling with each deep, nostril-distending breath. Vorgansharax smells the flesh of humans and elves.

Vorgansharax briefly examines the chamber with the smashed druid.

Vorgansharax raises his head and unleashes an ear-splitting, thunderous roar.

Vorgansharax lowers his head once more and calmly unleashes a vast jet of acid, searing through the floor of the winery. A druid and his needle blights scream as the cellar is exposed by the gush of acidic breath.

Suldae Westwind: (haaaaaa)

Davian Martikov:

ACID BREATH
(RECHARGE 5-6)
Ancient Black Dragon

The dragon exhales acid in a 90-foot line that is 10 feet wide. Each creature in that line must make a DC 22 Dexterity saving throw, taking 67 (15d8) acid damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Suldae Westwind: (tfw your enemies are not allied)

61

Hiere Unthere: Hiere ups the most shut he's ever been

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tenses up further at the sounds of wanton destruction anger and frustration roiling inside of him

What follows is an orgy of destruction. Vorgansharax's tail and claws wreck everything in the manor. The second story collapses, and portions of the floor are smashed right through to the cellar. Load-bearing walls crumple like tin foil.

Finding two draft horses tethered in the stables, Vorgansharax devours them each with a single bite.

Marcus Veranius 's eyes close tight. He shakes, the familiar sounds of melting, screaming lungs bringing great discomfort

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sits, breathing regularly. She's semi-meditating, letting the sounds flow through her and letting her imagination draw up the rest.

No reaction.

As the timber and masonry crumbles and all that was the Wizard of Wines winery becomes a heap of smoldering wreckage and steaming, acid-charred stone, Vorgansharax pauses, and raises his head.

A figure descends from above, light as a specter.

A black cloak ruffles in an otherworldly breeze. Strahd Von Zarovich descends weightlessly toward the ruined dwelling, which his feet can now enter.

He lands lightly on the ruined stone of the main floor.

He looks around calmly, taking in the destruction.

He sniffs the air ever so delicately.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry uncoincously moves closer the exit anger and pure hatred nakedly visible in his frame stoping at the edge stopping only at the edge of the exit

Strahd von Zarovich:

PERCEPTION
Strahd von Zarovich

Skill: 21

Strand Von Zarovich smiles slightly to himself.

"They were here, my friend," says Strahd.

"We have missed them by only a few minutes."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches out for Henry and tugs him back.

"We are a coil," she tells him, "still tensing, before we can spring."

"Stay calm, for now."

Henry of Willowsbrook: He shurgs her of but still steping back

Strahd raises a hand. The corpse of a druid with a frozen head flies towards him, lifting like a puppet.

Strahd touches the dead druid on the lips.

The dead druid gasps and sputters as a semblance of life is forced into him.

"Where have they gone?" Strahd asks.

The druid does not know.

Strahd swings a hand, shattering the frozen skull like so much snow.

The druid's corpse drops back to earth.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae puts a hand on Henry's arm.

"These ones are not like the others," says Strahd. "They may yet prove to be a worthy challenge."

Vorgansharax says, in Draconic: "This one's scent is familiar -- but altered. He has taken on new attributes."

"Avian?" Asks Strahd.

Vorgansharax seems unsure.

Suldae Westwind: "Well," Suldae murmurs. "he at least suspects."

Strahd chuckles. "Perhaps Baba Lysaga was not as mistaken as I had imagined. These bird-folk will have to be dealt with."

"A pity. In a few more hundred years, I could have turned them to my own ends."

Suldae Westwind: She breathes in and out, taken by terror suddenly.

Now that's a warning they'll need to pass on.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Please not now, leave me to it for a moment" Henry grinds out "I need this...rage...if only for a bit"

Marcus Veranius grabs Henry, thankful his face could not be seen for what it was. New dread, new pain.

Marcus Veranius: Another family to lose

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hugs Marcus from behind.

She presses him tightly to herself, having a vague idea of what's going through his head right now.

She cannot think of anything to say, only hold tight.

Rictavio has gone quite pale with rage. He is vibrating slightly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns his head up eyes closed and begins taking deep breaths that ever so slowly wash away hit tension

Hiere Unthere: Hiere sits cross-legged in silence, as these strangers around him suffer

Ezmerelda seems to be in shock.

Suddenly taken by an interesting idea, Strahd reaches a lazy hand out. A crystal sphere emerges from within his black cloak, which is darker than any darkness ever seen by mortal man. It seems it may be a demiplanar entrance.

The crystal sphere hangs before him. He passes his hands over it, and light glimmers within.

Hiere Unthere: He removes his top hat, placing it in his lap

After a moment, Strahd frowns slightly.

"Interesting. Either the little elf is stronger than I gave her credit for, or she is no longer on this plane."

Vorgansharax says: "Perhaps a demiplane?"

"Naturally," says Strahd. "There is no other option. There is no escape from Barovia."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry opens his eyes still taking deep breaths

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her eyebrows and wonders if there's any other 'little elf' around he might be referring to.

Probably not.

Given context.

"How curiously frustrating. Perhaps we will need to prioritize the recapture of our friend on Mount Baratok."

Suldae Westwind: She really hopes Strahd is, in fact, giving her too little credit.

"Shall I stay here, in case they return?" asks Vorgansharax.

Suldae Westwind: Mount Baratok. She commits that to memory,

Strahd laughs. "There is nothing to return to."

"Continue the hunt. Bring me any possessions, the bodies of anyone they have slain, any body parts you can find. A single arrow caked in blood would suffice."

"This has been a waste of time."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wonders where the family of wereravens can go after this. Vallaki? The town nearby - oh. The wine. Well, so much for that, it seems.

Strahd levitates once more, soaring out of the wreckage weightlessly. The Crystal Orb dives back into his cloak, vanishing instantly.

Within a few moments, he is gone. The white mist retreats.

Suldae Westwind: She wonders what Strahd wants their possessions/kills for. It's not like it will be hard for the dragon to find some around here...

Vorgansharax takes a final sniff around the grounds of the vineyard, then with a mighty whoosh of his wings, he too is gone.

Suldae Westwind: Really doesn't sound great.

Marcus Veranius slumps, exhausted. He knows exactly why Strahd needs those things.

Suldae Westwind: "Well," she says finally, "it looks like the wereravens over there should be fine."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "So," says Ezmerelda, her voice shaking slightly. "That was Strahd Von Zarovich."

Suldae Westwind: "He didn't even look for them."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Interesting fellow."

Rictavio: "Indeed," says Van Richten.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll run him through"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lets go of Marcus, though leaves her arms at his sides still.

Marcus Veranius: "Patience. Let the spell expire." Marcus speaks, voice a cold mix of fury and pain.

Suldae Westwind: (btw Kasimir is no longer invisible)

Marcus Veranius: He focuses inwards, intent on scrying Strahd out of the 5 miles he can sense him.

Suldae Westwind: (hasnt been for some time)

Marcus Veranius: (Sensing. However Primeval Awareness works)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls his shoulders "I wasn't going to rush after him like some fool, just ...sharing my dreams you could say" his tone is strained with anger but seems like it was supposed to sound light or maybe sardonic

Marcus Veranius: "The wine was poisoned. The grape plants long expired. The tears long stolen. The vineyard decommissioned."

Marcus senses Strahd's inhuman speed, and feels it as the vampire leaves the range of his ability to sense him.

Marcus Veranius: "All he did was melt a bundle of oddly-cut wood and stone."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm sorry," Suldae tells Henry. "I've learned to not presume."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shakes his head "Years and years of hard, honest work ruined in what? 2 minutes by some monsters fancy" He runs a hand over his face "Fuck this and fuck him"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "When the time comes, we will make him pay," says Ezmerelda.

"And there may still be wine in the cellar, actually."

Ezmerelda says this like someone who has good instincts about wine.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Hiere Unthere: "hey.. who was that?"

Marcus Veranius: "If there is, that makes our next move easier."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The 'Master' of this realm and the monster we are going to kill"

Hiere Unthere: "he really goes out of his way to be a massive prick"

Rictavio: "That, my friend, was Strahd von Zarovich. A cruel and petty tyrant."

Suldae Westwind: "He does," Suldae nods to Hierie's words.

Wise, they are.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir lowers his hood, revealing his mangled ears.

"We all have lost much to that being who was once a man."

"He is a devil now -- or as close to it as any mortal has ever come."

Marcus Veranius: "But this is a new development."

"I have met Strahd three times."

"The first, he saw me as nothing but furniture in that cursed house."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a very deep breath "While we wait does anyone have some rags I could use to clean up ...this" he gestures to his still quite gory legs and chest

Marcus Veranius: "The second, he saw me as a thorn to his siege of Vallaki."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir waves a hand. The gore and blood vanishes in the wake of his Prestidigitation.

Marcus Veranius: "That he now sees us as a threat means we can now make him afraid."

Suldae Westwind: "It also means that he'll devote that much more effort to hunting us down," Suldae notes.

"Though, better us, than..."

She trails off.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thank you kindly Kasimir" Henry nods at him tone now almost at his normal mildness

Kasimir Velikov: "Think nothing of it, my friend. It is a simple cantrip."

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd's search for our kills and disposed-of objects is him attempting to scry us out. Any information he can get. He did the same trying to find Ireena, using Ismark's corpse to find the house, then his flask to find Ireena."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere gives them all the wide look eyes

Suldae Westwind: "I can do that too, by the way," Suldae murmurs.

"Just.. ask me. I'm getting a little too used to this."

She takes out the ocarina and starts playing, mending all the damage done to armor and clothes.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Aw, thank you Suldae!" Ezmerelda says. "My leg was dented by that stupid badger. You fixed it!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Sulking doesn't suit you Suldae" Henry says with lopsided grin pulling her close for a hug suit

Kasimir Velikov: "I wonder why he did not see the other kills, outside?"

Suldae Westwind: She nods, playing the song on.

She leans into Henry's hug, still playing.

Hiere Unthere: "the.. what now?"

Kasimir Velikov: "The corpses we left behind," says Kasimir.

Suldae Westwind: It's a little awkward to play while being hugged, but she's not complaining.

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "He wouldnt have gained any more information than the druid's head."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at him. That is, indeed, a great question.

Marcus Veranius: "This is a game of hunter VS hunter."

Kasimir Velikov: "If any of us left our arrows or javelins in the corpses, he could," says Kasimir.

Hiere Unthere: (goddammit tops)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry leans down and whispers "Thank you" into her ear quite enough even Kasimir's elven hearing should miss it

Marcus Veranius blinks, thinking of Kasimir's suggestion. He's right.

Marcus Veranius: "...we'll check the yard when Rope Trick expires."

Hiere Unthere: "...we have a while"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "One of my Javelins started to turn into a tree, That might have helped with that" Henry opinions

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes, relaxing into her companion's embrace, and keeps playing. A song of simple, warm, sturdy things. A roof to sleep under, a bed to sleep in, a door to shut against the world outside. Comfort taken in mundanity, in having things that will serve you well, no matter what people do.

She thinks the plants outside that she'd animated might be helping with the cleanup, but does not allow that to interrupt the song.

Suldae feels a spiritual harmony playing somewhere nearby. It seems to grow in power as she plays.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere wonders where that shoe is Outside the windows, the dawn light is beginning to rise. It has been a long night.

Marcus Veranius: (I thought it was afternoon)

GM: (Pretty sure you started your attack at nightfall? Resting through the day before, remember?)
(Since one among you cannot gain any benefit from long-resting at night)

Suldae Westwind: (...it has been a very short night.)
(How far north is Barovia? XD)

Marcus Veranius: (Arrived at dawn after Hell Night, rested to Noon. Afternoon of Demon Hell, Winery Raid in the evening)

Suldae Westwind: (I think we rested until evening)
(let me check)

Marcus Veranius: (Not even evening; maybe like 3 PM)

GM: (I was pretty sure you started the raid after nightfall, but I could be crazy)

Marcus Veranius: (I've been keeping track of the time since Marcus's lycanthropy works on Sonic Unleashed mechanics)

Hiere Unthere: (LMAO)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'm pretty sure if anything it should Turn dark now if even that

Marcus Veranius: (OK, backlog dived. We left Kresek BEFORE dawn's light broke)

Hiere Unthere: (rp noises)

Marcus Veranius: (However long we took to get to the winery, maybe a handful of hours)
(+ 9 hours resting)

Suldae Westwind: (We spent the entire day resting, and Davian woke us up when they started the ritual)

(which makes sense to be during the night as DM said)

After Suldae finishes mending everything, she spends time telling stories.

Stories of light and joy, and triumph over darkness.

Children's tales with happy endings.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere occasionally interjects saying that he knows that happened

Suldae Westwind: Some of them she alters from original versions to be a little less disturbing.

She summons up her memories of tales of chivalry and miracles.

>>>>> rewinding time a little

As Suldae plays, she feels spiritual, otherworldly harmonies building in power just outside the rope trick.

Suldae Westwind: She keeps playing, eyes closed, keeping the melody to the same tone. She lets the harmony flow through her, letting the power into her music.

The harmony beyond the rope trick grows in power, and suddenly there is a crescendo of glass and timber. A shattered window has sprung up from the floor, each shard reconnecting to its brethren, and the window is socketed once more into place -- whole and undamaged.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in and out.

Oh.

She hops out of the rope trick space and keeps playing, tapping her foot and upping the tempo a little.

She feels the Weave stretch and bend around her.

Too much magic has been done here for it to not be... pliable.

Fallen timbers leap back into position. Shattered windows dance back into place. Broken barrels and spilled wine recollect themselves. The second floor jumps back into position all at once, simultaneous with the load-bearing walls. The roof rushes back up as though falling in reverse, and with a clunking of roofing tiles, the damage is undone.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere claps excitedly

The last stone slots into place with a satisfied crunch.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae brings the song to crescendo, then gently winds down.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows her outside to see what's going on and well because she jumped out alone

The harmonies continue for a while, dancing around the vineyard.

Suldae Westwind: Strahd might be the master of this realm, but it is not so vulnerable to him and he might want.

Suldae goes around where she remembers the fighting, starting up a new melody, cleaning up the grime and dirt and blood.

Soon the place looks almost better than new.

Suldae Westwind: She doesn't think she can do anything about the poison, but she is sure the wereravens can handle that.

She comes back to the rope trick space and smiles at Henry and everyone else she presumes is watching.

"He is not so powerful as he thinks," she says.

"When he pushes, the land pushes back."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir rubs his chin thoughtfully.

"Most intriguing..."

Marcus Veranius looks outside, the smell of acid having ceased, then smiles wide.

Marcus Veranius: "Then it's our job to meet it halfway and push back just as hard."

Suldae Westwind: "Now just to hope he doesn't come back when they're here," she murmurs. "Here's to stirring up more trouble elsewhere."

Marcus Veranius: "And I have just the plan! Strahd won't see it coming."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry tilts his head and raises an eyebrow before holding out a hand wreathed in golden and emerald light "You don't say"

Suldae Westwind 's initiative is 20

Suldae Westwind 's initiative is 7

Suldae Westwind 's initiative is 20.15

Liliet (Suldae): so I think we were going outside to look at the druid corpses which might or might not still be there

Zanshukun: Henry was already on his way out

Marcus Veranius knows they aren't there. Acid does a good job of erasing all traces of a person.

Outside, you hear the singing of a turtledove.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Is this the right environment for turtledoves? Henry wonders Scratch that. It's definitely an owl.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

24

NATURE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere: Hiere hops out of the rope trick soothes Gallonthony and Pintsworth as they gently fall asleep.

*and

Marcus Veranius slides down the Rope Trick and offers to help everyone else down as well

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry makes his way to the backyard of the winery to see if the dragon took any of the corpses they left there...and to check on the tree that once was his javelin

Liliet (Suldae): (why is turn order still on?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry is about to run into a hambush..and its gone)

Hiere Unthere: (ham bush?)

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (like an ambush only porkier)

 Liliet (Suldae):

 GM (GM): one sec

 Liliet (Suldae): E>

 Hiere Unthere:
ε>

As Henry steps outside, he sees a curious sight: his javelin has bloomed into a grand tree, fully-grown, covered in white flowers. Where the corpses fell, you see strange masses of dead leaves, covering them from view. Small plants seem to be growing from them, pushing up through the mulch, already tipped with tiny green leaves.

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae comes outside and stops in awe.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Magic is wierd man" Henry mutters to himself while approaching the tree

 Liliet (Suldae): (let me check the duration of speak with plants)
(nm it has run out by now)

 Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir, following Suldae, stops. He smiles and breathes deeply, as though drinking in something in the air.

 Marcus Veranius looks over the strange sight. "Remind me to consult you if my carrots aren't growing in right."

 Kasimir Velikov: "This is your doing," says Kasimir, looking at Henry.
"And yours as well," he says, to Suldae.

 Hiere Unthere: "I was about to say that"

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "If you say so" Henry says absentmindedly running his hand along the trees bark

A flurry of leaves moves suddenly across the yard, dancing from the new tree to the Old Oak. For a moment, it looks almost like the shape of a young woman running.

 Kasimir Velikov: "I believe that may be a dryad," says Kasimir.

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae walks slowly over the clearing, bending down to gently stroke the leaves of the new growths

 Hiere Unthere: "GAH! there's more!"

 Henry of Willowsbrook: to Marcus he replies "Don't need magic for that just some proper planting"

 Suldae Westwind: She bows to the dryad.

 Hiere Unthere: "oh"

"of course"

Suldae recognizes the new growths as grape vines. Perhaps the same ones she spoke to!

Or the descendants of them, at any rate.

Suldae Westwind: "Well," she says gently, "it seems as though wine will continue to be made here."

Rictavio: Rictavio emerges from the doorway and eyes the situation. "Well, that's convenient. Let's hope Nature continues to cover our tracks."

Suldae Westwind: She closes her eyes and breathes in the air. She was part of something bigger, here, and it feels as though the entire land breathes joy.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmeralda, at Marcus's shoulder, says "I think it may still be wise to take precautions wherever we go."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Right wine" Henry mutters "We promised to get some for the people of Krezk" Suldae Westwind: "Good plan," Suldae chuckles, turning to Esmerelda.

"We should go check on the family and tell them how it went here."

Marcus Veranius: "I need to start collecting my arrows more diligently." Marcus murmurs. At least the land was starting to fight back against Strahd's oppression. That, or Henry and Suldae managed to recreate the ancient wizard's magic and manufacture a 4th seed.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns "I'll go check if there is any untainted wine left"

Marcus Veranius: "I'd suggest purifying it to rid the poison but that probably won't help the taste."
"Beggars can't be choosers though. Bad wine is better than no wine."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: In the cellar, Henry finds seven barrels of sealed, untainted wine.

In the cellar, Henry finds seven barrels of sealed, untainted wine.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry begins moving them upstairs

The wine still in the vats has all been poisoned, unfortunately.

Hiere Unthere: "Henry no! Not the stairs"

Henry finds a barrel track in one of the towers. It spirals up from the cellar, allowing him to get it to the main floor.

Hiere Unthere: "I warned you about stairs man!"
"I told you dog!"

Here suddenly realizes that the stairs he was meant to warn Henry about are actually in a castle, not a manor. Oh well, it's an easy mistake to make.

Hiere*

Suldae Westwind: Suldae decides that moving heavy things is not what she's here for and sits in the yard playing instead.

Henry of Willowsbrook: moving up the ramp Henry turns to Hiere "You know what I'm not even going to ask"

Suldae Westwind: This time, it's just for the company's benefit - a lovely, uplifting tune.

The leaves and petals dance, although there is no breeze.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere tries to take a barrel up the ramp in his everlasting quest to become more ripped than Suldae

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry muses if he could carry more than one barrel but decides that the risk of dropping them and spilling the wine isn't worth the extra bit of exercise

Henry effortlessly moves the barrels like a beast. Hiere makes it halfway before he has to take a break.

Marcus Veranius heads to the other Rope Trick with Ezmeralda in tow. Best to see how the family is doing before pillaging their wine cellar

Hiere Unthere: "I'm.. I'm okay"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae joins Marcus.

She follows at a distance, playing for her own entertainment, to minimize third wheeliness.

Ezmeralda d'Avenir: "You were good, back there," says Ezmeralda.

"I'm sorry about your family. Next time we face that dragon of yours, the outcome will be very different. I have a good feeling about that."

Marcus Veranius smiles

Rictavio: "And her good feelings are never wrong!" Says Rictavio, clapping Marcus on the back. He somehow has managed to insert himself between the two of them.

"Funny thing about Vistani -- they all have a bit of magic in them. Prophetic visions, the gift of the evil eye, good stuff."

"But she's right. Next time you face the dragon, you won't be facing him alone."

Marcus Veranius goes silent at Rictavio's interjection, somehow not comforted by having more allies to lose. But it wasn't like he could take on the dragon alone...

Marcus Veranius: "...yeah. It'll go better. For sure."

Coming through the trees, the party comes across the campsite. The fire has died, the ashes have cooled. The family is nowhere to be seen. Presumably, they have pulled the rope up into the rope trick.

Rictavio:

(Perception checks)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes closer, having also missed Rictavio's appearance.

Marcus Veranius:

PERCEPTION (10)
 Marcus Veranius

Marcus spots a small black form lying at the base of a nearby tree.

It is a dead Raven, lying on its back with its legs in the air.

It must have suffocated in the deadly fog, and fallen from its perch.

Suldae Westwind: There is no more point in trying to not third wheel.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: oh wow

Marcus Veranius: No ending was ever perfect.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae kneels next to it, unsure what to do next.

She sits there in silence, paying respects as best she can.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Is that...?"

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir mutters an elven prayer.

Marcus Veranius: "The rope trick could only hold 8 people."

"One family elder stayed behind."

Rictavio: "Well, it's a good thing we got some wine! The poor bastard's family will be needing a good drink."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda gets calmly to her feet and punches Rictavio on the shoulder. It sounds like it was a good punch.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flips R off without moving from her place otherwise.

Marcus Veranius kneels, a mix of mourning and bitter regret. Everyone was saved except the one person he needed to negotiate with. How was he to get the Feather's blessing for a spouse now?

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Go," says Ezmerelda. "Go sit with your face to a tree and do not come back until you have felt shame."

Rictavio: Rictavio begins to protest, but seeing the thunder in her brows, he obeys, walking off a short distance into the trees.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda crouches again beside Marcus, putting a hand on his shoulder.

"Does that mean his family is around here, somewhere?"

"I am unfamiliar with this spell."

Marcus Veranius: "Several meters southwest in an invisible pocket dimension. I... don't think he's in their sight."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Let us at least put him into a more dignified position," says Ezmerelda.

Hiere Unthere: (they would've been pooped out the rope trick after an hour right?)

Marcus Veranius nods, laying the elder on its... side? What's a dignified position? Is it dignified to move him at all?

Marcus Veranius is a bundle of frustrations and doesn't have the patience for figuring out bird etiquette.

The hour ends. There is a quiet whooshing sound as a demiplane turns itself inside out, dumping several people in the ferns nearby.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is still sitting in the same position, quietly mourning.

Adrian Martikov gets to his feet, then helps up Elvir, Stefania, and Dag Tomescu.

Adrian: "Is the vineyard still there? What happened with the dragon? Are you all alright? What are you all looking... at..."

Stefania covers the eyes of Martin and Viggo.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Dag, holding the infant Yolanda, presses her close to himself with one arm, and puts the other around his wife's shoulders. It is her father, after all.

Marcus Veranius has no words that could help. No comfort could brace this Elvir stands a little apart from the others, his fists clenching and unclenching.

Adrian: "Of course... The fog..."

Adrian beats his forehead with a fist.

Marcus Veranius: "Baba Lysaga has made her move. Strahd marches to war against the Feather."

Suldae Westwind: "...I'm sorry," Suldae says, and it is not a platitude. She is overwhelmed with the bitter feeling of shame, the feeling that they could have done better, could have done more. It should not have been like this.

Marcus Veranius: "By Damien's name, she shall not breathe beyond the new moon."

Suldae Westwind: (consider this to have ben said before Marcus started talking)

Adrian looks from Suldae to Marcus. He nods, understanding.

Will you join us, for his final feast?

Adrian: "Will you join us, for his final feast?" (Sorry wrong thingy)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lowers her head in a nod. They could not do less.

Marcus Veranius nods. "We may not have known each other long, but he was family. It is my duty to honor him."

Adrian: "Elvir, will you go find us some firewood? Stefania, he was our father. It is our duty to prepare him."

Stefania: Stefania nods.

She gathers up the body of her father and brings it back toward the camp area, and sets him upon a wooden cutting board.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "What are they doing?" asks Ezmerelda. "Is this normal?"

She says this in a whisper, of course.

Suldae Westwind: "Funeral customs are different from culture to culture," Suldae murmurs to her. This is all the useful input she has.

Adrian: "Father, you died as we all hope one day to die: upon a high perch, in wingéd form! Even now, you rest in the court of the Raven Queen. The duty falls to us to send back the body of your companion. His meat shall not be the food of a wild dog, nor shall the trees and worms of this cursed world know his flesh. As has been done for countless generations, the Feather will Keep the Feather."

Stefania: Sniffing a little, Stefania sets about briskly dressing the small corpse. The work is done quickly. The feathers are collected in a basket, the meat is cut into portions and seasoned.

Elvir: "I found some wood! It's dry enough."

Adrian: "Good, let us start the fire."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae watches. She is actually slightly uncomfortable with this, but... it is not as though it does not make sense.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, when they say final feast, they mean..."

"Oh."

Rictavio: Rictavio comes back just then. His face is long and full of an inner darkness. He pauses at the edge of the clearing, and watches in silence.

The fire is soon lit. Incense and herbs are added to the flame, so that the smoke roils up in sweet-scented curls.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is quiet, and looks to other members of the family for hints on how to behave.

Stefania places the meat into a pan and fries it carefully over the fire -- first one side, then the other.

Kasimir Velikov: "Those of us who are not Keepers of the Feather should not partake in this meal," says Kasimir, quietly. "It would break the entire purpose of the ritual."

"Not to mention, it might transmit the curse."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda looks at Marcus. A small spot of color rises to her cheekbones.

Adrian: "Who among you is a member of the Keepers of the Feather?"

Adrian, Elvir, Stefania, Dag Tomescu, and the children all raise their hands.

Marcus Veranius raises his hand, a bit nervous of these funeral arrangements. This was not the type of pyre he originally thought it to be Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda raises her hand. "Don't say anything," she hisses to Marcus.

Rictavio: Rictavio folds his arms, raising an eyebrow.

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir looks as though he means to say something, but stops himself.

Marcus Veranius looks to Ezmerelda with fear, trying to hide it from the others. This was wrong. It was both disrespectful towards their elder and against the oaths of the Feather. It would never be forgiven.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae raises her hand.

She is not looking at Ezmerelda.

There is not much meat to go around. Each member of the Keepers (plus Ezmerelda) is given a single morsel -- not even enough for a mouthful.

Adrian raises his morsel. "To Davian," he says. "May you find rest in the court of the Raven Queen."

Adrian and the rest eat their morsels.

Marcus Veranius turns to the sky, well aware of what kind of disaster this was about to be. He eats the morsel, and inside his head prays for forgiveness

Suldae Westwind: Suldae eats hers. She still hasn't noticed.

Ezmerelda eats her morsel. She swallows.

Her eyes roll up into her head and she collapses in the undergrowth, right in front of Marcus.

Just then, a wagon drawn by two animated barrels makes its way through the trees, led by Henry and Hiere.

Adrian: "Ah! The wine! You saved the wine!"

Hiere Unthere: (the barrels only lasted for a minute!!!)

Adrian: "This is the perfect timing for the Rite of Ascension."

Hiere Unthere: (that's why hiere 'put them to sleep')

GM: (Hiere didn't know that, and the barrels don't know that, so they haven't stopped being alive yet. They were kind of enjoying the whole animated thing.)

Hiere Unthere: (oh)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notices what happened to Ezmerelda.

Hiere Unthere: (well tbf I didn't know that hiere didn't know that)

Marcus Veranius uses the distraction to cover up Esmeralda. "You will need to continue the rights without us. Wound stitches popped open."

Marcus Veranius attempts to drag her out of sight

Suldae Westwind: She realizes what happened and steps in front of Marcus and Ezmerelda herself.

"I'll help take care of it," she says.

Rictavio: Rictavio crosses the clearing. "I am afraid we cannot join you for this rite, my friends. We have a dragon to slay, and wine to deliver. How many barrels would you like to keep? It is your wine, after all."

Suldae Westwind:

Major Image

Illusion 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A spot that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A bit of fleece)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

You create the image of an object, a creature, or some other visible phenomenon that is no larger than a 20-foot cube. The image appears at a spot that you can see within range and lasts for the duration. It seems completely real, including sounds, smells, and temperature appropriate to the thing depicted. You can't create sufficient heat or cold to cause damage, a sound loud enough to deal thunder damage or deafen a creature, or a smell that might sicken a creature (like a troglodyte's stench). As long as you are within range of the illusion, you can use your action to cause the image to move to any other spot within range. As the image changes location, you can alter its appearance so that its movements appear natural for the image. For example, if you create an image of a creature and move it, you can alter the image so that it appears to be walking. Similarly, you can cause the illusion to make different sounds at different times, even making it carry on a conversation, for example. Physical interaction with the image reveals it to be an illusion, because things can pass through it. A creature that uses its action to examine the image can determine that it is an illusion with a successful Intelligence (Investigation) check against your spell save DC. If a creature discerns the illusion for what it is, the creature can see through the image, and its other sensory qualities become faint to the creature.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher, the spell lasts until dispelled, without requiring your Concentration.

Adrian: "A single barrel should suffice!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm really not sure how ths works but ... Hey What's going on ?"

Suldae Westwind: She casts an illusion of, well Ezmerelda on top of Ezmerelda.

The illusory Ezmerelda laughs convincingly.

Marcus Veranius: "The side-effect of Druids and their pointy thorn-sticks unfortunately. It was a hard night for all of us."

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir walks past, nudging the fallen Ezmerelda with her shoe. She becomes invisible.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows Marcus's lead on how to act about it.

The illusory Ezmerelda says "Yes, I think they had something on those sticks. My hands look funny!"

Marcus Veranius moves a bit faster. To Ezmeralda's wag.....

Marcus Veranius: No. That was a super bad idea.

Marcus Veranius turns to the Wine Cart instead

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What's going on with Ezmeralda she was fine when you left tooh" Henry trails off seeing the obvious funeral pyre

Taking stock of the Matrikovs Henry grimaces "Davian didn't make it?" He asks voice terse Marcus Veranius lets Henry's catch-up montage cover his escape.

Rictavio: "We need to go. Now." Rictavio utters this in a sharp whisper as he walks past Henry.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere wonders what the fuck is going on but decides not to say anything

Kasimir Velikov: "It was an honor to meet you," says Kasimir, bowing deeply. "May your journey be a safe and blessed one."

Adrian: "Are you sure you won't stay for the wine?" He doesn't seem like he's all that terribly concerned about whether or not you do, and may in fact be hoping you leave the wine to him and his family.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "My condolences" Henry hurries out "We moved the corpses out of the house and eh we're borrowing this wagon...and those barrels"

Adrian: "By all means, borrow the cart. If you're making the deliveries I feel better already."
"Barovia needs its wine."

Marcus Veranius: "I'm still recovering from the Dwarven stuff Danika served me a while back. Half a month and I still have a hangover!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is quiet, for once trying to not draw attention to herself, between the invisible Ezmerelda and the illusion she's maintaining.

Marcus Veranius: "I literally couldn't."

Rictavio: "Who's driving these.... Barrels?"

"Because whoever it is should really get them rolling! We have a Krezk to get to. At this rate we may get there just before dawn."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Take a guess"

Hiere Unthere: "They have names you know" Hiere says curtly.

Kasimir Velikov: "They do?" Kasimir says this with genuine interest.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere introduces Gallonthony and Pintsworth to the fools

Hiere stops talking to himself and introduces Gallonthony and Pintsworth to the others

Kasimir Velikov: Kasimir says the names out loud. Suddenly he cracks a smile and bursts into uproarious laughter. "Gallonthony! Pintsworth!"

Hiere Unthere: "..."

Kasimir Velikov: Wiping his eyes and holding his stomach, he says "Ah, you have a clever wit."

"I have not laughed like that since..."

His face goes back to a tragic expression of brooding.

Rictavio: Rictavio raises an eyebrow.

"Right, yes, well, let's go."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...Okay then" Henry spurs on the barrels like he would with a horse hoping it will work and questioning what his life turned into

Hiere Unthere: Hiere grabs the reins from him. "stop being mean"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hums under her breath, a boppy melody charming a nearby fae spirit into helping.

Unseen Servant

Conjuration 1 (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: An unoccupied space on the ground within range

Components: V, S, M (A piece of string and a bit of wood)

Duration: 1 hour

This spell creates an invisible, mindless, shapeless force that performs simple tasks at your command until the spell ends. The servant springs into existence in an unoccupied space on the ground within range. It has AC 10, 1 hit point, and a Strength of 2, and it can't attack. If it drops to 0 hit points, the spell ends. Once on each of your turns as a bonus action, you can mentally command the servant to move up to 15 feet and interact with an object. The servant can perform simple tasks that a human servant could do, such as fetching things, cleaning, mending, folding clothes, lighting fires, serving food, and pouring wine. Once you give the command, the servant performs the task to the best of its ability until it completes the task, then waits for your next command. If you command the servant to perform a task that would move it more than 60 feet away from you, the spell ends.

Suldae directs the spirit with gestures, grateful for the 'unseen' part of the spell.

Marcus Veranius lays Ezmeralda down inside the wagon, shoving barrels around so there's suitable space. "Oh, this isn't good. We're in so much trouble. There are all kinds of proper oaths and we've broken no less than two in a single night!"

Marcus Veranius: He whispers in a panic, trying not to be overheard by those outside

Henry of Willowsbrook: "To Krezk then" Henry says getting off the cart to walk beside it

Suldae Westwind: -----

THE BIG RETCON

Marcus Veranius uses the distraction to cover up Esmeralda. "You will need to continue the rights without us. Wound stitches popped open."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae Westwind:She casts an illusion of, well Ezmerelda on top of Ezmerelda.

Marcus Veranius:"The side-effect of Druids and their pointy thorn-sticks unfortunately. It was a hard night for all of us."

Kasimir Velikov:Kasimir walks past, nudging the fallen Ezmerelda with her shoe. She becomes invisible.

Suldae helps Marcus move 'hurt' Ezmerelda onto the cart, with the illusion pretending consciousness.

Illusion!Ezmerelda is being quiet, grimacing in "pain".

After several minutes, the cart leaves the campsite and the grieving family behind. Things rattle along in silence for a while, then Rictavio says: "Bloody fool girl."

Kasimir Velikov: "Where are we headed? Do we go to Krezk?"

Marcus Veranius turns to Rictavio with a glare. "It's already done! There's no point scolding each other about it!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has dropped the illusion by now and is sitting with unconscious Ezmerelda in her lap.

(Is she transforming/transformed?)

Ezmerelda has, strangely, not transformed. She is sweating and muttering in her sleep.

Marcus Veranius: "What do we do now? This all happened without the Feather's blessing and they WILL find out in no longer than 5 days."

"The last thing I want is for Ezmeralda to get the Larnak treatment!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ok what in the heavens shinny pants happend?!"

Suldae Westwind: "Ezmerelda lied about being part of the Order of the Feather, ate something she shouldn't have, and now might or might not have gotten the curse," Suldae says.

"Marcus... I think you might as well peck her to make sure she DOES get it."

Rictavio: "Maybe they just didn't cook the old bastard long enough."

Suldae Westwind: "I don't know what's happening with her but it might be wrong."

Marcus Veranius: "ABSOLUTELY NOT! What happened was not in the spirit of the oath but also not against it's wording."

"But infecting her WOULD and WILL!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry Stops to look at Rictavio " Next time I'll deck you "

Suldae Westwind: "...Good point."

Hiere Unthere: "WHAT"

Suldae Westwind: "Hiere, let us save the explanation for when WE understand what's happening?"

Hiere Unthere: "IS HAPPENING"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae suggests.

Marcus Veranius: "THE WORST CASE SCENARIO! KEEP DRIVING DAMNIT!"

Hiere Unthere: "OKAY"

Suldae Westwind: She considers the situation, then starts humming softly.

Goodberry

Transmutation 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: See text

Components: V, S, M (A sprig of mistletoe)

Duration: Instantaneous

Up to ten berries appear in your hand and are infused with magic for the duration. A creature can use its action to eat one berry. Eating a berry restores 3 hit points, and the berry provides enough nourishment to sustain a creature for one day. The berries lose their potency if they have not been consumed within 24 hours of the casting of this spell.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell at a higher level, the berry restores 1 more hit point for each level above 1st.

This is the best she can do - an appeal to the spirits of the land to grant relief.

Rictavio: Rictavio shrugs. "Ezmerelda made her choice, and its effects will play out one way or the other."

Suldae Westwind: She feeds one of the berries that appear in her hand to Ezmerelda.

Ezmerelda -- even unconscious -- manages to eat the berry.

Suldae Westwind: "I can think of worse scenarios than this, Marcus," she tells him.

She groans softly, but does not wake.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae hums, rocking her gently.

Hopefully the berry does SOMETHING.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere whispers to Suldae about keeping a hand over Rictavio's mouth

Suldae Westwind: Suldae murmurs "I'm busy, but a good plan" to him.

Marcus Veranius: "And YOU Rictavio!" Marcus turns again, glare redoubled. "I don't know what your problem is; trusting me completely until I idly smile to your acquaintance!"

Rictavio: Rictavio coldly ignores this, walking a little apart from the group. After a while, he says: "There was a rumor I heard a while back, about some kind of saint or monk in the Abbey of Krezk. He is said to be immortal, and to have strange, inhuman powers. He may be just another mask of Strahd, but he may also be a good person to talk to about our little... Problem."

Marcus Veranius frowns

Suldae Westwind: SHORT TIMEOUT

who is walking and who is on the cart and who what

Marcus Veranius is in the cart with Ezmeralda

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry massages the bridge of his nose "Let's get to Krezk first and we'll sort this out when we get there"

Rictavio and Kasimir are both walking. Rictavio is off to the left of the cart, Kasimir is off to the right.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is walking

Hiere Unthere: Hiere is reining

Suldae Westwind: so is Marcus right next to Suldae then?

Henry of Willowsbrook: about even with the barrels in front of the group

Suldae Westwind: okay, let's say Suldae is sitting with her back to Hiere in the front, which lets him whisper in her ear easily.

Marcus Veranius: If Suldae is next to Esmeralda, yes. He has not moved an inch away from her side Suldae Westwind: Ezmerelda is in Suldae's lap, at least her head.

(Because Suldae is the party healer and that's how she acts when someone's hurt)

Marcus Veranius: "You know Rictavio, I don't know why I keep forgiving you after everything. You'd think I would have learned after the first burn and your casual send-off note, yet here we are. My heart still open and trusting, and you cutting into it ever so casually."

Rictavio stops abruptly, leaning on his cane. He breathes in deeply.

Rictavio continues walking.

Rictavio: "Ezmerelda is like a daughter to me, Marcus."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces audibly at everything that is happening.

Rictavio: "And you are too much a man like myself for me to trust her heart to you."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Suldae Westwind: "He is not," Suldae says.

Marcus Veranius: "No. He's right."

Suldae Westwind: "He might have been like you at one point but he's changing where you're not."

Marcus Veranius: "And I don't care."

Suldae Westwind: "Don't just assume he'll repeat your mistakes."

Hiere Unthere: "I don't know either of you and I agree with sundae here"

Suldae Westwind: "Help him not do it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "What does it matter if he does she is her own woman"

Marcus Veranius: "I entered this wasteland of a country seeking a quick death, and here I am. Feeling whole for the first time in a year."

Henry of Willowsbrook: he does approve (damnit

Marcus Veranius: "This woman is the part of me I was missing, and damned if I don't try to win her heart!"

Suldae Westwind: "If she enters our family," Suldae adds calmly, "she enters the whole of it. Do you think I would let her get hurt?"

She turns to face Rictavio.

Time to cash in the faith chips.

Rictavio: Rictavio's face softens.

Marcus Veranius: "Maybe I'm not the best person. I've made my mistakes, and they're graver than most. But I can still be better."

"...I just hope she lasts to see it."

Rictavio: Rictavio sighs. "She is a strong woman. I am sure she will pull through."

Suldae Westwind: "Admittedly," Suldae adds with a sigh, leaning back against the cart's border. "I cannot necessarily stop her from hurting herself when she's determined to."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If she dies we are mostlikely cushioning her fall with our bodies already so..."
Henry morbidly adds without turning around

Suldae Westwind: Suldae chuckles to that.

Marcus Veranius doesn't find the joke so funny

Suldae Westwind: "Have either of you two ever heard of talking to other people before making decisions?"

Rictavio: Rictavio smiles. "I could never stop her will. The night she lost her leg? I have blamed myself for it for many years, but it was she who made the choice to follow me into the werewolf den. She saved my life."

Suldae Westwind: "I think I'm teaching Marcus about it, at least slowly. Ezmerelda's next, I swear to god," *gods

(yeah im going with 'gods' here in the saying)

(Suldae worships one but swears to the whole lot here)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I get it, matters of the heart lead people to do down right stupid things some- no most of the time" Henry adds 'Just look at this sorry fool for that' he adds mentally

Rictavio: Rictavio looks at Henry with curiosity for the first time. "And here I was thinking you were just some muscle in armor."

Hiere Unthere: "oh no that's all me"

Suldae Westwind: "You really don't pay attention a lot, do you," Suldae says calmly.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Mar...cus..." Ezmerelda mutters, eyelids fluttering. She stirs restlessly but does not wake.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You are forgiven for your grave misjudgement of my esteemed personage" Henry calls out in a singsong Rictavio: Rictavio laughs humorlessly.

"I'll admit to being a poor judge of many things, character included."

Suldae Westwind: Backhanded insults to her family is not something she is willing to take lying... sitting... down.

Marcus Veranius frowns, holding Ezmeralda's hand

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda's fingers close around Marcus's hand. She smiles a little, and seems to rest more deeply.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles absentmindedly, her eyes on Ezmerelda.

She moves to check her vital signs.

GM: (Medicine check please)

Suldae Westwind:

8

MEDICINE (6)
Suldae Westwind

(i was doing that)

(and, FUCKING WOW)

(it just takes me 2+ minutes to do a skill check)

(i really need to make macros for that)

Suldae is able to find a pulse, and determines that Ezmerelda is, at the very least, stable. Her condition does not seem to be worsening.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how far have we traveled by now?)

Rictavio: "We're nearly there," says Rictavio.

"Should be just beyond that stand of trees."

The forest is thinning on both sides, and the air has gotten colder. Light snow is on the ground.

The journey has taken a little over an hour and a half, and it is just now about two in the morning.

The cart comes clear of the forest, and the walled city of Krezk once again comes into view.

You hear a strange, almost inhuman cry. It echoes oddly over the mountainside. It seems to be coming from the abbey perched above the main township.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns around and peers in that direction worriedly.

From here, you can see light in only one window of the Abbey -- one of the high windows of the eastern wing, from the looks of things. The rest of the Abbey is wrapped in darkness.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "One day, Is one day really to much to ask for"

Marcus Veranius: (STILL NO LONG REST, STILL LOW ON COOLDOWNS)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae has successfully run out of her most useful spell slots - lvl 3. Thankfully she still has some lvl 4 and 5 ones that can substitute)

Hiere Unthere: (Here only has 1s and 2s)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves ahead of the cart towards the Gate looking to find the Guards

Hiere Unthere: "we don't want to go there, riiiiight?"

The guards stand on the walls, looking frightened as usual.

Suldae Westwind: "Everywhere else is worse," Suldae cheerfully informs him.

As the party approaches, one of them shouts: "It's them! It's them! They've brought the wine!"

Suldae Westwind: "We have!" she cries to the guards.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "HEY WE GOT YOUR BOOZE OPEN UP" Henry yells

Marcus Veranius: "The LAST of the wine. Davian and his distillery were destroyed by druids."

"Wake the Baron!"

A few quiet minutes later, a groggy Baron pokes his head over the ramparts.

"What the devil are you waiting for? Let them in!"

The gates of Krezk creak slowly open.

The mist-shrouded village beyond the wall is nothing more than a scattering of humble wooden cottages along dirt roads that stretch between stands of snow-dusted pine trees—so many trees, in fact, as to constitute a forest. To the northeast, gray cliffs rise sharply, and the road winding up to the abbey is easy to see from this vantage.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry impatiently helps pushing them open

Marcus Veranius hopes the others caught on to his intention. Strahd won't look for a dead family and destroyed winery.

Sulda Westwind:

20

INSIGHT (6)
Sulda Westwind

The structures are all single-story pine cottages with stone chimneys and thatch roofs. The building closest to the gate is the largest building in town, but still a modest dwelling. It has a small walled graveyard behind it. Most of the cottages do, upon closer inspection.

Sulda Westwind: (Sulda has in fact successfully caught on to Marcus's point)

Sulda is uncomfortable with the graveyards.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can Henry see the baron?)

Sulda Westwind: In the land of undead, it both makes sense to keep your dead close by where you can guard them, and... not.

A small crowd of guards huddles around the cart as it enters the village. The Baron descends from the wall and approaches, arms thrown wide as though to embrace them.

Sulda Westwind: Sulda tenses around the unconscious Ezmerelda.

"Come, come, leave the cart. You have earned a night of Krezkian hospitality. My men will see it to the storehouses."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere tries to make the barrels look inconspicuous

Sulda Westwind: "Where can we stay?" Sulda asks, not hurrying to disembark yet.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hi we got your delivery please sign here here and here. Where are the kids" Henrys speaks fast and humorless Sulda Westwind: Sulda whistles, casting Minor Illusion on top of the barrels.

Two still and very unconvincing horses are there

Marcus Veranius pokes his head out of the wagon. "Forgive me Baron, under normal circumstances I would be honored to share a pint. But this trip was without cost, and I dare not leave myself from the injured's side."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere does the same, probably making it worse

Sulda Westwind: Also very small.

(It's a cart, Marcus)

(It's still not a wagon)

Marcus Veranius: (WAGON/CART. SAME THING)

Sulda Westwind: (We're in full view of everyone and everyone is in full view of us)

(NO ITS NOT)

The Baron says: "The children have been given good homes, here in the village. They will be anxious to see you again. We do not have much room, here, and we have no Inn. You will have to room with some of the village folk, who will be happy to share their homes with you."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry appears about as patient as a matron having lost her charges

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around to see anyone looking happy to share their home with them.

15

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

The villagers are all smiling. They seem genuinely happy to see the party. One gets the sense that they do not have many forms of entertainment, and several people seem to have noticed Suldae's bard-like appearance.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae carefully transfers Ezmerelda into Marcus's lap and stands up.

Baron: "You have injured, among you?"

Suldae Westwind: Standing on the cart, she plays a short welcoming melody.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "One more or less but it's handled"

Henry is clearly unwilling to have them poke around in their affairs

Marcus Veranius: "Druids turn nature as their weapons, you must know. One of nature's favorite weapons is poison."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere illusions an out of key note every 6 seconds

The reaction to Suldae's little tune is almost comically overblown. Two people even begin to dance with one another.

Suldae has skill enough to weave Hiere's contribution into an even better song.

Baron: "Druids! Bah. In Barovia they are all monsters."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Could take us to place were we can gather ourselves and"

"Talk" Henry's tone is much milder now

Baron: "Come, come. My wife is a wise woman, she will tend to your companion. My house is large enough for all of you to at least stand in it."

The gates close behind you with a solid thump. A heavy oak beam is slid across, to seal them shut.

"Come now, my people. Back to your posts. The darkness does not rest! Some of you have many hours left upon your watch."

The crowd begins to disperse.

Baron: "Would it be alright to wait until morning to wake the children?"

Suldae Westwind: "Of course," Suldae says softly, lowering the instrument.

"We'll be happy to be allowed to check on them, but now is indeed not the time."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods gesturing "Please after you milord" suddenly remembering his manners and hoping his mother would never hear of him being this filippant with a noble

A few minutes later, the party finds themselves in a relatively large wooden cabin, around a comfortable stacked-stone hearth. There are only four crude chairs around a table, plus a rocking chair and an antique armchair before the fire. The cabin is a single room, with an extension to one side where small pigs and goats are kept in an indoor enclosure.

Baron: "My fearless wife, Anna. Anna, these are the warriors I told you about."

Anna: "An honor," says Anna, curtsying gracefully.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae does an exaggerated bardic bow.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere tips his hat

Marcus Veranius: "Thank you for honoring us this evening."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "The pleasure is ours Milady "

Suldae Westwind: The feathers of her hat in her outstretched hand sweep the floor

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry bows

There are signs that there may once have been children in the house. A few charcoal drawings low on the walls have been carefully framed.

Rictavio: Rictavio bows. "Rudolph Van Richten, at your service."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at them, but restrains herself from asking.

Baron: "You again!?"

Suldae Westwind: This seems the kind of thing to be a wound.

"He's with us and we're guaranteeing his good behavior?" Suldae winces.

A little exaggeratedly.

Anna: "Husband, do not be hasty. Perhaps his ways have changed. He is certainly keeping better company these days."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We apologize he has promised to behave"

Hiere Unthere: "He's still a bit of a prick"

Baron: "Fine... He can stay. For now."

Rictavio: "Guilty as charged," says Rictavio. He leans against one of the walls, folding his arms, leaving the chairs open.

Kasimir Velikov: "Is there a place where I may sit and meditate? The road has been long, and I am ill-suited to the idle companionship of your kind."

Marcus Veranius: Too much like Richten... BAH! What was he thinking? Richten didn't understand the value of unburnt bridges

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry begins introducing the others

Anna: "Of course, elder one. There is a place above the barn where you can sit."

Henry of Willowsbrook: He even manages to say Hieres full name without losing composure

Henry's introductions are, of course, perfection. His courtly manners leave nothing to be desired.

Anna: "You may place your injured companion here," says Anna, gesturing towards one of the only other pieces of furniture in the room -- a large oak bed.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is subtly positioning herself to keep an eye on both Hieres and R.

Marcus Veranius moves Ezmeralda over as suggested, standing close by Anna: Anna seats herself upon the bed, placing her hands gently on the sides of Ezmeralda's head.

Anna closes her eyes. After a moment, she winces.

Anna opens her eyes once more.

"Your friend is not injured. She is gone. This vessel slumbers. Her soul has gone to the Court of the Raven Queen. It is unlikely that she can ever return, of her own volition."

Marcus Veranius 's eyes widen

Anna: "I am sorry. The most we can do is sustain the life in this vessel and hope for the best."

Marcus Veranius: "...I understand."

Baron: "I don't, but with Anna I rarely do."

Anna: Anna hits him playfully.

Marcus Veranius slumps onto the ground, trying his best to hold his composure

Hieres Unthere: "you guys are almost as bad as Rick here"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs and sits next to Marcus.

Hieres Unthere: "...that's unfair. He's way worse."

Suldae Westwind: She hugs him and holds him close to herself.

"We'll figure something out," she whispers to him.

She glances over to check Ric's reaction too, after a moment.

Maybe she chose the wrong person to comfort.

Anna: Anna looks at Marcus and Suldae curiously. "You two. You are not entirely human, are you?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands up and looks at her.

Anna: "If you are what I suspect, there is a chance that you can reach her."

Suldae Westwind:

27

ARCANA (11)

Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "You'd be correct. She's a half-elf."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae runs her hand over her ears.

Marcus Veranius: "If you meant to suggest something else, I don't think we'd be able to speak of it."

Suldae Westwind: Her long, long ears sticking out from her hair far to the sides.

Anna: Anna smiles. "I can see why she likes you."

"But I think you both know that was not what I meant."

Suldae Westwind: "Have you any guidance to offer?" Suldae asks, hope undisguised in her voice.

Anna: "I do," she says. "But alas, I have not the power to aid you directly. The Abbot may, but --"

Baron: "--Do not bring up the Abbot. We should not meddle with such dark power."

Anna: "...As my husband says, I do not know if he would be willing to help you."

Hiere Unthere: "The Abbot? He is here?"

Baron: "He lives in the Abbey. Working gods know what kind of twisted magic."

Anna: "I do not believe the Abbot is what you believe him to be, my Husband."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae listens attentively.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere's shoulders slump as he hears this Suldae Westwind: What does Hiere know?

Hiere Unthere: (hiere had originally come here in search of an abbot)

Suldae senses that Anna may have an otherworldly connection -- a weak one, to a deity that does not penetrate all the way into Barovia. Still, that connection does give her an insight that a mortal otherwise could never have.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives a half-bow, respectful towards the woman.

"The Abbot, then," she says. "Forgive us, milord, for not following your advice on this, but we have to follow any hope we have," she looks at him, eyes slightly widened, trying to evoke not pity but sympathy.

*at the Baron.

Just then, there is a knock at the door.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "copper it's about the abbot"

Marcus Veranius turns to Ezmeralda, then to the Abbey. He considers for a moment, then realizes what needs to be done.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry murmurs

Baron: "Ah, that must be the wine." Looking again to Suldae, he says: "I cannot stop you from pursuing your quest. But I would urge you strongly to consider great caution in dealing with that..."

Man."

The Baron moves to open the door.

The door swings open, revealing a weatherbeaten man with a scraggly brown beard. The man holds a large barrel to his chest, and at his side is a young lad -- Henry recognizes him as one of the children from the werewolf camp.

The child rushes forward and gives Henry a tackle hug.

Suldae Westwind: "We will. Thank you," Suldae says as the door is opening.

Igbar: "Got your share of the wine here, milord. Figured, since you're entertaining, it'd be best to give you enough to go around."

Baron: "Ah! Thank you, Igbar. I am sure our guests would like to sample some."

Igbar: "About the kid, sorry sir, but he just couldn't sleep knowing that his hero was back in town."
(To Henry) "He's been going on and on about you, sir. Never shuts up a minute!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No worries" Henry says slightly perplexed

Suldae Westwind: "...has he slept at all? Have you slept?" Suldae asks the kid. It's pre-dawn hours, all children should be in bed!

The child seems determined to fuse to Henry's armor. He has limpet-like clinging strength.

Igbar: "Right, well, I'll be off then. Some of the lads want to play a game of Dragon Draughts! Can't play it properly without the Draughts!"

Igbar departs.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gingerly picks the boy up bringing him level with his face "You heard The Lady did you sleep?"

Baron Krezkov sets the casket on the table and broaches it. Anna moves to a chest in the corner and brings out a set of crystal glasses in a velvet-lined case.

Suldae Westwind: (How old is the boy?)

Kid: "Yeah! I slept plenty!"

The child looks to be about 10.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

INSIGHT (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Kid: He's so cute it's hard to tell if he's lying or not. Dangerous stuff!

Suldae Westwind:

22

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

Kid: Suldae sees right through it, though. He hasn't slept a wink.

Suldae Westwind: "Let's sit down," she pulls him and Henry both to the edge of the bed.

The Baron and his wife fill the glasses and pass them around, ensuring that all the guests have one. Kasimir has by this time departed to meditate. Rictavio accepts his glass gratefully, swirling it and drinking a quarter of it before anyone can even make a toast.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Whats your Name boy, it's rude to not intruduce yourself Henry says carrying the kid over to the bed

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares at Rictavio. Even she knows that's not proper NON-DRUNK guest behavior.

She tastes her own. She's not big on alcohol, but this wine has been seasoned with adventure, so to speak. Her interest's peaked.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere abstains from talking a glass taking*

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry politly accepts the glass but places it down for now

Kid: "I'm Alard Schmidt and I'm ten years old and I almost was a werewolf one time!"

Marcus hears the Raven Spirit. Its tone is colder than usual. "Your friend is here, in the Court of the Queen. She awaits us, Marcus. There is explaining to be done."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well Alard nice to meet you I'm Henry and this is Suldae"

Suldae Westwind: "Thank you for your hospitality," Suldae says to the Baron and his wife meanwhile. She smiles to Alard.

Baron Krezkov raises his glass. "To the Wizard of Wines, and the heroes who saved its precious produce!"

Suldae Westwind: "You've slept plenty, but perhaps you'd like to sleep sme more? I hear plate armor makes for great pillows."

Marcus Veranius lowers his head, securing his hat properly.

Suldae Westwind: "To the Wizard of Wines," Suldae echoes, subdued. She remembers the version that it was destroyed

Marcus Veranius: "I'm going to rest for a bit; it's been a long day."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "But you really should be resting now or you'll be tired later when I'll goo meet the others"

Marcus Veranius: "Someone drink twice for me."

Alard: "Oh, yeah! I guess I'd better start practicing for when I'm a hero and I have to sleep on my shield and wake up at a moment's notice."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere raises his imaginary glass and takes a sip, illusioning the sounds

Suldae Westwind: "Exactly," Suldae says seriously. She likes the kid already.

Alard: "Can I be your page? You're a Knight, Knights have to have a page! It's the rules!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Squires actually but no I'm no knight"

Suldae Westwind: "It's rare to see a safe place in Barovia," Suldae says to the Baron meanwhile.

Marcus Veranius thinks to himself. ~~"They plan to take her back with the Abbot's help, but I know that's the wrong way of doing things. Proper procedure for every act."~~

Marcus Veranius: ~~"Take me there."~~

Suldae Westwind: "We've been to Vallaki... not a very friendly place, all told, though easier to enter."
Her tone is casual yet respectful, inviting the Baron and Anna to speak of their own town.

Baron: "Ah, yes. We have something of a mystery there. It is believed by many that the Abbot is responsible for our present safety. I myself prefer to think it is the statue of the Morninglord, and the sacred pool which Saint Markovia blessed, those many centuries ago."

Anna: "Marcus, you are rooming with a widower named Stefan. He should be waiting for you outside."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Taking up his glass Henry drinks it in one gulp and placing it down in away that suggest he would not drink a drop more

Hiere Unthere: Hiere creates the illusion of it being not completely empty

Marcus Veranius: "Then I shall retire early as to not disturb his hospitality so late at night. Please direct me.""

Anna: "If you do not see him outside, his house is the first one to the left when you enter by the main gate."

Alard settles down with his head on Henry's plate armored leg. His eyes are wide open and shining with interest.

Marcus Veranius offers a bow of respect then turns to Suldae. "I will be attending to some business in the morning. Shake me if I don't wake up at a reasonable hour."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to him.

Marcus Veranius leaves

Suldae Westwind: She has no intention of waking him up in anything less than a full day, but that's another question.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I would also like to excuse myself already our... activities have left me unusually tired this time" He stirs Alard up

Alard: "Can I come with you? Can I? Can I? Can I?"

Anna: "Alard has been staying with Igbar and his wife Ysolde. Their house is at the end of the western path."

Suldae Westwind: "I could not go to sleep before dawn, I'm afraid," Suldae interjects herself, "though I would hate to keep you up at this hour," she looks questioningly at the hosts.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If the Lady allows" Henry shrugs "but rest means rest Alard" he nods to the Baron and the others ruffling Suldaes hair as he leaves

Anna: (To Suldae) "You have been cursed by the Night Mother? There are festivities near the Pond, I am sure they could use the joy of your music."

"I am afraid my husband and I are older than we once were, otherwise we would join you."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll no doubt be awake soon" Henry says glancing at the boy

Alard skips along after Henry.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods gratefully and finishes her glass. She stands up and bows deeply. "May this home be ever blessed by joy."

Anna touches her heart. "From one such as you, this blessing holds true power. Thank you, Suldae."

Rictavio: "Where am I staying, then?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae cannot help being a little flustered by that, despite already knowing it's true.

Anna: "There is a spare pen in our barn?"

Suldae Westwind: She walks towards the door, but stays there, waiting for the other two.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry barks out laughing at the Baronesses remark

Hiere Unthere: Hiere nods. "dibs" he moves towards the exit

Marcus Veranius arrives at Stefan's house, knocking gently if he's not present. "I thank you for the hospitality. I'll not overstay it, if you could point me to a space where I may rest soundly. After the trekking around, a roof is the most comfort I need."

Anna: "Oh no, wizard. I have very strict orders that you are to stay with Sasha, our fortune teller."

Suldae Westwind: "He is unpleasant, but surely something can be arranged for a single night... morning?" Suldae looks questioningly at the hosts. She'd offer money, but she suspects it might be taken as insult. They'll bring it up if it's a possibility.

Hiere Unthere: "oh no. not another one."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pats Hiere's shoulder somewhat awkwardly, as she is much shorter.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere absentmindedly uses her head as an armrest

Baron: "There is one person in the village who has offered to house him. The widow Frieda will take him in for the night. Forgive my wife for her uncouth remark, it has been... Earned."

Suldae Westwind: "I believe that easily," Suldae assures him.

Rictavio: "Off to Frieda's, then. Don't bother, I know the way."

Rictavio leaves.

Suldae Westwind: "Please forgive his... his... everything," Suldae says as she watches him leave.

Anna: "Sasha's house is the one at the end of the road, closest to the pool. Sasha will take good care of you, wizard."

Hiere Unthere: He sighs. "I know"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry arrives at Igar and Ysoldes house, where he quietly pushes the door open (or knocks if its locked) and inside after the aduequate greetings begins the task of peeling himself out of his armor to sleep for a good while Stefan, who has one of the larger huts, shows Marcus to a small attic room with a round glass window. A mattress stuffed with straw lies there, made cozier by several handmade quilts.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae jabs Hierie in the side - his kidneys are at convenient elbow height - and gives a half-bow.

"The Night Pool?" she asks.

Marcus Veranius: "...a roof, above my head. You are quite the host to be so literal to my request!"
Marcus offers a smile.

Suldae Westwind: * the pond

jeez

im

Anna: "It is called the Pool of the Morninglord," says Anna. "Just at the end of the village, to the north."

Suldae Westwind: just ignore that pls

"Thank you," she says, bows again and leaves, not waiting for Hierie.

(im not so overdramatic i got my wires crossed)

(pls ignore)

she asked 'the pond?' actually

totally

Suldae Westwind: thats what happened, retroactively speaking

Hiere Unthere: Hierie stumbles, tips his hat, and heads to Sasha's place

Suldae finds a small festival already in full swing. A particularly bad fiddler is screeching out a tune while an off-beat drummer thumps some goat-hide drums. Several people are drinking, laughing, and playing various games.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae finds a sufficiently high spot - is there a house the roof of which is climbable nearby? - and starts playing, trying to harmonize at least a little with the other musicians.

Hiere finds Sasha's house to be the most interesting one in the village. The walls are covered in tapestries, and hanging silk curtains divide the space intricately. Sasha, a towering blonde woman in her early thirties, stands stirring a large cauldron which throws of sparks and steam. A table in the corner by some bookshelves houses a crystal ball and some card decks. A four-poster bed dominates much of the interior space of the house.

Sasha: "You! You haff arrived jyust in ze nick of ze time. Hyere is your supper!"

Sasha serves a large bowl of soup. It smells heavenly.

Hiero Unthere: "h-hello to you too" Hiero begins consuming the sustenance

Marcus Veranius rests on the straw mattress, wearing his best clothes and best smile. He scribbles out a small note and crumples his hand around it.

(Suldae) Even under the starlit skies, this pool at the north end of the village shimmers and sparkles. Near its shore sits an old gazebo on the verge of collapse. A wooden statue of a mournful, bare-chest man, its paint chipped and faded, stands in the gazebo with arms outstretched, as though waiting to be embraced. The Gazebo seems strong enough to stand on -- for one as light as Suldae.

Marcus hears the Raven Spirit. "Marcus. Do not slumber. Look to the darkest shadow in this chamber."

Marcus Veranius pauses, eyes keen to the darkness. He takes a peek (Hiero) Hiero discovers that Sasha's soup is a POWERFUL Hallucinogenic. Unfortunately, he discovers this right when he finishes swallowing the last drop.

Marcus Veranius: ~~"Can I not even let my soul be torn away to the Raven's court without interruption?"~~

13

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

(oof)

(Marcus) He sees a corner of the chamber where the shadows are almost supernaturally deep.

(Henry) "Here, I can help with that! Alard zooms around Henry, ripping at buckles and straps. In a matter of seconds, Henry's armor is undone. "See! I've been reading all the books! I'd be a great squire!"

(Henry) "Can I hold your shield?"

Marcus Veranius 's patience is thin. "You will find I am NOT in the mood for games this evening. Reveal yourself, creature of the darkness!"

(Marcus) "Go to the Shadow, Marcus. The Queen awaits us. She grows impatient."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry with a light shake of his head hands Alard his shield fully expecting the boy to drop it considering its weight

(Henry) Henry's shield basically squishes the poor kid, who crawls out from under it a minute later, laughing uproariously.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

~~"We need to work on communication. I've been under the assumption this was to be a spiritual journey."~~

Marcus Veranius walks physically towards the darkness

Marcus Veranius: The note is left behind

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sits above the festivities, swinging her legs and enjoying the atmosphere. When she gets tired of playing, she sings or drums along on the roof she's sitting on.

(well NOW i read the description)

Marcus steps through the Shadows, and finds himself suddenly standing on an obsidian mountainside beneath an endless, starry night. The cliff-like path cut into the mountainside winds ever upward towards the peak. Carved soldiers of obsidian stand at intervals along the path, as though silently guarding the road. An eery wind moans over the mountain, the base of which is lost in dense black thunderclouds.

Suldae Westwind: She situates herself on the gazebo, hoping the Morninglord doesn't mind the company.

A Raven is perched on Marcus's left shoulder.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sorts his arms and armor into a neat pile making sure to place his weapons at the bottom just to be sure entreprising hands had some obstacle before laying down to sleep

Suldae Westwind: She almost trances, losing herself in the joy of the crowd and the vibrations of the Weave to the music and song (if not particularly good, some of it)

Marcus Veranius takes off his hat, illusions melting away from his were-raven form. It was rude to hide behind disguises.

Rictavio: (This is where we have to end today's session. Thank you all for playing!)

Hiere Unthere: (no u)

Suldae Westwind: (same)

Acrobatics (~Suldae Westwind|acrobatics-roll)

Animal Handling (~Suldae Westwind|animal-handling-roll)

Arcana (~Suldae Westwind|arcana-roll)

10

[performance-u] (Suldae Westwind|performance_bonus)
Suldae Westwind

19

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspires the GM!

Able: able able

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspires Hiere

Suldae Westwind: (thats not that button)

DISRUPT

Cutting Words

When a creature that you can see within 60 feet of you makes an Attack roll, an ability check, or a damage roll, you can use your Reaction to expend one of your uses of Bardic Inspiration, rolling a Bardic Inspiration die and subtracting the number rolled from the creature's roll. You can choose to use this feature after the creature makes its roll, but before the GM determines whether the Attack roll or ability check succeeds or fails, or before the creature deals its damage. The creature is immune if it can't hear you or if it's immune to being Charmed.

this is that buttong :3

Able: I see no button >.>

Suldae Westwind|acrobatics-roll interesting

Suldae Westwind: of course you dont see a button, its my button
i can help you make your own :3
my new most favorite macro i expect:

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by for details...

Able: lmao

Suldae Westwind: or is this better?

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind: which do you like better

Able: should be 'STOP. hammertime' and then you fireball em

Suldae Westwind: nah that's Able i mean Hiere
have I mentioned i can help you make one? :3

Able: yis

Suldae Westwind: do you want me to? :3

Able: uhhhhHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHH

Suldae Westwind: this one specifically takes, like, two minutes, and that's with generous loading times

Able: oh ok then its fine

Suldae Westwind: ill switch to discord bc screenshots

Able STOP. HAMMERTIME.

Able: STOP. HAMMERTIME.

Suldae Westwind: unfortunately typing in your name is unavoidable with using the /me command but its what does the cool thing, so

Able: lmao

Suldae Westwind: i also have

Suldae Westwind is reaching for a weapon, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind: the other ones are simple & boring, duplicating or referencing buttons on character sheet regarding 'tag yourself' though, I identify with the 'inspire' one

BARDIC INSPIRATION*Class: Bard*

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspiresGiant Octopus: i still have this one...BARDIC INSPIRATIONClass: Bard*

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Giant Octopus inspiresHenry of Willowsbrook: aaand this one.....BARDIC INSPIRATIONClass: Bard*

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Henry of Willowsbrook inspiresSuldae Westwind: (he does doesnt he)

Suldae Westwind|Mending

yeep this character sheet is Not Complee

Able:

13

DECEPTION (0)

19

DECEPTION (0)

Suldae Westwind:

26

ACROBATICS (6)
Suldae Westwind

aaaa what kind of macros language doesnt nest properly -- jeez if i ever change character name all of the skill roll macros will break -- oh i dont actually need to nest it, duh

(To GM): Breastplate of Cold Resistance

(To Suldae Westwind): Westwind Acrobatics (~Suldae Westwind|acrobatics-roll)

Animal Handling (~Suldae Westwind|animal-handling-roll) Arcana (~Suldae Westwind|arcana-roll)

Athletics (~Suldae Westwind|athletics-roll) Deception (~Suldae Westwind|deception-roll)

History (~Suldae Westwind|history-roll) Insight (~Suldae Westwind|insight-roll)

Intimidation (~Suldae Westwind|intimidation-roll)

Investigation (~Suldae Westwind|investigation-roll) Medicine (~Suldae Westwind|medicine-roll)

Nature (~Suldae Westwind|nature-roll) Perception (~Suldae Westwind|perception-roll)

Performance (~Suldae Westwind|performance-roll)

Persuasion (~Suldae Westwind|persuasion-roll) Religion (~Suldae Westwind|religion-roll)

Sleight of Hand (~Suldae Westwind|sleight-of-hand-roll) Stealth (~Suldae Westwind|stealth-roll)

Survival (~Suldae Westwind|survival-roll)

(To Marcus Veranius): Veranius Acrobatics (~Marcus Veranius|acrobatics-roll)

Animal Handling (~Marcus Veranius|animal-handling-roll) Arcana (~Marcus Veranius|arcana-roll)

Athletics (~Marcus Veranius|athletics-roll) Deception (~Marcus Veranius|deception-roll)

History (~Marcus Veranius|history-roll) Insight (~Marcus Veranius|insight-roll)

Intimidation (~Marcus Veranius|intimidation-roll)

Investigation (~Marcus Veranius|investigation-roll) Medicine (~Marcus Veranius|medicine-roll)

Nature (~Marcus Veranius|nature-roll) Perception (~Marcus Veranius|perception-roll)

Performance (~Marcus Veranius|performance-roll) Persuasion (~Marcus Veranius|persuasion-roll)

Religion (~Marcus Veranius|religion-roll) Sleight of Hand (~Marcus Veranius|sleight-of-hand-roll)

Stealth (~Marcus Veranius|stealth-roll) Survival (~Marcus Veranius|survival-roll)

GM (GM):

29

ACROBATICS (10)
Marcus Veranius

19

ATHLETICS (0)
Marcus Veranius

21

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

26

STEALTH (10)
Marcus Veranius

Good morning, all!

The abbey bell gongs out the 2:00 hour, and Suldae awakens from a much-needed long rest. Conveniently, Marcus and Ezmerelda are walking past the tree she spent the morning in, and Henry has just sent the villagers on a ten-laps-of-the-village jog.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae birbs down from the tree and lands on Marcus's head.

Suldae Westwind: (In raven form)

GM (GM): (LMAO)

Marcus Veranius is bonked on the head. He's less upset about this and more upset about shifting in public. THERE ARE RULES

Ezmerelda d'Avenir laughs. "Suldae? Is that you?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Don't poop on his head, darling!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is absentmindedly twirling a branch around himself like some circus performer as he approaches passing it between hands and altering the hieght of the occasional guard stance Suldae Westwind: Suldae briefly flutters over to Ezmerelda to muss up her hair friendly-like, then lands back on Marcus's head.

Marcus Veranius is surrounded by birds. Oh nooooooooooooo

Suldae Westwind: Her pooping is laser precise and is not on anyone's clothes.
Or hair!

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda has, by this time, made the appropriate bonds with her raven spirit, and is now in human form. She seems a little tired, but otherwise none the worse for wear.

Suldae Westwind: She is pretty sure no-one could see her shift in the tree, also.

Marcus Veranius: "In all fairness, the last raven that landed on my head led us into a murder house. This isn't more unplesant."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grins after notcing Suldae messing around before tossing the branch up high, catching it and then putting it aside "I take it you're feeling better Ezmerelda?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Much," says Ezmerelda. "Thank you for asking. That's probably not the last time I do something stupid and impulsive, but I'll definitely hesitate next time."

"I... I feel I should apologize to you all. What I did was very disrespectful, and I can see that now."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... Henry pointedly avoids looking at Marcus at her comment her first comment

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flutters off Marcus's head and shifts behind the party's backs out of view of the passerby. This was clearly poorly planned: she cannot talk while bird! Horrible.

Her raven sister in her head is fully sympathetic.

She hugs Ezmerelda from behind.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir laughs. "Well, you're a quick one to forgive!"

Suldae Westwind: "Well, I'm not the one who had to handle it anyway," Suldae glances over at Marcus. "And I'm too new to this to be properly offended over funeral customs, so..."

"Welcome to the family, I guess?"

"I'm assuming?"

Marcus Veranius sighs. "I forgave Rictavio for being Rictavio. That's far worse if we're keeping score."

Marcus Veranius: "Let's leave last night behind us."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae chortles at that.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs lightly rolling his shoulders "Well I didn't have anything to forgive you for ..except the dumb decsions but I'm used to forgiving those"

Suldae Westwind: Talking shit about R: the best bonding activity.

Rictavio: As if on cue, Rictavio comes swaggering out of a nearby house, looking like a well-rested old man. He has a gigantic grin on his face.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae eyes him. A widow, was it?

Rictavio: Suddenly, a pair of surprisingly brawny arms pops out from behind him and pulls him back inside. He laughs.

The door shuts.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Gah a Zombie"

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right," says Ezmerelda. "He, uh. Found a warm place to stay, I suppose."

Suldae Westwind: "Looks like it," Suldae says as seriously as she can manage.

25

PERFORMANCE (9) Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "There are some monsters even he cant escape from it seems."

Suldae Westwind: Which is actually pretty damn seriously

Henry of Willowsbrook: "him similing creeps me out, out of all things"

Marcus Veranius: "Do we rescue him?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh no, let's let him suffer a little longer."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And I'm not going to picture that"

Kasimir Velikov steps out from the trees. In the dappled shade of the trees, he seemed almost invisible, so his sudden stepping into the light is an almost magical appearing act.

Kasimir Velikov: "Greetings," says Kasimir.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods at him in greeting

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae waes to him with a bright smile. hHe likes the guy.

*She

wow

Kasimir Velikov: "It is good that you are all here. I have spent the morning in fruitful contemplation. I approached the abbey invisibly, and I have some disturbing news."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well It was nice while it lasted" Henry mournfully sighs

Kasimir Velikov: "There are monsters in the abbey. Some of them seem to be prisoners. The situation bears investigating, I believe."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "If it's not one thing it's another," says Ezmerelda with a sigh.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae can think about a couple of people he negeted to count, but she cannot truthfully fault him for that.

"Investigating sounds good, " she agrees.

"I propose we start from going over and saying hi"

Marcus Veranius frowns. And here he though they'd be able to find ONE town clear of Strahd's influence

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We really need to make a list of things to 'investigate' so we stop stumbling into them"

Kasimir Velikov: "Where are the old pervert and the insane wizard?" Kasimir says, realizing that the party is not all assembled.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Busy and eh in trance let's say"

Liliet (Suldae): "R is having a good time, and let's leave him to that," Suldae says hastily.

Marcus Veranius: "I think I saw Hiere harassing the town well for rent."

Liliet (Suldae): Her words blend with Henry's as they speak at the same time.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Turning to Henry, Ezmerelda says: "A list might not be a bad idea, actually."
"Item one: an abbey with monstrous prisoners."

Kasimir Velikov: "Item two: the Amber Temple."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "An Owl told me to go north and find an Elk so that's one thing"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "An elk? Like the one we saw near the winery?"

Marcus Veranius: "Item four: An ancient witch declaring war on our extended relatives."

Liliet (Suldae): "Item five: the other revenant's place"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Argynvostholt, right," says Ezmerelda.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Maybe the Spirits of the Land tend to be a bit cryptic about these things and very smug about being cryptic"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae pats him on the shoulder sympathetically, which is awkward since she has to stand on her tiptoes to reach.

Marcus Veranius: "Argynvostholt." Marcus chimes in to Suldae's comment.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda looks up towards the ominous structure of the Abbey. "Well, the abbey has done nothing to harm the villagers so far... Perhaps it is not urgent."

Suldae Westwind: "It's the closest one, though," Suldae points out.

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "A good point. Just a walk up the hill."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Now you're just tempting fate Ezmerelda"

Marcus Veranius: "A WALK up the hill, to specify."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Also may I call you Ez or mayhaps Ezme?" Henry asks

Suldae Westwind: "...it's been a full day and a night since we left the tower," Suldae adds, struck by the thought. "We should probably come back at some point, if only just to make sure they're fine - and tell them we're fine."

And maybe some more things, but those aren't urgent, she supposes.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ezme will do," says Ezmerelda.

Kasimir Velikov: "It would be wise to inform our companions of our new whereabouts, yes."
"And to confirm that the tower is in fact still there."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well one of you could fly over quickly and tell them no?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives him a brief glare. Did he have to put it like that? Now she's worried!

(*Kasimir)

"I suppose," Suldae agrees, somewhat reluctantly. Somehow, she doesn't feel like leaving these companions of hers without supervision either. Then again, Henry's here...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "In any case I better go and put on something more appropriate" Henry says nodding at his currently armorless form Suldae Westwind: It doesn't even occur to her someone else could do it. That's her girlfriend worrying over there, thankyouverymuch.

"Right, because armor is the only appropriate wear for a courtesy call," Suldae murmurs under her breath. He's not even wrong is the worst part.

Kasimir Velikov: "In the case of this particular courtesy call, I would advise that particular set of garments as appropriate."

Suldae Westwind: (how long would it take to fly from here to the tower and back?)

(Suldae would know after her week's worth of excursions over the land from the tower)

GM: (As the Raven flies, probably two hours round trip)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Suldae and Ezme should go to the tower if so because I remember you having trouble with the door " Henry says looking at Marcus for the last part Suldae Westwind: "Would we need to solve the puzzle again?" Suldae frowns.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Possibly"

Suldae Westwind: She's glad for the idea of having Ezme with her, truth be told.

She looks at Ezme for guidance.

She'd know, of all people.

Kasimir Velikov: "Yes," says Kasimir. "And you will need to be cautious about flying too near the tower in raven form. The magical field will force you into human form."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'm afraid he's right," says Ezmerelda.

"We will have to be cautious. Strahd has many spies."

"He may already be watching the tower."

Marcus Veranius grumbles about the puzzle comments

Suldae Westwind: "Right," Suldae grimaces. She forgot about that detail. "He already expects us to be members of the Feather, though."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Indeed. He will be watching for ravens congregating in certain areas."

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd's looking for birds, especially werebirds. Especially birds in relation to US."

"It'd be better if we sent Kasimir, whom Strahd might not necessarily be looking for."

Kasimir Velikov: "It is true, I can pass through the forest without trace."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Right that might be smarter" Henry agrees "If we had a horse I could maybe do it but I'd probably stand out the most"

Kasimir Velikov: "It will take me much longer to get there and back, unfortunately."

Marcus Veranius shakes his head. "You stand out the most by having taken sword against Strahd. Kasimir hasn't been seen with us yet."

Marcus Veranius: "At least not by anyone around to talk about it."

Suldae Westwind: "Perhaps what we should do is finish our business in Krezk, then go there together," Suldae suggests.

(Suldae's browser is still reloading, so she's posting in Discord)

(Dis da GM)

Marcus Veranius: "If we want to abandon the tower, yes. If we all go there, Strahd will know for sure that Ireena is there."

"This is a tricky game we're in. It might be better to make noise and distract Strahd's gaze."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in, then out.

"I could turn anyone into any animal for a brief time," she suggests.

Marcus Veranius: "Kasimir would be back by the time we're done with the Abbey, and we can probably move on from there."

Suldae Westwind: "That might be better camouflage, considering Strahd's onto ravens"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry scratches his neck "Well I'll stay here to inspect the Abbey either way, so let me get ready for that"

GM: (Suldae are you here? You disappeared on Discord)

Kasimir Velikov: "Yes, you should don your armor."

Marcus Veranius: "Remember, Ireena is being hidden in a place Strahd can't find her outside of us spilling the beans by mistake. We'd spoil the spot if we all went, or if the wrong person went."

Liliet (Suldae): (back)

(also Henry, Suldae is 22, you're not the youngest)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda looks around. There are birds chirping in some of the trees within the village. "Do you think this place would be a good bastion against Strahd?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to put on his armor "I'll met you back here? In 10-15"

Marcus Veranius: "No place is a good bastion against Strahd. Vallaki was proof enough."

Liliet (Suldae): "I'd say we'd need to find out what's going on in the Abbey before answering this question," Suldae tells her.

"Which brings us back to my earlier suggestion."

"Just because we should check with Ireena and Ismark sometime soon, doesn't mean it's the smartest to do so right now."

Marcus Veranius: "It's a good suggestion. We investigate the Abbey while Kasimir checks on our VIP. Both parties conclude at the same time. We move on to the next item of the list."

 Liliet (Suldae): "That's not what I said, but it's also a good idea nonetheless, probbly."

 Marcus Veranius: "We have the resources to spare, everything from coin, manpower, but not time."

 Liliet (Suldae): "My suggestion was to investigate the abbey first, together."
"I suppose..."

 Marcus Veranius: "Every second we spend doing tasks as a group is another second for Strahd to plan a countermeasure."
"Which he IS planning, by the by."
"Also why I suggest we take out his advisor, Baba Lysaga, sooner than later."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry reaching Igbar's house begins to don his armor...after a quick cleaning

 Liliet (Suldae): "Splitting the party," Suldae murmurs under her breath. This is hardly an egregious violation of that rule, but what Marcus is talking about goes against it in principle.
"That one's a good plan."

 Marcus Veranius pats Suldae on the shoulder. "Just like we did when leaving Vallaki. Kasimir's been around 300 years. He can handle himself."

 Marcus Veranius: "

 Liliet (Suldae): "Just because something worked once, doesn't make it a wise policy in general," Suldae says sharply.

"Exceptions are exceptions. I agree that this one makes sense as well, but in general? Doing things as a group is the only way we can consolidate enough strength to protect ourselves."

 Kasimir Velikov: "Is there a specific message you would wish me to convey to Ireena?" Kasimir asks.
"You may write one, if you wish to keep it private."

 Liliet (Suldae): Suldae nods.

 Marcus Veranius wiggle waggles his eyebrows in Suldae's direction on mention of private letters

 Liliet (Suldae): She takes her notebook and starts writing. This will probably take a couple of minutes.
Or two, or five, or ten.

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "How come you don't write me letters?" Ezmerelda teases, elbowing Marcus in the ribs a little.

 Marcus Veranius: "..."
"...because we haven't separated since we met?"

 Marcus Veranius takes out a piece of paper

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Still. Everybody likes getting mail! Well, unless it's to tell them they owe someone money."

 Liliet (Suldae): The note begins with sappy kisses and in-jokes, proceeds into retelling of what happened interspersed with apologies for taking so long, segues into musings on Ezmerelda and a vague suggestion that maybe this makes her Ireena's someone too (no, they had not yet talked who exactly Suldae and Ireena are to each other) so she should also have an opinion on the addition, segues into notes on the Weave and effects Suldae's music had been having on it that are not obvious, in a way that should be interesting for a beginning wizard, and ends with an overview of the global situation and a demand to report how they've been too. As well as an imperative to keep themselves safe.

Suldae Westwind: (In-universe, she's still writing)

Marcus Veranius writes out a letter as well, then passes it to Ezmeralda. His takes significantly less time to fill out.

Marcus Veranius: It is in fact the letter Q in large font on a piece of paper

Ezmerelda d'Avenir makes an exaggerated show of her excitement at receiving mail.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir opens the letter and peruses it.

Marcus Veranius grins

Ezmerelda d'Avenir laughs and puts her hand to her face.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "The insane wizard got to you," she says.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at them and suppresses an otherwise ear-splitting smile as she's writing.

Marcus Veranius: "He's got potential but needs more refinement."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flashes Marcus a thumbs-up. She agrees.

Rictavio: A jaunty whistling can be heard, approaching down the road. Rictavio comes into view, swinging his cane and looking at peace with the world.

"Ah, my favorite people!"

"Well, some of you."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae snorts.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry makes his way back to the others now incased in his familiar steel and leather carapace, his earlier jovial mood replaced by the quiet confidence steel was known to give but his face was still a mild lopsided smile as he was making sure his sword neelt sat right.

Suldae Westwind: (She's writing, the notebook resting on her bag as she sits with her back to a tre))
*tree

Rictavio: "Has the hospitality of Krezk been to your liking?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: sword belt

Suldae Westwind: "It has certainly been to yo-ours," Suldae sing-songs.

Marcus Veranius nods, despite having spent most of his evening in another dimension

Rictavio: Rictavio grins broadly and stretches like a gratified champion at the end of a race. "Ah, yes, it has been quite to my liking. If only more places were so hospitable!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lots of eager people here" Henry murmurs checking the way his shield was positioned Suldae Westwind: Suldae makes sure to write a sentence about Rictavio's personal life adventures in the letter, too.

Nothing's more fun than gossip.

Widow: "Oh *Riiiiicky*yyyyyy? Where are you, mein leetle Ricky?"

Rictavio: "Quick, hide me."

Rictavio ducks behind the tree Suldae is writing at.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is live-retelling this, now. It's already the end of the letter, but it has segued into notes of the ongoing thrilling drama.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry points at a bush ignoring that it has obvious brambles but clicks his tongue in disappointment as R ignores him

Suldae Westwind: She's not sure how much Ireena will appreciate this, but she cannot not.

Widow: "Ah! Good people, haff you seen a scrawny old stick-man mit cane und beard? For him I have made ein roasted duck! He must keep his strength up for strenuous activities!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is staying quiet, just dutifully writing all of this down.

Marcus Veranius grins, aware of what activities she speaks of

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He went that way" Henry says in a deadpan pointing in the opposite direction of where she came from

Marcus Veranius: "I'm not quite sure where he is, but last I saw he had a grapple hook in hand. Best check the roofs."

The Widow whose name the GM cannot recall is a strong-looking blonde woman with two dangling braids and a kind -- if weather-beaten -- face. She has beautiful green eyes that crinkle when she smiles. She looks to be a little shy of Rictavio's age.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No it was a shovel you city slick idiot"

Suldae Westwind: "He is not behind that tree," Suldae contributes... and points at a tree on the opposite end of the street.

Her voice is perfectly deadpan as well.

Widow: "Ah, that sly und wily fox! He wishes to play the games mit me. Ve shall see who vins! Oh, if only I had someone vit whom to eat zis delicious duck!"

Rictavio: "Duck, did you say?"

Suldae Westwind: She'd feel worse for the woman, but she likes R so she's clearly doing this all to herself.

Widow: "Aha! I haff found you, you sneaky sneaky man!"

Rictavio: "Yes, but you've still got to catch me!" Rictavio says, and sprints down the street.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae giggles, still dutifully stenographing the happenings.

Widow: "Ehehehehehe!" The widow chases after him, giggling insanely. Rictavio is laughing too.

Marcus Veranius makes a mental note; they've lost the Strahd-Hunter. This is the count's most ingenious plan

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right," says Ezmerelda. "Is it just me, or does anyone else hear wedding bells?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry watches after the pair ofno nevermind that thought only let to bad ends "So the Abbey?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "The Abbey."

Kasimir Velikov: "If Suldae has finished her missive, I shall depart. If it becomes much longer I fear I may not be able to carry the weight of it."

Suldae Westwind: "...if you manage to die while I'm not there I'll find a way to summon your ghost just so I can yell at you. Oh, and keep your dead brother safe, too. Love, your dumbass bard, Suldae Catherine Westwind," Suldae writes out her full name in exaggeratedly beautiful calligraphy, then folds the note and stands up, passing it to Kasimir.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry suppresses a grin at Kasimir's quip

Suldae Westwind: It's just a couple pages long in small handwriting, it's not that heavy!

Kasimir Velikov: "I shall see you all soon," says Kasimir, and he departs.

5

(It seems he will have an uneventful journey there.)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right, then," says Ezmerelda. "Shall we?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands up and brushes herself off, her cheeks slightly flushed from writing to Ireena.

Marcus Veranius: "The abbey, yes." Marcus comments, oiling his crossbow string in preparation for the worst.

Suldae Westwind: "The Abbot," she says to focus herself.

"We assume they're friends, first," she tells Marcus.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's before my mind returns to the trully horrific scenes of Rics night life"

Suldae Westwind: "Hey, they're adorable," Suldae objects as she checks her ocarina.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Yes, I could have lived without that mental image," agrees Ezmerelda. "But I'm glad he's happy. The old bastard hasn't smiled like that the whole time I've known him."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Would you like me to oil your Crossbow Suldae?" Henry asks "and they may but I still rather not picture them doing whatever it is that has him so happy and running"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae passes it over, physically restraining herself from repeating it in a suggestive voice.

She's an adult, yes she is.

The only path to the Abbey is a winding switchback road that hugs the cliff. It is ten feet wide and covered with loose gravel and chunks of broken rock. The ascent is slow and somewhat treacherous, and the air grows colder as one nears the top.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus, can you oil my crossbow? It's magical."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae fails to restrain herself from snorting, at that.

Marcus Veranius frowns

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry hands it back after looking it over and maintaining it "Better it be ready but unneeded then necessary and in poor condition" Henry muses "Same as with any tool, by the way how are you feeling Marcus? Have you eaten?" he asks with a big wide grin

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Actually, I'm just kidding. It oils itself, that's part of the magic."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae giggles louder, at this one.

She nods at Henry gratefully.

Marcus Veranius frowns extra hard

Suldae Westwind: Suldae whistles as well-known bawdy song.

*a

Marcus Veranius: "Laugh all you want, waking Ezmerelda up was not as fun as your innuendo makes it sound."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sobers up a little.

She's still whistling, but more quietly.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Pffff. Maybe it should have been? Come on, we've got a long walk yet."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Come of it I'm just swinging at all the love in the air"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We just need to find you a nice Dryad, Henry."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Don't those eat people?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is whistling louder, again. Everyone present should know the words.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Not all the time!"

"Just when they're hungry."

Suldae Westwind: Coincidentally, the song involves a dryad.

Marcus Veranius: "A tree that hungers for Henry. Truly the best partner."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well if it's just if they're hungry" Henry says like he is actually considering it

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You just have to keep her well fed. Solid romantic advice in general, actually."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods to that seriously as she can.

She wants to make a "way to the heart is through the stomach" joke, but she's too busy whistling.

She's a little disappointed no-one's singing along yet, but the day's still young.

Sort of.

Afternoon's still young?

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A Dryad wouldn't make the legal mess to come any 'more' complicated atleast" Henry mutters "Atleast I hope so"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Legal mess?"

"Do we want to know?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Don't care if you want to know, I ain't tellin'"

Suldae Westwind: "Are you married?" Suldae guesses.

The guess is random, just by vague association with everything going on right now.

The road from the village climbs above the mist to the wide ledge on which the abbey is perched. A light dusting of snow covers the trees and the rocky earth.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry shrugs "Maybe, maybe not guess you'll never know"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Brr," Ezmerelda says, with a shiver. "Marcus, you using that jacket?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes that's not a no, but gets the hint. She sobers up as they come closer anyway.

Marcus Veranius passes his coat to Esmeralda. It'll probably be warm enough inside.

Suldae Westwind: (I vote for small icons, still)

(looks like they're 2x anyway)

Marcus Veranius: (This map actually IS small icon-designed)

The gravel road passes between two small, stone outbuildings, to either side of which stretches a five-foot-high, three-foot-thick wall of jumbled stones held together with mortar. Blocking the road are iron gates attached to the outbuildings by rusty hinges. They appear to be unlocked. Viewed through the gates, the stone abbey stands quiet. Its two wings are joined by a fifteen-foot-high curtain wall. A belfry protrudes from the rooftop of the closer north wing, which also sports a chimney billowing gray smoke.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ah, thank you Marcus. You're a true gentleman."

"Ooh, this is nice. You don't need this back, right?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves to open the gate

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is proud of Ezmerelda's shamelessness.

Marcus Veranius: "Eh, it's just a coat. Don't remember where I picked it up."

Suldae Westwind: Truly, she has the best family.

She glares at Marcus, though.

Marcus Veranius smiles

Suldae Westwind: That wasn't the right answer@

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You're the sweetest. Thank you for the randomly acquired coat!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pushes the gate open but waits for the others to enter

The gate squeals loudly as Henry pushes it. You hear the sound of two nearby guards waking up and shambling out to confront the party.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes through first and looks around curiously.

"Hello!" she says brightly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry makes a show of not reaching for his sword crossing his arms over his chest

The two creatures which emerge from the gate houses are... Abnormal. The first is 4'9" tall, and he squats instead of standing upright. He looks like a beardless dwarf with patches of donkey flesh covering his face and body. He has one human ear and one wolf's ear, and a protruding wolf's snout and fangs. His arms and hands are human, but his legs and feet are leonine, and he has a donkey's tail. He wears a plain wool cloak.

The other creature stands 4'7" tall. The left side of her face and body is covered with lizard scales, the right with tufts of gray wolf fur. Between these tufts is pale human skin. One of her eyes is that of a feline, and her fingers and hands resemble cat's paws with opposable thumbs. She has a gruff voice and wears a gray cloak with black fur trim.

Suldae Westwind: After a short pause staring, Suldae gives a shallow yet polite bow, one hand pressed to her chest.

"Halt! Who goes there?"

Suldae Westwind: "Suldae Westwind, at your service," she introduces herself.

(oh god they look c u t e)

Marcus Veranius has seen worse. In fact, he's LOOKED worse.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Ezmerelda d'Avenir, vampire huntress extraordinaire!" Ezmerelda says this with a deep, grandiose bow.

Suldae Westwind: "Bard and cleric of Correllon," she adds after a moment, figuring it's relevant as it ever is.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Henry's the name Good day friends" his tone is mild

Otto Belview: "What is your business at the abbey?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I think I'd be called a hedge knight?"

Marcus Veranius: "Marcus Veranius. We've heard conflicting stories of the abbey. Good and bad opinions."

Zygfrek Belview: "You should not believe what you hear!"

Marcus Veranius notes that Anna recommended this place

Otto Belview: "They seem to be friendly, if ugly," says the dog-headed man.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We just wanted to pay our respects to the local place of worship" Henry says

Zygfrek Belview: "Hideous!"

Otto Belview: "We will let the Abbot decide what to do with you. Come with us, ugly ones."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs and proceeds forward.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You're not supposed to say that outloud y'know?"

Suldae Westwind: "That's a little rude," she notes as she comes afer them.

Marcus Veranius decides to take their advice and not believe the ugly comments he just heard.

A fifteen-foot-high curtain wall joins the abbey's two wings. Behind its battlements, two guards stand at attention, their features obscured by fog. Below them, set into the wall, is a pair of ten-foot-tall, wooden doors reinforced with bands of steel. To the right of these doors, mounted on the wall, is a tarnished copper plaque.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae examines the plaque as she approaches.

The plaque reads: "Abbey of Saint Markovia. May her light cure all illness."

Otto -- the dog-faced man -- pushes open the gate quietly and leads you into a large courtyard.

The thick fog that fills this courtyard swirls, as if eager to escape. The courtyard is surrounded by a fifteen-foot-high curtain wall on which stand several guards with their backs to you—or so it seemed at first. It's clear now that these guards are merely scarecrows.

Wooden doors to the north and east lead to the abbey's two wings. In the center of the courtyard is a stone well fitted with an iron winch, to which a rope and bucket are attached. Along the perimeter, tucked under the overhanging wall, are several stone sheds with padlocked wooden doors, as well as three shallow alcoves that contain wooden troughs. Two wooden posts pounded into the rocky earth have iron rings bolted to them, and chained to one of them is a short humanoid with bat wings and spider mandibles.

The quiet is shattered by horrible screams coming from the sheds.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "well ain't this just the most charming little place in the world" Henry murmurs

Otto Belview: "Wait here," says Otto. "Stay with them, Zygfrek."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes the scarecrows. Looks like the Abbey isn't as safe and scary as it'd like outsiders to think.

She also notes the similarity in principle of the chained up humanoid to the two who escorted them there.

She has guesses as to what's going on here, but they're just guesses.

"Charming enough," she disagrees with Henry still.

Marcus Veranius murmurs to his companions in a quiet tone. "They've got patients in the windows that look about as well as when you first met me."

Suldae Westwind: "May her light cure all illness," she murmurs.

Suldae nods.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a closer look at their escort looking for weapons or claws just to be sure and to occupy himself

Otto leaves, heading into the western wing of the Abbey.

Zygfrek does have claws, and also bears a short spear.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stays quiet. She has many questions she wants to ask Zygfrek, but it seems impolite to ask them while waiting for the audience.

She looks around curiously, though.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (did we loose Ezme or is the token just been forgotten?)
(has the token*)

Suldae Westwind: (good q)
(stares at GM)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Well, this is... Charming."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm" Henry grunts

The Abbot: "Greetings, Suldae, Marcus, Ezmerelda, and Henry!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows again, deeper this time, and with her hat pressed to her chest.

A young-looking monk in a plain brown robe has approached from the western wing of the Abbey, led by Otto.

The Abbot: "To what do I owe the pleasure of such finely armed visitors?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry salutes crisply

Suldae Westwind: "We were going around Barovia and wanted to say hi," Suldae volunteers an explanation.
"Would you be the Abbot of this fine place?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Please don't be alarmed I have spend so much time in armor I just don't feel right without it"

Marcus Veranius recognizes this person as the one with the corpse-looking patient. He too offers a bow

GM: (The what now)

Marcus Veranius: (He was in the window we passed by)
(I was gunna make a comment but then everyone jumped forward)

The Abbot:

(<https://media1.giphy.com/media/k0kLLI3E6dDS0/giphy.gif>)

GM: Ah

Suldae Westwind: players' passive perception XD

GM: They screwed the pooch on that token design

Is ok

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus accidentally ruins the chapter by having eyes)

GM: The whole Krezk section is very lazily written, tbh

Moving on...

The Abbot: "Yes, I am the Abbot of this place."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ignore the typewriter behind the curtain)

The Abbot: "I take it by your gathered powers that you have some questions for me?"

Suldae Westwind: (how is an abbot properly addressed? I'm assuming Suldae would know in-universe)

Suldae is feeling increasingly awkward about barging in like this.

"We are curious about this place," she admits.

Marcus Veranius: "We did actually. You were recommended by the village below, if by mixed opinion."

Suldae Westwind: She nods to Marcus's words.

The Abbot: (Typically they are referred to as "Father" or "Your Honor")

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

"We're sorry about being impolite, Father," she adds. "We don't know about any procedure for a visit."

The Abbot: "I must say, I am pleased that you have not attempted to slay any of my friends. That is far better behavior than I have come to expect from most of Strahd's pet adventurers."

"There is no proper procedure for visiting a place which does not wish to be visited, but under the circumstances I would say you have done quite well."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thats quite the assumption there"

The Abbot: "What assumption?"

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd's pet..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That we in anyway are Strahds pets" Henry says tone glacial

Suldae Westwind: "Kind of rude, actually."

Suldae raises her eyebrows and gives a pointed glance to the guard who called them ugly earlier, too.

The Abbot: "As the hunter keeps his stock of deer, Strahd keeps his stock of adventurers."

Suldae Westwind: Well, this just sounds lovely.

Suldae puts her hand on Henry's arm.

The Abbot: "I have seen... Oh, seventy or so? Different groups of your kind. You blunder in through the fog on one mission or another, and Strahd toys with you for a month or so, then lures you to the castle and severs soul from body."

Suldae Westwind: "So it sounds like you're quite the right person to come to for answers, then," she says.

The Abbot: "I assure you, I meant no offense. It is difficult to bring myself down to the level of mortals sometimes, I apologize for the misunderstanding."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes exaggeratedly.

The Abbot: "Yes, I will attempt to answer any questions you may have. I have my own plans for defeating Strahd in the long run, but there have been... Unforeseen hiccups."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry bites down on his angry impulses and puts on the mask of a bored mercenary of a bored*

Suldae Westwind: "We are here to help, and anyone who opposes Strahd is who we're here to offer it to."

"Will we keep standing here near this well?..."

The Abbot: "Actually, I would recommend against that. Mishka is down there, and he does not take kindly to visitors."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae cannot resist peeking down, at that.

The Abbot: "I was just teaching Vasilka how to cook roast pig. You may as well come along and join me for dinner!"

Suldae Westwind: (btw, a clarifying question: does the Abbot look human?)

Suldae sees eight beady red eyes glaring back up at her from down the well. Something with far too many limbs clings to the inside of the well.

The Abbot looks like a handsome but ordinary human monk.

Suldae Westwind: She steps back, giving the inhabitant its space, a little embarrassed by inappropriate curiosity.

Marcus Veranius considers the Abbot's words carefully, a few seemingly-off statements not sitting well. "Dinner would be lovely, thank you."

The Abbot leads the way to the door of the Western wing.

The ground floor of this wing is one large, fifty-foot-square room with arched, leaded glass windows. A cauldron sits on an iron rack above a fire in a hearth, while above the fireplace mantel hangs a golden disk engraved with the symbol of the sun. In one corner, a wooden staircase climbs to the upper level, while in another corner a stone staircase descends into darkness.

Suldae Westwind: (goddammit im hungry. thats it im going downstairs for like 2 minutes brb)

Gentle-sounding music trickles down from above, played on a single stringed instrument by some unseen master.

Several chairs surround a wooden table that stretches nearly the length of the room. Wooden dishware and gold candelabras are neatly arranged on the table, standing behind which is a young woman with alabaster skin dressed in a torn and soiled red gown. Her auburn hair is neatly bundled so as not to touch her soft shoulders. She seems lost in her own thoughts.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae perks up at the music and listens.

(brb)

GM: (Brb too actually, making a sammich)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We need to stop getting invited to dinners, they never end that pleasant" Henry whispers so quietly only Suldae should be able to hear him

The Abbot: "Vasilka, come and greet our guests."

Vasilka turns her head to look at the Abbot, and immediately obeys his command. She rises gracefully, steps onto her chair, steps from the chair to the table, crosses the table, hops down lightly, and comes closer.

The Abbot: "No, no, Vasilka. We talked about this! You must go around furniture, not over it." "Go back and try again, please."

Vasilka: Vasilka walks so gracefully that she seems almost to glide. She goes back around the table to her starting position, seats herself, and once again rises, walks around the table, and approaches the party.

The Abbot: "We're still working on some things," The Abbot says, chuckling slightly.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So it would seem" Henry says drily

When she comes within five feet, you begin to see the seams in her powdered skin where disparate body parts have been carefully stitched together.

The Abbot: "What do you think? Is she not an exquisite creation?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows to Vasilka too.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I Nature Check to ask Henrys spirit for that?)

Marcus Veranius also bows, holding back some less pleasant opinions.

GM: (Yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13

NATURE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's hand touches her holy symbol as she attempts to discern what is going on in her own way.

23

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius: "A pleasure to make your acquaintance, Vasilka?" He is unsure if the creation appears sentient.

Marcus does not sense her as an undead being. Henry senses that she is some kind of construct, assembled most likely from corpses. Judging by the freshness of the corpses, she has probably been assembled recently. Suldae determines that she is held together and powered by an ongoing spell, one which would require tremendous power and knowledge to create. This is a flesh golem -- an almost legendary creature from the darkest corners of tale and song.

Vasilka: Vasilka curtseys artfully to Marcus.

The Abbot: "Alas, she cannot speak. I think she may, in time, learn how, but for now it must be a lingering flaw."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..." Henry bows lightly towards her face impassive Suldae Westwind: "Are the guards we've met of a similar nature to Vasilika?" Suldae asks with a polite nod towards her.

The Abbot: "Oh, no. The Mongrelfolk are a sad tale, and a lasting burden of duty upon me."

Suldae Westwind: (are we talking while just kind of standing there?)

The Abbot: "They are the descendants of the Belview family. The Belviews were a family of sickly, inbred lepers, who came to the abbey many decades ago, seeking salvation. Oh, pardon my manners. Please, be seated. I have no need of such comforts, but the chairs are yours. Vasilka, if you would, please resume cooking the pig."

Vasilka: Vasilka rises and approaches the fireplace. She stokes the flames, and begins to crank the spit so that the roasted pig (now horribly burned on one side) will begin to cook more evenly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae approaches the table and takes a seat.
She's curious to hear more of this odd person's stories.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves over to a chair and moves it so he can stand up with out problems

Suldae Westwind: She'd be annoyed at 'sickly, inbred lepers', except from his mouth it really does sound like just neutral statements of fact, with no notion that somewhere somehow it might be used as insult.

The Abbot: "Where was I. Oh yes, the Belviews. I was able to rid them of their diseases -- an act for which they were eternally grateful -- but I could not cure them of certain human defects that had been present since birth. I became consumed with a desire to rid them of their lingering imperfections. They had... Strange ideas about what it meant to be perfect."

"They did not want to be ordinary humans, you see. They wanted the eyes of a cat, wings to fly like a bat, the strength of a mule, and the guile of a snake. In short, they craved bestial traits, and I, taking pity upon them, yielded to their mad desires."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ezme is here yes?)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae winces. "Sometimes it might be better for people to not get what they want," she says sympathetically.

The Abbot: "My early experiments, of course, as such things sometimes do, proved fatal to their subjects. The Belviews insisted that I keep trying. One day, a Barovia lord named Vasili von Holtz visited the abbey. I knew at once that the man was evil, but he stressed that he only wanted to help. He furnished me with forbidden lore, plucked from a place called the Amber Temple. Then he helped me transform the Belviews into mongrel folk -- maniacal humans with bestial deformities and traits. The Belviews were happy, albeit insane."

Marcus Veranius drops his arms to the table with a loud thud

The Abbot: (mongrelfolk and Barovian lord)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry leans his elbow on the table and places his chin in his hand using the apparent comfort of the pose to hide his expression

Marcus Veranius: "Von Holtz you say."

Suldae Westwind: Well, this Abbot is one open-minded person, although perhaps not one with the best judgement.

Marcus Veranius: "You know, we've had encounters with is work in the past as well."

Suldae Westwind: (pls remind me coz i forgot and Suldae wouldnt have it hasnt been that long)
(it sounds familiar)

The Abbot: "Yes. He revealed his true nature after the deed was done. I realized that any attempt to slay him would be futile -- the ancient curse upon the land means that the vampire can never truly die -- at least not in Barovia."

Suldae Westwind: (oh DUH)
(i think i remmeber now)

The Abbot: "Strahd confided in me. Perhaps I was the first person in centuries to lend him a sympathetic ear."

Suldae Westwind: (the coffin maker in Vallaki)

Suldae props her chin on her hands with her elbows on the table.

Marcus Veranius nods. "Strahd's supposed false identity. A shame it is so effective. He tricked a coffin maker into sabotaging Vallaki's wards."

Suldae Westwind: "If it's not violating confidentiality, would you tell us what he said?"

It is a bard's duty to gather stories, always.

The Abbot: "He wishes nothing more than to escape Barovia. Since then, I have attempted to find a cure for his malady. I am now convinced that the cure lies in reuniting Strahd with his lost love and, in so doing, ending Barovia's curse."

Suldae Westwind: Ah. Well, then.

The Abbot: "Hence Vasilka!" says the Abbot, gesturing towards her grandly.

Vasilka grunts and looks at him, awaiting a command.

"No, no. We were talking about you, not to you. Continue with your work, my dear."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry's free hand begins to drum a quick beat on the table

The Abbot: Vasilka grunts again and returns to the pig.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at the golem with a bit of skepticism. "...This does look like a solution, if not a flawless one. Does Vasilika have desires of her own, though?"

If she doesn't, Suldae supposes, that'd suit Strahd just fine, probably.

The Abbot: "Oh, of course not. All she needs now is some additional training in manners and etiquette, plus a wedding gown. Then she can be formally presented to Strahd, and win his love."

"I want to rid Barovia of its sickness. By giving the devil his heart's desire, I shall bring salvation to him and his land."

Suldae Westwind: "That seems... like a work in progress," Suldae comments. "You said it wasn't possible to kill Strahd?"

Marcus Veranius frowns. "It won't work. We tried a stand-in for his love already."

The Abbot: "Oh, he can be killed. But Barovia will bring him back. He and this accursed land are bound together."

"Yes, I heard about your little experiment with lady Wachter."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry frowns knowing that to not be the truth

The Abbot: "One of the birds was telling me about it just the other day."

Suldae Westwind: "You expect it would work better with Vasilika? Why?" Suldae asks.

The Abbot: The Abbot does not answer this question. He glances out the window thoughtfully. "I was thinking about going down to the village and offering to bring back Ilya, the Burgomaster's recently deceased son, in exchange for a wedding gown. People in villages have wedding gowns, don't they? I'm certain they do."

"I'm sorry, you asked a question? I wasn't listening. What did you say?"

Suldae Westwind: "Bring back?" Suldae asks instead.

Marcus Veranius relents, moving his arms off the table as politely as he can.

Suldae Westwind: "In what way?"

Hers are the manners of a story gatherer, right now.

She is not someone who passes judgement, only someone who asks and remembers.

It's a manner deeply ingrained in her, one she was trained in since childhood.

And one of the things she learned: if a question is not answered, it is often better to not ask it again. If someone is deluded, the job of helping them is separate from the job of questioning them, and comes later.

And in this case, probably not theirs to attempt.

The Abbot: The Abbot paces calmly. "As you know, the people in Barovia are running out of souls. This is, of course, the reason Strahd bothers to bring so many adventurers into the land. Souls can reincarnate only a certain number of times, and sometimes they never find their way to a newborn before the madness of the mists takes them. No soul can escape Barovia -- except the Vistani, of course," he nods at Ezmerelda. "Due to services rendered in the ancient days. Strahd's soul is no different. He cannot escape Barovia. He is no ordinary vampire -- an ordinary vampire has no soul, and is instead a corpse possessed by a demon. Strahd has a soul, and it is bound here, imprisoned like all the rest. His soul must always know the curse, so his memories are not destroyed when he is reincarnated. And in every incarnation, he is king of the vampires."

"My private theory is that the demiplane of Barovia is a tidy little corner of one of the hells. Hence the eternal nature of his torment."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae listens attentively. Even story gathering aside (which she is not putting it), there has to be a clue in there somewhere, a key. She does not believe this could be truly endless.

The Abbot: "Strahd's pact with the powers in the Amber Temple was sealed in blood, in the heat of the madness of his love for the one being who will never reincarnate here -- Tatyana. That pact is likely to remain unbroken."

"HOWEVER, if Strahd can be made to love again, I believe that the curse will end."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So you believe"

The Abbot: "His lingering adoration for this poor deceased maiden -- the would-be bride of his own murdered brother, no less! -- is what binds him here."

Liliet (Suldae): "That pact is likely to remain unbroken..." Suldae repeats slowly. "While you are attempting your solution, would you help us try other options?"

"I understand that we are most certainly not the first to try, but everything happened for the first time once."

The Abbot: "My decisions are based upon the guidance of the Morninglord! I must pursue the path I believe to be right. If you will help me to find a bridal gown suitable to Vasilka, I will aid you on your own journey -- in such small ways as I can. Why, perhaps I could raise some of you from the dead, when you inevitably fall? Let us say... Oh, three times. Three is a good number. Is such aid sufficient?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda leans over to Marcus and whispers: "This guy is a few nuts short of a fruitcake..."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae pauses. "...Raise from the dead? May we ask in what way exactly?"

There is Resurrection, and then there is... well, then there are other options.

Marcus Veranius: "If you can perform a true resurrection of the dead, then there may be a second solution. For we too know of the nature of the Curse, and have a possible way to unpin it."

"For only through Blood does Strahd hold power. And if that blood were unspilled, so too might the curse be undone."

The Abbot: "So long as the dead creature has been dead no longer than 10 days, I can call its soul back to its body, simultaneously neutralizing poisons and diseases. I can close all mortal wounds. Of course, you will need all the parts -- the head and the heart and such. So don't get dismembered."

Marcus Veranius frowns. 10 days is a bit too short.

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae lowers her head for a second. Of course it cannot be that easy.

The Abbot: "I am afraid, if you are speaking of Strahd's departed brother, that he is beyond my reach. His soul does not reside in Barovia."

Liliet (Suldae): "A proper bridal gown?" Suldae asks then. The pact he's offering sounds good to her, but she's not hasty to assume there isn't a bad idea hidden in there.

This guy seems one for bad ideas.

All bad ideas, all the time.

The Abbot: "Yes, a bridal gown. A size... 2, I think."

Liliet (Suldae): "Where could we get one?"

Marcus Veranius doesn't like the Abbot's proposition, if only because he knows what the next-best bride would be if the flesh golem fails

The Abbot: "Heavens, you are the mortals here! I know nothing of such matters."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry halfcliddedly glares at Suldae she can seriously be considering dealing with this basket case

Suldae Westwind: "Alright," Suldae nods. A regular bridal gown, then, it seems like. "Any specifics?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: can't

Marcus Veranius: "You keep saying that word. Mortals. You are not an elf, so your eternity is not through flesh and blood. If the question is not rude to ask, what ARE you, Abbot?"

The Abbot: "Not rude at all," says the Abbot.

"I am a Deva."

Suldae Westwind:

29

ARCANA (11)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook:

DIVINE SENSE

Class: Paladin 1

As an action, until the end of your next turn, you know the location of any celestial, fiend, or undead within 60 feet of you that is not behind total cover. You know the type of any being whose presence you sense, but not its identity. Within the same radius, you also detect the presence of any place or object that has been consecrated or desecrated. You can use this feature a number of times equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier. When you finish a long rest, you regain all expended uses.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae recalls what she knows about those.

The Abbot: "I was sent from the Upper Planes to honor the legacy of Saint Markovia."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry uses his Divine Sense to verify this claim

Devas are angels that act as divine messengers or agents to the Material Plane, the Shadowfell, and the Feywild and that can assume a form appropriate to the realm they are sent to. Legend tells of angels that take mortal form for years, lending aid, hope, and courage to goodhearted folk. A deva can take any shape, although it prefers to appear to mortals as an innocuous humanoid or animal. When circumstances require that it cast off its guise, a deva is a beautiful humanoid-like creature with silvery skin. Its hair and eyes gleam with an unearthly luster, and large feathery wings unfurl from its shoulder blades.

Henry senses that the Abbot is, indeed, a Celestial of high power.

He also senses a dark corruption -- a creeping madness, infesting this Celestial messenger.

Suldae Westwind: Well, actually does make Suldae feel better. Even if for a Deva this guy seems indeed... a few nuts short of a fruitcake.

"I expect it'll take you some time yet to properly teach Vasilika?" Suldae asks. "It takes more than a decade for human children to learn how to be adults."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry coughs loudly

The Abbot: "Goodness, does it take that long? How horrid."

"Well, I have nothing but time on my hands, and I cannot present an imperfect creation to a king."

"It may take a few more weeks, at least."

Suldae Westwind: "What happens if it doesn't work?" Suldae asks. "Will you try again?"

The Abbot: "Naturally!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glares at Suldae his whole being screaming a silent NO!

Suldae Westwind: "May I ask where you get... materials? For creating such a complicated being?"

The Abbot: "It has taken me many years to achieve a creation of such beauty. My first few attempts were rather laughable, in comparison. But I am certain this Vasilka will be the one."

"Oh, I gather the body parts from the graves in Krezk. Or rather, I send my mongrelfolk to do so."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae notes Henry's distress, but storming out while refusing the Abbot seems ill-advised. They need to gather all the information they can, first.

"I see," she says. He's not killing people for it, so that's one worry checked off the list.

"Thank you for your hospitality. There's still time before you need the gown; is it fine if we come back to you later with our answer?"

The Abbot: "Oh, of course."

Marcus Veranius: Just like the Burgomaster of Vallaki then. An absolutely disgusting person, whom by normal standards ought to be vanquished to let better people stand tall. But in this accursed Barovia, must be spared to hunt a greater evil.

The Abbot: "Will you not stay for dinner? The food is nearly ready."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It appaers to be quite thourghly charred"

The pig appears to be quite burnt. Deva's don't eat, so he may not be aware of how badly it has been ruined.

Marcus Veranius: "I would be honored to taste test, though the skill seems rather futile to teach doesn't it? Vampires don't eat."

"Well... don't eat food at least."

The Abbot: "Ah! But if the cure works, he will no longer be a vampire!"

"This is, in fact, the point!"

Marcus Veranius: "AH! Genius ahead of mine; truly the divine know best."

Suldae Westwind: "You'll probably want to ask the mongrelfolk for assistance with this. They eat, don't they? It seems like a skill they'd have more than you've ever needed it."

Marcus Veranius says this in a sarcastic tone, knowing the Abbot wouldn't catch on

The Abbot: "Your humility is a credit to your species, Marcus!"

"It is good that you should know your place in the divine order."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives Marcus a glare. Just because he's delusional, doesn't necessarily mean he won't catch sarcasm. Although it does appear to have worked.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda rolls her eyes almost audibly.

Suldae Westwind: Or he might be practicing sarcasm of his own.

That's what Suldae would do in his place.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: She whistles a jaunty little note or two that certain individuals familiar with birdcalls might recognize as the call of a cuckoo.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry is worried his teeth trying thier very best to turn each other into dust might be audible

Suldae Westwind: "I am sorry to turn down your offer," Suldae says, "but mortals are picky about food we eat, and, well, Vasilika, brilliant as she is, is not quite there yet. We will visit again, I'm sure. My apologies, again."

She stands up and gives a grand bow, hat sweeping the floor.

The Abbot: "Oh, I had hoped to test Vasilka's knowledge of hospitality. It is a pity you must leave so soon. Well, do not keep me waiting forever! Ha ha. I may have to come and find you, if you do."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda gets up without a word, bows grandly with a false grin, and turns to leave.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rises aswell affecting a bow before leaving Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus? Are you coming?"

Marcus Veranius turns to Ezmerelda, then the Abbot

Marcus Veranius: "Mortal Etiquette. You're not allowed to dine alone when in a group. You understand, yes?"

Marcus Veranius moves to leave with the others

The Abbot: "I understand, Marcus Veranius. I understand more than you know... Well, until we meet again!"

"Fare thee well! Bon voyage!"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: As soon as she is out of earshot of the Abbot, Ezmerelda says, "Right, so, I don't know exactly what's going on there, but I don't think we need to worry about him too much."

"I guess that's one thing we can check off the list?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He is a celestial and a mad one at that"

Marcus Veranius: "He is not an enemy, which is more than we can say for a good many people."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "In Barovia, 'not an enemy' almost qualifies as 'friend'."

"At least we know the people of Krezk are safe -- from the Abbot, at least."

"Of course, if he starts inviting Strahd in to visit Vasilka, Strahd could easily take up residence in the Abbey..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A 'Friend' that Strahd can be defated by love? Yeah pass. If I have to never see him again it would be to early" Henry bites out

Marcus Veranius frowns. "Which means Krezk is no refuge for our loved ones."

Suldae Westwind: "So he believes the best of people, that's stupid but hardly a character flaw," Suldae says.

"He strikes me as someone too good for his own good, too good to make good decisions in a place like this. His judgement cannot be trusted, but I think his intent can."

"That said, I'm not bringing Ireena anywhere near him."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Agreed. That would be the height of folly."

"For all we know, he and Strahd may be in communication still."

Suldae Westwind: "Sounds as likely as not," Suldae agrees.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "He may already be telling that devil everything he learned about us..."

"Luckily I do not think we let too much slip."

Suldae Westwind: "That said, we might want to take him up on that offer of a deal. I doubt he'd renege, and all he's asking for is a dress."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He believes the monster made by Greed and Obsession can be unmade by some puppet love." Henry

Suldae Westwind: "And?"

"I can see the sense in that, even if it's stupid. Stupidity is not a sin, nor madness."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I think Strahd is toying with him."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You don't honestly believe that'll work?"

Suldae Westwind: "No, I don't think it would work. I understand how he came to that conclusion, though."

"Not to point fingers at a certain someone who thought Lady Wachter might be swayed by consideration for her town..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "By Strahd leading him to it so the Angel could finally do what he likely came to earth for"

Suldae Westwind: "Exactly."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Strahd has strung him along with some sad tale of unrequited love and loss. Wanting out of Barovia? I don't buy it. In Barovia Strahd has almost absolute power. Why would he ever wish to leave?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Now what do you think our dear Abbot would do should his masterplan fail"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I imagine he has already tried this plan a few times. He mentioned this Vasilka."

Suldae Westwind: "We need to be careful about his good intentions misleading him, but he's a resource. Also, if he comes looking for us later... well, hopefully it'll take more of an eternity than our lifetimes could last, for an immortal, but he seems quite impatient about his doll, so I wouldn't count on it."

Marcus Veranius: "I mean, it wouldn't hurt to find a dress."

Suldae Westwind: "I am not saying he is sane, nor that his plan has a snowball's chance in hell of working. I'm saying we can work with him regardless."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Acquiring a wedding dress does seem a small price to pay for an alliance with such a powerful -- if insane -- being."

"Let us keep it as an arms-length alliance, if we can."

Marcus Veranius: "As was with the Burgomaster of Vallaki."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods at Ezme.

"The Burgomaster is vile and horrible. The Abbot isn't hurting anyone."

"The two are hardly comparable."

Marcus Veranius rolls his eyes. The angel wasn't too great either

-  Sulda Westwind: "One is likely quite sane, just a terrible person. The other means well, but gets lost on the way to it. There is a difference."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry groans "Fine if you want to help him further his delusion I'll help but I fear what might happen if the creeping corruption I felt grows stronger"
-  Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Creeping corruption?"
"That sounds bad."
-  Sulda Westwind: Sulda frowns at him. "Might there be a way to help with that?"
-  Marcus Veranius: "Slip holy water in his tea?"
-  Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We have to assume that Strahd has long-term plans for this Deva, I think..."
"Do Devas drink?"
-  Marcus Veranius: "He might be convinced if it's mortal etiquette to drink Holy Water-laced Tea"
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "When I confirmed He truly was a Deva I felt a corruption on him likely linked to his mental state"
-  Sulda Westwind: "Probably not," Sulda says. "Hey, remember the A... S... that place we were going to visit with the revenant? I wonder if they know something about him."
"One's mental state can be relieved by external influence. He's been here alone, surrounded by madmen. The corruption might yet be helped."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: "We might aswell ask Kasimir if he knows anything, they are bound to have crossed fates before"
-  Sulda Westwind: "That as well. I wonder how long ago Strahd told him this story."
-  Henry of Willowsbrook: (we are in the process of leaving yes?)
-  Sulda Westwind: (I'd assume we're not idiots and therefore thoroughly out of range of any of his people's hearing)

Descending the winding switchback road, you have a nice view of Krezk. Smoke rises quietly from humble chimneys, and a few people are walking the streets.

The sun is getting lower but it is still relatively early in the afternoon.

-  Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry stops Sulda gently "Hey a moment please if you would"
-  Sulda Westwind: Sulda goes with it.
-  Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda walks on with Marcus.
"Thank you for your jacket," she says.
She slips it off and throws it casually around Marcus's shoulders again. "It's getting warm now, so I'll let you borrow it for a while." She winks.
(brb gotta take care of some chickens)

Marcus Veranius smiles

Marcus Veranius: The jacket DOES feel kindof important, even if he can't remember where it came from.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: (back)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henrys face is a twisted grimace of conflicted emotions "I understand you want to help the Abbot and believe me I would like to aswell but..."he pauses uncertain on how to put it "Suldae are you prepared to face what happens ...if we can't? If we aren't able to remove the corruption or if it's roots are in to deep already and he ends up falling in truth?"

Marcus Veranius: "If it comes to it, yes. But at the same time, we need not beat down every ounce of corruption. Else we waste our resources and fail to retain enough to cut off its head."

Suldae Westwind: "You think he hasn't yet?" Suldae cocks her head. "If we can't help, then we can't help. What do you think will happen? How can it get worse?"

Marcus, you're ahead

we're speaking in private, remember?

Marcus Veranius: (OOF)

Suldae Westwind: (rip, sorry)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus says nothing, he's too busy putting on a jacket)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I wonder what they're talking about?" Ezmerelda says.

"We should whisper conspiratorially and make them think we're sharing deep secrets."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir whispers this conspiratorially.

Marcus Veranius looks back to the others with a suspicious look, then to Ezmerelda with a serious one. He too whispers

Marcus Veranius: "I do believe you're right."

Suldae Westwind:

16

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

17

DECEPTION (1)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wonders what they're whispering about.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You know the king of the hells right? It might not be as bad as that but it can get worse still. What stops a 'superior' being from praying on those beneath him instead of being a mere scavenger?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns at Henry. "The madness has corrupted his judgement, but I don't think it's corrupted his motivation. He is not a predator, I don't think he has an ounce of that in him. Worst I can see in him is something like deciding everyone is Barovia is better off dead than alive, which admittedly is pretty damn bad. Just, my point is - he'll always be trying to help, I think."

"I did undermine my point there a little, didn't I?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "They seem quite serious," whispers Ezmerelda.

"I've just noticed how finely made your boots are."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You are a much better person than me if you truly believe that" Henry's face is solemn at this

Suldae Westwind: "The ends are increasingly justifying the means, to him, and he's increasingly refusing to acknowledge anything that might contradict the idea he's focused on. I see that."

Marcus Veranius: "Thank you; I worked hard on them. Imagine running around this gloomy place in boots that leaked." Marcus whispers back, also serious. But actually legitimately serious, as boots were no laughing matter

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "You... You made them... Yourself?"

Two spots of color appear on Ezmerelda's cheekbones and her eyes dilate.

"Oh, Marcus."

Suldae Westwind: She lets the "good person" comment pass by. She doesn't agree that's the reason, but it doesn't seem to be a good point to bring up right now.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus, Marcus, Marcus."

Suldae Westwind: "And that can lead very bad places, Henry, it can. But these things aren't random."

Marcus Veranius: "That's what a Cordwainer does. Shoemaker... umm...." Marcus was about to go into the finer details of his noble profession but is suddenly distracted Suldae Westwind: "There's always internal logic. I can follow his."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "So how many times did you say you had been married?"

Marcus Veranius: "Oh, I'm still single unfortunately. Though I've always wanted to be a father! Shoes are nice, but family lasts longer."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Then I might just be mistaken in assuming that he like us is capable of acting irrationally" Henry muses

Suldae Westwind: "I'm not so naive as to believe he's safe to be around. Even accepting an offer of resurrections from him might not be safe, given his cooperation with Strahd - he might just bring us back in his custody, or something."

"No-one's ever perfectly rational, Henry."

"Kindness isn't rational."

"Goodness isn't rational."

"Cruelty isn't either."

"Rationality has nothing to do with this at all."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Unfortunately for you, maybe," says Ezmerelda, with a sly smile. Then a great sadness seems to enter her eyes. "Yes... Family is forever. Even after they're gone."

Suldae Westwind: "There are just people, and things they want, and decisions they make. I don't trust his decisions, like I said. But I haven't heard anything that made me doubt what he wants."

(goddammit Marcus's amnesia is making me REALLY SAD)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: She looks at Marcus sideways, as though waiting to see if he remembers something.

"I remember what you did for me, you know."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs deeply "That wasn't what I meant" He looks down on Krezk "I just fear what'll happen if his wants change"

Suldae Westwind: "Change?"

Marcus Veranius: Oh. Touchy subject. Marcus offers Esmeralda a pat on the back. "I don't think I could ever understand how much that hurts to lose those you love. But my condolences."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

ACROBATICS
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 13 | 26

Suldae Westwind: (oh my god what)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "For now he wants to lift Strahd's curse however stupidly misguided his ways might be but what if that stops being the case?"

Suldae Westwind: "What other motivation do you think will overpower this one?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir throws herself at Marcus, grappling him suddenly by the arm, twisting him to face her, and planting a desperate kiss on his lips.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: She pulls away abruptly.

"You'll never know what that was for."

Suldae Westwind: "Everything he wants so far leads up to lifting Strahd's curse one way or another. Helping Strahd, helping the people of this land, keeping his charges safe."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: She walks on ahead, her head down, a subdued attitude to her gait.

Suldae Westwind: "What do you think could spur on the change?"

Marcus Veranius doesn't understand what's going on. He remains frozen in place, mind trying to comprehend things. Walking has been forgotten.

Marcus Veranius: ...but it feels nice

His face is glowing red

Suldae Westwind:

24

PERCEPTION (10)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae notices what's going on with the corner of her eye.

Marcus Veranius: A wide smile stretches across it

Suldae Westwind:

18

WISDOM (2+2)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I don't know and that scares me the most I do not know but if the corruption is any indication I doubt It would be good for anyone but maybe Strahd"

Suldae Westwind: She manages to stay focused on hte conversation, though. Mostly.

Suldae looks up thoughtfully. "The worst case that occured to me was him deepening his association with Strahd. Wanting to help him in more ways than this one. He'd still be wanting to help, but - remember how Lady Wachter defended her reasoning for working with him? That, but genuinely. The idea that cooperating with him is the lesser evil."

"He doesn't seem to be quite there yet."

"I'd say that we should try to get him help if we can. I'd also say that we need to investigate this whole "cannot be killed" thing more thoroughly, and the whole "demiplane in one of the hells" thing."

"What's your suggestion?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Honestly avoid him forever more, kill Strahd and leave this Heaven and Hell forsaken place but more realistically stay away until we have anything we are reasonably confident will change something"

Suldae Westwind: "What makes me think getting the dress is a better idea than the opposite is mostly his remark about finding us if we take too long. Having him stumble upon Ireena is definitely a bad scenario. Not a chance I want to take on his sanity."

"We get him the dress, we negotiate for specific help we want."

"It's a lever, more or less. The only one we have."

Marcus Veranius remains frozen and blushing as Suldae and Henry walk past Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Come on, Marcus!" Ezmerelda shouts, from nearly the end of the path.

Suldae Westwind: (Marcus we're standing I'm pretty sure)

Marcus Veranius: (You said you were walking earlier ;-;)

Suldae Westwind: (where?)

(i missed or forgot it)

Marcus Veranius: (We're walking down the path at different paces?)

Marcus Veranius remembers how legs work and quickly runs down the path to catch up

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Hurry up, Marcus! A beautiful woman like me doesn't wait forever!"

Suldae Westwind: (I figured we just stopped when Henry stopped Suldae and have been standing talking since)

Marcus Veranius: (Fak. I'm bad at RP)

GM: (You're both doing great, it's a minor detail)

(Marcus is running now anyway, so it's no longer relevant)

(Henry, you're doing great too. I'm loving the philosophical/theological discussion here)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah its fine im just anal abt these things)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "...." Henry seems displeased. "fine but can we try stall him as much as we possibly can" he deflates a little "And can you promise me one thing please? If I die don't let him near me"

Suldae Westwind: "I don't think there'd be a problem with telling him you don't want to be resurrected right off," Suldae shrugs, uncomfortable with his discomfort. "Either way, of course I promise."

"Not sure what you mean by stalling him though."

"Sabotaging his work doesn't seem like a great idea, though I absolutely don't intend on stopping from pointing out how much more needs to be done every time we talk."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir grins to see Marcus running down the path toward her.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is well-aware that the 'lesser evil' decision making she's employing here is... variable from person to person. She's worried about how uncomfortable Henry seems with this, even though he's agreeing.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We might aswell get a gown but no need to hurry in getting it to him, you understand" Henry rubs the back of his neck

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns.

"We're running a risk between hurrying him up where we could stall and having him come look for us and find Ireena. Forgive me if I find one of these possibilities rather more terrifying than the other..." Suldae pauses, not wanting to end it with the selfish version, surely there's more to it? Ah, yes. "I'd say cooperation will do more good to his mental state than stalling. Even if he gets worse with each new Vasilika... these things matter."

"Just talking to someone he doesn't normally talk to should be helping."

"Give him a peek outside of his bubble."

"I'm not saying no, mind you. I'm just saying this is my logic."

"Dealing in good faith is always safer."

Suldae Westwind: This is admittedly a rather... bardic approach to it. She understands how a paladin might have a different opinion. That said, she's fairly sure she's the one who's right about this, at least so far.

GM: (Alright, I have to stop here, but you can keep this conversation going as long as you feel like. Thank you all for playing! This was a fun, RP-heavy session, which is kind of a nice break from the combat-heavy sessions we've been having. I'm sure there will be more things to almost get killed by next session.)

Suldae Westwind: (dont SAY that)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

(<http://giphygifs.s3.amazonaws.com/media/TJKm32CqAr0CA/giphy.gif>)

Suldae Westwind: (this session is pressing alllllll of my fun rp buttons)
(every single one of them)
(you might have noticed by the amount of text ive produced)
(Henry pls lets keep talking this is a conversation i super want to have)

Kasimir Velikov: 18

Suldae Westwind: (and so does Suldae)
(oh that sounds terrifying)

Kasimir Velikov: (Ooh, that should be fun to resolve next session. Kasimir has a random encounter on his way back to Krezk)

Suldae Westwind: (I FIGURED)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So much to do and the pit just seems ever deeper" Henry murmurs to himself before resolving himself to something "I trust you Suldae so if you have faith in what you do I'll follow your lead just...remember the promise" Henry begins to walk humming an old song called 'Yet Deeper And Darker The Witch Night Grows' the haunting tune contrasting with the still bright afternoon sun

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs his hand, stopping him.

"Just because I'm better at saying what I think doesn't mean I'm right," she says.

"I believe in what I do. But if you ever truly think I'm doing the wrong thing - tell me. Stop me."

"I don't want to be like him."

She is shaken by the encounter, too.

She looks at her friend, remembering the night he asked her for guidance.

Suldae Westwind: It's her turn now.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You're correct it doesn't mean your right but still I trust you." He hugs her close light blooming as he speaks the last words. Offering her his arm like some nobleman he says "If I truly knew you to be wrong I'd stop you in a heartbeat but I don't know so all I can do right now is have faith that your not" he looks down again at Krezk, at Suldae and at his hand "And be ready for whatever happens next"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, still worried, but comforted by his presence at her side. She's still holding his hand.

"That's all I can do too. Every decision seems like the wrong one if I squint just so," she whispers.

"I know of too many ways anything can end in disaster."

"I'm trying to do what's right, choose the smallest one, and I believe that these are the same thing - that doing what's right is what'll lead to the best outcome."

"But I don't know."

"I bet he believes in that too."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I choose to belief that we can do the right thing, it's a leap of faith I'm willing to make"

Henry says coaxing her to walk arm in arm with him like some nobles out on courtship grinning at the absurdity of the two of them filling these roles.

"Even if it means dancing on the edge of the abyss"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae walks with him.

"We're not on the edge of the abyss," she says, looking down. "I feel like we're already inside, trying to find our way up. There might not be one. And then... I sometimes feel like there's not that much deeper left to fall. But that's not true, is it? There are still things we can protect."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "True we might allready be to deep to ever get out but we must still try no? Striving to reach the surface if just for one more ray of sunshine" Henry muses "If we have no idea where to go might aswell pick a direction and trust and pray and hope it's up"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae touches her forehead to the armor on his arm gratefully. The cool touch of metal feels refreshing, feels better than being alone with her thoughts.

"If the only way is down," she whispers, "then the only thing we can do is make ourselves feel better on the way down. Make each other feel better. But I cannot think like that, I cannot stand thinking like that, I'd rather everyone hate me while I do the right thing than give up..."

There are tears sliding down the metal.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I trust you to fly Suldae" Henry says "Not because I have given up and am refusing to take ownership of my refusal to rage against the dark and do what right no matter the pain but because I choose to belief that you can do it," "I hope you trust me enough to accurately place my trust"

Suldae Westwind: "Trust in me who trusts in you," Suldae mumbles into his armor, her arms wrapped around his waist, pinning his arm to his side. "That works. Can we just... walk like this for a while?"

She feels stupid, like a little kid. But also she is, isn't she? She's 22. That's barely anything, even for a human, let alone a half elf. She cannot know everything, it's fine. She can not know how to handle things and then be able to handle them anyway. It's fine.

"We might be the seventy-oddth group that tried to do this, but we'll be the one to succeed," she mumbles. It sounds silly to say it out loud, but it's always true. Nothing works from the first time, and there's a first time for anything. Why wouldn't it be them, really?

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Can you cling to one side or do you want me to carry you because this really doesn't seem like a comfortable way to walk down hill" Henry says voice soft "We'll be the ones to end it that I Know"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae unclings from his waist, recognizing he's right. She's just holding onto his arm now, which gives them a lot more space for maneuvering.

She doesn't want to be carried. She can stand on her own two legs, just... with someone to hold onto.

Many someones, preferably.

Right now, one's good.

Henry of Willowsbrook: A sliver of gold and emerald light erases the red around her eyes without comment

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes and walks after him, just like this.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry hums again a messy and sloopy tune that somehow feels just right as he walks.

but cheerful(GODDAMNIT

Suldae Westwind: Suldae starts humming along eventually, and by the time they reach the bottom of the cliff, where anyone else is in view, she's just walking normally, humming, holding his hand.

It's nice to have someone to be stuck here with, at least.

Kasimir Velikov:

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	2

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	5

GM (GM): 8

Able: able able

In the forest not far from Krezk, a dark elf moves almost silently between the trees.

Behind him, unnoticed, several figures caked in mud rise up as he passes by.

Meanwhile, back in Krezk, a certain seer awakens from a day-long drug trip and finds himself staring at the ceiling of a hut.

Liliet (Suldae): good morning!

Hierie Unthere: "who- who said that"

Hierie fumbles around for his hat

GM (GM): Hierie manages to find his hat.

Hierie Unthere: He then shuffles around on his knees in search of fellow sentient beings.

He finds the village clairvoyant seated at a small round table, laying out Tarokka cards.

Hierie Unthere: "yo"

Clairvoyant: "Ah, good. You're awake."

"I trust the elixir brought you useful visions?"

Hiere Unthere: "elixir? Oh, that. Yeah, sure, we'll go with useful"

Clairvoyant: "Your friends are on the abbey road, with the exception of the elf. He will meet you shortly... If he survives. You had better go."

Hiere Unthere: He looks out the window. "My golden slumbers are over now, here comes the sun, the sun king. I should go and come together with them, as well as this mean mr mustard you speak of. Hopefully we don't meet the end in some octopus' garden. Abbey road, you said?"

The Clairvoyant clutches her chest and pulls a pained face. She says: "URK." Then she slumps over the table, dead. The last card in her hand depicts a grinning, skeletal reaper holding a scythe, wrapped in a ragged black cloak.

Hiere Unthere: "well shit"

Here takes this as an omen to gtfo and heads to Abbey Road.

Hiere spots Henry and Suldae still descending the road, and Ezmerelda and Marcus at the bottom of it.

Hiere Unthere: "she's probably just napping"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh good, he's awake!"

Hiere Unthere: "How long was I out?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Seeing Hiere Henry begins to move at a slightly faster pace

"Well it's afternoon now so about that long" Henry comments loudly having just barely come into earshot

Hiere Unthere: "oh, so more of an extended nap"

Marcus Veranius: "Particularly extended. I'd call you out on it, but you're probably the only one to get any sleep last night."

"Makes me rather envious."

Hiere Unthere: "it was a particularly strong... elixir"

Suldae Westwind: "I slept," Suldae mumbles. Does she want to know what Marcus was doing? Nah. She can guess.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I wonder if Rictavio slept?" Ezmerelda says, with a twinkle in her eye.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So did I" Henry says " Seems to me you're the only one that hasn't Marcus"

Suldae Westwind: "Unlikely," Suldae murmurs

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Actually, come to think of it, I didn't get much sleep either."

Suldae Westwind: This covers both Ezmerelda's and Henry's contributions, realyl.
Suldae stays silent. This is really too easy. Tooo easy.

Marcus Veranius frowns. "OK, haha, very funny. Glad to know I'm the mature one."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We knew that already."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Damnit and I just stopped thinking about Rs night thank you for that Ezme"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "My pleasure!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae giggles. She likes the lighter mood.

Rictavio: Just then, Rictavio comes hobbling down the road towards you. He is leaning heavily on his cane and has one hand pressed to his hip. He's limping, stiff-legged. He has a huge grin on his face.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry blows a raspberry at her fully aware how immature it is Rictavio: "Ah! You're all still here."

Suldae Westwind: "So where do we go to commission a bridal dress around here?"

Hiere Unthere: "ah fuck you're still here"

Rictavio: "So what did you learn from the abbey?"

Marcus Veranius: "Their patron saint is an angel Strahd is slowly corrupting, but isn't a problem at the particular moment."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well the Abbots a Deva albeit a bit cracked in the tea set"

Rictavio: "That sounds bad."

"Devas are very hard to kill."

"Not that I would know from personal experience."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda raises an eyebrow in Rictavio's general direction, but does not speak her question.

Marcus Veranius: "The good news is that the problem will not bother us in this PARTICULAR moment. Which means we have time to make a move on Strahd's vulnerabilities."

"And I have a good idea on where to strike first."

Suldae Westwind: "Commissioning a dress?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well do take your dramatic pause Marcus not like we got things to do"

Marcus Veranius: "Actually, something a bit more malicious." Marcus states, ignoring Henry's jab.

"Strahd seems keen on taking Baba Lysaga's advice, and she is already an enemy we need to deal with. So we hunt her down first."

"Then to put Strahd on edge, use one of her dresses as 'wedding gown' to freak him out."

Hiere Unthere: "what's all this about wedding dresses?"

Suldae Westwind: "That's... ouch," Suldae says. "Do we even know she wears dresses?"

"I mean we lose nothing in trying, though."

Marcus Veranius: "Well, she's a witch. They do the robes and cauldron thing, yes?"

Suldae Westwind: "A robe and a dress aren't the same thing."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well unless anyone of us learned dress making we atleast got something to do"

Marcus Veranius: "I don't think our Angel friend knows the particulars."

Suldae Westwind: "Hiere, the mad deva in the abbey is making constructs to play the role of Strahd's wife, and he wants a bridal gown for the current version. Asked us to get one in exchange for some favors. It's probably a good idea to actually do that, considering the possible alternatives."

"His furry friends might."

Hiere Unthere: "....."

"ok"

Marcus Veranius: "...might still be worth a shot. Making Strahd angry at our Deva friend might solve the problem as well as it did Lady Wachter."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae winces.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere pretends to understand.

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd's rage is a fine weapon if we can trick him into using it to our benefit."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "well if at first your wive trap fails try again?"

Suldae Westwind: "I doubt he'd fall for that. He'd been prepping that Deva for a long time. He'll use it to turn him against us, more likely."

Hiere Unthere: Here wonders if he's still tripping balls

Suldae Westwind: "That sounds like a terrible idea."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You do still want to get him that dress thoug right?"

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd will not get mad at him, he doesn't care that much about his constructs."

Marcus Veranius frowns. "The Deva WILL be turned against us eventually. I doubt Strahd needs any help with that."

Suldae Westwind: "Eventually. He's still a Deva. The 'eventually' might be multiple human lifetimes."

"Can we not try to hurry it up?"

Marcus Veranius: "I give it a few weeks."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shakes her head.

"I really, really don't think so. Especially if we help."

"If we actually, legitimately help with the dress."

Marcus Veranius: "The Deva will fail with his bride, then be guided to secure Ireena instead. That is what I predict Strahd's next move is."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns. That.. is possible.

"That is possible," she says out loud.

Marcus Veranius: "Unless Strahd suddenly tires of entertaining the Angel, such as if the Angel's work is responsible for the death of a minion."

Suldae Westwind: "But we should do what we can to stall that outcome, not hurry it up."

Marcus Veranius: "It's a long shot, but it might work."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes. "I doubt an angel is less valuable to him than Baba Lysaga, who'll be already lost either way at that point."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So since we are already in such a dour mood why not go find something to kill" Henry says cheerfully "Well when Kasimir gets back anyway"

Suldae Westwind: "It is exceedingly unlikely to work. Not the exact way you want it to. Never count on the enemy being an idiot."

Marcus Veranius: "I'm counting on Strahd's rage being as notorious as the stories describe."

Suldae Westwind: "The worst case scenario is very bad for us, and not so likely we can discount it."
"He'll aim it at US, Marcus."

Marcus Veranius: "He's ALREADY aiming it at us!"

Suldae Westwind: "He might also aim it at Krozk. Do you want that?"

Marcus Veranius pauses. That IS a good point...

Suldae Westwind: "Your plan risks several worst case outcomes that are, collectively, much more likely than the best case one you want."

"Of course, the likeliest outcome is that Strahd doesn't care about Baba Lysaga all that much either way."

"He seemed to think of her as a useful minion, but personal attachment? From him? I doubt it."

Marcus Veranius: "...maybe. She's still a threat I'd like hunted down though, if not because she's a risk to our extended family."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh, I definitely agree with that part."

"I just think the dress thing needs to be handled to give us the angel's goodwill, not to enrage him."

"And preferably to stall him altogether."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So witch hunting with a side of bridal shopping then?" Henry asks deadpan

Marcus Veranius nods

Suldae Westwind: "If we commission a very expensive dress that will take several weeks of sewing, that kills both birds with the same stone, doesn't it?"

"Not like we can't afford it."

Hiere Unthere: "lets go hunt some brides"

Marcus Veranius perks up at the idea of weaponizing money to their advantage

Marcus Veranius: "That's brilliant! I like that."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "I...You know what nevermind let's ask in town if they have a seamstress we could commission while we wait on Kasimir"

 Marcus Veranius: "Ensure it isn't a rush order. That'll buy us a month or two."

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Speaking of Kasimir, shouldn't he be back by now?"

 Hiere Unthere: "did he go out last night?"

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "This morning. He was delivering a message to Ireena and Ismark at the tower."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "...Why did you have to ask like that..." Henry groans out turning to look east

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Maybe we can wait a little longer. We should talk to the villagers and see if they know how to make a wedding dress. I have a funny feeling they don't, or the Deva would have already asked them."

 Suldae Westwind: "Assuming he thought of it," Suldae points out.

"Let's ask around, yeah. And if Kasimir isn't back by sunset... Well, I guess then we go look for him."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Assuming he cares enough to 'ask' mortals" cares

 Marcus Veranius: "Assuming he has money to BUY a dress."

 Suldae Westwind: "Assuming he's aware seamstresses exist," Suldae adds.

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "All good points," says Ezmerelda, with a shrug.

"Worst-case scenario, I'm handy with a needle. We would just need to find some suitable fabric."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well let's get to it then" Henry says while walking of "The Baroness would know"

 Suldae Westwind: "I think if we cannot find it in Krezk, we might be able to sneak into Vallaki and commission it there," Suldae adds. "But let's look here first."

The party finds the Baroness hanging some washing up to dry on a line outside her small but relatively large hut. She seems to be crying.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Milady? Is everything alright?" Henry says rushing over after noticing she is crying

Baroness: Wiping her eyes furiously on a bedsheet, the Baroness turns to face the party. She gives a brittle smile. "Oh, yes, I've just been cutting some onions for a stew. What can I help you with?"

 Hiere Unthere: Hiere sniffs around.
For onions.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Less onions for a start" Henry says tone dry

 Suldae Westwind:

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

26

INSIGHT (6)
Marcus Veranius

Hiere Unthere:

14

INVESTIGATION (9)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

INSIGHT (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

20

INSIGHT (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

The Baroness chuckles wetly at Henry's remark. Hiere does not detect the scent of onions. Suldae and Henry sense that she is lying. Marcus realizes that she has lost someone very dear to her, and she is currently grieving, but trying to keep a strong face for her people. She did not mean to be caught crying.

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, just onions. dinner for your husband. You're very kind; I don't think the town would be as good a condition without that kindness."

Baroness: "Thank you, Marcus."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae frowns, worried.

Baroness: "Please, my needs should not be your concern. What can I help you with?"

Suldae Westwind: "Telling us what happened would be helpful, if only just so we know where we stand and where the town stands," Suldae says quietly.

"Please, let us hear you out. Even if that's the only way we can help."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "If I may? I could help with that" Henry says gesturing toward his eyes a hand softly glowing "Should help with the irritation"

Marcus Veranius: "...it's not for me, but do you happen to know where one might find a seamstress for a proper dress?"

Suldae Westwind:

15

PERSUASION (9)
Suldae Westwind

The Baroness opens her mouth to speak, but does not seem to know what to say. She swallows. So many people talking at once, trying to help -- it's too much. Her faces scrunches up and she begins to ugly cry.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rushes over and gently embraces her.

Marcus Veranius has fucked up

Suldae Westwind: She does not say anything, but she does shield her from any onlookers not from the party.

The Baroness "It's t-t-too late n-n-now," she says, sobbing freely into Suldae's shoulder. "No one can help him now..."

Suldae Westwind: "Whom?" Suldae asks gently, suddenly remembering something the deva mentioned.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere feels a quiet contentment at not have having made the situation worse

The Baroness "M-my s-s-son. My only... (sob)... son."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh boy," Ezmerelda mutters quietly.

Suldae Westwind: "What happened?" Suldae gently guides her into the house so they can speak with more privacy.

Baroness: "He got sick... No one could help him... He's b-b-buried! RIGHT THERE!" She points at the grave marker just beyond the washing, and the freshly-turned earth there. Observant individuals will note that like all the houses in Krezk, the back yard doubles as a family funeral plot. The Baroness allows Suldae to lead her inside.

Rictavio: Rictavio's expression is a dark grimace.

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Marcus Veranius murmurs to the others quietly, out of earshot. "She's been helping us all this time through our own disasters, keeping this bottled up. I feel horrible."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae thinks of the abbot. She tries to remember what he said.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods mechanically in acknowledgement face blank

Suldae Westwind: (aka brb rereading the archive)

Rictavio: "When you say your son was sick..." Rictavio says, his expression quite cold.

Marcus Veranius: "Hmm..." Marcus looks over the washing, an idea forming. Perhaps if they had an offering of something fancy-looking...

Baroness: "He was not bitten, if that's what you're insinuating. Vampires cannot enter Krezk."

Hiere Unthere: Here wonders if what rictavio will say next will make him want to polymorph rictavio into a frog.

Rictavio: "I insinuated nothing. I merely wanted a description of the symptoms. Even if he can be raised from the dead, certain diseases linger in the body after revival."

Baroness: "Raised... From the dead? Such magic is possible?"

Rictavio: "Possible? Yes. Easy? No."

"Such magic may be beyond any of us, at the moment."

The Baroness sighs deeply. "We are now too old for more children. The Krezkov line is ended with my husband and I. It is our fate. Do not be overly troubled by that which you cannot change."

Baroness: "I thank you for your concern."

"Now, you had a question. About a wedding gown?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is sitting with her, quietly being there for her in her grief, for lieu or anything else to do to help.

(yeah i cannot quickly find it ugh)

Baroness: "We have no wedding gowns worthy of noble women here, only such rude garments as we have been able to make from wool and fur. I know that the seer has a weaving loom, but the fineness of the thread is the difficulty. In a true wedding gown, only the finest, purest white thread can be used."

"Is this for the Abbot? Has he made another Vasilka?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "... He has"

Baroness: "Well, a madman tries the same thing many times."

"Perhaps he will succeed this time."

Suldae Westwind: "He's asked us to get him a wedding gown. Do you know anywhere in Barovia that we could get one?"

Baroness: "If you want one of quality, there is a noble family in Vallaki that is known to have a beautiful one."

"Such luxuries are hard to find, in Barovia."

Suldae Westwind: "A noble family?..."

Suldae knows of one (1) noble family in Barovia.

They might not be on the best terms with them. Maybe.

Marcus Veranius enters the house, overhearing the talk ov noble families.

Marcus Veranius: "The Wachters are... were... the most influential, but not the only nobility of Vallaki."

"Although come to think of it, they DID have a daughter back out of an arranged marriage at the last minute. If we can find where that dress went afterwards."

"Their wedding gift was never picked up from the Toymaker, so it could be assumed the Seamstress still has their dress."

Marcus Veranius draws the Strahd Puppet as proof of his theory, wobbling it around in a comedic manner

Suldae Westwind: "Or, we could go to the seamstress and commission a new one," Suldae reminds him. "The idea isn't to get it quickly."

Marcus Veranius: "Well that depends on perspective. A distraction is good, but I DO recall a reward being offered for prompt work."

"One that would be particularly revelant to current interests..."

"As much as I'd love to have the Deva wait on a dress, we owe a great favor to the Baroness."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh," Suldae finally remembers what the Abbot said. "True. Perhaps we should not speak of it yet, as we don't yet know if it'll work... But I think we should try."

Marcus Veranius: "And we need to meet out friend along the road anyways, so this works well for us!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So we are going back to Vallaki now?"

Suldae Westwind: "Kasimir, Baba Lysaga, a wedding gown. We have quite a to-do list," Suldae says.
"Seems like it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thats not even half of it" Henry reminds her grimacing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs. "It's the most urgent part."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Well, let's find Kasimir first," says Ezmerelda. "I'm starting to get worried about him."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Yes let's" Henry says cracking his neck

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.
She hugs the Baroness as she leaves.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry begins heading for Krezks gate

Marcus Veranius follows along, tipping his hat out of respect

Hiere Unthere: Here does too. "I feel like that was one of my better conversations."

Suldae Westwind: "Don't be too down on yourself," Suldae tells him outside the door. ""I'm sure it's no more than in top five."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere considers this. "hmmm"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "So... How do we want to go about finding an elf in the forest who specifically did not want to be found?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks at Hiere.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We could yell for him if all else fails"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I don't think it's a great idea to call attention to ourselves," says Ezmerelda.

Suldae Westwind: "Resident divination specialist?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Dragons do have good hearing, you know."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere points in a random direction. "He may or may not be over there."

Rictavio: "You're inspiring a great deal of confidence."

Suldae Westwind: "...Without Kasimir, do we have the means to go over to the tower covertly?"

Marcus Veranius: "Actually, Hiere may have the right of it. Non-magical means can't find him if he was using the same spell that got us out. Divination may be our best bet."

Suldae Westwind: That wasn't Hiere's suggestion, but as long as he's agreeing with her, Suldae supposes she can take one for the team.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm he would have avoided the road yes?"

Marcus Veranius: "HMM... do you think Kasimir still has his journal?"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere goes quiet for a minute, closing his eyes yet opening other ones.

Suldae Westwind: "Doesn't matter if whatever happened to him happened at the tower," Suldae says anxiously.

Marcus Veranius: "The one we worked so hard to get back in that encampment near Vallaki?"

Hiere Unthere:

Contact Other Plane

Divination 5 (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V

Duration: 1 minute

You mentally contact a demigod, the spirit of a long-dead sage, or some other mysterious entity from another plane. Contacting this extraplanar intelligence can strain or even break your mind. When you cast this spell, make a DC 15 Intelligence saving throw. On a failure, you take 6d6 psychic damage and are insane until you finish a long rest. While insane, you can't take actions, can't understand what other creatures say, can't read, and speak only in gibberish. A greater restoration spell cast on you ends this effect. On a successful save, you can ask the entity up to five questions. You must ask your questions before the spell ends. The GM answers each question with one word, such as "yes," "no," "maybe," "never," "irrelevant," or "unclear" (if the entity doesn't know the answer to the question). If a one-word answer would be misleading, the GM might instead offer a short phrase as an answer.

Suldae Westwind: (in-character knowledge strikes again...)

Hiere Unthere:

INTELLIGENCE SAVE (9)

COME ON

Henry of Willowsbrook: plus2

In my aura

Hiere Unthere: oh heck yes

you beautiful boy

Suldae Westwind: (GOOD SHIT)Henry of Willowsbrook: (PALADIN SAVES TH SAVE)Suldae Westwind: (i was about to look if / had features that could help with this(

Hiere's mind penetrates the walls of the worlds, and reaches deep into the darkness of the Outer Planes. He nearly goes mad from the effort, but a holy power uplifts him just enough to stay sane.

He hears a voice. "You are a bold one. How may I help you?"

Hiere Unthere: "Apart from me, is there another elf in the vicinity of the party?"

"Oh wise one" he adds

"Yes."

Hiere Unthere: "What direction is he in?" "oh wise one"

"Northeast by east, from your perspective."

Hiere Unthere: "is this elf the one we're looking for?"

"oh wisest of ones"

"It is the one you asked about."

Hiere Unthere: "What direction is Kasimir in, from my perspective?"

"Southeast."

Hiere Unthere: "How far away from me is Kasimir, in feet?"

"26,400."

"Goodbye."

Hiere Unthere: "thank you"

Hiere comes to. "There's an elf nearny

*Hiere comes too. "There's an elf nearby, to the northeast. Kasimir is southeast, 26400 feet away. Don't ask."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae asks for the map and looks at it.Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ugh wait thats um" Henrys face turns into a pained grimace before shaking his head "Thats quite far and wait south east whats in the south east of here?"

Marcus Veranius considers, then goes pale

Rictavio: "The ruins of Berez, Argynvostholt, a small mountain... Not much."

Suldae Westwind: "Where was the Amber temple?" Suldae asks.

Marcus Veranius: "...isn't that the general direction of Baba Lysaga's lair? Along the river?"

Suldae Westwind: "And where was Baba Lysaga described to be?"

Marcus Veranius: "Within the ruins of Berez, south of Argynvostholt."
"Southeast of here..."

Rictavio: "The Amber temple is much farther south, at least ten miles along the Tsolenka pass."
"However, if he was headed that way..."

Suldae Westwind: "...Baba Lysaga sounds most likely, then..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Lovely."

Suldae Westwind: "Hiere, you don't happen to have asked about the wellbeing of our other companions, do you?"
The question is rhetorical. Suldae presumes he would have told them.

Hiere Unthere: "asked who?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Should we check in at the tower, to see if he even arrived?"

Suldae Westwind: "No idea. Whoever it was you were asking."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So let's go kick the Baba Lasganna and hope Kaismir is there and alright"

Suldae Westwind: "We should check in on them either way. I understand that the tower is protected, but..."

Marcus Veranius: "If Kasimir is being interrogated by the witch for Ireena's location, we may want to consider abandoning the tower altogether."

Hiere Unthere: "I was merely using my investigative prowess"

Suldae Westwind: But great powers are in play. Suldae bites her lip anxiously.

13

ARCANA (11)
Suldae Westwind

(WELL)

She does not comment on Hiere's obvious lie. She'd felt the disturbance in the Weave, the reaching out to something greater. If he didn't want to say though, that was his right. She was worried about other things right now.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "If we head to the tower now, though, we will be losing valuable time."
"I suppose it's not a big detour."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods eagerly. She holds back from insisting, knowing her... personal reasons are likely clouding her judgement here.

Marcus Veranius: "How long has the Baroness's son been dead? We have 10 days to get the dress."
"Else the boy is gone beyond the Deva's aid."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "IF Kasimir ran into trouble which admittedly seems likely we really should help him first we owe him that much"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It's getting dark soon, anyway," Ezmerelda says.

"I doubt we can traverse five miles as the crow flies before night falls in earnest."

"Do we know if he's still moving?"

Suldae Westwind: "That's not necessarily a bad thing," Suldae murmurs under her nose. Ah, full humans and their inferior senses.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We need to cross the river no matter whyt we do so let's wlak and talk for now" what walk

The party continues walking.

GM: (What pace would you like to take? At a Fast pace, you could cover 4 miles in an hour but suffer a -5 penalty to passive Perception. At a Normal pace, you could cover 3 miles in an hour. At a Slow pace, you could cover just 2 miles in an hour, but you'd be able to use Stealth.)

(If you go off-road, it will be considered difficult terrain. Marcus can help you overcome some of that, I believe.)

Marcus Veranius:

NATURAL EXPLORER
(GROUP BENEFIT)

Class: Ranger 1

You gain the following benefits when traveling for an hour or more:

>Difficult terrain doesn't slow your group's travel.

>Your group can't become lost except by magical means.

>Even when you are engaged in another activity while traveling, you remain alert to danger.

>If you are traveling alone, you can move stealthily at a normal pace.

>When you forage, you find twice as much food as you normally would.

>While tracking other creatures, you also learn their exact number, their sizes, and how long ago they passed through the area.

Suldae Westwind: (If we dont go to the tower we don't need Stealth but if we do then we do)
(we probably dont need to stealth until the river crossing either way?...)

Marcus Veranius: (If we go straight to the tower over difficult terrain, its 2.5/ 3 miles)
(Two hour trip)

GM: (With Marcus's bonus, doesn't he ignore that difficult terrain?)

Marcus Veranius: (Another 2 hours to Vallaki, assuming Stealth pace)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Are we going straight to Vallaki?)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus ignores all difficult terrain, but the Group also ignores it for the purposes of travel pace)

Suldae Westwind: (I don't think we were going to Vallaki at all?)

Marcus Veranius: (Vallaki is where the wedding gown is)

Suldae Westwind: (we were going for Kasimir, possibly to the tower along he way)
(because he's in trouble right now)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (as best we can tell)

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspires

Suldae Westwind: (oops)

(misclick)

(There is no point to going to Vallaki if we're not going to STAY there for a while)

(There is nothing we can do that by just popping by)

(*there)

(unlike at the tower, wehre the point is to just ask some questions)

GM: (You can actually cover three miles in just one hour, so it wouldn't even take a full hour to get to the Tower if you took a straight shot)

Suldae Westwind: (if we didn't care about stealth)

GM: (It's 2 miles away, so if you go at a slow pace and use stealth, it's still just one hour)

Gm: (Unless we're talking round trip)

Suldae Westwind: (oh, right)

(the tower's on the other end of the river though, we'll need to cross either way)

(we can't go as the crow flies)

(admittedly it makes v little difference)

Marcus Veranius: (Summon Animals like last time?)

Suldae Westwind: (arent we trying to stealth?)

Marcus Veranius: (fak)

Suldae Westwind: (it was night last time. it's still day right now)

(my point stands wrt absolutely no point going to vallaki)

(its urgent but its not counting hours urgent)

Marcus Veranius: (We dont know how long the boy is dead so it kindof is?)

Suldae Westwind: (there is a CHANCE the boy has been dead for 9+ days. Kasimir is DEFINITELY in trouble)

(you're not very good at the whole 'weighing likelihood vs consequences' thing huh :P)

(we don't know how long it'll take to GET the dress anyway)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (also the 10 days thing is asuming the Deva uses raise dead which is a guess at best)

Marcus Veranius: (Deva said 10 days himself)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh right yeah9

Suldae Westwind: (I'm guessing the boy has been dead for less than that, or Abbot would have already approached his parents by now)

(waiting until day 9 just doesnt sound like his thing)

(and again, given we dont know how long it'll take to get the dress, the difference is marginal. for Kasimir it's NOT)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (if only one of us had asked (yes poking the grieving mother I know))

Marcus Veranius: (If we need to go there IMMEDIATELY then lets skip the tower entirely then to save an hour)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah i hadn' thought of it but should have)

(in-character, WE DON'T KNOW IF THEY ARE EVE ALIVE)

(Suldae is trying to not insist but she really badly wants to check on them)

Marcus Veranius: (1 extra hour is a long time to interrogate for Ireena's location)

(If we're nitpicking about travel hours)

Suldae Westwind: (true, Suldae can be convinced)

(and 'let us spend the entire night in Vallaki investigating' is not 'nitpicking about travel hours')

GM: (Let's do some of this in character)

Suldae Westwind: (good plan)

"We should check on the tower first," Suldae says with barely concealed anxiety.

"They might know something... if they're alright."

Marcus Veranius: "We need to rescue Kasimir before he can spill Ireena's location or the tower trip is moot." Marcus retorts.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glares helplessly. He's not wrong, but... what if they need their help right now?

Marcus Veranius: "Unless you want to assume the secret is ALREADY spilled, in which case we need to take Ireena with us."

Suldae Westwind: "For all we know the tower might have already been breached!" she argues anyway.

"Yes, we need to warn them!"

"We don't know how long ago he's been caught - assumign that's what happened."

"They are not safe either way!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Couldn't one of you fly and check or is that too risky?"

Suldae Westwind: "We cannot gamble with this!"

Marcus Veranius: "Not warn. A trip to the tower is a decision to abandon it."

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd will be watching for ravens."

Marcus Veranius: "It's a roughly 1 hour trip from the tower to Berez, so we can assume Kasimir hasn't been there long."

Suldae Westwind: "One of us could fly and get them and meet up partway, that would be quicker"

Marcus Veranius: "1 hour fastest speed, assuming Baba Lysaga has nothing to fear by going fast."

Suldae Westwind: "If she even goes on foot."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "A trip to the tower would be a chance to gather some equipment from my wagon, too. With that, we could cut our time down."

Marcus Veranius: "It's 4 hours interrogation time by the time we make it to Baba Lysaga if we go straight there. 5 if we stop by the tower, then another hour or two finding Kasimir."

Suldae Westwind: "Ah, then we'll go together... and then there's no need for hiding. We just need to get there fast."

Marcus Veranius: "If he can't hold the Tower's secret for 6 hours, we need to consider it a known base and abandon it."

Rictavio: "I believe it would be wise to assume that Kasimir will be forced to tell what he knows. There are spells in the grasp of nearly any competent mage that make this a virtual certainty. If Baba Lysaga is as old as the legends say, I have no doubt that she will be using such magic -- indeed, that she may already have used it."

Suldae Westwind: "We need to go to the tower, then," Suldae says with new urgency.
"They are not safe."

Marcus Veranius: "And NOT go straight to Baba Lysaga's base from the tower, else we'll run into whatever force she sends to storm it."

Suldae Westwind: "And there is no point hiding. We go as fast as we can."

Marcus Veranius: "We'll need to maintain stealth for at least a few hours after leaving the tower to ensure she thinks we're still camped there."

Hiere Unthere: "surely we should get there stealthily too, what if they follow us?"

Suldae Westwind: "Assuming she watches in real time," Suldae says skeptically.

"Hiere, there's no point."

"Watching us is not the most likely and dangerous option they have."

"If they get there by trailing us, at least we'll be there when they're found."

Suldae is not certain she's right about this.

The thought of being late is just too much to bear.

Suldae Westwind: She needs to be there.

Marcus Veranius: "Fine. Let's just rush to the tower then. We'll waste hours discussing it and fail to save anyone otherwise."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Come on!" Ezmerelda says, pushing on ahead.

Suldae Westwind: (Fast pace means half an hour to the tower, right?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes of

GM: (Correct)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee)

The party jogs into the forest. 20

Rictavio: 9

GM: 85

While running through the forest, you spot a ghostly shape racing through the trees. The horse-mounted figure moves silently among the towering pines, every bone and joint glimmering in the mist. The skeleton on its skeletal mount holds out a rusted lantern which sheds no light.

The rider thunders on, dead hooves thumping earth.

It seems not to take any notice of the party, and soon vanishes into the mist.

Suldae Westwind:

25

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae reflexively clutches the holy symbol and sends a prayer upon seeing it.

The prayer is a question, as prayers to Corellon often are.

Suldae realizes that this is the cursed remains of a rider and mount, both of whom must have perished trying to escape through the fog that surrounds Barovia. They are doomed to ride forever through the valley, in search of another way out. There is no hope of salvation for this figure.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes note hand gliding to his sword belt

The mists are thick between the trees, and getting gradually thicker.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae prays some more, this time simply sending out a wish that no more people meet this fate.

*prays, geez

Marcus Veranius has never liked a rolling fog, even more now that it announces the presence of an undead jerk

After the rider has come and gone, Marcus spots something on the ground. It looks like a small pewter inkwell, but it makes him feel strangely nauseous as he looks at it.

Marcus Veranius: "Careful, there's a thing on the ground over there."

Marcus Veranius turns his gaze, pointing

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry turns to look in the direction Marcus is pointing

Marcus Veranius: "I'm gunna lose my lunch if I keep looking at it. Does anyone else sense that... nausea?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bends over to look.

27

ARCANA (11)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae feels her stomach turn and a horrible twist of dizziness.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

19

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry feels nausea fighting its way up from his stomach.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

DIVINE HEALTH

Class: Paladin 3

By 3rd level, the divine magic flowing through you makes you immune to disease.

?

Hiere Unthere: Hiere examines some trees

In spite of Henry's divine resistance to disease, he feels the nausea all the same.

Rictavio: "I'd recommend against... urgh... Looking at that."

Rictavio covers his mouth with a handkerchief, daintily.

He burps slightly.

Hiere Unthere: 'ew

Ezmerelda kicks a pile of dead leaves over the inkwell.

Marcus Veranius goes around the orb of sickness

Hiere Unthere: '

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "There, problem solved."

Suldae senses, somehow, that something quite dark is trapped within the inkwell. It seems... Conscious.

Suldae Westwind: "I doubt it," Suldae mutters, fighting down nausea.

"We are in a hurry, but..."

"We should probably not leave this lying around."

"Does anyone have means of... safe storage of arcane items?"

Marcus Veranius: "I suggest the opposite. Better in the forest than with us."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "LEts bury it" henry suggests finding that his experience with stable work helps curb the nuasea slightly Thunder rolls overhead. The sky darkens with roiling cloud.

A laugh like distant thunder echoes across the landscape.

Hiere Unthere: "oh what the fuck"

Suldae Westwind: "Burying sounds like sending the problem into the future, but sure, sounds good."

Marcus Veranius: "No time! We gotta go!"

Suldae Westwind: "We should make note of the location."

"We should return here later"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Sure do that while moving"

Marcus Veranius: "Noted. In the woods at this spot."

You hear a wild cheeping sound, like the cackle of ten thousand bats. A moment later the sky darkens even more, blotted out by millions of black wings.

Marcus Veranius actually notes it down in his head

Suldae Westwind: Suldae jots down the landmarks in her notebook.

She runs forward, towards the tower. That just sounds really bad.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh fuck of with your tenpenny villiany" Henry curses under his breath looking up

Suldae Westwind: Suldae actually feels her mood lift slightly at Henry's remark.

Things just don't seem as bad when someone's there with you to mock them.

Even if it's most definitely real danger

Hiere Unthere: (how far is the tower and can we see it?)

It is not far now, to the tower. In a few brief minutes you stand upon the western shore of the lake, looking across to the Tower. and its island. The sky above swirls with bats and storm-wrack. Lightning forks across the sky. The lake is tossed by wild winds, and white-tops flurry across its surface.

Suldae Westwind: Western shore?

Hiere Unthere: "who wants to go up first?"

Suldae Westwind: I'm pretty sure we were going over the bridge?

Not by the road

but over the bridge so as to not be in this exact situation

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Just to make sure its not some frak natural storm)

16

NATURE (7)

Henry of Willowsbrook

24

NATURE (7)

Henry of Willowsbrook

(Southern shore)*

If you prefer

Hiere Unthere: (its literally just bats Zan)

Henry senses that this is no natural storm. The spirits of nature are in agony.

The bats spiraling beneath the ragged clouds make a roar of continuous sound.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I guessed but hey rolling dice is fun)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae runs towards the tower entrance.

Marcus Veranius chases behind, unsure of what possible next move they could make

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry slows intend on closing out the rear of their group

Sprinting across the bridge, past Ezmerelda's cart, Ezmerelda suddenly shouts: "Wait, Marcus! We can use this!"

She darts to her cart and slides beneath it effortlessly, then pops up through the trapdoor.

Suldae, meanwhile, makes it to the hidden door, and steps into the illusion.

The door is still closed -- a small relief, perhaps.

Marcus Veranius runs to the cart's entrance, making sure NOT to go near the door. Or touch the cart. Or touch ANYTHING

Ezmerelda helps pull him up, into the cart.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry heightens his sixths sense letting Natures power fill him

DIVINE SENSE

Class: Paladin 1

As an action, until the end of your next turn, you know the location of any celestial, fiend, or undead within 60 feet of you that is not behind total cover. You know the type of any being whose presence you sense, but not its identity. Within the same radius, you also detect the presence of any place or object that has been consecrated or desecrated. You can use this feature a number of times equal to 1 + your Charisma modifier. When you finish a long rest, you regain all expended uses.

Suldae Westwind: (Is there a puzzle to open the door? Is it the same one? What's up with that whole thing?)

Marcus Veranius: "...that is a LOT of alchemist fire." Marcus says, pretending to be shocked as if he didn't know about how lethal this wagon was Suldae sees the same puzzle on the door as before. The position of the symbols has not changed.

Marcus Veranius: "Wait, is that a CHICKEN? Why do you keep that in here next to the very-volatile alchemist fire!?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir grabs ten silvered crossbow bolts, three vials of holy water, a gold holy symbol of the Morninglord, two spell scrolls, and a charred page of some kind of journal. Then she shoves the chicken cage into Marcus's arms.

"Come on! We've got to rig this to blow on command!"

"And Mrs. Clucks is a well-behaved chicken, I'll have you know."

Marcus Veranius screams internally as he slips out to rescue the chicken

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Anything on Henry's holy radar?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae follows the pattern to unlock the door, same as last time.

Henry senses a several small undead, moving through the forest on the eastern side of the lake. They seem to be wrapping around to come at the bridge.

Suldae manages to open the door.

Suldae Westwind: She slips inside and frantically looks around for Ireena and Ismark.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what kind of Undead?)

(or is that not type?)

(nvermind missread)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Who goes there?!"

Ismark's voice comes from the top floor.

Suldae Westwind: "It's Suldae! Are you alright?"

*you two

Ireena Kolyana: "Suldae!?"

Ireena pokes her head over the edge of the hole in the topmost floor, and looks down.

Her face brightens with a huge grin.

Suldae Westwind: "Ireena!" Suldae breathes out in relief. "Was Kasimir here?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Yes! Did he give you my letter?"

"Hang on, one second..."

Ireena hurls herself over the edge, plummeting towards Suldae.

Suldae Westwind: "He did not make it back!" Suldae says, brushing aside the letter question for now. She aims to catch Ireena.

Ireena Kolyana: At the last moment she spreads her arms. Nimbuses of arcane power crackle around her hands, and her fall slows. She lands gracefully in Suldae's arms.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wraps her in an embrace, relieved and loving.

"We need to leave," she says after a few seconds, stepping back.

"It's no longer safe here."

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, I suppose I'll have to try and remember what I wrote in the letter and tell you later."

Suldae Westwind: "Gather your things. I will gather mine."

Ireena Kolyana: "Let's go."

Suldae Westwind: She smiles to Ireena.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Oy! What about me!?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Call the elevator!"

Suldae Westwind: She rushes upstairs to collect her guitar and the few odds and ends she had lying about.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Undead are coming form the east" Henry calls out Head whipping in the direction, ands moving to draw both Sword and Shield

Suldae Westwind: It's really convenient to be a bird, in this tower.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Grumbling, Ismark begins to descend on the elevator.

Suldae Westwind: She also looks for anything the other party members left around.
Anything that would slow her down is pushed on Ismark.

Henry senses an incredibly powerful undead, directly above the island. It is drawing slowly nearer.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir says "There! All done!" She pops out from under the cart, grabs Marcus's hand, and says: "We need to get everyone off this island RIGHT. NOW."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh for fucks sake! ABOVE!"

A swirling billow of mist is descending from the spiraling cloud of bats.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rushes out of the tower, dragging both siblings with her, as soon as she's done gathering things.

Suldae is just in time to overhear Ezmerelda's comment.

Marcus Veranius nods, then turns to Suldae

Marcus Veranius: "Save your feathers, we gotta bail!"

Marcus Veranius is still carrying a chicken

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wants to switch to bird form, but she doubts Ireena will leave Ismark to fend for himself and she will not leave her, so she just keeps running.

Hiere Unthere: Here books it

Marcus Veranius runs towards the bridge with Ezmeralda, questioning where today went so wrong

The billow of mist lands in the middle of the bridge, cutting off escape. In a single moment, it takes form and solidifies into the towering, black-cowled figure of Strahd Von Zarovich. His lips are drawn back in a toothy grin.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry keeps pace in leaving head on a swivel to look for any threats

Suldae Westwind: Suldae halts to a stop, putting herself in front of Ireena.

Strahd von Zarovich: "Tatyana," he says, his arms opening in a generous embrace.

"Tatyana, my love. Come to me."

Suldae Westwind: "No such person here!" Suldae yells out.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Evening Fuckface kindly fuck of"

Suldae Westwind:

COUNTERCHARM

Class: Bard

At 6th level, you gain the ability to use musical notes or words of power to disrupt mind-influencing effects. As an action, you can start a performance that lasts until the end of your next turn. During that time, you and any friendly creatures within 30 feet of you have advantage on saving throws against being frightened or charmed. A creature must be able to hear you to gain this benefit. The performance ends early if you are incapacitated or silenced or if you voluntarily end it (no action required).

Her words echo across the Weave, taking on a strange rhythm.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus, how well can you swim?" Ezmerelda whispers.

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark lunges past the rest of the party, his hands clawing the air.

Marcus Veranius whispers "Not with grace"

Ismark Kolyanovich:

Eldritch Blast

Evocation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A creature within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

A beam of crackling energy streaks toward a creature within range. Make a ranged spell attack against the target. On a hit, the target takes 1d10 force damage. The spell creates more than one beam when you reach higher levels: two beams at 5th level, three beams at 11th level, and four beams at 17th level. You can direct the beams at the same target or at different ones. Make a separate attack roll for each beam.

23 and 14 to hit, 9 and 2 Force Damage

Ismark's hands loose crimson beams of arcane power. With inhuman speed, Strahd twists out of the way. Both beams lance past, but one grazes him, blasting bits of mist off his form. He snarls.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir puts two fingers in her mouth and lets out a shrill whistle. There is a ghostly whinny. Two spiritual horses composed mostly of purple flame burst into existence at the head of the cart, and yank it forward mightily. It rattles straight towards the bridge.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda steps up onto the railing of the bridge, blows a kiss, and falls off backwards, plunging into the icy water below.

Marcus Veranius: "TIME TO GO!"

Marcus Veranius jumps after Ezmeralda

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark roars, enraged, loosing more Eldritch blasts!

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena seems spellbound. Her eyes stare at Strahd as though recognizing something in him that she had long ago forgotten...

Suldae Westwind: "Ismark! Escape!" Suldae yells out.

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Rictavio: Rictavio hurls himself off the bridge with remarkable grace for a man of his age.

Strahd von Zarovich: "Come to me, Tatyana... Come to me."

Suldae Westwind:

Suggestion

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you

Components: V, M (A snake's tongue and either a bit of honeycomb or a drop of sweet oil)

Duration: Concentration Up to 8 hours

You suggest a course of activity (limited to a sentence or two) and magically influence a creature you can see within range that can hear and understand you. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you described to the best of its ability. The suggested course of action can continue for the entire duration. If the suggested activity can be completed in a shorter time, the spell ends when the subject finishes what it was asked to do. You can also specify conditions that will trigger a special activity during the duration. For example, you might suggest that a knight give her warhorse to the first beggar she meets. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity isn't performed. If you or any of your companions damage the target, the spell ends.

Strahd von Zarovich: Strahd ignores the Eldritch blasts which rip into his body, blowing gusts of mist from his form.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry runs towards Ireena and Suldae

Suldae Westwind: She grabs the frozen Ireena and drags her towards the shore and into the water.

12

STRENGTH (-1+2)
Suldae Westwind

Strahd von Zarovich:

14

WISDOM SAVE (5)

GM: (Sorry, that was actually for Ismark against Suggestion)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

(DC is 17)

Ismark hears Suldae's suggestion and realizes it's probably a good idea. He runs, and hurls himself off the bridge.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry moves and Helps Suldae drag Ireena

Ireena Kolyana:

16

ATHLETICS (0)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

28

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Ireena struggles against Suldae until Henry comes barreling in like a train, taking both of them right off the bridge and plunging into the icy depths below. Even as Henry's heavy booted feet go racing past, the wagon hurtles towards Strahd. In the moment Henry hits the water, the wagon atomizes itself and about thirty feet of bridge.

The explosion is truly glorious, a crescendoing fireball of golden light and greasy flame. It gushes skyward, billowing into the swarm of bats. Huge chunks of bridge crash into the water. (Make a dex save if you're in the water)

Suldae Westwind:

14

DEXTERITY SAVE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus Veranius:

26

DEXTERITY SAVE (10)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

21

DEXTERITY SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13

DEXTERITY SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (and we all get +2 from Henry's aura right)

Strahd Von Zarovich's form blasts apart into mist with a final, incredulous laugh.

GM: (Yes, and DC is 15)

Hiere Unthere: Here steps up onto the railing of the bridge, blows a kiss, and falls off backwards, turning into a killer whale before plunging into the icy water below. He aims to pick up those at the back

GM: (So far you've all passed)

Suldae Westwind: (holy shit Hiere)

Hiere Unthere:

12

DEXTERITY SAVE (3)

Suldae Westwind: (now that's style)

(oof lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (and he ate shit)

Suldae Westwind: (What I'm seeing is he shields us with his bulk)

(killer whales are big)

Hiere, in orca form, takes a chunk of falling masonry on the head. Luckily, with his increased size, it does little damage. 4

Hiere Unthere: (LOL)

Henry begins immediately to sink, due to the weight of his armor.

Suldae Westwind: (what is there to damage, really?)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena bursts through the waves, spluttering, treading water. She watches the still-flickering golden flame on the remains of the bridge, her eyes reflecting the fire.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what do I roll to not sink my shiny metal arse?)

Hiere Unthere: Hiorca heads down to offer him a fin

Suldae Westwind: Suldae slaps her lightly, turning her face towards her own.

GM: (You can roll athletics, or let Hiere save you)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks a little stunned by the slap. Seeing Suldae, her expression softens.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius swims towards the whale that appeared out of nowhere. Suldae's summoned animals saves the day!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wow)

Henry is sinking like a boulder.

Hiere Unthere: (WHY ZAN)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae leans towards her into a kiss.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena clings to Suldae's face with both hands and plants a deep, warm, passionate kiss.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Anybody seen my leg?" Ezmerelda asks, bobbing nearby.

She splashes over to join Marcus on the whale.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae holds that for as long as she can manage to, considering they're both treading water in an icy lake.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: (Make a perception check to spot Ezmerelda's leg)

Suldae Westwind: She guides Ireena to the whale now. Where did that come from?

Hiere Unthere: Hiere sees Henry flail away from him and decides to mind his own business. He sees Suldae and Ireena having a moment up ahead and avoids them too. Man it sure is awkward being a killer whale.

Marcus Veranius:

21

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: An accounting of companions reveals an answer Suldae would very much like to be true.

Marcus spots a wooden leg floating in the shadow of what remains of one end of the bridge.

Henry, meanwhile, has reached the bottom of the lake.

Suldae Westwind: She dives after Henry. She cannot do much to help but she is intent on trying.

As his feet touch down, he finds himself face to face with the single most beautiful being he has ever encountered.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry now reminded why bathing in armor is a truly shite Idea trys again to wsim

Suldae Westwind: (HIERE WHY)

*The pale arms of the nymph encircle him cautiously, and soft, slightly scaly lips whisper in his ear.
"You do not die today, brave warrior."*

Hiere Unthere: (he didn't HAVE to roll athletics)

Henry of Willowsbrook: 'What in the everloving fuck hit me in the head?' He thinks trying to make sense of what he sees

Suldae Westwind: (Hiere the biggest drama queen around) (he did not take my hand so let him die)
(I am not saying that in admonishment, but in admiration of rp dedication)

The nymph twists and shimmers, her body billowing into seaweed and fish-scales. She becomes a dark cloak of faintly shimmering dark material. It hangs in the air before him.

Well, in the water.

Suldae Westwind:

11

ATHLETICS (1)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry reaches out for it

Suldae swims down. Damn this lake is deep. She can't see the bottom.

Henry takes the magic cloak.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how deep is the lake?)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere ses Suldae go in the opposite direction of oxygen and wonders why these people are so intent on dying. He swims to help her out.

The lake is at least a hundred feet deep at this point.

It may be deeper, the bottom is craggy and there are many crevasses.

The cloak in Henry's hand wraps itself around him and pulls its own hood up. Suddenly, he feels himself able to breathe.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grabs onto the orca swimming towards her and points forward down, to where she'd seen Henry disappear.

His armor no longer weighs him down.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pulls the obviously magic cape on while kicking of the ground

In a matter of seconds, he reaches the surface.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I repeat, has anyone seen my leg?"

Suldae Westwind: (Does Suldae see him surfacing?)

Marcus Veranius is trying his best not to let the chicken drown in this post-explosion madness

Marcus Veranius: "I think it's by the bridge!"

While diving, Suldae, Henry, and Hiere all spot Ismark sitting on the bottom of the lake, his arms wrapped around his knees, looking pouty.

Suldae sees something like a huge humanoid fish streak past her in the gloom.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises a hand glowing with light to look for Ezmes leg

Henry spots it bobbing near the remaining portion of the bridge.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Is Mrs. Clucks ok?"

Suldae Westwind:

20

ATHLETICS (1)
Suldae Westwind

(well then)

Suldae is not sure what it is she's seen, but just in case she is still attempting to reach further down.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Found your leg" Henry calls out swimming over to get it Rictavio: "Ah! At least one of you has the sense to become a vehicle!" Rictavio says, clambering onto the Hiorca.

Suldae has very nearly reached the bottom of the lake. It is getting more difficult to hold her breath...

Hiere Unthere: Here did in fact dive deeper

Rictavio: "Damn! Now it's diving."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry grabs the leg before darting back to the others trying not to think about the fact he is moving about 4 times faster then he should be Rictavio: "I'm going to shore!" Rictavio shouts.

He begins swimming.

Marcus Veranius checks the chicken to see if it's OK despite everything, jumping off Hierorca to keep it in the air

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda swims over closer to Marcus. She pokes a finger through the cage at the chicken, which seems unharmed, if a bit damp.

"Aw, Mrs. Clucks. Did my wittle Marky warky save you? Yes he did. Yes he did."

Ezmerelda hugs Marcus in the water for a moment before struggling towards shore.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ezme here" Henry says handing over the leg

Suldae Westwind: Marky warky

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, thanks!"

"I can use this as a flotation device."

Suldae Westwind: I am so deeply regretful of not being there to hear it

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Grab on, Marcus!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wheres Suldae?"

Marcus Veranius is stuck between frowning and smiling

Ezmerelda d'Avenir grabs onto her wooden leg with a sly look at Marcus, and begins kicking.

Marcus Veranius: His face is at war with what expression to properly wear

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Pause R and Ezme are going to shore the rest are still in the water?)

Marcus Veranius: He grabs on to the leg and floats along in silence, wondering how the chicken manages to escape the cutsey names

(Marcus going to shore with Ez)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "So Marcus, are you a leg man?"

"Glad I could give you a leg up."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks around concerned "Where are Suldae and Hier?"

Rictavio: Rictavio pulls himself out onto shore and lays there for a while, staring at the sky.

Marcus Veranius 's face goes to smile

Ireena Kolyana: "They dived!"

Marcus Veranius: "It's a good thing you took Strahd out. I wouldn't have had a leg to stand on."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks around frantically. "Where's Ismark!?"

Marcus Veranius: "It's a good thing you thought to leg it over the bridge."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Got it" Henry says "Pouting at the lake bottom I'll go get him"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Well, when we get to shore we may still have to leg it. I doubt that took him out for good."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry dives

Henry finds Ismark still pouting, staring into a patch of seaweed angrily.

He also sees Hiere and Suldae.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry slaps him and points up face like an angry priestes

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Blub blub blub blubba blub!" Ismark says, in a fountain of angry bubbles.

GM: (Suldae, make a CON save)

Hiere Unthere: Here sees Henry with a fancy cape and assumes the worst. Its too late to save him now. He pulls sundae-oh ok

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry points up again before Moving over to Suldae and Hieres whaleish self Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark angrily begins swimming towards the surface.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae would sigh in relief except she's underwater and her vision is going dark

17

CONSTITUTION SAVE (2)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae manages to continue holding her breath, but it's getting difficult.

Ezmerelda and Marcus make it to shore.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere fucking pulls her to sure shore

Marcus Veranius places Betsy onto the sand and flops down

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs in relief as her head breaches the surface, pulled up by an orca.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry pulls alongside Hiere

Suldae Westwind: She's riding it.

She glares at Henry.

Though it's not his fault.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'm trying to think of another leg joke," says Ezmerelda.

"But to be honest it's going to suck waiting for this thing to dry out.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (am I faster then Hiere with my 60ft swimspeed?)

Marcus Veranius: "Dad's probably laughing at me in whatever locker he drowned in. Sailor's son not knowing how to swim well."

GM: (A Killer Whale has a 60 ft swim speed too haha)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere turns back to his usual self, now lying on the floor with a half elf on his back

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls off him and looks for Ireena.

Hiere Unthere: "jeez you guys really want to die"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Son of a sailor? I should have guessed."

"Right," says Ezmerelda, adjusting her hat. "You lot owe me a new cart."

"And now we have some things to figure out."

Ismark walks out of the depths slowly, water draining from his ears and nose.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry steps on the shore pulling down his hood "Why in the Lights were you down there?!" Henry asks Suldae Ismark Kolyanovich: "He's still alive," Ismark says. "I can feel him. In the castle."

"He was never really here to begin with."

Marcus Veranius has a price quote on a nice Vistani wagon in town. Lightly used.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flips him off, still too out of breath to express herself verbally.

"Three guesses," Suldae wheezes out.

Henry senses a small group of undead approaching from the forest to the east. They seem to be making a beeline straight for the party.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No seriously what would you have done I easily am 3 times your weight" He says turn ing towards the Undead he pulls out his sword and shield

Suldae Westwind: "I figured Hiere would go after me," Suldae confesses.

"Or... I'd try at least."

Hiere Unthere: "I was literally a killer whale and she's slightly thick"

Suldae Westwind: "You're three times my weight but you'd be trying to swim up too, right?"

Suldae considers kicking at him but he did just save her life, probably.

Though without his presence she would have given up earlier, most likely.

Maybe.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Yes and how would your adorable little ass help me swim? hmm?2

"

Suldae Westwind: "Not ass. Arms," Suldae says, deadpan.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena sits beside Suldae and hugs her mutely.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae snuggles up to her.

Then she notices the undead.

Marcus Veranius: "Let's just agree to not play in the water on a regular basis." Marcus frowns, unaware of the approaching undead

Hiere Unthere: "I should've eaten all of you"

Suldae Westwind: "Ugh," she groans and points at them.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right, can we start a fire? It's about to start getting dark. It must be... What, 5:30? 6:00?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well thank you for the thought"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I have a wooden leg to dry off."

Suldae Westwind: "But you didn't because you're a sweetie," Suldae tells him.
She nods to Henry, a little embarrassed.

Hiere Unthere: "I cannot deny this"

Suldae Westwind: "I'm guessing this won't come up again. I'll ask you about that later. What's that?"
she points at the undead

Marcus Veranius turns to where Suldae points

Marcus Veranius: "That appears to be a group of undead coming to ruin our already-trashed evening."

A small mass of vaguely greenish zombies can now, indeed, be seen pushing between the trees to the immediate east. In a matter of a minute or so, they will be upon you. At the moment you can see a dozen, but many more pairs of glimmering eyes are among the trees.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry fixes his cloak rolling the sword hand to limber up "Shape up we got company of the not-as-dead-as-they-should-be kind"

Hiere Unthere: "can I toss a fireball at them"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "By all means, be my guest."

Marcus Veranius attempts to get Ezmerelda's leg back on before the zombies arrive.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Wait wait wait, it's wet!"

"You can't put it on until it's properly dry, that's just... Gross."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh sure I'll leave some for you" Henry says bloodlust and light dripping of him like lake water

Marcus Veranius stops. "I don't know how replacement legs work!"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere considers fireballing himself and just being done with it

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It's sweet that you're trying, dear." She kisses him on the nose. "For now, let the expert deal with it."

"Now help me up, please,"

Suldae Westwind: (AREN'T WE ENDING THE SESSION HERE)

GM: (Yes, we should end it here)

Marcus Veranius gives Ezmeralda a hand to get up, and a shoulder to lean on

Hiere Unthere: (STOP)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Closing banter before the fade to black and closing credits for this episode)

Hiere Unthere: (STOP THE RP)

(I WILL RIOT)

GM: hahaha

(Thank you all for playing! I have to go make a fence (eurgh) but this was a fun session for me.)

Hiere Unthere: (no u)

GM: (Obviously next session will start with some combat, so we can look forward to that)

Marcus Veranius: (The party makes a mistake and Zombies get involved)

Suldae Westwind: (this was great)

Able: able able

Liliet (Suldae): good day to yall

Zanshuken: heyho

GM (GM): Good morning all!

Now where the fuck were we

Able: fighting some undead

GM (GM): Ah yes

Let me throw down a battle map for y'all

Henry of Willowsbrook: blew up a bridge had a swim now on to fight some undead

Able: that swim took far too long

Liliet (Suldae): that was a fantastic swim

Henry of Willowsbrook: I got a cape so I really can't complain

Marcus Veranius: "Cape of Please Don't Drown the Paladin"

Liliet (Suldae):

E> E> E>

Henry of Willowsbrook: yeah and also "Cape of your Paladin is now a speed boat"

Able: with your aura you can be a yellow submarine

Liliet (Suldae): oooo

Ireena and Ismark?

You hear the sound of approaching undead to the northeast, moving through the trees

GM (GM): (Roll Initiative)

INITIATIVE
Ismark Kolyanovich

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE
Ireena Kolyana

Initiative: 3

Marcus Veranius:

17

INITIATIVE (8)
Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

16.1

INITIATIVE (0.1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: -1

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 9

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 3

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 13

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 2

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 13

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 7

Able:

7

INITIATIVE (3)

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 1

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 10

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 7

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 11

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 17

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE
Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 2

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 16

Hiere Unthere:

6

INITIATIVE (3)

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 8

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 17

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 18

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 13

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: -1

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 15

GM (GM):

INITIATIVE

Strahd Zombie

Initiative: 4

Hiere Unthere: (why isn't my thingy working)

GM (GM): (You broke it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (did you right click your token?)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae's initiative is 18.15

Hiere Unthere:

17

INITIATIVE (3)

GM (GM): Alright, Henry's up!

With your divine senses, you can feel the location of all the zombies.

Ireena Kolyana: "Guys! I think we have company!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Not the pleasant kind. We never have the pleasant kind of company."

Ireena Kolyana: "Hey! Suldae's not all bad."

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Moonbeam

Evocation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A 5-foot-radius, 40-foot-high cylinder centered on a point within range

Components: V, S, M (Several seeds of any moonseed plant and a piece of opalescent feldspar)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A silvery beam of pale light shines down in a 5-foot-radius, 40-foot-high cylinder centered on a point within range. Until the spell ends, dim light fills the cylinder. When a creature enters the spell's area for the first time on a turn or starts its turn there, it is engulfed in ghostly flames that cause searing pain, and it must make a Constitution saving throw. It takes 2d10 radiant damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one. A shapechanger makes its saving throw with disadvantage. If it fails, it also instantly reverts to its original form and can't assume a different form until it leaves the spell's light. On each of your turns after you cast this spell, you can use an action to move the beam 60 feet in any direction.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the damage increases by 1d10 for each slot level above 2nd.

(could some one help me draw a proper circle?)

GM (GM): (I've placed a moon symbol in the area you indicated)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (one row up please)

GM (GM): (You should be able to move it)

CONSTITUTION*Strahd Zombie*Ability: 8 | 8*Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 2d10

(3 + 2)

= 5

rolling 2d10

(1 + 1)

= 2GM (GM): (Gib RP please)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Striding in the direction of the undead Henry raises his sword and shield. Silver light dripping of his blade he roars as he calls down a ray of pale moonlight in the treeline
EoT

Liliet (Suldae): (one sec)

A shaft of blazing silver light illuminates the nearest zombie and lights up the undead forms of at least a dozen others. The zombie caught in the light begins to burn with flickering blue flame.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh my," says Ezmerelda. "There are rather a lot of them..."

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae takes out her crossbow. They're too far away for magic and she has no interest in making that distance smaller. She can shoot farther.

25

80/320

Light Crossbow (+6)
Suldae Westwind

5*Piercing*

She takes aim at the one she has clearest line of sight on and calmly presses the trigger.

Overhead, the dark clouds still boil with storm-wrack, and swarms of bats still swirl and cackle in the darkness. Suldae's crossbow deals a direct hit to the approaching zombie, ripping its left arm off at the shoulder.

Liliet (Suldae): "Gods be with us," she says loudly enough for Henry ahead to hear.BARDIC INSPIRATIONClass: Bard*

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12

starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Liliet (Suldae) inspires

The hand of the arm props itself up and continues to scuttle forward, dragging the limp limb behind itself...

Rictavio: "Oh, that's not good..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry, Bardic Inspiration)
(oops why do i still have access to this)

Suldae Westwind: (Henry, Bardic Inspiration)

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE
Crawling Claw

Initiative: 8

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry, Bardic Inspiration)

Suldae Westwind: (pls mark it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (noted)

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

(pls mark on your token lets start doing that)

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere has a terrible premonition of vast black wings in the sky...

Suldae Westwind: (im just gonna abuse my still-existent access to Henry's token and mark inspiration)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere dashes forward, eager to move the conversation away from whatever the fuck was going on.

"Guys I see big bad wings in the sky"

"Also fire I see fire. Right over there" He points to the zombies.

DC 17

Dexterity Save

27
Fire

150 feet

Fireball

Suldae Westwind: (i think you should mark the exact area of effect you want)

Hiere Unthere: (trying to)

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

GM: (I've dropped a token that should help, you have control)

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 14

Hiere Unthere: (it should be a bit bigger)

GM: (You can change the size)

Strahd Zombie:

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 2

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 7

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 5

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 16

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 17

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 4

Suldae Westwind: (I do so love Hiere's style)

Strahd Zombie:

DEXTERITY

Strahd Zombie

Ability: 6

(one pass, seven fails)

13.5

The tremendous blast of flames billows between the trees, flickering over eight zombies, who catch fire and stagger on even as their flesh drips from their bones. The sizzling sound and the accompanying smell are truly horrific.

GM: (Anything else for your turn?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae starts trying to breathe with her mouth.

Hiere Unthere: (EoT)

GM: (Marcus, you're up!)

Marcus Veranius is rather upset at just how many swarms of undead Strahd seems to posses. Was there a single person in this country who could rest in peace!?

Marcus Veranius: He uses an action surge and rains crossbow bolts towards the forest

19 | 16
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
Marcus Veranius

2
Bonus Damage

19
Piercing

26 | 11
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
Marcus Veranius

3
Bonus Damage

18
Piercing

20 | 15
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
Marcus Veranius

5
Bonus Damage

17
Piercing

10 | 20
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

3

Bonus Damage

22
Piercing

13 | 8
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

3

Bonus Damage

19
Piercing

Marcus Veranius:

14 | 25
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

4

Bonus Damage/Bonus Damage

20
Piercing

12 | 24
120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

6

Bonus Damage/Bonus Damage

22
Piercing

GM: (Final numbers? Also, holy hell)

Marcus Veranius: (Oh son of a... ignore the Bonus Damage. Hunter's mark was on)

19/ 18/ 17/ 22/ 19 / 22 / 24. Distributed to the closest zombies

Two of his bolts bring down the nearest zombie in the moonlight, and the others flurry into the trees, striking several more of the loathsome undead.

GM: (EoT?)

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Strahd Zombie:

Eldritch Blast

Evocation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A creature within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

A beam of crackling energy streaks toward a creature within range. Make a ranged spell attack against the target. On a hit, the target takes 1d10 force damage. The spell creates more than one beam when you reach higher levels: two beams at 5th level, three beams at 11th level, and four beams at 17th level. You can direct the beams at the same target or at different ones. Make a separate attack roll for each beam.

Ismark Kolyanovich: 12 and 17 to hit for 3 force damage and 4 force damage.

Ismark Kolyanovich races forward, throwing up his pale hand. Crimson light blazes on his features as nimbuses of arcane power crackle forth from his palm, streaking through the trees. The crawling hand is blasted to bones, and a zombie just behind it is blown apart.

You hear an ominous whirling from the storm above... Suddenly, lightning strikes! It blasts the ground twenty feet south of Rictavio, igniting the grass.

It is followed by a second stroke near the first. An observant mage would note that the flames are burning in the form of an arcane sigil.

A third blast follows, and in a matter of seconds, the lightning is a continuous roar, carving something -- a large circle -- into the grass...

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is startled by Ismark's sudden arcane power.

She is... more startled by what happens next.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

13

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(does Henry notice the circle carving lightning?)

Henry notices the circle carved by lightning, and begins to realize that it is probably a teleportation circle.

A dozen zombies shamle forwards, most of them moving slowly. One races suddenly forwards, coming directly for Henry! It sprints awkwardly across the dark grass.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Not this shit again! Can someone stop that?"

Marcus Veranius: "We don't have the numbers or fortifications to deal with this! I suggest a retreat while we still have room to run!"

Ireena Kolyana: "On it!" cries Ireena, running towards the forming circle. Spreading her arms wide, she attempts to Counterspell the forming circle.

Counterspell

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature in the process of casting a spell

Components: S

Duration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

4

INTELLIGENCE (1)

A tendril of lightning breaks from the pouring river of crackling power, and smites her spell in her hands.

Ireena Kolyana: "Aargh!" Ireena screams.

Suldae Westwind: (holy shit that poor int check)

Ireena Kolyana: "He's too powerful! I can't stop him!"

Marcus Veranius: "Fry the circle with the Moonbeam! Scribble all over it and maybe the runes won't work!"

Hiere Unthere: (can hiere try counter)

GM: (Henry, you're up!)

(Since he hasn't used his reaction yet, yes he can -- Hiere)

Hiere Unthere:CounterspellAbjuration 3*

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature in the process of casting a spell

Components: S

Duration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

(how do I ability check?)

GM: (You should be able to click the "Intelligence" word above your intelligence score on the main page)

(It's a button)

Ireena Kolyana:INITIATIVERictavio

Initiative: 20

INITIATIVE*Ezmerelda d'Avenir*

Initiative: 9

GM: (Somehow I failed to put Rictavio and Ezmerelda on the initiative)

(Hiere, did you find the button)

(It's the word "Intelligence" Above your attribute)

(Above your modifier, actually)

(Henry, you're still up)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17

120ft. (5ft. r 40ft. h cylinder)

Moonbeam (+0)
Henry of Willowsbrook

DC14Constitution Save*14
RadiantIreena Kolyana:*CONSTITUTIONStrahd ZombieAbility: 10*GM: (That was the Zombie's roll)Hiere Unthere: (oh nvm I use my portent)Henry of Willowsbrook: (shouldn't that be 4 rolls)Strahd Zombie:*CONSTITUTIONStrahd ZombieAbility: 11*CONSTITUTIONStrahd ZombieAbility: 12*CONSTITUTIONStrahd ZombieAbility: 6*GM: (Is that the right path? Due west?)Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry whips his sword around guide the beam closer to himself
(yes)

The beam carves through three zombies on its way to its destination, blasting them down to crumbling cinders. It settles on the zombie charging towards Henry, igniting its flesh in pale blue flame. The zombie snarls!

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Action surge)11*Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook13
*Slashing29*Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14 + 6
Slashing

GM: (two hits, easily enough to dismember this thing)

Henry of Willowsbrook: He steps forward and carves the zombie in two

EoT

The zombie crumbles and the moonlight burns it to ash.

Strahd Zombie:

Protection from Evil and Good

Abjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S, M (Holy water or powdered silver and iron, which the spell consumes)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

Until the spell ends, one willing creature you touch is protected against certain types of creatures - aberrations, celestials, elementals, fey, fiends, and undead.

The protection grants several benefits. Creatures of those types have disadvantage on attack rolls against the target. The target also can't be charmed, frightened, or possessed by them. If the target is already charmed, frightened, or possessed by such a creature, the target has advantage on any new saving throw against the relevant effect.

GM: (From Rictavio)

Rictavio:

Sanctuary

Abjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 bonus action

Range: 30 ft

Components: V, S, M (A small silver mirror)

Duration: 1 minute

You ward a creature within range against attack. Until the spell ends, any creature who targets the warded creature with an attack or a harmful spell must first make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, the creature must choose a new target or lose the attack or spell. This spell doesn't protect the warded creature from area effects, such as the explosion of a fireball.

If the warded creature makes an attack or casts a spell that affects an enemy creature, this spell ends.

GM: (Doing a double-turn for Ricky boy here, since we missed him in the first round)

Rictavio runs to Ireena and casts two spells upon her in quick succession: Protection from Evil and Good, and Sanctuary.

Rictavio: "Come on, you foolish girl! Get away from that!"

GM: (Using the rest of his movement to pull her away)

(Suldae, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: (Is the circle gone?)

(Did Hiere's Counterspell work?)

GM: (If Hiere ever finishes RPing it, it will be)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere raises a hand to the sky and looks to Ireena. "Too powerful? Bah! This spell was not meant to be. Fate demands it." He rips the spell from the weave, dunking it into the metaphorical trash can of the cosmos.

(Counterspell: 24 int)

The lightning ceases to flow, and the circle of flames dies away.

A roar of rage booms through the storm.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Uh... Guys...? He's moving. I can feel it. He's moving fast."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flashes a thumbs up to Hiere and turns to the undead with renewed hope. They are advancing, but they are also getting destroyed quickly.

Oh. Well then.

"Where can we go from here?" Suldae asks, weaving a prayer of a spell in her mind in the meantime.

Hiere Unthere: "We have rope? Do you think it'll fool him twice?"

rope. *

Suldae Westwind: She wishes she had more certainty to draw upon, to focus the spell, make its success more certain, but the power of Correllon is at her fingertips either way, an answer to a request, and she will use it either way.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Can we make it to Krezk?"

Suldae Westwind: "The zombies are right there, and I'm afraid he might be able to see through their eyes..."

Rictavio: "We would only be endangering them!"

Suldae Westwind:

DC14

Dexterity Save

14*Radiant*

60 feet

Sacred Flame
Suldae Westwind

The flame ignites.

Rictavio:*DEXTERITY
*Strahd ZombieAbility: 18*Hiere Unthere: (wow)GM: (That's the zombie's roll unfortunately)Suldae Westwind: (rip)

The flame putters out, as Suldae is too distracted. She feels frustration at herself - not quite good enough yet...

The flame ignites, and wreathes the zombie in golden light. Something... Dark... Emanates from the shambling corpse, and the flames die without so much as singeing it.GM: (Which one were you targeting?)

(EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: (im thinking)

Suldae's thumbs up gives Hiere a surge of confidence.

BARDIC INSPIRATION*Class: Bard*

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspiresHiere Unthere: Here's already ridiculously high self-confidence increases by 0.00371346%Suldae Westwind: "We need a place to hide," she says. "What could pass for one?"

(EoT)

Hiere Unthere: "rope trick"

Suldae Westwind: "No it cannot!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We'd be sitting ducks I doubt he'd fall for it again"

Suldae Westwind: "A location in which to hide"

Strahd Zombie:

Eldritch Blast

Evocation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A creature within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

A beam of crackling energy streaks toward a creature within range. Make a ranged spell attack against the target. On a hit, the target takes 1d10 force damage. The spell creates more than one beam when you reach higher levels: two beams at 5th level, three beams at 11th level, and four beams at 17th level. You can direct the beams at the same target or at different ones. Make a separate attack roll for each beam.

Ismark Kolyanovich: 23 and 17 to hit, 9 and 1 force damage

Ismark throws out his hand again, launching more crimson beams into the darkness.

Suldae Westwind: Hiere, put an inspiration marker on your token

I need to keep track of who I've given it to please

The rays fly true. One pulverizes a zombie skull, the other streaks through the trees and catches a glancing blow on another zombie.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Damn!" Says Ismark.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: "I would suggest the best place to hide is 60 ft away from these things. Just keep walking backwards!"

Marcus aims more shots at the closest zombies, hoping to buy some space. With any luck, Strahd bunched all his undead within the nearby region into this assault. End the horde here and the numbers won't be as good for a future attack.

13

9

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand

Crossbow) (+7)

Marcus Veranius

22

Piercing

16

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
Marcus Veranius

21

Piercing

25

120

>Sharpshooter (Hand
Crossbow) (+7)
Marcus Veranius

17

Piercing

GM: (Which targets did you have in mind?)

Marcus Veranius: (Whichever ones are closest to Henry)

Marcus's first bolt rips the head off the darkness-shrouded zombie. His second sticks in the chest of a zombie to the north, and his third drops a zombie to the east.

The zombie shrouded in darkness does not fall...

Marcus Veranius: "Oh not this shit again..."

[EoT]

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is a little scared of what her spell did. Just a little.

A zombie breaks from the treeline and races towards the shadow-wrapped undead. The shadows swirl outward to cover it as well.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere Unthere: (oh)

"Please, please die." Here lobs another fireball and bolts.

(token please papa)

DC 17Dexterity Save*25

Fire

150 feet

Fireball

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wait guys does that remind you guys of something aswell" Henry says indicating the gathering darkness with audible frustration

Strahd Zombie:

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 12

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 18

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 11

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 7

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 11

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 8

Strahd Zombie:

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 18

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: -1

12.5

Hiere Unthere: (only 5 zombies in radius????)

Suldae Westwind: "We're probably going to have a demon here soon!" Suldae calls out in response to Henry.

The blast of flames kills three zombies outright and singes five more. The two zombies wrapped in shadow seem to resist the flames, and a baleful green light blazes in their eyes. The shadow of a tall man seems to loom above them in the flames, but then the fire dies.

The zombies wrapped in shadows are now crumbling, little more than bone and burning sinew. They should not be able to stand, but a mighty will supplants them.

GM: (You hit 8 Zombies)

Hiere Unthere: (oh the crosses were later)
(my bad)

GM: (Hyup)

(Would you like to do anything else with your turn?)

Hiere Unthere: (I ran the fuck away, EoT)

Five zombies sprint straight towards the swirling darkness, and are also embraced in its shade. A figure now seems to loom above them, burning yellow eyes staring through the darkness.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

31

Lightning

Self

Lightning Bolt

Ezmerelda d'Avenir slips past Marcus and moves north, flanking around Henry and Suldae to get a line of sight. She points her finger at the shadow-wreathed zombies, and unleashes a crackling stream of lightning! A line of light, one hundred feet long, roars through the darkness, blasting through the shadow-wrapped undead.

Strahd Zombie:

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 10

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 13

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 9

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 6

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 6

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: In the aftermath, the zombies in the shadows still stand, crackling, steaming, tendrils of lightning flickering over their now-skeletal forms. Some of them now have singe-marked holes right through their bodies. It does not seem possible that they can still be standing.

"I don't like this!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Let me try!"

Ireena runs forward, gathering power in her hands. She wraps her will around the shadows, and attempts to part them.

Counterspell

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature in the process of casting a spell

Components: S

Duration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

18

INTELLIGENCE (1)

The shadows begin to break. A powerful will resists her...

Strahd von Zarovich:

ARCANA
Strahd von Zarovich

Skill: 31

The Shadows hold, but only just. The radius of the darkness seems to shrink.

The zombie at the heart of the shadows raises an emaciated, skeletal hand.

Light blazes in its eyes, and from its rotten mouth tumbles the voice of the vampire himself. It seems to be casting a spell!

A sphere of blue-white light zips from its fingertips, racing straight for Marcus and the center of the group. It strikes, and a glacial blast explodes from the point of impact, surging out in an expanding sphere that completely encompasses a sixty-foot radius. (Everybody make a CON save.)

Strahd von Zarovich:

34
Cold

300 feet

Freezing Sphere

Henry of Willowsbrook:

11CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook9*CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of WillowsbrookMarcus Veranius:*14*CONSTITUTION SAVE (2)
Marcus VeraniusStrahd von Zarovich:*CONSTITUTION
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ability: 7 | 15Hiere Unthere:*8*CONSTITUTION SAVE (2)*Strahd von Zarovich:*16*CONSTITUTION SAVE (3)*GM: (That last one was Ireena, sorry)Suldae Westwind:*9*CONSTITUTION SAVE (2)
Suldae WestwindIsmark Kolyanovich:*15*CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)*Rictavio:*CONSTITUTION
Rictavio

*Ability: 20GM: (The DC was 18. You each take 34 points of cold damage. Rictavio manages to make the save.)Rictavio: "By the nine hells!?" Rictavio shouts.Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Aargh!" Ezmerelda screams, as the frost blasts over her clothing.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Fuck!" Ismark shouts, as waves of ice blast over him.

Marcus Veranius: "The ninth one to be exact. That's the icy one innit!?" Marcus grunts as he takes the blast directly. It seems Strahd was done targeting their immunities Ireena Kolyana: "Wo-oooah!" Ireena cries out, as the ice blasts her.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae screams.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Fuck" Henry grunts

Hiere Unthere: Hiere stumbles , trying to brace himself against the assery and failing

Marcus Veranius:

Absorb Elements

Abjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 Reaction

Range: Self

Components: S

Duration: 1 Round

Cast when you take when you take acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

The spell captures some of the incoming energy, lessening its effect on you and storing it for your next melee attack. You have resistance to the triggering damage type until the start of your next turn. Also, the first time you hit with a melee attack on your next turn, the target takes an extra 1d6 damage of the triggering type, and the spell ends.

Marcus resists the cold long enough to make his one-liner

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Need do beat a 17 con save or abillity check to keep concentration right?)

GM: (Yup)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (save or check?)

Hiere Unthere: (check)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17

CONSTITUTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

8

CONSTITUTION (3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: Taking damage. Whenever you take damage while you are concentrating on a spell, you must make a Constitution saving throw to maintain your Concentration. The DC equals 10 or half the damage you take, whichever number is higher. If you take damage from multiple sources, such as an arrow and a dragon's breath, you make a separate saving throw for each source of damage.

Hiere Unthere: oh

GM: Hyup

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh well thats 19 then)

GM: So you're good! :)

(Henry is up)

The shadowy figure rising from the undead mass speaks directly to Ireena. "Don't go anywhere, my dear. I will be there soon..."

Ireena Kolyana: "Well that's not good," says Ireena, matter of factly.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae grits her teeth. They might or might not be cornered, and she has no clever idea to contribute.

She feels like she should have a clever idea.

She doesn't.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

SECOND WIND

Class: Fighter 1

At first level, on your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level. Once you use this feature, you must finish a short or long rest before you can use it again.

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level (1).

6

Healing

Second Wind

Henry of Willowsbrook

As Henry's moonbeam moves at his command, blasting down upon the darkness, it carves through the shadows like a laser. The mass of huddled zombies crumples, wreathed in blue flame.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

DC14

Constitution Save

7

Radiant

120ft. (5ft. r 40ft. h cylinder)

Moonbeam

Henry of Willowsbrook

"We should go... anywhere not here soon"

EoT

Rictavio: "I concur enthusiastically!"

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 21

Damage: 1 piercing + 15
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 19

Damage: 5 piercing + 13
piercing

He looses two crossbow bolts which bring down one of the nearest zombies.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks around. They have three ravens, a mage who can cast Polymorph (hopefully), and four people who cannot do any of the above.

She considers if a giant eagle could carry two people.

26

NATURE (7)

Suldae Westwind

Suldae is confident that it could.

Suldae Westwind: There does seem to only be one thing to do. She puts away her crossbow, takes the ocarina to her lips and sends out a call, eerie and sad and asking for help.

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind:

Conjure Animals

Conjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: Unoccupied spaces that you can see within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You summon fey spirits that take the form of beasts and appear in unoccupied spaces that you can see within range. Choose one of the following options for what appears: One beast of challenge rating 2 or lower Two beasts of challenge rating 1 or lower Four beasts of challenge rating 1/2 or lower Eight beasts of challenge rating 1/4 or lower Each beast is also considered fey, and it disappears when it drops to 0 hit points or when the spell ends. The summoned creatures are friendly to you and your companions. Roll initiative for the summoned creatures as a group, which has its own turns. They obey any verbal commands that you issue to them (no action required by you). If you don't issue any commands to them, they defend themselves from hostile creatures, but otherwise take no actions. The GM has the creatures' statistics.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using certain higher-level Spell Slots, you choose one of the summoning options above, and more creatures appear - twice as many with a 5th-level slot, three times as many with a 7th-level slot, and four times as many with a 9th-level slot.

(Oh. I could just summon four. I'll keep that in mind for the future lmao)

15

ARCANA (11)
Suldae Westwind

They need flying mounts to bear them. Desperately. Suldae pictures eagles and sends the call out to them specifically.

The melody echoes through the air, towards the distant mountains.

With an ethereal cry, two vast eagles descend from the dark skies above, and land with great sweeps of their enormous wings. They alight on either side of Suldae, their huge, golden eyes observing her sternly.

Rictavio:

INITIATIVE
Giant Eagle

Initiative: 23

INITIATIVE
Giant Eagle

Initiative: 12

GM: (Whoops, initiative as a group -- so they'll both be acting on initiative count 23

Suldae Westwind: Suldae bows to one, then the other.

She turns around, finding Esmerelda with her eyes, gestures towards one, then turns back around and points Rictavio to the same one, then Henry and Ismark to the other one.

"Hiere, can you turn yourself into something?" she asks.

On second thought, she can also turn people into animals. They have plenty of excellent options here.

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

Ismark Kolyanovich: Not needing to be told twice, Ismark runs to the nearest eagle and mounts up.

"Do you hear that?"

GM: (Make perception checks)

Suldae Westwind:

23

PERCEPTION (10)
Suldae Westwind

(...apparently, yes)

Marcus Veranius:

27

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae hears the unmistakeable and all-too-familiar sound of massive wingbeats...

Marcus hears the wings of Vorgansharax the Black. Why does he know that name...?

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

24

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry hears nothing but the storm.

Marcus Veranius: How could Marcus forget that dreaded dragon that held him captive for as long as he can remember?

Suldae Westwind: (oh my god I forgot Marcus lost his memories)

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: (Can I get a confirm on the current time being 7 PM after travel, and if that is night or day?)

GM: (7 PM sounds right, and it would be night by now)

Suldae Westwind: (well, dark evening lmao)

GM: (probably closer to 7:30)

(The sun sets early, in Barovia)

Marcus Veranius: (How far away is the dragon?)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah but it can be lights out and still evening, 7pm is not night /alwaysreadytoquibbleoversemantics)

GM: (The dragon is not currently visible, but by the sound you can estimate that it is about 500 feet away and to the southwest.)

Marcus Veranius: Vorgansharax made a critical mistake this time around. Every other time, every other place, he caught Marcus in a position where fighting back was an impossible option. Always something to hide. Always something to protect.

Not this time.

"Fly northwest, and use your longest ranged weaponry. It is time for the hunter to become hunted."

Marcus floated upwards as if lifted by faith, disguised wings hiding his path. How many shots could he get off before Vorgansharax realized there was no where left to hide? How many shots before Vorgansharax realized he was too slow to escape?

"Swift death to you who have wronged me."

12		26
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+7) Marcus Veranius

10
Piercing

21
Piercing

Suldae Westwind: Suldae isn't sure about this, but she does trust Marcus.

Marcus Veranius:

19		11
120
>Sharpshooter (Hand Crossbow) (+7) Marcus Veranius

10
Piercing

21
Piercing

When you make a weapon

attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

15
Piercing

3
Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]
Marcus Veranius

26 / 22 to hit, 31 damage each shot

Henry of Willowsbrook: (is that the right weapon?)

Marcus Veranius: (FUCK)

rolling 2d8

(1 + 5)

= 6

(...the correct dice are worse)

(26 / 31 magical piercing damage)

GM: (Wait I think those were crossbow shots)

Marcus Veranius: (I rolled d8's and recalculated the damage as if he was using longbow)
(Oathbow has 600 range, so Vorgansharax is in firing range)

GM: (Ah, same modifier either way)

(The 19 misses bu the precision attack juuuuust barely bumps it up to a hit)

Suldae Westwind: (marked concentration on myself)

Marcus hears two roars of rage and pain. The oath bow has not failed him.

Ismark Kolyanovich:

INITIATIVE Ancient Black Dragon <hr/> Initiative: 18.14
--

GM: (Do you have additional actions/moves?)

Marcus Veranius: (I have a one-liner)

GM: Oh good we like those

Marcus Veranius: "You're approaching me? Instead of running away, you're coming right to me?"
"Then come as close as you like!"

[EoT]

GM: (This is one of those mojo jojo things, isn't it)

Henry of Willowsbrook: it is

Two of the remaining zombies charge forwards, coming right for the eagle Ismark is currently mounted on.

GM: (Hiere is up)

Hiere is overcome by a momentary wave of hallucination.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Right, bird time," says Ezmerelda, approaching the massive eagle. "Good birdie... Nice birdie... Don't bite the poor peg-legged lady..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir manages to get herself up onto the eagle's back.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 12

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 10 Piercing

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 17

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 14 Piercing

Once mounted, she puts two crossbow bolts into the nearest zombie.

Another zombie charges forward towards the eagle -- three of them are almost in biting range!

Suldae Westwind: (Ireena is still also a raven)

GM: (She's running to help her brother, not to get on the eagle)

Suldae Westwind: (makes sense)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

5

Rapier (+4)

8

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (oh fucking rip)

(hey, that's not Ireena!)

GM: (It's Ireena's roll, I just had the wrong 'as' selected -- sorry)

Suldae Westwind: (yes i got that XD)

(i might or might not be angling to have it not count)

Ireena Kolyana charges towards her brother's eagle and lunges with her rapier! Unfortunately, the narrow weapon pierces a nonessential part of the zombie, and sticks within it!

The zombie growls, reaching for her. She is able to keep it at arms' length, but just barely!

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (rapier: not the best weapon against undead)

GM: (She's pumped up on big-sister protective instincts, not thinking clearly apparently)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Swaping from Sword and Broad to Halberd would not be an action right?)

GM: (We'll call it a free action)

(So no, not an action -- go for it)

Suldae Westwind: (free item interaction!)

GM: (Yeah what she said)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (cool) Henry puts his Sword away and slings his shield on his back grabbing the shaft of his Halberd "Light give me strength" he mutters approaching the eagle remembering the last time he saddled one vividly

FIGHTING SPIRIT

Class: Fighter 3 Samurai

Starting at 3rd level, as a bonus action on your turn, you can give yourself advantage on weapon attack rolls until the end of the current turn. When you do so, you also gain 5 temporary hit points. The number of temporary hit points increases when you reach certain levels in this class, increasing to 10 at 10th level and 15 at 15th level. You can use this feature three times, and you regain all expended uses of it when you finish a long rest.

27

17

Halberd (10 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11
Slashing

14

25

Halberd (10 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7
Slashing

13

17

Halberd (10 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

10
Slashing

GM: (Three hits, three kills)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Climbing the Eagle (two) (missclicked a third attack)

GM: Ah yes, that last one is out of range isn't he Henry of Willowsbrook: also that)

GM: (The two nearest ones are down for the count, so that's good)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes two over head swipes around the Siblings finding that ending foes did some to calm his wobbling knees has he takes a seat on the large bird "Hmm" he meekly squeaks out not looking forward to his third flight EoT

Rictavio: Rictavio mounts up on the eagle beside Ezmerelda. "Haven't done this in a while..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Think you'll be able to keep your grip, old man?"

Rictavio: "My capacity to keep my grip is inversely proportional to your capacity to keep your mouth shut, child," says Rictavio. "In other words: yes."

The eagles spread their massive wings and leap into the sky.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns around and focuses again. The prayer comes easier this time, her fingers on her holy symbol.

DC14

Dexterity Save

13
Radiant

60 feet

Sacred Flame
Suldae Westwind

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY
Strahd Zombie

Ability: 11

GM: (You keeeeeeeled it.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh ehk btw GM I think you missed a Zombie lol)

GM: (Nah it's just the control Zombie. It's watching you)

Suldae Westwind: The fire surges, this time, and the will of Corellon disrupts the unholy magic sustaining the creature. Suldae breathes out, then reaches out to her raven sister. She feels the grin in her consciousness, and they meld, and Suldae leaps into the air

SHAPECHANGER

Racial: Wereraven

The wereraven can use its action to polymorph into a raven-humanoid hybrid or into a raven, or back into its human form. Any equipment it is wearing or carrying isn't transformed. It reverts to its human form if it dies.

(oops, not what i meant to do, but works lmao)

GM: (We will be changing maps in a moment here...)

Suldae Westwind: (I don't have my fly speed recorded anywhere apparently)

Marcus Veranius: (You could just shift the map to the left and assume people are flying northeast)

(No need to make another battle map; this is big enough)

(We can at least hold off until Vorgansharax is closer to us than 100 squares)

(I'll draw us some clouds)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (normal Raven fly speed is 50 ft)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

(thats a lot of trees)

(neat)

GM: (Hiere, go ahead and take the turn you missed from last round)

2.7777777777777777

320

Hiere sees his companions getting airborne.

Hiere Unthere: Here comes to. "Hey! You guys leaving without me!?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae flips him off as she circles around the clearing, waiting for him.

Hiere Unthere: He makes sure his hat doesn't fly off as he polymorphs into a giant eagle, joining the other two.

Polymorph

Transmutation 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A caterpillar cocoon)

Duration: Concentration Concentration, Up to 1 hour

This spell transforms a creature that you can see within range into a new form. An unwilling creature must make a Wisdom saving throw to avoid the effect. The spell has no effect on a shapechanger or a creature with 0 hit points. The transformation lasts for the duration, or until the target drops to 0 hit points or dies. The new form can be any beast whose challenge rating is equal to or less than the target's (or the target's level, if it doesn't have a challenge rating). The target's game statistics, including mental ability scores, are replaced by the statistics of the chosen beast. It retains its alignment and personality. The target assumes the hit points of its new form. When it reverts to its normal form, the creature returns to the number of hit points it had before it transformed. If it reverts as a result of dropping to 0 hit points, any excess damage carries over to its normal form. As long as the excess damage doesn't reduce the creature's normal form to 0 hit points, it isn't knocked unconscious. The creature is limited in the actions it can perform by the nature of its new form, and it can't speak, cast spells, or take any other action that requires hands or speech. The target's gear melds into the new form. The creature can't activate, use, wield, or otherwise benefit from any of its equipment.

Grouping together in the air, the three giant eagles and the hybrid Ireena hear the approaching wingbeats of a swift-moving dragon...

Suldae Westwind: "Northwest?" Suldae asks Marcus

Marcus Veranius: "EAST! Northeast!"

Suldae Westwind: "Northeast!" Suldae yells out for the eagles' benefit.

Hopefully, everyone else will listen too.

GM: (So there's one little snag... The ravens and hybrid forms have a 50 foot fly speed, which means dashing they'll be falling 60 feet behind every round)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Wait

Marcus Veranius: (With Hiere back and now a giant eagle, we can get everyone mounted)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Raven form has raven weight right so they could just sit down and ride allong right?)

Ireena Kolyana: Seeing how much swifter the eagles are, Ireena transforms fully into a raven and perches on Hiere's feathery head.

GM: (Please RP the mounting up)

(Bearing in mind that you did just flip him off lmao)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae drops on Hiere's back, turning back into human and goes "do a barrel roll if you mind. by which I mean please don't?"

Hiere Unthere: "cacaw motherfucker"

GM: (Squares on the grid now indicate 20 feet)

Through the cloud tops you see a shape with vast black wings. The enormous dragon is in hot pursuit, enraged by its prey!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh Gentel Light grant this poor unfortunate soul sanctuary! Oh Glourious Light bathe me in your splendor! Oh Exalted Light shield me and mine with your incandescence!" Henry is muttering every pray he can remember whilst cling onto the eagle beneath him as hard as he can

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

INITIATIVE Ancient Black Dragon <hr/> Initiative: 12.14

The eagles flap their mighty wings, and surge forward 160 feet.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Vorgansharax the Black flaps his mighty wings, and surges forward 180 feet. The distance closes by 20 feet.

GM: (Ok, so every round the distance closes by 20 feet. You can play your turns as normal, but you won't be able to move on your turn without losing that dash speed for the eagle you're mounted on, which will cause you to fall back 80 feet. Vorgansharax the Black is within 300 feet. Henry, you're up.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Bless Enchantment 2 Casting Time: 1 action Range: 30 feet Target: Up to three creatures of your choice within range Components: V, S, M (A sprinkling of holy water) Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute You bless up to three creatures of your choice within range. Whenever a target makes an attack roll or a saving throw before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to the attack roll or saving throw.
--

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st.

On Marcus Suldae Hiere and Ezmeralda

Suldae Westwind: (brb)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry fingers with the Holy Symbol looking at his companions "Give them Strength" he murmurs

GM: (EoT?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

13

Higher Level Cast

6

Healing

Touch

Cure Wounds

GM: (Dammit that was for Rictavio)

Rictavio: "Chin up, my dear! This won't be the last dragon you slay!"

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has approximately the same thought. Now's the time to try...

She breathes in and focuses. The land beneath her, the air around her, the gods and spirits listening. Her power and her will and the weave through everything.

A surge, binding it all together, and there are 10 berries lying on her palm.

Goodberry

Transmutation 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: See text

Components: V, S, M (A sprig of mistletoe)

Duration: Instantaneous

Up to ten berries appear in your hand and are infused with magic for the duration. A creature can use its action to eat one berry. Eating a berry restores 3 hit points, and the berry provides enough nourishment to sustain a creature for one day. The berries lose their potency if they have not been consumed within 24 hours of the casting of this spell.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell at a higher level, the berry restores 1 more hit point for each level above 1st.

(Each berry, when eaten, restores 6 HP)

Suldae eats one herself, pops one into Marcus's mouth next to her and gives one to Ireena. (That's as many as she can distribute in a single turn, I'm assuming)

Suldae Westwind: (EoT)

Ismark Kolyanovich:

Command

Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range

Components: V

Duration: 1 round

You speak a one-word command to a creature you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or follow the command on its next turn. The spell has no effect if the target is undead, if it doesn't understand your language, or if your command is directly harmful to it. Some typical commands and their effects follow. You might issue a command other than one described here. If you do so, the GM determines how the target behaves. If the target can't follow your command, the spell ends. Approach. The target moves toward you by the shortest and most direct route, ending its turn if it moves within 5 feet of you. Drop. The target drops whatever it is holding and then ends its turn. Flee. The target spends its turn moving away from you by the fastest available means. Grovel. The target falls prone and then ends its turn. Halt. The target doesn't move and takes no actions. A flying creature stays aloft, provided that it is able to do so. If it must move to stay aloft, it flies the minimum distance needed to remain in the air.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can affect one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Ismark turns to look back at the pursuing dragon, and his eyes blaze with crimson light. Flames flicker beneath his skin.

"FLEE."

Vorgansharax the Black:

WISDOM SAVE
Ancient Black Dragon

Save: 27

The dragon seems almost to laugh...

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Damn. It was worth a shot!"

GM: (Marcus, you're up!)

Marcus Veranius also seems close to laughter. "Let him come. This is the day Vorgansharax the Terrible meets its end."

Marcus Veranius: He fires more shots

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Yep" Henry agrees wincing after having Ismark shout in his ear

Suldae Westwind: (I guess you have the berry but you have to spend an action to eat it)

(you have it tho)

(theres currently a peeled banana sticking out of Marcus's mouth)

Marcus Veranius:

$$\begin{array}{r|l} 8 + 4 & 12 + 4 \\ \hline 600 & \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

12
Piercing

17
Piercing

$$\begin{array}{r|l} 21 + 1 & 25 + 1 \\ \hline 600 & \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

8
Piercing

23
Piercing

rolling 1d20 Lucky

(15)

= 15

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

8

Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

GM: (Two hits)

Marcus Veranius: 60 Magical Piercing Damage

GM: (Did you mark Vorgansharax as your sworn enemy before rolling with advantage?)

Marcus Veranius: (Last turn)

Suldae Westwind: (he did, back down)

GM: (I'm assuming yes)

(Gotcha, missed it somehow)

Suldae Westwind: (it was that awkward moment when he accidentally rolled crossbow)

Marcus Veranius:

On your turn, you can use a bonus action to regain hit points equal to 1d10 + your fighter level.

14

Healing

Second Wind

Marcus Veranius

(Thats actually an 12)

[EoT]

Vorgansharax the Black: "AAARGH... YOU WILL REGRET THIS!"

(in Draconic)

(Obvi)

Marcus Veranius: "And you will die this day, unable to." Also responding in Draconic.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae cannot understand what they're saying but cheers anyway, assuming Marcus is saying something cool.

GM: (Hiere is up... Since he's an eagle though, there's not much to do)

(Hmmm...)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere chills the fuck out and does some sweet glides.

(Dash, move 160ft, EoT)

Vorgansharax the Black: Vorgansharax puts all his will into gaining more speed. His voice echoes through the storm, calling on dark forces. The name of Strahd rings out over the cloudscape.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "He's coming," says Ismark.

"He's coming from the east."

Suldae Westwind: (incidentally since we're flying really fast and a distance apart, I bet people can only hear each other on the same eagle)

Marcus Veranius: (Anything is possible in Anime Time)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda twists in the saddle, raising her heavy crossbow. It's a difficult shot from this range, at these speeds... She tries to make it anyway.

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 10 | 12

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 9 Piercing

HEAVY CROSSBOW +1
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Attack: 7 | 11

You have a +1 bonus to attack and damage rolls made with this weapon.

Damage: 9 Piercing

"Damn!" She shouts, loud enough to be heard on the other eagles. Her crossbow bolts fall far short.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena, in bird form, eats her banana.

GM: (Top of the round again. The eagles proceed 160 feet due northeast. The Dragon closes the distance by 20 feet. Distance: 280)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry could make an athletics check to shout really loudly what Ismark is saying)

GM: (Henry is up)

(Yes, that would work for me)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17

22

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: (That's plenty strong enough haha)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (whoops forgot I had advantage still on) Henry loudly repeats what Ismark said albeit a tone or two higher then normally

Also Lay on hands for 10 himself

EoT

Rictavio: "Take the shot again! You can do this, Ezme!"

Guidance

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You touch one willing creature. Once before the spell ends, the target can roll a d4 and add the number rolled to one ability check of its choice. It can roll the die before or after making the ability check. The spell then ends.

Rictavio casts Guidance on Ezmerelda.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ezme is also blessed btw)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae eats her banana this turn, since that's how long it takes (I forgot) and gives Ireena another one counting the one currently lying in Marcus's lap, that leaves her with 6 more

* not counting

GM: (Oh derp, Guidance doesn't boost your attacks)

(Now I have to make her do an ability check haha)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Wait..." Ismark says, clutching Henry's shoulder. "He's gone. He's not on this plane anymore. It's like he just... Stepped out of it."

"I don't like this..."

Marcus Veranius considers, but know what must be done.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry repeats mostly so he has something other to do then hold on Ismark Kolyanovich: "Don't let him bend your will," says Ismark, casting Protection from Evil and Good on Henry.

Protection from Evil and Good

Abjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: One willing creature you touch

Components: V, S, M (Holy water or powdered silver and iron, which the spell consumes)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

Until the spell ends, one willing creature you touch is protected against certain types of creatures: aberrations, celestials, elementals, fey, fiends, and undead. The protection grants several benefits. Creatures of those types have disadvantage on attack rolls against the target. The target also can't be charmed, frightened, or possessed by them. If the target is already charmed, frightened, or possessed by such a creature, the target has advantage on any new saving throw against the relevant effect.

GM: (Marcus is up)

Marcus Veranius: "I've made my play. Whatever trick Strahd tries, it costs him one dragon."

Marcus Veranius takes his shots

Marcus Veranius:

10

9

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

18

Piercing

12

10

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

22

Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (ouch)

(whats the -3 and do you remember you're blessed?)

Marcus Veranius: (Gunna Lucky both of those)

rolling 1d20

(9)

= 9

rolling 1d20

(4)

= 4

GM: (I think it calculated those wrong though)

Marcus Veranius: (REEEEEEEEEEEEEEO

Suldae Westwind: (OH)

(I FORGOT)

(CAN I RETCON MYSELF AS HAVING GIVEN MARCUS BARDIC INSP)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d4

(1)

= 1

Suldae Westwind: (I GOT DISTRACTED BY BANANAS BUT I WAS CHEERING)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d4

(1)

= 1

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAA

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh boy)

Suldae Westwind: (IT TAKES A BONUS ACTION)

GM: (What is that -3 mod?)

Marcus Veranius: (-5 Sharpshooter, +2 Archery Style)

GM: (Ah. How complicated!)

Marcus Veranius: (Can I have the bardic brohther?)

GM: (Yes)

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspires

Marcus Veranius: (Roll it)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae was cheering for Marcus dunking on the dragon

Marcus Veranius: (I dont remember what the die is)

Suldae Westwind: d8

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d8

(6)

= 6

Suldae Westwind: (note how i cut down the text to just have the relevant info lmao)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 3d6

(5 + 6 + 3)

= 14

32 damage from one hit (23 attack)

[EoT]

Hiere Unthere: Hiere does what a responsible adult would do and keeps flying the fuck away from the huge dragon.

Suldae Westwind: (we all love you)

Marcus Veranius: "...fly straight north. Shift our direction"

Hiere Unthere: He does this

Marcus Veranius: "If Strahd's teleporting in, he might be counting on us being in a certain spot"
"Let's not be there."

Vorgansharax the Black: "YOU WILL NOT ESCAPE ME SO EASILY!" Vorgansharax roars. Thunder rolls through the storm, and lightning crackles wildly across the sky. The great wings of the black dragon beat the air, and suddenly you see a storm of huge hailstones rising from the cloud before you. They rocket skyward, pelting you as the party zips through them! (Make a Dex Save, everyone)

DC19

Dexterity Save

8*Bludgeoning300 feetIce Storm

Vorgansharax the Black

Henry of Willowsbrook:*21*DEXTERITY SAVE (2)

Henry of Willowsbrook

5DEXTERITY SAVE (2)

Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind:*18*DEXTERITY SAVE (7)

Suldae Westwind

GM: (That's the wrong damage, it should be 2d8 bludgeoning and 4d6 cold)9

bludgeoning and 20

cold

Marcus Veranius:*16 + 1*DEXTERITY SAVE (10)

Marcus Veranius

Hiere Unthere:*6*DEXTERITY SAVE (3)

Marcus Veranius:

Absorb Elements

*Abjuration 1Casting Time: 1 ReactionRange: SelfComponents: SDuration: 1 Round

Cast when you take when you take acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

The spell captures some of the incoming energy, lessening its effect on you and storing it for your next melee attack. You have resistance to the triggering damage type until the start of your next turn. Also, the first time you hit with a melee attack on your next turn, the target takes an extra 1d6 damage of the triggering type, and the spell ends.

Flying through the hailstorm slows you down! (Difficult terrain -- the 40 foot diameter counts as 80 feet instead. The distance closes by 40 feet.)

Suldae Westwind: (soooo what's the DC on that check / how much damage DO we take?)

GM: DC is 19, you take 9 bludgeoning and 20 cold on a fail or half-damage on a success
(Don't forget bless)

Hiere Unthere: Hiereagle attempts to swerve out of the way but gets BONKED on the head, turning back to his human self.

Vorgansharax the Black:

DEXTERITY

*Giant EagleAbility: 5

DEXTERITY

*Giant EagleAbility: 14

Uhm

So the eagles died

Kinda

Actually let's roll HP for them

Vorgansharax the Black:

HIT POINTS

*Giant EagleHit Points: 29

HIT POINTS

Giant Eagle

Hit Points: 17

Ok

Henry of Willowsbrook: (SUGAR WE'RE GOIN DOWN SWINGIN)

Marcus Veranius: (So, who has feather fall on their lists?)

GM: Ireena does

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ireena

Suldae Westwind: it takes an action to shapeshift into human how long do we take to fall

GM: Technically she doesn't have it prepared though

Suldae Westwind: w h y who doesnt have feather fall prepared

Henry of Willowsbrook: She had it in the tower

Suldae Westwind: ooh yeah
she was fucking around with it
she DOES have it prepared

GM: (This is true, we'll roll with that)
She can cover up to 5 people with it

Marcus Veranius: Ez, Ric, Henry, Hierie, and Ismark falling
The birds are bird

Suldae Westwind: hybrid form has fly speed AND spellcasting
right

Marcus Veranius: And since Vorgansharax made a hailstorm, that means he's not double moving right?

The eagles are torn to feathers by the rushing hailstones. The party begins to fall...

GM: (Legendary Action casting)

Ireena Kolyana: Hmm

GM: Actually that's too mean

Marcus Veranius: (RIPPO)

GM: And he'd have to do it at the end of someone else's turn
Hmm how mean am I feeling

19

Hierie Unthere: extremely

GM: Not that mean, apparently

Hiere Unthere: aw

Marcus Veranius: (We get 70 ft of distance, but then Vorgansharax catches up in two turns. If my math is correct)

Ireena Kolyana:

21

DEXTERITY SAVE (1)

Marcus Veranius: (Because we can no longer fly away)

Suldae Westwind: sez you

Suldae gets a turn = we get more eagles

4 this time since i remembered i can do that

Ismark Kolyanovich:

9

DEXTERITY SAVE (3)

Rictavio:

DEXTERITY
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ability: 10

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DEXTERITY
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ability: 7

Suldae Westwind: rolling d4

(2)

= 2

ok so i made the save

(...didnt need to roll lmao i couldnt roll below that) that means 14 damage?

GM: That's half damage then

Yep

The rushing hail strikes Ismark, nearly crushing his head. He falls unconscious as he tumbles.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (roll to grab him?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir shouts: "FuuuuuuUUUUUUUCK!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is battered by smaller chunks of hail, luck saving her more than anything.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere holds onto his hat for dear life.

Ireena Kolyana:

6

ARCANA (1)

Suldae Westwind: "FEATHER FALL!" Suldae yells out, hoping SOMEONE in this party full of goddamned mages has it.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

21

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Ireena Kolyana is battered by the ice, but manages to survive. As she begins to fall, she makes the shift to hybrid form -- intending to cast feather fall. She can't make the transformation fast enough to cast right away, but she allows herself to fall with the others so that they will not fall out of her range. (Shapechanging costs an action)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (okay Bless is still on)

GM: (So we'll use the XGtE falling rules -- at the start of your turn you plummet 500 feet. We'll estimate that you are about 12,000 feet above ground at the moment, since that's roughly the height of a cumulus cloud, which we had said you were above.)

Actually that's ludicrous

Marcus Veranius: (The dragon is 500 ft away, so we'll escape by climbing 12,000 ft into the clouds)

GM: Fuck it, it's fantasy land. With the distances we had earlier for the dragon the clouds must be very low. You fall 500 feet immediately, but you're roughly 1,000 feet above ground. So you'll strike the earth at the end of next round.

All this is an exercise in pointlessness since Ireena's going to cast Featherfall on everyone who can't fly on her next turn anyway.

Suldae Westwind: also, maybe it was 500 feet horizontally without counting vertical distance

Marcus Veranius: (On the contrary, its an exersize in math)

Suldae Westwind: thats not an exercise in pointlessness as it determines if we GET that next goddamn turn before we hit the ground

GM: This is why I'm setting it to 1,000 feet
2 turns

Suldae Westwind: thank you ;~;

Ireena allows herself to fall, and completes her transformation.

GM: Henry, you're up

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Feather fall is a reaction so as long as we don't go splat between Ireena and Henry we are fine)

GM: Oh herpderp, that means she can cast it right now

Well maybe she wants you all to be in cloud cover before she turns you into slow-moving targets

Marcus Veranius: (By doing some simple math, I have calculated that falling 500 ft increases our distance from Vorgansharax to 588 ft, 580 rounded)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'm goooing to roll a Wisdom Save to see how much Henry is freaking out ok?)

25

WISDOM SAVE (6)
Henry of Willowsbrook

huh not that much it would seem or should I roll with disadvantage cause he is really really scared of heights?)

GM: If you want to, you can

Henry of Willowsbrook:

26

WISDOM SAVE (6)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(ahahahaha)

GM: the dice gods have decided

Suldae Westwind: Henry was expecting this the entire time exactly this

he is prepared

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry surprisingly okay with plummeting to his apparent doom tries to grab a hold of Ismarks unconscious form

GM: (Make an athletics check)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

26

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

19

ATHLETICS (9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry manages to catch the falling Ismark.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Lay on hands for 10 if I still have an Action otherwise EoT

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Wha-- What? What happened?"

"Oh," says Ismark. "We're falling."

"This is great."

Rictavio: "Oh, bugger. I knew I should have learned flying."

"My dear, I have only one thing left to give you. Don't die."

Death Ward

Abjuration 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S

Duration: 8 hours

You touch a creature and grant it a measure of protection from death. The first time the target would drop to 0 hit points as a result of taking damage, the target instead drops to 1 hit point, and the spell ends. If the spell is still in effect when the target is subjected to an effect that would kill it instantaneously without dealing damage, that effect is instead negated against the target, and the spell ends.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It is marvelous my dear friend, simply marvelous excuse me for a moment" Henry clears his throat before "FUCK FUCK FUCK THIS SHIT I AM GOING TO TURN THAT OVERGROWN LIZARD INTO SOME BOOTS AND KICK STRAHDS ASS WITH THEM" screaming at the top of his lungs

GM: (lol)

Suldae Westwind:

17

WISDOM (2+2)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: He continues his tirade in Undercommon

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is only freaking out a little bit. She turns into hybrid form and lunges for Hiere, who's falling closest to her. She grabs him and maintains the same speed as the rest of the group next to the rest of the group. She might or might not be able to slow his fall if Ireena doesn't manage to cast the spell fast enough. She should, though. They're very high.

Note for the future that Suldae makes to herself: if you're going to do midair combat, do it as high as possible. Ironically, that's actually safer.

Ireena Kolyana: Just as the party falls into the thickest patch of clouds, Ireena casts Feather Fall.

Suldae Westwind: *hybrid

Hiere Unthere: "THANKS FOR THE HUG I REALLY NEEDED IT RIGHT NOW"

Ireena Kolyana: Ezmerelda, Rictavio, Henry, Ismark, and Hiere all slow their fall. (60 foot fall speed) now for one minute -- should get you through 600 feet of falling)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere still has his eyes clamped shut and is holding onto his hat as he feels someone grab him

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well," says Ismark. "Isn't this exciting. Now we're just low-hanging fruit!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smacks him lightly on the back of the head, but keeps holding him.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius catches himself midair, black wings cutting through his hat's illusion. Like an angel of vengeance, he charged forward towards his dragon.

Marcus Veranius: "Understand why this is the hour of your death! You were lost the second you submitted to Strahd as a pet. I shall relieve you of your weakness!"

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 13 + 4 & 14 + 4 \\ \hline 600 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

7
Piercing

22
Piercing

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 16 + 2 & 21 + 2 \\ \hline 600 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

9
Piercing

20
Piercing

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4
Bonus Accuracy

[Precision Attack]
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: Actually, for a moment she's kind of hanging on him, since the spell changes his speed a lot more rapidly than she could adjust.

Marcus Veranius: 22, 23 to hit

58 Damage

Vorgansharax the Black: "Aargh. How DARE you!?"

Marcus Veranius: "Come! Show me that you are still the menace that you once were. PROVE ME WRONG, or prove me right."

[EoT]

Suldae Westwind: wasnt Ismark unconscious

i dont want to cramp his style, i'm just wondering

GM: (Henry did a lay on hands)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Henry's Healing Hands darling He is splendid if a bit dented right now)

Suldae Westwind: (ah gotcha ty)

(missed that lmao)

Hiere Unthere: "anyone in the mood for fucking off into a rope trick?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'd love to but I can't really fall over to you right now" Henry very sarcastically calls out

Suldae Westwind: "We're still falling," Suldae says. "Maybe after we land?"

Hiere Unthere: "YO MARCUS" Hiere flips around to face Suldae. "CATCH" He launches himself off her, getting close enough to cast Haste on the dragon sniper.

Haste

Transmutation 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A willing creature that you can see within range

Components: V, S, M (A shaving of licorice root)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

Choose a willing creature that you can see within range. Until the spell ends, the target's speed is doubled, it gains a +2 bonus to AC, it has advantage on Dexterity saving throws, and it gains an additional action on each of its turns. That action can be used only to take the Attack (one weapon attack only), Dash, Disengage, Hide, or Use an Object action. When the spell ends, the target can't move or take actions until after its next turn, as a wave of lethargy sweeps over it.

Marcus Veranius turns to Hiere, offering a smile.

Marcus Veranius turns to his one true enemy.

Marcus Veranius: He knew, deep in his heart, only one of them would be alive by the stroke of midnight.

GM: Very well done, all :)

Suldae Westwind: ^^

Vorgansharax the Black: Now we really need to end the session here haha, I'm due at a friend's house in 20 minutes and I NEED to shower

GM: LMAO

Suldae Westwind: im just imagining that in a booming dragon voice

GM: Vorgansharax the Black has friends

Thank you all for playing!

Zanshukun: That was a cool sesion

Able: heck yeah

Zanshukun: session

Able: better than spending 3 hours on a social encounter

Vorgansharax, the Maimed Virulence.

GM (GM):

A massive black dragon whose ego surpassed its size. Stronger and larger than other dragons of its age, named after a maimed right wing and a long history of acidic terror. Monsterously destructive on the ground, and a terrifying adversary elsewhere. Known for keeping prisoners in his lair as personal entertainment.

GM (GM):

All of Marcus's earliest memories were filled with the horrors from his confinement in the dread dragon's lair. Childhood, friends, family, all vanished in the pain and torture of what felt like a lifetime of imprisonment. For the longest time, the shoemaker's only wish was to grow strong enough to put an end to its history of misery carved in melted flesh and broken cities.

GM (GM):

...that lust for revenge died in the loving arms of the Wereravens, whos kindness filled every dark shadow in Marcus's soul. Under different circumstances he may have even considered letting bygones be as they were, buried in the past where they belonged. But as Strahd's pet? As a threat to Barovia, and a new family in the dragon's war path?

GM (GM):

No. The Maimed Virulence dies today. Dragged out of its lair to play boogeyman for Strahd, Vorgansharax had been dragged into a battlefield it was most unprepared for. No better opportunity would present itself; Marcus flew to war to put an end to their shared story of acid and misery, empowered by the good wishes of his companions and the love of a wife in waiting.

GM (GM):

Swift death to you who have wronged me.

*Vorgansharax the Black dives into the cloud cover, breaking line of sight with Marcus.
(Vorgansharax advances 180 feet, and disappears into obscuring clouds, imposing disadvantage.)*

GM: (Since Marcus has the Oathbow, its advantage cancels the disadvantage, leaving a flat roll.)

Tops K.: (Would this count as cover for the purposes of Sharpshooter?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (morelikelyly obsccured like Fog Cloud or darkness cause)

GM: (It's not cover, he's just obsccured)

Marcus Veranius: (Oh boy!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wait does the dragon still see Marcus?)

GM: (The dragon no longer sees Marcus, but it has very keen senses.)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I think he's running away!" Ezmerelda says.

She continues to slowly fall.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (aww so no funny Fog Cloud attack ruling then (Its the funniest case of RAW I know))

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

6

ARCANA (1)

Ireena Kolyana:

7

ARCANA (1)

"Something doesn't feel right," Ireena says.

"There's... Movement. I can't explain it. Something's getting closer."

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Hiere Unthere:

22

ARCANA (9)

(oh oops)

GM: (No worries -- you're just seeing the future)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Yaaaah I got nothing Henry just keeps falling but tries to look around while doing it

12

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

11

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry senses something moving through the planes; some fell beast approaches! It does not walk the material plane, but adjacent to it. The nature spirits cringe away from its burning hide as it moves through the sky.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh what now" he grunts out

Rictavio: "I've got a bad feeling about this. Those of you who can turn into birds should get to the ground as quickly as you can."

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Liliet (Suldae): (yh laptp was being ass)

"Forgive me if I don't," Suldae says. She exchanges a glance with Ireena, seeming to say 'keep them safe', then lets go of Hiere and surges up after Marcus.

\Inspire Marcus

fff

one sec

Suldae Westwind:

BARDIC INSPIRATION

Class: Bard

You, the target, get a Bardic Inspiration die - a d6 initially, a d8 starting from level 5, a d10 starting from level 10, a d12 starting from level 15. You keep it for 10 minutes. During these 10 minutes you can use it up by rolling it and adding the result to one ability check, attack roll or saving throw. You can only have one at a time and uses refresh at short rest, so use it up!

Suldae Westwind inspires Marcus

Suldae Westwind: She joins him silently, her very presence providing support.

EoT

(NO WAIT)

14

ARCANA (11)
Suldae Westwind

She also attempts to detect what others have managed to.

Suldae hears the harmonies of nature being torn asunder as something -- some four-hoofed beast of flames -- surges through the Ethereal plane at unholy speeds.

Suldae Westwind: She stays silent, not wishing to distract Marcus from his task.

(we might want a side scroller map here instead of a top down one lol)

EoT

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well, Ricky boy, I trust your instincts. Henry, I can get us both down. What do you say?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'd love to not fall anymore so, please be my guest"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well, hold onto your guts!"

Ismark grabs Henry's arm and turns, twisting the both of them between the planes. There is a blast of eldritch fire. Henry briefly glimpses a huge creature of darkness clinging to the soul of Ismark, crimson eyes blazing amid wreathes of flame. Then, quite suddenly, the cold air of the Barovian forest washes over him once more. Ismark and Henry have taken a Dimension Door to the ground.

Ismark pops his back. "Wow, that wasn't as easy as I thought it would be. I don't think I have another one of those in me!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We're gonna talk about that 'thing' later but thank you"

GM: (Marcus, you're up!)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What thing?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Why am I not surprised ...nevermind I'll explain later"

Marcus Veranius: Under normal circumstances, Vorgansharax might have been able to escape. But with a helping hand from Hiere once again, Marcus was able to dash forward faster than the Dragon could escape.

More arrows mark his arrival

Suldae Westwind: (can I get a breakdown of the actions + speeds involved to figure out if Suldae can keep up?)

Marcus Veranius: Extra Action Dash + Haste Double movement: 200 ft flying
+ normal action attacks

17 + 4

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

12

Piercing

11

Piercing

27 + 3

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

9
Piercing

8
Piercing

Suldae Westwind: (ok she cannot got it ty)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d8 Bardic Inspiration on first shot

(4)

= 4

GM: (Both hits now)

Marcus Veranius: (40 Magical Piercing)

Vorgansharax the Black: "AARGH!"

"STRAHD, HELP ME!"

Strahd von Zarovich: "Oh, Vorgansharax, you fool. What have you done now?"

Marcus Veranius: "Do you feel it? That hollow feeling from being unable to fight, and unable to run? Staring death in the eyes unable to do anything?"

Hiere Unthere: "gg" Hiere mutters under his breath.

Marcus Veranius: "This is the helplessness you've inflicted on so many! DIE NOW WITH IT IN YOUR HEART!"

[EoT]

Hiere glimpses the future. He sees the Nightmare emerging from a whorl of mist, inches from Rictavio and Ezmerelda. He sees the power of the charm spell falling over them...

He sees the red eyes of Strahd von Zarovich atop the flaming steed from hell.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere Unthere: "OKAY GUYS TIME TO LEAVE CHOP CHOP FOLLOW ME"

Hiere releases some rope mid float-fall, ducking into his hidey-hole before they get mass dunked on.

Rope Trick

Transmutation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: A length of rope that is up to 60 feet long

Components: V, S, M (Powdered corn extract and a twisted loop of parchment)

Duration: 1 hour

You touch a length of rope that is up to 60 feet long. One end of the rope then rises into the air until the whole rope hangs perpendicular to the ground. At the upper end of the rope, an invisible entrance opens to an extradimensional space that lasts until the spell ends. The extradimensional space can be reached by climbing to the top of the rope. The space can hold as many as eight Medium or smaller creatures. The rope can be pulled into the space, making the rope disappear from view outside the space. Attacks and spells can't cross through the entrance into or out of the extradimensional space, but those inside can see out of it as if through a 3-foot-by-5-foot window centered on the rope. Anything inside the extradimensional space drops out when the spell ends.

Suldae Westwind: (i fucking love this spell)

Strahd von Zarovich:

INITIATIVE
Strahd von Zarovich

Initiative: 10

INITIATIVE
Beucephalus

Initiative: 3

Vorgansharax the Black: "SHOEMAKER.... I RECALL THE TASTE OF YOUR WIFE!" Vorgansharax the Black unleashes a roar of laughter, wheeling beneath the clouds to fly straight towards Marcus. He remains under the clouds, but he knows the general direction.

GM: (Vorgansharax closes the distance to 330 feet from Marcus)

Suldae Westwind: (well, shit)

With a blast of ethereal flame, an enormous black steed manifests in midair before Rictavio and Ezmerelda. Its eyes blaze like glowing coals, and a mane and tail of crimson flames billows from it. Its hooves smolder and blaze in the air. On its back is a pale nobleman with flowing black hair and burning, scarlet eyes. His cloak flutters on the night air, and as he and his steed step from the Ethereal plane, he extends a pale, spidery hand.

Strahd von Zarovich: "Be at peace, my friends," he says, and casts Sleep.

60

Higher Level Cast

13

Effect

90 ft

Sleep

Suldae Westwind:

COUNTERCHARM

Class: Bard

At 6th level, you gain the ability to use musical notes or words of power to disrupt mind-influencing effects. As an action, you can start a performance that lasts until the end of your next turn. During that time, you and any friendly creatures within 30 feet of you have advantage on saving throws against being frightened or charmed. A creature must be able to hear you to gain this benefit. The performance ends early if you are incapacitated or silenced or if you voluntarily end it (no action required).

shit no

Henry of Willowsbrook: (that's a low roll on sleep)

Suldae Westwind: nm

Strahd von Zarovich: 15

Suldae Westwind: none of this works on sleep anyway

Rictavio and Ezmerelda both fall unconscious in midair, still slowly tumbling toward the ground.

Strahd von Zarovich: "Ireena! If you come to me now, I will not kill your friends. If you do not come to me, I shall kill a friend for every moment you resist me!"

"THE CHOICE IS YOURS, MY DEAR!"

Hiere Unthere: (Hiere will intervene if they try to attack - no reaction/action needed for Portent)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I take it Ismark and Henry are not in earshot for strahd?

Suldae Westwind: (not in range for sleep at least lol)

Strahd's booming voice fills the sky, audible even from the ground. The Nightmare lunges forward, straight for the falling Rictavio, and in the moment before it would trample him, it steps right out of the material plane.

Strahd and the Nightmare have vanished, but they are still nearby!

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: (Ezmerelda is unconscious, her turn passes)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae, charging down, is staring at Ireena, mentally imploring her to fight back!

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena, in bird form, flies wild circles around the group. She does not know what to do.

Suldae Westwind: (hybrid, right?)

(she was casting and all)

GM: (Hybrid form, sorry)

Ireena Kolyana:

Mirror Image

Illusion 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V, S

Duration: 1 minute

Three illusory duplicates of yourself appear in your space. Until the spell ends, the duplicates move with you and mimic your actions, shifting position so it's impossible to track which image is real. You can use your action to dismiss the illusory duplicates. Each time a creature targets you with an attack during the spell's duration, roll a d20 to determine whether the attack instead targets one of your duplicates. If you have three duplicates, you must roll a 6 or higher to change the attack's target to a duplicate. With two duplicates, you must roll an 8 or higher. With one duplicate, you must roll an 11 or higher. A duplicate's AC equals 10 + your Dexterity modifier. If an attack hits a duplicate, the duplicate is destroyed. A duplicate can be destroyed only by an attack that hits it. It ignores all other damage and effects. The spell ends when all three duplicates are destroyed. A creature is unaffected by this spell if it can't see, if it relies on senses other than sight, such as blindsight, or if it can perceive illusions as false, as with truesight.

Ireena Kolyana waves her hands, and her feathered form multiplies! Then she dives for Rictavio and Ezmerelda, and snatches at them both, attempting to shove them into the rope trick.

Ireena Kolyana:

15

ATHLETICS (0)

14

ATHLETICS (0)

Ireena Kolyana manages it -- just barely!

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "CAN BACK HERE SO I CAN DECK YOU YOU GIANT FUCKSTICK OF A TWATY NOBLE" Henry yells

He moves to be where he thinks his friends and Ric would land and takes a potion of healing

Suldae Westwind: (we had those???)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I got 3

well 2 now

rolling 2d4

(1 + 3)

= 4

rolling 2d4

(2 + 3)

= 5

Hiere Unthere: (Ric and Ez are in the rope trick)

Henry of Willowsbrook: 6 hp for Henry I guess

Suldae Westwind: (NICE)

(rip)

GM: (EoT? Anything you want to cast?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT (I would cast magic weapon but i burned my 2lvlslots already)+

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (did we decide anything about bard spellcasting in hybrid form?)

GM: (I have no problem with it, but role-play me some musical caws)

(No lips, no Ocarina -- you could use your guitar though)

(Unless you have lips under the beak... Which would be terrifying)

(Kinda can't stop picturing that now)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah i have the guitar on me after we fled from the tower)

(lmao)

(thanks fo the mental image)

Hiere Unthere: (>raven queen)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is uncertain of what to do as she flies back down to the space where Ireena is making her stand. She's happy that she's fighting back now, but... What can she do? After a second's hesitation, a decision is made. With one hand, Suldae flips over the guitar hanging on her back to her front, with the other she touches her holy symbol as she whispers a prayer for Ireena's wellbeing. She is not a powerful fighter, herself, this is Ireena's fight!

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind:

6

Higher Level Cast

9

Healing

60 feet

Healing Word
Suldae Westwind

Hiere Unthere: (ouch)

Suldae Westwind: (holy SHIT)

COUNTERCHARM

Class: Bard

At 6th level, you gain the ability to use musical notes or words of power to disrupt mind-influencing effects. As an action, you can start a performance that lasts until the end of your next turn. During that time, you and any friendly creatures within 30 feet of you have advantage on saving throws against being frightened or charmed. A creature must be able to hear you to gain this benefit. The performance ends early if you are incapacitated or silenced or if you voluntarily end it (no action required).

The prayer feels like it is ripped by the wind, yet some of it still reaches the destination! Suldae breathes in and out as her hands start moving across the guitar strings.

Music fills the air, disrupting the effect of Strahd's presence.

(Suldae would attack herself, but he vanished...)

GM: (EoT?)

Suldae Westwind: EoT

GM: (Marcus, you'

(You're up!)

Hiere Unthere: re up)

Marcus Veranius smirks, not quite sure what Vorgansharax is mumbling about. Whomever he's referring to just seems to be lost in the wind

Marcus Veranius: "Strahd's not coming to save you. Beg for mercy, and I might forgive you."

He flies back 100 ft and prepares more arrows.

14 + 1

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

9

Piercing

18 + 4

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

15

Piercing

10

Piercing

13 + 2

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

11

Piercing

11

Piercing

GM: (1st and 3rd are misses)

Marcus Veranius: [25 Magical Piercing Damage]

Vorgansharax the Black: "STRAHD, THIS PUNY BEING INSULTS YOUR POWER! HE DARES TO STRIKE AT ME!"

Suldae Westwind: (im laughing so hard)

Strahd von Zarovich: A faint chuckle can be heard on the breeze.

GM: (EoT? Additional RP?)

Marcus Veranius: "What makes you think Strahd cares for you more than his girlfriend?"

"In fact, what makes you think Strahd cares about you at all?"

"He sent you here as a sacrifice, and no longer needs your services."

Hiere Unthere: "he's a bit clingy" Hiere explains to the two unconscious people next to him.

Marcus Veranius: [EoT]

Suldae Westwind: (Hiere how tf can you hear what htey are saying up in the clouds)
(i guess its future visionnnnn)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Divination)

Hiere Unthere: (hes a screaming dragon right)

Marcus Veranius: (Hiere stole the script)

Hiere Unthere: (they're pretty loud)

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Dammit, they're too far away! I've got nothing!"
"Wait, maybe I have something!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Welcome to the club"

Ismark Kolyanovich:

Spider Climb

Transmutation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: One willing creature you touch

Components: V, S, M (A drop of bitumen and a spider)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

Until the spell ends, one willing creature you touch gains the ability to move up, down, and across vertical surfaces and upside down along ceilings, while leaving its hands free. The target also gains a climbing speed equal to its walking speed.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh"

Suldae Westwind: is... is there a surface

Ismark Kolyanovich walks right up the nearest pine tree.

It's very visually disturbing.

Suldae Westwind: omg

GM: (Hiere, you're up!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Magic is so wierd"

Hiere Unthere: (are suldae/Ireena in range?)

GM: (They're both pretty close to you, although you're in the rope trick)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ireenas in the rope trick with you I think)

GM: (Ireena hasn't ducked inside, she just pushed the other two in there)

Hiere Unthere: (ok nvm all my buffs are conc)

Hiere watches from his peephole, looking around for fates to twist. Its pretty chill in there.

[EoT}

Henry of Willowsbrook: (you could slap the other 2 awake)

Hiere Unthere: (oh right, can I do that GM?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'm assuming Hiere know how the Sleep spell works)

Hiere Unthere: (who can even tell nowadays)

Suldae Westwind: (its regular sleep, lasts max a minute or until an action is expended to wake them up)

Hiere Unthere: (yo GM)

Suldae Westwind: (you def can one of them)

GM: (I'd let you wake both of them)

Hiere Unthere: (I'm just asking cut I declared EoT)

(ooh)

GM: (As long as you do something really annoying to do it)

Suldae Westwind: (i love this group)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere pulls out his rations and waterskin, opening the cap to take a swig. "Its just getting good I should've brought my corn-heated-till-the-kernels-make-a-pop-sound" when he drops his waterskin, spilling said drink over the other two. "FUCK"

Outside, a waterskin appears to drop into existence out of nowhere,

.*

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "What the--!"

Rictavio: "What?! What happened? How long was I out!"

"Don't be concerned, it's just the narcolepsy. Got it from a biting sleepwalker on a bad hunt."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "What?"

Hiere Unthere: "that was totally on purpose guys don't worry about it"

Vorgansharax the Black: "I'M COMING FOR YOU, MARCUS! I WILL EAT YOU AS I ATE THE REST OF YOUR FAMILY! I WONDER IF YOUR FLESH SHALL BE AS SWEET AS THEIRS WAS."

Suldae Westwind: (fucking rip)

(thanks raven queen)

Vorgansharax the Black closes the distance to 250 feet, still beneath the banks of rolling cloud.

Strahd von Zarovich: "Ah, Marcus. I'm afraid I cannot let you take such a useful servant from me."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "ARE ALL DRAGONS THIS FUCKIN WHINY OR IS THAT YOUR SHTICK" Henry yells up rubbing his ears from the constant booming

As the voice of Strahd says this, he and the Nightmare manifest mere feet from Marcus in the air.

Strahd von Zarovich:

MULTIATTACK (VAMPIRE FORM ONLY)

Strahd von Zarovich

Strahd makes two attacks, only one of which can be a bite attack.

UNARMED STRIKE (VAMPIRE FORM ONLY)

Strahd von Zarovich

Attack: 17

If the target is a creature, Strahd can grapple it (escape DC 18) instead of dealing the bludgeoning damage.

Damage: 11 bludgeoning + 12 necrotic

UNARMED STRIKE (VAMPIRE FORM ONLY)

Strahd von Zarovich

Attack: 18

If the target is a creature, Strahd can grapple it (escape DC 18) instead of dealing the bludgeoning damage.

Damage: 9 bludgeoning + 17 necrotic

Suldae Westwind: (im assuming Suldae can hear this just so she can do a thumbs up)

GM: (Hiere, did you want to use that portent?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: +2 Ac from Haste don't forget

Marcus Veranius: (Miss, Miss)

Suldae Westwind: (this is beautiful)

Hiere Unthere: (lmao didn't even need to)

Strahd von Zarovich: "Come now, don't writhe so! When I catch you I shall pluck your feathers and make myself a cloak."

Beucephalus:

HOOVES
Beucephalus

Attack: 18 | 17

Damage: 12 bludgeoning +
10 fire

The Nightmare's hooves thrash the air like meteors, missing Marcus by inches.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Look, Hierie, much as I like you, I don't think this rope trick will stand the test of Strahd. He saw us disappear into it. We've got to get to the ground somehow."

"That being said... Bye."

Ezmerelda leaps through the mouth of the rope trick, transforming into hybrid form in midair. She flies straight down at maximum speed.

Suldae Westwind: (wow, nasty lol)

Ireena Kolyana:

5

WISDOM (2)

"STRAHD! YOU WANTED ME? COME AND CATCH ME!"

Ireena transforms into human form, and immediately begins to plummet towards the earth. Her mirror images dance around her, obscuring her exact position.

Suldae Westwind: (holy shit)

(that wis roll is, like, mood)

Ireena Kolyana: In midair, Ireena points a finger at Henry far below, sending a Message. "Henry, Strahd incoming. Get below me!"

Marcus Veranius: "Tatyana's falling again, Strahd. How many times will you cause her death?"

Marcus Veranius smirks at the count

Suldae Westwind: (N A S T Y)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Where'd my turn go?)

Rictavio: "Well, bugger me. I can't fly. What do you think, Fortuneteller? Are we safe here?"

GM: (Whoops! Not sure how I did that. You're up! You were after Ireena)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (You could do Rics now while I type my GM fiat reliant plan up in discord)

Hierie Unthere: "the fates say fuck you how would I even know that"

Rictavio: "Don't you have some... I don't know, cards to draw? Dice to roll?"

"Fine, I'll do it myself."

Rictavio pulls out a sack of dragon knuckle bones and casts them across the ground.

Augury
Divination 2 (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Self

Components: V, S, M (Specially marked sticks, bones, or similar tokens worth at least 25gp)

Duration: Instantaneous

By casting gem-inlaid sticks, rolling dragon bones, laying out ornate cards, or employing some other divining tool, you receive an omen from an otherworldly entity about the results of a specific course of action that you plan to take within the next 30 minutes. The DM chooses from the following possible omens.

- Weal, for good results
- Woe, for bad results
- Weal and woe, for both good and bad results
- Nothing, for results that aren't especially good or bad

The spell doesn't take into account any possible circumstances that might change the outcome, such as the casting of additional spells or the loss or gain of a companion.

If you cast the spell two or more times before completing your next long rest, there is a cumulative 25 percent chance for each casting after the first that you get a random reading. The DM makes this roll in secret.

"Weal and Woe. Well, that's bloody helpful."

Hiere Unthere: (that's a 10 round spell my dude)

GM: (Shhhhhh)

Rictavio:

(<https://media.giphy.com/media/3owzVUJEymbhNL7ji0/giphy.gif>)

Suldae Westwind: (looks up and whistles unwilling to bring up mending)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (rules=guidelines really)

GM: (Plus it's effing stupid that it would take an experienced card/bone reader 10 minutes to do a reading)

Suldae Westwind: 1 minutes

but not 6 seconds

(im sorry im shutting uP)

GM: (Hmmm... That's slightly more realistic)

(But feck it)

Marcus Veranius: (Maybe it takes less time if you use fresh dragon bone. I can get you some)

GM: (Lol!)

Strahd von Zarovich: "TATYANA!"

Strahd's voice booms with a note of true desperation. The pain of his past blinds him with madness.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry hears Ireenas voice in his mind and begins to move. He hates this. Being powerless and unable to help while his friends fight for their lives. "No" he murmurs anger at his inability to help nearly blinding him "no more". He plunges his sword into the ground and begins to reach out "You chose me because you belived I could do something but I accepted because I know I alone cannot" He breathes deeply finding his courage. "Please give me your Strength so I May Fight FOR THOSE THAT CAN NOT" Henry yells "please Oh Spirits that Guide me allow me to STirke down this Devil"

The earth moans. The ground begins to shift around Henry. Nature has heard his call.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "STRAHD YOR END IS NEIGH PREPARE YOURSELF FOR OBLIVION!" Henry roars guiding nature with but One thought 'Up'

The earth breaks beneath Henry. Masses of roots from all the nearby trees spike upwards, thrusting him into the sky. Within seconds, he is above the nearest trees, his cloak fluttering in the wind of his passage. He rockets skyward, directly beneath the falling Ireena, who bursts through the cloud layer and twists towards him as he rises. She has not fallen far -- but she has fallen far enough for Strahd to lose sight of her.

Ireena Kolyana: "Woah," says Ireena, a moment before she lands in Henry's massive arms.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'll just mark of my Channel Divinty for that if thats ok)

GM: (Works for me)

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae feels the echo of Henry's prayer and shivers from the power. She knows in her heart, now, Ireena is safe. As safe as she can be.

She looks up, now.

Suldae Westwind: (one sec)

Now that Ireena isn't in the range of his sweet talking, Suldae takes her hands off the guitar. Instead, she puts both her hands on the holy symbol. Her eyes are on the horse!

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind:

14

120 feet

Guiding Bolt (+6)
Suldae Westwind

15

Higher Level Cast

17

Radiant

(im gonna use my inspiration on this)

GM: (If you take Hiere's 11 Portent, that's a hit)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Suldae is still blessed)

Suldae Westwind: (i am?)

GM: Inspiration or Bless would also bring it close

Suldae Westwind: (thats what i get for not keeping my eye on the token)

(i said inspiration and im doing inspiration fuck it)

rolling d20

(18)

= 18

GM: (Definite hit!)

Suldae Westwind: (oh THERE we go)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Yep so are Hiere and Ezme for eh 24 to 18 more seconds)

Suldae Westwind: A flash of light streaks towards the hellbeast.

The last verse of the whispered prayer pulses with power, and Suldae feels herself washed in restorative energy.

8

Higher Level Cast

9

Healing

60 feet

Healing Word
Suldae Westwind

The Guiding Bolt strikes with a splash of golden nebulas, and the heart of the Nightmare glows within its coal-black chest, marking it as an easy target.

Suldae Westwind: EoT

The Nightmare screams in pain!

GM: (Marcus, you're up!)

Marcus Veranius is lowkey freaking out, but as long as he wears a smug grin and makes cutting remarks, no one will call him out on it

Suldae Westwind: (mood)

(whats his cha again)

Marcus Veranius: He ignores Strahd, rather certain on who he'll choose to save. Love is the bane of all creatures.

29 + 2

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

10

Piercing

31 + 3

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

12

Piercing

9

Piercing

32 + 3

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius

14 + 8

Piercing

7 + 7

Piercing

GM: (OH JEEZ)

Suldae Westwind: (rip in many many pieces huh)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Hell yeah fuck him up)

Suldae Westwind: (metaphorically)

(coz piercing damage lol)

Marcus Veranius: (74 Magical Piercing)

Suldae Westwind: (rip in porcupine)

Marcus Veranius: ...

GM:

(<https://media0.giphy.com/media/oPy20jS0OqLVC/giphy.gif>)

Marcus Veranius: It was then that Marcus noticed the strangest thing.

Right on Vorgansharax's chest, where an invincible armored hide protected most of his body, was a missing scale. Right above its heart.

Suldae Westwind: (HAHAHHAAAAHAHAHA)

GM: (LMAO)

(He's not dead, just so you know)

Marcus Veranius: (I'm throwing this in now while I have a crit)

GM: (It works for me -- I'm always down for a Tolkien tribute)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus's trophy scale came from SOMEWHERE)

[EoT]

Ismark Kolyanovich: "What the fuck, Henry!?"

Suldae Westwind: (it probably scratched his heart but wasnt enough to kill him altogether)

(coz huge)

Marcus Veranius: (There's a lot of heart that needs to be smashed through)

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark races up his tree, and soon reaches the peak. From here, he is just barely within range of the battle.

GM: (Hiere is up...)

(We'll hold his turn for him)

Suldae Westwind: (exactly re: a lot of heart)

Vorgansharax the Black: "I'M COMING FOR YOU, MARCUS!"

Vorgansharax the Black closes the distance to 70 feet, his maw brimming with emerald flame.

Vorgansharax the Black:

FRIGHTFUL PRESENCE

Ancient Black Dragon

Each creature of the dragon's choice that is within 120 feet of the dragon and aware of it must succeed on a DC 19 Wisdom saving throw or become frightened for 1 minute. A creature can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success. If a creature's saving throw is successful or the effect ends for it, the creature is immune to the dragon's Frightful Presence for the next 24 hours.

Marcus Veranius: (Uh oh)

GM: (Marcus is the only one within range of it)

Marcus Veranius:

8 + 3

WISDOM SAVE (2)

Marcus Veranius

(I would like to use Inspiration)

Suldae Westwind: (maybe you should have been flying around ot maintain distance lol)

Marcus Veranius:

22 + 1

WISDOM SAVE (2)

Marcus Veranius

GM: (Booyah)

Suldae Westwind: (LMAO I THINK THAT WORKS)

GM: (That deserves some RP I think)

(This cat is purring soooo loud)

Marcus Veranius has seen this show before. He's not afraid anymore. Years of being burned, scarred, melted beyond recognition.

Marcus Veranius: That molten mouth was not a symbol of fear, but a beacon of hope.

The clouds no longer hid Vorgansharax

GM: (Ooooooooooooooh)

Strahd von Zarovich: "Deal with this peasant!" Strahd roars, leaping from Vorgansharax in a swirl of black cloak. In midair he bursts into a figure of mist, which darts towards the "falling" Ireena with incredible speed.

"WHAT THE?!"

Suldae Westwind: leaping from what?

he was on beucephallus

GM: (From Beucephalis, sorry)

Marcus Veranius: (Strahd's little pony)

Suldae Westwind: (i spelled it that way on purpose btw)

Strahd is visibly shaken by the display of nature's power -- and by the fact that it has so clearly chosen a side.

Strahd von Zarovich: "GIVE HER TO ME!" Strahd roars.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "GO FUCK A RAKE"

Strahd von Zarovich:

Command

Enchantment 5

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range

Components: V

Duration: 1 round

You speak a one-word command to a creature you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or follow the command on its next turn. The spell has no effect if the target is undead, if it doesn't understand your language, or if your command is directly harmful to it. Some typical commands and their effects follow. You might issue a command other than one described here. If you do so, the GM determines how the target behaves. If the target can't follow your command, the spell ends. Approach. The target moves toward you by the shortest and most direct route, ending its turn if it moves within 5 feet of you. Drop. The target drops whatever it is holding and then ends its turn. Flee. The target spends its turn moving away from you by the fastest available means. Grovel. The target falls prone and then ends its turn. Halt. The target doesn't move and takes no actions.

A flying creature stays aloft, provided that it is able to do so. If it must move to stay aloft, it flies the minimum distance needed to remain in the air.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can affect one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

WISDOM SAVE (6)
Henry of Willowsbrook

26

WISDOM SAVE (6)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(I was going to use my Inspiration anyway if I rolled low"

GM: (I think you still had Inspiration too if you want to use it to take that sweet sweet nat 20)
(Lol)

Henry of Willowsbrook: ye

Strahd von Zarovich: Disturbed by the power of Henry's will, Strahd remains at a slight distance, still in the form of a billowing figure of mist.

Beucephalus:

HOOVES
Beucephalus

Attack: 20 | 17

Damage: 17 bludgeoning + 6 fire

Beucephalus's flailing hooves strike with supernatural accuracy, clipping Marcus with a flaming blow!

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I REITERATE GO FUCK YOURSELF"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir flies straight to Henry and alights beside him in hybrid form, her hands already filling with lightning.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "BEGONE, DEMON!"

DC14

Half damage

Dexterity Save

1

Higher Level Cast

31*LightningSelfLightning Bolt*Strahd von Zarovich:*DEXTERITY
*Strahd von ZarovichAbility: 14 | 19

"Agh!" Strahd hisses, as the blast of lightning rips through his misty form. He manages to avoid most of the damage.

Ireena Kolyana: "I'll never come with you, Strahd! Fly back to your castle and pout! My friends and I will resist you to the last breath! Fly back home and cry in your crypt, because we're coming for you!"

You create three glowing darts of magical force. Each dart hits a creature of your choice that you can see within range. A dart deals 1d4 + 1 force damage to its target. The darts all strike simultaneously, and you can direct them to hit one creature or several.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the spell creates one more dart for each slot above 1st.

3*Force120 feetMagic Missile

GM: (For some reason that spell never casts right)

(Rolling appropriate dice for a 3rd level casting: 15)

(Henry, you're up!)

(Unless Hiere has caught up yet)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (How close is Strahd and could I root surf into 5ft of him)

GM: (He's about 15 feet away but you could easily root surf towards him)

Suldae Westwind: (aaah its so great to see Ireena have some confidence)

GM: (brb, gimme a few minutes -- go ahead and play Henry and Hiere's turns)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere continues his intermission, taking some time out of his day to promote Not Dying Instantly.

Mage Armor*Abjuration 1Casting Time: 1 actionRange: Touch

Target: A willing creature who isn't wearing armor

Components: V, S, M (A piece of cured leather)

Duration: 8 hours

You touch a willing creature who isn't wearing armor, and a protective magical force surrounds it until the spell ends. The target's base AC becomes 13 + its Dexterity modifier. The spell ends if the target dons armor or if you dismiss the spell as an action.

Suldae Westwind: touch range? who are you casting it on?

Hiere Unthere: me

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

Hiere Unthere: (EoT)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "STRAHD" Henry roars golden and emerald light surrounding his body as he directs the roots under his feet to take him to the bastard "Oh how I have longed for this" He growls raising his sword (Does guiding bolt give advantage on only the first attack?)

Suldae Westwind: (its on the horse)

(the horse is up there)

(sorry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh ok)

(was gonna use fighting spirit anyway)

25

26

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

7

Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite

9

Slashing

24

15

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

13

Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite

14

Slashing

GM: (Two hits!)

Suldae Westwind: (GOOD SHIT)

Henry of Willowsbrook: 20 radiant and 23 shlaing with a silvered sword

Strahd von Zarovich: "Aargh!" says Strahd, as the blade cleaves his misty form.

"A worthy blow!"

Henry of Willowsbrook:

SHIELD MASTER

Feat: Human Bonus Feat

If you take the Attack action on your turn, you can use a bonus action to try to shove a creature within 5 feet of you with your shield.

If you aren't incapacitated, you can add your shield's AC bonus to any Dexterity saving throw you make against a spell or other harmful effect that targets only you.

If you are subjected to an effect that allows you to make a Dexterity saving throw to take only half damage, you can use your reaction to take no damage if you succeed on the saving throw, interposing your shield between yourself and the source of the effect.

21

15

Shield Shove (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

10*Radiant Smite Damage/Undead SmiteStrahd von Zarovich:*STRENGTH
*Strahd von ZarovichAbility: 11*Henry of Willowsbrook: that does not to damageGM: Lol

Henry's shield blitzes with light as he shoves it towards Strahd, and the billowing mist is thrust backwards.

Strahd von Zarovich: "You will be a worthy thrall..."Henry of Willowsbrook: (can i knock the mist prone?)GM: ('Fraid not)Henry of Willowsbrook: (d'aw) "You suffer from truly deep seated dilusions if that is what you believe will happen" Henry snarls EoTRictavio: "Well, Fortuneteller. What should we do? Do we jump for it? I still feel a bit of a spring in my step from the spell the girl cast."Hiere Unthere: "if that means you'll be farther away from me then by all means"Rictavio: Rictavio chuckles. "In that case, see you on the other side, my friend."

Rictavio throws himself out of the rope trick and begins to slowly fall towards the earth below.

Death Ward*Abjuration 4Casting Time: 1 actionRange: TouchComponents: V, SDuration: 8 hours

You touch a creature and grant it a measure of protection from death. The first time the target would drop to 0 hit points as a result of taking damage, the target instead drops to 1 hit point, and the spell ends. If the spell is still in effect when the target is subjected to an effect that would kill it instantaneously without dealing damage, that effect is instead negated against the target, and the spells ends.

In midair, he casts Death Ward upon himself.

...Just in case.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: (here!)

(sorry, mom was talking to me)

GM: (No worries!)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae amps up the pressure. She can only do so much before her strength flags, but she will do all she can!

Suldae Westwind is casting a spell, please stand by...

Suldae Westwind:

14

120 feet

Guiding Bolt (+6)
Suldae Westwind

22

Higher Level Cast

4

Radiant

GM: (Oh damn)

That hits the Nightmare, if that's what you're aiming for

Suldae Westwind: aye

Beucephalus: The demon horse whinnies in pain as the radiant power blasts over its form!

Suldae Westwind: EoT

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus considers his situation, then grins maliciously. He makes an attack (via haste)

12 + 1

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

15

Piercing

24

Piercing

rolling 1d20+7+1d4

(8)+7+(3)

= 18

(No dice)

He readies another arrow towards the dragon, then ducks behind Strahd's horse.

"Time for a bath! I warn you, it won't be pleasant."

Marcus Veranius: [EoT, Marcus will fire another arrow at Vorgansharax after his breath weapon goes off]

Ismark Kolyanovich: "GET AWAY FROM MY SISTER, YOU EVIL CREEP!"

Ismark, standing horizontally on the tree, raises a hand. Three spears of Eldritch flame beam from his palm, racing towards Strahd!

Eldritch Blast

Evocation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 300 feet

Target: A creature within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

A beam of crackling energy streaks toward a creature within range. Make a ranged spell attack against the target. On a hit, the target takes 1d10 force damage. (Plus Charisma modifier due to an Invocation) The spell creates more than one beam when you reach higher levels: two beams at 5th level, three beams at 11th level, and four beams at 17th level. You can direct the beams at the same target or at different ones. Make a separate attack roll for each beam. (

10 & 25 to hit, 10 & 7 on a hit

The first beam streaks past, missing Strahd by a foot. The second strikes him square between his misty eyebrows, blitzing out in a nimbus of crimson flame.

GM: (Hiere, you're up)

Hiere Unthere: (>Three spears)

GM: (He's not level 11 yet)

(My bad)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere Minor Illusion's some chill beats. Rictavio was no longer around. Life was good. (EoT)

GM: (Lol seriously)

Suldae Westwind: (Hiere has the best way to be useless)

Hiere Unthere: (if hiere gets hit then Marcus is screwed so he's playing it safe)

Suldae Westwind: (just chilling)
(its great)

(the useful way of being useless)

Marcus Veranius: (Hiere is the only reason Dragon Fight is even happening. He's not useless in the slightest)

Vorgansharax the Black rises through the clouds, his maw brimming with acid. Within seconds, he has closed the distance almost completely. He unleashes his blast of acid right as he bursts through the clouds. (Vorgansharax and Marcus must both pass a DC 22 Dex save to avoid taking 68 acid damage (half on success))

Beucephalus:

DEXTERITY
Beucephalus

Ability: 20 | 16

Marcus Veranius:

15 + 1

DEXTERITY SAVE (10)
Marcus Veranius

Absorb Elements

Abjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 Reaction

Range: Self

Components: S

Duration: 1 Round

Cast when you take when you take acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder damage.

The spell captures some of the incoming energy, lessening its effect on you and storing it for your next melee attack. You have resistance to the triggering damage type until the start of your next turn. Also, the first time you hit with a melee attack on your next turn, the target takes an extra 1d6 damage of the triggering type, and the spell ends.

Hiere Unthere: (cover gives Adv on dex?)

Suldae Westwind: (yeah hes not useless but hes ACTING useless its distinct concepts)

Hiere Unthere: (nvm it don't)

With a scream of horrendous agony, Beucephalus the demon horse is destroyed by a stream of scalding acid. Black flesh melts away, black bones dissolve, and the crumbling creature tumbles in a dozen disparate parts, all steaming.

Strahd von Zarovich: "NO!"

Suldae Westwind: (BEAUTIFUL)

Marcus Veranius holds out a circle of magic, absorbing most of the damage with a smug grin.
He fires his shot; Strahd loses both his mounts in one fell swoop!

Marcus Veranius:

11 + 3 | 8 + 3

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

10

Piercing

20

Piercing

(Fuck)

Hiere Unthere: (you used your reaction already)

Marcus Veranius: (Shit, ur rite)

(...)

(Marcus just... doesn't fire the shot then?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Held action is different from reaction no?)

Hiere Unthere: (readied actions require your reaction to trigger)

GM: (So the absorb elements grants you resistance, but you still take 34 points of acid damage right)

Marcus Veranius: (Yeah, held action is reaction so no shot)

GM: (Have you already subtracted that, I didn't see your HP before)

Marcus Veranius: (Yee, Marcus is now at 28 HP and no reaction)

(He was at 62)

GM: (Gotcha)

Strahd von Zarovich: "VORGANSHARAX, YOU TWIT!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Yes" Henry says hearing Strahd, he wasn't sure what happend but Strahd could go suck it

(thats supposed to be after the no)

Strahd von Zarovich:

BITE

Ancient Black Dragon

Attack: 35

Damage: 24 + 13 piercing
+ 11 + 9 acid

Vorgansharax's speed does not abate, and within a few seconds he is within 5 feet of Marcus!

GM: (Moving up 65 feet)

Marcus Veranius: The bite means nothing, but the acid burns deep. Marcus is on his last legs, but so must the dragon.

GM: (Wait wait, he wasn't supposed to bite -- that's a misclick)

(He can't do a bite attack and a breath attack in the same turn except as a legendary)

(And his attacks count as magical, btw -- so it would suck to be bitten)

Marcus Veranius: (Oh)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (if Marcus is at 28 hp that 37 piercing and 10 acid would have knocked his ass out)

Marcus Veranius: (In that case, Marcus is about to die)

Suldae Westwind: (he didnt bite)

Strahd von Zarovich: "This ends here. If I cannot have you alive, I shall take you dead!"

Strahd raises a swirling hand of mist. Power sparkles through the cloud.

DC18

Half damage

Dexterity Save

21

Higher Level Cast

33

Fire

150 ft

Fireball

GM: (Ireena, Henry, Ezmerelda, and Ismark must all pass a DC 18 Dex save)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

3

4

DEXTERITY SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: (WELP)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I forgot I had advantage on sorry

Ireena Kolyana:

Counterspell
Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature in the process of casting a spell

Components: S

Duration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

18

INTELLIGENCE (1)

GM: (Sadly, not quite enough)

Hiere Unthere:

Counterspell

Abjuration 3

Casting Time: 1 reaction, which you take when you see a creature within 60 feet of you casting a spell

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature in the process of casting a spell

Components: S

Duration: Instantaneous

You attempt to interrupt a creature in the process of casting a spell. If the creature is casting a spell of 3rd level or lower, its spell fails and has no effect. If it is casting a spell of 4th level or higher, make an ability check using your spellcasting ability. The DC equals 10 + the spell's level. On a success, the creature's spell fails and has no effect. At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the interrupted spell has no effect if its level is less than or equal to the level of the spell slot you used.

GM: (Hiere is not within 60 feet)

Hiere Unthere: (aw)

Henry of Willowsbrook: What level did srahd cast that at 9?

GM: (Yup)

Henry of Willowsbrook: dick

GM: (He tries)

Ireena Kolyana:

5

DEXTERITY SAVE (1)

Suldae Westwind: w

oh boi

Ismark Kolyanovich:

9

DEXTERITY SAVE (3)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DEXTERITY
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ability: 8

Henry of Willowsbrook: (well my +2 to saves in 10 ft does nothing

Ireena and Henry stand alone amid the fading flames. Ireena does not understand, at first, why she is still standing -- then she remembers. Rictavio's Death Ward has saved her life.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (54 damage right?

GM: (Si. I already subtracted it from you)

(You have 17 HP remaining)

Henry of Willowsbrook: I had 5 temp hp from fighting spirit I think

Ezmerelda falls unconscious, her body blasted and steaming.

Ismark plummets out of the tree, striking the earth with a dull finality.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Im at 22)

Strahd von Zarovich: "You have already spent the lives of two companions, my dear! Will you spend the life of this brave warrior, too?"

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

(and bless is gone

Strahd von Zarovich: "Come with me, if you wish to spare your friends."

Ireena Kolyana:

6

WISDOM SAVE (2)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is visible in the sky streaking towards Ireena as she sees this Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks at Henry.

"Tell Suldae... I'm sorry."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I knock her ass out if she goes past me)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: 4 Death Saving Throw

Ireena Kolyana disengages, and leaps into the mist.

GM: (Henry, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: reaction?

Henry of Willowsbrook: "GET YOUR ASS BACK HERE" Henry yells pain searing him

(Disengage as an action stops me from opportunity attacks)

Suldae Westwind: (got it)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

FIGHTING SPIRIT

Class: Fighter 3 Samurai

Starting at 3rd level, as a bonus action on your turn, you can give yourself advantage on weapon attack rolls until the end of the current turn. When you do so, you also gain 5 temporary hit points. The number of temporary hit points increases when you reach certain levels in this class, increasing to 10 at 10th level and 15 at 15th level. You can use this feature three times, and you regain all expended uses of it when you finish a long rest.

GM: (A grapple check could save her -- but it would be contested by Strahd)

(There are probably other things you could do that would save her)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Strahds getting tow attacks

18

16

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15

Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite

15

1920*Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook17Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite9Slashing24*26*Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook19Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite10SlashingGM: (Both solid hits!)Henry of Willowsbrook: 32 radiant 24 slashing18*21*Shield Shove (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Make a Strength (Athletics) check contested by the target's Strength (Athletics) or Dexterity (Acrobatics) check (the target chooses the ability to use). If you win the contest, you either knock the target prone or push it 5 feet away from you.

>A prone creature's only Movement option is to crawl, unless it stands up and thereby ends the condition.

>The creature has disadvantage on Attack rolls.

>An Attack roll against the creature has advantage if the attacker is within 5 feet of the creature. Otherwise, the Attack roll has disadvantage.

17*Radiant Smite Damage/Undead Smite*

Ireena is getting punted back

GM: (So you're moving past her to attack Strahd, and punting her back towards the center of the tree thingy -- right?)

(That works)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Yeah

Ireena Kolyana:

1

ATHLETICS (0)

GM: (Lmao)

Hiere Unthere: (gg)

Henry's shield strikes Ireena, tumbling her head over heels and rolling her right back to the middle of the rising roots.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Tell are whatever it is you want you damn idiot" Henry yells at her while willing the roots to envealope her and the others

The roots close over Ireena and the others, sealing them within.

Suldae Westwind: (for once ireena's shit rolls come in handy)

GM: (Right!?)

(If she were a player in a physical game I would take the dice from her and give her a different set)

(Shit's bananas)

Suldae Westwind: (ikr(

Ireena Kolyana: "I WANT YOU TO LIVE!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and again I say Go. Fuck. Yourself. Bitch." Henry says tone colder than possible for a man that just got roasted like a pig

EoT

Suldae Westwind: Suldae, who is flying up, cannot even tell who he's talking to

she sympathizes

a little

Rictavio: "Oh, gods... No..." Rictavio, falling above the forest, sees the scene laid out like a panorama.

"STRAHD!"

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 5

Damage: 6 piercing + 10
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 22

Damage: 2 piercing + 16
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW
Rictavio

Attack: 20 | 5

Damage: 2 piercing + 9
piercing

Rictavio loses two crossbow bolts which fall far short of the demon king of Barovia.

GM: (Suldae, you're up!)

Suldae Westwind: (i have a question about distance and gravity)

(Suldae is going as fast as she can in the direction of down)

(can i assume she can do that without taking up her action or taking falling damage at the bottom or do i need to make a check or)

GM: (You can assume she can do that without taking up her action or taking falling damage)

(You're part bird now, I think we're past all that)

(By this point you would have overtaken Rictavio, and you'd probably be within range of Strahd)

Suldae Westwind: (ah but can she reach the ground and land safely is the question)

GM: (Sure)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

GM: (You could make an acrobatics check, if you want to add some drama)

Suldae Westwind: (i would rather establish precedent for Suldae being able to do this, WE HAVE ENOUGH DRAMA)

(she is trained in acrobatics and has been training in bird)

(it makes sense!)

(we have VERY ENOUGH DRAMA)

GM: (Oh good)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shoots down from the sky and lands somewhat less than gently next to Ezmerelda. Her eyes are burning with anger, and she cannot bring herself to aim any of it at Ireena right now - she saw how close she came to death.

She touches Ezmerelda, hoping Ismark can somehow recover on his own but not sparing him more than half a thought - too busy.

Spare the Dying
Necromancy Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: A living creature that has 0 hit points

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

You touch a living creature that has 0 hit points. The creature becomes stable. This spell has no effect on undead or constructs.

She wheels around towards Henry as she stands up, and the holy power flares to the extent of her ability.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda's ragged breathing calms.

Suldae Westwind:

9

Higher Level Cast

9

Healing

60 feet

Healing Word
Suldae Westwind

She stares at Strahd, face stone calm, only eyes reflecting a little of what she feels inside.
EoT

Henry of Willowsbrook: (who was healed)

GM: (Who's the healing word for?)

Suldae Westwind: 'she wheels around towards Henry' was meant to indicate it
sorry

GM: (Oh derp that makes sense)

(Marcus, you're up! For all the beans, make this turn count)

Marcus Veranius could try to flee, and be clawed to pieces. Or he could use magic to flee, and be crushed in another hailstorm. Or he could stop running. Stay. Die, but die with a measure of pride.

Marcus Veranius: The deed was done. Strahd would not forgive Vorgansharax for the death of his horse, and so the dragon died today.

May Ezmerelda someday forgive this foolish charge into oblivion.

"Goodbye, my oldest friend. May we burn together in hell when all this is done."

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 9 + 1 & 16 + 1 \\ \hline 600 \end{array}$$

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

7

Piercing

22

Piercing

$$\begin{array}{c|c} 23 + 2 & 14 + 2 \end{array}$$

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

9*Piercing21Piercing*

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

11*Piercing6Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: (bless is gone btw)Marcus Veranius: (Oh)

(22, 23 to hit)

GM: (Both hits)Marcus Veranius: [59 Magical Piercing Damage]Suldae Westwind: (now action economy says you can disengage and haste away right)GM: (It's possible, I think)Marcus Veranius: (Is it within 100 ft?)GM: (Sure)

(I hate to do this, but BRB -- gotta eat real quick)

Marcus Veranius:

Zephyr Strike

*Transmutation 1Casting Time: 1 Bonus ActionRange: SelfComponents: VDuration: Concentration Up to 1 Minute

You move like the wind. Until the spell ends, your movement doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.

Once before the spell ends, you can give yourself advantage on one weapon attack roll on your turn. That attack deals an extra 1d8 force damage on a hit. Whether you hit or miss, your walking speed increases by 30 feet until the end of that turn.

15 + 2 | 15 + 2

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

9

Piercing

19

Piercing

Marcus Veranius botches a final attack and decides heroic stands are best left for the heroes. He flies into Hiere's rope trick, using magic to avoid a retaliation

Marcus Veranius: Shoemakers run when the running's good.

Hiere Unthere:

13

ARCANA (9)

Marcus Veranius crashes into the rope trick with a less than graceful landing, breathing deeply in exhaustion.

Marcus Veranius: "...ok, I softened it up a bit. Now how do we finish off a dragon?"

[EoT]

Hiere Unthere: Hiere sees that one dude with the bow start firing at the dragon. "Yeah he's not going to make it. Ugh. Time to relocate" He tugs on the fabric of the weave, shifting the rope trick like a tablecloth from under dinner. He pokes his head out for Marcus, pretending as though he was here all along. "Your next line is 'ok, I softened it up a bit. Now how do we finish off a dragon?'"

"Well that's easy isn't it. we Burn it"

DC 17

Dexterity Save

9

Fire

Higher Level Cast

33

Fire

150 feet

Fireball

"ok it might take a bit more Burn."

GM (GM):

DEXTERITY
Ancient Black Dragon

Ability: 17

Hiere Unthere: (rude)GM (GM): 21Vorgansharax the Black: "Oh, that tickles!"Marcus Veranius: "Do you have anything stronger than fire?"Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark's body begins to rot swiftly. Within a few seconds, only bones are left... Something spectral drifts away from the fallen corpse.Vorgansharax the Black: Assuming that Marcus has merely ducked into the clouds, Vorgansharax circles the area, his eyes hunting the cloud-tops. "Where are you, little shoemaker? I am not yet done with you!"

PERCEPTION
Ancient Black Dragon

Skill: 21

Vorgansharax senses the way the Weave moves around the rope trick. "Ah... So your companions have not abandoned you, then. That is good. This battle has made me hungry!"

"How long do you think you can hide in there, little shoemaker?"

Marcus Veranius: "Well, at least I get to die next to a fellow fan of hats."Hiere Unthere: Hierle tips his headpieceVorgansharax the Black: Vorgansharax hovers near the mouth of the rope trick, readying his action to attack the first limb, head, or other body part that emerges from it.Strahd von Zarovich: "Very well... I shall see you all soon enough. This isn't over."Strahd von Zarovich disengages and drifts skyward, quickly fading into the dense clouds.*Strahd von Zarovich:

STEALTH
Strahd von Zarovich

Skill: 16

Marcus Veranius:

28

21

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

(Should be normal, no advantage)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

9

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: (Since you're currently above the clouds, and he's still beneath them, I don't think there's a way Marcus could see him yet)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh come on)

Marcus Veranius: (Rippo)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir awakens painfully. She immediately begins to scream in pain. The burns which cover most of her body are horrendous.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

PERCEPTION
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 24

She sees the skulking Strahd.

"I CURSE THEE, STRAHD!"

CURSE (RECHARGES AFTER A LONG REST)
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ezmerelda targets one creature that she can see within 30 feet of her. The target must succeed on a DC 14 Wisdom saving throw or be cursed. While cursed, the target has vulnerability to one type of damage of Ezmerelda's choice. The curse lasts until ended with a greater restoration spell, a remove curse spell, or similar magic. When the curse ends, Ezmerelda takes 3d6 psychic damage.

"MAY THE HOLY LIGHT BURN YOU LIKE NEVER BEFORE!"

Strahd von Zarovich:

WISDOM SAVE
Strahd von Zarovich

Save: 18

Strahd simply laughs as he drifts away.

"I am already cursed, child! You can do nothing to me now."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena throws herself into Suldae's arms. Her whole body is shaking.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (she is inside a roots cocoon but ok)

GM: (Oh derp)

(Let's assume Ezmerelda cast her curse through the cracks between branches)

(And skip the Ireena RP)

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena drinks a healing potion and hands one to Ezmerelda.

7

GM: (Henry, you're up)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Are you done throwing a tantrum Ireena?" Henry asks tone thawing

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh, forgive me for trying to save your life!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "How awfully presumes of you to assume I would want you to sacrifice yourself for me you bloody martyrical MORON" He snaps

GM: (We somehow always manage to end the session in the middle of Henry's turn)

(Sorry Henry!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (nah all good I got no idea what to do but I might get an idea for next time)

GM (GM): 2387.5

rolling 1d10 hp

(9)

= 9

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling d10

(9)

= 9

rolling d10

(8)

= 8

Liliet (Suldae):

Roll for HP

Roll 1:

3

Average for HP

Average:

5

Roll for HP
Roll 1:	1
Average for HP
Average:	5

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I mistakenly rolled twice for hp we only got 1 level up)

Tops K.: Discord's being a shit this weekend so I'm hanging out here

Able: STOP. HAMMERTIME.

Tops K.:

GM (GM): Good morning all!

Tops K.: Mornin!

Liliet (Suldae): ^^

GM (GM):

(https://media3.giphy.com

/media/3owvJXPRVdfvynuxZS/giphy.gif)

Henry, I do believe you are up

Zanshuken: (yes I am)

Liliet (Suldae): ...would anyone be so kind as to remind me what the marks on the tokens mean...

Tops K.: I know Marcus has a Flying Marker, and is under the effects of Haste and Zephyr Strike

GM (GM): I want to say the hearts on Ezme and Suldae are Death Ward

But I'm not sure

The shield on Ireena was probably Mirror Image

Suldae Westwind: ooooh yeah that makes sense

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry first places a hand on his chest frowning at the way his breastplate has been warped by the recent heat (lay on hands for 10 on himself) "Let's see what else we can do " he says knelling to place a hand on the charred roots ' Can you bind it or atleast get me close?' he silently inquires

Suldae Westwind: re: Death Ward

I do remember that

(What's the ones on Suldae and Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (mines bardic inspiration)

Suldae Westwind: (Thank you that makes sense)

(Doesn't help me a lot though)

Henry of Willowsbrook: EoT unless my friends the plants are responding

GM (GM): (What are you trying to have the plants do?)

Suldae Westwind: (Ooooh that's who you were addressing)

Henry of Willowsbrook: get me further up to the dragon or drag it down

Suldae Westwind: (Remember, Suldae can help with that by casting Speak to Plants)

(I think I haen't done that yet)

(yeah wasn't around for the paladin feats of divine connection)

Henry senses that the plants are willing to help him, but lack the strength to take him so high.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "the intend is appreciated" Henry mmurmurs

Rictavio, still slow-falling towards the ground, twists around in midair and aims his crossbow to the sky.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances at him. "What are you trying to do?" she asks.

Rictavio:

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 17 | 16

Damage: 6 piercing + 8
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW

Rictavio

Attack: 22 | 9

Damage: 1 piercing + 5
piercing

Suldae Westwind: She's trying to not think about a couple of things right now, so the distraction is appreciated.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks at her then his sword then the dragon then his sword again before shrugging

Both of Rictavio's shots fall far short of the circling dragon.

GM: (Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae reaches for the plants' spirits, which she can almost feel pulsating under and around her, kneeling down again. She touches them gently, and gathers the awareness granted her by Correllon and her ancestry to ask a question.

'Can I help you help him?'

30

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae feels the harmonies of nature swirl around her. She senses the will of Henry and the presence of the nature spirits.

Suldae Westwind: (Specifically, the question is meant to inquire if she can cast her spell to bridge the strength gap. I'm sure the plants can tell)

Quite suddenly, the form of the new-made tree shifts, vines twisting, enlarging, hollowing, hardening. Some of the vines begin to rise into the sky, extending upwards in a thicket of straight, bamboo-like forms.

There is a sound like the hammering of a thousand woodpeckers. Holes begin to appear in the wooden pipes.

A vine rises towards Suldae, twisting itself gently into a familiar form -- the mouthpiece of a woodwind instrument.

A voice at her left ear whispers audibly: "play."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels the whole of the instrument. She understands what she is meant to do, and gently takes it. She begins to blow, and her lungs immediately start burning as it is too large for her to fill, but the magic flowing through her fills the gap, and the notes rise, louder, louder, louder.

It's a slow melody at first, like the trickle of a stream. But Suldae's fingers begin running faster and faster along the holes as she gains familiarity with the instrument, and the music quickens.

Spring is coming. The seeds are sprouting, and overnight black ground is covered in green. The leaves are opening, the flowers begin to bloom, birds begin to sing.

Suldae loses herself in the melody, as it twirls and laughs, high and low, quicker than she thought she could hear, let alone play.

A zephyr flows by Suldae, ruffling her hair. The wind-spirit fills the pipes, and the forming tune suddenly roars over the countryside with all the majesty of dawn. For miles around, the trees, quite suddenly, bloom. White blossoms cover the landscape like snow, and the winds begin to howl with hurricane force.

The wind rips the flowers from the trees, and suddenly there is a storm of white petals filling the sky. The rising storm tightens into a towering funnel of whirling white flowers, and the clouds stretch down towards it.

Vorgansharax finds himself caught in a sudden, overwhelming downdraft. His wings fail him!

Vorgansharax the Black: "WHAT?"

Surrounded by spiraling petals, the great black dragon falls through the clouds.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "FEEL NATURES WRATH YOU GIANT TWIT!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae glances up, still playing, then focuses her eyes forward. She just... has to trust. Everything'll be fine. Really. A dragon falling on them is just as planned.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry yells while laughing with joy at the events

Marcus Veranius turns to Hiere with a grin. "That's our window! Let's finish this; together!"

Suldae Westwind: By Henry, it seems like. So, yes, everything is definitely fine.

At the final moment when he would be upon the trees, he flares his great wings and catches himself, and lands heavily on the treetops of four different trees. The blast of wind from him catching himself nearly topples several trees. (Suldae, Henry, Ezme, and Ireena must make a DC 23 DEX save)

Vorgansharax the Black:

WING ATTACK (COSTS 2 ACTIONS)
Ancient Black Dragon

The dragon beats its wings.
Each creature within 15 ft. of the dragon must succeed on a DC 23 Dexterity saving throw or take 15 (2d6 + 8) bludgeoning damage and be knocked prone. The dragon can then fly up to half its flying speed.

Able: "After you"

oop

Hiere Unthere: "After you"

Henry of Willowsbrook:

21

DEXTERITY SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

inspiration

rolling d8

(4)

= 4

Vorgansharax the Black: 14 (Here's the damage roll)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DEXTERITY
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Ability: 12

Henry of Willowsbrook: 25 total for me

Suldae Westwind:

13

DEXTERITY SAVE (7)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana:

6

DEXTERITY SAVE (1)

The blast of wind from the wings of Vorgansharax shatters the pipes of the great organ and slams Ezmerelda and Ireena both to the ground, knocking both women unconscious.

Suldae is buffeted by the winds and knocked off her feet. The song echoes over the landscape only a few moments longer.

Henry alone remains standing, unperturbed by the wings of the great beast.

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Suldae drags herself back up on her feet.

(NOW EoT)

Vorgansharax the Black: "You have made a bad play, little knight!"

6

Marcus Veranius gives a salute tie Hiere, then jumps out of the Rope Trick. His wings stretch out like a Valkyrie descending from the heavens, and delivers a missive from on high.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Marcus Veranius: Death.

19		21
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

13
Bonus Damage/Piercing

18
Piercing

8		21
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

16
Bonus Damage/Piercing

22
Piercing

19		17
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

15
Bonus Damage/Piercing

17
Piercing

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You are whinest dragon I've ever heard of" Henry retorts

Vorgansharax the black breathes in, and from deep in his gullet a greenish glow illuminates the night.

GM: (AC is 22)

Marcus Veranius: (FAK)

Suldae Westwind: (RIP)

Marcus Veranius: ...Marcus jumps back in the rope trick and curls into a ball of shame

Suldae Westwind: (are you out of Bardic Insp?)

Marcus Veranius: (I used it on the last heroic charge)

Marcus's arrows clatter pointlessly on the armored back of Vorgansharax.

Suldae Westwind: (gotcha)

Ismark continues his journey...

GM: (Hiere, you're now their only hope)

Suldae Westwind: (Help me, Obi Wan,)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere pops his head out from the rope trick. "You guys doing okay? Yeah you're probably fine."

DC 17

Dexterity Save

9
Fire

Higher Level Cast

21
Fire

150 feet

Fireball

Vorgansharax the Black:

DEXTERITY SAVE
Ancient Black Dragon

Save: 21

Hiere Unthere: Hiere drops his mixtape, and retreats back into the rope trick.

A red star falls from Hiere's hand and bursts into a nova of crimson flame that licks over Vorgansharax's body. At the exact moment of detonation, a nearby zephyr throws itself upon the blossoming fireball, and with the sacrifice of its life, it feeds the flame. 43

Vorgansharax the Black: "AAARGH!" Vorgansharax roars, as his scales crisp and char and the flames sear his flesh.

"A curse upon wizards!"

Suldae Westwind: "Fuck you!" Suldae yells, catching eloquence from Henry.

Marcus Veranius is down with that hot beat

Vorgansharax the Black: Vorgansharax says nothing. From deep in his throat, emerald bile rises.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "DO YOUR WORST"

Vorgansharax the Black: With a roar, Vorgansharax the Black spews his acidic fury!

ACID BREATH
(RECHARGE 5-6)
Ancient Black Dragon

The dragon exhales acid in a 90-foot line that is 10 feet wide. Each creature in that line must make a DC 22 Dexterity saving throw, taking 67 (15d8) acid damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

57

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

DEXTERITY SAVE (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Suldae Westwind: "Actually please don't!" Suldae screams out as she tries to dodge out of the way AND tug Irenea with her.

(how do I do this mechanically)

GM: (the Dex save will count for that)

Marcus Veranius: (Are Irenea and Ez still under the tree?)

GM: (I think so? I know Ezme is)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (welp we did agree that my Warding Aura gives resistance for the breath weapon)

GM: (Yup yup)

Vorgansharax the Black: 28.5

GM: (In that case you take only 28 points of acid damage for not passing the save)

(How big is that aura? Are the others inside it?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: 10 ft

GM: (That encompasses Suldae and Irenea at least)

Suldae Westwind:

DISRUPT
Cutting Words

When a creature that you can see within 60 feet of you makes an Attack roll, an ability check, or a damage roll, you can use your Reaction to expend one of your uses of Bardic Inspiration, rolling a Bardic Inspiration die and subtracting the number rolled from the creature's roll. You can choose to use this feature after the creature makes its roll, but before the GM determines whether the Attack roll or ability check succeeds or fails, or before the creature deals its damage. The creature is immune if it can't hear you or if it's immune to being Charmed.

rolling d8

(3)

= 3

...He does 3 less damage!

GM: (Lmao)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's 'please don't' comes out with the force of a gale wind, forcing some of the acid aside.

GM: (So that's 25 points of acid damage if you fail the save)

Suldae Westwind:

20

DEXTERITY SAVE (7)
Suldae Westwind

GM: (And only 12 points if you pass!)

Suldae Westwind: (Hm. This is without accounting for Henry's aura, or does it just do the reducing by half thing?)

(I wasn't keeping track the mechanics)

11

CHARISMA SAVE (10)
Suldae Westwind

Henry of Willowsbrook: cuts damage by half at the end)

Suldae Westwind: (pls ignore this)

Henry: y's Aura reduces the damage by half, passing the save reduces it by half again)

Suldae Westwind: And that +2 to saves doesn't apply?

Henry of Willowsbrook: it does
(two different things both with 10ft radius)

Suldae Westwind: Oh!

GM: (In that case, you pass the save and take only 12 points of acid damage)

Suldae Westwind: :D

GM: (If you take an additional 12, you can shield Ireena with your body and she will take no damage)
(Ezme is in no immediate danger)

Suldae Westwind: I was about to ask.

GM: (Unless Ireena was in the tree too? I forget)

Suldae Westwind: She was tho
she was under the roots bc Henry stuck her there to not get eaten by Strahd

GM: (In that case, she's in no immediate danger either)

Suldae Westwind: ^^
thank you plants

Henry of Willowsbrook: "IS that all you can do? I had baths more unpleasant than this you jackass!"
Henry yells out ignoring the pain and smell of what he was pretty certain was his armor and skin melting

Vorgansharax the Black:

FRIGHTFUL PRESENCE

Ancient Black Dragon

Each creature of the dragon's choice that is within 120 feet of the dragon and aware of it must succeed on a DC 19 Wisdom saving throw or become frightened for 1 minute. A creature can repeat the saving throw at the end of each of its turns, ending the effect on itself on a success. If a creature's saving throw is successful or the effect ends for it, the creature is immune to the dragon's Frightful Presence for the next 24 hours.

Ezme struggles not to die... 12

Ireena is on the same journey... 16

GM: (Henry, you're up!)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wis save?)

GM: (Yes, unless you have a mechanic to resist it)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

WISDOM SAVE (6)
Henry of Willowsbrook

oh for fucks)

GM: (Doesn't one of your auras do something about that?)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is grateful for Henry's words for about half a second before fear seizes her.

Henry of Willowsbrook: nope)

Suldae Westwind:

19

WISDOM SAVE (3)
Suldae Westwind

Don't paladins have anything mechanical about fear?

GM: (I swear they did)

Suldae Westwind: (I'm gonna google)

GM: (Maybe it's a different oath though)

(looks like oath of conquest has something for it)

Suldae Westwind: (I remember in 3.5 they were straight up immune to fear effects)

(...yeah google turns up stuff for Conquest)

(Well, good news! Suldae passed the save)

GM: (With good RP, I will allow you to trade saving throws)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (would Heroism remove my fear if I cast it now?)

Suldae Westwind: (let me check what being frightened does)

GM: (I would rule yes on that)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Heroism

Enchantment 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: A willing creature you touch

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

A willing creature you touch is imbued with bravery. Until the spell ends, the creature is immune to being frightened and gains temporary hit points equal to your spellcasting ability modifier at the start of each of its turns. When the spell ends, the target loses any remaining temporary hit points from this spell.
At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can target one additional creature for each slot level above 1st.

GM: (A frightened creature has disadvantage on Ability Checks and Attack rolls while the source of its fear is within line of sight. The creature can't willingly move closer to the source of its fear.)

(Not much point to it now though lol)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Marcus Veranius: (We abused the hell out of Marcus's fear arrows in the Death House. Fear's a powerful debuff)

Vorgansharax the Black: "Cower before me, petty mortal!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels fear go through her and slide off, as she feels its artificial nature. There is already plenty she's scared of right now, the dragon just... It's not so much that it doesn't make the cut, it's that the slots are taken. She's too busy to be scared right now.

Also, she has to admit, Henry's banter does a lot to relieve the pressure. This is supposed to be her job!

(Yeah I remember that

(Wouldn't have interfered with healing, though, though I'd have had to finagle RP for that)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry staggers over to Suldae to grab her biting down on the impulse to run "I will not yield to such a beast of base cruelty" he groans out as he casts the spell

(we both get 2 temp hp at the start of our turns till I lose concentration)

Suldae Westwind: (ty)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Potions are an action right?)

Suldae Westwind: (base rules, yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook: than that's EoT

Suldae Westwind: (Rictavio was Feather Falling, right?)

Rictavio: Still slowly falling, Rictavio curses and mutters to himself while he reloads his crossbow.

HAND CROSSBOW
Rictavio

Attack: 9 | 16

Damage: 2 piercing + 10
piercing

HAND CROSSBOW
Rictavio

Attack: 14 | 13

Damage: 5 piercing + 14
piercing

Suldae Westwind: (Would he have gotten buffeted out of th way with the wind?)

His bolts scatter off the armor of Vorgansharax, and he slowly falls into the aura of the dragon's fear.

Rictavio:

WISDOM
Rictavio

Ability: 14 | 9

"Shit! Shit!"

"Why is this dragon so bloody HUGE!?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Is Ric still out of range or why the disadvantage (not that it matters much now))

GM: (Just a misclick)

(Suldae, you're up)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes in and exhales deeply, and the remnants of the musical wind around her carry the sound of the sigh to the teammates around her.

6

Healing

60 feet

Mass Healing Word
Suldae Westwind

(wait a sec)

(I think I didnt put in the bonus from the thing)

(the cleric feature)

(yep I didn't)

Both Ezmerelda and Ireena come back to consciousness just in time to experience the arcane fear radiating from the dragon.

Ireena Kolyana:

15

WISDOM SAVE (2)

Suldae Westwind: (that's a +5)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

WISDOM
Ezmerelda d'Avenir
 Ability: 20

Suldae Westwind: (given this is 3rd level)

GM: (So total healing: 11?)

Suldae Westwind: (so actually its an 11 to everyone in range)

(yeah)

Suldae breathes in, then breathes out sharply as she screams:

"STOP!!!"

Command

Enchantment 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 60 feet

Target: A creature you can see within range

Components: V

Duration: 1 round

You speak a one-word command to a creature you can see within range. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or follow the command on its next turn. The spell has no effect if the target is undead, if it doesn't understand your language, or if your command is directly harmful to it. Some typical commands and their effects follow. You might issue a command other than one described here. If you do so, the GM determines how the target behaves. If the target can't follow your command, the spell ends. Approach. The target moves toward you by the shortest and most direct route, ending its turn if it moves within 5 feet of you. Drop. The target drops whatever it is holding and then ends its turn. Flee. The target spends its turn moving away from you by the fastest available means. Grovel. The target falls prone and then ends its turn. Halt. The target doesn't move and takes no actions. A flying creature stays aloft, provided that it is able to do so. If it must move to stay aloft, it flies the minimum distance needed to remain in the air.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, you can affect one additional creature for each slot level above 1st. The creatures must be within 30 feet of each other when you target them.

Vorgansharax the Black:

WISDOM
Ancient Black Dragon

Ability: 6

Suldae Westwind: (Uh. Consider it 'Halt')

GM: (Burning a legendary resistance)

Suldae Westwind: (HA!)

For a moment, Suldae feels the spell take hold on the crooked mind of the great black dragon. A second later, she feels that mind slip out from under its power. "A worthy attempt!"

Suldae Westwind: EoT

Ireena Kolyana: "AAAARGH!"

Ireena wakes to terror.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda wakes to calm certainty. She senses the power of the dragon, but it does not petrify her.

GM: (Marcus, you're up)

Hiere Unthere: (he typin)

Marcus Veranius jumps out of the rope trick again, not liking how this assassination has slowly become a straight fight. No man can hold their own against such a beast.

Marcus Veranius:

15 | 11
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

15
Bonus Damage/Piercing

22
Piercing

17 | 26
600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)
Marcus Veranius

13
Bonus Damage/Piercing

21
Piercing

10

19

600

>Sharpshooter (Oathbow)

(+7)

Marcus Veranius

13

Bonus Damage/Piercing

20

Piercing

34 Piercing

Arrows streak through the night. The first clatters off Vorgansharax's armored head harmlessly. The second slips between two charred scales and strikes the great beast in the heart. With a sudden gasp of shock, Vorgansharax the black learns the truth of his own mortality.

Suldae Westwind: (Thankfully to stay in the air he has to be circling so he wouldn't be directly above us right)

The black dragon stares wild-eyed into the night for a long moment. He breathes in, a greenish glow emanating from his mouth. He gurgles. He clings desperately, spasmodically, to the trees, as his strength begins to fail.

He slides backwards, his grip fails, his eyes darken. The great black dragon tumbles between the trees, crashing through branches on his way to earth. He strikes with a boom that shakes the treetops for miles around.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae stands there, swaying slightly on her feet.

Did they... win?

Is it done?

Sprawled like a great black cathedral, legs in the air, wings around him like the black sails of a shipwreck, the great black dragon releases a final gasp.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena shakily gets to her feet.

The fear aura fades. Sanity returns to her.

Suldae Westwind: (Ireena is STILL under the roots)

Marcus Veranius: ...no one could win a fair fight against Vorgansharax. Which was why Marcus knew to cheat.

Hiere Unthere: "WOoooooooooooooooooooo! UP TOP"

Rictavio: Rictavio lands gently on the wooden platform next to Suldae.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry leans down touching the embodiment of nature's fury " Could you let us down"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae closes her eyes and whistles a simple tune, still not looking in Ismark's direction.

The tree immediately begins to shrink, untwisting its form. Ezmerelda and Ireena are both loosed from the roots. A wooden staircase grows from the tree, spiraling down toward the ground.

Suldae Westwind:

Goodberry

Transmutation 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Target: See text

Components: V, S, M (A sprig of mistletoe)

Duration: Instantaneous

Up to ten berries appear in your hand and are infused with magic for the duration. A creature can use its action to eat one berry. Eating a berry restores 1 hit point, and the berry provides enough nourishment to sustain a creature for one day. The berries lose their potency if they have not been consumed within 24 hours of the casting of this spell.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell at a higher level, the berry restores 1 more hit point for each level above 1st.

(This is wrong numbers)

Marcus Veranius stares at the fallen dragon through their rope tricks window, unsure of what emotions were going through his mind. A hand wobbily raises to Hiere, eyes not meeting his gaze.

Suldae Westwind: (4HP/berry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: " I am speaking to plants " He whispers to himself before beginning to laugh loudly "KAHAHAHAHAHA WE WON YOU MOUTH TWAT WE FUCKIN WON YOU HEAR ME"

Suldae Westwind: (5 rn)

A second later, Suldae's hands are filled with fruit.

Rictavio: "I don't think he can hear you," Rictavio says.

Suldae Westwind: She gives one to all of the four companions surrounding her.

Rictavio: He looks around. "Where's Ismark?"

Ireena Kolyana: "Ismark?"

Marcus Veranius: "...he was a dread menace, but that dragon was all I had from before Barovia. This country is now my everything."

Henry of Willowsbrook: *mouthy

Ireena Kolyana: "ISMARK!?"

Suldae Westwind: (Where is Marcus right now?)

Marcus Veranius: (In the Rope Trick with Hiere)

(About to collapse from Haste)

Suldae Westwind: (ok so hes not here gotcha)

Suldae forces a fruit into Ireena's hand.

She hugs her fiercely, pressing her to herself.

The fruit end up in front of Ireena, barely not falling.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena do you know about Ismarks nature?"

Suldae Westwind: "He might be fine, yet," she whispers, not sure herself of the thought.

Ireena Kolyana: "Suldae! Suldae, where is Ismark?! I lost sight of him in the battle!"

"I can't lose him again!"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere peeps out again. "Hey.. uh.. can someone help us down from here?"

Suldae Westwind: "Give me a second," Suldae whispers to her.

Marcus Veranius: "Oh! I can! Just grab on and..."

Haste wears off

Marcus Veranius falls to the floor of the rope trick

Suldae Westwind: She breathes in deeply, then focuses on the divine connection burning in her mind.

The prayer is simple and fierce.

"What will happen to him?"

18

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Suldae feels no immediate response. After a long time, she hears a tune... It seems to be the melody of "Vengeance Immortal" -- a little-known opera about a man who returns from the dead again and again until he can complete his vengeance. She senses somehow that this will be Ismark's fate.

Suldae Westwind: "He fell," she says tightly. "But he'll be back."

"You won't lose him until Strahd is dead."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena look at me please. Did you know about Ismarks nature?" Henry asks her gently Ireena Kolyana: Ireena looks into Suldae's eyes, searching them for the truth. She relaxes a little.

"Thank you."

Suldae Westwind: "Strahd wishes he could kill him."

Ireena Kolyana: "We knew he had died..."

"But he came back to us."

"We knew he was undead."

Suldae Westwind: "Now eat," Suldae closes her fingers on the fruit she gave her.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena eats.

Suldae Westwind: (Henry, Ezme and Ric also all have one.)

(Each restores 5HP)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry nods "He'll be back before we know it I'm sure"

Rictavio: "This is a very good berry!"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Surprisingly filling!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae looks up into the sky, where Marcus and Hiere are.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Should we help them get down?"

Suldae Westwind: They should be fine, right? They'll make ti down.

"Check on Marcus, if you wil," Suldae tells her.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thank you darling" Henry says while winking at Suldae

Suldae Westwind: She sags down herself, sitting down on the forest floor and remaining roots and branches under their feet.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere waves for help

Suldae Westwind: She puts down the fruit (6 remaining)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda transforms into her hybrid form and flies swiftly up to Hiere's waving hand.

Suldae Westwind: She flips the guitar over to her front and realizes it's damaged.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Marcus!" Ezmerelda says, immediately upon crawling into the portal.

"You're injured!"

She herself is still badly burned.

Suldae Westwind: After half a minute of careful breathing she whistles as she raps on the still-intact parts.

Mending

Transmutation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 minute

Range: Touch

Target: A single break or tear in an object you touch

Components: V, S, M (Two lodestones)

Duration: Instantaneous

This spell repairs a single break or tear in an object you touch, such as a broken chain link, two halves of a broken key, a torn cloak, or a leaking wineskin. As long as the break or tear is no larger than 1 foot in any dimension, you mend it, leaving no trace of the former damage. This spell can physically repair a magic item or construct, but the spell can't restore magic to such an object.

The guitar is fine. Suldae is also fine. Everything is fine.

She starts playing, no particular direction, just improvising, allowing music to take her mind off everything.

Marcus Veranius flopillly raises a thumbs up to confirm Ezmeralda's diagnosis, then flops back down

Suldae Westwind:

SONG OF REST

Class: Bard

Beginning at 2nd level, you can use soothing music or oration to help revitalize your wounded allies during a short rest. If you or any friendly creatures who can hear your performance regain hit points at the end of the short rest by spending one or more Hit Dice, each of those creatures regains an extra 1d6 hit points.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Now if you'll excuse me I have a corpse to stab cartharsis an ole that" Henry say walking over to the Dragon corpse Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda crouches beside Marcus. She starts laughing.

"You did it. We did it."

"We can do this."

"We can take him down, I know it."

"But on the immediate side of things, do either of you need a ride?"

Ireena Kolyana:

5

HIT DICE (D6+0)

4

Henry of Willowsbrook: (If I were to skin the dragon what would I roll)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere raises a hand

Marcus Veranius shifts into convenient, birb sized carrying shape. He'd celebrate the dragon's death later when his limbs felt more alive

Ireena Kolyana: 7

8

Suldae Westwind: "Take more fruit, too," Suldae says perpendicular to the melody as her fingers pluck the strings with a simple rhythm. "You're one of the most badly injured, here."

Ireena Kolyana: "That's such a soothing little tune, Suldae..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (we are short restin g right?)

GM: (For skinning the dragon it will have to be several survival rolls -- one for each limb, one for the head, one for the tail, one for the body, and one for each wing. It's a lot to skin)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae doesn't respond to the compliment outwardly much. Inside, she's feeling... warm.

GM: (Yes, we are short resting)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda puts Marcus on her shoulder and takes Hiere, then departs the rope trick and flies slowly back down to the others. Within a few moments, she lands.

Suldae Westwind: rolling 2d8

(5 + 2)

= 7

rolling 2d6

(5 + 3)

= 8

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: 13 + 11

Suldae Westwind: "Eat," Suldae invites people in between humming to the music, nodding towards the spread in front of her.

Rictavio: 7 + 4

Henry of Willowsbrook:

10

HIT DICE (D10+3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

12

HIT DICE (D10+3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere: Hiere flops to the floor, hat on chest.

Marcus Veranius:

11

HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus Veranius

11

HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 2d6

(6 + 3)

= 9

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

HIT DICE (D10+3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Hiere Unthere:

8

HIT DICE (D6+2)

7

HIT DICE (D6+2)

3

HIT DICE (D6+2)

Rictavio: "Well," says Rictavio. "That's certainly the biggest dragon I've ever slain."

Marcus Veranius:

3

HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus Veranius

7

HIT DICE (D10+2)
Marcus Veranius

Hiere Unthere:

7

HIT DICE (D6+2)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 2d6

(3 + 4)

= 7

Hiere Unthere:

8HIT DICE (D6+2)

Rictavio: "I don't think I could have done that one single-handed. It is good to be part of a... Team."

Henry of Willowsbrook: rolling 3d6

(4 + 2 + 4)

= 10

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles at him tiredly.

He's irritating, but still someone it's good to have on your side.

Rictavio: It seems almost painful for Rictavio to say this. His eyes stare off into the distance, thinking of other times -- other people, perhaps.

He seems worried, for some reason.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

12

HIT DICE (D10+3)
Henry of Willowsbrook

rolling d6

(4)

= 4

Marcus Veranius caws in agreement

Ireena Kolyana: "What should we do now?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I don't think it would be wise to stay here. Not out in the open."

Suldae Westwind: "Kasimir," Suldae answers.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Strahd will only send more monsters our way..."

Rictavio: "Yes, we must save Kasimir."

Suldae Westwind: "I cannot rest at night," Suldae says, looking at the darkening sky and first stars appearing.

"He still needs our help."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus how about we take some of this twat first while we got the chance" Henry says" than we move to help Kasimir"

Ireena Kolyana: "I think we managed to go further away from him while we were fleeing the dragon," Ireena says.

Suldae Westwind: "Yeah..."

Ireena Kolyana: "Dragon skin is said to have many curious properties, it would be foolish to let our enemies have it."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We believe he his south of here"

Suldae Westwind: "We rest, we gather trophies," Suldae glances towards the corpse, "and then we go south?"

Rictavio: "How much time do we think we really have to spare?"

Marcus Veranius un-birbs at Henry's suggestion. "Scales are more sturdy for armored crafts, but the flexibility of wing membrane is better for general leatherworking."

Rictavio: "Kasimir could be dying as we speak."

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, we won't be doing him much good in this state."

Marcus Veranius: "Let me make an alternative suggestion. The more parts we take off this dragon, the harder it'll be for someone to resurrect it."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Wait!"

"Why not just polymorph the dragon into something smaller?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Additionally we barely know what we're up against we won't to him any good charging in headlessly"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We could take it with us, and break the spell when we have a more convenient time?"

Suldae Westwind: "That seems like a good idea," Suldae perks up.

"We couldn't carry this much otherwise, anyway."

Marcus Veranius nods

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how long does polymorph last?)

GM: (Up to one hour, but it's concentration)

(So shenanigans are likely to ensue)

Suldae Westwind: "Who can cast Polymorph, other than me?"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere puts forth an argument, "the Weave will not bend the dead"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hiere can I believe"

Hiere Unthere: (The spell has no effect on a shapechanger or a creature with 0 hit points.)

Suldae Westwind: "Oh."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, damn."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "well bugger taht"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Maybe we could sink the body? Lake Zarovich isn't far from here."

Henry of Willowsbrook: that

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Strahd cannot enter running water, we could put it into one of the streams that feeds the lake."

"Maybe?"

Ireena Kolyana: "I'm not convinced we could even drag the body."

Suldae Westwind: "I could ask the plants to bury it," Suldae suggests. "After we take as much as we want to carry."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I don't want to sink your plans here Ezme but well its huge and we are liitle and puny ... well you guys are anyway"

Ireena Kolyana: "The last thing we need is a dragon tree."

Rictavio: "No, the last thing we need is a Dracolich."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Whatever that it is I agree I don't want any of it"

Marcus Veranius moves to start getting some of that wing membrane he mentioned earlier.

Marcus Veranius: "Ez, could you give me a hand?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry decides to help

Marcus Veranius: (Or Henry o3o)

Rictavio: "If we leave the bones intact, they can be used to resurrect the dragon as an undead beast. It would be even less pleasant to fight that."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda joins Marcus eagerly.

Marcus Veranius:

23

9

SURVIVAL (6)
Marcus Veranius

Suldae Westwind: "So a dragon tree is the best option of what we have currently available?" Suldae asks.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well how about this Ric you and me we debone it like a sunday roast while Marcus gathers some trinkets"

GM: (The DC is 18 for total success, 15 for partial success)

Ireena Kolyana: "I wonder if we could take the skull?"

"Maybe with telekinesis... Damn, I should have learned that one."

Ireena pulls out her spell books and starts flipping through them, looking for something useful.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "In pieces maybe" Henry chuckels comparing the skull to his companions

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gives a philosophical sigh to the fact that the spell she knows for animating the inanimate only works on small objects.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Aha!" Ireena points to a spell in her book, and shows it to Suldae. In an intricate hand, the words Floating Disk are inscribed at the top of the page. "We could take the skull on this!"

 Suldae Westwind: Sure, maybe it'd make her effectively a necromancer, but nature can be macabre.

 Ireena Kolyana: "It will take me a few minutes to figure out the casting, I've never done this one before."

 Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles to her encouragingly

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Man I really wish I had a logging axe right about now" Henry says rolling his shoulders "The cut doesn't need to be clean right?" he says moving to the beasts neck

 Ireena Kolyana: "No, it doesn't."

"I don't think your sword will be able to break through the bone, though, so you'll have to go between the vertebrae."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "A

 Ireena Kolyana: "And watch out! He may still have some acid in his throat, it could damage your sword."

 Rictavio: "When did you become so knowledgeable about dragons?"

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "any help is appreciated"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Listen buddy I had a lot of time to read while you were all running around the countryside without me."

 Marcus Veranius: "She's right about the sloppy cuts. Given how much dragon there is, you can easily shave a bit off to straighten it later."

 Ireena Kolyana: Ireena approaches the fallen dragon, and examines it intently for a moment or two. She points her finger like a divining rod, letting it wander up and down the length of the neck.

True Strike

Divination Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 30 feet

Target: A target in range

Components: S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 round

You extend your hand and point a finger at a target in range. Your magic grants you a brief insight into the target's defenses. On your next turn, you gain advantage on your first attack roll against the target, provided that this spell hasn't ended.

"There. Strike it there."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: (Attack Roll?)

 Ireena Kolyana: (with advantage)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

20

19

Longsword (5 ft) (+9)
Henry of Willowsbrook

9

Slashing

Hiere Unthere: (true strike is self??)

(oh nvm)

GM: (Oi am I or am I not the GM)

Hiere Unthere: (that's in 3.5)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "This might take a moment"

Suldae Westwind: (Range is 30ft)

(Right there)

Meanwhile, Marcus manages to get the skin of an entire wing off in pristine condition.

Suldae Westwind: (ah nm)

Marcus Veranius rolls it up into a convenient bundle. Softer part of the dragon, but easily transported.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I like foldover cuffs and about an inch of heel," Ezmerelda whispers playfully into Marcus's ear.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry seaths his sword swapping to the halberd "I think I get better leverage with this"

Marcus Veranius pauses to consider. Normal heels are usually woodstock; would dragon bone affect the comfort at all?

Marcus Veranius: Only one way to find out!

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Can you do a concealed knife in the toe that pops out when I click my heels together?"

"A silvered blade, obviously."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (do I just keep Swinging?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Maybe a holy symbol on the boot-heel..."

GM: (Swing again, yes)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

29

15

Halberd (10 ft) (+9)

Henry of Willowsbrook

15 + 9
Slashing

With an effortless sweep of his halberd, Henry makes a perfect cut through the neck of the Dragon.

Marcus Veranius: "I could certainly TRY. I picked a good shade of dragon to make enemies with, so it'll look great regardless."

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena whistles softly. "Good cut."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Watch out this might spary a little" Henry grunts as he brings the weapon down with all his might

A small dribble of acid sizzles out of the severed neck and sears the grass.

Henry of Willowsbrook: spray

The dragon's blood is viscous, oily, and black.

It looks highly flammable...

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry gets out his empty potion vial and gathers some

Suldae Westwind: Suldae keeps playing as she watches her friends defile the highly deserving corpse with satisfaction

Marcus Veranius: "...one of you more knowledgeable-folks ought to handle the head. All the arcane-useful stuff's in the organs, right?" Marcus comments as the others do their work.

Suldae Westwind: The melody has, subconsciously on her part, changed towards a fairly popular dragon slaying song.

Marcus Veranius: Eye of Dragon was probably a spell component for SOMETHING

Ireena Kolyana: "The eyes are good for divination and scrying orbs, once they've been properly dried. The teeth can be powdered to make deadly poisons. The blood should be even more explosive than Alchemist's Fire."

"The skull plate above the eyes is said to be almost indestructible, I've heard of legendary shields made out of them."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'll mark down 1 vial of dragon blood if it's alright)

GM: (Go right ahead)

Marcus Veranius: "Sounds about right to me. Memory can confirm he was rather thick-headed."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry glances at his shield "Oh Marcus would you be a dear and get that for me"

"I promise to put it to good use" he says grinning like a fox that found a hole in the fence

Ireena Kolyana sits cross-legged on the ground, her spell book open in her lap. She reads carefully, muttering to herself and moving her hands through arcane forms. Intricate displays of colored light nimbus around her hands.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wonders if the dragon has a bone small enough to make a flute out of.

Silently, the skull rises into the air, suspended on an invisible disk of arcane power.

 Ireena Kolyana: "Ha!" says Ireena, triumphant. "It's done."

Suldae notices many horns on the dragon. Some of them are just scales, but others seem to be rooted to the bone.

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Remind me friends where did we land on treeing this corpse" Henry asks "Rictavio feel free to answer aswell"

 Marcus Veranius shifts his attention to the other wing while the others deal with head and location. Might as well go with the easier-to-handle parts of the dragon

 Ireena Kolyana: "I've heard that some dragons -- especially those who are gifted in magic -- have an arcane appendix. If we can get one of the arcane appendix stones, they can be used as an arcane focus, or powdered to make an ingredient that can make a potion to restore one's magical power."
"I think if we remove that piece, the dragon's natural magic will start to fade, and it shouldn't be that dangerous to bury it anymore."

 Suldae Westwind: "Ireena," she calls out, still strumming. "I could use a new flute. Would dragon bone be a fitting material??"
(ignore the second ?)

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Where would those be?"

 Ireena Kolyana: "Somewhere in the guts," says Ireena. "I'm not sure. I'd guess near the heart?"
"As to a bone flute -- yes, I think it would work well! It might even have magical properties."

 Rictavio: "I still feel uncomfortable trusting such a powerful creature to this still-corrupted soil. If we can sanctify the space it is buried in, I will feel better about it."

 Marcus Veranius: (assuming I still have Ezmeralda helping for advantage)

7 | 10
SURVIVAL (6)
Marcus Veranius

(oof)

Unfortunately, the second wing tears right as Marcus gets to the middle of it.

He manages to get some scraps, but nothing that will be all that useful.

 Marcus Veranius: What? How could this one be so fragile!?

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "hmm" (GM level with me here could I split the dragon open via plant growth like gras breaking pavement to make harvesting the inside easier)

 Marcus Veranius takes a second look and finds arrow holes

 Marcus Veranius: "...oh."

 Suldae Westwind: (I was about to suggest that lmao)

GM: (Yes, that could work)

Suldae Westwind: (wrt arrows)

Marcus Veranius: "Are we sure this soil isn't sanctified already? Bunch of trees and shit popped up like, 15 minutes ago. That kindof fixed things for the winery."

Marcus Veranius has no idea how magic works

Suldae Westwind: Suldae wonders about that.

13

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Rictavio: "I honestly don't know."

"But a proper burial couldn't hurt our chances."

Suldae Westwind: (oh wow thats a low roll. GOOD THING I HAVE FUCKING +11)

Marcus Veranius: "Do I have to give a heartfelt speech?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Step back please I have an Idea " Henry looks to find one of Marcuses arrows before tapping into that familiar well of power 'Grow 'he asks the wood

The wood begins to grow immediately. With a rupturing sound, the flesh of Vorgansharax bursts open, forced apart by swift-growing roots and vines.

The innards of the dragon are a slimy, multicolored frenzy of gore, and thick black blood spills across the grass, steaming in the cold night air.

Rictavio: "Warm-blooded? How curious."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That felt strangely good I must say" Henry says with a low whistle

Ireena Kolyana: "Dragons aren't cold-blooded, usually -- even ice dragons. Otherwise they'd always be lethargic."

"Let's see, I think I brought it..." Ireena digs in her book bag for a moment or two.

"Aha!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (can I roll Nature to identify organs?)

Ireena Kolyana: She pulls out a tome and cracks it open. She flicks through the pages quickly.

GM: (Yes, you may)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

19

18

NATURE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Ireena Kolyana: "Ok, I have a chart of the organs, but it doesn't look anything like real life... Looks like the artist didn't have first-hand knowledge."

GM: (Henry is able to recognize the major organs by their similarity to the organs of other beasts.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Huh It looks strangely ordinary, thats the intestine, thats the live, and that over their is a kidney I believe"

liver

GM: (He quickly recognizes a few organs that other creatures do not have -- an acid bladder, and a strange appendix-like organ near the heart.)

Suldae Westwind: (Suldae asked if the place is sanctified and what it would take if not)

(got a 13 on a Religion check)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena, darling is that the appendix thing you meant?" Henry asks while indicating Suldae realizes that the place is not sanctified, although several powerful nature spirits have been in the area, and the lingering effects of their presence will remain for several hours -- perhaps days.

Ireena Kolyana: "Yes! I think so. It must be!"

"Be careful, a dragon's soul can linger there for a while after death... Don't touch it with anything but your blade!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Looking over the gore and after taking a deep breath Henry turns to her "Trust me last thing I want to do is touch that with my hands"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir begins working on the Dragon's tail, using her silvered short sword.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

SURVIVAL Ezmerelda d'Avenir <hr/> Skill: 12
--

Marcus Veranius gives aid

Suldae Westwind: Does Suldae know how to sanctify the place?

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

SURVIVAL Ezmerelda d'Avenir <hr/> Skill: 12
--

Suldae Westwind:

14

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Fuck."

Suldae Westwind: (Gee, that's better)

(re: my roll)

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"You know, it's a lot easier tearing it apart than it is keeping it together."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (what do I roll for appendectomy (appendix removal)?)

GM: (Henry: Survival)

Suldae Westwind: (Isn't there an assist mechanic?)

(Maybe it'll go better if multiple people help each other lmao)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (help is advantage and Suldae could inspire but that's it)

Suldae realizes that a Hallow spell is the best way to do it. Failing that, it should be possible to sanctify the place with holy water, prayer, and song.

Ireena Kolyana: "I have an idea."

"It might be a bad one."

"I know certain warding glyphs that can cast a spell when an enemy gets too close. We could inscribe those over the burial site, and turn it into a trap."

"The danger is that there is a chance Strahd will spot the spell, and break it."

Marcus Veranius: "You know, maybe I could try grabbing it. Vorgansharax spent a good year poking me with its magic experiments; maybe I'd be more resistant."

Marcus Veranius pipes up, having no luck with the tail

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We tried to out race a dragon on birds so we are past the part where bad ideas die as ideas"

Hiere Unthere: "Even if he doesn't.. what's to say he doesn't just tank all our magic?"

Marcus Veranius: Worst case scenario, he breaks it like the other parts and problem is gone

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's get to cutting doctor Marcus"

In Ezmerelda's hands, only the top layer of scaly skin comes off, leaving the under-layer behind.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Dammit, I ruined it!"

Marcus Veranius: (Will the appendix be a separate roll from the body, or same?)

GM: (Separate)

(A bad roll might have consequences)

Marcus Veranius: (THE CHART GETS UPDATED)

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry assists

Marcus Veranius:

24

9

SURVIVAL (6)
Marcus Veranius

GM: (That's a total success)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Maybe Inspiration or nevermind if the appendix has the same dc)

(Yay)

(meant bardic inspiration btw)

Marcus manages to cautiously remove the arcane appendix. He can feel the malevolence of the spirit lingering within. It hates him passionately -- enough, perhaps, to fight its way out of the hells, if it can make the right pact.

Ireena Kolyana summons a mage hand and uses it to rummage around inside the bladder. It emerges a few moments later bearing several small, pink crystals.

Ireena Kolyana: "Perfect."

Marcus senses the soul fading from the now non-magical appendix.

Ireena Kolyana: "Suldae, here, take one. When you make your flute, incorporate it somehow."

Marcus Veranius murmurs to himself. "Rest in peace you scary git."

Hiere Unthere: "really? in peace?"

Ireena Kolyana: "One for you too, Hiere. You could put it in your hat!"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae has incense, a holy symbol and a direct line to her god. No holy water, though, just regular water. She's wondering what she can tinker up with that.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere perks up at the thought of accessorising his hat

Suldae Westwind:

14

RELIGION (11)
Suldae Westwind

(FUCKING REALLY)

Suldae takes a crystal from Ireena carefully, pausing her playing for a second.

She then resumes it after putting it into her bag.

Marcus Veranius takes a moment to bury the appendix and gives it a proper marker of tail bone scrap. It was hard to admit, but Vorgansharax didn't have anyone either. As rivals, they were closer to each other than anyone else.

GM: (A Cleric or Paladin may create holy water by performing a Special ritual. The ritual takes 1 hour to perform, uses 25 gp worth of powdered silver, and requires the caster to expend a 1st-level spell slot.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So earlier there was talk of a head scale that makes fantastic shields could we maybe get that one to while we're still at it" Henry almost sounds like a child wanting to stay up late for the harvest festival or so he imagined

Ireena Kolyana: "It'll be tricky. Our best bet is to just burst the skull somehow, the harder bone plate should be almost inde *indestructible, so it's just a matter of breaking the destructible pieces off."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir is admiring the claws of the dragon's forelimbs. "These would make some interesting knives..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I got a hammer and unbrideled gree-eh work ethic unbrideled work ethic"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs.

Rictavio: Rictavio stiffens. "Someone is coming."

Marcus Veranius: "Give me just a moment, I'll help you in a bit."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae considers her silvered crossbow bolts.

Marcus Veranius: ...or not.

Suldae Westwind: (What do I even roll for this)

GM: (Marcus and Henry both sense a single undead approaching from the southwest.)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere gets his rope ready

Suldae Westwind: Suldae laughs at Ireena's joke, more out of happiness that she made one than anything else.

Marcus Veranius hastily scribbles an epitaph for the late dragon onto the grave marker; a final goodbye to an evil, but proud soul.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry spins around Halberd raised "Way to ruin the damn mood" he grumbels Marcus Veranius: "One undead. Maybe a messenger? Marcus comments as he draws a hand crossbow.

GM: (For the ritual itself, it's a ritual so there's no roll necessary -- consider it a spell you know how to cast. For getting the silver off your arrow, that would probably be an artisan's tool check of some kind, and you would probably need to specify what tool you're using to do it.)

Rictavio: Rictavio raises his crossbow, pointing it in the general direction of the enemy he senses.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda turns in that direction, clutching her blood-slicked short-sword.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena prepares to cast Mirror Image again.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae turns around to face the direction everyone else is, and flips the guitar around again.

She stands up.

Staggering between the trees comes a single male figure. In the dappled shadow of the forest, you see that his body is rotted and mostly flesh-less, but that it also seems to be shifting, changing... Growing...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "WOULD YOU HURRY IT UP WE GOT THINGS TO DO AND YOU ARE LATE YOU UNDEAD SACK O'SHIT" Henry calls out in its direction

"HHHHHHHeh..." Says a ragged, lipless voice.

Suldae Westwind: "Who are you?" Suldae asks, not hurrying to attack.

"Don't... shoot...."

Marcus Veranius squints, then lowers his crossbow

Suldae Westwind: "...Ismark?"

The figure moves closer. Those with dark vision can see the face still changing, shifting, gaining flesh.

It is becoming recognizable.

Hiere Unthere: "is it Kasimir"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Don't shoot! Don't shoot!"

Marcus Veranius: "I'll give you another guess."

Hiere Unthere: "please sort tell me its Kasimir"

"oh its the emo one"

Suldae Westwind: "There you are," Suldae breathes out in relief and sits down again.

Marcus Veranius: "I already said it wasn't Kasimir!"

Ismark stumbles closer, and slumps to his knees, exhausted.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ismark? YOU HEARD ME ISSY MOVE THOSE CHEEKS!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I woke up in a grave..."

Hiere Unthere: "what"

Suldae Westwind: "So, everyone, I can sanctify this space if I somehow manage to get a bunch of powdered silver. I have these crossbow bolts, anyone can help me get silver off the arrowheads?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark seems... haunted.

Ireena Kolyana: "Ismark!"

Ireena runs to him and wraps him in a tight embrace.

"I was so worried!"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "This isn't my body... I had to take this one."

Hiere Unthere: "what"

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark doesn't look as good as he did before...

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Couldn't we use some of these?" Henry says pulling out some silver coins
"Those blots are probably gonna be more useful Suldae"

Ismark Kolyanovich: He seems patchier, grayer, paler.

Marcus Veranius squints at Ismark, putting on a mock stern face.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shifts to Ismark instead.

"I thought something like that might happen," she says gently.

Marcus Veranius: "Did... did you get taller just to spite me? How dare you! You know I'm insecure about my height!"

Marcus Veranius tries to lighten Ismark's mood with a joke

Hiere Unthere: Hiere looms menacingly

Marcus Veranius turns to hiere. "Don't you start with that too!"

GM: (I just realized that if you use silver pieces to get 25 gp worth of powdered silver you're talking about 250 silver pieces, which seems like a shitload)

Suldae Westwind: (..Yeah. Yeah, it would be. I don't think we have that much)
(RIP)

Ismark Kolyanovich: Ismark cracks a smile. He laughs croakily. "Same old... Marcus..."

Suldae Westwind: (Maybe we can improvise holy sanctification with other means)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (we also don't have that much silver to begin with)

Suldae Westwind: (Yeah)

GM: (Some of your companions may have holy water already)

Marcus Veranius: (Marcus has 115 silver between his and the party funds)

Suldae Westwind: "...Does anyone have holy water?"

Rictavio: "I have five vials. Do you need one for something?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae breathes out. This just got much easier.

Marcus Veranius: (CURSE ME EXCHANGING COIN FOR PLATINUM)

Suldae Westwind: "Yes. To sanctify this place."

"And then Henry and I will make a tree grave, to make it even safer."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Strahds true curse is inflation)

Rictavio: "Here, I may as well distribute these anyway."

Suldae Westwind: (Inflation in Barovia makes perfect sense as they would have a deficit of goods but a lot of money from adventurers wandering in and stuff)

Rictavio gives a vial to Suldae, one to Hiere, one to Henry, one to Marcus, and one to Ezmerelda.

Suldae Westwind: "I'll be using this one, then," Suldae says and gets to work setting up the ritual.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll help you asmuch as I can anyway" Henry says shrugging Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Claws?" Ezmerelda pleads, in Marcus's general direction.

Marcus Veranius nods and attempts to do more dragon skinning. They got till dawn till the

Oathbow recharges.Marcus Veranius:*26*16*SURVIVAL (6)
Marcus VeraniusEzmerelda d'Avenir helps Marcus.*Marcus Veranius: (Targeting right arm)Marcus is able to remove the skin perfectly, and acquire five long, curved, blade-like dragon claws.*Hiere Unthere: Hiere tries to be as pure as possibleHiere has a premonition -- someone is about to scry on the party.*Hiere Unthere: Hiere raises a hand to his forehead. "Did anyone leave their body parts around?? We're about to get scryed"Ireena Kolyana: "Oh! I have something for this!"Marcus Veranius: "...hide in a rope trick?"Henry of Willowsbrook: "Can we stop that?"Ireena Kolyana:

Nondetection

*Abjuration 3Casting Time: 1 actionRange: TouchTarget: A willing creature, a place, or an object no larger than 10 feet in any directionComponents: V, S, M (A pinch of diamond dust worth 25 gp sprinkled over the target, which the spell consumes)Duration: 8 hours

For the duration, you hide a target that you touch from divination magic. The target can be a willing creature or a place or an object no larger than 10 feet in any dimension. The target can't be targeted by any divination magic or perceived through magical scrying sensors.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae comes closer to Ireena and herds everyone else, too, as she realizes what she's doing.Marcus Veranius: "On second thought, let's cut to the chase and work on the hard scales. We may not have much time."Suldae Westwind:*14*ARCANA (11)

Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana swiftly digs into her bag and grasps a vial of powder, which she flings into the air. She spreads her hands. A circle of light ten feet in radius extends from her in all directions, encompassing the party.

Suldae Westwind: (She totally does, see)

Marcus Veranius rushes to work on the body while Ireena wards

Ireena Kolyana: "He'll be able to see the body! But with any luck, he won't see us."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "huh so that is what this feels like" Henry says feeling Ireena's aura wash over him "Kinda tingles at the back of the neck wait what do mine feel like to you guys?"

Suldae Westwind: "Maybe we should stop working on the body, for the moment," Suldae suggests.

Marcus Veranius: "...good plan."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae shrugs at Henry's question. She perceives patterns of the Weave directly enough that she's never paid attention to notice any effect his auras had on her other senses.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I think we should take that as a sign to get going soon"

Suldae Westwind: "Which is to say, our handy half of the party finishes dismantling it while you and I sanctify it, then we grow a tree here and get going," Suldae says.

She has sprinkled holy water in a rough circle around the dragon's dead body already, and come up with something of a chant to use.

"South, to find and help Kasimir."

"I'm mostly spent, but not entirely, and I cannot rest until dawn, and we cannot wait that long."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It's like you read my thoughts" Henry says grinning before putting on an overly serious grimace "If you are please stop"

Marcus Veranius: "We don't have the Oathbow if we don't wait till dawn."

"Do you think we can handle Baba Lysaga without it?"

Suldae Westwind: "How much of a difference do you think it will make to Kasimir's chances?"

"Good question."

Marcus Veranius: "I personally think we're too late as-is, given Strahd's complete offensive."

"But... we can fix that too."

Suldae Westwind: "...Good point."

"Where do we go if not south? To Vallaki?"

Marcus Veranius: "To Vallaki to secure our means of resurrection and to rest properly. Then south to secure the body, or if we're lucky, our friend in tact."

Suldae Westwind: "...Yeah. So if I go to sleep at dawn, that'll have us setting out in the morning, before noon though."

Marcus Veranius: "...I've got a pillow and a backpack so you can rest when we move south."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We still have that hat right? for her" Henry says pointing at Ireena

Marcus Veranius: "Yes but actually no."

Suldae Westwind: "...Marcus, you mind sharing?"

"Are you still inavoidably birdy?"

Marcus Veranius: "LOOK, I didn't think we'd need to hide multiple people with the hat when I made that contract, alright!?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I have a disguise kit!"

Marcus Veranius: "It's attunement anyways."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Don't worry, we can make her unrecognizable."

Suldae Westwind: "Me too. Or she can shift into a bird."

"And there's also the Polymorph spell."

"The hat's just the most convenient. Don't worry about it, seriously."

Marcus Veranius grumps. It was a GOOD idea at the time.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Now, would you prefer to be a man, an old woman, a blonde, a redhead?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena laughs.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae watches the work of a master with rapt fascination.

Marcus Veranius: Until everyone else did the responsible things and bonded with their spirits via friendship and not contract law.

Ireena Kolyana: "What do you think, Suldae?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I may need some of that too... I'm not feeling quite as alive as I was yesterday."

Suldae Westwind: "I'm tempted to just ask Ezmerelda to do her worst. I want to SEE it," Suldae says semi-seriously.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let's finish up here first, oh how are we getting that into town" Henry says pointing the huge severed Dragon head

Suldae Westwind: "Great point," Suldae comments. "How long does an Invisibilty spell last?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: pointing at Rictavio: "Let's get that skull-plate and leave the rest to rot somewhere. We can sink it into the lake, or into one of the rivers we pass on the way."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "fine with me"

Suldae Westwind: "Or bury it with the rest of the body."

Marcus Veranius assumes the scrying finished up sometime mid-conversation and rushes with the body

Suldae Westwind: "Skull plate, eyes and something else, right?"

Rictavio:

Greater Invisibility

Illusion 4

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Touch

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You or a creature you touch becomes invisible until the spell ends. Anything the target is wearing or carrying is invisible as long as it is on the target's person.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "teeth maybe??"

Marcus Veranius: "Horn for a flute? Those things are hollow."

Suldae Westwind: (RIP)

GM: (Misclick, ignore)

Suldae Westwind: (one minute isnt very long)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Invisibility doesn't last very long, unfortunately."

Suldae Westwind: "Yes please!" Suldae perks up.

"Yeah, let's just loot it and leave it. Sorry, Ireena, your effort is appreciated anyway," Suldae hugs her to prove her point.

Marcus Veranius:

23

8

SURVIVAL (6)
Marcus Veranius

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda opens up her disguise kit and begins working on Ireena.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes out his hammer from his pack "Breaking the Head plate is not a concern right ?"

Suldae Westwind: "Marcus, tell us when to start," Suldae says to him in position to start sanctifying, while she watches Ezmerelda's work with fascination.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'm afraid we can't let you stay gorgeous, or you'll draw too much attention to yourself. So let's make you an ugly old man... Conveniently, we have a model to work from." Ezmerelda gives Rictavio a mischievous side-eye.

Marcus Veranius: "Ow."

Marcus Veranius felt that and he aint even Rictavio

Ireena Kolyana: While Ezmerelda continues brushing her face with various makeups, Ireena answers Henry. "Don't worry, if it's as strong as they say it is, there's no way you could break it."

GM: (Marcus, your roll was a success -- what were you looting?)

Marcus Veranius: (Body)

(Should I just roll for the rest of the parts too?)

GM: (Go for it)

Marcus Veranius: (Anyone wanna give a hand?)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Normally I would take that as a challenge but I'd really like that shield"
Henry says sauntering over to help marcus

Marcus Veranius: (Arm, Leg, Leg, Head. Wouldn't mind Bardic Inspiration on the last one)

25		22
SURVIVAL (6) Marcus Veranius

25		17
SURVIVAL (6) Marcus Veranius

12		24
SURVIVAL (6) Marcus Veranius

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Tell me where to rip and tear and I'll see it done" Henry says while helping Marcus with his brawn

Marcus Veranius:

17		17
SURVIVAL (6) Marcus Veranius

(BARDIC INSPIRATION D:)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (no ma shield :O)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is idly strumming as she watches Ezme work.

The music is filling the clearing Vorgansharax made, conferring the impression that they can all do anything.

(Anyone who wants take Bardic Insp, I'll write it off my list)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d6

(4)

= 4

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Lights be damned this shit really is though

Marcus Veranius: (Head is a pass)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (inspiration is a d8)

Marcus Veranius: rolling 1d8

(8)

= 8

Henry of Willowsbrook: (WUHU COME TO PAPA)

Marcus Veranius: "So like, we need to break the weaker bone around the stronger bone?"

"Why don't we like... drop it from the sky."

GM: (That's 20 dragon claws total, fifteen spikes of varying sizes ranging from 15 feet down to two feet in length, approximately 250 square feet of black dragon skin and scale, an indestructible plate of bone, two dragon eyes, 50 dragon teeth, four dragon fangs, four dragon horns)

(Continue the RP though, this is good stuff)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hm" Henry takes a full bodied swing with his hammer near the skullplate

CRACK.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Huh that worked "

The blow strikes the hardened plate of bone, and all the bone around it fractures instantly.

Marcus Veranius: "On second thought, I forgot you're strong as an ox."

The central plate is completely undamaged -- not even chipped. Henry realizes that it has scratched the head of his hammer.

Ireena Kolyana: "Marcus, can you save a little bit of that head-skin for me? I want to use it to make a cover for my spell book."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Hold still, this bit's tricky."

Marcus Veranius: "...so how do we hammer in a handle for the shield if the head is indestructible?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thank sbut seriously this didnt even scratch it" Henry says "I'll find a way trust me" Henry says grinning widely with glee

Suldae Westwind: "Glue?"

Rictavio: "Sovereign glue should do the trick, if we can get our hands on some."

"In the meantime, I'm sure there are other solutions that could be attempted."

Marcus Veranius stacks the looted material on Tenser's Floating Forklift

Henry of Willowsbrook: "This feels like the begining of a beautiful partnership" Henry says picking up the plate

Suldae Westwind: "...So are we going to just be taking that through the city like it's normal?" Suldae wonders. "Do we have a tarp or something?"

"I guess it could raise morale if everyone realizes we killed the dragon."

"Might also make the guards too scared to mess with us, which could be a bonus."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "It might give us some leverage over the politicians there."

"When one rules by fear, one knows its power."

Marcus Veranius: "I DID promise the guards to take care of the dragon when we first walked in."

Suldae Westwind: "Exactly," Suldae agrees, nodding to a fairly unexpected source of wisdom. Looks like death did Ismark some good, ironic and horrifying as the thought is.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Could make a harness of stell bands to frame it" Henry shrugs " Most of the guards know me and those that don't probably heard about me" he thinks back for a second "I...I might have been a bit harsh when helping them train"

Marcus Veranius blinks

Suldae Westwind: "..."

Marcus Veranius: "Right, so Henry walks in first."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I had a lot of bad days before you meet me"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "There. We're done." Ezmerelda holds up a small mirror to Ireena. "What do you think of your new look?"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena bursts out laughing. She could now pass for Rictavio's slightly younger brother. She is now a bucktoothed, beak-nosed, weak-chinned, chrome-domed man with wispy white hair above her ears, a patchy goatee, and several boils. She has dozens of new wrinkles, too.

"Well, now we just need an appropriate outfit and the look is complete."

Rictavio: "I have something that might fit, in my pack," Rictavio says.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Wow those are some great details around the eyes great work Ezme" Henry says apreachiating the costuming

Marcus Veranius giggles. The beak nose is rather ironic in retrospect

Henry of Willowsbrook: (who wrote down our dragon loot btw I would but I'm not at my usual pc)

GM: (I just put it on the discord in a pinned message, for easy reference.)

Marcus Veranius: (I put all but the plate in Marcus's party assets page)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (how heavy would that one be you'd think?)

Marcus Veranius: (YES Heavy. Which is why we need to figure things out when we get to town)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (6 pounds is a normal shield so 8? 10?)

GM: The floating disk can only hold 500 lbs, so for convenience's sake, the total loot pile weighs less than that. The bone plate weighs probably 20 pounds. It is about the size of a tower shield, and has roughly the same shape -- a long, round-edged rectangle.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (It is now strapped to Henry's back)

)

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is marveling at Ireena's face, and she actually stops playing as she's too busy admiring Ezme's handiwork.

"I miss your face already," she admits, "but this is incredible."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well now to give us some peace of mind" Henry begins to clutch both the holy water and his holy symbol " Oh Spirits Oh Sublime Light hear your humble servants call and shield this place from the vile clutching grasp of undeath"

Rictavio: Rictavio gives Ireena a set of his clothing. It's a little ostentatious, but plainer than what he is currently wearing.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lifts the ocarina for this one, echoing Henry's words with a melody.

Marcus Veranius stares at the carved dragon leg hide as he loads it onto the disk, a curious idea popping into his head.

Suldae Westwind: High and sharp, it pierces the evening's quiet.

Marcus Veranius goes back to fetch that appendix. He had a scheme

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry begins to recite what hymns he remembers while leaning into that connection in the back of his mind that has already become a like natural extension of himself

Rictavio: Rictavio takes out a holy symbol, and joins the ritual as well.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: Ezmerelda gets to her feet and pulls out a golden symbol of the Morninglord, and begins to pray silently.

Those with a sense of the divine begin to feel its presence strengthening here... This place is becoming holy.

Ireena Kolyana: "I'll be right back, just need a little privacy..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "and in gentle twilight shall thy soul find eternal rest. Látom"

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena heads off between the trees, into the shadows. She stays relatively nearby.

Rictavio: Rictavio finishes chanting a call to Tyr, god of justice. The final words are:

"...and may resurrection never find the soul of this foul being, and the devils never cease to cling and weigh him down into the hells."

Rictavio says a word in elvish that translates roughly to a formal "May it be."

The forest seems almost to sigh.

The area is now sanctified.

Ismark Kolyanovich: "AHHHH! OW! OW!"

Ismark flees the area, swatting at the flames sprouting on his skin.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae lowers the ocarina as the last high notes fade into silence. They do not finish fading; it feels as though they keep reverberating on the edge of hearing as long as you're standing close enough.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Shit forgot about that SORRY ISSY!"

Suldae Westwind: "Sorry!" Suldae calls out to Ismark guiltily.

Ismark Kolyanovich: 100 feet away from the dragon's corpse, Ismark sighs as the flames stop burning. "No worries! I should have realized..."

Suldae Westwind: Actually she'd assumed he'd have the sense to get far away in time. Oops.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena returns a moment later, now dressed in Rictavio's clothing. "What do you think?"

Suldae Westwind: "Lesson learned," she says, still shades of guilt in her voice.

"We'll be more careful next time."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I think you'd better not talk much in Vallaki, or your voice will give you away. We'll have to pretend you're deaf/mute."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae swallows a remark about great advantage over the original. Too mean.

Marcus Veranius: "...at least we know the spell works."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "You look like gaudy old man heckeling kid actors after he had a few too many at the summer fair so perfect" Henry says grinning while giving her a thumbs up

Marcus Veranius pauses

Marcus Veranius: "SPEAKING OF PLACES WHERE UNDEAD START TO CATCH FIRE."

"Vallaki had its wards repaired last we visited."

Suldae Westwind: "Oh."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No I'm not still bitter" Henry deflects preemptively

"Oh right yeah we did help with that didn't we"

Suldae Westwind: "But wait, didn't Ismark pass through those fine?.."

Marcus Veranius: "...when the bones were missing."

Ismark Kolyanovich: "Well, if I stay outside Vallaki and wait for you, that saves us the trouble of having to disguise me."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I've just realized, you being deaf/mute makes you officially better than the original Rictavio!"

Rictavio: Rictavio snorts.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae sighs. So much for restraint.

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena summons her familiar with a wave of her hand. A black cat appears, stepping out of thin air.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh come on it's not like that is even remotely difficult" Henry snorts

Ireena Kolyana: "Keep him with you, Ismark. We can talk to each other through him."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae rolls her eyes. Playful ribbing is fine, but she does worry about limits on that.

Rictavio: "Right, shall we bury this dragon? And the hatchet too, please?"

"Kasimir cannot wait forever. It's hard to resurrect an incomplete body."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods.

She starts up the song again, a different one this time, slower and more lyrical.

Speak with Plants

Transmutation 3

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self (30-foot radius)

Target: Plants within 30 feet of you

Components: V, S

Duration: 10 minutes

You imbue plants within 30 feet of you with limited sentience and animation, giving them the ability to communicate with you and follow your simple commands. You can question plants about events in the spell's area within the past day, gaining information about creatures that have passed, weather, and other circumstances. You can also turn difficult terrain caused by plant growth (such as thickets and undergrowth) into ordinary terrain that lasts for the duration. Or you can turn ordinary terrain where plants are present into difficult terrain that lasts for the duration, causing vines and branches to hinder pursuers, for example. Plants might be able to perform other tasks on your behalf, at the GM's discretion. The spell doesn't enable plants to uproot themselves and move about, but they can freely move branches, tendrils, and stalks. If a plant creature is in the area, you can communicate with it as if you shared a common language, but you gain no magical ability to influence it. This spell can cause the plants created by the entangle spell to release a restrained creature.

(Plant Growth is def more useful but I'm sure there's synergy there)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Right" Henry says "Grow" he murmurs pushing out with his will again

"To Vallaki then" Henry says pulling out a lantern (It is evening Ilrc)

The grass rises, growing from a scruffy lawn into a savannah-worthy wall of towering leaves. The roots break up the soil, and the ground parts beneath the dragon. Soon it sinks below the grass, which begins to close around it and harden into woody, basket-like stalks. They sink into the earth, a woody coffin. Within a few moments the remains are gone.

Rictavio: "To Vallaki."

"South, from here, I believe. It would be wise to get to the road."

1

GM (GM): Good morning, all!

Able: able able

Marcus Veranius: If we let our wizard lead the party, would we be enAble-ing him?

GM (GM):

(<https://media3.giphy.com/media/l1J9GOHzv61L2UyYM/giphy.gif>)

Henry of Willowsbrook: we might just get lost to be honest

GM (GM): Anyway, where were we
Also, what time is it in-game now?

Marcus Veranius: On the last episode of Dragonball Z, the party finished a proper funeral for an undeserving dragon.

Henry of Willowsbrook: makin our way down to the town wlaikin fast
I would say late afternoon to early evening we left krezk around mid day right?

GM (GM): The dragon fight was all at night, though

Marcus Veranius: Its been a long night

GM (GM): By my estimation you would probably arrive at Vallaki a few hours before dawn

Hiere Unthere: (What level are we again?)

Marcus Veranius: Might be fair to say that between butchering a colossal beast and funeral rites, it may well be morning, yee

Henry of Willowsbrook: 10

Hiere Unthere:

4

Force

120 feet

Magic Missile

that was by mistake

Henry of Willowsbrook: Best guess it's dark out and might be less dark when we reach Vallaki

GM (GM): Whatcha shootin' at there, buddy?

Hiere Unthere: (adane)

GM (GM): Right

Let's get this show on the road

We may have a shorter session today, I have a lot on my plate today unfortunately

Henry of Willowsbrook: (oh GM Magic missile works just fine on roll20 you roll damage once for all darts(if you want to roll for each dart thats fine by me))

Marcus Veranius takes lead in guiding the party back to Vallaki. Heaven forbid they get lost and get into more fights without rest.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere pretends like he didn't fall asleep through those boring ass funeral rites

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry lights his lantern

The mist swirls around the base of the trees. Before the first hour is over, the party reaches the road.

Hiere Unthere minor illusions some ill beats he'd been working on while hiding in his rope trick

Soon the party reaches the crossroads where the road forks east towards the bridge to Vallaki. The corpses of a man and a woman hang from a tree near the road sign on one side of the crossroads. Both corpses are wearing bags over their heads and wooden signs which read: "WITCH".

Marcus Veranius: "..."

"That's right! We flew over the crossroads on our previous exit from town!"

"I almost forgot the local hospitality. Let's try to keep magic to a minimum."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "..." Henry looks at Hiere and his auditory creations

Ireena Kolyana: "Well, shoot. This makes things more complicated."

Hiere Unthere lets the ill beats chill out for a sec

Rictavio: "I'm sure we can all refrain from being obviously witches for a day or two."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Speak for yourself!"

Marcus Veranius turns to look at Hiere

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I think I'm going to enjoy not going into town, under the circumstances..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: How long have bodies ben hanging ?
been

GM: (You can determine this with a Nature or Survival check -- or possibly an Investigation roll)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

11

NATURE (7)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: (They seem recent, to Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Like under a week ?)

GM: (It's difficult to tell, given that the bodies do not seem to have been picked at yet, and there are few flies if any. Under a week for sure, perhaps less time than that.)

Marcus Veranius: Marcus lifts the hood to see if its anyone they know

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus I don't think we would have seen 'these' bodies when we left anyway"

The male body appears to be that of the Coffin maker.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry removes the hood from the femal corpse

The female body is that of a young were raven you met at the Blue Water Inn. You never got her name...

Marcus Veranius: "..."
me puts the hood back

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry sighs deeply before collecting himself also putting the hood back "We- We should keep moving"

Marcus Veranius: "We have three resurrections. She's as good as family."
"...should we?"

Rictavio: "I hate to be a bitter prick, but I think we will probably need all three of those. Especially if Strahd decides to stop toying with us."

Ireena Kolyana: "Toying with us? Toying with us? We kicked his ass."

Marcus Veranius puts his hat to his chest, a tear in his eye. "No, he's right."

Rictavio: "Precisely. How many times do you think adventurers have managed to do that?"

Marcus Veranius: "We broke Strahd's toys. All he's got left is soldiers."

Rictavio: "He is a nobleman. They are trained from birth to hold a grudge, and to forgive no insult."

When Strahd comes for us next time it will be with subtlety and cruelty."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "We will see."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Should we take them down?" Henry asks

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Who would be fool enough to try and stop us?"

Marcus Veranius: "Unfortunately, quite a number of fools."

"The town's local head guardsman for one. Izek Stranzi."

Ireena Kolyana: "So is anybody else feeling like it's time for a change in government?"

Ismark Kolyanovich: "I mean, it's pretty late. Maybe in the morning?"

Hiere Unthere: "what's a government"

Marcus Veranius shakes his head. "And let Strahd send in his replacement Wachter to take over?"

Ireena Kolyana looks at Hiere like he might be a space alien.

Marcus Veranius: "The burgomaster is bad, but we know for certain he isn't working with Strahd."

"That's a blessing we seldom have."

Rictavio: Rictavio laughs mirthlessly.

"No, he's just a useful idiot."

"I'm not sure that's any better."

Hiere Unthere looks at Ireena like he might be a space alien

Ireena Kolyana wishes she had prepared "Identify."

Marcus Veranius: "He keeps up the barrier, that's useful enough for us."

Ireena Kolyana: "I thought that was the bones' doing?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I really fuckin hate this place" Henry says rubbing the bridge of his nose

Marcus Veranius: "The bones AND his festivals. Which now cover the gaps come lunar phases."

"Burgomaster falls and Vallaki becomes vulnerable. Vorgansharax was the town's only weakness, and now that's gone."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "W

Marcus Veranius frowns. "I don't like the position we're in, but we've not the time or resources to oversee a coup in our favor."

Ireena Kolyana sighs. "You're probably right."

Marcus Veranius: "Not to say we CANT, but not at this very second."

"Kasimir's waiting on a rescue."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We are also not really in the right place for it you know in the middle of the woods" Henry snarks

Marcus Veranius starts to resume his stride towards Valaki. "We best be on our way. Still need to break the news to Urwin about his father."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'm sorry I got frozen and burned a bit to often today for my tastes" Henry says "Which is apparently a concern for me now" he adds under his breath

Marcus Veranius: "Better that than acid. Glad I got to keep my nose this time."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thank you for reminding me I also got hit by Acid and plummeted out of the damned sky"

"Fuck Today and hello tommorow" Henry grumbles

Soon the party is passing by low, ramshackle huts which line both sides of the mist-shrouded road. In the darkness you see no lights in any of these small huts, which seem more decrepit than the last time you passed by. It looks as though they have been abandoned. Two torches burn on tall poles at the gate, and by their light you can see that the gates are closed and that the forest which once grew from the palisade has been forcibly trimmed away.

Guard: "Halt! who goes there?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Forest waas at the south gate I don't think we can see that from over here)

Marcus Veranius: "Marcus Veranius. Although you may better know me now as the Slayer of Vorgansharax."

GM: (The entire palisade bloomed, but they've trimmed it back again)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thats the Dragon in case you didn't know"

Guard: "Y-you slew the dragon?"

"Do you have proof!?"

Marcus Veranius: "I said I'd do it last time I was in. Did you think I spoke in jest?"

Marcus Veranius draws a roll of scale from his pack

Guard: "You're not the first adventurer to promise the unachievable!"

Marcus Veranius: "Either he's dead, or he's mighty uncomfortable without this."

"I'd bring you the head but my shiny friend here smashed it open."

The guard in the gate watchtower peers through the darkness at the glittering scaly hide.

Guard: "This is above my pay grade. Wait here!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh for the love of Jan is that you? Let us in already" Henry calls after him of, jan*

Guard: "Henry? You're with these people?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Obviously or I would still beat you and Reihmer silly every morning" Henry says tone overly annoyed

Guard: The guard laughs a little nervously. "I'm sorry sir, but even for you I'll have to clear this with Izek. We're under strict orders!"

"It won't take long, he's on duty."

"Just... Don't go anywhere."

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "Procedure is very important. Take your time; we ain't out here with a dragon anymore."

Guard: "And stay in the light! There's a crazed murderer on the loose."

Hiere Unthere: "Now we're talking"

The guard leaves.

Henry of Willowsbrook: to the others he adds "they have the bad habit of dropping their shields when thinking of where to strike I#m not just beating them up for the fun of it"

Hiere Unthere doesn't look convinced

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well it was maybe a little fun and I had some really shitty days before that so i needed entertainment(BRB gotta eat real quick)

A few minutes pass. After a while, the gate opens slightly and Izek Strazni emerges from it, flanked by two guards. His yellow eyes flicker in the torchlight and his black cloak still drapes over his monstrous right arm.

Izek Strazni looks at the party for a long, silent time.

Hiere Unthere whispers, "oh what the fuck"

Marcus Veranius smiles. "Isek! It's been too long!"

Izek Strazni: "So," he says at last. "You killed the dragon?"

He seems uninterested in being very friendly.

Marcus Veranius: This was standard for Izek, but it didn't mean Marcus couldn't be friendly in return. Better than to injure an ego.

Marcus Veranius holds up the roll of scale. "We've also got some bone, teeth, horns. Wing membrane."

Izek Strazni examines the specimens carefully.

Izek Strazni: "Impressive."

"Open the gates," he orders, and the guards within the walls swing them open. Inside, lining both sides of the main road through Vallaki, you see about eighteen guards standing at attention with halberds. They seem to have been placed here just for you.

"Come with me. The burgomaster will want to talk to you. He has a thorny little problem to deal with, and your aid would be useful."

Hiere Unthere: "man we can never catch a break"

Marcus Veranius follows. "My apologies for disturbing him at this hour."

Ismark Kolyanovich whispers to Ireena: "See you when you get back out."

Ireena Kolyana whispers back: "Don't get murdered."

Izek Strazni: Izek stiffens and turns around. He looks at the party as though trying to figure out whose voice that was.

Hiere Unthere whispers "hey what are you guys whispering about"

Izek Strazni: Slowly, he turns back towards the road and continues walking.

The guards salute you as you pass between them.

Marcus Veranius turns to Hiere. "You weren't with us last we visited Vallaki. The burgomaster, Baron Vallakovich, is a VERY IMPORTANT MAN."

Marcus Veranius: "He's so important, he's won every re-election with a landslide vote. So please be on your best behavior."

Hiere Unthere doesn't know what you're talking about

Even for a night in Vallaki, the place seems more subdued than the last time you came through. Some of the houses are boarded up, and many wood print posters are pasted to walls and doors. The posters show faces and names, above the slogan: "MISSING."

Izek leads you through Vallaki. At an intersection, he pauses to rip down a poster.

Izek Strazni: "We found that one," he says, by way of explanation. "Or what was left of him, anyway."

Marcus Veranius frowns

Izek Strazni hands the poster to a guard. "Inform the relatives."

Guard: "I don't think he had any relatives, sir."

Izek Strazni: "Then get back to your post."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (bACK9

The Burgomaster's mansion has walls of plastered stone that display many scars where the plaster has fallen away from age and neglect. Drapes cover every window, including a large, arched opening above the mansion's double entrance doors.

In one of the upper windows, a light still burns, despite the late hour.

Marcus and Henry recognize it as the window where they saw a flash of colored light, last time they were in Vallaki.

Rictavio and Ireena stay towards the back of the group, but Ezmerelda moves up to stand beside Marcus.

Izek Strazni bangs on the door with his human arm.

Marcus Veranius takes Ezmerelda's hand

After almost a full minute of waiting, a small slit opens in the door at eye level, and a woman's eyes peer out. Seeing Izek, the maid unlocks the door immediately.

Maid: The Maid whispers, "Come in please. You're here for the Burgomaster?"

Izek Strazni nods silently.

Framed portraits adorn the walls of the grand foyer, which features a wide staircase with a sculpted railing. A long, carpeted hall attached to the foyer stretches almost the length of the mansion and has several doors leading away from it, including one at the far end. Bundles of twigs are heaped against the walls.

Marcus Veranius: "...Burgomaster does does love his kindling it seems."

The maid -- who is wearing a nightgown and clutching a small brass candlestick holder with a single candle -- heads upstairs, taking the only light in the house with her.

Izek seems not to mind.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Only his kindling apparently"

Hiere Unthere takes a closer look around with his darkvision

Hiere sees that the people depicted in the portraits are clearly related.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: The voice of the Burgomaster can be heard as he descends the stairs. "This had better be good, Izek, I don't enjoy being —" Just then, he comes into view, clutching a candelabra and wearing a red bathrobe over his nightshirt. "--Oh! What's all this, then?"

Izek Strazni: "These people killed the dragon."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: The Baron seems to process this for a while.

"I see..."

"Let's get more comfortable, shall we? It's not every day we have such esteemed guests in the village."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich leads the way down the main hallway, his candelabra illuminating the sour-faced nobles in the portraits on both walls.

Marcus Veranius smiles as he moves along. Best manners.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich takes a large brass key from the pocket of his bathrobe and unlocks one door. He holds it open for you with a smile.

Marcus Veranius: "Ah, thank you kindly."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry now realizes that most of them look, well like they thought a dragon after fighting some undead after jumping into a lake while occasionally being blown nearlay to the hells with spells. He also realizes that he really doesn't care

Padded chairs and couches line the walls of this cozy, carpeted den. The room reeks of pipe smoke, and mounted on the east wall is the head of an angry-looking brown bear.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich seats himself in the largest and most comfortable armchair.

Izek stands under the mounted bear's head and watches the room with his piercing yellow gaze.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "You have done Vallaki a great service, if what Izek says is true."

"I have no doubt, of course, that it is — Izek would not be so much a fool as to wake me in the middle of the night without some verification of such a claim."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich tamps some tobacco into a large, ornately carved bone pipe, lights it, and begins to smoke.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (wait weren't we using tensors floating disk to carry most of our dragon bits? what did we do with that?)

Marcus Veranius nods. "We already broke down the head; may I offer you a horn for the trophy room?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I would be honored! It is said that powdered dragon horn is among the most potent of aphrodisiacs."

"Since I'm back on the market, I will make good use of it."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich says this with the faintest wince of pain.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry unslings skull plate from hi back to take a seat loudly dropping it on the floor

Marcus Veranius quickly puts his face to his backpack, knowing full well he couldn't keep a straight face after that comment

Marcus Veranius draws one horn and places it on the Burgomaster's side table

Hiere Unthere tries to not get too much mud on the carpet

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Was your wife a victim of this killer Izek and the guards mentioned?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "It is to be presumed, yes."

"She disappeared several days ago. She was among the first to vanish."

"I cannot imagine who would want to harm her. She had such a charming laugh! And her charity work -- her tea parties for the poor women, and such -- well, let us just say that she has been sorely missed by the community."

"Her aid with the organization of the festivals was always invaluable to me."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "We believe that the disappearances are the work of a coven of witches, here in Vallaki."

Izek Strazni: "We have good reason to believe that."

Marcus Veranius: And there's the lynchpin. Kidnappings to cover a most valuable person's disappearance.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Witches huh? what leads you to blieve that If you don't mind me asking"

Izek Strazni: "Witnesses have seen witches transforming into ravens and black cats, flying through the night on their broomsticks, and reading Tarokka cards. Even after banishing the Vistani such things have been seen."

"Even after rooting out the cult of Lady Wachter, people have continued to disappear. The bodies that have been found have been killed almost ritualistically."

"Whatever or whoever killed them was capable of truly horrific violence."

Marcus Veranius: "I don't disagree with the assumption, but maybe not the scope. No doubt that Strahd has a hand in this."

Izek Strazni: "It is possible, I suppose..."

Marcus Veranius: "We saw the coffinmaker on the way here."

"And as we both know, he was responsible for the Bones' theft."

Izek Strazni: "Yes. We believe he was one of the ring-leaders."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Of these killings?"

Izek Strazni: "Of the covenant."

Marcus Veranius: "What might not be so obvious is that he was SMUGGLING undead into the walls by means of gravesoil."

Izek Strazni: "Smuggling undead?"

"How fascinating."

"Why did you not report this earlier?"

"We could have snuffed the covenant out before it even established roots."

Marcus Veranius: "Six boxes, six vampires. I am ashamed to say that I thought we DID snuff it out."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Oh come on Markus that old sap couldn't lead rain to the ground He was a tool for Strahd nothing more" Henry grunts out

Izek Strazni: "All the same, the fact that you chose to hide such a matter from the town guard is... Unfortunate."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: Turning to Henry, the Burgomaster says: "What makes you say that?"

"And Izek, I think we would be wise not to mistrust the Dragon Slayers. After all, they were not here for the disappearances, and cannot possibly have had anything to do with them."

Marcus Veranius shrugs. "Regardless, it would be easy enough to determine whom if any are vampires smuggled in by the coffinmaker."

Marcus Veranius: "Host a parade. Name it in your honor. Have the townsfolk march across the barrier and let the undead burn in it."

Izek Strazni: "We tried that."

"Nobody burned."

Marcus Veranius: "A pity. That rules out the coffinmaker then, and associates."

Marcus Veranius thinks on it

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He was under the influence of a charm and further threatend into cooperating. Some one like him would never be a ringleader of any kind." Henry remarks

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Hosting a parade in my honor was one of the first ideas we had," says the Baron.

"So he was a patsy all along... Izek, we have yet to find the real ringleader, then."

"It is likely he was under the influence of spell craft."

"A pity. Now we have no coffin maker."

Izek Strazni seems unperturbed.

Marcus Veranius: "He DID give us a name, and I did report it. Vazili Von Holtz; did anything come up with him?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "An alias for Strahd, from what we have been able to unearth. He has apparently been using it for centuries. In the records of my great grandfather the name comes up several times."

Marcus Veranius frowns. "And I can assume following up led to no suspects. Do we have any supposed leads?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "We have failed to find a link between the disappearances. First was Lady Wachter's insane daughter -- snatched from within her locked bedroom. The second was my wife, Lydia, snatched from her own locked room here in my very house. The third was a peasant girl just outside the village. The sister of a pair of popular wolf hunters, I believe."

"Then there was that nasty business with the boy from the church. What was his name?"

Izek Strazni: "Milivoj."

Marcus Veranius: "..."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Yes, that boy. He tried to pick a fight with the guards, claiming they hadn't done enough to find his sister."

"He actually managed to beat a few of them, too..."

Marcus Veranius: "...is it too late to consider conscripting him to the guard?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A list of confirmed victims and where they were found would also be quite helpful. Of course that is assuming we are supposed to help" Henry says cutting him off knowing where this was going

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Then there was the woman from the Stockyard. Yelena, I think."

Izek Strazni: "The guard is no place for a rebellious, hot-headed temperament."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "The dungeon, on the other hand, is just the place to reform such a temperament!"

"In time I have faith that he will become more emotionally stable. When that day comes, we may consider his application favorably."

"A list... Yes, that probably would be helpful."

"Izek, do you have a list?"

Marcus Veranius sighs. At least the boy's still alive. There was some blessing in this.

Izek Strazni: Izek flushes slightly. "I hadn't seen the need for one. The printer has been keeping a tally."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "At any rate, the deaths are clearly part of some kind of occult ritual. Witches abound, worshipping the devil Strahd and casting their spells every which way. I am sure of it! With your skills, it should be no difficulty to root out the coven."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "We are pleased to be of assistance to the people of Vallki and their plights"
Henry says with a bland smile

 Marcus Veranius: "At the very least we can rule out the Martikovs. Strahd made sure to burn their winery to cinders; very clear they are NOT on friendly terms."

"Speaking of, I might recommend drinking wine sparingly. Won't be a shipment for a long while."

"Baron of Krezk has been having us check up on things. He's equally disappointed."

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich: The Baron's jaw drops and a look of horror comes over his face. "By the gods..."

"No wine!?"

"We will have a revolution on our hands! This is terrible news!"

 Izek Strazni: Izek seems disturbed by the news too.

"No wine at all?"

 Marcus Veranius: "The vines are still good. The owner is dead but his son has taken over."

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich gets to his feet and begins pacing urgently.

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "We will have to research other means of fermentation in the meantime, and stretch the stores as much as possible. We will have to begin rationing."

 Izek Strazni: Izek relaxes. "Yes, rationing should do the trick."

He seems to think he will be in charge of that...

 Marcus Veranius: "I might recommend giving the Wolf's Head a wide berth for the current time. This is a very precarious situation and barging into their inn again will only make it worse."

"We will see what can be done about these disappearances, you work on keeping control. With any luck, we'll survive another year as we've always done."

[ERATA: Marcus said Blue Water Inn. what's a wolf's head]

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Do you know if Urwin has been informed of his father's death yet?"

 Marcus Veranius: "He... has not. That was to be my burden to bear."

"He WILL find out sooner or later. Best he hear it from a familiar."

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Yes yes, I quite agree... Will you let him know that Vallaki stands with him, in his hour of need?"

 Marcus Veranius nods

 Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Whatever they need in order to produce more wine as quickly as possible, I will be happy to provide. From my own coffer, if necessary."

"Such horrible emergencies have toppled empires, if my great great grandfather's history books are to be believed."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "If you could get us the list and anything else related to these disappearances written up and send to us as soon as possible we would be grateful" Henry reminds the Baron

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I will have Izek drop it off at the Blue Water in the morning. That's where you'll be spending the night, yes? Under ordinary circumstances I think my people would be more than happy to invite you into their homes, but alas, these are unhappy times."

Marcus Veranius: "It is alright. We've got coin for a few nights. The inn will be fine."

"Thank you for the recommendation."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Indeed they are if you don't mind I believe it would be best for us retire for the night now" Henry says "It would be most impolite to impose to long"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Yes, yes. There are still a few hours until morning... I would very much like to go back to sleep. I will leave you to your investigation until tomorrow evening, say, around six. You can stop by and give me a progress report, and join me for dinner. Good luck finding the coven! Vallaki thanks you for your service."

Izek Strazni: "I will walk you to the Blue Water. Just in case the murderers are on the prowl tonight."

Marcus Veranius smiles. "I'd be honored."

Hiere Unthere stops himself from reminding Izek that they have in fact just ultra murdered a fucking dragon

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry picks up the skull plate and nods at Izek face blank

Marcus Veranius hates both these people very much, but kind words make effective chains.

Izek Strazni leads the way to the Blue Water Inn, his eyes searching every shadow.

Make a Perception Check.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

PERCEPTION (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Marcus Veranius:

26

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

Hiere Unthere:

6

PERCEPTION (5)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (ain't seein shit yo)

Hiere Unthere examines his feet carefully

Henry and Hiere do not notice, but Marcus has a funny feeling that the party is being watched. It seems to be coming from behind.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry yawns surprisingly loudly

Marcus Veranius stumbles on a cobblestone, looking backwards for a moment as he picks himself up

Marcus sees the light in the upper window, and catches the movement of someone pulling away from the window in haste. The curtain falls over the window a moment later.

Marcus Veranius: "...the Baron's son, is he doing well?"

"I don't think we've met."

Izek Strazni: "He's a little funny in the head. He doesn't leave his chamber often."

"He does alchemical research, I believe. Attempting to turn lead into various substances."

"A noble pursuit, if a pointless one."

Marcus Veranius nods and turns his attention back to the road

Hiere Unthere looks to Marcus. "Mind pointing it out to me?"

Marcus Veranius glares at Hiere for a moment, making a hand motion suggestion him to not

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Poor kid must miss his mother aswell" Henry remarks

Izek Strazni: "One imagines. They were not terribly close. Lydia always wanted a daughter."

"We're here. Congratulations, you have not been murdered. I will see you in the morning."

The door to the Blue Water Inn is closed and locked, due to the lateness of the hour.

Marcus Veranius politely knocks on the door

After several minutes, the door is opened slightly.

Marcus Veranius: [Roll a 1d20 to determine which one of these one-off NPCs was the signpost maiden]

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Charming as ever that man, almost keeps me from wanting to beat him up...almost" Henry says after Izek left

Marcus Veranius: "Sorry for the late hour. Are there rooms still available?"

Urwin: "Marcus!"

"Henry! Suldae! Ezmerelda! Rictavio! Two people I don't recognize! Please, come in, come in!"

"I was not expecting to see you again so soon! How have things been treating you? You all look a little... Worse for wear."

Marcus Veranius takes a step inside, dropping the mock smile now that they were in safe hands. This day was anything but a happy one.

Urwin: "What's the matter?"

Marcus Veranius: "It... hasn't been going well."

Urwin: "I don't see Ireena... Or Ismark... Did you... Did Strahd...?"

Marcus Veranius: (Has Izek left the area?)

Ireena Kolyana: "It's me!" says Ireena, tugging down on her false beard for a moment.

GM: (Izek has left, yes)

Marcus Veranius: "...a bit worse than that."

Urwin: "Good gods, what an incredible disguise!"

"I thought for a moment there we had two of Rictavio! I was dreading it, to be honest."

Rictavio grimaces.

Marcus Veranius takes a seat next to Urwin, dropping his hat in shame

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And no this guys not Ismark" Henry says pointing at hiere

Urwin: "Well come, take a seat, have some wine. Have you eaten?"

Hiere Unthere curses at being exposed like that

Urwin: "Urwin Martikov," says Urwin, to Hieré, by way of introduction. "You are in good company, if you travel with these fine people."

Marcus Veranius: Best to be blunt. Sugar-coated words helped no one.

"Urwin, Strahd attacked the winery."

Urwin Martikov's face falls. Worry clouds his broad features.

Marcus Veranius: "It was already under siege by the Druids and Baba Lysaga, and Strahd sent his dragon in for a finishing blow."

Urwin: "Gods above..."

Marcus Veranius: "Most everyone survived."

Urwin: "Most everyone?"

Marcus Veranius: "...Davian sacrificed himself to save everyone else."

Urwin Martikov becomes stony-faced. His expression is now unreadable. His fists clench and unclench several times on the table.

Urwin: "I need a drink."

He goes behind the counter and procures a small bottle and brings it back to the table with several glasses.

He pours himself a thimbleful of black-looking liquid. The smell of the alcohol is terrifyingly potent.

"Did he receive a proper send-off?"

Marcus Veranius frowns, keeping his head low

Marcus Veranius: "He did."

"We assured that at the very least."

"Strahd's weapon that did the deed was butchered several hours ago."

"...I'm sorry."

Urwin Martikov slams back his drink and pours another -- slightly dizzily.

Urwin: "He is avenged. Do not be sorry, my friend. You have done more than family could have."

Marcus Veranius: "I AM family, Urwin. Maybe not by blood, but I will honor him the best I can."

Urwin: "You are my brothers and sisters now. My father was a stubborn man. He will have died as he lived."

Marcus Veranius: "...would you like company until the morning?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He seemed like a kind man" Henry says in ways of condolences taking a glass

Urwin: "He was never a kind man. He was a stubborn old git, and I hated him for it. But he was my father, and he will be missed. I am pleased to hear the rest of the family is intact, and that they still have each other."

"I think... I think I need some time to think. Do you want the same rooms you took last time?"

Marcus Veranius: "For the rest maybe. I have a project in mind, and would like a spare barrel if you have one to spare."

Urwin: "A spare barrel? You're in luck, I have a few empties at the moment."

Marcus Veranius: "I find that when frustrations can't be tackled head-on, sewing your enemies into boots helps."

Urwin: "That wolf-hunter has been drinking a lot, since his brother and sister passed."

"Boots?"

"Oh! The Dragon!"

Urwin gives a relieved chuckle. "You had me worried there, Marcus!"

Marcus Veranius: "I haven't made boots of Dragon yet. Would you like a pair?"

Urwin: "I would have less use for them than you, I think."

"Kit out your friends. The war is far from over."

Marcus Veranius smiles

Hiere Unthere: (just going to put this out there: Hiere can seance)

Marcus Veranius: [BOI, I WAS STUCK IN THE WOODS FOR WEEKS AND YE STILL LOOK SCRUFFIER THAN ME!]

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Urwin do you know anything about what is going on in Vallaki right now" Henry asks

Marcus Veranius: [I'M FUCKING DEAD AND YOU STILL LOOK WORSE]

[BOI]

Urwin: "I know some. Not much, I'm afraid. Whatever is killing these people -- I don't think they're just disappearances, given the state of the bodies that have been recovered -- I don't think it's human."

Hiere Unthere: "please let it not be werewolves"

Urwin: "The common belief in town is that there is some coven of demon-summoning witches or something. Naturally, some of the attention has been focused on the Keepers, due to a few unfortunate incidents with witnesses. We lost Marina that way."

"It's pretty hard to persuade an ignorant villager that the person who can transform into a Raven is not a witch."

"What bothers me is the inconsistency of their views, though. No one bats an eye at Izek's arm or the Burgomaster's flashing lights."

Marcus Veranius takes a sip of liquor, if offered. "Not happening again. Made sure to cut that beast off too."

Urwin: "The cult-hunting craze really got out of hand after Lady Wachter's little organization was cleaned up."

Hiere Unthere: "Why does that dude have a monster arm again?"

Urwin: "Careful with that liquor, it's dragon bile. One of the strongest alcohols known to mortals."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Fear does not lend itself to reasoning I_m afraid"

Make a Con save if you drink the liquor.

Marcus Veranius pauses

Henry of Willowsbrook:

6

CONSTITUTION SAVE (5)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Urwin: "No one knows why Izek has that arm. He just woke up with it one morning -- or so he claims."

Marcus Veranius puts down the bottle before a pour

Henry of Willowsbrook is now utterly shitfaced.

Marcus Veranius: "You said that about the Dwarven Ale. And was right."

Urwin: (Con Save: 12)

Marcus Veranius: "Burgomaster knows about the wine shortage. He's giving the Blue Water a wide berth in fear of a revolt, which means we have some level of safety."

Urwin Martikov clutches his head as a wave of dizziness comes over him. His entire head flushes bright red. Smiling laconically, he says: "Aye, I did say tha'. They're close to equal in potency, I think."

Urwin: "Thank you," says Urwin. "The last thing we need is Izek nosing around this place while we're all tryin' ta grieve."

Urwin hiccups.

Marcus Veranius: "Thank your father. He's still keeping us safe it seems."

Marcus Veranius stares across the bar

Henry of Willowsbrook: (would Lay on Hands cure drunkness? it says it can neutralise one poison affecting a creature for 5 points)

Marcus Veranius: (Lay on Drunk)

GM: (Yes, it would cure drunkenness)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (good to know)

Urwin: Urwin grimaces at the mention of his father. He takes another drink. 11

Urwin slumps forward suddenly, unconscious.

he begins to snore quite loudly.

Ireena Kolyana: "Goodness."

"Poor man..."

Rictavio: "He didn't happen to give anyone the keys to the rooms, did he?"

Marcus Veranius starts scribbling a note explaining the situation for Danika to find. Best to cut the confusion early Ezmerelda d'Avenir moves behind the counter and digs through drawers for a moment or two. "Found them," she says, holding up a keyring.

Marcus Veranius: "...on the matter of 'kitting out your buds', I just remembered something important."

"We don't really HAVE a means of making proper equipment from these dragon hides."

"I don't suggest this lightly, but the Raven Queen is recalling her court under the new moon in three days."

"Might be proper craftsmen in their ranks."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry slumps over onto the table "Y'all know what I really fuckin had it for today so I'll go sleep now. Scream if something tries to kill us all which might happen cause of cause theres a killla on tha lose now a break would be to much to ask or what man I hate this provice" Henry drunkenly mutters while pawing a key and wandering up the stairs

Ezmerelda d'Avenir slings her wooden leg up onto the table in front of Marcus, lifts her skirt above her knee, and thumps a fist against one side of the wooden leg. A secret compartment pops open, and she draws out a small box.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir gives this box to Marcus.

Marcus Veranius 's eyes drift back and forth, unsure of what to look at. The skirt, or the fine craftsmanship on this leg.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "There, that's a leather working kit with some wood carving tools too. It should be enough to get some things started."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir winks.

Marcus Veranius: "...I might be able to do something with this, yeah."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, and by the way..." Ezmerelda leans low and whispers to Marcus: "We're taking the private room."

"Unless, of course, you want me to keep playing hard to get..."

Marcus Veranius sweats nervously

Ireena Kolyana: Ireena seems distinctly uncomfortable.

"Right, well. Bedtime! See you all in the morning."

Suldae Westwind: "Wait for me!"

Hiere Unthere casts fog cloud and extracts himself from the situation.

Urwin Martikov belches.

Hiere Unthere:

Fog Cloud

Conjuration 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: A point within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 hour

You create a 20-foot-radius sphere of fog centered on a point within range. The sphere spreads around corners, and its area is heavily obscured. It lasts for the duration or until a wind of moderate or greater speed (at least 10 miles per hour) disperses it.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the radius of the fog increases by 20 feet for each slot level above 1st.

Rictavio: "I'll just put this back for him," says Rictavio, taking the bottle away. It takes some force, since Urwin's grip is surprisingly strong.

Rictavio puts the bottle back where it came from with a reverence bordering on fear.

Marcus Veranius: "You know, I think I can get started on these boots in the morning. HaveaniceeveningRictavio!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry ascends the stairs with grace and the sound of a bucket of nails falling down said stairs

Rictavio: Wandering blindly through the fog cloud with his arms outstretched, Rictavio finds the staircase and ascends. "Blasted wizards..." He mutters.

Hiere Unthere prides himself on knowing how to diffuse an awkward situation

Ezmerelda d'Avenir feels her way along the wall on the second story until she reaches one of the guest room doors -- the room which used to be Rictavio's.

Henry of Willowsbrook: after taking some time fighting the lock on the room Henry enters and begins shed his armor

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Come on, Marcus!"

Hiere Unthere: (the fog cloud is only on the first floor)

Marcus Veranius rushes up the stairs, fading to black as he enters the private room with a stupid grin

GM: (20 foot radius sphere, my dude -- it's definitely on both floors)

Hiere Unthere: (doesn't go through walls??)

The second floor is open to the first, there's a balcony running around GM: (That was meant to be a GM aside, not a description

(Observe)

Hiere Unthere: (as you wish)

GM: (That was not meant to be like "OBSERVE OH UNOBSERVANT ONE" but more like a "Here I'm moving the screen so you can see"

Since this is Hiere's first time in the tavern I should have described the interior but I didn't and that's on me

)

The remainder of the night passes uneventfully.

In the morning, Marcus wakes alone. Ezmerelda is not in the room.

Rictavio, Ireena, and Suldae are already downstairs, eating breakfast. Danika is at the bar, filling in for Urwin today.

Marcus Veranius frowns. He knew this was going to happen after the disaster of last night's activities. Why didn't the Feathers mention the finer points of Bird Anatomy during orientation!?

A second look at the room will reveal that Suldae is not actually there, as she is still sleeping upstairs.

Hiere Unthere: As you look closer you see it is none other than Hiere
What a weird mistake to make

Marcus Veranius: He dresses up and walks downstairs, groggy and upset.

Ireena Kolyana: "Ezme's still sleeping, huh?" Ireena asks, catching Marcus's eye.

"We've got some pretty thin walls here, you might want to be less... overwhelming tonight..."

"But I'm happy for you both."

Marcus Veranius: "She's not here. I wouldn't be either."

Ireena Kolyana: "I haven't seen her this morning..."

"I got up pretty early, too."

Marcus Veranius: "Did you know most species of bird do not have proper equipment?"

Rictavio: "I do not need this information."

"I am eating eggs."

Hieres Unthere spurts out his drink

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Find Steed

Conjuration 2

Casting Time: 10 minutes

Range: 30 feet

Target: An unoccupied space within range

Components: V, S

Duration: Instantaneous

You summon a spirit that assumes the form of an unusually intelligent, strong, and loyal steed, creating a long-lasting bond with it. Appearing in an unoccupied space within range, the steed takes on a form that you choose: a warhorse, a pony, a camel, an elk, or a mastiff. (Your GM might allow other animals to be summoned as steeds.) The steed has the statistics of the chosen form, though it is a celestial, fey, or fiend (your choice) instead of its normal type. Additionally, if your steed has an Intelligence of 5 or less, its Intelligence becomes 6, and it gains the ability to understand one language of your choice that you speak. Your steed serves you as a mount, both in combat and out, and you have an instinctive bond with it that allows you to fight as a seamless unit. While mounted on your steed, you can make any spell you cast that targets only you also target your steed. When the steed drops to 0 hit points, it disappears, leaving behind no physical form. You can also dismiss your steed at any time as an action, causing it to disappear. In either case, casting this spell again summons the same steed, restored to its hit point maximum. While your steed is within 1 mile of you, you can communicate with it telepathically. You can't have more than one steed bonded by this spell at a time. As an action, you can release the steed from its bond at any time, causing it to disappear.

Marcus Veranius drops his head on the bar in frustration

Henry of Willowsbrook: (sorry was sorting out my preped spells

Ireena Kolyana: "I mean, judging from the, uh... Volume... I'd say you managed just fine last night."

Rictavio: "Please stop."

"I am eating."

"Just because your brother is not here does not mean you need to fill in for him."

Ireena Kolyana: "What's that supposed to mean?"

Rictavio: "Ordinarily he would be the one to make crass, thoughtless comments."

Hiere Unthere: "Now we have you"

Hiere Unthere passes Rictavio some ketchup for the harshbrowns he just served

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry rolls out of bed and onto his haphazrdly placed armor making noise both with the resulting crash as well as with his loud cursing

Danika: "Marcus, the trick is to make sure you're not in hybrid form."

"I've been up since before dawn and I haven't seen your friend."

Marcus Veranius: "I figured that out pretty quickly. Suprised it didn't come up sooner."

"..."

Ireena Kolyana: "Should we be worried?"

Marcus Veranius: "Wait, hold up. She didn't come downstairs?"

Danika: "No, not that I saw. Unless she was particularly quiet and I was in the back room at the time."

"I suppose she might have, uh... 'flown off,' as we sometimes say."

Marcus Veranius 's eyes widen, running back upstairs to search the private room

Make an Investigation Check.

Marcus Veranius:

13

INVESTIGATION (0)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 1d20 Lucky

(5)

= 5

Henry of Willowsbrook: After dressing and pulling on his armor Henry shambels out of his room "Hey Marcus you alright?"

Marcus Veranius: (Not so lucky)

"EZMERELDA'S MISSING!"

Ireena Kolyana: "Oh, Henry. That list you were asking about came this morning by messenger." Ireena hands Henry a small envelope.

Hiere Unthere: "Do you want me to find her for you?"

Marcus Veranius is frantically searching the room for any sign of her whereabouts. A missing leg, left behind anythings

Marcus finds no useful clues in the room -- save for a set of long scratch marks on the floorboards.

It is difficult to say, with the night's excitement, whether or not those were there the night before.

All of Ezmerelda's belongings remain as she left them.

In fact, her clothes -- with the exception of a white nightgown -- are still where she threw them.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Thanks also Ow volume control Marcus what in the bright morning light is going on?" Henry asks from the doorway

Hiere Unthere: Hiere rushes up the stairs. "Her leg, does she still have her leg??"

Marcus Veranius grabs Ezmerelda's coat, staring into it with a loss of words.

Hiere Unthere shakes the fucker

Marcus Veranius: "No, no, NO! GODS DAMN IT!"

Marcus Veranius throws it to the ground and kicks a dresser

Hiere Unthere takes this to be a yes and gets to work.

Hiere Unthere:

Locate Object

Divination 2

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V, S, M (A forked twig)

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

Describe or name an object that is familiar to you. You sense the direction to the object's location, as long as that object is within 1,000 feet of you. If the object is in motion, you know the direction of its movement. The spell can locate a specific object known to you, as long as you have seen it up close—within 30 feet—at least once. Alternatively, the spell can locate the nearest object of a particular kind, such as a certain kind of apparel, jewelry, furniture, tool, or weapon. This spell can't locate an object if any thickness of lead, even a thin sheet, blocks a direct path between you and the object.

Rictavio: Rictavio quite sternly stomps across the room and slaps Marcus across the face. "Get ahold of yourself, man. Ezmerelda needs you now."

"Think back. Were there any noises in the night? Did you wake from slumber at all?"

"Even a dream could hold a useful clue."

Hiero Unthere: (ahem)

Marcus Veranius: (What should I roll for remembering?)

GM: (Roll Intelligence)

Marcus Veranius:

15

INTELLIGENCE (0)
Marcus Veranius

Hiero senses that Ezmerelda's leg is almost due east.

Hiero Unthere points, "She's that way."

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry walks over to Irenea and grabs the list looking it over briefly (Is it just names or also stuff like last seen place and where the body was found if it was found?)

Marcus recalls a nightmare. In the dream, he woke in the middle of the night and saw a figure standing at the foot of the bed. At the time, he had taken it for sleep paralysis, something which had happened several times over the years. The figure had been a towering shape of darkness, with huge, elongated limbs and a creeping motion that seemed terribly unnatural. He had not watched it long before slipping back into dreams.

Hiero Unthere: "Are we gonna go find her or nah?"

Marcus sees a pair of dragon-skin boots sitting in the corner. Perhaps he made them in his sleep?

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Of course we will" Henry says

Marcus Veranius clutches his head, memories in a blur. He's not sure why he's so worked up, as if he was thinking of someone else.

Hiero Unthere points his other hand in the same direction to emphasise his point

Marcus Veranius: It didn't matter. He puts on the boots, his equipment, and grabs the Oathbow. This kidnapper made his last mistake.

"Lead me there. Now. We are making short work of this monster."

Hiero Unthere does not dally

Hiero Unthere: dally*

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry cracks his neck and rolls his shoulders pulling on the rest of his gear
"Some light exercise will do wonders for my hangover"

Marcus feels the boots shrink to perfectly fit his feet. He senses that the boots have many unexplored magical qualities...

As the party emerges from the tavern, you hear a feeble voice say: "Marcus..."

Marcus Veranius looks around in a panic

Make a Perception Check

Marcus Veranius:

15

PERCEPTION (10)
Marcus Veranius

rolling 1d20+10

(17)+10

= 27

Henry of Willowsbrook: (him or all of us?)#

Marcus realizes that the voice is coming from inside the well.

Marcus Veranius makes a beeline for it

Marcus Veranius: "Ezmerelda? Ezmerelda!?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry follows him closely

As he peers over the edge, he sees her. She is in the water, clinging to the rope and the bucket. She looks like she has been there for hours. Her nightgown floats around her in the dark water and even from here he can see that she is severely injured. Her face is bloodied and swollen.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Let me" Henry begins to pull up the rope

As she sees Marcus, she smiles feebly. She falls unconscious, and loses her grip, and begins to sink.

Marcus Veranius jumps down the well

Her wooden leg is floating in the water separate from her.

Marcus Veranius: "No, no, don't you dare!"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Marcus catch!" Henry drops a healing potion down to him as soon as he looks

Marcus Veranius grabs the potion and rushes to bring Ezmerelda above the water line. He ignores the useless, always-falling-off leg

Marcus manages to get ahold of her and keep her head above water. She seems pale -- from the cold or from blood loss. There are several huge cuts on her torso. They look almost like the slash-marks of a sword.

The cuts all run in parallel pairs.

Marcus Veranius: "Ez, ez, drink this please. I can't lose you..."

Marcus Veranius struggles to feed her the potion

Ezmerelda d'Avenir wakes up just enough to drink. As she drinks, she seems to wake more. She grips the bottle and chugs it down.

Shivering, Ezmerelda clings to Marcus.

Marcus Veranius: Oh thank goodness! Marcus holds her close in one arm, grabbing the well's rope in the other

"I'm sorry, I don't know what happened. This was my fault. I wasn't keeping an eye out. I thought we'd be safe. I..."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It wasn't you..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I'll get you guys out" Henry says completely forgetting they are both capable of flying on their own

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It was something... Awful."

Henry's rippling muscles make short work of the rope. Within a few seconds, Marcus is level with the top of the well.

Marcus Veranius: "All the victims were women. I should have been more careful!"

Hiere Unthere: (f in chat for karl)

Marcus Veranius: (Karl keeps with the pattern because he is a cunt)
(Also I thought Izek killed him with the rest of the Wachters)

GM: (Yevgeni is a dude)

Marcus Veranius climbs out of the well, not letting go of Ezmerelda. He storms back towards the inn

GM: (The Wachters weren't all in on the cult, the sons were not involved)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Where's Rictavio?"

Rictavio: "I'm here," says Rictavio.

Marcus Veranius: "He's here. We're all here. DANIKA I NEED A BED!"

Danika: "Take her straight upstairs!"

"I'll bring my healer's kit."

Marcus Veranius rushes for the... no not the private room. He's not trusting it.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "It was... It was the same thing we fought at Blackwater. Exactly... The same..."
"I wasn't strong enough... I wasn't ready..."

Marcus Veranius kicks open the other room's door and places Ezmerelda on whatever bed is farthest from the door or windows

Rictavio 's expression grows cold, as though lost in a dark memory.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry again looks over the List Izek left them while keeping close to the others starting

Marcus Veranius: "...Ric, what's this Blackwater?"

Rictavio: "It's a town. Or it was."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "A place I presume more importantly what was in blackwater?"

Rictavio: "The monster we faced there was -- well, I hoped it was -- one of a kind."

"There were murders then, similar to these. Dismemberments. Disappearances."

"The beast could emerge from any shadow, and vanish into it just as easily."

"It seemed to me to be the work of a devil of some kind. A being of pure evil, doing the bidding of a hateful soul."

"We never stopped it. The killings tapered off and eventually there were no more."

"We assumed it had something to do with the eclipse, at the time, but we never did find out how to destroy it."

Rictavio: "It was my private theory that it was the work of some kind of summoner."

"There were a number of suspects, but there was nothing I could prove."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Did you find out what it was? a demon? a Devil? or something else?"

Hiere Unthere: (arcana to see if hiere recognises?)

Marcus Veranius: "The baron's son."

GM: (Go ahead)

Hiere Unthere:

18

ARCANA (9)

Rictavio shakes his head. "No, we never learned what it was."

Marcus Veranius: "He's been meddling with those damned circles. Since the first time we were in town."

"Different summoner, same demon."

Hiere recalls reading about something like this. The beast was said to be the result of a failed attempt by a necromancer to transform into a lich. The creature had a fifteen-foot reach and claws long enough to skewer a boar. It moved swiftly, teleporting from shadow to shadow. It served a master -- sometimes an unwitting one. The beast had a name -- a rather stupid one, given the circumstances. "Boneclaw."

Marcus Veranius: "It has to be; Baron said the first victim was his to-be bride."

Hiere Unthere relays this information to the group

Marcus Veranius: "The wachter family daughter."

Rictavio: "Even if it is... Can we really expect the Baron to take an accusation like that without evidence?"

"After all, it's his only son."

"And even if he does take it... What do we do with that information?"

"From what your wizard friend has said, it seems the summoner may not even realize he is behind the killings."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Finding out who the master is might allow us to find this thing and end it"

Marcus Veranius clenches his fist. "Well what do you suggest then!?" Marcus raised his tone, despair dripping from his person. He felt useless in the face of something attacking his loved ones.

Hiere Unthere: "Well we should inform the guard, no one is safe."

Rictavio: "I suggest we guard ourselves more cautiously."

"And I also suggest we keep as low a profile as possible. It may be wise to lead the town to believe that Ezmerelda is among the dead. To that end, we should print fliers of her, like the others."

Henry of Willowsbrook: (silly question how long would it take to search the entire town with Detect Good and Evil)

Marcus Veranius closes his eyes for a moment, attempting to sense his favored enemies within the area. If this creature was a product of necromancy then maybe, just maybe, he may be able to spot it like all the rest.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Detect Evil and Good

Divination 1

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: Self

Target: Self

Components: V, S

Duration: Concentration Up to 10 minutes

For the duration, you know if there is an aberration, celestial, elemental, fey, fiend, or undead within 30 feet of you, as well as where the creature is located. Similarly, you know if there is a place or object within 30 feet of you that has been magically consecrated or desecrated. The spell can penetrate most barriers, but it is blocked by 1 foot of stone, 1 inch of common metal, a thin sheet of lead, or 3 feet of wood or dirt.

Marcus Veranius:

PRIMEVAL AWARENESS
(UNDEAD)

Class: Ranger 3

You can attune your senses to determine if any of your favored enemies lurk nearby. By spending 1 uninterrupted minute in concentration (as if you were concentrating on a spell), you can sense whether any of your favored enemies are present within 5 miles of you. This feature reveals which of your favored enemies are present, their numbers, and the creatures' general direction and distance (in miles) from you. If there are multiple groups of your favored enemies within range, you learn this information for each group.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (or that, that works to I guess)

Marcus Veranius: (This also detects any Dragons within 5 miles)

Marcus senses.... Nothing. There are some zombies in the forest, and an undead dragon somewhere to the southwest, but that is all he senses.

The undead dragon is two and a half miles due southwest.

Its essence does not feel like Vorgansharax...

Rictavio: "It is possible that the creature only emerges from its nether realm at night."

"I do not sense it either."

Marcus Veranius: "...bah. If we're pretending the hunt succeeded, then I shall remain here in 'mourning'."

Rictavio: "It may be wise to find some way to spy on the Burgomaster's son, if we can."

"One imagines he would not be too suspicious of an inconspicuous raven?"

"Or perhaps some other polymorphed form. A spider, maybe?"

"We could also attempt scrying, although that may give the game away."

Marcus Veranius: "Spider definitely. Izek's paranoid about the birds and cats."

(can you switch to the Vallaki map for a moment?)

(With daytime?)

(OK thank you)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "We are invited to his house this evening that should make sneaking close to the son much easier if we use transformation"

Rictavio: "One imagines a few of the departed souls might be willing to speak with us, if your wizard friend knows how to hold a proper seance. Although I cannot imagine we would gain much useful information from them, other than perhaps testimonials that would not hold up in a Vallakian court of law. They may give us a common thread of acquaintances though."

"This is true..."

"And a mourning man is not likely to want to join us for dinner, so his absence can be easily excused..."

Rictavio looks at Marcus meaningfully.

Marcus Veranius: "Send me a message with magic if things go south. I'll shoot out a window."

Rictavio: "In the meantime, we should attempt to look busy. We should have something to report on, for the Burgomaster's sake."

Marcus Veranius: "And someone ought to pick up that wedding dress. We might need the resurrections."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So thats the plan then spy on the son this evening with Suldae hopefully awake" Henry says "I want to check if there is something we can learn by checking the other attack sites and body locations"

GM (GM): Good morning all!

Zanshukun: hey

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I'll test roll my warpick real quick)

22

5ft

Dagonbone Warpick (+11)
Henry of Willowsbrook

15
Piercing

4
Acid

The afternoon rolls on. Rictavio returns from the church with troubling news: Father Lucian is nowhere to be found. Ezmerelda waits at the tavern, impatient for the night's adventure. She does not like being cooped up. Ismark spends the day irritably wandering the woods, killing the few stray zombies he manages to find. Ireena and Suldae spend several hours with Blinsky, the toymaker. The payment they ultimately give him for his work is many times his requested amount, and at the sight of their generosity he weeps like an overgrown, overweight, bearded little boy. The monkey brings him a tissue and holds it out, looking at the girls with a slightly put-upon expression.

"With this much, I can buy whole new shop! No need for Blinsky to live in squalor! I can buy the tools I need to pursue the craftsmanship even of the maestro, Fritz von Weerg!"

Liliet (Suldae): Suldae smiles, proud to the bones.

"It's only what your work is truly worth, master. I cannot wait to see what you can make with a bigger shop!"

Marcus Veranius stays cooped up with Ezmeralda in the tavern, preparing their light room and crafting boots as requested. He does his best with the replacement prosthetic leg, drawing from experience in shoe-crafting in hopes it fills the gaps in skill.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

Spells this instrument can cast:

Gust (At Will)
Call Lightning (3rd Level)
Protection from Energy
Charm Monster
Dream
Fly
Misty Step
Blink

Horn Flute:

Counts as an Instrument of the Bards:
An instrument of the bards is an exquisite example of its kind, superior to an ordinary instrument in every way. Seven types of these instruments exist, each named after a legendary bard college. A creature that attempts to play the instrument without being attuned to it must succeed on a DC 15 Wisdom saving throw or take 2d4 psychic damage.

You can use an action to play the instrument and cast one of its spells. Once the instrument has been used to cast a spell, it can't be used to cast that spell again until the next dawn. The spells use your spellcasting ability and spell save DC.

You can play the instrument while casting a spell that causes any of its targets to be charmed on a failed saving throw, thereby imposing disadvantage on the save. This effect applies only if the spell has a somatic or a material component.

The horn flute is slightly curved, following the shape of the horn it was carved from. There are carvings of vines along its length, leaves clustering around the holes, making them easy to find by touch. Along the side elvish runes spell out "Wind and shadow"

Spells:
Gust (At Will)
Call Lightning (3rd Level)
Protection from Energy
Charm Monster
Dream
Fly
Misty Step
Blink

Ultimately, all party members — with the notable exception of Ismark — find themselves back at the Blue Water Inn. Suldae and Ireena arrive bearing four new items. The hour of the dinner party draws near, and the sun is already low on the horizon. It is time to discuss final preparations, and share whatever information has been gained by the day's labor.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is tooting on her new flute, familiarizing herself with the range

It's much wider than on her old ocarina, and the sound is clearer, although old wasn't bad either.

This one is just that much better.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well..." Henry begins (Did I learn anything?)

Marcus Veranius stares at the toy crossbow

Suldae Westwind: She can hear the weave echo with every note, and she doesn't expect someone who isn't a bard to be able to play this without ah... unpleasant side effects.

Marcus Veranius: "This is going to be a family heirloom."

Suldae Westwind: *the Weave

"Blinsky said that with how much we paid him he can buy new tools and a bigger shop. Imagine THAT"

Marcus Veranius: "Good for him! He deserves it."

Suldae Westwind: "He said he would be able to craft things he wasn't before," Suldae clarifies her point.

"Imagine THAT."

Marcus Veranius: "...huh."

Suldae Westwind: She continues tooting, testing how to play the most basic and familiar melodies interspersed with trying out new harmonies.

Henry learned that most of the girls at the Wachter household have moved on to other positions. Two of them now work at the Arasek stockyards, and the cook now works for the Baron. (Roll Investigation for the Crime Scenes too please, Henry)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

4

INVESTIGATION (-1)
Henry of Willowsbrook

At one particular trill on the flute, a roll of thunder moves through the cloudless sky.

Unfortunately, Henry found no new evidence at any of the crime scenes.

GM: (Did Henry interview anyone? That could be a Charisma check)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I learned nothing we didn't already know or could guess at from the crime scenes" (He was also doing that)

Straight Cha?

GM: (Intimidation, Persuasion, or Cha — your call. The approach changes the potential ramifications of a bad roll though.)

Henry of Willowsbrook:

8

PERSUASION (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Henry found the guards and the other people he interviewed unwilling to help him. They seem to be afraid of getting on the hit list somehow. Most people are superstitious about the killings, and the general consensus is that Strahd may be behind them somehow and it would be unwise to anger him.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (I continue to roll to form haha ha)

GM: (It's a good thing we're getting these bad rolls out of the way before the Boneclaw shows up to wreck everything)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And the people were about as helpful as you'd think" he adds

Rictavio: "I

"I'm shocked. Shocked, I say."

Ireena Kolyana: "Is there anything else we should do to prepare, before heading over to the burgomaster's?"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Suldae, check out these boots Marcus made! Aren't they incredible?"

"And watch this!" — she clicks her boot-heels together and a silver blade springs forth from the toe of one of them.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Well we should go over who will be where" Henry posits Suldae Westwind: Suldae goes slower after that, paying more attention to the shifting of the Weave from the notes. After a while she figures out the patterns she can access now that she only had a vague understanding of before.

Suldae gives a victory trill - setting a silent mini-firework off over everyone's heads then puts the flute down and claps

Marcus Veranius smiles, proud of his work. "Turns out making a prosthetic isn't too different from shoemaking! You just leave the shoe block in."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae laughs to that.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "In regard to positioning, since I'm dead, I'll remain here."

Marcus Veranius: "I've got the sniper's nest set up upstairs. Beast won't be able to shadow jump inside, and we'll be able to send arrows out."

Hiere Unthere: Hiere leans forward and says in a hushed tone. "how many ninja boots have you made?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods. She doesn't like the idea of not having Marcus there, but the plan does make sense.

Marcus Veranius: "Just try to keep the fight within visual of the north side windows."

Suldae Westwind: "...We'll try to," Suldae says without much confidence.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere gazes into the Dragoneye.

,

"I sense some bad luck in the future"

Ireena Kolyana: "I didn't see too many windows on the north side of the manor..."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "So Ric, Suldae, Hiere, Ireena and I will attend the diner" Henry says

Ireena Kolyana: "When it does come time to fight this thing, it may be best to take the battle to the street, and stay under a streetlamp or something."

Henry of Willowsbrook:

Rictavio: "We should bring light sources, as well. Does anyone know that cantrip?"

 Marcus Veranius: "Also a good plan."

 Hiere Unthere: "Indeed, and Marcus will be busy being sad how dead Ez over here is"

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Oh, Marcus. You poor, grieving man."

 Marcus Veranius: "Now's not a good time for jokes Hiere."

Hiere Unthere turns to Ric

 Hiere Unthere:

Dancing Lights

Evocation Cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 120 feet

Target: Four points within range

Components: V, S, M (A bit of phosphorus or wychwood, or a glowworm)

Duration: Concentration Up to 1 minute

You create up to four torch-sized lights within range, making them appear as torches, lanterns, or glowing orbs that hover in the air for the duration. You can also combine the four lights into one glowing vaguely humanoid form of Medium size. Whichever form you choose, each light sheds dim light in a 10-foot radius. As a bonus action on your turn, you can move the lights up to 60 feet to a new spot within range. A light must be within 20 feet of another light created by this spell, and a light winks out if it exceeds the spell's range.

Marcus Veranius frowns. The morning's events weren't too plesant.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Question could I swap out Magic Weapon for Branding Smite GM?)

GM: (Go for it)

Ireena Kolyana summons her black cat familiar once again. "I'll leave this little guy here, so we can instantly communicate."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae spontaneously hugs her upon the realization that this means she's coming.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I'd better touch up that disguise before you go..."

Suldae Westwind: The flute is danging on a small chain from her belt with a simple yet reliable locking mechanism Blinsky added in a fit of inspiration.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "I might have something that will help keep track of this bonny bastard"

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

DECEPTION
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 15

GM: (The roll required to pierce the disguise is now a 15)

(That's higher than anyone except the most astute observer's passive perception, so it's not likely to come up unless someone grows suspicious and closely observes her)

Marcus Veranius: (...Marcus helps for advantage?)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

PERCEPTION
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 26

GM: (Whoops, that should have been Deception)

Suldae Westwind: (OH I LIKE THIS)

Hiere Unthere: (DAMN)

GM: (But a nat 20 would put that at 29 actually)

Suldae Westwind: (:D)

Hiere Unthere: (watch this nat 1)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Good lord, Marcus. Who knew you were such an artist? I can't even recognize her now!"

Hiere Unthere: (hoooooh boy)

GM: (This is now an almost impenetrable disguise. Strahd himself couldn't pierce it without the dumbest of luck)

Hiere Unthere: Hiere goes to find Ric and warn him about the better looking old fart in town

Rictavio: "Ha. Ha ha. Ha."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae prepares herself for an evening of pretending this old man isn't actually her girlfriend.

19

PERFORMANCE (9)
Suldae Westwind

Ireena Kolyana tries out a deep, manly voice. (To Suldae) "Hey there. You come here often?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae answers this with a flat cold stare. She has no idea why this strange old man is coming onto her.

(but yeah anyone now can beat that Performance to realize there's some kind of relationship there...)

Marcus Veranius: "Listen. The key to a good disguise is to distract one's eyes away from the seams."

"A good pair of boots will do that."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Ireena more belly less throat it will sound more natural and you'll hurt less if you have to speak a lot" Henry adds with a casual tone

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae considers moving to the other side of the gathering from Ireena, then realizes this will lead to compulsive checking on her every minute.

 Ireena Kolyana: "I think we should continue to pretend that I'm deaf/mute. I don't think my voice will be very convincing."

 Rictavio: "Are we ready to proceed?"

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "Wait, didn't you say something about the church?"

 Rictavio: "Yes. The doors are barred, and there was no answer from within. I could not find any sign of Father Lucien."

 Ezmerelda d'Avenir: "I think we can safely assume the worst and hope for the best, there..."

 Marcus Veranius: "Milivoj might be the only remaining of the clergy..."

 Ireena Kolyana: "Poor boy..."

"I wonder if anyone has looked in after his family?"

"Didn't he have young siblings?"

 Marcus Veranius: "..."

"Grim times indeed."

 Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry looks outside while limbering up his shoulders "Sooo who's ready to rattle some bones?" Henry asks tone forcibly lighter than it should be given the statement

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae gives another victory trill, this time with fireworks of a different color.
(I love Minor Illusion)

 Izek Strazni: "Good evening."
"I have come to escort you to the burgomaster's manor."

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae gives a bow and a shy smile, instantly folding on herself a little - harmless, this girl is purely harmless!

24

PERFORMANCE (9) Sulda Westwind

 Henry of Willowsbrook: "Hello Izek almost didn't not miss seeing you" Henry says

 Hiere Unthere: "I think he's coming onto you" Hiere whispers

 Sulda Westwind: Suldae looks up and one can see her lips moving as she counts the negatives.

 Izek Strazni: Izek raises one eyebrow but gives no response. Perhaps because he is not sure what is meant by the statement.

Suldae Westwind: She is not sure what Henry meant too, in th end.

Izek Strazni: "Enough dallying. The light is fading, and the burgomaster is not a patient man."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Please do lead the way"

As the party emerges from the Blue Water Inn, they find six guards waiting for them outside.

Marcus Veranius: "Send the Burgomaster my best wishes. My heart was killed last we met. Today I spend alone in tears."

Ezmerelda d'Avenir remains under the table, out of view, where she dove when the door first opened.

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

STEALTH
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 9

Marcus Veranius is standing in front of said table, providing help in hiding Ezmeralda

Marcus Veranius: (pls no low roll)

Ezmerelda d'Avenir:

STEALTH
Ezmerelda d'Avenir

Skill: 9

Marcus Veranius: (OH NO)

Izek Strazni: Izek, who clearly saw the boots of the woman under the table, makes no comment upon them.

"As you wish. As long as your friends can make the report of your day's efforts, he will not miss one or two of you."

Izek begins to lead the way across town.

Along the journey, you see several posters with loose sketches of Ezmerelda on them. They look much like the other 'missing' posters.

Rictavio: Rictavio smiles at his handiwork.

Soon the party finds themselves before the gates of the Burgomaster's manor. The guards wait outside the doors while Izek knocks.

GM: (Changing map, one second)

(Marcus, I'm leaving your token in the room so you can still see it, but you're not actually here)

(You can move the token to imitate peering in through various windows)

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Ah, my friends! How good of you to join me again. Please, come into the study. Dinner is almost prepared, but I would hear the news of the day's events."

"Pray, tell me. What have you learned of our vicious assassin?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It appears that we are dealing with an undead being in particular the remains of a failed attempt at eternal live via lichdom" Henry explains "Such beings are commonly refered to as Bone Claws"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "A lich? Here? In Vallaki?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich scoffs.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Preposterous. The bones of St. Andral would never allow such evil within the walls."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Not a lich what remains of some fool that tried to become a lich and failed"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I see... I cannot pretend to know much of such matters. Izek? What do you think?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae is hanging back and observing.

17

ATHLETICS (1)
Suldae Westwind

22

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

(ignore that first one lmao)

Izek Strazni: Izek scratches his monstrous arm thoughtfully. "It makes sense. If the witches have been trying to make a lich, one of their failed experiments might result in some kind of monster."

"I have never heard of this 'Bone Claw' creature."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "And regretfully the bones were missing even if it was only briefly it might have been enough for some fool to call upon such a being"

Suldae Westwind: (anything on Suldae's Insight roll?)

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Very well. If such a creature does exist, here in Vallaki... How do we catch it?"

GM: (Suldae realizes that both Izek and the Baron are pretty ignorant, and they don't enjoy looking stupid. They both remain convinced that witches are ultimately behind this.)

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "And where is that charming young man in the hat? And his lovely companion?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae's face falls as she visualizes the scenario they're pretending is true. "Ezmerelda..." she says softly.

Hiere Unthere: "The boneclaw came for her"

GM: (Make Deception checks)

Hiere Unthere: (wasn't lying)

Suldae Westwind:16*DECEPTION (7)
Suldae WestwindGM: (Clever, I'll let it slide)Suldae Westwind: (also that)

(well, Suldae was deceiving)

(Henry wasn't lying)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "That will be difficult as Bone Claws have one particularly deadly talent, teleportation via shadows, which makes them hard to impossible to pin down" Henry barrles on "Unless you were to attack whoever summoned it"Baron Vargas Vallakovich: Seeing the sadness on Suldae's face, the Baron sighs. "Alas, what a tragedy."

"So we are back where we started, no? A coven of witches has summoned a deadly beast, and to slay it we must root them out."

Suldae Westwind: "They might be anywhere," Suldae says quietly.Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Now that you have a personal stake in the matter, I hope you will see that we must dismantle the coven at any cost."Suldae Westwind: "Even..."

"The worst thing is that the coven does not have to be large to do this."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Oh?"

"That is troubling... Do you think they could begin to summon more of the beasts?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry raises a hand "If it was intentionally summoned? Possibly I must admit I'm not to fammilar with the process that would involve"Izek Strazni: "We should declare a state of emergency. Lanterns and torches should be distributed to all citizens."Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Perhaps while doing so, we could root around in the houses and look for occult artifacts. That may be the best way to root out the coven."

"Perhaps that toymaker? His works have often struck me as devilish."

Suldae Westwind: "We should start with ruling out the least likely suspects," Suldae suggests.Izek Strazni: Izek squirms a little. "I think the toymaker is no threat."Baron Vargas Vallakovich: The Baron chuckles. "Yes yes, I know all about your little 'custom commissions.'"

"All the same, we should not rule anyone out at this point."

Suldae Westwind: "For example, knowing no-one in this house - not even guards or servants that might have entrance - have left any trickery anywhere could give us a secure base to work from."Hiere Unthere: Hiere's eyes bulge at this the Baron's statement

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "In this house?"

Suldae Westwind: "A horrifying thought, isn't it?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I assure you, child. None of my servants would ever be involved in such matters."

"Izek vetted them all quite thoroughly."

Suldae Westwind: "Unless they were charmed into it."

"Witches have horrible abilities."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "No one here dabbles in matters arcane?"

Suldae Westwind: "Everyone knows that to hide something best, you need to put it where no-one will look."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "No one here would dare to dabble in such matters," says the Baron. (Roll Insight)

Suldae Westwind:

16

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

(To GM):

DECEPTION Baron Vargas Vallakovich
Skill: 23

Henry of Willowsbrook:

17

INSIGHT (4)
Henry of Willowsbrook

GM: (Hiere, you too)

Hiere Unthere:

15

INSIGHT (1)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Izek did tell us that the son was atleast alchemically dabbeling I will remind everyone)

(To GM):

CHARISMA Izek Strazni
Ability: 19

Suldae Westwind: "Witches are also capable of taking over rituals that are more harmless and harming other practitioners."

"Anyone who does magic in this town would be a target, as they would fear discovery by such a person."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I assure you yet again: no one in this house would dare to dabble in such matters under my roof. Izek, do you not agree?"

Izek Strazni: "Aye, my lord."

Suldae Westwind: "No one would willingly dare dabble, I agree. Yet we've seen even Strahd's worst enemies turned to momentary confusion by his foul magics."

"You might be underestimating the severity of the threat."

22

PERSUASION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Izek Strazni:

CHARISMA Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Ability: 19

Baron Vargas Vallakovich:

CHARISMA Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Ability: 12

"Hmmm..."

"A troubling suggestion."

"Strahd is, indeed, quite devious..."

The Baron looks at Izek, who returns his gaze steadily. They seem to be having a silent conversation in that stare.

"Perhaps you are wise. I will call in the servants. You can interview them at length. I would prefer to avoid using any serious tortures, but you may compel them to speak in whatever manner you believe is best."

Suldae Westwind: "You, too, would be a priority target, due to the protection you provide for this town..." Suldae adds more quietly, as if she fears scaring him.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Only don't harm their hands, I quite like the way they handle the cooking and cleaning."

Suldae Westwind: "Their memories might be erased. Searching the manor itself might be necessary as well."

"We would, of course, avoid any areas where servants are not permitted entrance."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: Slightly aghast at this suggestion, the Baron begins to turn bright red.

"Do you really dare to suggest that my very home may be the place where such villainy is conducted?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae puts up her hands, looking scared.

And duly intimidated.

Meanwhile, outside the windows, the sun is beginning to set.

Suldae Westwind: She's trying to gauge if the issue is that he's genuinely not buying it or if fear of discovery of something else is overriding his worries.

23

INSIGHT (6)
Suldae Westwind

Marcus sees a pulse of purple light from one of the upper windows of the Burgomaster's house.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Would you gamble with the lives of Vallaki including your own that it isn't?"
Henry asks tone frigid

(To GM):

CHARISMA Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Ability: 7

The Burgomaster is transparently attempting to avoid the discovery of something.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I will not have a group of vagabond warriors rummaging through my mansion! It is out of the question!"

Marcus Veranius stares at the light, mumbling to Ezmerelda

Suldae Westwind: "We should at least search the servants' own rooms," Suldae adds in a shaking tone.

Marcus Veranius: "Think we ought to give them a signal to the light?"

Suldae Westwind: It won't let them find the Baron's secret, by itself, but it would just be odd if she didn't insist, to her own understanding of the persona she's inhabiting right now.
Besides, it will open some doors at least.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I will have Izek search their rooms, if you insist."

Suldae Westwind: "You should do that," Suldae nods with a look of relief on her face.

Marcus Veranius looks at the roof of the household, wondering if there's anything dangling near the son's room

Suldae Westwind: "I apologize for any disrespect I might have implied - none was intended. I was merely concerned for the safety of this town - your own is too important for it."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Izek? You may do so now."

Suldae Westwind:

20

PERSUASION (9)
Suldae Westwind

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: Stroking the Baron's ego seems to work. He calms down visibly.

Henry of Willowsbrook:

27

CHARISMA SAVE (8)
Henry of Willowsbrook

14

CHARISMA (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I understand your concern, as unwarranted as it may be."

Suldae Westwind: Suldae nods, looking duly chastised.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Now. Before we interrogate my servants and cause them undue stress and discomfort, shall we go in and eat?"

Suldae Westwind: Suldae smiles gratefully.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry takes a deep breath and then another and then another fighting down his anger

Izek Strazni leaves the room, off to search the servants' quarters.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "IF

Hiere Unthere: Hiere puts a hand on his shoulder and whispers something to him, "Distract him"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Who" Henry whispers back hiding his mouth by scratching himself

Hiere Unthere: Hiere looks towards the Baron
He nods politely

Suldae Westwind: All of this is doing a very good job of keeping Suldae's attention off definitely-not-Ireena-just-an-old-man-tagging-along-for-some-reason.

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Baron Vallokovich I believe It would be best to to eat now oh and I noticed the paintings in the hall would you be so kind as to tell me something about them I must admit I am a little intriuged by them"

Marcus Veranius notices a weathervane near the room. If that thing were to fall off, it'd likely cause a bit of noise

Hiere Unthere: Hiere uses this time to cast
Arcane eye

Marcus Veranius attempts to stealthily knock it down with an arrow, using one of the ones looted from the Death House to keep its owner's identity hidden.

Marcus Veranius: Heaven forbid they find something identifiable

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Ah yes, this here is my great grandfather, the fifth Burgomaster of Vallaki. And that one there is my great aunt Imelda, she was the one who began the festivals. The Vallakovich line has been here for...." (The Baron continues rambling about his lineage)

Marcus Veranius:16

600

Oathbow (+12)
Marcus Veranius13Bonus Damage/Piercing11Magical Piercing*

(Precision)

When you make a weapon attack roll against a creature, you can expend one superiority die to add it to the roll. You can use this maneuver before or after making the attack roll, but before any effects of the attack are applied.

4*Bonus Accuracy[Precision Attack]

Marcus Veranius

(20 to hit, no bonus damage because Weatherveins are neither a favored enemy nor has Marcus sworn vengeance against them)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "hmm." Henry continues to nod and occasionally repeat certain things pretending to closely listen to the Barons ramblings

Suldae Westwind: Suldae trails after the Baron, making small 'ooh' and 'ahh' noises in appropriate moments - just enough to make him feel appreciated but not interrupted.

Hiere Unthere: (does hiere get off his cast?)

Suldae Westwind: She asks clarifying questions whenever it seems like he's particularly excited by a topic.

Rictavio: Rictavio tags along, nodding thoughtfully from time to time.

Henry of Willowsbrook: (Ah nobles, always up for a bit of bragging about their ancestors great accomplishments)

In the living room, an invisible, magical eye appears within 30 feet of Hiere.

Hiere Unthere: Hiere yeets that shit out, time to go exploring

GM: (There is now a yellow token to represent the eye -- you can see through it)

Hiere Unthere: (do I move it around?)

GM: (Yes, but only 30 feet at a time)

Henry of Willowsbrook: (move it to where you wanna snop)

Suddenly, there is a sound like an iron weathervane being viciously struck from afar, breaking off of its stand, and falling off the roof.

Suldae Westwind: (30ft is like 6 squares)

Rictavio: "What was that?"

Ireena Kolyana: (Via Message to Suldae) "Marcus says there was a flash of light in the third floor window.)

Henry of Willowsbrook: "It sounds like it came from the roof" Henry says voice tense

Suldae Westwind: "Have I mentioned an attempt would likely be made on your life?" Suldae asks tensely, looking up at the baron with fear in her eyes.

19

PERFORMANCE (9)
Suldae Westwind

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Surely no one could be so foolish! With Izek at my side?"

INSIGHT Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Skill: 20

Suldae Westwind: "Witches are not known for their great judgement..."

"I admit I am more worried for possible bystanders..."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Why do I get the feeling that you are all trying to distract me from something?"

"Izek!"

Izek Strazni: "Yes, my lord?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Go see what that noise was. Have guards surround the house. I want lanterns in all hands."

Suldae Westwind: "Good plan," Suldae says seriously, relaxing a little.

18

PERFORMANCE (9)
Suldae Westwind

(welp)

(hey Hiere can I have an 11)

Baron Vargas Vallakovich:

INSIGHT Baron Vargas Vallakovich <hr/> Skill: 9
--

Suldae Westwind: (oh nm)

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Yes, yes. A very good plan, if I do say so myself."

Hiere Unthere: (you gotta ask before you roll my dude)

Marcus Veranius closes the blinds of the bright room, trying to remove it as an origin point. Plenty of other buildings between him and the burgomaster's house

Baron Vargas Vallakovich pulls a small silver bell out of his pocket and rings it viciously.

Two cooks emerge from the kitchen. You recognize one of them as a former employee of Lady Wachter. A maid emerges from setting the dining room.

Servants: "Yes, my lord?"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Take every candle we have from the storehouses and light them all. I want no shadows! No shadows at all, anywhere in the house! Do you understand me?"

The Servants seem a little confused by the request, but scurry off to fulfill it.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "It seems dinner will have to be delayed."

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Milord If you were to allow it I would gladly help light the building"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Oh?" says the Baron. "In what manner?"

Izek Strazni leaves.

Henry of Willowsbrook: Henry supresses an annoyed sigh before fishing a tinder box out of a pouch and holding it up "More Hnads light more candles milord" hands

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "I think my servants can manage. I would rather have your prodigious frame nearby, if possible."

"Just in case..."

Henry of Willowsbrook:

7

CHARISMA (2)
Henry of Willowsbrook

Izek Strazni returns, bearing a weathervane and an arrow.

Hiere Unthere commands the eye to move to wear he was told the Baron's son lived.

Hiere Unthere: *where

Izek Strazni: "My lord, look. The weathervane fell off the roof. This old arrow seems to have done it."

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "An arrow? An arrow?"

"Surely this is the work of witches! Is there not an old curse which proceeds in that manner? Strike down the weathervane, and storms will come?"

Izek Strazni: "...Maybe?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "Certainly certainly" Henry murmurs audibly venomous "Of cause I will stay close by if his lordship so wishes"

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: The Baron seems to be growing more and more paranoid as nightfall grows nearer.

Suldae Westwind: "I am not sure what this might do," Suldae says, anxiety in her voice - real anxiety being allowed through from her uncertainty about what might be happening in this house.

"Surely you would at least accompany us throughout the house to check for obvious witchery effects in the corridors?"

"You might be under attack right now."

The Arcane Eye finds the bedroom of a young man. This handsomely appointed room contains a canopied bed, a low bookshelf, and a full-length mirror in a wooden frame on the wall across from the door. Set into the north wall is an arched window of leaded glass. Nothing here seems unusual.

The room currently has no occupants. The bed is neatly made.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Yes, yes... Yes, we should all go together. We should move together, as a group. I will stand in the exact center."

Hiere Unthere: Hiereye looks for any exploitable gaps in the walls.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: To Henry, he says: "You, boy. I want you at my side. Izek, you stay at my right hand. You two gentlemen can stay at the back of the group, and hold candles. You, girl. Stay near this armored fellow. And where did that man in the top hat get off to?"

Hiere finds no gaps in the walls.

It is possible the Eye has misunderstood his command.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae gestures to Hiere to get over here.

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Now, how shall we proceed?"

Hiere Unthere: Hiereleaves the eye alone for a sec and gets over there

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Shall we search the first floor first, or the second floor?"

Henry of Willowsbrook: "He must have dosed of again" Henry says to cover for Hiere

Baron Vargas Vallakovich: "Ah, a narcoleptic. I have read extensively of such disorders! A tincture of ginger root and coffee powder can cure what ails him!"

"We can't have him falling asleep on the job. Let's go to the kitchen and get such a concoction assembled. I believe we have ginger root in the pantry."

"In fact, such a concoction might be a good idea for all of us. It seems this may be a long night."

"The witches must be all around the house, now! I can practically hear their incantations!"

Hiere Unthere: Hiere perks up at the mention of coffee.

One does not simply give Hiere caffeine.

Suldae Westwind: Suldae feels a surge of fear go through her.

It is however tinged with excitement.

